be brought into hotchpot, nor a provision of land for an heir. Id. ib.

One settles a rent out of lands upon a younger child; this is an advancement pro tanto. Id. ib.

An annuity settled by a father upon a child, to commence after the father's death, is an advancement pro tanto, and must be brought into hotchpot. Id. 442.

A provision for a child by a father, though contingent, yet when the contingency happens, is an advancement pro tanto. So, a provision made for a child either by a voluntary settlement, or for a good consideration, is an advancement pro tanto. So, though the portion be not paid, yet if secured to the child in the father's lifetime, although not payable till after the father's death. Id. ib.

Maintenance money for a child not taken to be an advancement, &c. Edwards v. Freeman, id. 449.

Where a freeman of London leaves no wife, the children are entitled to one moiety, and the other moiety is the dead man's part. Northey v. Strange, 1 P. W. 341. Prec. Ch. 470. Gilb. Eq. Rep. 136. S. C.

Grandchildren of a freeman are not within the custom to come in for an orphanage part. Id. ib.

Freeman's son has had several sums from the freeman, the certainty of which does appear; the son had likewise several other sums, the certainty of which does not appear, otherwise than by the son's answer; the son not barred, but shall come in for his orphanage part. Id. ib. CUSTOM OF LONDON, WHO TAKE; CUSTOM OF LONDON, NOW BARRED.

Father buys an estate in the name of his younger son and of a trustee; it shall be taken as advancement. So, though a reversion be settled on the younger son expectant on the mother's death. Lampugh v. Lampugh, 1 P. W. 111.

Lord of manor (his tenants refusing to renew) makes a lease of the premises to his daughter for ninety-nine years, and afterwards sells the manor to J, who has notice of the lease, but has security that the daughter when at age should surrender; daughter decreed to have the benefit of the lease. Jennings v. Selleck, 1 Vern. 467. VEND. & PURCH.

A purchase by the father in the name of his infant son decreed to be an advancement, and not a trust. Mumma v. Mumma, 2 Vern. 19.

Real estate settled by a freeman of London on a child, no bar to the orphanage part. Civil v. Rich, 1 Vern. 216. 2 Ch. Ca. 160. S. C. CUSTOM OF LONDON.

A child advanced in marriage, with a portion, is barred of the orphanage part, unless the certainty of such portion appears by writing under the father's hand. Id. ib.

If a grandfather takes a bond in the name of his grandchildren, their father being dead, this shall be deemed an advancement, and not a trust, for by the death of their father, the grandchildren are under the immediate care of their grandfather. Ebrard v. Dancer, 2 Ch. Ca. 26. TRUST.

Purchase by a father in the name of his son an advancement. Grey v. Grey, 2 Swan. 594.

It is a constant rule that where a father purchases in the name of a child unprovided for, it is intended as a provision, and not a trust, and if otherwise the onus probandi of the intent lies on the plaintiff; but where the child has been already advanced, it shall be deemed a trust for the parent. Gray v. Gray, 1 Ch. Ca. 296.

III. MAINTENANCE.

Where father is not of ability, court will allow maintenance for children, though mother has a competent separate estate, Hailey v. Bannister, 4 Mad. 275. HUSB. & WIFE; SEPARATE ESTATE.

Maintenance under the circumstances given to a father who had 6000*l.* a year of his own, and although no report of debts had been made. Jervoise v. Silk, Cooper, 52.

The court will not make an allowance to a father for the maintenance of a child for the time past, although it should appear that, in fact, he had not been of ability to maintain him, and although the will had expressly given the produce to the trustees for his maintenance. Andrews v. Partington, 2 Cox, 223. S. C. 3 Bro. C. C. 60.

No allowance to a parent for maintaining an infant for the time past. Hill v. Chapman, 2 Bro. C. C. 231.

In order to entitle the father of an infant legatee to maintenance, it is not necessary that he should be absolutely insolvent, but that he should not be in sufficient circumstances to maintain his child suitably to his expectation. The court will not allow maintenance to a grandchild legatee out of a fund not vested. Buckworth v. Buckworth, 1 Cox, 80.

Maintenance not allowed by the court where the parents are of ability, though directed by the will; where the parent is reported not of ability, the sums allowed shall be only from the time of the report, not of the decree. Hughes v. Hughes, 1 Bro. C. C. 387.

Mother, married to a second husband, not obliged to maintain the children by the first, but shall have an allowance from the interest of their fortunes. Biltingsley v. Critchet, 1 Bro. C. C. 268.

If on voluntary settlement by father an account is directed for the child, maintenance is to be deducted. Williamson v. Codrington, 1 Ves. 517. VOLUNTARY SETTLEMENT.

Where maintenance is allowed it is always paid to the father out of the child's estate, and there is no instance of it being deducted out of a legacy left by a child. Jeffereys v. Jeffereys, 3 Atk. 123.

Where a father is sufficiently competent the court will give no direction with regard to an infant's maintenance. Jackson v. Jackson, 1 Atk. 515.

IV. THE PECULIAR INCIDENTS OF THE RELATIONSHIP OF PARENT AND CHILD; AND HEREIN OF PURCHASES IN NAME OF SON.

Destruction by father of security given by son for money advanced, held under the circumstances an advancement and release of debt. Gilbert v. Wetherell, 2 S. & S. 254. RELEASE OF DEBT.

A legacy given by a father's will is such an advancement of younger children in lifetime of father, as will be accounted in equity as satisfaction pro tanto, of portions to be raised for them under the testator's marriage settlement, if it contain a clause providing that advancement shall be a satisfaction so far; the will being silent in that respect is not per se equivalent to a declaration that legacy shall not be towards such satisfaction. Golding v. Haverfield, 13 Price, 593. S. C. 1 M'Clel. 345. ADVANCEMENT; SETTLEMENT, MARRIAGE, SATISFACTION.

Tenant in possession procured grant of the copyhold to son in remainder, and at same time surrendered it to use of will: Held, not an advancement, and son trustee only. Frankard v. Frankard, 1 S. & S. 1. ADVANCEMENT; TRUSTEE; COPYHOLD, SURRENDER.

Stock purchased by father, afterwards a bankrupt, in name of his son an infant, and a trustee, is within the mischief of 1 Jac. 1 c. 15. s. 5. Brown v. Belars, 6 Mad. 63. STATUTE, C. OF; BANKCY.; REPUTED OWNERSHIP.

A father having purchased in the name of his sons, &c.

a copyhold estate, which he afterwards demised by licence obtained subsequently to the purchase; the sons take the estate successively as an advancement. To repel the presumption of advancement, evidence of the father's intention must be contemporaneous with the purchase. Murless v. Franklin, 1 Swan. 13. PRESUMPTION; ADVANCEMENT.

The title as to interest on legacies given to infants by persons standing in loco parentis does not extend to an adult, though she had received, during life of testator, a voluntary annuity from him. Raven v. Waite, 1 Swan. 653. WILL, C. OF; INTEREST ON LEGACIES.

Question on construction of intricate will as to the forfeiture by children, through the non-compliance on part of father, with the condition of assumption of name of deviser. Hawkins v. Jascombe, 3 Swan. 375. FORFEITURE; WILL, C. OF; CONDITION BREACH OF.

Presumption of satisfaction of a legacy by a portion from a parent, or person in loco parentis not applied to an illegitimate child, no relationship existing in law, nor recognized expressly or by inference by the testator, neither a legal parent, nor assuming the parental character, or discharging parental duties, and nothing in the nature or manner of the legacy indicating that it was given as a portion by a testator for his child. Wetherby v. Dixon, 19 Ves. 407. S. C. Coop. 279. S. P. Exp. Pye, 18 Ves. 140. LEGACY, SATISFACTION OF; BASTARD.

Satisfaction of a legacy by a parent to a child by a portion of the same amount, though with some circumstances of difference. Whether parol evidence can be admitted originally of an intention to substitute the one provision for the other, or only where it is first offered against the presumption, it is clearly admissible to shew that the father was the author of the portion, viz., by stipulating or joining in the marriage settlement of his eldest son for a charge, and giving wife interests in consideration of it. Hartopp v. Hartopp, 17 Ves. 184. WILL, C. OF; LEGACY, SATISF.; EVIDENCE.

Slight circumstances are laid hold of to get rid of the rule that a legacy to a creditor extinguishes the debt, but a little difference between a portion and a legacy to a child, and as to the time of payment will not prevail against the presumption of satisfaction. Barclay v. Wainwright, 3 Ves. 466. LEGACY, SATISF. OF; WILL, C. OF; DEBT, SATISF. OF.

Portions for the children by the will of the parent presumed a satisfaction of a prior provision by settlement, unless clearly not so intended; the presumption is not rebutted by slight circumstances; accounts in the testator's handwriting, were admitted as evidence of the circumstances under which he made his will, but not to explain the will. Hinchcliffe v. Hinchcliffe, 3 Ves. 516. SETTLEMENT, SATISF. OF; EVIDENCE.

Portion for the children by the will of the parent, held a satisfaction of a provision by settlement upon the intention: slight circumstances of difference that would repel the presumption of satisfaction between strangers are not sufficient in the case of parent and child. Sparks v. Cator, 3 Ves. 530. Id.

Upon the ground of an express maintenance, and other indications of the intention, the Ld. Ch. inclined to the opinion, that the rule for interest upon a legacy given by a parent to a child till the time of payment, was not applicable, but the bill of the children was dismissed upon circumstances of acquiescence, lack, and the consequent difficulty of taking the account. Wright v. Bower, 3 Ves. 283. WILL, C. OF; LEGACY.

Legacy payable to child payable in future, if the child dies, generally it shall carry interest, but not if the testator has less than the interest is given for, or if the testator paying that shall have the rest. Crickett v. Dolby, 3 Ves. 17. LEGACY; INTEREST.

If a father purchases land in the name of his eldest son, this shall be an advancement for the son, and not a trust for the father, though the father had been in possession, and had received the rents and profits. Gray v. Gray, 1 Ch. Ch. 296. Finch, 338. Scroop v. Scroop, 1 Ch. Ca. 27. Elliot v. Elliot, 2 Ch. Ca. 231. where this was said to be the constant rule; but Ld. Ch., in that case, took this distinction; where a parent made a purchase in the name of an unadvanced child, and where in the name of one already advanced; for in the former case it should be considered as an advancement, and in the latter, a trust for the parent. Vide Shales v. Shales, 2 Freem. 252, where this rule is said to have been so settled before the statute of frauds, and it is stronger since; and in Redington v. Redington, 3 Ridgw. P. C. 181, it was said by Fitzgibbon, C., that the rule laid down in Gray v. Gray, sup., and also in Lamplugh v. Lamplugh, 1 P. W. 111, and in Taylor v. Taylor, 1 Atk. 386, has this strong additional circumstance in the two latter cases, that parol evidence was there held admissible on the part of the advanced son or his heir to rebut a claim of trust, because although improper against the legal operation of a deed, yet in the case of an advanced son, it is in support of the deed, and of law and equity too. (Bridgman.) ADVANCEMENT.

If a father purchases an estate in the name of a younger son, and the eldest disclaims a trust on his part, unless a creditor interpose, it shall be deemed an advancement for the son in whose name it was made. So is the rule laid down in Grey v. Grey, Finch, 338. Where there is no clear proof of a trust between father and son, the law will never imply a trust. If a son is married in the father's lifetime, and by him fully advanced, and in a manner emancipated, there a purchase by a father in the name of a son may be a trust for the father, but where the son is not advanced, or is advanced or emancipated but in part, in such case there is no room for any construction of a trust by implication; without clear proof to the contrary, it must be taken as an advancement for the son. Redington v. Redington, 3 Ridgw. P. C. 176. 179. ADVANCEMENT; TRUST.

Copyhold granted to A, and B his wife, and C his son, to take in succession for their lives and the life of the survivors. The purchase money was all paid by A. C is not a trustee of his life interest for A, but takes it beneficially as an advancement from his father. Dyer v. Dyer, 2 Cox, 92. ADVANCEMENT; TRUST.

Deputation procured by father for a natural son, on security of his estate in J, held to be for son's own benefit, and not in trust. Beckford v. Beckford, Loft. 490. ADVANCEMENT; TRUST; BASTARD.

On the marriage of A, his sister advances him 600l. to make a present to his wife, and A procures his father to give her a bond for the amount, payable at a month after his death. A pays his sister interest during his father's lifetime, and for the month afterwards. On a bill by the sister against the representatives of her father and her brother, held a debt on the estate of the father, not to be indemnified by A. And the plaintiff was also decreed her costs out of her father's estate: aliter, if such a transaction had been between strangers. Hill v. Ballard, 1 Ves. 77. ADMON. OF ASSETS.

If the legacy be given by a parent to his child at twenty-one, or marriage, and the child has no other provision, the court will give interest by way of maintenance, though the legacy is not vested. Heath v. Perry, 3 Atk. 102. INFANT MAINTENANCE.

A creditor, under circumstances, may be let in upon estates jointly purchased by the father and his sons, and a moiety of each may be sold to satisfy judgment. Stileman v. Ashdown, 2 Atk. 477. CREDITORS.

Though the father pays the whole consideration, yet if the purchase is made in the name of a younger son, the heir cannot maintain it to be a trust for the father. S. C. 2 Atk. 480. ADVANCEMENT.

The reason why a purchase in the son's name, though the possession continued in the father, has been held an advancement of the son, is because the father was his natural guardian during minority. S. C. Id.

A purchase in the name of father and son as joint tenants, is no advancement of the son, as it does not answer the purpose; for, till a division, the father has possession of the whole, and even after it, a moiety, besides the chance of the other moiety, by survivorship. S. C. Id.

As in the last case, the father was in possession of the whole, and was visible owner, creditor by elegit the father might have laid hold of a moiety. S. C. Id. CREDITORS.

When father in a purchase takes an estate in it to himself for life, with remainder to his son in fee, as the father has the profits for life, the father is liable to the creditors. S. C. Id.

Portion a satisfaction of a legacy from the father to the same amount, the evidence not being sufficient to repel the presumption. Ellison v. Cookson, 1 Ves. J. 100. LEGACY, SATISFACTION OF; PORTION.

A father purchases lands in his son's name, his son being then eighteen years of age; the father continued in possession till his death; this shall be considered an advancement for the son, and not a trust for the father. Taylor v. Taylor, 1 Atk. 386. ADVANCEMENT.

A father advances some of his children with portions in his lifetime, and then makes his will, and thereby recites he had advanced B and C, but omits reciting D (whom he had also advanced), and leaves to him a certain sum, and devises the residue equally among them: the money which D had received shall go in satisfaction of the legacy left to him. Upton v. Prince, Forres. 71. ADVANCEMENT; LEGACY, SATISFACTION OF.

A, on marriage with M, settled a jointure on her, with the approbation of B, his father, who witnessed the deed. A died, leaving a large personal estate, and made M executrix. Afterwards B discovered that A was only tenant for life, with remainder to himself in fee, and he recovered at law. Per curiam, it is plain, that the father thought the son had the fee, and that he knew of the settlement; considering, therefore, the near relation of father and son, the widow shall not be compelled to resort to the son's covenant, and compel the jointure to be made good out of his personal estate. Tensdale v. Tensdale, Sel. Ch. Ca. 69.

Mother gave bond to son, conditioned to surrender copyhold estate to him, of which she was heiress: Held, that she became a trustee for her son. Alison's case, 9 Mod. 62. COVENANT; TRUST.

A, amongst other legacies, leaves 1000*l.* to his niece, B, at eighteen, or marriage, and gives the residue of his personal estate to be laid out in land, and settled in strict settlement on C for 99 years, remainder to his first son, &c. in tail; afterwards A by codicil devises that the 1000*l.* given by his will to his said niece should be made up 6000*l.*, payable at twenty-one, or marriage. The niece was eighteen at the time of the testator's making his codicil, and under twenty-one: Decreed, she should have the interest of the 6000*l.* from the death of the testator: and that C was only entitled to the residue, exclusive of the 6000*l.* Acherley v. Wheeler, 1 P. W. 783. Mod. 68. 10 Mod. 518. Fort. 183. Com. Rep.

381.513. "See note (3.) id. ib." WILL, C. OF; INT. ON LEGACIES.

A by marriage articles covenanted, that all lands he should afterwards purchase in the parish of K should be to the uses of the articles. He purchased lands in K, and took a conveyance in fee in the name of his youngest son, without a declaration of trust: Held, that youngest son was a trustee as to the lands for the parties entitled under the settlement. Blake v. Blake, 7 Bro. P. C. 241. TRUST; TRUST, DECLARATION OF.

Portions devised by a father to his younger children, payable at twenty-one, or marriage, shall carry interest from his death till that time, if he made no other provision for them: but otherwise, if devised by a stranger, who is under no obligation to provide for them. Att. Gen. v. Thompson, Prec. Chan. 337. INT. ON LEGACIES.

Father buys an estate in the name of his younger son and of a trustee, it shall be taken as an advancement: so though a reversion be settled on the younger son expectant on the mother's death. Lamplugh v. Lamplugh, 1 P. W. 111. ADVANCEMENT.

A purchases lands in his eldest son's name, and puts him into possession, and the son falling sick, takes a declaration of trust from him, and after the son's recovery he is permitted to continue in possession. The son marries and dies, and the father gets a conveyance from his younger son. The eldest son's wife shall have dower in these lands. Bateman v. Bateman, 2 Vern. 436. DOWER; DECLARATION OF TRUST.

A devise by a father to a second son and his heirs for ever, and for want of such heirs, then to the right heirs of the testator, is an estate tail. But had the devise over been to a stranger, the second son would have taken a fee-simple, and consequently the devise over had been void. Nottingham v. Jennings, 1 P. W. 23. WILL, C. OF, WHAT ESTATE; ESTATE TAIL.

Lord of manor (his tenants refusing to renew) makes a lease of the premises to his daughter for 99 years, and afterwards sells the manor to J, who has notice of the lease, but has security that the daughter when at age should surrender. Daughter decreed to have the benefit of the lease. Jennings v. Selleck, 1 Vern. 467. ADVANCEMENT; VEND. & PURCH.

A purchase by the father in the name of his infant son, decreed to be an advancement, and not a trust. Mumma v. Mumma, 2 Vern. 19. ADVANCEMENT.

If a grandfather takes a bond in the name of his grandchildren, their father being dead, this shall be deemed an advancement, and not a trust; for by the death of their father, the grandchildren are under the immediate care of their grandfather. Ebrund v. Dancer, 2 Ch. Ca. 26. ADVANCEMENT; TRUST.

Purchase by a father in the name of his son, held an advancement. Grey v. Grey, 2 Swan. 594. ADVANCEMENT.

V. TRANSACTIONS AND DEALINGS BETWEEN.

A child entitled as tenant in remainder, after life of father agreeing with creditor of father in conjunction with, and on behalf of father, to give up certain interests, being deprived by conduct of father of benefit of agreement, held not bound by it. Rhodes v. Cook, 2 S. & S. 488. FRAUD, DEEDS BY.

Father under marriage settlement, with power appoint shares in which his younger children were to take a sum to be raised for their portions, exercised that power by will; afterwards a daughter, took release from her of her share by codicil, revoked his appointment by

Held, her portion was to go to the other children. Noel v. Ld. Walsingham, 2 S. & S. 99. ADVANCEMENT; PORTION.

A father tenant for life, remainder to his first and other sons successively in tail male; the eldest son, soon after he attained twenty-one, joined his father in suffering a recovery; an annuity was secured to him during his father's life, and parts of the estates were limited to the father in fee, the residue of them were resettled, the son taking back an estate for life, with remainder to his first and other sons in tail general, remainder to his daughters in tail general. The transaction to be considered as a mixed case of bargain and sale, and of family arrangement; and the eldest son having died without issue, a bill filed by his brother, the next remainder-man in tail, who had done confirmatory acts, and accepted interests under the will of his father, to set aside the settlement as obtained by undue influence, was dismissed. Tweddell v. Tweddell, 1 Turn. & R. 1. CONSON; FAMILY SETTLE.

Transactions of this nature between father and child to be viewed with a reasonable degree of jealousy, not in the light of reversionary bargains. Id. ib.

Equity will not relieve against a contract entered into by a child with a parent for an appointment from him; and a purchase from the parent, with notice of the fraud, will be affected with it. Palmer v. Wheeler, 2 Ball & B. 30. POWER; NOTICE; VEND. & PURCH.

Implied satisfaction of a debt from a father to his child by a marriage portion of a greater amount. Chase v. Farrant, 18 Ves. 8. DEBT, SATISFACTION; DEBT. & CRED.; PORTION.

Bond from father of wife, to trustees on marriage, for separate use of wife in case of bankruptcy of husband, declared valid. Exp. Osley, 1 Ball & B. 257. MARRIAGE SETTLE.; BANKCY.

A bond given by a daughter who had not received her fortune, to a step-father for the immediate payment of a sum alleged to be due to her mother for maintenance, ought to be set aside as improvidently executed; the utmost that the mother could claim being a lien on the interest of the daughter's fortune when recovered; an act of the daughter binding the interest of her fortune to that extent would have been valid. Beasley v. Magrath, 2 Scho. & L. 31. FRAUD; IMPROVIDENT BARGAIN; BOND OBTAINED BY FRAUD.

B, while in distressed circumstances, upon the advice and suggestion of M, and upon a supposed right in him to demand it, executes a bond to him for a sum due by a deceased brother to whom she was next of kin, but who left no personal chattels. The bond set aside under the circumstances; but if it had been executed by her from a feeling of propriety, after getting possession of an estate to which she became entitled on the death of her brother, she having immediate means of payment, and acting with proper advice, it could not have been defeated. Id. ib.

A son, placed by his father in business, accounting to his father for all profits, deducting only the expense of his board, having made no demand for wages during his father's life, was held not entitled as a creditor after his father's death, or if he had a demand, it was held satisfied by a will giving him a legacy to a greater amount, and other benefits. Plume v. Plume, 7 Ves. 268. DEBT. & CRED.

The court will support contracts entered into to preserve the peace of families; and, therefore, where a son, upon his marriage, joined with his father in resettling the estate, and, by a memorandum executed at the same time, agreed to secure 500*l.* to each of his sisters: Held, that there was sufficient consideration for the court to decree a specific performance of this agreement, an attempt to shew that it had been obtained by an undue exercise of parental influence having failed: Wycherley v. Wycherley, 2 Eden, 175. FAMILY SETTLEMENT; SPEC. PERF.

A father having advanced a child in his infancy, upon his coming of age takes a bond from him to a greater amount than the sums advanced: Held, the bond obtained by parental influence, and decreed not to stand as a security for the sums advanced, but to be set aside altogether. Loose expressions in a letter from the son, held not to be a confirmation. Carpenter v. Heriot, 1 Eden, 338. CONFIRMATION; FRAUD IN OBTAINING BOND.

Father receives his child's earnings while living with him, and becomes bankrupt; the child, by agreement, admitted a creditor for a particular sum to avoid an inquiry, but dangerous to lay down such a rule. Exp. Macklin, 2 Ves. 675. BANKCY. PROOF IN.

Where parent had objected to daughter's marriage with an individual, and she entered into a secret bond to forfeit 500*l.* if she did not marry him in thirteen months after parent's death; on her application for relief against bond, decreed that it should be cancelled, such a transaction being encouragement to disobedience and fraud on parents. Woodhouse v. Shepley, 2 Atk. 535. BOND, RELIEF AGAINST.

Though a parent has no power to prevent the marriage of his child, yet his consent is expected, and, by the laws of some countries, necessary. S. C. id. 539.

The above transaction, compared to the cases of bonds given before marriage, to return a part of the portion, where the fraud was not between the contracting parties, but on the parents of one of them, who, being deceived in this respect, has induced the court to set aside such bonds. S. C. ib.

Where a father obtained an absolute conveyance from a daughter in order to answer one particular purpose, and afterwards makes use of it for another, the court will relieve under the head of fraud. Young v. Peachey, 2 Atk. 254. FRAUD, UNDUE INFLUENCE.

In the case of Glissen v. Ogden, the House of Lords laid great weight on the circumstance that the conveyance was obtained by a father from his daughter in distress, and reversed the decree of Ld. King, which had refused to give relief. Id. ib.

A freeman of London taking advantage of his son's necessities, in consideration of a bond for securing the son annuity of 50*l.*, prevailed on him to release his share of orphanage. The father also prevailed on another of his sons to give him a release of his share of orphanage in consideration of an annuity of the same nature, but there were not the same proofs of his being forced into the release, and the father had at times advanced him 300*l.* or 400*l.*: Held, the plaintiff being turned out of doors, left destitute and void of maintenance, a release extorted could not be supported. The other son was equally entitled to be relieved. Heron v. Heron, 2 Atk. 160. FRAUD, UNDUE INFLUENCE.

By the custom of London, the orphanage part must go in equal shares, and if the father turn the money into any other shape which he thinks may take it out of the custom, yet the court has relieved the children. Id. CUSTOM OF LONDON; ORPHANAGE.

Where a father, tenant for life, draws in a son, tenant in tail, to join in a conveyance which would destroy his remainder, the court, on slender evidence, will relieve the son. Id.

If a father merely for the sake of maintenance, and not for advancement in marriage or trade oblige his son to release his right to the orphanage share, such release is absolutely void. Id.

An agreement between a child and a father to alter the limitations under a settlement, will not be set aside on pretence of being drawn in by the father's power and authority. Tendril v. Smith, 2 Atk. 85. FRAUD, UNDER INFLUENCE.

Deeds from child to parent are not void in se. Fraud, &c. must be shown to set them aside. Manners v. Banning, 2 Eq. Ab. 282. Id.

PARISH, PARISHIONERS, AND PARISH RATES.

Where object of suit is to avoid payment of rate levied on the inhabitants of a town, all having common interest in avoiding the rate, any one or more may sue on behalf of themselves and the other inhabitants. Att. Gen. v. Heelis, 2 S. & S. 76. PL. PARTIES.

Court will not decree rate to be made to reimburse a former churchwarden monies laid out whilst in office in pursuance of a vestry order. Lanchester v. Thompson, 5 Mad. 4. JURISDICTION.

An account cannot be decreed against a parish; and a parish cannot, therefore, be made responsible for charity property applied during a long period to parish purposes under orders of the vestry. Exp. Fowlett, 1 Jac. & W. 70. ACCOUNT.

A bequest of money to trustees to pay the interest and dividend to the poor of a parish is not within the meaning of a local act, which vested all estates and monies held in trust for the benefit of the poor not otherwise specifically appropriated in the guardians of the poor of that parish. Att. Gen. v. Freeman, Dan. 117. S. C. 5 Pri. 425.

Creditors who had advanced money to corporation established for maintenance of poor of a certain district, held entitled to compel assessment of rates sufficient, after maintenance of poor, to pay principal and interest of their debts. Jones v. Parishes of Montgomery, &c. 3 Swan. 203. REIMBURSEMENT.

It is not sufficient that the receiver-general swears to his accounts before the 5th of April to enable him to set insuper upon a parish, unless the account is declared and passed within that time. Exp. Liskeard Boro', Wightw. 97.

A collector of taxes in custody under an extant is not entitled to be discharged, though his deficiency has been made good to the crown by a re-assessment on the parish. Rex v. Bennet, id. 1. See the cases cited argued at the bar.

Proof of a debt was allowed against the estate of an overseer of the poor in respect of money in his hands, though the period of accounting had not arrived. Exp. Exleigh, 6 Ves. 811.

Bill by a former churchwarden against the parish officers (trustees for an estate of the poor of the parish and forty-five inhabitants) to be reimbursed money laid out on account of the trust under an order of vestry, his accounts being passed and ordered to be paid on demand; Ld. Chancellor expressed a strong inclination against the bill, and it not being signed by counsel, it was taken off the file. Plaintiff to pay costs. French v. Dear, 5 Ves. 547.

Bankrupt was for many years collector of the land-tax, and at the time of his bankruptcy he owed 928*l.* to the city chamber. An inhabitant of the parish where he was collector, was allowed to prove for himself and the rest. Exp. Child, 1 Atk. 111.

Trustees for a parish having the right of electing a vicar, cannot vote by proxy, for it is a personal trust. Wilson v. Dennison, Amb. 82.

The word "parishioners" takes in not only inhabitants of the parish, but occupiers of land that pay tithes and duties. Att. Gen. v. Parker, 3 Atk. 577.

The word "inhabitants" takes in all housekeepers though not rated, and also such as have gained a settlement and so become inhabitants, though not housekeepers. Id. ib.

An order of vestry is made for building a work-house in a parish, and that in case any one will lay down the money, the parish shall repay; equity will decree a parish rate to be made to reimburse the party who lays down this money. Blackbourn v. Webster, 2 P. W. 632.

The spiritual court shall not proceed against a churchwarden, to account on oath, after his accounts are allowed by the vestry. Nutkins v. Robinson, Bunb. 247. Snowden v. Herring, id. 289.

The inhabitant of a parish, where a modus is insisted on, prima facie a bad witness; if he occupies no titheable land, he must shew it. Watson v. Lindset, Bun. 40. PR. WITNESS, COMPETENCY OF.

Parishioners are a body, and the churchwardens are only a name to sue by in personal actions; for the property is in the parishioners; and in all actions brought by churchwardens, it must be laid ad damnum parochianorum. Whitmore v. Bridges, 2 Eq. Ab. 204. pl. 5.

One devised 500*l.* to the church of St. H: this is good, and shall be employed by the churchwardens in repairing and adorning the church. Att. Gen. v. Ripper, 2 P. W. 135. Churchwardens are a corporation, to take personal things, in the same manner as the parson is for land. S. C.

The liberty of the Rolls is within the parish of St. Dunstan in the West, in London, and contributed a fifth towards the repairs of the church; but having distinct overseers and maintaining its own poor separately, is not entitled to a share of the charities given by will or deed to the poor of St. Dunstan's, though entitled to a fifth of all collections made at the church-doors, or at sacraments. Att. Gen. v. Grant, 1 P. W. 669. Before the statute 43 Eliz. there were no such officers as overseers of the poor. S. C.

Where churchwardens, by order of the parish, commence a suit, the consent of the parish shall bind it, and the vestry book shall be allowed as evidence of the consent. Case of Rudnor Parish, 4 Vin. 529. pl. 10.

Where there is a dispute touching money given to parishioners, none of the inhabitants of the parish can be witnesses. Dodswell v. Nott, 2 Vern. 317.

Bill by the executrix of a late churchwarden against ninety parishioners, to be reimbursed what her testator had advanced for parish: Held, that defendants should reimburse plaintiff with costs, and that the money should be raised by a parish rate. Nicholson v. Masters, 4 Vin. 529. pl. 9. BILL FOR ACCOUNT.

Bill against churchwardens, because they refused to make a rate for reimbursing the plaintiff according to a vote and order of vestry. They being out of their office, the decree was prayed against them and their successors. Battily v. Cooke, 2 Vern. 262. S. C. Pre. Ch. 42. JURISDICTION.

Churchwardens having, by order of the vestry, laid out several sums for repairs of the church, and building two new galleries, and having (at going out of office) their accounts taken by auditors, and passed and allowed by the vestry, who made an order for a rate to reimburse them; they brought a bill against the succeeding churchwardens, to enforce the making such rate; but those churchwardens being likewise removed, after examination of witnesses, and publication passed, made a good objection at the hearing, for that they had no remedy except in the spiritual court, or against the parishioners in particular who employed them. S. C. Pre. Ch. 42.

A agreed with B and C to pave the streets in the parish of D: B, and C, on behalf of themselves and the rest of the parish agreed to pay A : the agreement was lodged in the hands of B ; A shall have his remedy against B and C, and they must resort to the rest of the parish. Meriel v. Wymondshall, Hard. 205.

I. PARTNERSHIP HOW CONSTITUTED, AND ITS DURATION AND DETERMINATION.

A being as a partner entitled to a share of extensive iron works, and of the lands and premises on which they were carried on, agreed for valuable consideration to assign to B his interest in the property and business: B interfered and acted as a partner, but afterwards he assigned his share and gave notice to the other partners what he had withdrawn from the business, and when called on to complete his purchase, resisted the performance of the contract successfully, on the ground that a good title could not be shewn: Held, that B, as between him and his other partners, was to be treated as a partner, and was to contribute to the partnership losses until the time when he gave notice of his withdrawal from the concern, and assigned his share. That his liability ceased upon his assigning his share and giving notice to the other partners of his withdrawal from the concern. That the assignment of his share though made to an insolvent person, was not for that reason the less effectual in putting an end to his liability. That the assignee not having been acknowledged a partner or permitted to act as such did not by his acceptance of the assignment incur any liability as between himself and the co-partners. Jefferys v. Smith, 3 Russ. 158. VENDOR AND PURCHASER.

R being possessed of mines and iron works, under leases of unequal duration, by will bequeathed 25,000*l.* to B, "as a capital for him to become partner with executors of one-fourth share in trade of all those works so long as lease endures," with a devise to H and his wife of three-eighths in concern at iron works, "so the partnership will stand at my death, W three-eighths, H three-eighths, and B two-eighths. After R's death, W, H and B, carried on works for two years, selling iron manufactured not only from mines but from other sources: Held that codicil revoked residuary clause in favour of the wife of H, as to the trade, and that concern was a partnership in trade. Crawshay v. Maule, 1 Swan. 495. WILL, C. OF; WILL, REVOC. OF.

No general rule that partners purchasing leasehold interest must be understood as entering into a partnership commensurate with duration of lease. In this case it was held not so to be. Id. 521. LEASE.

Partnership after the determination of it by the contract of the partners, may continue for the purpose of winding up engagements with third persons. Crawshay v. Collins, 15 Ves. 226.

Partnership determined by death: the legal property survives, not the beneficial interest. Right of the executor to the value of the testator's interest, to be ascertained, not by calculation but by sale. Id. 227. DEATH.

No specific performance of agreement for partnership. Herey v. Birch, 9 Ves. 357. SPEC. PERF.

A partnership cannot be established by the evidence of the partners and their private communications. The fact must be proved alimunde. For want of such proof a commission against the ostensible partners only was sustained. Exp. Benfield, 5 Ves. 424. P. EVID.

A separate commission of bankruptcy established, though the other partner died after the assignment. Exp. Smith, 5 Ves. 295. BANKCY.; SEPARATE COMMISS.

Testator, after life interests in stock to each of his daughters, afterwards the principal among his grandchildren in pursuance of a power in articles of partnership, appointed his executors to carry on the trade in his room, with power to dissolve or nominate any other person; and gave them his share of the capital and all freehold and leasehold in trust to carry on the trade as long as they should think fit, and after expiration of partnership, to sell the estates, and with the produce and profits of trade and all the rest of his estate, to form a fund to accumulate twelve years; then among the grand children living; by codicil he substituted his partner, who was his son-in-law, in the room of one executor removed, and desired that if his executors should continue trade, and his grandsons T and J should attain twenty-one, his executors would nominate each a partner for a quarter, when executor should think fit, with legacies at the same time, to sink into the estate, if they should decline the partnership or die before twenty-one, executors to advance any further sum they might want to carry on trade; the rest of his property among all the grandchildren except T and J. By another codicil he left it entirely to executors to appoint J or not, if not appointed, his legacy to be void: T and J both entitled to be partners and to legacies at twenty-one, one executor (their father) being for admitting them, the other two against it; but if all had without fraud united in declaring J unfit, they might have excluded him; in which case he could have taken nothing under this devise. Wainwright v. Waterman, 1 Ves. J. 311. WILL, C. OF.

A draft of articles of partnership together with a stated account and payment of money by acting partner to others: Held sufficient evidence of partnership to ground decree for account. Worts v. Fern, 3 Bro. P. C. 548. EVID.

II. ARTICLES OF PARTNERSHIP, THEIR CONSTRUCTION, &c.

Where there is a stipulation that partnership should exist for nineteen years, and in case of death of either partner, his widow, &c. should become partner, &c. Held that it is not imperative on widow, &c. to be a partner, but optional with her, &c. and that she, &c. was entitled to reasonable time to look to the concern, so as to elect, that is, not to have an account taken. Pigott v. Bayleys, 1 M. Cl. & Y. 569.

Articles of partnership providing that upon its expiration the stock in trade should be divided, received and taken by the partners according to their respective interests: Held that they could not be carried into execution literally, and that therefore by the general law of partnership the settlement must be by a sale and division of the whole. Cook v. Collingridge, 1 Jac. 617.

Partnership amongst a number of persons to be arranged by a committee of five, and by general meetings of which the vote of the majority was to be binding, with a provision that any one wishing to retire should first offer his share to the committee at a certain price, and if they declined to buy might sell it to any other person: Held that the majority were not able to sell the whole concern without the consent of all; but that if all but two were desirous of retiring, they might sell their own share without making an offer of them to the committee. Cappel v. Cadell, 1 Jac. 537.

Deed by which A, B & C partners in trade, in consideration of 4000*l.* paid to them by D, in augmentation of their capital, agree to admit him into partnership with them for a term; it was agreed that A should receive in lieu of profits a clear sum of 560*l.* per annum, and all the property of the concern was charged with the payment of this sum quarterly, and of the 4000*l.* at the determination of the partnership. A, B and C were to pay rent, taxes, wages, and the other outgoings of the trade which was to be carried on by them, and in their names only, and D was not to be required to attend to it; D was at liberty to retire on giving twelve months notice, and on his retiring, or at the end of the term, the 4000*l.* and the arrears (if any) of the 560*l.* per annum were to be paid to him by A, B and C, by instalments to be secured by their bonds, and they were to indemnify him from the debts of the partnership: Held that this deed was not usurious. Ferreday v. Hordern, 1 Jac. 144. USURY.

Partners agree that settlement of accounts should take place on 25th March annually, and that if either should die he should not share profits accrued since the last preceding settlement day. By mutual consent settlement on 5th November, is substituted for 25th March. The last settlement made was on 5th Nov. 1811. In February 1813, one partner dies: Held his representative entitled to share of profits up to Nov. 1812, the time when last settlement ought to have been made. Pettyt v. Janson, 6 Mad. 146.

Stipulations in articles of partnership for an annual settlement of accounts, and for payment to the representatives of a deceased partner, of an allowance in lieu of profits since the last annual account, proportioned to the amount of his share of profits during two years preceding, are waived in equity by omission through several years to settle annual accounts, and by engaging in business to which the stipulations cannot be applied without injustice; and an injunction was granted to restrain the representatives of a deceased partner from proceeding on a bond given by the surviving partners, for re-payment of his share according to the articles, before the settlement of accounts of transactions pending at his decease, on which a loss was subsequently sustained. Jackson v. Sedgwick, 1 Swan. 460.

Partnership articles containing special clauses for taking the accounts on which the parties have not acted, read in equity as if those clauses were expunged. Id. 469.

Under a bill by some partners in a joint concern on behalf of themselves and the others, three hundred in number, for a dissolution, receiver, &c. and an account alleging mismanagement by the managers, the court refused to interfere by injunction, and the appointment of a receiver in the first instance, until they had used the means of redress provided by the articles. Carter v. Drury, 1 V. & B. 154.

Construction of deeds; first, that a provision for payment of the "just proportion or share" of all debts owing from one partner jointly and as a partner, referred to the contribution as among the partners, but to what with reference to the state of the partnership funds, and the ability of the other partners, he may eventually be called on to contribute to the joint debts, so as they may be fully paid: secondly, that under a provision for debts of various descriptions, no reference was intended, which must be clearly shewn, otherwise the court favours equal payment; thirdly, a reference to a deed of a specified date, there being two of the same date, one executed at that time, the other subsequently, was in the absence of positive evidence, and aided by circumstances, applied to the former. Wadson v. Richardson, 1 V. & B. 103. DEBTS. C. OF.

Partnership, without any stipulation as to the proportions, the partners entitled in equal moieties. Peacock v. Peacock, 16 Ves. 49.

III. DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP, AND ITS EFFECT.

Where a partner has a right to appoint a person to succeed upon his death to his share of the business, and the person so appointed refuses to accept the share, or to comply with the stipulation of the articles, the partnership is dissolved; but the dissolution is not a dissolution which is wrought by the exclusion of the appointee by the surviving partners. Reynshaw v. Matthews, 2 Russ. 62.

Semble, a shareholder in a joint-stock company cannot file a bill on behalf of himself and others of the shareholders, for a dissolution of the concern. Van Sandau v. Moore, 1 Russ. 441. JOINT STOCK COMPANY.

Quære, whether partnership for an indefinite time, without deed, can be dissolved on notice by either party? Littlewood v. Caldwell, 11 Pri. 98.

One partner may file a bill against his co-partner for account, without praying a dissolution of partnership. Harrison v. Armitage, 4 Mad. 143. But in Loscombe v. Russell, Sittings after T. T. 1830. V. C. held contrary. See also 2 V. & B. 329. ACCOUNT; PL. PARTIES.

In a suit instituted for the dissolution of a partnership, it being clear on the bill and answer that some party is entitled to a dissolution, a sale of the partnership property may be directed on motion. Crawshaw v. Maule, 1 Swan. 506.

In the instance of a trading partnership actually dissolved, the court orders a sale on motion. Id. 523.

If a partnership is actually ended, no person can make any use of the property inconsistent with the purpose of winding up the concern. Id. 507.

Where the contract neither expressly nor by reference limits the duration, the partnership may be terminated at a moment's notice by either party. Id. 508.

Death of one partner held a dissolution of partnership where there is no time of duration appointed. See the reason of the doctrine. Id. 509. DEATH.

Partnership for term of years is dissolved by death of one before expiration of term. Crawford v. Hamilton, 3 Mad. 251. Id.

If a retiring partner assign all his share in the concern to two of the continuing partners upon trust to pay him an annuity for his life, subject to abatement or enlargement, with the fluctuation of the profits of trade, that will not, with reference to creditors, determine the partnership. Exp. Wilson, 1 Buck. 48.

A retiring partner assigns all his share in the concern to two of the continuing partners upon trust for his infant children, in such share as he should appoint, and in default of appointment, upon trust for the children, to be divided amongst them when the younger shall attain twenty-one: held, that the continuing interest the father had in the share so assigned, depending upon the death of any of the children under twenty-one, was such an interest reserved by him in the concern, as with reference to creditor prevented the determination of the partnership. Id. ib.

Order for goods by two partners, afterwards partnership dissolved; a bill drawn on the two partners but accepted only by one who carried on a separate trade, and the goods delivered to him, no claim can be made on the other partner. Exp. Harris, 1 Maill. 583. PARTNERS.

Solicitor in partnership cannot dissolve their partnership as against their client without his consent, so as to enable the retiring partner as discharged, to act against him. Cholmondeley v. Clinton, 19 Ves. 273. ATT. & CLI.; PROFESSIONAL CONFIDENCE.

Practice of solicitors' partners dividing their business, considering one only as agent to the other, disallowed, the client being entitled to their united exertions. Id. ib.

Partnership in the Opera House dissolved by the conduct of the parties, making it impossible to carry it on upon the terms stipulated. Waters v. Taylor, 5 V. & B. 299.

Decree for sale of partnership concern, restraining the managing partner from acting, with liberty to either party to lay proposals before the master for management until the sale. Id. ib.

One partner can, though the partnership be dissolved, sign the bankrupt's certificate for a joint debt proved under the commission by himself and his co-partner. Exp. Hall, 1 Rose, 2. BANKCY. CERTIFICATE, SIGNATURE OF.

A partnership without articles, and for an indefinite period, may be dissolved by any partner at any time, without previous notice, subject to the engagements of the partnership; but the existence of engagements with third persons, cannot prevent the right of dissolution as among themselves. The consequence of a dissolution where there are articles prescribing the terms, is a general sale and account of the joint property: one or more partners therefore cannot insist on taking the share of another at a valuation, or that he shall remove his proportion from the premises, thereby securing the goodwill. Partner after the dissolution of the partnership, continuing to trade with the joint property, must account for the profits. Featherstonhaugh v. Fenwick, 17 Ves. 298.

Partnership without any provision as to its duration, may be determined without previous notice, subject to the accounts to wind up the concern. Peacock v. Peacock, 16 Ves. 49.

The court will dissolve a partnership where it appears that the business cannot be carried on according to the true intent and meaning of the articles of co-partnership, although one partner objects to the dissolution. Baring v. Dix, 1 Cox, 213.

If a partner is so far disordered in his mind, as to be incapable of conducting the business according to the terms of the articles of co-partnership, a court of equity will dissolve the partnership. Sayer v. Bennet, 1 Cox, 107. LUNACY.

One partner, notwithstanding a temporary disorder, considered a partner. Pearce v. Chamberlain, 2 Ves. 35.

Lunacy is not a dissolution of partnership. Wrexham v. Hudleston, 1 Swan. 514. LUNACY.

A and B, partners in a goldsmith's trade, are bound in a bond to J; A and B break off the partnership and divide their stock; J, the obligee in the bond knows this, and that A took upon him to pay the debts, and after a great distance of time brings a bill against the executor of B, yet he (J) shall recover. Heath v. Percival, 1 P. W. 683. 1 Stra. 403. Bond.

IV. THE PROPERTY OF PARTNERSHIP, WHAT FORMS, ITS GENERAL INCIDENTS, AND HOW FAR LIABLE TO SEPARATE CREDITORS.

The interest of partners as tenants in-common, where the estate was purchased out of the joint property, and mortgaged by the firm for a joint debt, is a joint security. Exp. Freeman, 2 G. & J. 250. SECURITY.

A conveys lands to trustees on trust to sell if the unsatisfied debts of a partnership, in which he had been concerned, should at a given time, exceed 40,000*l.* The trustees sell and convey to the purchaser by a deed, which recites, that the debts of the partnership exceeded the specified amount, and that A had died intestate as to his real estates; and the heir at law of A joins in that deed, and enters into a covenant for the title of the trustees, a covenant against all acts done by him or his father, and a covenant for the further assurance; it afterwards appears to be uncertain whether A had not devised his real estate, and the purchaser files a bill to have protection against or remedy of the alleged defect in his title which this discovery created: held, that the purchaser is not entitled to have an account of the debts of the partnership, in order to establish the fact of their having, at the specified time, exceeded the specified amount. Kallet v. Middleton, 1 Russ. 243. VEND. & PURCH.; ACCOUNT; DISCOVERY.

A and B, &c. were common carriers from L to F, a separate portion of the road being allotted to each, and it having been stipulated also, that no partnership should exist between them; A for himself and the other parties, agrees with the Mint to carry coin from L to F, and afterwards makes another agreement with the Mint to carry other coin to places not on the road: held, that all the parties were entitled to share in the profits of this agreement. Russell v. Austwick, 1 Sim. 52.

Distinction between capital and stock in trade, with reference to the rights of retiring and continuing partners. Crawshay v. Collins, 1 Jac. & W. 278.

Two American citizens and a French subject being in partnership, and owners of certain ships captured by British cruisers, and the commissioners under the treaty of commerce in 1794, between this country and America, for awarding compensations to American subjects who had suffered losses by capture, for which they could obtain no redress in the ordinary tribunals, having awarded in compensation of the ship of the partnership captured, certain sums to the two Americans, with express exclusion of the French citizen, as an alien enemy; the sums so awarded are not partnership property, and the creditors of the partnership have no claim on them, as against the separate creditors of the Americans. Campbell v. Mullett, 2 Swan. 551. ALIEN ENEMY.

A partner having retired under an agreement of indemnity against partnership claims, was allowed a sum of money recovered by the sentence of a foreign court for customs, without examination of the merits. Kennedy v. El. Casalis, 2 Swan. 325. FOREIGN LAWS.

A deceased partner, having contracted in his own name for a lease of premises to be employed in the partnership trade, the court refused to restrain the landlord from granting a lease to his representatives, but restrained the representatives from disposing of the lease when granted, except for partnership purposes, and with the assent of the surviving partner. Alder v. Fouracre, 3 Swan. 489. AGREEMENT FOR LEASE.

Whether freehold estates purchased by a commercial partnership as an article of stock, devolve on the death of a partner as real or personal estate, quere? Crawshay v. Maule, 1 Swan. 521. ADMON. OF ASSETS; ESTATE REAL.

Joint creditors have no lien on the partnership effects, until execution, which may be joint or several; their equity after dissolution, depends on the right of the partners. Exp. Rowlandson, 2 V. & B. 173. S. C. 1 Rose, 416. LIEN.

Execution by a separate creditor against joint property, subject to account ascertaining the specific interest of the partner in the joint effects, allowed. Exp. Hamper, 17 Ves. 407. EXECUTION.

A, the partner of B, carrying on business at a different place, draws bills of exchange, sometimes in the name of the firm, and sometimes in his own name, on the clerk of the partnership managing the business in London, and discounts them with bankers in the country; on an application by them that the bills drawn in the separate name of A, might be considered as a partnership debt, as having been applied to partnership purposes, the lord chancellor, expressing an opinion against the claim, directed dividends to be reserved till after an action at law. Exp. Emly, 1 Rose, 61. See 15 last, 7.

The interest of each partner in his share of the surplus, subject to all the partnership accounts, and that interest only, is liable to the execution of a creditor by the bankruptcy of one; his interest is divested, and vests in his assignees by relation to the act of bankruptcy. Dutton v. Morrison, 17 Ves. 193. S. C. 1 Rose, Bank. Case, 213.

Assignment by one partner of joint property to secure his separate debt, must be subject to the joint debts. Young v. Keighley, 16 Ves. 557.

Partnership property of different natures, partly real, partly personal; the difficulty of disentangling and arranging it is no objection against the heir. Stuart v. Marq. Bute, 11 Ves. 666. HEIR AT LAW.

Upon a dissolution of partnership by retirement of partner followed by bankruptcy, the right of joint creditors against joint property remaining in specie, depends on the bona fides. Exp. Williams, 11 Ves. 3. BANKCY. PARTNERSHIP EFFECTS.

Ships purchased by one partner, held separate property as between creditors after his bankruptcy and death of the other, upon circumstances; particularly the registry being made in the name of one partner only, and being afterwards continued for a fraudulent purpose. Curtis v. Perry, 6 Ves. 739. SHIP REGISTRY; ADMON. OF ASSETS.

To make partnership liable to demand in respect of separate transaction, an agreement must appear. Exp. Peel, 6 Ves. 602.

Real estate purchased with a partnership fund, held to have descended to the heir against the claim of the residuary legatee. Bell v. Phyn, 7 Ves. 453. ADMON. OF ASSETS; ESTATE REAL.

A separate creditor of a partner has no right against the joint property, farther than the separate interest of partner, viz. his share upon a division of the surplus, subject to the account of the partnership, therefore, joint property of an insolvent partner taken in execution for a separate debt, cannot be held against the joint creditor. Taylor v. Fields, 4 Ves. 396. DEBT. & CREDITOR.

Assignee, executor, or separate creditor, coming in the right of one partner against the joint property, comes into nothing more than an interest subject to an account between the partnership and the partner, and therefore to the joint debts: assignee under a separate commission of bankruptcy, has only the same right to stand in the place of the bankrupt by the common law, not under the bankrupt laws. Id. ib. SEPARATE CREDITOR.

Real estates used for purposes of a partnership trade, shall go to the heir, not to the executor, though a co-partnership agreement may alter the nature of real estates, but it must be expressed so to do. Thorn-ton v. Dixon, 3 Bro. C. C. 199. REAL ESTATE.

Money paid to part owners for their votes in the appointment of a captain, no profit of the ship. Muf-fatt v. Farquharson, 2 Bro. C. C. 338.

Thirty shares in a privateer remaining unsubscribed for and taken by the managers of the concern on their own account, after a valuable capture, held to be the exclusive property of the managers. Bill on behalf of the other subscribers dismissed; since, if there had been a loss, they could only have been answerable to the amount of their own shares. Blunt v. Cumyngs, 2 Ves. 331.

Partnership effects first applied to pay partnership debts. West v. Skip, 1 Ves. 456. ADMON. OF ASSETS.

Rights of the separate creditor of one partner, against the partnership property. Skip v. Harwood, 2 Swan. 586. SEPARATE CREDTS.

Five persons purchased from the commissioners of sewers, and the purchase was to them as joint tenants in fee, but they contributed rateably to the purchase, which was with an intent to drain a level, after which several of them died; they were held to be tenants in common in equity, and though one of these five undertakers deserted the partnership for thirty years, yet he was let in afterwards, but on terms. Lake v. Craddock, 3 L. W. 158.

A enters into partnership in fifth, with three owners, for twenty-one years, in digging for mines in A's lands, A to have two-fifths, and in consideration of his ownership of the land, to have a tenth out of the other partners; A dies, and his widow sets up a voluntary settlement made after marriage: court inclined that the partners were as purchasers, and that the voluntary settlement should not stand against them. Shaw v. Standish, 2 Vern. 326. DEEDS; VOLUNTARY SETTLE.

V. BANKRUPTCY OF ONE OR MORE MEMBERS, AND ITS INCIDENTS.

Partner may have allowance, though others are not entitled. 6 Geo. 4. c. 16. s. 129. BANKCY. ALLOWANCE.

A being entitled under a parol partnership agreement with B and C to three-eighths of the capital and profits of the business, became bankrupt; being at the time indebted to the partnership in respect of bills, in which the partnership name had been used for his personal accommodation. The assignees claimed a share of the profits made subsequently to the bankruptcy, while the continuing partners insisted, that the bankrupt's interest in the profits ceased at the time. In consequence of this difference, no settlement of accounts between the estate and the partnership took place, and the assignees filed their bill; but B and C, and afterwards C alone, pending the litigation with the assignees, carried on the business for many years with the stock and capital which existed at the time of the bankruptcy, and stock and capital substituted in the usual course of trade for such former stock and capital, aided by the expenditure of considerable sums by C. Held, that the assignees of A were entitled to three-eighths of the profits which had been made, or should be made, until the concern was fully wound up, and to three-eighths of the money to be produced by the sale of what remained in specie of the capital and stock; that A's proportion of the profits was not to be lessened, nor the proportion of C to be increased in respect of the debt which A brought to the partnership, or of the money which A brought into the business beyond his share of the original capital. Crawshaw v. Collins, 2 Russ. 325. BANKCY. ASSIGNT.

of the partnership property, &c. Exp. Stoveld, 1 G. & J. 303. BANKCY. RECEIVER.

The partner of the bankrupt ordered to attend before the commissioners to be examined, and to produce the partnership books and papers, there being no suggestion of his being indebted to the bankrupt, or having property of the bankrupt in his possession. Exp. Leavitt, 1 G. & J. 185. BANKCY. ATTENDANCE OF WITNESS BEFORE COMMISSIONERS.

Upon an exception to a master's report, stating the capital and stock in trade of a partnership to consist, at the time of the bankruptcy of one of the partners, of the estimated value of the dead stock employed in it, it was referred back to the master, to state what was the amount of the capital, and also of the stock in trade at that time, in order to adjust the amount of subsequent profits to which the assignees of the bankrupt partner were entitled, as against the other partners who had continued to trade with the partnership property after the bankruptcy. Crawshaw v. Collins, 1 Jac. & W. 267. PR. REF. TO MASTER.

On separate commission against one partner the assignees took possession of partnership property and were about to sell it. Injunction granted on filing bill and affidavit to restrain the sale. Allen v. Kibbre, 4 Mad. 464. PR. INJUNCT.; BANKCY. JOINT SEPARATE COMMISSION.

Articles of partnership having provided, that on dissolution by death, notice, or misconduct, of a partner, the remaining partner should have the option of taking his share at a valuation, payable by yearly instalments in the course of seven years; and that on the bankruptcy or insolvency of a partner, the partnership should be immediately void as to him; by a deed, four years subsequent, the partners declared (after a recital that such was their intention in the articles,) that in the event of bankruptcy or insolvency, the same arrangement should be practised as on dissolution by death, notice, or misconduct: one of the partners having become bankrupt, within a few months after the execution of the latter deed, his assignees are not bound by it. Whether a provision in articles of partnership, that on the bankruptcy of a partner, his share shall be taken by the solvent partners, at a sum to be fixed by valuation, and payable by instalments in a course of years, is not void by the statutes concerning bankrupts. Quære? Wilson v. Greenwood, 1 Swan. 471. BANKCY. ASSIGNMENT, WHAT PASSES; FRAUD ON CREDITORS.

Where A, an attorney, had prevailed on B, a young man about to be admitted, to become his partner in business for a certain term, and to pay him as a consideration a certain sum of money, part to be paid on the execution of the articles, and the remainder by instalments, and A sued out, in the character of petitioning creditor, a commission of bankruptcy against and made B a bankrupt, whereby the partnership was dissolved; A was restrained from proceeding for the instalments, and ordered to refund what was already received, except as far as was commensurate to the period of actual duration of the partnership. The same equity was held to apply to the assignees of A on his bankruptcy, and to a bona fide creditor, to whom the security of the instalments had been assigned. Hamil v. Stokes, 4 Price, 161. FRAUD.

Under a separate commission of bankruptcy, proof admitted by solvent partners, having paid the joint debts since the bankruptcy, on account of a misapplication by the bankrupt to his own use, not by contract, but by fraud, exceeding his authority, and without the privity of his partners. Exp. Yonge, 3 V. & B. 31. S. C. 2 Rose, 40. BANKCY. PROOF UNDER; FRAUD.

Retired partner, with covenant of indemnity against the debts, in consideration of assigning his share of the property, admitted under a commission against the remaining partner to prove a joint debt paid by him, indemnifying the joint estate against the joint debts. Exp. Ogilby, 3 V. & B. 133. S. C. 2 Rose, 177. INDEMNITY & BANKCY. PROOF UNDER.

A partner continuing the business took an assignment of all the stock, &c., and covenanted to indemnify the retiring partner from the debts then owing from the partnership. The continuing partner became bankrupt and obtained his certificate, and subsequently an action was commenced against the retiring partner, upon an acceptance of the partnership, judgment was obtained against him, and he paid the debt and costs. Held, that no action would lie against the bankrupt upon the covenant, since under 49 G. 3. c. 121. s. 8., the retiring partner might, on his liability, have resorted to and proved his debt under the commission, and was therefore barred by the certificate. Wood v. Dodgson, 2 Rose, 47. BANKCY. PROOF; BANKCY. CERTIFICATE.

Under a separate commission against one of two partners, the bankrupt, having paid twenty shillings in the pound to all his creditors, obtained an order for the payment of the surplus to him, and the same was accordingly paid to him. Held, that his partner was entitled to apply by petition in the bankruptcy, for an account of such surplus, and for payment of his proportion of it, and that the court had jurisdiction to make the order required. Exp. Lanfear, 1 Rose, 442. BANKCY. SURPLUS.

Lien of a retiring partner, under an agreement for dissolution, not against the creditors of the other, claiming either under a title given to him, or, in case of bankruptcy, property left in his order and disposition within stat. 21 James 1. c. 19. s. 11. Exp. Rowlandson, 2 V. & B. 173. S. C. 1 Rose, 416. LIEN; BANKCY. REPUTED OWNERSHIP.

Separate commissions of bankruptcy against partners taken out by a joint creditor on the same debt, and on the same day, immediately after dissolution of the partnership, and no separate creditor appearing. Exp. Gardner, 1 V. & B. 74. BANKCY. SEPARATE COMMISSION.

A and B, partners, gave a joint and several bond to C, who afterwards becomes indebted to A. B becomes bankrupt; C proves the bond under the commission, and then brings a joint action against A and B, to which B pleads his certificate. A being, by this form of action, precluded from setting off his separate debt, applies for and obtains injunction against C's proceeding in the joint action. Bradley v. Millar, 1 Rose, 273. BANKCY. SET-OFF; INJUNCT.

A, induced by the fraudulent representation of B, as to the profits of his business, gives him a certain sum of money for a share of it; on the discovery of the fraud, A files a bill in equity for an account, to have the partnership declared void, and for a receiver. The receiver was ordered: B becomes bankrupt; petition by A to be admitted to prove under his commission refused, with liberty to make a claim. Exp. Broome, 1 Rose, 69. FRAUD; BANKCY. PROOF IN; BANKCY. CLAIM.

Although A, as against B, might have an equity to say he never was a partner, it would be difficult to say so as against third persons. Id. ib.

Equitable right of partners, subject to the joint debts; depending upon the result of the account between them. Therefore, under a joint commission of bankruptcy, the separate estate of one has a lien on the other's share of a surplus of the joint estate in respect of a debt, proved under bills drawn in the name of the firm for a separate debt; and may come in with the other separate creditors for the deficiency. Exp. King, 17 Ves. 115. S. C. 1 Rose, 212. BANKCY. LIEN.

Bill by assignees of a bankrupt, claiming a debt, which had been paid to his partner, as paid after no-of dissolution of the partnership, that partner retiring and the bankrupt continuing, dismissed; the terms of the alleged arrangement not being made out, so as to establish the right in equity of the bankrupt against the legal right of the other partner. The other questions therefore were not determined: 1st. Whether a demand, the result of an over-payment in advance upon a single transaction of sale between merchants, or merchant and factor, was within the exception as to merchant's accounts in the statute of limitations: 2dly. As to the effect of that exception; whether including merchants' accounts generally, or those only with items continuing within the six years: 3dly. Upon the objection of laches, independent of the statute. Duff v. E. I. Comp. 15 Ves. 198. BANKCY. ASSIGN.

Money paid by one partner in a joint concern, being his liquidated share of the joint debts to another partner, as agent for settling the debts, if not applied accordingly, may be proved as a debt upon the bankruptcy of the latter; and therefore, a payment by the other on the same account, after the bankruptcy, cannot be recovered from the bankrupt who had obtained his certificate; but in respect of another payment also, after the bankruptcy, in consequence of the failure of the bankrupt and other partners in paying their shares, a right to contribution arose, and the whole was recovered in an action against the bankrupt, who had obtained his certificate, the defendant not having pleaded in abatement. Wright v. Hunter, 5 Ves. 792. BANKCY. PROOF IN.

Upon a separate commission of bankruptcy, the benefit of an insurance effected by the bankrupt upon his own account on a ship, of which he was joint owner, is not liable to the joint creditors. Exp. Parry, 5 Ves. 575. BANKCY. SEPARATE COMM.; BANKCY. ASSIGN.

Creditors of a partnership which failed in two years, allowed to come upon the separate estate of one partner, in respect of effects taken out of the partnership by him, without the privity of the other. Exp. Lodge, 1 Ves. J. 166. BANKCY. PROOF IN; BANKCY. JOINT & SEPT. COMMISSION.

Assignees under separate commission cannot come upon joint estate for a sum brought into the partnership beyond his share: for creditors rely on the ostensible state of the fund. Id. 167. Id. ib.

Bankrupt partners paying different proportions towards the debts, shall have but one allowance, which shall be divided between them in the proportions their respective estates have paid. Exp. Bate, 1 Bro. C. C. 453. Sed quare. BANKCY. ALLOWANCE.

Commission may issue against one of several partners for a joint debt. Exp. Crisp, 1 Atk. 133. BANKCY., COMM. OF.

Under a joint commission, each of the persons included in it must be found bankrupt, and a joint commission void as to one is so as to both. If one partner be dead at the time it is taken out it abates, and is absolutely void. Beasley v. Beasley, 1 Atk. 97. BANKCY. COMMISSION.

VII. PARTNERS GENERALLY.

No partner who owes a duty towards another, can place himself in a situation which gives him a bias against the discharge of that duty. Burtm v. Wokeley, 6 Mad. 367.

One partner may agree with other retiring partner to give him a sum for concern, though they know partnership to be insolvent, no fraud being intended. Exp. Pauke, 1 Atk. 346. FRAUD ON CREDITORS; CONTRACT.

Possession of the owners, is possession of all.

Exp. Machell, 2 V. & B. 216. S. C. 1 Rose, 447. POSSESSION.

If one of two partners give, by will, a sum out of share of business, the surviving partner may settle the account without the legatee. Langley v. El. Oxford, Anbl. 798. ACCOUNT.

VII. HOW BOUND BY EACH OTHER'S ACTS.

If a partner borrows a sum of money, and gives his own security only for it, it does not become a partnership debt by being applied for partnership purposes with the knowledge of the other partner. Bevan v. Lewis, 1 Sim. 376.

A partner may give a guarantee where the obligation has reference to business connected with the partnership, and where the guarantee is notified to the firm, and they do not dissent from it. Exp. Nolte, 2 G. & J. 295.

Where one partner gives the acceptance of the firm for his separate debt without authority from his co-partner, such acceptance does not bind the firm. Exp. Goulding, 2 G. & J. 118.

Several persons entered into partnership as manufacturers, in December, 1806, on the terms, inter alia, that one partner should have the management of the business and accounts, and that three of the partners should have no votes or voices in the general affairs, but should be bound by the acts of the majority of the other partners. One of those other partners was also partner in a bank with which the firm kept an account. On the dissolution of the first firm, in 1820, a bill was filed against the partners, or their representatives, by the bankers for an account, and payment for a large balance claimed to be due to them, charging several stated accounts alleged to have been delivered and approved of. One of the defendants, (being one of the partners excluded from the management), by his answer, disputed the account, and, by a cross-bill, alleged, that the superintending partners had, by misconduct and neglect, suffered the acting partner to embezzle the partnership property; that, if any balance were due to the bankers, it had arisen through such misconduct; and that the superintending partners, including the partner in the bank, ought to bear the loss. By the decree dismissing the cross-bill, it was referred to the master to take the account, with liberty to state special circumstances. The master declined, under this direction, to take the account on the footing of a stated account, and the defendant insisted on the account being taken and vouched item by item; on which the plaintiffs presented their petition for a re-hearing, which was refused, the petition not having been presented within six months after the decree pronounced; the court, however, expressing a strong opinion, that no other decree could, according to the pleadings, have been made. Milford v. Milford, 1 McClell. & Y. 150.

Money admitted by executor to be in hands of his partner, is in his own hands sufficient for the purpose of being ordered into court. Johnson v. Aston, 1 S. & S. 73. EXECUTOR'S ADMISSIONS OF ASSETS; PAYMENT INTO COURT.

A partner may give third person an interest in his share, but cannot make him a partner. Bray v. Fyomont, 6 Mad. 5.

Demurrer to a bill by a security, stating that two partners having agreed to execute a release to the principal, in consideration of an assignment of his effects, one alone executed the release, overruled. Whether a release so executed binds all the partners, quære. Hawkshaw v. Parkins, 2 Swan. 539. RELEASE.

If A and B are partners in a trade carried on in the name of A only, and A draws bills in his own name payable to his order, which he indorses, and afterwards B also indorses, and procures them to be discounted, there is no legal contract for a holder to maintain an action against A and B upon the bills, unless it appear that A drew and indorsed the bills in the character of, and as representing A and B. Exp. Bolitho, Buck. 1100.

A person discounting the bills may have a right of action against A and B jointly for money had and received, if he can shew that they received the money by means of the bills for partnership purpose. Id. ib.

Order for goods by two partners, afterwards partnership dissolved; a bill drawn on the two partners, but accepted only by one who carried on a separate trade, and the goods delivered to him, no claim can be made on the other partner. Exp. Harris, 1 Mad. 583. Dissolution.

One partner may act for all almost universally in bankruptcy, proving debts, voting for assignees, and signing certificates. Exp. Hodgkinson, 19 Ves. 293. Exp. Mitchell, 14 Ves. 597.

Joint commission of bankruptcy on affidavit of debt, and bond sworn and executed by one partner on behalf of all. Id. ib.

Where one of three partners in a banking concern, who resided at the place where the banking-house was, and was the only partner who transacted the business, the other two residing at a distance from it, absented himself from the banking-house, shut it up, and stopped payment: Held, that his was not evidence of a joint act of bankruptcy by all three. Mills v. Bennett, 2 M. & S. 556. BANKCY., ACT OF.

One partner bound by the other's signature of a bankrupt's certificate after dissolution of the partnership. Exp. Hall, 17 Ves. 62. BANKCY. CERTIFICATE.

Partnership bound by the signature of one partner. Exp. Gardom, 15 Ves. 28.

Power of a partner to bind the partnership, unless from the nature of the transaction, it can be inferred to be separate, in which case previous authority, or subsequent approbation must be shewn. Exp. Bonbonus, 8 Ves. 546.

Partners bound by an instrument executed by one in the presence of the others. Burn v. Burn, 3 Ves. 578.

A partner, after the partnership ceased, giving a joint note; bill filed to strike out the plaintiffs' (the former partners) name, have the bill retained for a year, and the trial had, when the plaintiff at law could not prove the partnership, and was non-suited; yet Ld. Ch. (on equity reserved) refused to decree the name to be erased. Ryan v. Mackmath, 3 Bro. C. C. 15.

One part-owner of a ship freighted against the express dissent of the other, the ship and cargo are lost; the loss falls wholly on the partner who freighted. Horn v. Gilpin, Amb. 255. ACCOUNT.

A, on behalf of himself and partners, entered into contract with B for certain commodity, but the name of A is only used in contract. Other partners, having paid part of deposit, were held liable to the contract. Hirvine v. Gibbins, 5 Bro. P. C. 491. PARTIES TO CONTRACT.

Part-owners of a privateer must bear costs proportionally of an illegal seizure of a prize at sea. Walton v. Hanbury, 2 Vern. 592.

In all sea-adventures the acts of a majority of partners shall bind the whole. Falkland v. Cheney, 5 Bro. P. C. 476.

One of several partners, who is treasurer of the whole, enters into contract with A, and, afterwards failing, his estate is vested in trustees. Though contract with A concerns the partnership business, yet he is not entitled to any satisfaction out of treasurer's share of partnership effects, but must come in equally with the other creditors; the money due to A not being for wages. Ball v. Lamesborough, 5 Bro. P. C. 480.

Where A's name is used in partnership by other partners as a partner, but he receives no part of profits, &c., nor are any articles of partnership entered into by A and the others: Held but a nominal partnership. Jacobson v. Hennekenius, 5 Bro P. C. 482.

A and B partners; A receives money in the shop, and gives his note for it. Though no proof that this money was brought into stock, or used in trade, yet this note being given in the shop by one of the partners, it shall bind both, and though this note at law binds only the executor of the surviving partner, yet in equity the creditor may follow the estate of the other. Jane v. Williams, 2 Vern. 277. 292.

An account of the profits of a voyage settled by the major part of the part-owners shall conclude the rest. Robinson v. Thompson, 1 Vern. 465. ACCOUNT.

A, one of three part-owners of a ship, refuses to navigate; B and C, the other two, navigate without his consent, and ship is lost in the voyage. A shall bear his proportion of the loss, for he would have been entitled to an account of the profits. Strell v. Winson, 1 Vern. 297. But see Horn v. Gilpin, Amb. 255. ACCOUNT.

VII. HOW DISCHARGED.

Deposit of bills with the house in D's lifetime, which were sold by the house, part in his lifetime, and part after his death; the estate of D is not answerable in respect of the latter, though in this particular case, it appeared that the party who deposited them had no notice of the death of D. Debaynes Noble, 1 Mer. 616. DEBTOR & CREDITOR.

Creditors at the death of D, who continued to deal with the surviving partners, both by drawing out and paying in money, whereby their debts were increased, but never at any time reduced: Held, no discharge of the deceased partner's estate. Id. ib.

Transfer of stock to the partnership, as a security for advances, under an agreement not to sell without notice. D's estate liable to the full extent of stock sold contrary to such agreement, and not only to the extent of the stock sold beyond the amount of the debt due to the partnership in respect of advances made by them. Id. 624.

Notice to the surviving partners given by a creditor of the partnership, as solicitor for the representatives of the deceased partner, that the estate of the deceased will not be liable for their future dealings, does not operate as discharging the estate from a debt previously incurred to that creditor, of which he was at the time ignorant. Payments subsequently made in respect of cash balances not to be taken as operating in extinction of such a debt. Id. 579.

Deposit with the partnership of exchequer bills, which were sold in D's lifetime, and the produce applied to the use of the house. D's estate is responsible in respect of the breach of trust, and not discharged by subsequent acts, from which an inference might be drawn of the creditor's adopting the surviving partners as his debtors. Id. 575.

The amount of money received by the sale of the exchequer bills becomes a partnership debt, which accrued from the moment when they were sold without the consent of the creditor; and this, whether the individual partners were or were not privy to the sale: the sale of the exchequer bills amounts only to a breach of trust. Id. ib.

Creditors who, after D's death, continued to deal with the surviving partners, by drawing out and paying in; but, having drawn sums out before they paid any in, the balance varying from time to time, but being upon the whole increased by such subsequent payments by the surviving partners, must be taken in reduction of the balance due at D's death, and his estate held discharged pro tanto. Id. 585.

A general devise in trust for the testator's widow and children, having received from the widow who was executrix, on her going abroad to recover part of the property, bonds for a debt from him and his partners to the estate, in settling the affairs of the partnership, on the retirement of one partner who had notice of the trust, delivered to him the bonds to be cancelled without the privy of the cestui que trust; continuing to make remittances on that account from the funds of the new partnership, the partner who retired is not discharged. Dickenson v. Lockier, 4 Ves. 36.

Bankers, upon a deposit of money with them, gave notes bearing interest; the partnership was dissolved, one of the partners soon afterwards died, and his creditors were called by advertisement, and the partnership was formed by the survivors and others who re-issued notes of the former partnership, and paid the interest of the deposit notes for near two years, and they failed: the assets of the deceased partner are not discharged. Daniel v. Cross, 3 Ves. 277.

An account of a partnership estate, and of monies paid to one of the partners during the partnership, and of the dissolution of it, directed at a distance of four years after such dissolution, under circumstances showing that the partner refted from a conviction that the partnership was insolvent. Anderson v. Maltby, Bro. C. C. 423. Vide S. C. 2 Ves. J. 244. ACCOUNT.

Judgment in action against a surviving partner is no extinguishment of the partnership debt in equity, Jeacomb v. Harwood, 2 Ves. 265. JUDGMENT; EXTINGUISHMENT OF DEBT.

IX. SURVIVORSHIP.

Sale of a testator's share in a partnership trade, and the property belonging to it, by his executor to his partner, for the purpose of being re-sold to one of his executors, set aside, and his estate held entitled to his aliquot proportion of the subsequent profits as if the partnership had continued. Interest allowed at five per cent. on sums paid out to his estate. Cook v. Cullinridge, 1 Jac. 607. EXECUTOR; FRAUD, FID. SUC.; INTEREST.

The goodwill of professional partnerships survives on death of one to his co-partner, and his representatives have no claim, though he had paid a large premium. Farr v. Pearce, 3 Mad. 72. GOODWILL.

A commercial partnership might be very different. Id. 79.

The goodwill of a trade carried on in partnership without articles survives, and is not partnership stock. Profits accrued after the death of one partner, are joint property. Hammond v. Douglas, 5 Ves. 539. Id.

Articles of partnership do not survive for the benefit of executors, &c. without an express provision for such purpose. Pearce v. Chamberlain, 2 Ves. 33. ADMON. OF ASSETS.

Two persons occupy and stock a farm jointly. There shall be no survivorship. But if two take a lease jointly of a farm, the lease shall survive. Jeffereys v. Smale, 1 Vern. 217. SURVIVORSHIP.

Not necessary in articles of co-partnership to provide against survivorship. Id. ib.

Where two are jointly interested by way of gifts, survivorship takes place: otherwise, in a joint undertaking in the way of trade. Id. ib.

X. DORMANT.

A and B were in partnership, B being a secret partner, and A, on the partnership account, drew bills in his own name on B, which were accepted by him: Held, on the bankruptcy of A and B, that the holder of these bills, who was ignorant of the partnership, was not entitled to prove them against the joint estate of A and B, and the separate estate of B, but that he was entitled to prove them against the separate estates of A and of B: Held, too, that the holder, having proved against the joint estate, might, after a declaration of dividend of the joint estate, retire from that proof, and prove against the separate estates. Exp. Husbands, 2 G. & J. 4. BANKCY. JOINT AND SEPARATE ESTATE; BANKCY. PROOF IN.

A creditor without notice of a dormant partner has the option to consider himself a joint or separate creditor. Exp. Hodgkinson, 19 Ves. 291. Exp. Norfolk, id. 457. S. P.

Distinction as to partners with reference to third persons, and as between the partners themselves. Partners, as to third persons, by a specific interest in the profits as such, not by receiving a sum of money even in proportion to a given share of the profits. Dormant partner, by a share of the profits; but the property by agreement belonging exclusively to the other, a joint commission not supported, as the joint property would not be liable to execution under an action against the dormant partner. Exp. Hamper, 17 Ves. 403.

Dormant partner not an ostensible contracting party; a creditor may, but is not bound to go against him. Id. 412.

XI. OF THE GENERAL RIGHTS AND LIEN OF PARTNERS AGAINST EACH OTHER, AND OF SUITS BY, BETWEEN, AND AGAINST THEM.

An order on two solicitors as partners is not duly served by serving it on one of them, and leaving a copy at the place where the partnership business is carried on. Young v. Goodson, 2 Russ. 255. PR. SERVICE OF ORDER.

The vendor of a share in a partnership business filed a bill against the purchaser, who had taken possession, charging that he had grossly mismanaged the property, and destroyed its value, and praying that he might be declared to have accepted the title, and might be decreed to perform the contract specifically. The court was of opinion that the title had not been accepted, and as a good title was not shewn, a specific performance could not be decreed: Held that upon a record so framed, no accounts or inquiries could be directed as to the defendant's possession and management of the property, with a view to ascertain whether any and what sum ought to be paid, or compensation made by him to the plaintiff. Sterens v. Guppy, 3 Russ. 171. ACCOUNT; VEND. & PURCH.

The shareholders in a joint stock company are entitled to relief in equity, where the conduct of the directors has been fraudulent, or a violation of the terms on which the company was formed. Blain v. Agar, 1 Sim. 37. FRAUD; JURISDICTION.

A bill in equity lies to recover deposits paid by a shareholder in a joint-stock company, where the project is a bubble. Green v. Barrett, id. 45. Id. ib.

Where partner dies, leaving partnership accounts unsettled, ecclesiastical court will grant administration of his effects to surviving partner, or any person claiming, if his next of kin decline it. Cawthorn v. Chatlie, 2 S. & S. 127. ADMON.

Where a partnership has expired by efflux of time, and in a suit for an account, &c. a receiver has been appointed before decree, the court will not compel defendant, (the former managing partner), to deliver up to receiver for the purpose of making out bills of costs, partnership books and accounts, which have remained in his hands, and title deeds belonging to a third person, which came into the possession of the copartners as solicitors, such defendant offering the receiver free access thereto, and to assist in making out such bills. Dacie v. John, 1 McClell. 206. S. C. 13 Price, 446. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS.

Bill by some partners against the committee of partnership, for account, &c. must be on behalf of themselves and other partners not of the committee. Baldwin v. Lawrence, 2 S. & S. 18. PL. PARTIES.

If, upon dissolution of partnership, it is agreed that certain articles of partnership stock shall become exclusive property of one of them, and that certain fund shall be applied in payment of debts, and that fund proves insufficient; other partner has no lien on those articles for that deficiency. Lingen v. Simpson, 1 S. & S. 600. LIEN.

Mere temptation to abuse partnership effects is not sufficient to induce court to grant injunction. Glaslington v. Thwaites, 1 S. & S. 124. INJUNCT.

All the proprietors of the M. paper being also, with the exception of one, proprietors in the E. paper, an injunction to restrain using effects of former partnership to assist latter, in consideration of an annual sum, was refused where there had been agreement permitting use on those terms which had been long acted under. Id. ib. INJUNCT.; AGREEMENT.

But injunction granted to restrain using effects not included in agreement. Id. ib.

Some of the holders of scrip or shares of a loan cannot file a bill on behalf of themselves and the other holders, to have their subscriptions returned. Jones v. Garcia del Rio, 1 Turn. & R. 297.

Where partner withdrawing money from partnership, by entries in books, disguises transactions, or wholly omits or conceals, it is a fraud, and will entitle others to sue his separate estate; otherwise, if he does it openly. Exp. Smith, 6 Mad. 2. FRAUD; ACCOUNT.

If the defendant has a good defence against one of the plaintiffs, who hold a joint office, though not against the others, the court cannot make good a decree in the suit for the plaintiffs. Hunter v. Richardson, 6 Mad. 89. PL. DECREE.

A, B, and C, partners together; A agrees with D to give him a moiety of his share in the concern. An account may be decreed between A and D, without making B and C parties. Brown v. De Tastet, 1 Jac. 284. PL. PARTIES; ACCOUNT BETWEEN WHOM.

On the death of one partner, the scrivener retaining his capital, and employing it in the trade, decreed to account for the profits derived from it, making him proper allowances for the management of the business. Id. ib. ACCOUNT.

Where one partner is entrusted with the entire management of the partnership business, and openly, without disguise or concealment, enters into the partnership books the monies withdrawn by him from the joint stock for his separate use, it is not a fraud which will entitle the joint creditors to prove against the separate estate of that partner. Exp. Smith, 1 G. & J. 74. BANKRY. JOINT & SEPARATE ESTATE; FRAUD.

An injunction will not be granted to restrain the breach of a covenant in articles of partnership, which has not been infringed for any length of time, where the bill does not pray a dissolution of the partnership. Whether the court will, in any case, grant such an injunction, unless there is ground for, and the bill prays, a dissolution of the partnership; quære? Marshall v. Colman, 2 Jac. & W. 266. See in negative, 4 Mad. 143. and in affirmative, 2 V. & B. 329. and Loscombe v. Russell, Sittings after T. T. 1830. V. C. INJUNCT.; PL. BILL.

Receiver appointed of mines, in which several persons were interested; the concern, from the nature of the subject, being a species of trade, and not a mere tenancy in common in land. Jeffereys v. Smith, 1 Jac. & W. 298. MINES; RECEIVER.

Order for a partner to pay into court partnership money received by him contrary to good faith; but in general, a partner insisting that the balance of the amount is in his favour, is not obliged to bring into court what is in his hands, unless the other partners do the same. Foster v. Donald, 1 Jac. & W. 252. PR. PAYMT. INTO COURT.

The court will not, upon motion, appoint a receiver of a partnership, unless it appears that the plaintiff will be entitled to a dissolution at the hearing. Chapman v. Beach, 1 Jac. & W. 594. RECEIVER.

Plaintiff and defendant (partners) having agreed to dissolve, and that defendant, on payment of half value of effects, should take the whole. The defendant took possession, but failed to make payment, and had begun to pull down buildings. Injunction to restrain him refused. Coyton v. Horner, 5 Pri. 537. INJUNCT. TO RESTRAIN WASTE.

One of two part-owners of a ship, having assigned his share to the other, the former is a necessary party to a bill by a creditor of both against the representatives of the latter. Pierson v. Robinson, 3 Swan. 139. ASSIGNMT.; PL. PARTIES.

A joint stock company, established by act of parliament, vesting in them all property then belonging to them, and authorising them to bring actions in the name of their treasurer for the time being, having purchased an estate pending a suit against the vendors, to compel the specific performance of an agreement to grant a lease of part; on a bill by the vendee against the treasurer and directors, the plaintiffs were declared entitled to a lease, and the treasurer was enjoined from disturbing their possession, though the rest of the proprietors, being very numerous, were not parties; but no decree could be made for the execution of a lease. Meux v. Maltby, 2 Swan. 277. PL. PARTIES; PURCHASE, PENDENTE LITE.

Where some members of a partnership, either in the ordinary course of trade, or in closing the transactions after a dissolution, seek to exclude others from a just share in the management, the court appoints a receiver. Wilson v. Greenwood, 1 Swan. 48. PR. RECEIVER, APPOINTMENT OF.

Bill against two partners, one abroad; service of subpoena against him permitted on the other, on motion. Coles v. Gurney, 1 Mad. 187. PRACTICE, SUBSTITUTED SERVICE.

Court will not treat a bill to restrain an acting partner from collecting debts or creating them, and for appointing a receiver, as a bill to restrain waste; though otherwise, if partner has been shown guilty of culpable conduct, and to be insolvent. Lawson v. Morgan, 1 Price, 303. PR. INJUNCT.

Under covenant to retiring partner as soon as conveniently could be to pay the debts and indemnify him against them, broken by death of covenantor, leaving debts undischarged; those debts being paid by covenantor, become a specialty debt against the administrator. Musson v. May, 3 V. & B. 194. COVT. TO INDEMNIFY; SPECIALTY DEBT.

It is obligatory on a partner to apply property as received to partnership purposes, or to charge himself, as debtor, in the partnership books. Exp. Yonge, 3 V. & B. 36.

Negative plea, as no partnership, not going to collateral circumstances, charged as evidence of it, insufficient. Evans v. Harris, 2 V. & B. 364. PL. NEGATIVE PLEA.

No relief upon a bill by one partner against another, not praying a dissolution. Forman v. Humphrey, 2 V. & B. 329. So in Loscombe v. Russell, Sittings after T. T. 1830, before V. C. But see contra Harrison v. Armitage, 4 Mad. 143. See also 2 J. & W. 266. RELIEF.

Motion by defendants to a bill for a partnership account, for a production of the accounts before answer, refused. Pickering v. Riggby, 18 Ves. 484. PR. PROD. OF DEEDS, &c. PR. ANSWER.

Motion for a receiver on a mining concern refused, upon a claim of partnership in the equitable interest, not raised until the concern, at a great expense, became prosperous, and denied by the answer. Norway v. Route, 19 Ves. 144. RECEIVER; ACCOUNT.

Receiver not ordered merely on a dissolution of partnership; ordered on breach of the duty of a partner, or of the contract, as by continuing trade with joint effects on the separate account. Harding v. Glover, 18 Ves. 281. PR. RECEIVER.

The principle upon which a court of equity interferes between partners, by appointing a manager, receiver, &c. is merely with a view to the relief, by winding up and disposing of the concern and dividing the produce, not to carry it on. The court, therefore, would not, upon motion, appoint a manager, &c. of the Opera House, except upon the principle applicable to any other partnership, as necessary to the relief, a foreclosure; taking into consideration also the difficulties from the nature of the subject, and the contract an anxious provision for arbitration, and that one party was, by the express contract, manager. Waters v. Taylor, 15 Ves. 10.

Injunction to restrain a surviving partner from disposing of the joint stock and receiving the outstanding debts. Hartz v. Schrader, 8 Ves. 317. INJUNC.

Demurrer to a bill for some members of lodge of freemasons against others, to have the dresses, &c. delivered up, and an injunction was allowed on ground that they affected to sue as a corporate body; but leave was given to amend, the court holding the jurisdiction for delivering of chattel, and where there is a joint interest permitting some to sue as individuals, representing the rest in other instances than those of creditors and legatees, if inconvenient to justice that all should be parties. Lloyd v. Learing, 6 Ves. 773. PL. PARTIES; CHATTELS.

A fair dissolution of partnership between two; one retiring and assigning the partnership property to the other, and taking a bond for value and covenant of indemnity against the debts; the other continued in the trade separately a year and a half, and then became bankrupt: Held the joint creditors had no equity attaching on the partnership effects remaining in specie; at all events, such a claim ought to be by bill, and not by petition. Exp. Ruffin, 6 Ves. 119. BANKRY. ASSIGNMT.

Though contribution among partners is now enforced at law, the jurisdiction of courts of equity is not ousted, and therefore, though the bill was dismissed, the object having been attained in an action directed, the court would not dismiss it with costs. Wright v. Hunter, 5 Ves. 792. CONTRIBUTION; JURISDICTION.

A joint creditor by simple contract may go against the assets of a deceased partner, but cannot before the account retain separate property of that partner in his possession. Stephenson v. Chiswell, 3 Ves. 566. LEGN.

Bill by a partner under a parol agreement, charging misconduct in the other partner, and praying a dissolution, account, and injunction from executing securities in the name of the firm; demurrer to the prayer for a dissolution, because there was no writing between them, overruled. Master v. Kirton, 3 Ves. 74. PL. DEMURRER.

Court of equity will order fund of annuity company into court, when members are about to abuse their trust. Castland v. Lyster, 1 Ridg. L. & S. 580. PR. PAYMENT INTO COURT.

Court will not appoint receiver of effects of subsisting partnership, unless on grossest abuses of some of the partners. Oliver v. Hamilton, 2 Anst. 453. RECEIVER.

Motion granted for an injunction for one partner against another; the defendant being in contempt, and served personally, and not appearing. Read v. Bowers, 4 Bro. C. C. 441. PR. INJUNC.

At the commencement of a partnership, the partners both living in the same house, entertained their customers jointly; one removing, the whole expence of entertainment (which were necessary in the trade) fell upon the other. They ought to have agreed for an allowance, the court can make none. The accounts having been annually balanced without such allowance, is conclusive. Thornton v. Proctor, 1 Anst. 94. ACCOUNT.

Defendant need not set forth an account of the transactions of a trade in which the plaintiff pretends to have been a partner, if there is a clear denial of the partnership. Jacobs v. Goodman, 2 Cox, 282. DISCOVERY; PL. ANSWER.

Injunction to restrain surviving partners from using the name of a deceased partner in the firm of the trade, refused. Webster v. Webster, 3 Swan. 490. INJUNC.

Injunction against a surviving partner, proceeding by ejectment to obtain possession of a farm of which a joint lease had been made to himself and his deceased partner. Elliot v. Brown, 3 Swan. 489. IB.

One part-owner of a ship cannot bring a bill on behalf of himself and the other part-owners, but they must all be parties. Moffat v. Farquharson, 2 Bro. C. C. 338. PL. PARTIES.

In a cause for an account of a partnership, both parties being dead, a receiver shall be appointed, secus in the case of surviving partner. Philips v. Atkinson, 2 Bro. C. C. 272. PR. RECEIVER.

At law, where one of the creditors will not join in the action, he is summoned and severed, and the other has judgment quod sequatur solum. Darwent v. Walton, 2 Atk. 510

Where one partner is abroad, the other partner who is before the court shall pay the whole of the joint demand. Id. ib.

Where an action is brought against two joint debtors, and one only appears, the creditor may have judgment for his whole debt against the person appearing, and by default against the person who does not appear. Id. ib.

Bill for an account of a copartnership, defendant pleaded an award, averring the matter in question comprised in the award; plaintiff replied generally to the plea; and though the plaintiff ought to have set down the plea to be argued, and not to have replied to it, yet court decreed defendant to account; but afterwards, though this decree was signed and enrolled, court ordered defendant only to answer. Farrington v. Chute, 1 Vern. 72. PR. REPLICATION; ACCOUNT.

Surviving partner, trading on his own account with the debtors to the partnership, ordered that an attorney be appointed to sue for the debts, unless the surviving partner would give security to answer a moiety of the debts to the administratrix of the deceased partner. Estwick v. Couningsby, 1 Vern. 118.

PATENTS.

See also PR. INJUNCTION, 16.

Instance of a patent amended and new sealed. Beame's Orders, 67.

To establish the validity of a patent, the invention must be both new and useful, and the specification must accurately describe it: also, if the specification seeks to cover more than is actually new and useful it vitiates the patent, rendering it ineffectual, even to the extent to which it might otherwise have been supported. Hill v. Thompson, 3 Mer. 629.

To support a patent, the specification should be so clear as to enable all the world to use the invention from the moment of the expiration of the patent. Newbery v. James, 2 Mer. 446.

There is no copyright in specification of patents. Wyatt v. Bernard, 3 V. & B. 77. COPYRIGHT.

No costs where the caveat was not unreasonable. Exp. Far, 1 V. & B. 67. PR. COSTS; CAVEAT.

Patent granted for an improved steam engine; as not infringing upon an existing patent. If the improvements could not be used without the engine, for which a patent had been granted, they must wait the expiration of that patent. Id. ib. IMPROVEMENTS.

Injunction upon possession under a patent, until the right can be tried; though subject to considerable doubt; the patent being for improvements upon a machine, the subject of a former patent expired, and the specification describing the original machine, with the improvements, as one entire machine, the subject of the latter patent; not distinguishing the improvements. Harmer v. Plaine, 14 Ves. 130. INJUNCTION.

Patent for improvements valid; but not to restrain the use of the original machine. Id. 133.

Enrolment of patent cannot be dispensed with for the purpose of preventing the specification being made public. After patent is passed, the time for enrolment cannot be enlarged without act of parliament. Exp. Hoops, 6 Ves. 599.

Injunction granted against infringement of patent, that the validity of a patent might be tried at law; verdict for the patentee, subject to the opinion of the court; upon a case the court were equally divided. The patentee must bring another action; but the court on the possession would not impose any terms upon him, nor dissolve the injunction in the mean time. Boulton v. Bull, 3 Ves. 140. PR. INJUNCTION, DIS- SOLVING.

A patentee claiming an exclusive right of printing bibles, must establish his right at law, before he can have an injunction in equity. Grierson v. Jackson, 1 Ridg. L. & S. 304. INJUNCTION; TITLE.

The court refused to seal a patent for representing Italian operas, because the provisions for carrying it on were by agreement with the Lord Chamberlain, his executors and administrators, and the right to the patent was not sufficiently connected with the property in the house. Not sufficient for the party applying merely to answer objections, but he must lay a proper case. Upon such application, the court will take care that the king is not deceived, or his object disappointed, and will represent the whole to the king, but will not decide upon the merits of the various claimants. Essential to the complainant of an old market against a new one set up near it, that the old is competent to the accommodation of the public; so here the old proprietors must be able to keep it up properly; the accommodation of the public being the principal thing. Exp. O'Reilly, 1 Ves. J. 112. JURISDICTION.

On an application to the Ld. Chamberlain to withhold the great seal from a patent, he will only consider whether it is legal or not, and not whether the crown ought or ought not to grant it. Exp. Daly, Vern. & Scriv. 499.

But there are three stages in which a patent may be opposed:—1. While it is under the consideration of his Majesty; 2. When it comes to the privy seal; and 3. When it comes to the great seal. Id. 502.

A patent bearing date 12th August, but the caveat not discharged till the 27th, the patentee supposing it bore date the latter day, did not enrol till the 18th December; when the four months had expired, the date of the patent cannot be altered. Exp. Beck, 1 Bro. C. C. 578.

Upon a bill brought by the king's printer, to restrain the defendant from the publication of certain acts of parliament, &c., to which the patentees for printing law books were also defendants, the court refused to interfere between the contending patents, and therefore only restrained the defendant from printing at any other than a patent press. Baskett v. Cunningham, 2 Eden, 137. INJUNCTION.

Exemplification of part of a patent, not suffered to be read in evidence, notwithstanding the statutes of 3 & 4 of Edw. 6. and 13 Eliz. where the other side have no time to consult the patent roll, and so may be surprised by an imperfect exemplification. Att. Gen. v. Taylor, Prec. Chan. 59. PR. EVIDENCE.

Bill in equity lies to set aside letters patent obtained by fraud. Att. Gen. v. Vernon, 1 Vern. 277. 370. S. C. 2 Ch. Rep. 353. FRAUD; JURISDICTION.

Lease obtained by fraud may be avoided by patentee of crown. El. of Decon. v. Haute, Cary, 32.

S having borrowed 100l. of A on a bond, B, the scrivener, when the bond was sealed, delivered it to A. S paid many years' interest, and 50l. of the principal to B, which he paid over to A; but the remaining 50l. which S paid to B was not paid over to A when B failed. Per curiam, though B received the interest so long, and 50l. of the principal, it did not imply he had any authority from A; and as S could not prove he had any such authority, he shall pay the last 50l. again. Wolstenholme v. Davies, 2 Freem. 289. PRINC. & AGENT.

Payment of money to a trustee, with notice of the trust, is a mis-payment, though the trustee had judgment and execution against the person that paid the money. Prichard v. Langher, 2 Vern. 197. TRUST.

Legacy bequeathed to a feme covert, Payment to her alone not good. Palmerv. Trevor, 1 Vern. 261. LEGACY; FEME COVERT.

Scrivener puts out money on bond, and receives the interest from time to time, and then receives part of the principal, the bond remains in the obligee's custody. No good payment. Roberts v. Matthew, 1 Vern. 150. See 1 Salk. 157. PRINC. & AGENT; BOND.

It is the rule of the court, that if the scrivener have the custody of the security, payment of the interest is good; if he delivers it up, being a bond, payment of the principal is good: but where payment of the principal, in case of a mortgage deed, the giving up the deed is not sufficient to restore the estate; there must be a re-conveyance. So payment of interest good, if mortgagee consents, or after his death his executor, either expressly or by implication, as if he accept the money afterwards of the scrivener, though the scrivener have not possession either of deed or bond. Whitlock v. Waltham, 1 Salk. 157. 1 Vern. 150. in note. PRINC. & AGENT.

Payment of debt, without taking receipt, is relievable in equity on oath of parties only. Cary, 2.

PEERS.

So are widows and dowagers of temporal peers. Id. 106.

A master refusing to take their answers on honour, commits breach of privilege. Id. 262.

The answer of a peer, upon his protestation of honour, may be read on the question of costs. Dawson, v. Ellis, 1 Jac. & W. 524. ANSWER; EVIDENCE; PR. COSTS.

An amendment in the title of an answer being necessary, namely, instead of "the farther answer to the original amended bill," entitling it "the farther answer to the original bill," and "the answer to the amended bill;" the answer so amended must, in the case of a peer, be again attested upon honour, as in the case of a common debt it must be re-sworn. *Peacock v. Sequestration is first process against peer or member of parliament. Rushleigh v. Butler, Dick. 152.

Putting in answer good cause to sequestration nisi against peer; but if answer insufficient, plaintiff must move again for sequestration nisi. Id. 16.

Peers and M. P.s, if they trade, are liable to bankrupt laws. Exp. Meymott, 1 Atk. 200. BANKRUPT TRADER.

A sequestration nisi is the first process against a peer or member of the house of commons, though this is some hardship; but if there be a sequestration nisi against a peer for want of an answer, and the peer puts in an answer which is insufficient, yet the order for sequestration shall not be absolute, but a new sequestration nisi. Ld. Clifford's case, 2 P. W. 385. PR. PROCESS.

A peer disinherited by his ancestor is entitled to the favour of the court, and on bill and answer, to have the family deeds brought before the master, in order to see whether any thing can be discovered for his advantage. El. Suffolk v. Howard, id. 177. HEIR AT LAW; PR. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS.

A mortgagee had also a bond on which the interest due exceeded the penalty; the mortgagor conveyed the equity of redemption for the use of his creditors, paying this bond first. Nothing beyond the penalty can be claimed. Lloyd v. Hatchett, 2 Anst. 525. BOND.

If a man agree not to do an act, and enter into a bond, with a penalty to be forfeited on his doing it, the penalty is never to be considered as the price for doing such act; but the court will relieve by injunction until damage sustained shall be ascertained by an issue. *Hardy v. Bond does not carry interest beyond amount of penalty. Grosvenor v. Cook, Dick. 305. S. P. Gibson v. Egerton, Dick. 408. Kettleby v. Kettleby, Rundell v. Pettit, by revivor. Dick. 514.

Penal laws are not to be construed according to rules of equity. Harrison v. Southcote, 1 Atk. 537.

Plaintiff in a charter-party may sue for the whole penalty, though a part only remains due, but on offering to pay principal, interest and costs, defendant at law may be relieved in equity. Forward v. Duffeld 3 Atk. 555.

Five shillings per week allowed by way of nomine pene if either of the half-yearly payments of an annuity was in arrear forty-two days after it became due, the court will direct it to stand as a security for legal interest when the principal sum is not regularly paid. Aylet v. Dodd, 2 Atk. 238.

A court of equity will relieve against the penalty, for not performing an unreasonable contract. Thomson v. Harcourt, 1 Bro. P. C. 193. AGREEMENT, UNREASONABLE.

Where bond is tacked to mortgage, mortgagor cannot redeem without paying the whole, though exceeding the penalty. Peirs v. Baldwin, 2 Eq. Ab. 611. INTEREST; TACKING SECURITIES; BOND.

Where bond debt and interest have exceeded the penalty, and devisee or trustee to pay neglect payment for unreasonable time, he shall pay interest beyond penalty. Anon. 1 Salk. 154. BOND; INTEREST.

A mortgage is made with interest at 5l. per cent, provided that if the interest be not paid within two months after due, then to pay 5l. 10s., this is in nature of a penalty, and the court will relieve against it; otherwise if 5l. 10s. per cent. be reserved originally, and to be lessened to 5l. per cent. if duly paid within two months after due. Strode v. Parker, 2 Vern. 316. MORTGAGE; STIPULATED DAMAGES.

Equity, in some cases, carries the debt beyond the penalty, as when a debt is due to a person, and he is kept out of it by an injunction. But a plaintiff in equity cannot charge the debt beyond the penalty any more than he can at law. Hale v. Thomas, 1 Vern. 350. 2 Ch. Ca. 162. 186. See also 3 Russ. 598.

Trusts to be performed after the expiration of a term in gross of twenty years from the decease of the survivor of twenty-eight persons, who were living at the testator's decease, are valid. Bengough v. Edridge, 1 Sim. 173. LIMIT. OF TRUSTS.

Trust by deed creating estates tail, after any contract for alienation to raise a sum of money for the persons next in the course of limitation, declared void, as tending to a perpetuity, and inconsistent with the rights of the tenants in tail. Mainwaring v. Baxter, 5 Ves. 458. ESTATE TAIL.

Devise of real estates of the annual value of near 5000l. and other estates directed to be purchased with the residue of the personal estate, amounting to above 600,000l., to trustees and their heirs, &c., upon trust during the lives of the testator's sons, A, B, and C, and of his grandson, D, and of such other sons as A now has, or may have, and of such issue as D may have, and of such issue as any other sons of A may have, and of such sons as B and C may have, and of such issue as such sons may have, as shall be living at his decease, or born in due time afterwards; and during the life of the survivor, to receive the rents and profits, and from time to time to invest the same, and the produce of timber, &c. in other purchases of real estates; and after the death of the survivor of the said several persons, that the said estates shall be divided into three lots, and that one lot shall be conveyed to the eldest male lineal descendant then living of A in tail male, remainder to the second, &c. and of all and every other male lineal descendant or descendants then living, who shall be capable of taking as heir in tail male of any of the persons to whom a prior estate is limited of A successively in tail male, remainder, in equal moieties, to the eldest and every other male lineal descendant or descendants then living of B and C, as tenants in common in tail male, in the same manner, with cross remainders; or if but one such male lineal descendant, to him in tail male, remainder to the trustees, &c. The other two lots were directed to be conveyed to the male descendants of B and C, in the same manner, and with similar limitations, to the male descendants of their brothers, and to the trustees in fee; and it was directed that the trustees should stand seised, upon the failure of male lineal descendants of A, B, and C, as aforesaid, upon trust to sell and pay the produce to his majesty, his heirs and successors, to the use of the sinking fund; the accumulation till the purchases or sales can take place, to go to the same purpose, with a direction that all the persons becoming entitled shall use the surname of the testator only. The trusts of the will were established. Thelwellson v. Woodford, 4 Ves. 227. Affirmed, 11 Ves. 112. WILL.

J, by will, devises his real estates to trustees, in trust for several persons for life, with remainders to their first and other sons in tail male successively; but directs his trustees, upon the birth of every son of each tenant for life, to revoke the uses before limited to their respective sons in tail male, and to limit the premises to such sons for their lives, with immediate remainders to the respective sons of such sons in tail male. Held, that this clause of revocation and re-settlement, as tending to a perpetuity, and repugnant to the estate limited, was void and of no effect. Id. Spencer v. Dk. of Marlborough, 3 Bro. P. C. 232. WILL, C. OF.

Testator devises his real estates to trustees, to several persons for life, with remainder to their first and other sons in tail male successively; but directs his trustees, upon the birth of every son of each tenant for life, to revoke the uses before limited to their respective sons in tail male, and to limit the premises to such sons for their lives, with immediate remainders to the respective sons of such sons in tail male. Held, that this clause of revocation and re-settlement was void, as tending to a perpetuity, and being repugnant to the estate settled. Dk. of Marlborough v. El. Godolphin, 1 Eden, 404. Id.

Though the law will not admit a perpetuity, yet the intent of the party, so far as is consistent with its rules, ought to be observed. Smith v. Packhurst, 3 Atk. 136. 2 Stra. 105.

The mortgagee for a term of years being in possession, devises the premises, as an estate of inheritance, to three several persons for life successively, with remainder to their first and other sons, remainders over. The remainders over are void, as tending to a perpetuity. Brett v. Sawbridge, 3 Bro. P. C. 141. WILL, C. OF; REMAINDER OVER.

A devises lands to the Drapers' Company, in trust to convey to B for life, remainder to his first, &c. sons for their lives successively, and so to their issues male for their lives, remainder over. Though this be a vain attempt of a perpetuity, yet the trustees shall make a strict settlement as may be, making all the persons in being but tenants for life; but the limitation to the son unborn must be in tail. Humberston v. Humberston, 2 Vern. 738. S. C. Pre. Ch. 455. Gilb. Eq. Rep. 128. 1 P. W. 332. WILL, C. OF; SETTLEMENT.

Term of years cannot be limited so as to create a perpetuity. Fletcher's case, 1 Eq. Ab. 193. TERM OF YEARS, LIMIT. OF.

Limitation of a fee upon a fee, on a contingency to happen within a reasonable compass of time, no perpetuity. Lloyd v. Curew, Pre. Chan. 72. LIMITAT.

A devise to a man and the heirs of his body, and if he shall go about to alien, his estate shall cease, and the lands go over to a charity. The devise over is void, it tending to create a perpetuity. Company of Pewterers v. Governors of Christ's Hospital, 1 Vern. 161. WILL, C. OF; LIMITAT. OVER VOID.

The trusts of term were limited to J for life, then to E for life, then to L for life, then to the first and other sons of L to be begotten on the body of M, with remainders, &c., remainder over; all limitations after that, to L for life: the sons of L, not being born, are void. Apprice v. Flower, Pollexf. 27. LIMITATION VOID.

Bond by tenant in tail not to suffer a recovery void, as tending to perpetuity. Moor, 809. 1 Eq. Ab. 87. BOND.

An allegation in the answer concerning a fact lying especially within the knowledge of the plaintiffs, does not entitle the defendants to an inquiry on that point. Walker v. Woodward, 1 Russ. 107. PR. INQUIRY.

In what way an account settled should be pleaded or stated in the answer. Capon v. Miles, 13 Pri. 767. ACCOUNT SETTLED.

Where answer to bill for specific performance raises other objections to performance, besides defect of title, court will not on motion by plaintiff for reference of title after answer, decide whether other objections are frivolous or not, semb. Withy v. Cottle, 1 S. & S. 174. S. P. Gordon v. Bull, id. 178. PR. REF. AS TO TITLE; VEND. & PURCH.

Defendant to a bill of revivor cannot put new matter on the record, which might, if stated in the answer to the original bill, have produced a different decree; it would be impertinent. Nunney v. Totty, 11 Price, 117. PR. IMPERTINENCE; PL. BILL OF REVIVOR.

In claiming an exemption from tithes for particular lands, such lands must be accurately described in defendant's pleadings, and their local situation, &c. Markham v. Smyth, 11 Pri. 126. TITHES.

Erasures in answer and in jurat, and alteration in commission, do not furnish such an objection to answer as to justify motion for taking it off file; no costs however, were given. Gwynn v. Bodmer, 9 Pri. 320. PR. COSTS; PR. TAKING PLEADINGS OFF FILE.

If modus be laid in answer to case resting on endowment as covering several tithable articles, it must be proved to be payable for all of them; a doubt from evidence as to that extent, is not sufficient to direct an issue. Kempson v. Yorke, 8 Pri. 13. EVIDENCE; MODUS.

A general allegation in answer, that defendant could not be affected by notice to determine a composition in any way, is not sufficient intimation to plaintiff, that defendant intended to rely on insufficiency of notice. Bennett v. Neale, Wightw. 324. TITHES. NOTICE TO DETERMINE COMPOSITION.

Court will not direct an issue to try composition real, where defendant by his answer only alleged a modus. Id. ib. PR. ISSUE AT LAW.

The rule, that the plaintiff being entitled to discovery only, and not to the relief, a general demurrer lies, does not prevent a demurrer to relief, giving the discovery. Todd v. Gee, 17 Ves. 273. PR. DEMURRER; PR. RELIEF.

An answer, clearly evasive on the face of it, and no reason assigned for it, is to be considered a contempt. Thomas v. Lethbridge, 9 Ves. 463. PR. CONTEMPT OF COURT.

A defendant claiming as a mortgagee, and by his answer denying notice of the plaintiff's title, which was neither alleged by the bill nor proved, an inquiry for the purpose of affecting him with notice was refused, first, upon a petition to vary the minutes; and again upon a re-hearing. An inquiry as to what sums he had advanced upon the security of the mortgage, and at what times respectively, was granted. Hurdy v. Reeves, 5 Ves. 426. NOTICE; PR. INQUIRY BEFORE MASTER; MORTGAGE, & MORTGEE.

Modus for clover instead of saying modus for grass, held sufficient, and issue directed to try modus for grass. Wood v. Harrison, Amb. 563. TITHES; MODUS.

The original bill brought for discovery only, the amended bill prays relief; the answer to this is to be considered as a part of the answer to the original bill, as much as if engrossed in the same parchment, and a part of the same record. Hildyard v. Cressy, 3 Atk. 303. PR. AMENDED BILL.

Answer to bill of review and supplemental, to carry, &c. cannot draw into question, nor have re-examination of decrees. Id. Dick. 8.

2. Effect of Admissions by.

A bill was filed by a person in possession of certain lands, for specific performance of an alleged parol agreement for a lease for seven years, and for an injunction to restrain an ejectment. The defendant by his answer admitted, that he had been disposed and would have permitted the plaintiff, if he had been satisfied with his conduct, to remain in possession for the time, and on the terms alleged to have been specified in the supposed agreement; and that the plaintiff probably expected to remain in possession for that time, and on those terms; but he expressly denied, that any such agreement had been made, and he insisted, that the plaintiff was tenant only from year to year, and had done many acts which would have been breaches of the covenants of the lease supposed to have been contracted. The court, upon this answer,

A defendant having stated in his answer, that by carrying on business on a farm, and with stock belonging to the assets of an intestate, he had made no profit, but that as he had not kept any accounts, and had blended the transactions of the farm with his other concerns, he could not set forth the amount of the profits; it was ordered, that in taking the accounts against them, annual rests should be made, and interest calculated at 5 per cent. upon those annual rests. Walker v. Woodward, 107. ANNUAL RESTS; ACCOUNT.

Trustees and executors, under the will of a testator, who had directed them to invest a share of his residuary estate, either in the public funds, or on mortgage, at 5 per cent., having admitted, by their answer, that they had from time to time balances in their hands, and it being proved, that many years after the death of the testator, they had not invested the share, either in the funds, or on mortgage, inquiries will be directed at the original hearing concerning the balances retained by them, and the prices of 3 per cent. stock at the several times when such balances were in their hands. Hockley v. Bantock, 1 Russ. 141. TRUSTEES & EXECUTORS; ACCOUNT.

In moving upon admissions in an answer for the payment of money into court, the plaintiff may shew that upon the case stated in the answer, he has an interest in the sum in question, though the defendant in his answer expressly denies, that the plaintiff has any such interest. Demoille v. Solley, 2 Russ. 372. PR. MOTION TO PAY INTO COURT.

Where defendant admits by answer, that there is trust fund in his hands, court will always, on interlocutory application, order payment into court. So, where executor is debtor to testator at latter's death. Rothwell v. Rothwell, 2 S. & S. 217. PR. PAYMENT INTO COURT; TRUST.

Where defendant referred to his schedule as containing all deeds, &c., in his custody, &c., there the plaintiff is entitled to the inspection of all such deeds, &c. as of course, unless it appeared by description of any particular instrument, or schedule, or by affidavit, that it was evidence, not of the title of plaintiff, but of the defendant, or that plaintiff had otherwise no interest in its production. Tyler v. Drayton, 2 S. & S. 309. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS.

Account of rents and profits of a charity estate, decreed for a period of 200 years against a corporation, who by their answer admitted the receipt, and stated that they had from time to time debited themselves in their books with the amount. Att. Gen. v. Mayor of Exeter, 1 Jac. 443. ACCOUNT; LENGTH OF TIME.

Defendants setting up defence of title in landlord, and producing, in evidence on hearing, certain deeds belonging to landlord; ordered on petition to produce such deeds on trial of issue, or that they should admit facts, which as alleged by other parties, deeds would establish, although landlord was no party to suit. Pulley v. Hilton, 10 Price, 118. PR. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS; LANDL. & TEN.; PL. PARTY.

Rule that there must be schedule, before court will order production of deeds and papers, applies only in cases of discovery. Anon. 6 Mad. 97. PR. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS, &c.; PR. ANSWER; SCHEDULE.

On a bill to set aside a purchase, the answer of the defendants, the devisees of the purchaser, admitting great inadequacy of price, and stating their ignorance as to other circumstances of fraud alleged; a receiver appointed. Stiwell v. Williams, 1 Jac. 280. 3 C. C. 6 Mad. 49. Nom. Stiwell v. Williams. PR. RECEIVER.

Though defendant makes admissions in his answer, which would entitle plaintiff to decree, plaintiff cannot, on motion, obtain order for payment of money into court. Peacham v. Daw, 6 Mer. 98. PR. PAYMENT INTO COURT; PR. MOTION.

On a motion for a defendant to produce a deed before the examiner, affidavits cannot be read to prove the fact of its being in his possession; it must appear upon his answer. Leave given, though the cause was at issue, to amend the bill, for the purpose of obtaining that admission. Barnett v. Noble, 1 Jac. & W. 227. PR. BILL, AMENDMENT; PRODUCTION OF DEEDS.

Where executor had refused an account, but on bill filed he gave one in his answer, and plaintiff took decree for account, and on master's report the account proved correct; court gave plaintiff costs upon decree, and defendant those of subsequent proceedings. Anon. 4 Mad. 273. ACCOUNT; COSTS; EXECUTOR.

Defendant cannot offer evidence to disprove admission in his answer. E. I. Comp. v. Keightley, 4 Mad. 16. EVIDENCE.

Though a bill states a defendant out of jurisdiction, and infant's defendants admit fact, proof is still requisite. Wilkinson v. Beal, 4 Mad. 408. PR. EVID.; INFANT.

Admission in answer, that defendant at some time past had deed in possession, is not sufficient to warrant order for its production. Heeman v. Midland, 4 Mad. 391. PR. PRODUCTION OF DEED.

The plaintiff is entitled to the production of documents referred to in the answer, and admitted to be in the custody of the defendant, although an injunction obtained by the plaintiff has been dissolved, on the ground, that the contract which he seeks to enforce is illegal. Erans v. Richardson, 1 Swan. 7. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS, &c.

In ordering the production of documents, the court proceeds on the principle that they are, by reference, incorporated into the answer, and become a part of it. Id. 8. Id.

Answer stating tender before bill filed, but not proved, cannot save costs. Milnes v. Davison, 3 Mad. 374. TENDER; PR. COSTS.

Production of books, &c. referred to in answer, ordered; though it was contended, that answer showed plaintiff not entitled to relief. Unsworth v. Woodcock, 3 Mad. 432. PR. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS.

An infant is not bound by admissions. Hawkins v. Luscombe, 2 Swan. 392. INFANT.

A party charging himself in a schedule to his answer, cannot discharge himself by another schedule, stating his disbursements. Boardman v. Jackson, 2 Ball & B. 385. ACCOUNT.

Bill by a widow, devisee in fee, impeaching a mortgage by her, while covert, for amount of a fine. Answer, admitting possession of the will, and the title under it; alleging the loss of the settlement; stating it differently from the bill, by the addition of a power of revocation and appointment of new uses, by the exercise of which a title was not necessary. Production of the will, not being affected by the answer, ordered on motion. Bird v. Harrison, 15 Ves. 408. PR. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS.

Motion for production of deeds and papers, referred to as in defendant's possession, but not described by the answer or schedule, and without an offer to produce them, as the court shall direct, refused. Atkyns v. Wright, 14 Ves. 211. PR. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS, &c.

Qualified submission to produce a deed, if the court shall require it, does not fix the defendant; and deprive him of the discretion of the court as to the propriety of the production. Id. 213.

Defendant insisting upon the statute of frauds, admissions by the answer are immaterial. Blagden v. Bradbear, 12 Ves. 466. FRAUDS, STAT. OF.

No relief under an agreement stated by the answer, the bill not being adapted to that agreement, but framed upon a different ground which failed. Pilling v. Armitage, 12 Ves. 78. AGREEMENT; SPEC. PERM.

Defendant, though he might perhaps have objected to answer, compelled to make full disclosure by production of letters mentioned in schedule to answer. Taylor v. Milner, 10 Ves. 41. PL. DISCOVERY.

Answer admitting the execution of an instrument, and craving leave to refer to it when produced, is not a ground to move for the production; not admitting, that it is in the possession or power of the defendant. Darwin v. Clarke, 8 Ves. 158. PR. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS.

Motion to pay money into court upon the affidavit of an accountant, that from the schedule to the answer, the examination, and the books of account, such a balance was due, refused. Mills v. Hanson, 2 Ves. 68. PR. PAYMENT INTO COURT.

Money may be ordered into court on motion, upon the ground of admission, as by schedules or books, containing an account of receipts and payment, and referred to so as to be part of the answer or examination. Id. ib.

After answer admitting agreement, and submitting to perform it, bill being amended in other circumstances, defendant was not permitted to take advantage of statute of frauds. Spurrier v. Fitzgerald, 6 Ves. 548. FRAUDS, STAT. OF.

Bill for tithes, answer admitting the right to one-third, and submitting to account, claiming the other two-thirds under a title derived from a grant by Queen Elizabeth, submitting to be examined upon interrogatories, but not setting forth a description of the lands; the defendants having gone into evidence in support of their claim, pressed to have the bill dismissed generally; the plaintiff pressed for a general account. The master of the rolls decreed an account as to one-third, and as to two-thirds, the plaintiff declining to try the right at law, dismissed the bill. Forcroft v. Parris, 5 Ves. 221. TITHES; ACCOUNT.

Admission of assets prevents the necessity of setting forth accounts. Pullen v. Smith, 5 Ves. 21. ASSETS, ADMON. OF.

There is no instance where a writ of ne exeat regno has been applied for upon admissions in the answer, but the admission would certainly do as well as an affidavit. Roddam v. Hetherington, 5 Ves. 95. PR. WRIT NE EXEAT REGNO.

A trivial incorrectness in setting out the title of wool, and for which amends had been tendered, and the non-payment of Easter dues, which were never demanded, are not sufficient to prevent a bill from being dismissed. Baker v. Athili, 2 Anst. 493. DISMISSAL OF BILL.

Bill for discovery, and delivery of a settlement under which plaintiff claimed other title-deeds, and possession of the estate, demurrer to all the relief and all the discovery, except of the settlement for want of equity, and answer admitting the settlement, and offering to produce it; and denying that defendant had any other, relative to plaintiff's title; the title being legal, the court would only order the settlement to be produced at the trial; the demurrer therefore, going to all the relief the defendant had leave to amend. Renison v. Ashley, 2 Ves. J. 459. PL. DISCOVERY; PR. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS.

Defendant not bound by a mistake in his answer, as to the effect of an instrument where the answer referred to the instrument. Jones v. Smith, 2 Ves. J. 372.

Bill for specific performance of a parol agreement, to renew, plaintiff having built a house; the only witness for the plaintiff proved an agreement different from that in the bill; two defendants by an answer stated, that an agreement different from both; in strictness the bill ought to be dismissed, but specific performance was decreed according to the answers, with costs against the plaintiff. Mortimer v. Orchard, 2 Ves. J. 242. SPEC. PERF.; AGREEMENT.

The statement of a defendant, by his answer, of the contents of an instrument, is not a sufficient ground for an order for the production without an express admission of the instrument, being in the defendant's custody or power. Erskine v. Bize, 2 Cox, 226. PR. PRODUCT. OF DEEDS.

Admission that any timber has been wrongfully cut gives a right to an account. Lee v. Alston, 1 Ves. J. 82. ACCOUNT.

Bill filed against a steward for an account of monies received in that capacity, and of the interest made by him of it. By his answer he admitted he received this money and mixed it with his own, and used it accordingly. This admission will induce the court to direct a production of his banker's books, though they may contain many other private matters. El. Salisbury v. Cecil, 1 Cox, 277. PR. PRODUCT. OF DEEDS.

A bill prays that a defendant may either admit assets, or that an account may be taken of the testator's personal estate, &c. but does not require the defendant to set forth such account, it was determined that, according to the present practice, he was not bound so to do, but a submission to account is sufficient. Misener v. Buifoot, 1 Cox, 58. PL. PRAYER FOR ACCT.

Liberty given to amend answer, by striking out admissions of plaintiff's pedigree after publication. Kingscote v. Bainsby, Dick. 485.

Infant heir not bound by admissions in deceased heir's answer. Cartwright v. Cartwright, id. 545.

Defendant held to admission of assets by answer. Roberts v. Roberts, id. 573.

Bill for performance of written agreement, parol evidence read of different agreement, dismissed with costs, and plaintiff cannot resort to agreement set up by defendant; parol evidence allowed where a hard agreement, or in part executed. Legal v. Miller, 2 Ves. 299. SPEC. PERF.

If a defendant by his answer, admits that he has committed waste before the filing of the bill, though he swears he has committed none since, yet the court will dissolve the injunction. Anon. 3 Atk. 485. PR. INJON. AGST. WASTE DISSOLVING.

Plaintiff, while a papist, assigned advowson to defendant for ninety-years, and having conformed, brought his bill for re-assignment of the term, suggesting he had only assigned it in trust for himself to avoid the penalties of the statute, 3 Jac. 1. and 1 W. and M. Defendant pleaded the statute of frauds, in bar to the discovery, but by his answer admitted that the advowson was resigned to him for the purposes charged by the bill. Held the plea must be overruled, being coupled with an answer admitting the facts. Cottingham v. Fletcher, 2 Atk. 155. PL. PLEA OF STAT. OF FRAUDS.

Id. H. was inclined to think, if the defendant had demurred to this part of the bill, such a fraudulent conveyance would, at the hearing, have been made absolute against the grantor. Id.

A defendant is not bound by an improvident offer in his answer. Watkins v. Hatchet, 1 Eq. Ab. 36.

Defendant held to the offer in his answer, though the circumstances of the case were varied from what they were at the time of answer put in. Holford v. Burnell, 1 Vern. 448. SPEC. PERF.

A sends goods to his London factor to sell; factor pawns goods; pawnee by answer admits factor pawned some goods, but knows not whether they were the plaintiff's; ordered that A in the presence of two or more, may have a view of them. Marsden v. Panshall, 1 Vern. 407. PR. INSPECTION.

The plaintiff may have a decree either according to his equity, or the defendant's offer in the answer, though he replies to it. Anon. Mos. 41.

3. What and when Defendant is to answer and discover, and generally of sufficiency of Answers.

Bill against assignees of a bankrupt for an account, and an injunction to restrain proceedings at law. One of the assignees put in a separate answer, stating that his name had been used in the action at law without his knowledge or authority; that he had not acted as assignee, except in some trifling particulars not connected with the matter in the bill mentioned; and that he was wholly ignorant of the matter set forth in the bill; exceptions to the answer, because the defendant had not answered each interrogatory; overruled with costs. Jones v. Wiggins, 2 Y. & J. 385. PR. EXCEPTIONS TO ANSWER.

The court refused to order an answer to be taken off the file on the alleged ground that it was illusory; the defendant merely stating that he had no knowledge of any of the matters in the bill mentioned, and left the plaintiff to except. Olding v. Glass, 1 Y. & J. 340. PR. TAKING PLEADINGS OFF THE FILE.

The rule that party is not bound to discover his own case is confined to matters of title, not to matters of account. Corbett v. Hawkins, 1 Y. & J. 426. ACCOUNT.

Where relief is prayed, and discovery as ancillary only to that relief, if the ground for the relief fails, the discovery cannot be obtained. King v. Rowett, 2 Y. & J. 33. PL. RELIEF.

A defendant cannot by disclaimer deprive the plaintiff of the right of requiring a full answer from him, unless it is evident that the defendant ought not, after such disclaimer, to be retained as a party to the suit. Glassington v. Thwaites, 2 Russ. 458. DISCOVERY; DISCLOSURE.

A conveys lands to trustees on trust to sell, if the unsatisfied debt of a partnership in which he had been concerned should at a given time exceed 40,000*l.*; the trustees sells and convey to the purchaser by a deed which recites that the debts of the partnership exceeded the specified amount, and that A had died intestate as to his real estate, and the heir at law of A joins in that deed, and enters into a covenant for the title of the trustees, a covenant against all acts done by him or his father, and a covenant for further assurance. It afterwards appears to be uncertain whether A had not devised his real estate, and the purchaser files a bill to have protection against a remedy of the alleged defect in his title which this discovery created: Held, that the purchaser is not entitled to have an account taken of the debts of the partnership in order to establish the fact of their having, at the specified time, exceeded the specified amount. Hallett v. Middleton, 1 Russ. 243. VENDOR & PURCH.; ACCOUNT; PARTNERSHIP.

Bill by an impropriate rector against occupiers for an account of tithes, and against a portionist requiring a discovery from the latter of the deeds under which he claimed to be entitled to the portion of tithes to which the bill admitted him to be entitled, alleging that the deeds would shew, not only the title of the portionist to the tithes claimed by him, but also the title of the plaintiff to the tithes demanded by him of the occupiers. Demurrer by the portionist to the discovery allowed. Compton v. El. Grey, 1 Y. & J. 154.

Bill for establishing lien on deeds drawn for sale of premises, the contract for which had been rescinded, and alleged to have been prepared by plaintiff, charged defendant with denying plaintiff's alleged lien for himself in respect of the same demand and possession of deeds, and other facts tending to show connection with the subject of the suit; and, further, that defendant had contracted with his co-defendant for purchase of the same premises. The defendant answered to last charge only, that he had agreed to purchase as agent, &c., and disclaimed all other interest: answer held insufficient. Ozenham v. Esdaile, 1 McClell. & Y. 540.

An answer to circumstances as to which the defendant was not alleged to be privy, that they might be true, for any thing he knew to the contrary, with an averment that he was a stranger to, and could not form any belief respecting them is sufficient. Aphurast v. King, 2 S. & S. 183.

Bill alleged that bill of exchange, held by defendant, was an accommodation bill, and required particulars of consideration, pretended to have been given for it, to be set forth. Answer denied the accommodation, and stated that bill was given in way of business to defendant as bankers, and that consideration did not consist of any specific sum, but of cash from time to time drawn out by plaintiff: Held a sufficient answer, and not necessary to set forth the general banking account. Webster v. Threfull, 2 S. & S. 190.

In answering an injunction bill, if the particular answer to a particular interrogatory contain an allegation of matter not inquired of by the interrogatory, so that it does not answer the questions directly, but with what amounts to a qualification, and thereby destroys the positive effect of the answer, either as a direct or explicit denial, or admission of the fact interrogated to; it will nevertheless be sufficient if the introduction of the qualifying matter be authorized by any thing in the bill in which the interrogatory is founded. Bally v. Kendrick, 13 Price 291.

Exceptions allowed on ground of answer being too general, and not sufficiently meeting the interrogatory in terms and to its full extent. Daniel v. Bishop, 13 Price, 15.

An interrogatory requiring whether there were not a bond fide consideration, and if not, what was the consideration? Held to have been sufficiently answered by a denial, that there had been a bond fide consideration, the law recognizing no other consideration. S.C. Id. ib.

Whether by an interrogatory founded on a charge in the bill, that the defendant, during a partnership with plaintiff as solicitor, had discounted bills whereby he had made a profit; the plaintiff required him to set forth the names of the persons, with whom, &c., and the amount of such profits. Although defendant in his answer noticed the charge, and admitted the transactions to which it referred, yet he refused to answer as to particulars inquired, because plaintiff was not interested in such transaction. The court, on arguing exception taken thereto, overruled it, and held defendant was not bound to answer the interrogatory. John v. Dacie, 13 Price, 632.

Answer must not be general, but must answer all particular charges. Wharton v. Wharton, 1 S. & S. 235.

An answer to amendments consisting only of a denial of a statement in bill which defendant had already answered in effect in his former answer, ordered, on motion, to be taken off the file. Neuham v. May, 10 Price, 117.

Prima facie discovery is incidental to relief. Angell v. Angell, 1 S. & S. 83. RELIEF.

Plea to all relief and part of discovery, and answer to rest; plea overruled. James v. Sadgrove, 1 S. & S. 4. PLEA; RELIEF; ANSWER.

But, otherwise, if answer had been to matters in bill which would have repelled defence by plea. Id. ib.

Where defendant denies charges in bill of fraud, and misconduct in partnership, and explains orders away, and alleges his inability to put in a full answer, by reason that plaintiff withheld improperly the partnership's books, the court refused (but without prejudice to future application) the injunction prayed by the bill. Littlewood v. Caldwell, 11 Price, 97. INJUNCTION; FRAUD, DENIAL OF.

When it is disputed whether a defendant is, from infirmity of mind incompetent to answer, it will be referred to the master to inquire as to the fact. Lee v. Ryder, 6 Mad. 294.

Plea which negatives plaintiff's title, though it protects defendant generally from answer as to the subject of the suit, does not protect him from answer and discovery, as to such matters as are specially charged as evidence of plaintiff's title. Sanders v. King, 6 Mad. 65. PL. PLEA; TITLE; PL. DISCOVERY.

Plea of a settled account, and a release, to a bill by cestuique trust against trustee, will not extend to the discovery of vouchers. Clarke v. El. Ormonde, 1 Jac. 117. PL. PLEA; ACCOUNT SETTLED, TRUSTEES.

Where witness is made party merely for purpose of discovery it is demurrable. Hov v. Best, 5 Mad. 18. PL. WITNESS; PL. PARTY; PL. DEMURRER.

Where bill is for discovery in aid of defence at law, and for equitable relief, plea of title in defendant in equity to whole bill is bad. Gurt v. Osbaldeston, 5 Mad. 428. but reversed on appeal, S.C. 1 Russ. 158. PL. PLEA; PL. RELIEF.

On cross-bill plaintiff cannot compel discovery of defendant's title to tithes, though defendant must answer whether they have or not been conveyed away to another person. Glegg v. Legh, 4 Mad. 193. TITHES.

Defendant must discover as to his own admissions though contained in case stated by him for the opinion of counsel. Id. 206.

Defendant, in answer to bill for account of tithes in kind, must set forth an account of titheable matters taken by him, although he relies on a defence of a composition or modus, or it will be good ground of exception. Whistler v. Wigney, 8 Price 1. ACCOUNT; TITHES; MODUS.

Professional adviser not bound to discover knowledge communicated by client; but such as he knows aliunde, he must. Morgan v. Shaw, 4 Mod. 57. PROFESSIONAL KNOWLEDGE; SOLICITOR & CLIENT.

Sufficiency of answer to interrogatories in bill determined upon exceptions. Lipscomb v. Bateman, 6 Price, 407.

General demurrer to bill by a widow and infant, customary heir of copyholder, for discovery of title of defendant in possession, allowed for defect of sufficient case for the interference of the court. Baker v. Booker, 6 Price, 379. TITLE.

Where original bill is amended, stating new case, but containing some of the interrogatories as were in original bill, such interrogatories must be answered again. Mazarredo v. Mailland, 3 Mad. 66. PR. AMENDED BILL.

In a bill for discovery and relief, a plaintiff not entitled to relief is not entitled to discovery. The converse of the rule will not hold. Att. Gen. v. Brown, 1 Swan, 294. PL. RELIEF.

Where discovery of particular fact sought by bill, would not, from general denial in answer of circumstances on which that fact would depend, avail plaintiff if set forth, defendant need not answer it. Ashham v. Thompson, 4 Price, 330.

To bill (also praying discovery,) stating that partnership subsisted between plaintiff in equity and deceased principal of a banking firm, in another concern, in which plaintiff was chief manager, and that cheques were drawn under special circumstances, founded on mutual understanding, &c., answer denying privity of defendants, or that they were in any way concerned with plaintiff as partners, or otherwise, sufficient to prevent injunction to stay defendant's proceeding at law to recover amount of cheques paid by them on account of plaintiff in equity. Id. ib. INJUNCTION.

The true test as to whether questions are to be answered or not, are whether the answers might criminate the defendants, and whether they are relevant and material to plaintiff's case. Mant v. Scott, 3 Price, 477.

Defendant bound to discover (in aid of action,) where he has charged the plaintiff with larger sums, as paid on his account than have been so paid, notwithstanding length of time in settled accounts, and a strong circumstantial, though indirect answer against the fact. Id. ib.

The amount of money-payments laid as moduses, in answer to vicar's claim being totally inconsistent with value of vicarage, as estimated by ancient documents usually put in evidence, is not sufficient (where the payments have been uniform and uninterrupted,) to induce the court to dispense with an issue. It seems no objection to lay a modus, that it excepts articles of modern introduction speciatim. See v. Hockley, 4 Price, 87. TITHES.

Injunction obtained to restrain proceedings at law on a promissory note, on ground of its having been given to plaintiff at law on promise not to sue on it, and an engagement it should never be demanded, &c., dissolved on answer denying fact, "to the best of his recollection and belief." Hoyle v. Hawkins, 4 Price, 327.

If it is not stated in answer to bill for tithes, which sets up modus, in respect of what article the modus is laid, it is bad, and no evidence can supply it. But it is sufficient, if from whole answer it can be collected to what article it refers. Bourke v. Isaac, 2 Price, 299. MODUS.

On bill for specific performance of agreement to purchase, against husband and wife, in which there was a statement that wife had separate estate, &c., and interrogatory as to the fact in support of statement; demurrer by her allowed as to such discovery. Francis v. Higzell, 1 Mad. 258. HUSB. & WIFE; SEP. ESTATE; SPEC. PERF.; DEMURRER.

Demurrer of a married woman to a bill of discovery against her and her husband, in aid of an action for debt on her account, allowed. Barrow v. Grillard, 3 V. & B. 165. FEME COVERT; DEMURRER; HUSB. & WIFE.

To bill to stay proceedings in an action brought by defendant, as landlord, on account of dilapidations of buildings by plaintiff as tenant, and for a discovery whether defendant has not since commencement of action assigned his interest in buildings, defendant cannot protect himself from discovery by plea, that when dilapidations were committed defendant was entitled, and that they had ever since continued out of repair. Dk. of Bedford v. M'Namara, 1 Price, 208. PL. PLEA.

It is not necessary to answer to circumstances tending to the point on which defendant relies, and upon which he tenders an issue by his plea. Drew v. Drew, 2 V. & B. 159.

Averment as to belief of transactions of other persons, sufficient. Id. ib.

Plaintiff not entitled to relief, cannot have discovery. Hodde v. Heuty, 1 V. & B. 539. PL. RELIEF.

A plea of purchaser without notice, is a bar to the discovery, as well as the relief, but not insisted on by the defendant, he must answer and confess the notice, or the plaintiff may except to the answer; but if he does not except, the affirmative of proving notice, will be on him, semble. Eyre v. Dolphin, 2 Ball & B. 303. PL. PLEA; PL. EVID., ONES PROBAND.

Counsel or attorney cannot be called upon to reveal the advice given to the client; demurrer therefore overruled, as to the case, and allowed as to the opinion. Richards v. Jackson, 18 Ves. 474. PL. DEMURRER; PROFESSIONAL CONFIDENCE.

Demurrer to so much of a bill as called for a discovery of cases laid before counsel, and the opinions overruled, as covering facts material to the plaintiff's case. Id. 18 Ves. 472. PL. DEMURRER.

In a valued policy, unless there is a particular charge in the bill, that the value of the cargo is below the amount insured; it is sufficient if the defendant swears to the value, as stated in the invoice. Aubert v. Jacobs, Wightw. 118.

Miller carrying on trade of mealman, is obliged to discover, on suit for tithes, the quantity though not the price of meal ground. Chapman v. Pitcher, Wightw. 15. TITHES.

To a bill for an account, a settled account was suggested by the answer, but not proved. Liberty given to surcharge and falsify if the master should find any settled account. Bill impeaching an account, to have liberty to surcharge and falsify, must lay a ground by alleging some specific errors. Kinsman v. Barker, 14 Ves. 579. ACCOUNT, LEAVE TO SURCHARGE AND FALSIFY.

The mayor or other individual member of a corporation, trustee of a rent-charge out of the estate of such member, for a charitable use, must answer not only with the rest under their common seal, but also individually, a charge of having destroyed or cancelled the deed. Dummer v. Corp. of Chippenham, 14 Ves. 264. CORPORATION.

Demurrer good to relief is good to discovery, sought with a view to the relief. Baker v. Mellish, 10 Ves. 544. DEMURRER; RELIEF.

Discovery compelled, whether devise was obtained or prevented by undertaking of devisee or heir to do certain acts in favour of individuals, and relief upon the ground of fraud. Stickland v. Aldridge, 9 Ves. 619. FRAUD, WILL OBTAINED BY.

An insufficient answer is no answer. Gregor v. Ld. Arundel, 8 Ves. 88.

In a suit for an account, going no further than to enable the plaintiff to go into the master's office is not sufficient. He is entitled to the fullest information the defendants can give by the answer, not by long schedules in an oppressive manner, but giving the best account they can, stating that it is so, referring to books, &c. so as to make them part of the answer, and giving the fullest opportunity of inspection, White v. Williams, 8 Ves. 193. ACCOUNT.

Plea allowed as to the relief, therefore good to discovery also, according to general rule. Sutton v. El. Scarborough, 9 Ves. 71. PL. PLEA; PL. RELIEF.

General denial not enough, there must be an answer to the sifting enquiries upon general question. Mountfort v. Taylor, 6 Ves. 792.

Bill by heir at law against residuary devisees, legatees, and executors, suggesting a secret trust undertaken at the request of testator, either not legally declared, or if so, void as to real estate, and written acknowledgments of intended trust for charity purposes by defendants; the will also by equal legacies to them, and some particular expressions importing trust. A general demurrer to discovery and relief overruled. Muckleston v. Brown, 6 Ves. 52. PL. DEMURRER.

Demurrer by a married woman to a bill praying discovery only against her, and relief against her husband as to contracts, &c. by her as agent for her husband; alleging the vouchers, &c. to be in her possession; allowed upon the objection, first, to making a mere agent a party; secondly, to admitting the testimony of a wife in her husband's cause. Le Texier v. Marg. of Anspach, 15 Ves. 159. S. C. 5 Ves. 322. PL. PARTY; AGENT; HUSB. & WIFE.

Administrator disputing by his answer the foundation of the bill, viz. a balance of accounts against the intestate's estate, need not set forth an account of the personal estate, &c. by way of schedule. Philips v. Caney, 4 Ves. 107. ACCOUNT; ADMOR.

The answer need not set forth an account where the ground upon which it is prayed is denied, as where the bill charged a dealing in pictures by commission, and the answer denied that, and stated that the defendant sold them to the plaintiff in the course of his trade. Marg. of Donegal v. Stewart, 3 Ves. 446. ACCOUNT.

Pawnee of a bailee must discover, so as to enable the owner to bring an action. Strude v. Blackburne, 3 Ves. 226.

Bill against the devisee of mortgaged premises by the heir of mortgagor, for discovery and redemption, charging acknowledgments that the estate was held in mortgage, and that accounts had been kept. Plea of possession for fifty years, under conveyances from the mortgagee; ordered to stand for an answer, Lake v. Thomas, 3 Ves. 17. PL. PLEA; LENGTH OF TIME; MORTGAGE, REDEMPTION OF.

After twenty years' possession, and a descent cast, the heir at law of a former owner filed a bill for discovery of title of occupant, suggesting a pretended devise from his ancestor. Demurrer allowed. Mutloe v. Smith, 3 Anst. 709. DEMURRER; TITLE; LENGTH OF TIME.

Bill against bankrupt and assignees charging a fraudulent bankruptcy to defeat the plaintiff's execution, and stating, that under an agreement with the assignees for an arbitration, the plaintiff deposited the goods for sale, the produce to be in trust, according to the award; that he had lost his copy, and the assignees had obtained the original from the person with whom it was deposited for the benefit of all parties, and refused inspection; prayed a discovery and injunction; a demurrer by bankrupt disallowed. King v. Martin, 2 Ves. J. 641. BANKRUPT; AGREEMENT; PL. PARTY.

Bill prayed that the defendant might state the particulars of his pedigree as heir, and of the births, baptisms, marriages, deaths or burials; demurrer allowed. Ivy v. Kehewick, 2 Ves. J. 679. PL. FISHING BILL; TITLE.

The bill having charged that the defendant had written letters to the attorney who was to prepare the conveyance, in which the agreement was admitted; he must answer to that fact. Cooke v. Tombs, 2 Anst. 421.

It is sufficient in an answer if it gives the plaintiff notice of the general nature of the case to be made against him. Baker v. Athily, 2 Anst. 493.

A court of equity will not compel tenant to make a discovery which may invalidate his title in a court of law. Lewther v. Troy, 1 Ridg. L. & S. 192. TITLE.

Where a bill prays relief and discovery, the plaintiff being entitled to discovery, only a general demurrer allowed. Collis v. Swayne, 4 Bro. C. C. 480. PL. RELIEF; PL. DEMURRER.

Where a discovery is sought of a correspondence, if the defendants set forth extracts of letters, and swear that those are the only parts of the correspondence upon that subject, this is sufficient. Campbell v. French, 1 Anst. 58.

On a bill for discovery, the answer of the party interested cannot be dispensed with, though an infant, and although the person from whom his father purchased the right has answered and denied any knowledge of the circumstances. Hardcastle v. Shufsto, 1 Anst. 77. DISCOVERY.

Defendant need not set forth an account of the transactions of a trade in which the plaintiff pretends to have been a partner, if there is a clear denial of the partnership. Jacobs v. Goodman, 2 Cox, 282. DISCOVERY; PARTNERSHIP.

Where the account is incidental to the plaintiff's title, the defendant must set it forth. Hall v. Noyes, 3 Bro. C. C. 483. ACCOUNT; PL. DISCOVERY.

Where a bill seeks discovery of matter that the defendant is not obliged to answer, he must take the benefit by demurrer. Selby v. Selby, 4 Bro. C. C. 11. PL. DEMURRER.

Particular charges must be answered particularly; a general denial is not sufficient. Prout v. Underwood, 2 Cox, 135.

Where defendant has answered all the circumstances respecting his own interest, he shall not be compelled to answer the further circumstances in the bill. Newman v. Godfrey, 2 Bro. C. C. 332.

The bill stated that a testator intended to republish his will, but was prevented from so doing by the fraud of the heir at law. A demurrer to so much of the bill as required him to discover whether the testator did not intend to republish his will, was, under these circumstances, overruled. Dixon v. Olmuis, 1 Cox, 414. DEMURRER.

Assignee of a mortgage from persons not having notice of mortgagor's being only tenant for life, not bound to discover whether he himself had notice. Sweet v. Southcoats, 2 Bro. C. C. 66. S. C. 2 Dick. 670. NOTICE.

Demurrer to a bill against the East India company and their secretary, praying a commission to examine witnesses in India, and that the defendants might discover by what authority plaintiff was dispossessed of a lease for supplying Madras with tobacco (the plaintiffs intending to bring an action), overruled. Mooladay v. Morton, 1 Bro. C. C. 469. S. C. 2 Dick. 652. PL. DEMURRER.

Where sums are specifically charged in the bill to have been received by the defendant, he must answer specifically to them, and it is not enough to refer to a schedule of all sums received. Hepburn v. Durand, 1 Bro. C. C. 503.

Bill to be relieved against fraud, defendant must answer discovery. Manningham v. Dollingbroke, Dick. 533.

Where the plaintiff's title is not apparent, but remains in doubt, an executor is not bound to set out assets in his answer, except in case of a creditor or legatee. Sweet v. Young, Amb. 354. EXECUTOR.

Though an offer be made to confirm a widow's jointure, she is not obliged to discover the title deeds by her answer until the offer is effectuated; she must, however, state the date of her jointure deed, whether it was executed at that time, and the premises therein comprised. Larch v. Tyntlop, 2 Ves. 662. JOINTURE.

If special notice of title is charged by will, such notice must be denied as specially; a general denial is not sufficient. Radford v. Wilson, 3 Atk. 815. NOTICE.

Heir in tail refused discovery of settlement, unless he wants it as auxiliary to relief or remedy at law. Lempter v. Pomfret, Dick. 238. S. C. Amb. 154. PAR. & CUR. D.

But if he wants to mortgage, he may have discovery. Id. ib.

Also for purposes respecting marriage. Id. ib.

Demurrer to discovery, for that plaintiff has not made such a case as entitles him to such discovery, on arguing the demurrer, the court being of opinion the plaintiff was not entitled to relief, allowed the demurrer, though it was to the discovery only. Jefferys v. Baldwin, Amb. 164. PL. DEMURRER.

Every heir has a right to enquire by what means, and under what deed, he is disinherited; and, before he has established his title at law, he may come into equity to remove terms out of the way which would prevent his recovering there, and may also come for production and inspection of deeds and writings. Harrison v. Southcote, 1 Atk. 540. HEIR; SETTING ASIDE OUTSTANDING TERMS.

Demurrer to discovery of defendant's title under a settlement, in contradiction to which plaintiff claimed, overruled, being unsupported either by answer or plea to a specific charge in the bill. Stroud v. Deacon, 1 Ves. 37. PL. DEMURRER.

Demurrer allowed to discovery sought concerning the proceedings before the delegates. Baker v. Pritchard, 2 Atk. 387. DELEGATES.

Where there is a dispute as to boundaries or unity of possession, a defendant must set forth how he is entitled. Chumperum v. Borough of Totness, 1 Atk. 112.

Testator devised a term for years, and all his personal estate to A an infant; and if A died during his infancy, and his mother should die without any other child, then to B. A died during his infancy, though the mother was living and might have a child, yet the court aided B, the devisee over, by directing an account and discovery of the estate, in order to secure it in case the contingency should happen. Stidholme v. Hodgson, 3 P. W. 300. INTEREST, CONTINGENT.

On a bill to set aside a usurious contract, defendant may demur to a discovery of what interest he agreed to take, for he cannot set forth that without discovering the very interest he has taken. Chancey v. Tahourden, 2 Atk. 393. PL. DEMURRER; USURY.

Defendant, if sought, must set forth case, with counsel's opinion taken by him for his own private use. Rudcliffe v. Fursman, 2 Bro. P. C. 514. Sed quare, as to opinion. COUNSEL'S OPINION.

Plea of purchaser for valuable consideration without notice of plaintiff's title is good as a plea in bar, and protects defendant from answering to title set up by plaintiff. Fitzgerald v. Funconberge, Fitz. 207. 2 Mad. Ch. 321. PL. PLEA OF PURCHASE.

Claimant under a marriage settlement, without notice of prior incumbrances, shall not be compelled to a discovery. Williams v. Lane, 8 Bro. P. C. 291. TITLE.

A is indebted to B; B outlaws A; and C having goods of A's in his hands, B brings a bill against C, to discover what goods of A, C has in his hands; C may demur, for that B makes no title to the goods, as having no grant from the crown; also, for that the attorney general ought to be made a party. — v. Bromley, 2 P. W. 269. OUTLAWRY; PL. DEMURRER.

To a bill for tithes, defendant must set out quantities and values of the tithes particularly; it is not sufficient to deny generally the taking the titheable matter. Baker v. Planner, Bunb. 108. TITHES.

Goods insured by agreement valued at 600*l.*, and the insured not to be obliged to prove any interest, yet the insured is ordered to discover what goods he put on board, that the value of his goods saved may be deducted out of the 600*l.* Le Pyre v. Farr, 2 Vern. 716.

A jointress not bound to answer whether her husband had no other title than as assignee of a mortgage, she denying she had any notice of this mortgage, and that her husband told her he was in by descent. Stephens v. Gault, 2 Vern. 701.

Persons claiming lands by a will, or other voluntary disposition, and having the law on their side, are entitled as against the heir at law, to the assistance of a court of equity for a discovery of the deeds and writings relating to the devised estate, and to have them delivered up as following the lands. De. Newcastle v. Id. Pelham, 3 Bro. P. C. 460. DELIVERY UP OF DEEDS.

Bill not suggesting wilful usury, but that defendant had miscomputed interest received by him, and praying discovery as to the fact; plea thereto overruled. Anon. 2 Eq. Ab. 70. S. P. Bosanquet v. Dashwood, id. 534. S. C. Forres. 38. USURY; PL. DISCOVERY TENDING TO CRIMINATE.

Court will compel discovery of goods in hands of third persons, in order to subject them to a judgment. Taylor v. Hill, 1 Eq. Ab. 132.

Bill for a discovery, whether in a mortgage made by A to B, which had been assigned to the defendant, there was not some trust declared for the benefit of the plaintiff; defendant by answer denied that there was any trust declared for the plaintiff; the answer being replied to, the question at the hearing was, whether the defendant should be obliged to produce the deed? the court would not compel him to do it. Hall v. Atkinson, 2 Vern. 463. PR. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS; TRUST.

Bill to discover who was owner of a wharf and lighter to enable the plaintiff to bring action of damages his goods had sustained by the negligence of the lighterman, defendant demurred; demurrer overruled. Southcote v. Fleete, 2 Vern. 442. S. P. Morse v. Buckworth, id. 443.

Bill to be relieved against an award made by some of the members of the E. I. Company, in which those members and the arbitrators are made defendants, they may demur to the whole bill, without answering to the fraud; for the plaintiff can have no decree against them, nor can their answer be read against the company, but they ought to be examined as witnesses. Steward v. E. I. Comp. 2 Vern. 380. S. C. 9 Mod. 387. PL. DEMURRER.

If a plea or demurrer be overruled, the defendant must answer the whole bill, and the ordinary process of contempt issues to compel an answer as in other cases; but if an answer was filed with the plea or demurrer, the defendant, upon his plea or demurrer being overruled, need not put in another answer, till the plaintiff has taken exceptions. Cotes v. Turner,

Bunb. 123. PR. PLEA, OVERRULING; PR. EXCEPTIONS TO ANSWER; PR. DEMURRER, OVERRULING.

One claiming under a voluntary conveyance from tenant in tail, not compellable by the issue in tail, to discover the deed of entail. Bunce v. Phillips, 2 Vern. 50. TITLE.

The defendant in his answer says, that to his remembrance he had received no other sum than what is mentioned in his answer: held, a good answer. Hull v. Bodily, 1 Vern. 470.

If a defendant demurs because the bill contains several distinct matters against several defendants, he must by answer deny combination; if it is charged by the bill. Powell v. Ardene, 1 Vern. 416. PR. DEMURRER.

Plaintiff having recovered judgment at law for 1400*l.* against J, brings a bill, charging that J had conveyed his estate to trustees, and lent 1000*l.* to A, in B's name, and praying that this might be liable to plaintiff's debts; defendant demurs, for that in his lifetime he was not bound to discover his personal estate, and demurrer overruled. Smither v. Lewis, 1 Vern. 398, 399. S. P. Angell v. Draper, id. ib.

Bill by a dowress to remove a trust term, defendant pleads himself a purchaser, but does not deny notice: ordered to answer. Bodmin v. Fandenbendy, 1 Vern. 179. DOWER; NOTICE.

Equity will not compel a man to discover what goods he really bought of a bankrupt after the bankruptcy, and before the commission sued out, where the party has no notice of the bankruptcy. Abery v. Williams, 1 Vern. 27.

Plea of statute of frauds; bill charges that agreement was in writing; this must be answered. Leuke v. Morris, Dick. 14.

A bill may be exhibited in equity against an executor, to discover assets, and he may thereupon be decreed to pay debts and legacies; but plaintiff must charge that goods came to his hands. Alexander v. Alexander, 2 Ch. Rep. 37. Parker v. Dee, 2 Ch. Ca. 200. Davis v. Curtis, 1 Ch. Ca. 266. But quere if before suit at law against him? Et vide Hard. 115.

The defendant must answer the bill, though excommunicated. Tichborne v. Edwards, Toth. 11. EXCOMMUNICATION.

An infant, though a feme covert, may be compelled to answer. Moore v. Greenrile, id. 95. INFANT; FEME COVERT.

Defendant bound to answer as to receipt of rent in chancery. Dix v. Lintoft, Cary. 71.

Defendant not to answer till counsel's hand put to bill. Farly v. Childre, id. 112.

Defendants not bound to answer, to charge themselves criminally. Montague v. —, id. 9.

Defendant not bound to answer charge of secret severance of joint tenancy. Cromer v. Peniston, id. 9. Dumb man shall not answer to subpoena. Altham v. Smith, id. 93.

4. Where Discovery tends to create a Forfeiture, or to criminate.

The court will not compel a defendant to answer allegations which may subject him to penalties. This protection extends not only to the question which directly may tend to criminate him, but to every link in the chain of proof. Where the chairman of a joint stock company, with a knowledge that the company had been dissolved, and that the managing committee had determined to buy up the shares; sent his shares into the market, and sold them as good and available shares, the court protected him from answering the allegations, upon the ground that there existed a reasonable probability that he might be indicted for the fraud. Macallum v. Turton, 2 Y. & J. 183.

A broker in the city of London must answer a bill of discovery in aid of an action brought against him by his employer, for misconduct, although the discovery will subject him to the penalty of a bond given by him to the corporation on his admission. Green v. Weaver, 1 Sim. 404. BROKEN.

Where, in aid of defence to action for a libel, discovery prayed would subject plaintiff at law to indictment, he is not bound to answer; but because bill sought commission to examine abroad, to which plaintiff in equity was entitled, demurrer to whole bill was overruled with liberty to amend. Thorpe v. Macaulay, 5 Mad. 219. PR. DEMURRER.

A bankrupt cannot refuse to discover the particulars relating to his estate and effects, although such information may tend to shew that he has committed a criminal act; but if the question put to him be, whether or not he has done an act clearly of a criminal nature, he may refuse to answer it; so where a petition prayed that the creditors might be at liberty to examine the bankrupt whether he, or any persons in trust for him, or for his benefit, have received, or are to receive any sum of money, or other valuable consideration for his having resigned, or as an inducement to resign the office of town clerk of the city of B, it was dismissed. Exp. Cossens, Buck, 531. BANKRY. BANKRUPT'S EXAMINATION.

B, a purchaser under a decree, of the first presentation to a living, of which A is seised for life of the ad-vowson, afterwards takes a conveyance from A of the second presentation to the same living, and sells the first presentation to the present incumbent. To a bill by A, to set aside this transaction on the ground of fraud, praying a discovery, B puts in an answer, refusing to make the discovery required, as tending to subject him to forfeiture, on account of simony. B having afterwards died, the suit is revived against his executor, who is held entitled to the same protection that was claimed by B. Parkhurst v. Lortzen, 1 Mer. 391.

Protection generally, in every stage of the proceeding, against answering any question having a direct tendency to criminate the party, or subject him to penalty, &c. or forming one step towards it. Laxton v. Douglas, 19 Ves. 225. S. C. 16 Ves. 239.

Party demurring to the discovery, or witness refusing to answer facts tending to criminate himself, no admission to the truth of the fact. Lloyd v. Pasingham, 16 Ves. 59. PR. DEMURRER; ADMISSION.

Plea that the discovery will subject the defendant to penalties, does not require the support of an answer, as a plea of purchase for valuable consideration without notice does, as to facts, from which notice is inferred. Claridge v. Hoare, 14 Ves. 59. PR. ANSWER IN SUPPORT OF PLEA; PR. PLEA.

Transfer of stock under an agreement to satisfy the deficiency in the accounts of a banker's clerk, though he is not a party, amounts to a composition of felony, to prevent a prosecution. Defendant, therefore, may protect himself by plea from discovering not only the broad leading fact, but any fact, the answer to which may form a step in the prosecution. Id. ib. COMPOUNDING OF FELONY.

To a bill stating defendant's marriage with a particular woman; plea, that she is his sister, protects him from discovery of any fact forming a link in the chain. Id. 65. INCEST; PR. PLEA.

Bill against a corporation, trustees for a charity, for a discovery, and injunction against a resolution depriving the plaintiff of his office of schoolmaster, charged to have been procured by five of the members, including the bailiff, from improper motives, with reference to a parliament election. Demurrer by those five, on the ground that, as title was shewn to discovery against them, and ore tenus, that the charge would be the subject of a criminal prosecution, overruled. Dummer v. Corp. of Chippenham, 14 Ves. 245. PL. DEMURRER; CORPORATION.

Plea of the stat. 32 H. 8. c. 9. s. 3. against buying and selling pretended titles; and also that there was not any mortgage as mentioned in the bill, to a bill that the defendant might redeem a mortgage upon a covenant in a lease from the defendant to the plaintiff: held good, though a negative plea. Hitchins v. Launder, Coop. 34. PL. PLEA, NEGATIVE; CHAMPERTY.

Demurrer allowed to a bill for discovery and injunction against an action, the effect being a contract for participation in an illegal transaction, the result of combination of wholesale grocers, by the title of the "Fruit Club," acting by a select committee of which the defendants were members, to purchase all imported fruit, though not strictly forestalling, regrating or monopoly. Cousins v. Smith, 13 Ves. 542. PL. DEMURRER.

Discovery in support of an action to recover money under the stock-jobbing act, stat. 7 Geo. 11. c. 8. confined to those clauses, as to which it is expressly given, with protection from the penalties, and therefore not extended to the 5th and 8th sections. Bullock v. Richardson, 11 Ves. 393.

Refusal to answer, on the ground that it tends to criminate the witness, does not amount to an admission. Exp. Symes, 11 Ves. 523. ADMISSION OF FACT, WHAT AMOUNTS TO.

No person compelled to answer what has any tendency to criminate him. Id. 525.

A bureau delivered for the purpose of repairs to a person who discovered money in a secret drawer, which he converted to his own use; this amounts to a felony, and upon that ground a demurrer to a bill of discovery was allowed. Cartwright v. Green, 8 Ves. 405. DEMURRER.

A married woman may demur to a discovery that may subject her husband to a charge of felony. Id. 406. HUSB. & WIFE; DEMURRER.

Bill by the East India Company, claiming from a part owner of a ship, freighted by them, double the sum received by him for the sale of the command, to be paid or allowed under the charter party and a by-law, to the company, one moiety to their use, the other to be paid or returned to the person who shall give the company information, and make proof; the deed being, on settling the account, cancelled through ignorance of the fact, demurrer to the discovery, because it might subject the defendant to penalty, covering not only the direct charge, but also circumstances of mere inducement, as the execution and cancellation of the deed, and to the relief generally for want of equity, and for defect of parties, viz. the other part owners, particularly one who executed, and the informer, was overruled. E. I. Comp. v. Neave, 5 Ves. 173. E. I. COMP.; PL. DEMURRER.

Demurrer allowed to bill of discovery tending to show maintenance of suit on the part of the defendant. Kallis v. Dk. Portland, 8 Bro. P. C. 161. S. C. 3 Ves. 494. PL. DEMURRER; MAINTENANCE OF SUIT.

Demurrer allowed to bill after verdict at law on bond, praying discovery, if consideration was not an illicit connection, and if defendant was not guilty of general incontinence. Franco v. Holton, 3 Ves. 368. BONDEX TURPI CAUSA; PL. DEMURRER.

A covenanted servant of the East India Company being senior merchant, and acting as agent of the company, as resident or chief at one of their factories, is incapable of forming any contract whatsoever in which the company is interested, so as to derive profit to himself, or any otherwise however than for the advantage of the company; and if such contract be actually made between him as a merchant dealing for himself and the company's board of trade in India, in which undue advantage is taken by him, by means of his knowledge and influence as resident at the factory, he cannot demur generally for want of equity to bill by company for discovery and relief. Hinchman v. E. I. Comp. 8 Bro. P. C. 85. DEMURRER; PRINC. & AGENT.

Where the stat. of limitation had run against the recovery of the penalty for usury, the usurer cannot protect himself from discovery by demurrer founded on liability of subjecting himself to forfeiture. Talbot v. Smith, 1 Ridg. L. & S. 360. USURY; DEMURRER; STAT. OF LIMIT.

Plaintiffs having brought an action against the defendant to recover payments made for insuring lottery tickets, prayed a discovery and account, offering to allow payments made by the defendant; as the defendant could not have that advantage at law, a demurrer was overruled. Brandon v. Johnson, 2 Ves. J. 516. ACCOUNT; PL. DEMURRER.

A debtor of a bankrupt, sued at law by the assignees, filed a bill for discovery, whether they had not signed his certificate on consideration of his giving evidence in the action; a demurrer was allowed. Selby v. Crew, 2 Anst. 504. BANKRUPT, CERTIFICATE OF.

Demurrer to a discovery of trading overruled. A demurrer good if confined to questions, as to having committed an act of bankruptcy. Chambers v. Thompson, 4 Bro. C. C. 434. PL. DEMURRER; BANKCY. TRADING.

Bill for tithes, praying discovery whether defendants had not associated together in their defence; demurrer to the discovery was allowed. Oliver v. Haywood, 1 Anst. 82. MAINTENANCE OF SUIT.

The bill prayed a discovery whether the defendant had not contributed to the expences of a suit to try a general question against them. It appeared that by the course of that suit in evidence, no general right could be bound by it. A demurrer was allowed. Mayor of London v. Ainsley, 1 Anst. 158. Id.

Plea of the stock jobbing act to a bill for discovery of stock transactions overruled, as the second section of the act requires parties to make a discovery whereon to found an action. Bancroft v. Wentworth, 3 Bro. C. C. 11. PL. PLEA; STOCK JOBBING.

If bill be for discovery of matters penal at common law, or by statute, the defendant need not demur or plead, but it will be admitted on exceptions; but when the time for suing a penalty expires between the first and second answers, and exception is taken to the second answer for not discovering, the exceptions shall be allowed, and the party is bound to discover. Williams v. Farrington, 3 Bro. C. C. 38. S. C. 2 Cox, 202. STAT. OF LIMIT; FORFEITURE; PL. EXCEPTIONS.

Upon quare impedit brought against the plaintiff, he filed the present bill to discover whether the clerk presented to him by defendant had not given a general bond of resignation in order to set up that as a defence at law for having refused him institution. To this bill defendant demurred, first, on account of legality of such bond; second, that the discovery was immaterial. Demurrer overruled. Bp. London v. Fytche, 1 Bro. C. C. 96. PL. DEMURRER.

Action on a general bond of resignation; bill for discovery whether the advowson was not sold with promise to procure an immediate resignation. Demurrer to the discovery overruled. Grey v. Hesketh, Amb. 268. SIMONY.

By the known law of the land, no alien born can take by grant, devise or other purchase, any freehold or chattels real for his own benefit; but can and does, in such cases, take for the benefit of the crown;

yet this disability being neither a penalty or forfeiture, the alien cannot demur to an information filed for discovering the place of his birth in order to establish the fact of alienage. Duplessis v. Att. Gen. 1 Bro. P. C. 415. S. C. 2 Ves. 286. ALIEN; DEMURRER.

An information is filed by the Attorney-general against A and B for a discovery of the place of their birth, charging them to be aliens. Demurrer, 1st, to jurisdiction of equity; 2nd, that the defendants were not bound to betray their own title, and, therefore, the king was not entitled to the discovery prayed. Demurrer overruled. The known method of recovering estates, held by aliens for the benefit of the crown, is, by a commission under the great seal, to enquire into the facts; and on the inquest finding them, to seize the estate into the king's hands. And in order to prove these facts, the king has the same right to a discovery, by the assistance of a court of equity, as the subject has, and founded on the same principle of justice; viz. that it is, in general, against conscience for any one to enjoy the property of another by concealing his right. Id. 419.

Though parties may demur to discover anything which may prove illicit cohabitation, or what may subject them to pains, penalties or ecclesiastical censures, &c., a charge against persons of a conspiracy or attempt to set up a bastard child, is not demurrable unto, that not being per se an indictable offence. Chetwynd v. Lindon, 2 Ves. 450. PL. DEMURRER.

Though a defendant is not bound to answer what may subject him to ecclesiastical penalties, or whether he is not married to a woman he cohabits with, or whether he is an alien, &c., he must in a proper case answer whether he hath or not a legitimate son. Finch v. Finch, 2 Ves. 491.

Bill to discover whether A, under whose will defendant claimed, was a papist at the time of his purchase from plaintiff's ancestor. Defendant pleaded 11 & 12 W. 3. as to the discovery, by which, if A was a papist, he was disabled to take. Plea allowed. The rule that no man is obliged to accuse himself, implies also, that he is not bound to discover a disability in himself. Smith v. Read, 1 Atk. 526. PAPIST.

Plea to bill to discover whether A was not a papist upon conveying to defendant, allowed. Harrison v. Southcote, id. 528.

The rule of law is, that a man shall not be obliged to discover what may subject him to a penalty, not what must only. S. C. id. 539.

Demurrer to information as subjecting defendant to pains and penalties. E. I. Comp. v. Campbell, 1 Ves. 246. PL. DEMURRER.

Demurrer lies to a bill for discovery of an assignment of a lease without licence, if it does not expressly waive the forfeiture. Uxbridge v. Staveland, id. 566. PL. DEMURRER; COVENANT, BREACH OF.

S gave a bond to pay 800*l.* a year to H during S's enjoying the office of —, or whilst any body held it in trust for him. H puts the bond in suit; S brings a bill for injunction, and a cross bill is brought by H, to discover whether E held the office in trust for S. S insisted, in his answer, he was not obliged to discover what would subject him to incapacities of the several acts to vacate a seat in parliament on a member's accepting a place, he is not obliged to make the discovery, and he did right in answering, for he could not have demurred to this matter, because then he would have admitted the facts to be true. Honeywood v. Selwin, 3 Atk. 276. PL. ANSWER; PL. DISCOVERY.

Defendant cannot be obliged to discover facts tending to inflict on him corporal or pecuniary punishment. Selwyn v. Honeywood, 9 Mod. 419.

A, by will, gave an estate to his wife dur. viduit. with a limitation over in case of her second marriage; the remainder-man brought a bill of discovery of her second marriage, to which she demurred as subjecting her to a forfeiture. Demurrer overruled; for this is not a condition but a limitation over of an estate, and, therefore, no forfeiture. If it had been a condition for the breach of which a forfeiture would have been incurred, such a demurrer would have been allowed. Chancey v. Tuhourden, 2 Atk. 392, 393. PL. DEMURRER.

On bill by executor for discovery of defendant's marriage, who demurred, as it would be a forfeiture of his legacy, which was given conditionally if she married with consent of trustees under the will. Demurrer allowed, as he cannot answer the marriage without shewing at the same time it was against consent. S. C. id.

Where bill on policy of insurance charges exportation of prohibited goods absolutely, and no others, and in interrogatory inquires what goods were exported; plea of penalties attaching on such exportation allowed. Duncalf v. Blake, 1 Atk. 52.

Discovery tending to forfeiture not enforced. Sir B. Firebrass's case, 2 Salk. 560.

African company hires the defendant's ship to freight. Defendant covenants not to trade in any of the goods in which the company deal, and in such case covenants to pay double the value for all such goods, with liberty to the company to deduct the same out of the freight. The company bring a bill to discover whether the defendant did trade in any of the said goods. Though this be a penalty, yet it being the defendant's own agreement, the defendant is bound to discover. African Comp. v. Parish, 2 Vern. 244.

Bill to establish an agreement for a separate maintenance. To such part as prayed a discovery of hard usage, defendant demurred. Demurrer allowed. Illicks v. Nelthorpe, 1 Vern. 204.

A man is not bound to discover what may subject him to the penalty of an act of parliament. Bird v. Harkwicke, id. 109.

5. When Defendant by Answer may refuse to answer further.

Defendant cannot, by answer, protect himself from answering fully, on ground of his being a purchaser for a valuable consideration. Ovey v. Leighton, 2 S. & S. 234.

In the exchequer, a defendant may, by his answer, object to answer any part of the bill, stating, in his answer, the ground of objection: otherwise in chancery. John v. Ducie, 13 Price, 632.

If defendant answers, he must answer fully. — v. Harrison, 4 Mad. 252.

A solicitor may, by his answer to a bill against him and his clients, refuse to discover any deeds or facts confidentially communicated to him. Straford v. Hogan, 2 Ball & B. 164. SOLICITOR & CLIENT; PROFESSIONAL CONFIDENCE.

Defendant must put in a full answer in all cases, except to criminate himself, or when purchaser for valuable consideration without notice. Leonard v. Leonard, 1 Ball & B. 325.

A defendant refusing a full discovery, not by plea or demurrer, but by answer, compelled to make a full answer, and, on motion, to produce books, &c. Sommerville v. Mackay, 16 Ves. 382.

Whether defendant can, by answer, refuse the discovery, insisting that he is not bound to answer, quare? Shaw v. Cing, 11 Ves. 303.

Whether a defendant can, by answer, refuse the discovery, insisting that he is not bound to answer, quare? The answer held insufficient, as being argumentative, and not containing positive averment. Faulder v. Stuart, 11 Ves. 296.

Whether a defendant can, by answer, refuse the discovery, insisting that he is not bound to answer, quare? But having given part of the discovery, he was compelled to answer as to the rest. Dolder v. Ld. Huntingfield, 11 Ves. 283. PL. DISCOVERY.

Defendant stating, by an answer, a purchase for valuable consideration, shall not be compelled to answer further. Jerrard v. Saunders, 2 Ves. 454. VEND. & PURCH.; CONSON., VALUABLE.

An agent, charged with personal fraud, cannot, by disclaiming interest, avoid answering fully. Bulkeley v. Dunbar, 1 Anst. 37. FRAUD; AGENT; DISCLAIMER.

Though a defendant cannot, by answer, avoid answering fully to all particulars grounded on the plaintiff's title, he may yet avoid setting forth the particulars of account, if he even, by answer, distinctly negatives having any subject matter of account referable to the plaintiff's title, as stated in the bill. Shepherd v. Roberts, 3 Bro. C. C. 483. note (2). ACCOUNT.

Defendant to bill for discovery and account objecting, by answer, that he had no concern in the business, must answer fully, though such a plea would bar both discovery and relief: but if the fact is so, there cannot be a decree against him. Cartwright v. Hatley, 1 Ves. J. 292. S. C. 3 Bro. C. C. 238. S. P. Shepherd v. Roberts, id. 239, and Hale v. Noyes, id. 433. PL. ANSWER.

If an executor, knowing a plaintiff's title, by answer denies it, he is not bound to set out an account of assets; but if the title does not lie in his knowledge, he is. Sweet v. Young, Ambl. 553. See quare. See note there. DISCOVERY.

S gave a bond to pay 800*l.* a year to H during S's enjoying the office of —, or whilst any body held it in trust for him; H puts the bond in suit; S brings a bill for injunction, and a cross bill is brought by H to discover whether E held the office in trust for S. S insisted, in his answer, he was not obliged to discover what would subject him to incapacities of the several acts to vacate a seat in parliament on a member's accepting a place; he is not obliged to make the discovery; and he did right in answering, for he could not have demurred to this matter, because then he would have admitted the facts to be true. Honeywood v. Selcra, 3 Atk. 276. PL. DISCOVERY TENDING TO CRIMINATE; PL. DISCOVERY.

If a modus decimandi be alleged no otherwise than by answer to a bill for tithes, defendant must answer all other parts of the bill; but if he pleads it, he need not answer any other matter. Langham v. —. Hard. 130. TITHES MODUS.

Though a modus be pleaded, yet the quantities and values of the tithes must be set forth. Cumley v. Fontleroy, Bunb. 60. Id.

6. What Facts are put in Issue by Answer.

A brought bill against B for specific performance of covenants in lease, and particularly a covenant to leave a certain quantity of alum on premises at end of term. B, by answer, insisted that covenant was not intended to be performed, but at hearing produced a paper purporting to be a receipt for the alum from the lessor. Court held that no regard ought to be paid to this paper, not only because it had a suspicious appearance in itself, but because it was not insisted on in answer. Ward v. Dk. Buckingham, 3 Bro. P. C. 581. EVIDENCE.

Circumstances allowed to be proved by evidence by defendant, which he had not put in issue by his answer. Hodgson v. Thornton, 1 Eq. Ab. 228. PR. EVIDENCE.

Bill by executor to avoid bonds given by testator, on suggestion that they were gained by threats and undue means: defendant, by answer, says they were entered into for money lent and debts due. It appeared, by proof, defendant was a common harlot, and the plaintiff's father had unlawful conversation with her. Held, though this not set forth in the bill, yet the defendant's answer, saying the bonds were given for money lent, this sufficiently puts it in issue, though not laid in the bill. Where the party himself is culpable, and comes for relief against the said bonds, court may refuse; otherwise, where his executor comes. Matthew v. Hanbury, 2 Vern. 187. EXECUTOR; CONSIDERATION EX TURPI CONTRACTU.

7. Answer in conjunction with Demurrer.

A demurrer to part of a bill of discovery, and an answer to other part of the bill; the demurrer is over-ruled, if the answer extend to any of the facts covered by it. And there is no distinction in this respect between demurrers to bills for relief, and demurrers to bills for discovery only. Corbett v. Hawkins, 1 Y. & J. 421. PL. DEMURRER.

To bill to set aside award, charging fraud and corruption in arbitration, defendant answered as to fraud and corruption, and demurred to rest of bill. Held, that answer over-ruled demurrer. Dawson v. Sadler, 1 S. & S. 542. DEMURRER.

In an answer and demurrer, the defendant ought to specify distinctly what parts of the bill it is intended to cover by the demurrer. It is informal to say, "as to so much of the bill as defendant is advised he is bound to answer," and then, after answering some parts, to demur "as to all the rest of the matters charged in the bill," it ought to be precisely stated what part of the bill defendant refuses to answer. Devonsher v. Newenham, 2 Scho. & L. 199. PL. DEMURRER.

A mere denial of combination, by answer, does not satisfy the undertaking not to demur alone. Lansdown v. Elderton, 8 Ves. 526. ORDER FOR TIME TO ANSWER, &c.

The rule that, if the plaintiff is not entitled to the relief, though entitled to discovery, a general demurrer holds, does not preclude the defendant from demurring to the relief and answering to the discovery. Hodgkin v. Longden, 8 Ves. 2. PL. DEMURRER.

Bill by judgment creditors who had sued out elegits, for discovery of freehold estates, charging that defendant, upon his election as M.P., previously to judgments, gave in his qualification, and that if the estates composing it were conveyed away since, it was without consideration. Demurrer as to qualification, &c. and answer as to rest, but not going to charge of conveyance without consideration. Demurrer was over-ruled. Mouniford v. Taylor, 6 Ves. 788. Id.

Bill stating a sequestration, for want of an answer, prayed a discovery and account of all money or other property of the defendant, in the original cause, in the hands of defendants, who were bankers at the time of service of the sequestration or since. Upon demurrer as to the money, and answer as to the rest of the bill, the 1d. Ch. determined against the demurrer upon the form, considering it over-ruled by the answer, and would not, in that stage of the cause, decide the two points; 1st, Whether a sequestration on mesne process can be executed further than to pay the expenses: 2ndly, Whether a chose in action is liable to sequestration, Simmonds v. Kinnaird, 4 Ves. 735. PL. DEMURRER; PR. SEQUESTRATION.

A demurrer to the relief is over-ruled by an answer to the discovery of the facts on which the relief is prayed. Roberts v. Clayton, 3 Anst. 715. PL. DEMURRER, OVER-RULED BY ANSWER.

8. In conjunction with Pleas.

Plea by one defendant to bill by tenants in tail for redemption of estate, of fine levied of part of estate, averring that the part included in the fine was the only part in which the defendant claimed interest, and accompanied with answer, admitting possession of title deeds, &c.: Held, that plea was overruled by answer. Watkins v. Stone, 2 S. & S. 560. PL. PLEA OVERRULED BY ANSWER.

After the return of the writ of attachment with proclamations, defendant cannot put in plea and answer. Sanders v. Murney, 1 S. & S. 225. PR. ATTACHMENT WITH PROCLAMATIONS; PR. PLEA.

Plea to all relief, and part of discovery, and answer to rest. Plea overruled. James v. Sadgrove, 1 S. & S. 4. PL. PLEA; PL. RELIEF; PL. DISCOVERY.

But, otherwise, if answer had been to matter in bill which would have repelled the defence by plea. Id. ib.

Where motus is pleaded for a particular description of lands, it must be alleged in the answer, that the defendants occupy such lands. Stuart v. Greenall, 9 Price, 106. MOTUS.

Where plaintiff in equity seeks to avoid legal bar upon equitable grounds, there the defendant in equity, pleading the legal bar, must of necessity accompany his plea with averments, generally denying the equitable matter, and must accompany his plea with answer to all special circumstances charged as constituting the equitable ground. Cork v. Wilcock, 5 Mad. 330. PL. PLEA; PL. DISCOVERY.

Plea which negatives plaintiff's title, though it protects defendant generally from answer and discovery, as to the subject of the suit, does not protect him from answer and discovery, as to such matters as are specifically charged as evidence of plaintiff's title. Sanders v. King, 6 Mad. 65. PL. PLEA; PL. ANSWER; TITLE.

Plea founded on stat. 32 H. 8. c. 2. to bill of discovery overruled, though good in substance, because not specific answer given by it to certain statements in bill. Crow v. Tyrell, 2 Mad. 397. PLEA; STAT., C. OF.

Plea, that the discovery will subject the defendant to penalties, does not require the support of an answer as a plea of purchase for valuable consideration without notice does, as to facts from which notice is inferred. Claridge v. Hoare, 14 Ves. 59. PL. PLEA; PL. DISCOVERY TENDING TO CRIMINATE.

Bill for specific performance of a parol agreement for a lease within the statute of frauds, charging possession taken under the agreement, and other acts of part performances; plea of the statute, and answer not denying the acts alleged of part performance, but stating that, being advised that he entered as tenant at will, he gave notice to quit. Plea overruled. Dowers

v. Cator, 4 Ves. 91. PL. PLEA; STAT. OF FRAUDS, SPECIFIC PERF.

If the bill charges fraud, the defendant must support his plea by an answer denying the fraud. Bicknell v. Gough, 3 Atk. 558. Price v. Price, 1 Vern. 185.

If defendant pleads statute of frauds against specific performance, he must by answer deny agreement, for otherwise, he admits it, and takes it out of statute. Child v. Godolphin, Dick. 39.

9. Impertinence and Scandal, in what.

Prolixity in setting forth important documents is not impertinence; therefore, where the defendant sets forth verbatim in his answer, a state of facts, and all the affidavits to shew that the demand made in this suit had been disallowed by the master in a former suit; the court held that the answer was not impertinent. Love v. Williams, 2 S. & S. 574.

Defendant, in answer to allegation in bill, that some cotton which had been sent by him to plaintiff was of inferior quality, said that, from certain affidavits and certificates made by experienced persons, he believed cotton to be of superior quality, and set forth affidavits and certificates in schedule in hoc verba. Held, schedule not impertinent. Parker v. Fairlie, 1 S. & S. 295. S. C. 1 T. & R. 362. PL. ANSWER.

Defendant, to a bill of revivor, cannot put new matter on record, which might, if stated in the answer to the original bill, have produced a different decree; it would be impertinent. Nunney v. Tolly, 11 Price, 117. PL. ANSWER; PL. BILL OF REVIVOR.

If in answer to common interrogatories defendant annexes to answer a schedule of every particular article of the personal estate, and for what each sold, &c., it is impertinent. Beaumont v. Beaumont, 5 Mad. 51. ACCOUNT.

An instrument in possession of defendant, which is material both to plaintiff's and defendant's case, and is inquired of, in certain respects, by the plaintiff's bill filed to restrain process at law on it, must not be set out at length in defendant's answer further than is sufficient fairly to satisfy the plaintiff's interrogations, or it will be subject to reference for impertinence. King v. Teale, 7 Price, 278. And as to impertinence in answers, see Slack v. Evans, Id. ib. note.

It is impertinent in amended bill to set forth part of answer by way of pretence, and interrogate as to it. Seeley v. Boehm, 2 Mad. 176. PLEADING.

Bill by a testamentary guardian and husband, against the trustee of the property to be allowed maintenance for minors; exceptions taken to the answer for scandal and impertinence, in stating that the husband of the guardian was not a fit person to have the management of the minors, "being a man of small fortune, increasing family, and also a sectary," allowed. Corbet v. Tottenham, 2 Ball & B. 59. GUARDIAN; PL. ANSWER, EXCEPTIONS.

Matter in an answer relevant, according to the case made by the bill, is not scandalous, whatever may be the nature of it. Ld. St. John v. Ly. St. John, 11 Ves. 526.

A schedule to an answer containing, at length, a bill of costs, and observations with reference to a bill merely delivered for the same business; held impertinent, though the bill called upon the defendant to set forth how he computes and makes out his demand with all the particulars relating thereto, with interrogatories pointed to the particular items, and to a minute comparison of the two bills. Alsager v. Johnson, 4 Ves. 217. S. P. Morris v. Elliot, 8 Pri. 674. PL. ANSWER.

As to the practice of giving time to put in a further answer, after a submission to answer exceptions. Hinckley v. Tomkinson, 1 Cox, 177. PR. EXCEPTIONS TO ANSWER.

Motion to discharge a demurrer after motion for time to plead answer or demur, but not to demur alone, granted; the answer only denying combination. Lee v. Pascoe, 1 Bro. C. C. 78. PL. DEMURRER.

10. Uncertainty.

A bill being filed against an occupier for tithes of certain lands, called Cook's Green; the defendant by his answer states, that the lands in his occupation, together with a certain other close, in the occupation of A, containing nine acres, and separated from the former by a lane, which had been recently laid to the defendant's grounds, were called and well known by the ancient name of Cook's Green; and he then insists, that the lands, called Cook's Green, are covered by a modus. Held, that the lands, comprised in the farm or district alleged to be covered by the modus, are described with sufficient certainty. Williams v. Wulton, 1 Russ. 605.

Answer insisting on modus (for a place described only by map annexed) in lieu of all tithes, or at least of tithe hay, is good. Clarke v. Jennings, 2 Anst. 498.

A payment set up in an answer as a modus, or composition real, is not had for the uncertainty. Atkins v. Hatton, 2 Anst. 388.

11. When an Answer is the proper Defence.

A defendant in a suit by the assignees of a bankrupt, cannot object to the bill as not having been filed with the consent of the creditors, unless the objection is made by the answer. Baran v. Lewis, 1 Sim. 376. BANKCY., ASSIGNEES CONSENT TO BILL FILED.

A defence of modus is wholly inconsistent with a defence in non decimando. Norton v. Hammond, 1 Y. & J. 94.

Where a money payment has been set up as a defence of a modus, it is a denial of plaintiff's title, and therefore cannot, failing as a modus, be used pro hac vice to defeat the immediate claim, as being a composition undetermined for want of six months' notice. Woolley v. Brownhill, 13 Price, 501. S. C. 1 M'Clel. 317. TITHES, COMPOSITION FOR.

Cause on hearing ordered to stand over for want of parties; defendant not allowed costs of day, because answer did not state that objection. Mitchell v. Bailey, 3 Mad. 61. PL. PARTIES; PR. COSTS.

If material fact be charged in injunction-bill, and deposed to in affidavit in support of it, not positively, but as plaintiff has reason to know, and that he believes it to be true, and fact is one which, if true, lies only within knowledge of defendant, and who may, if not true, deny it, the court will grant injunction, it not being denied by him. Scott v. Becher, 4 Price, 346. PR. INJUNCT., AFFIDAVIT IN SUPPORT OF.

A defence of compromise or release, is not proper for answer; it is available by way of plea only. Leonard v. Leonard, 1 Ball & B. 323. COMPROMISE; RELEASE; PL. PLEA.

Whether a defendant can by answer refuse the discovery, insisting that he is not bound to answer, quære? But having given part of the discovery, he was compelled to answer as to the rest. Dolder v. La. Huntingfield, 11 Ves. 283. PL. ANSWER.

After answer, plaintiff not compelled to change the next friend on affidavit, that she was worth nothing, and not found till after answer, contradicted by her swearing to 44l. a year: defendant ought not to have answered, but should have said he could not find her. Anon. 1 Ves. J. 409. PROC. AMI.

A being entitled under a will to the use of certain articles of plate for her life, pawned them with B who kept an open pawnbroker's shop. Will was filed by representatives of the testator, after the death of

A, against B, for a discovery of the particular articles pawned, in order to enable the plaintiffs to proceed in an action at law, for the recovery of them. To this discovery the defendant pleaded, that certain articles of plate were deposited with him, for certain sums of money bond fide lent and advanced thereon, to A; but he did not by his plea (though he did by his answers aver, that he had no other articles of plate in his possession). For this defect in point of form the plea was overruled. The defendant then insisted on the same point by his answer in bar to the discovery, but the court thought, that where a plea to a bill of discovery was overruled, the defendant could never insist on the same thing by answer. Hoare v. Parker, 1 Cox, 224. S. C. 1 Bro. C. C. 578. PL. PLEA; PL. BILL OF DISCOVERY.

No second dilatory plea allowed; but answer may insist on what was overruled as a plea. Finch v. Finch, 2 Ves. 492. PR. PLEA.

12. When a proper Defence against Statute of Frauds and Statute of Limitations.

Object of bill being to obtain discovery from defendant, to be used at law in order to disprove plea of defendant there, that he has made no promise within six years; this discovery defendant is bound to give; but he has a right to protect himself in equity by stat. of limitations, from discovery as to original constitution of debt, and whether it has since been paid. To such last mentioned matters, defendant should plead statute, and answer fully rest of bill. Cork v. Wilcock, 5 Mad. 331. STAT. OF LIMITATIONS.

Defendant to a bill for specific performance of an agreement within the statute of frauds, may, by answer admitting the agreement, take advantage of the stat. Rouse v. Teed, 15 Ves. 375. FRAUDS, STAT. OF.

Defendant by answer admitting agreement, if he insists on statute of frauds, may have benefit of it at hearing. Cooth v. Jackson, 6 Ves. 17. 37. SPEC. PERF.; STAT. OF FRAUDS.

Denial of parol agreement within statute of frauds by answer, is in equity conclusive. Id. 39.

Plea of statute of limitations covers discovery always. Wilford v. Luddel, 2 Ves. 400. PL. PLEA OF STAT. OF LIMIT.

Statute of limitation may be pleaded as to a debt, but not to discovery as to when debt was due. Mackworth v. Clifton, 2 Atk. 51. S. C. Downing v. Kirby, Finch Rep. 14. PL. PLEA; LIMIT., STAT. OF.

If the statute of limitations be neither pleaded nor insisted on by the answer, defendant cannot have the benefit of it in bar to plaintiff's demand. Prince v. Heylin, 1 Atk. 494. Id.

Where the defendant insists on the benefit of the statute of limitations by way of answer, he shall at the hearing have the like benefit as if he had pleaded it. Norton v. Turvil, 2 P. W. 145. LIMIT., STAT. OF.

13. Of Infant and Attorney General.

Infants in answer may state anything they intend to prove, but cannot be themselves called on to answer further. Per Richards, C. B. in Att. Gen. v. Lambeth, 5 Price, 398. INFANT.

General answer of attorney-general to bill by opposite party, for discovery in aid of his defence in an information at law, cannot be excepted to. Duvison v. Att. Gen. cited id. note. PR. EXCEPTIONS TO ANSWER; ATT. GEN.

An infant bound by the offer made by him in his answer, if the other side are thereby delayed, and if the infant does not immediately after his coming of age apply to the court in order to retract his offer and amend his answer. Cecil v. El. Salisbury, 2 Vern. 224. INFANT.

14. Schedule to Answer.

Defendant in answer to allegation in bill, that some cotton which had been sent by him to plaintiff was of inferior quality, said that from certain affidavits and certificates made by experienced persons, he believed cotton to be of superior quality, and set forth affidavits and certificates in schedule in hæc verba. Held, schedule not impertinent. Parker v. Fairlie, 1 S. & S. 295. S. C. 1 T. & R. 362. PL. IMPERTINENCE.

The bill, required the defendant to set forth an account of all and every the quantities of metals and minerals, dug, &c., distinguishing from which of the mines the same were respectively raised, &c., and when, &c., and the full value thereof, and of every particular, and how he computes the same; and when, and to whom, and for what he has sold and disposed of the same, or so much thereof, as, &c.; and where and in whose custody or power the residue thereof remaining unsold now is, and the costs and expenses of working the mines, and the clear profits made thereby, and how he computes the profits. A schedule to the answer, setting forth a transcript of all the items in tradesmen's bills, &c. was held impertinent; and the master having reported the whole of the schedule impertinent, without distinction of the particular items; exceptions to that report were overruled. Norway v. Rowe, 1 Mer. 347.

An answer to a bill for an account, setting out particulars in detail, although in some sense to be called pertinent, yet, if manifestly not called for by the nature of the case, may be held impertinent, as being vexatious and oppressive. Id. ib.

Defendant though he might perhaps have objected to answer, compelled to make full disclosure by production of letters mentioned in schedule to answer. Taylor v. Milner, 11 Ves. 41. PL. ANSWER.

Defendant cannot be ordered to produce deeds, &c. unless stated in a schedule to his answer, or at least described with certainty. In Ireland it is still the practice to pray in bill a schedule. Anon. 1 Smith, 117. PR. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS.

A schedule to an answer, containing at length a bill of costs and observations with reference to a bill, merely delivered for the same business, held impertinent, though the bill called upon the defendant to set forth how he computes and makes out his demand, with all the particulars relating thereto, with interrogatories pointed to the particular items, and to a minute comparison of the two bills. Alsagar v. Johnson, 4 Ves. 217. S. P. Morris v. Elliot, 8 Price, 674. PL. IMPERTINENCE.

1. Where proper generally.

And see further, PL. PETITION.—BANKRUPTCY.—JURISDICTION.

A bill of foreclosure against the assignees of a bankrupt mortgagor, before the execution of the bargain and sale by the commissioners, will not be dismissed on the ground that the assignees have not any interest that can be the subject of a foreclosure. Bainbridge v. Pinhorn, 1 Buck. 135.

A bill to establish a customary payment in lieu of tithes, does not lie upon a simple demand of tithes without suit. Gordon v. Simkinson, 11 Ves. 509. TITHES.

Bill so far as not contradicted by plea, is taken as true. Plunket v. Penon, 2 Atk. 51.

A lessee of rectory for three lives, who had made a derivative lease, brings a bill for tithe in kind, and to establish a custom of setting out corn in shocks. Held, the bill is properly brought, though the tithes are out in lease to prevent collusion between lessee and occupiers. Archb. York v. Stapleton, 2 Atk. 136. LESSOR & LESSEE.

2. The General Form.

(a) Generally, and what Facts must be stated, and by what allegations they are put in issue.

(b) Offer to pay just Demands.

(c) Waiver of Penalties and Forfeiture.

(d) Multifariousness.

(e) What amounts to Scandal and Impertinence.

(f) Charging Part.

(g) Interrogatories.

(h) The Prayer.

(i) Affidavits annexed.

(a) Generally, and what Facts must be stated, and by what allegations they are put in issue.

To prevent a demurrer to a bill it was falsely alleged in it, that a revolting colony of Spain had been recognised by Great Britain as an independent state; the court is bound to know judicially that the allegation is false, and not to give it the intended effect. Taylor v. Barclay, 2 Sim. 213. PUBLIC POLICY.

Seemeth that the usual allegation in bill in exchequer, that plaintiff is debtor, &c. to crown, is unnecessary. Cheetham v. Crook, 1 McClel. & Y. 315.

Unless defect in memorial of annuity is stated in pleadings on evidence, no advantage can be taken of it. Dunn v. Culcraft, 2 S. & S. 56. ANNUITY, MEMORIAL.

If bill for specific performance of agreement state, that agreement was in writing, signature will be presumed. Rist v. Hobson, 1 S. & S. 543. PRESUMPTION; AGREEMENT; DEEDS, EXEC. OR.

Where the claim of the next of kin is raised on the record, and one person is in that character a party, other persons found by the master to be next of kin, may be heard by the court, though not parties. But where the claim is not raised on the record, and none of the next of kin are, in that character, parties to the cause, there must be a supplemental bill to bring them before the court. Waite v. Temple, 1 S. & S. 319. PL. PARTIES; NEXT OF KIN.

Claiming the residue as executor is sufficient to let in parol evidence in support of the legal title, without alleging a title by the effect of the parol evidence. Lynn v. Beaver, 1 Turn. & R. 66. EXORS. BENEFICIALLY INTERESTED; PR. EVID.

Bill by assignees of bankrupt brought for purpose of restraining bankrupt from disputing validity of commission, not alleging that commission was valid, or that bankrupt brought action with a view only to harass assignees; general demurrer allowed. Kirkpatrick v. Dennett, 1 S. & S. 408. PL. DEMURRER; BANKCY., ASSESS. IN.

Bill for commission to examine abroad must state that action has been brought. Angel v. Angel, 1 S. & S. 83. COMMISSION TO EXAMINE ABROAD.

Plaintiff in equity must state in his bill his title, and unless admitted by defendant, must prove it. Norbury v. Meade, 3 Bligh, 211. TITLE.

Vicar demanding certain specific tithes by his bill, nominatim, is not precluded from giving evidence of other tithes due to him for other titheable matters taken by defendant, where there is in the bill a general claim of all other tithes usually denominated small tithes. Manby v. Lodge, 9 Price, 231. IB.

Where letters are stated in bill as the agreement, no testimony aliunde is admissible; otherwise, where stated as evidence of the agreement only. Bird v. Bletchley, 6 Mad. 17. AGREEMENT; EVID.

Power of attorney to sue in plaintiff's name need not be stated in bill, but if stated proof will be directed of it before master in taking the accounts. Edney v. Jewell, 6 Mad. 165. PR. EVID.; POWER OF ATTORNEY.

The court is bound by allegation of matter of fact, but not of law. Cuthbert v. Creasy, 6 Mad. 189.

Demurrer allowed to a bill stating the alternative; a title at law or in equity. Edwards v. Edwards, 1 Jac. 335. TITLE.

It is good ground of demurrer that counsel's signature does not appear on the bill. Kirkley v. Burton, 5 Mad. 378. PL. DEMURRER.

It is most material in equity pleading, that all the evidence intended to be relied on at the hearing should be founded on some allegation distinctly put on record, of fact which it is calculated to support, or otherwise it will not be admitted on the hearing. Hall v. Matthey, 6 Price, 240.

A defendant insisting on a modus as an outner, must prove himself to have been such at the time his lands became titheable, his being so described in the bill not sufficient. Lake v. Skinner, 1 Jac. & W. 9. EVID.; TITHES-OUTNER.

Bill praying reassignment of lease, and stating a clause in assignment of power of redemption, on payment of a sum larger than legal interest, added to original sum given, and in default thereof, a foreclosure is not demurrable on ground of usury. Metcalf v. Brown, 5 Price, 560. USURY.

Heir at law out of possession cannot raise an equitable jurisdiction for court to decree possession of estate by adding to his bill for that purpose a prayer for delivery up of title deeds. Taylor v. Glanville, 3 Mad. 179. POSSESSION; HEIR AT LAW.

On hearing of cause an inquiry will not be directed to master, unless ground of it is laid in the pleadings. Holloway v. Mullard, 1 Mad. 414. PR. INQUIRY BEFORE MASTER.

It is sufficient for purpose of obtaining an injunction to restrain proceedings at law, that bill and affidavit state, that an unsettled account subsists, and that on such account plaintiff at law would be found in debt to plaintiff in equity, though bill shows it might have been set off at law. Wattleworth v. Pitcher,

2 Price, 46. PR. INJUNC. TO RESTRAIN PROCS. AT LAW.

Variance between affidavit in support of motion for injunction and bill in date of bill of exchange, on which defendant has commenced proceedings at law, is a sufficient ground for dissolving injunction, obtained. S. C. Id. 189. PR. DISSOLVING INJUNCT.; PL. AFFIDAVIT.

Plaintiff in a bill for an injunction must state at once the whole case within his knowledge, but the court, though very jealous of amendment without prejudice to the injunction, permits even re-amendment; ascertaining precisely its nature, and by clear and positive affidavit that the plaintiff had not a knowledge of the facts, enabling him to bring that case upon the record sooner. Sharp v. Ashton, 3 V. & B. 144. PR. AMENDMENT.

Demurrer that bill stated defendant's estate with uncertainty, viz. "that he is seised in fee or otherwise well entitled to," and ore tenus that reversioner was not party overruled. Baring v. Nash, 1 V. & B. 551. PL. DEMURRER.

Purchase of a reversionary interest by an attorney from his client, though in the event advantageous, without fraud or any misrepresentation, the proposal coming from the client, and no confidence upon that subject, both ignorant of the value; the bill charging fraud and misrepresentation, confidence and knowledge on one side, with ignorance on the other, and bringing forward the only incorrect circumstance, the receipt taken as for money paid, though the consideration was by deduction from a bill of costs, not then of that amount, dismissed without costs. Montesquieu v. Sandys, 18 Ves. 302. FRAUD FID. SIT.; SOL. & CIL.

Allegation of the bill that the plaintiff, the tenant, was to pay taxes, and do necessary repairs, not proved, is no substantial variance, being an admission against himself, and immaterial from a tenant's legal liability. Gregory v. Mighell, 18 Ves. 328.

No venue nor time is necessary to be stated in Chancery pleadings, per Wood. B. Sed quere? See Mitford, Pl. Migton v. Harris, Wightw. 111.

A charge in the bill that "A was of a weak and feeble understanding, approaching almost to idiocy," was an allegation sufficiently precise (no demurrer being taken) to put in issue, that A was of "insane memory." It being proved that A was incapable of managing himself or his affairs, he was held to be within the saving of the statute, 7 Geo. 2. c. 14. s. 8. But this allegation would not have been sufficiently precise, on a plea, nor on a bill, if demurred to. The heir of the mortgagor may take advantage of the saving in sect. 8. of the statute. Curew v. Johnston, 2 Scho. & L. 280. LUNATIC; MORTGAGE, FORECLOSURE OF; STAT. C. OF.

Extraordinary relief against want of form and mistakes of pleading in favour with charities. Att. Gen. v. Jackson, 11 Ves. 372. CHARITY.

Bill for purpose of raising a charge against the inheritance divided into estates tail. An intermediate remainder coming in esse, a bill stating the former proceedings is allegation sufficient to put the facts in issue against him, and even if witnesses examined, he shall have benefit. Lloyd v. Johnes, 9 Ves. 59. TEN. IN TAIL & REM.-MAN.

Bill by bankrupt against mortgagee of estates in England and Berbice, for an account and payment of the balance to defendants, charging collusion generally, but not averring that there will be a surplus nor charging a direct application to assignees to sue; held demurrable. Benfield v. Solomons, 9 Ves. 77. PL. PARTY; BANKRUPT.

Bill praying execution of an agreement for a lease for lives, ought to name the lives to be inserted. Oherlihy v. Hedges, 1 Scho. & L. 128.

Forty-six years after a decree directing (in execution of the trusts of a will) a conveyance in fee to the tenant in tail male, having also the reversion in fee with consent of the only intermediate remainder-man in tail male, a bill was filed against their devisees the plaintiffs, claiming under an old voluntary grant out of the reversion, the estates tail being spent, and no recovery, and praying a discovery and conveyance; a general demurrer was allowed, though the decree and conveyance were stated only by way of pretence, not expressly charged, the whole right, as against the defendants, being founded upon the conveyance. Fletcher v. Tollett, 5 Ves. 3.

Bill stating generally, that under some deeds in the custody of the defendants, plaintiff was entitled to some interest in some estates in their possession, prayed a discovery and delivery of the title deeds, possession of the estates, and an account; demurrer to the whole bill allowed. Ryves v. Ryves, 3 Ves. 343.

Testator by codicil in 1796, reciting that he had devised his real estate by his last will, dated 25th November 1752, charged his real estates with his debts and legacies given by the codicil, and appointed executors: the bill was by devisees of the real estate under another will of 1756, one of whom was a legatee in the codicil, stating that the will of 1756 was executed in pursuance of an agreement to make mutual wills; that the testator, by the death of the other party, was bound, if not in law, in honour, and did not mean to revoke the will of 1756, and revive that of 1752, and praying that the will of 1756 and the codicil, might be established, the trusts carried into execution, and the legacy paid: upon an issue directed the will of 1752 was established; evidence of mistake being rejected; on farther directions to plaintiffs, relied on agreement, and offered evidence in support of it; the bill was dismissed, the Ld. Ch. being of opinion that the relief sought was inconsistent with the frame of the bill, and therefore could not be given under the general prayer, that the evidence ought not to be received; and that, upon the evidence, the agreement was uncertain and unfair, and therefore not to be executed. Ld. Walpole v. Ld. Orford, 3 Ves. 402. SPEC. PERF.; EVIDENCE.

In a bill of discovery to support an action by a common informer, for money won at play, it is sufficient to state that the defendants, or some of them, for the benefit and on account of all, played and won. In such a bill it is not necessary to state the nature of the action brought; it is enough to say that an action was brought on the stat. 9 Anne, to recover the money, and to shew by the facts, that an action on the statute lay. Covans v. Phillips, 3 Anst. 843. But this is overruled, 13 Price, 376. S. C. 1 McClel. 185. GAMING; DISCOVERY.

The bill stated an award, and that no provision was made for a particular event which had taken place, and by which the plaintiff was damaged; plea, the award; the court thought the bill ought to have expressed particularly the damage sustained by the plaintiff, and allowed the plea. Routh v. Peach, 2 Anst. 519. PL. PLA; AWARD.

A bill to establish a farm-modus, setting out the abutments of the farm, and stating that the modus had immemorially been paid for the said farm, is good, without stating it expressly to be an ancient farm. Ld. Stowell v. Atkins, 2 Anst. 564. MODUS.

On a trust to sell a suggestion in the bill of improper conduct of the trustees, in not giving sufficient notice of the sale, is not a ground for an injunction to stop the intended sale. Pechel v. Fowler, 2 Anst. 549. INJUNC. AGAINST SALE.

The plaintiff's equity must appear in the stating part of the bill. Flint v. Field, 2 Anst. 643.

On bill for title of agistment of "barren and unprofitable cattle," defendant, from plaintiff's loose mode of pleading, supposing it not to relate to sheep, made no defence as to them; court refused the account as to them. Turner v. Williams, 3 Anst. 829. TITHES; ACCOUNT.

On a bill to redcem, the mortgagee cannot object that the bill does not state a valid legal conveyance to him. Roberts v. Clayton, 3 Anst. 715. MORTGAGE, REDEMPTION OF.

Joint and separate demands by the same bill; demurrer allowed. Quare, whether the clause in stat. 8 G. 2. c. 13., directing that the date and name shall be engraved on each print, relates to the penalties only, or whether that is necessary to maintain the exclusive property; it so, whether it ought to appear on the bill. Harrison v. Hogg, 2 Ves. J. 322. PL. DEMURRER.

A, having an estate in fee of 6000*l.* a year, and being tenant for life without impeachment of waste, of another estate of 5000*l.* a year, with the reversion in fee after an estate in tail male in B, his only son by a former marriage, became indebted by mortgage, annuities and otherwise, to the amount of near 100,000*l.* A and B joined in conveying both estates to trustees upon trust, by sale or mortgage, sale of timber, or by rents and profits to pay debts, and to apply so much of the rents and profits of what should remain unsold, as should seem meet to them, as a sinking fund; and to pay the residue to A, and to settle the remaining trust estates subject to an annuity of 1000*l.* to B, for the joint lives of him and A, upon A for life, without impeachment of waste, with power to lease twenty-one years only; remainder to trustees, to preserve, &c., remainder subject to a jointure to the wife of A, and portions for children by her, to the joint appointment of A and B; in default thereof, to the appointment of B surviving; in default thereof, to B in tail male, remainder to the other sons of A in tail male, remainder to B in tail, remainder to the daughters of A in tail, with cross remainders, remainder to B in fee, with powers of leasing; and full powers of management in the trustees, and a provision for the appointment of new trustees, as vacancies should happen. The trustees raised 50,000*l.* by mortgage of the settled estate, which they applied to the debts, and they paid 2500*l.* a year to A, and 1000*l.* a year to B, from the date of the settlement. Upon the bill of A, to set aside the deed, except the trust for the debts, upon a general charge of fraud, misapprehension and misrepresentation, or to controul the management of the trust, and for an account against the trustees: the court held, first, that the deed could not be set aside partially for fraud, nor under this bill totally, for then the prior estates in the settled estate must be revested, clear of incumbrances; A, being under covenant to exonerate, and the mortgagees, who must either consent to change their securities or be paid, were not parties; secondly, that general charges of fraud required no answer, and could not support a decree, that upon the evidence there was no fraud or mistake, and that B's joining to subject the settled estate, was sufficient consideration; thirdly, that the court would not interfere with the trustees, there being no misbehaviour, and that the payment of the annuity to B was good: the bill, therefore, was dismissed with costs, and the trustees having been always ready to account, the court refused to retain it for that purpose, but without prejudice to a bill for that only. Myddleton v. Ld. Kenyon, 2 Ves. J. 391. FRAUD, DEEDS BY.

Creditor by judgment in Jamaica filing bill here for satisfaction from rents and profits remitted, and to be remitted, must show his judgment to differ from judgment here, so that he cannot affect the land. No equity for judgment creditor because there are prior judgments. Cuthcart v. Lewis, 1 Ves. J. 463. S. C. 3 Bro. C. C. 516. JUDGMENT; DEMURRER.

A bill to establish a modus for every ancient farm, stating, that the whole parish consisted of ancient farms, but not setting forth the abutment of each, is bad. Scott v. Allgood, 1 Anst. 16. TITHES ; MODUS.

In a bill to perpetuate testimony of a right of common and way, the plaintiffs claimed in right of their estates or otherwise : this is too loose ; a demurrer therefore allowed. Cressett v. Mylton, 3 Bro. C. C. 481. Vide S. C. 1 Ves. J. 449. TITLE ; AMBIGUITY.

Demurrer allowed, the bill not connecting the fraud with the transaction sufficiently. E. I. Comp. v. Henshaw, 1 Ves. J. 287. PL. DEMURRER.

If a lessee comes into equity to compel a specific execution of a covenant in a lease, as running with the estate of the reversioner, he must show that the defendant is personally liable at law in respect of the covenant and of his estate. Chandos v. Brownlow, 2 Ridg. P. C. 416. SPEC. PERP.

Bill to open a settled account must state specific errors, not generally that it is erroneous. Johnson v. Curtis, 3 Bro. C. C. 266. ACCOUNT SETTLED.

On bill to open a settled account, it is not sufficient to show that the account was signed, "with errors excepted." Id. ib.

Upon a general allegation of error in a settled account, without specifying particulars, it cannot be surcharged or falsified, although particular errors be proved in evidence. Id. ib.

Want of allegation shall not prevent the court from looking into the consideration. Colman v. Sarrell, 1 Ves. J. 51. CONSIDERATION.

Plaintiff claimed as heir at law of A, stating that one person, through whom she made title, had three sons, and that she claimed under the second son, but without alleging that the first son died without issue ; demurrer, "for that the plaintiff had not by her bill sufficiently stated the pedigree by which she made title," was overruled. Delorne v. Hollingsworth, 1 Cox, 421. PL. DEMURRER.

Plaintiff's bill only referred to wills, &c. whereon he founded his title ; reference to master to state cause whereon to found decree. Pauncefort v. El. Lincoln, Dick. 362.

Where a decree for the establishment of a charity should be made, an information will not be dismissed, because it prays wrong relief ; but the court of chancery will not act in many cases, and has no jurisdiction in many others, as foundations under a charter, &c. Att. Gen. v. Smart, 1 Ves. 72. CHARITY.

It is sufficient to put in issue a general charge of lewdness, and under this you may give particular evidence, but then it must be pointed and applied to the general charge. Clarke v. Periam, 2 Atk. 333. 337. S. C. 9 Mod. 340. PR. EVID.

That a wife has misbehaved herself, does not imply she is an adulteress, and a deposition in that case to prove her own right not to be read. S. C. Id.

Saying that a wife did not behave with that duty as became a virtuous woman, will not entitle the husband to enter into proof of her committing adultery, unless there is an express charge of this kind, for that the virtue of a woman does not consist merely in her chastity. S. C. Id.

Lessee of tithes filing bill for satisfaction of them, need not set forth his lessor's title. Crathorne v.

Bill for tithe of corn and grain, demurrer because the single value was not barely demanded, but the bill was for a discovery only, to enable plaintiff to recover the treble value, non allocatur, for that tithes were suable in the exchequer before the statute. Sed quere, because it is contrary to the practice to have such a bill, without alleging that plaintiff is content to receive the single value only. Drier v. Man, Hard. 190. WAIVER OF PENALTIES ; TITHES.

A bill for tithes used formerly to waive the penalties, but not of late, because the single value is only prayed. Att. Gen. v. Vincent, Bunb. 393. Id.

In a bill for tithes, complainant did not show how he was entitled to them, yet held good. Stone v. Ludlow, Hard. 321. TITHES ; TITLE.

A vicar need not set forth how he is entitled to tithe herbage, and small tithes. Ayde v. Flower, Bunb. 7. Id.

Where defendant admits that a vicar is entitled to all sorts of tithes, but insists on a special exemption, the vicar shall not be obliged to show any special title, either by endowment or presumption. Pye v. Her, Bunb. 72. Id.

In a bill for tithes by a lay impropriator, the title must be shown. Penny v. Hoper, id. 115. Id.

The court would not determine whether there was any difference between lay and spiritual impropriator, in setting out his title to tithes. Burwell v. Coates, id. 129. Id.

Bill to be relieved against a bond, to pay 400l. to a woman whom the plaintiff kept as a mistress ; relief denied : but otherwise, if it had been alleged that the obligee was a common strumpet. But then it must be so charged in the bill, and put in issue ; for otherwise, if it is so proved the depositions cannot be read. Whaley v. Norton, 1 Vern. 483. CONSIDERATION EX TURPI CAUSA.

(c) Waiver of Penalties and Forfeiture.

In a bill for the single value of tithes, it is not necessary expressly to waive the treble value. Wools v. Walley, 1 Anst. 100. TITHE.

If the executor of a person brings a bill for tithes, he need not offer to accept the single value, he not being entitled by the stat. of Edw. 6. to the treble value. Anon. 1 Vern. 60. EXOR.

A, the inventor of a medicine, employed B, a foreigner residing abroad, to manufacture it for him there, and sold it in England for his own sole profit. A label and seal denoting that the medicine was manufactured by B, and sold by A, were affixed to each of the bottles in which it was sold. The defendants imitated the labels and seals. Demurrer allowed to a bill by A and B to restrain the imitation, and for an account of the sales of the spurious labels and seals; A having no interest. Delondre v. Shaw, 2 Sim. 237. INJON.; INFRINGEMENT OF COPYRIGHT, &c.

At the hearing, the objection that the bill is multifarious, comes too late to prevent the court from making a decree. Wynne v. Callander, 1 Russ. 293.

Freehold tenants of a lordship having rights of common for their cattle, levant and couchant, and common of turbary and estovers, the lord approved parts of the common, and granted them to other persons; the tenants prostrated the fences, upon which actions of trespass were brought against them, and they filed a bill in the nature of a bill of peace, against the lord and his grantees to be quieted in the enjoyment of their commonable rights. A general demurrer was overruled, the court considering it no objection to the bill that each defendant had a right to make a separate defence, provided that right was a general one, and that the court could not before answer, judge of the nature of the right. Powell v. El. Powis, 1 Y. & J. 169.

Demurrer allowed to bill, which includes defence to two separate actions, on two separate libels, in the same commission or commissions. Shuckell v. Macauley, 2 S. & S. 79.

It is not uncertain or multifarious in bill for account of tithes, bill having stated as the foundation for plaintiff's claim, a decree made pursuant to act of parliament, also to charge two other distinct sources from which he derives his right, and on which he rests his title, the basis of those two latter being, first an agreement anterior to decree charged to have been confirmed by act of parliament, passed ten years before former act, and secondly, custom, founded on immemorial usage, there being nothing uncertain or null. Owen v. Nodin, 13 Price, 478. S. C. 1 M'Clel. 238. TITHE.

Two persons averring that the title is in one or the other of them, and each contending that it is in himself, cannot join in a suit as co-plaintiffs, semble. Cholmondeley v. Clinton, 1 Turn. & R. 116.

Several persons having distinct demands, and not being able to sue on behalf of themselves and others, cannot be co-plaintiffs. Jones v. Garcia Del Rio, Id. 297.

Two distinct matters cannot be joined in the same suit, where one requires that depositions should not be published till hearing of cause, and other requires immediate publication of same depositions. Dew v. Clark, 1 S. & S. 108.

Bill by several, though only one party interested in part of bill, yet whole being properly one suit, it is not multifarious to join them. Knye v. Moore, 1 S. & S. 61.

Bill by vendor for specific performance, and praying against third persons claiming an interest in the estate, that they may join in the conveyance to the purchaser, multifarious. Mole v. Smith, 1 Jac. 494.

Where under one will the residuary legatees are also appointees under power, of share of another testator's estate. Bill filed by them on account of both estates, is not multifarious. Turner v. Robinson, 1 S. & S. 313.

A bill for an account of a testator's estate, and also to set aside sales made by the executor and trustee to himself and to another person, held multifarious. Salvidge v. Hyde, 1 Jac. 161.; overruling, S. C. 5 Mad. 138.

In order to determine whether bill is multifarious, the enquiry is not whether such defendant is connected with every branch of the cause, but whether the plaintiff's bill seeks relief in respect of matters which are in their nature separate and distinct. S. C. Id. 146.

It is multifariousness for a rector and vicar to join in a suit for tithes respectively due to them. Exeter Coll. v. Rowland, 6 Mad. 94.

Multifariousness cannot be objected to at the hearing; it should be done by demurrer. Ward v. Cooke, 5 Mad. 122. PR. HEARING.

Multifarious to join in one bill three distinct lessees under ecclesiastical leases, for the special purpose of setting them aside. Att. Gen. v. Moses, 2 Mad. 294.

Bill filed to restrain plaintiff at law from proceeding on five different policies of insurance, effected on different ships, between the same parties at the same time, is not multifarious. Kensington v. White, 3 Price, 164.

Demurrer by defendant for multifariousness, the bill being against several distinct purchasers and others, allowed. Brooks v. Id. Whitworth, 1 Mad. 86. PURCHASERS.

Plea of simony for tithes, ordered to stand for an answer, with liberty to except, as being multifarious. Wood v. Strickland, 2 V. & B. 150. SIMONY; PR. PLEA, ORDERED TO STAND FOR ANSWER.

Bill by a bankrupt and the assignee under an insolvent act, of which he afterwards took the benefit, against the representative of the deceased assignees and others, for an account of his estate, and various transactions before and since the bankruptcy; no assignee in the bankruptcy being a party; and collusion with persons accountable to the estate, charged against only some of the representatives of the assignees. Demurrer allowed generally for want of equity, and as relief might be had by petition in bankruptcy, and ore tenus, the suit being multifarious, as uniting parties, though in some respect connected, having distinct interests. Laxton v. Davis, 18 Ves. 72. S. C. 1 Rose, 79. DEMURRER; PL. PARTIES.

An allegation merely surplusage, does not support an objection to a plea, as multifarious. Claridge v. Hoare, 14 Ves. 59. PL. PLEA.

Information against a corporation, stating that they were seised of real estates, partly for purposes of public utility, and other part in trust for private charity; and charging a general misapplication of the funds, and praying relief accordingly: a demurrer for multifariousness was allowed. Att. Gen. v. Corp. of Carmarthen, Coop. 30. PL. INFORMATION.

Bill for a partition against D; D by his answer sets up a partition made several years ago, as evidence whereof (amongst other things,) he states that plaintiff acted upon a moiety of the premises, as his several estates, and particularly, that he made a lease of part thereof to C; plaintiff amends his bill, making C a party, charging that the lease to him was made under circumstances of fraud and imposition, and praying as against C, that the lease may be set aside, still praying a partition only as against D ; demurrer by D to the whole bill, for that it is exhibited against several persons, for several and distinct matters allowed, plaintiff ought first to have filed his bill against C only, to impeach the lease. Whaley v. Dawson, 2 Scho. & L. 367. PL. BILL OF PARTITION.

The proprietor of a copyright must file separate bills against each bookseller, taking copies of a spurious edition for sale. Dilly v. Doig, 2 Ves. J. 486. COPYRIGHT.

There must be separate bills upon distinct invasions of a patent, otherwise a right of fishery, or the custom of a mill. Id. 487.

The plaintiff was tenant to the father of the defendants of a colliery, under a lease and subsequent agreements ; on the father's death, he continued to hold under the defendant, the heir, on the same terms, he filed this bill against the two defendants as executors of their father, and against the one as heir, for an account under the agreement, both in the lifetime of the father, and since his death, the defendants demurred separately, as being improperly joined in the suit, and they were allowed. Ward v. Dk. Northumberland, 2 Anst. 469.

Bill by creditors against executor and heir, and several distinct purchasers of distinct parts of testator's real estate, for account and performance of agreements : Held not multifarious. Reyner v. Julien, 5 Mad. 144. n. (b). PL. PARTY.

Plea of conveyance fine and non-claim, not multifarious, but a good plea to a bill impeaching the conveyance, as not being for valuable consideration. Doble v. Cridland, 2 Bro. C. C. 274. PL. PLEA.

Bill does not lie against several tenants of a manor for quit-rents, the plaintiff's remedy being at law, and the suit also multifarious as to the different tenants. Bourrier v. Prentice, 1 Bro. C. C. 200. QUIT RENTS ; LANDL. & TENANT.

An executor being desirous to apply the assets as far as they would go, in satisfying the debts, brings a bill against all the creditors, that they might if they pleased contest each other's debts, and that their preference might be settled. Adjudged on demurrer, to be a proper bill. Bucels v. Atleo, 2 Vern. 37. EXOR.

(e) What amounts to Scandal or Impertinence.

In bill for removal of trustee, it is not scandalous or impertinence to challenge every act of trustee as misconduct. Portsmouth v. Fellows, 5 Mad. 450. PL. IMPERTINENCE ; TRUSTEE.

Nor to impute to him any corrupt or improper motive in execution of trust. Id. ib.

Nor to allege that his conduct is the vindictive consequence of some act on the part of the cestuique trust, or of some change in his situation. Id. ib.

But it is impertinent, and may be scandalous, to state any circumstances as evidence of general malice or personal hostility. Id. ib.

Improper to charge in a bill that a woman had criminal conversation with particular persons, as it would affect the character of strangers, and fill it with private scandal. Clarke v. Perian, 2 Atk. 339. S. C. 9 Mod. 340. PL. BILL.

(f) Charging part.

Evidence not admitted of facts not alleged in the pleadings. Gordon v. Gordon, 3 Swan. 472. PR. EVIDENCE.

A general charge is a sufficient foundation for evidence of any particular facts ; and it is not necessary to charge circumstances minutely. If, however other side should be taken by surprise, the court would assist by some further enquiry. Chicot v. Lequesne, 2 Ves. 318.

What charge of misbehaviour is sufficient to introduce evidence of particular acts. Wheeler v. Trotter, 3 Swan. 174. PR. EVIDENCE.

(g) Interrogatories in.

An interrogatory put in the alternative, not pointing to one side of the question more than to the other, held not to be leading, as it would be sometimes impossible otherwise to get an answer to the interrogatory. Alywar v. Kearney, 2 Ball & B. 463.

Under the general charge, as to the fact of payment, the plaintiff may interrogate as to all the circumstances that go to prove or disprove the truth of the fact, as when, where, &c., without particular charge. Faulder v. Stuart, 11 Ves. 296.

Though under the allegation of the fact by a bill the plaintiff may interrogate to incidental circumstances, he cannot as to a distinct subject. Bullock v. Richardson, 11 Ves. 373.

The interrogatory part of bill is to be construed by the alleging part, and not to be considered more extensive. Muckleston v. Brown, 6 Ves. 62.

Interrogatory part of a bill must be supported by a substantive charge. Att. Gen. v. Hornwood, 1 Ves. 535.

(h) The Prayer.

Though that part of bill preliminary to prayer for subpoena asks for injunction, yet, if the prayer of process omits it, it is a sufficient ground for refusing injunction. Anon. Urged by Mr. Knight, K. G. 6th November, 1829, and acquiesced by V. C. MSS. INJUNCTION.

Not necessary to pray process against person charged to be out of jurisdiction of court. Huddock v. Thomson, 2 S. & S. 219. JURISDICTION.

Ne exeat regno will be granted, though not prayed by bill. Moore v. Hudson, 6 Mad. 218. NE EXEAT REGNO.

An injunction will not be granted to restrain the breach of a covenant in articles of partnership which has not been infringed for any length of time, where the bill does not pray a dissolution of the partnership. Whether the court will in any case grant such an injunction, unless there is ground for, and the bill prays a dissolution of the partnership, quare? Marshall v. Colman, 2 Jac. & W. 266. See in negative, Harrison v. Armitage, 4 Mad. 143. and in affirmative, Fowman v. Homfray, 2 V. & B. 329. and Loscombe v. Russell, Sittings after T. T. 1830. V. C. PARTNERSHIP ; INJUNCTION.

Relief under the general prayer, if consistent with the case made by the bill. Hiern v. Mill, 13 Ves. 114.

The plaintiff praying relief to which he is not entitled, viz. a sale under a trust, instead of a redemption or foreclosure as a mortgagee, cannot have the different relief under the general prayer; but the proper relief may be obtained by amendment, and for that purpose, another party being necessary, liberty was given to amend by adding parties, which includes the introduction in the statement of facts consequential upon that addition, and praying such relief as he may be advised. Palk v. Clinton, 12 Ves. 48. S. P. Jones v. Jones, 3 Atk. 110. PL. AMENDMENT.

Court will act for benefit of infant, without regard to prayer of petition. De Manneville v. De Manneville, 10 Ves. 59. INFANT.

Relief not specifically prayed, may be within the prayer for general relief. Beaumont v. Boulton, 5 Ves. 495.

Interest refused because not prayed by bill. Weymouth v. Royer, 1 Ves. J. 417.

Where there is a prayer for general relief, equity will adapt its relief to the circumstances of the case. Boyle v. Lysaght, 1 Ridgw. P. C. 411.

Party is not party to bill unless named in prayer of process. Windsor v. Windsor, Dick, 707.

Plaintiffs file a bill to compel the execution of a settlement which was prepared but never executed, by reason of the death of one of the parties; on the hearing it appeared, that the settlement so preferred differed materially from the articles on which it was founded, to the prejudice of the plaintiffs. The court will direct a settlement according to the articles, notwithstanding the plaintiff do not pray relief so beneficial to themselves. Durant v. Durant, 1 Cox, 58. SPEC. PERFE.

A bill prays that a defendant may either admit assets, or that an account may be taken of the testator's personal estate, &c. but does not require the defendant to set forth such account; it was determined according to the present practice, he was not bound so to do, but a submission to account is sufficient. Misner v. Burfoot, 1 Cox, 58. PL. ANSWER.

The rule that an information for a charity is not to be dismissed, if the party has failed to pray the proper relief, holds only in those cases which the court thinks proper for its interference at all, and the information here being improper, was dismissed with costs. Att. Gen. v. Middleton, 2 Ves. 327. PL. CHARITY; INFORMATION.

Proper injunction cannot be granted unless expressly prayed by the bill. Savory v. Dyer, Amb. 70. INJUNC.

Where the bill was for discovery, and to perpetuate testimony, and plaintiff amended by striking out the discovery and relief, but the bill, in praying process, prayed that defendant might abide such order, and decree, as the court should think proper; it was held a bill for relief, and a demurrer was allowed. Rose v. Cannel, 3 Atk. 439. PL. DEMURRER.

Prayer for general relief on bill seems sufficient. Cook v. Martyn, 2 Atk. 3.

(i) Affidavit annexed.

Where bill is for delivery of title deeds, and no affidavit is attached to same, relative thereto, defendant must demur. Hook v. Dorman, 1 S. & S. 227. PL. DEMURRER; TITLE DEEDS.

Variance between affidavit in support of injunction and the bill, in the date of a bill of exchange, on which defendant has commenced proceedings at law, is a sufficient ground for dissolving injunction, obtained. Wattleworth v. Pitcher, 2 Price, 189. PL. VARIANCE; PR. INJUNC.; DISSOLVING.

No relief in equity on lost instrument, where no affidavit of the loss, and no offer of indemnity. Walmsley v. Child, 1 Ves. 341. DEEDS LOST.

Where a bill is merely for a discovery of a deed, or for producing it at law, no affidavit is necessary; otherwise, where the plaintiff wants to change the jurisdiction from a court of law to a court of equity. Dormer v. Fortescue, 3 Atk. 132.

In a bill purely for the discovery of a deed, or to have the deed delivered up, no need of annexing an affidavit that the deed is lost; secus, if relief be prayed generally as to recover the money on a bond. Whitchurch v. Golding, 2 P. W. 541. MOS. 192.

When a bill is exhibited for a general discovery of deed; not necessary for the plaintiff to annex the usual affidavit that he has them not in his custody. Anon. Prec. Chan. 536.

3. Supplemental.

Where a plaintiff, by the present practice of the court, may obtain that relief by petition for which a supplemental bill was formerly necessary, and prefers the latter course, the supplemental bill is not demurrable, but the proceeding will be taken into consideration on the question of costs. Davies v. Williams, 1 Sim. 5. PL. DEMURRER; PR. COSTS.

Bill stating matter by way of supplement not being in fact such a bill, will not be ordered off the file. Party should demur. Bowyer v. Bright, 13 Price, 316.

Where, under order made in a creditor's suit, supplemental bill is filed by a creditor not a party to the original suit on behalf of himself and other creditors to have the benefit of the decree in that suit, the propriety of order which authorized creditor to file supplemental bill cannot be questioned at hearing of supplemental cause. Houlditch v. Mary. Donegal, 1 S. & S. 491. PR. ORDER; PR. CREDITOR'S SUIT.

Where, under order in creditor's suit, leave is given to file supplemental bill by creditor, not party to original suit on behalf of himself and other creditors, to have benefit of decrees in that suit, plaintiff is entitled to same decree to have benefit of former proceedings, as representatives of the original plaintiff would have been entitled on bill of revivor. Id. PL. BILL OF REVIVOR; PR. DECREE.

Where new parties are brought before the court by supplemental bill, the original defendants need not be parties to the supplemental bill, unless they have an interest in the supplemental matter. Bignall v. Atkins, 6 Mad. 369. PL. PARTIES.

Assignee of interest in suit cannot be made party without supplemental bill. Foster v. Deacon, id. 59. PL. PARTY; ASSIGNMENT, PENDENTE LITE.

Assignees who are brought before court by supplemental bill may be liable to costs of whole suit.

Whitcomb v. Minchin, 5 Mad. 91. ASSESS.; PR. COSTS.

Where husband and wife are defendants, and by the death of the husband a new interest arises to the wife, the suit becomes defective; a supplemental bill is necessary, and she is not bound by the answer put in during the coverture. Mole v. Smith, 1 Jac. & W. 665. HUSB. & WIFE; PR. ABATEMENT & REVIVOR.

Where supplemental bill is not supplemental suit, but only introduces supplementary matter, the whole record is one cause, and a general replication applies to whole record, and not merely to the original bill. Catton v. Carlisle, 5 Mad. 427. PR. REPLICATION.

Supplemental bill after hearing of original bill stating additional facts which arose and were known to plaintiff before he filed his original bill, and praying that other matters might be taken into the account ordered to be taken before master, is demurrable: he should have applied to court for leave to amend, or to file supplemental bill before cause had been suffered to proceed so far. Swan v. Swan, 8 Price, 518.

Upon bill to perpetuate testimony, examination of witnesses being complete, and communication closed. Supplemental bill, on ground of new evidence discovered since filing of original bill, must state the particular facts. Knight v. Knight, 4 Mad. 1.

On abatement by bankruptcy of defendant, an executor, after decree to account, supplemental bill, in nature of revivor, is necessary. Russell v. Sharp, 1 V. & B. 500. EXOR.; PR. DECREE TO ACCOUNT; PR. ABATEMENT & REVIVOR.

Heir at law filing a bill to redeem a mortgage, having also brought in the claim of a third person to the heirship; if he himself is found upon an issue not heir, he cannot, by supplemental bill, have the benefit of the original suit, as the purchaser of the heirship in such third person. On demurrer to supplemental bill. Tonkin v. Lethbridge, Coop. 43. HEIR AT LAW.

Demurrer allowed to a supplemental bill, as stating circumstances, subsequent not only to the original bill, but to publication; first, as not properly supplemental matter; secondly, as not material. If material, the benefit might be obtained in another shape: perhaps by a special application for the opportunity of examining witnesses, or a bill of discovery, as the object may be discovery only, or only relief: and in that case that the answer or evidence may be read at the hearing. Milner v. Ld. Harewood, 17 Ves. 144.

Bill revived upon marriage; new rights being acquired, a supplemental bill is necessary, therefore plea allowed; but plea being defective in form as not concluding either in bar or abatement, nor stating the necessary parties, leave was given to amend. Merrett v. Mellish, 13 Ves. 435.

Tenant in tail claiming upon death of former tenant in tail without issue, not through or under him, but by a new limitation in remainder, is entitled to continue suit of former tenant in tail, and to benefit of proceedings by supplemental bill. Lloyd v. Jones, 9 Ves. 37. TEN. IN TAIL; PL. ABATEMENT & REVIVOR.

It is not necessary to file a supplemental bill in order to state that an adversus has been executed, and possession changed pending the cause. O'Connor v. Spaight, 1 Scho. & L. 306.

Supplemental bill stating facts posterior to original bill, but which were immaterial or might be considered by master under decree to be made in original suit, held demurrable. Adams v. Dowding, 2 Mad. 53.

Supplemental bill of discovery held, on demurrer, to be good, it enquiring as to material facts which occurred since filing original bill. Ushorne v. Baker, 79. SUPPLEMENTAL BILL.

Where a fact is put in issue by the original cause, and evidence examined to it, no evidence can be adduced upon that fact upon a supplemental bill, neither will equity assist a party to make out a different case upon a second trial at law upon that which he made upon the first. Cockburn v. Hussey, 2 Ridg. P. C. 504. PR. EVIDENCE.

New plaintiff by supplemental bill may impeach a decree upon rehearing, on petition of former parties. Hill v. Chapman, 1 Ves. J. 405.

Money, the sum being small, ordered to be paid to assignees of a bankrupt on the bankrupt's petition without a supplemental bill. Secole v. Healey, 2 Bro. C. C. 322. PR. ABATEMENT & REVIVOR.

Bill of supplement is distinct record from original bill. Vire v. Glynn, Dick. 441.

After a cause is set down, the plaintiff can amend by making parties only, but cannot introduce new charges or put a material fact in issue which was not in issue in the cause before; the course is to file a supplemental bill. Goodwin v. Goodwin, 3 Atk. 370.

No supplemental bill grounded upon new matter discovered since decree, can be exhibited without special leave of court, and unless party exhibiting same, first deposit with registrar so much money as together with deposit by rules of court to be made in obtaining rehearing, will make up the sum of 50l. to answer costs and damages (if any) to the adverse party. Astel v. Montgomery, 2 Atk. 138.

New assignees under a commission of bankruptcy on filing a supplemental bill, shall have the benefit of the proceedings in the suit commenced by the old assignees. Anon. 1 Atk. 571. BANKCY. ASSESS.

A purchaser of an estate in controversy in the court of chancery, on filing supplemental bill comes pro bono et malo, and is liable to all costs from beginning to the end of a suit. S. C. id. ALIENATIONS, PENDENTE LITTE.

It is a constant rule that matters subsequent to the original bill must come by way of supplemental bill and revivor. Brown v. Higden, 1 Atk. 291. PL. BILL OF REVIVOR.

Pending appeal, plaintiff files supplemental bill to carry decree, &c. held regular. Woodward v. Woodward, Dick. 33.

4. Supplemental Bill in nature of Review and Revivor.

Leave to file a supplemental bill in the nature of a bill of review, to introduce new evidence, refused, where the proper means of searching for it had not been used previously to the decree. Bingham v. Dawson, 1 Jac. 243.

To entitle party to file a supplemental bill in nature of review, it is necessary that the new matter should be discovered after time when it could have been introduced into the cause; and the matter should be not only new but material, and such as if unanswered in point of fact would clearly entitle plaintiff to decree, or would raise question of so much nicety and difficulty, as to be a fit subject of judgment in a cause. Ord v. Noel, 6 Mad. 127.

A suit having been instituted by a deviser and revived by a party as devisee, whose supposed right is displaced by the discovery of a later will, the cause cannot be continued for the benefit of the effective devisee, by agreement between that devisee and the plaintiff in the suit, so as to enable the devisee under the second will, (not being a party to the suit), to appeal against the decree; and an appeal cause cannot be heard before the court of appeal until he is made a party in the suit below. In such a case, where the suit had been originally instituted by the deviser, and upon his death revived by the party claiming under the first will, semb. that the proper course to be adopted by the devisee under the second, is not (as in this case) to file a supplemental bill, praying to have the benefit of the proceedings in the revived suit, but to revive, de novo, the suit as abated on the death of the devisor. Rulands v. Latouche, 2 Bligh, 566. PR. APPEAL; DEVISEE; PR. DECREE.

The case is different where a decree is defective only because incidental parties are not before the court; as in the case of an assignment in trust for payment of debts, reserving the surplus if the assignee obtains a decree, and afterwards it appears that he had assigned his interest before the decree, his assignees may, by supplemental bill, have the benefit of that decree. Binks v. Binks, id. 593. Id.

Application by defendant for liberty to file a supplemental bill, in aid of a rehearing, to put in issue evidence discovered during and since the hearing, refused, the evidence discovered being a deed, and proceedings in suits to which the defendant was a party and must have been apprised of their nature, and by negligence lost the benefit of them as a defence, and the object of the supplemental bill being to abandon the original defence, and rely on a new one. Blake v. Foster, 2 Ball & B. 457. LACHES; REHEARING.

Upon supplemental bill in nature of a bill of review, the question always is, not what the plaintiff knew, but what, using all due diligence, he might have known. Id. 461.

After a great lapse of time and the deaths of parties, from the residence abroad of the defendant, and upon an affidavit by him and his solicitor, that they had not discovered deeds material for his defence, until after issue joined; leave was given to file a supplemental bill to put them in issue, and they were admitted in evidence upon a rehearing. Barrington v. O'Brien, 2 Ball & B. 140. LENGTH OF TIME; EVIDENCE; REHEARING.

In giving leave to file supplemental bills, on the grounds of evidence newly discovered, diligence to discover them forms an ingredient in the mind of the court. Id. 142. EVIDENCE.

Distinction between a bill of review, and a supplemental bill in nature of it. If the decree is enrolled, it is strictly a bill of review; and prays, that the decree may be reviewed and reversed; if not enrolled, the prayer is, that the cause may be reheard. In either, matter of supplement or revivor may be introduced, with the proper prayer. Perry v. Phelps, 17 Ves. 177. PL. BILL OF REVIEW.

Devisee can only revive decree by supplemental bill in nature of revivor. Whitehear v. Hughes, Dick. 283.

It is not necessary to make the defendants to an original bill, parties to a supplemental bill in nature of a bill of revivor. Jones v. Jones, 3 Atk. 217. PL. PARTIES.

Supplemental bill in nature of review is proper where decree is not enrolled. Lewellen v. Mackworth, 2 Atk. 40. S. C. Barn. 445.

When supplemental bill is brought for new matter discovered since hearing of cause, but before decree is enrolled, if defendant is able to show that there is no new matter discovered, he must take advantage of it by plea, &c. and cannot insist on it merely at the hearing. Id. ib. PR. HEARING.

5. Bill of Review—Where it lies—Steps necessary for bringing, and by and against whom.

Decisions on bills of review upon facts newly discovered have been on new evidence, which, if produced in time, would have supported the original cause; but not applicable where the original cause does not admit the introduction of the evidence as not being put originally in issue. Blake v. Foster, 2 Ball & B. 462.

An erroneous result in point of law drawn by the court from facts apparent on the record, is the proper subject of a bill of review for error apparent on the decree. A fact misunderstood by the court and not introduced into the decree may be ground for an appeal, but not for a bill of review. O'Brien v. Connor, 2 Ball & B. 154. APPEAL.

To a bill of review and reversal for error apparent on the decree, a plea of the decree and a demurrer against opening the inrollment allowed. The facts constituting the error not forming part of the record of the decree, being neither proved or relied on at the original hearing. Id. 146. PLEA OF DECREE.

Bill of review may be also a bill of revivor and supplement. Perry v. Phelps, 17 Ves. 173.

Error apparent, to support a bill of review, must be plain and obvious; as a decree against an infant without a day to shew cause: not merely an erroneous judgment; which might be the subject of a re-hearing. Id. ib.

For a bill of review on newly discovered facts, the leave of the court necessary. Id. 177.

Distinction between a bill of review, and a supplemental bill in nature of it. If the decree is enrolled, it is strictly a bill of review; and prays, that the decree may be reviewed and reversed: if not enrolled, the prayer is, that the cause may be reheard. In either, matter of supplement or revivor may be introduced, with the proper prayer. Id. ib. PL. SUPPLEMENTAL BILL IN NATURE OF BILL OF REVIEW.

Petition for leave to file bill of review, after a decree, affirmed on rehearing, and pending an appeal to the house of lords for the purpose of introducing evidence, in answer to evidence admitted by surprise; viz. not in answer to an interrogatory, nor the subject directly in issue, the decree not being made upon that evidence, was refused with costs. Willan v. Willan, 16 Ves. 72.

Bill of review, or a supplemental bill in nature of review, where the decree has not been enrolled upon new evidence discovered since publication, not permitted to introduce a new case of which the party was sufficiently apprised, to enable him with reasonable diligence to have put it upon the record originally. Young v. Knight, 16 Ves. 348.

Grounds of bill of review; error apparent; or new evidence discovered since publication as to a material fact. Id. 350.

Petition for rehearing or for bill of review, is bad for uncertainty. Hyde v. Donne, 2 Anst. 551. PR. REHEARING; PETITION FOR.

Though a bill of review cannot in general be brought to reverse a decree after twenty years, that bar does not apply to persons having contingent interest, and then not existing, or under disabilities. Lytton v. Lytton, 4 Bro. C. C. 441. LENGTH OF TIME; INTERESTS CONTINGENT.

It is in the discretion of the court to give leave to file a bill of review on the discovery of new evidence. It was refused in this case, as it tended to deprive creditors of payment of their just debts. Wilson v. Webb, 2 Cox, 3. JURISDICTION.

Mere injustice is no ground for bill of review. There must be injustice apparent on record to a party to suit, for neither assignee nor devisee can have relief by such bill. Though plaintiff is confined to errors on record, defendant is at liberty to allege every matter relevant to his defence, whether in or out of record, by way of release, &c. to prevent disturbing decree. And when pleaded the court is to judge whether the matter alleged, is sufficient to preclude the plaintiff from the review he seeks. Hartwell v. Townsend, 2 Bro. P. C. 107. S. P. Slingsby v. Hale, 1 Ch. Cas. 122.

Parties to decree, must all be parties to bill of review. Id. ib. PR. PARTIES.

Bill of review for error apparent will not lie after twenty years from the making of the decree. The time runs from the decree, not from the enrolment. Smith v. Clay, Amb. 645. LENGTH OF TIME.

Demurrer of length of time, to bill of review after twenty-seven years allowed. Sherrington v. Smith, 2 Bro. P. C. 62. Id.

As to length of time in general, in bar to bill of review. See Edwards v. Carroll, id. 98. Id.

Allowance of a debt in the master's report which had been obtained by fraud, rectified, the proper mode of proceeding being by original bill, not by bill of review; and held, that it was not necessary to pray specifically, that the act of the court should be set aside, plaintiff having made a sufficient case to obtain that relief under the prayer for general relief. Manaton v. Molesworth, 1 Eden, 18. PR. MASTER'S REPORT.

A bill of review, with matter come to the party's knowledge since the hearing, lies, where the plaintiff in the bill has since the hearing discovered matter which would vary the decree; and where, if such matter was known to the other party, he was not in conscience obliged to have discovered it to the court. For if the matter was known to the other party, and such as in conscience he ought to have discovered, he obtains the decree by fraud, and it ought to be set aside by original bill. Id. 25. FRAUD, DECREE OBTAINED BY.

Bill of review granted on new matter discovered. Portsmouth v. Effingham, 1 Ves. 430.

Mere negligence or forgetfulness of matter, &c. is no ground for a bill of review. Judlow v. Macartney, 2 Bro. P. C. 67.

There are two grounds for review; one, error on decree apparent; and the other, new matter arising after decree, or which could not have been proved when decree passed, and was unknown to either party. Le Neve v. Norris, id. 73.

Where bill of review is filed without leave for reversing former decree, specifies errors in decree, and contains original matter, it is irregular. Houghton v. West, id. 88.

It is sufficient to entitle a party to a bill of review, if the new proof did not come to his knowledge till after publication; or, when by the rules of the court he could not make use of it. Norris v. Le Neve, 3 Atk. 36. Ridg. 322.

If on bill of review facts are put in issue, the party is not obliged to point out what will be the effects of them, for the court is to make the inference of law from them, as ex facto oritur jus. Id. 36.

Upon application for new bill upon new matter discovered after decree, it must be shewn to be relevant; for being new matter merely, will not entitle them to such a bill. Bennet v. Jee, 2 Atk. 529.

Bill of review after two trials, and a decree to establish the will. Upon discovery of new matter another trial ordered, and a verdict for the heir at law and the former decree reversed. Att. Gen. v. Turner, Amb. 587.

Bill of review of a decree of foreclosure was dismissed, where it appeared the defendant's agent, attorney and solicitor, had attended the master on his behalf, in taking the account under the decree. Gould v. Tancred, 2 Atk. 532.

Leave of the court must be asked, before a bill of review for new matter can be filed; otherwise if brought to reverse a decree upon error appearing on the face of it. S. C. id. 534.

To oblige a man to sign and enrol a decree made against himself, in order to entitle him to bring a bill of review, is altogether unnecessary. Standish v. Radley, id. 177.

Where decree has not been signed and enrolled, a bill in the nature of a bill of review is a proper one. Id.

The discovery of new matter in being at the time of the decree, but not known till after, entitles the party to a review. Id.

If a decree be obtained and enrolled, so that the cause cannot be reheard, then there is no remedy but by bill of review; which must be on error appearing on the face of the decree, or on some new matter, as a release or a receipt discovered since. Taylor v. Sharp, 3 P. W. 371.

On every bill of review the plaintiff must deposit 50*l.* in order to answer costs; but no need of leave of the court for such bill of review, unless it be founded upon new matter, and then the leave of the court is necessary, as well as the depositing of 50*l.* Anon. 2 P. W. 283.

After decree for payment of money. Money must be paid before bill of review can be brought. Bp. of Durham v. Liddell, 2 Bro. P. C. 63. But court dispensed with rule upon defendant giving good security for payment of money decreed. Savil v. Darcy, 1 Ch. Ca. 42. 2 Freem. 172.

As to bill of review. 1 Eq. Ab. 81. 1 Roll. Ab. 332.

A man cannot bring a new bill of review after a demurrer allowed to a former bill of review. Pitt v. Arglass, 1 Vern. 441. PR. DEMURRER.

Plaintiff allowed to bring a bill of review without paying the costs decreed in the original cause, upon making oath he was not worth 40*l.* besides the matter in question. Fitton v. Macclesfield, 1 Vern. 264. 2 Freem. 88. PR. PAUPER; PR. COSTS.

Decree cannot be varied by original bill. Davis v. Larner, Dick. 42.

Bill of review lies, though decree not signed and enrolled. Id. ib.

No limitation of time for bringing a bill of review; yet, after a long acquiescence under a decree, the court will not reverse it but upon very apparent errors. Fitton v. Macclesfield, 1 Vern. 287. LENGTH OF TIME.

Order for dispensing with costs upon bringing a bill of review, ought to be set out in the bill. Id. 292. PR. COSTS.

The plaintiff not allowed to bring a bill of review, unless he performed the decree, or would swear he was unable to do it, and would surrender himself to the Fleet, to lie there till the matter on the bill of review was determined. Williams v. Mellish, 1 Vern. 117.

Upon a bill of review, the party cannot assign for error, that any of the matters decreed are contrary to the proofs in the cause, but must shew some error appearing in the body of the decree, or new matter discovered since the decree. Id. 166.

In a bill of review you may add a supplemental bill. Price v. Keyte, 1 Vern. 135. But see note there.

A bill of review lies not after a demurrer to a former bill of review allowed. Dunne v. Filmore, 1 Vern. 135. S. C. 2 Ch. Ca. 133. PR. DEMURRER.

Bill of review of a decree by consent, dismissed. Webb v. Webb, 3 Swan. 658. CONSENT.

A bill of review may be sustained by the party in whose favour the decree is made, and who enrolled it. Vandebende v. Livingston, 3 Swan. 625.

If a fact be mistaken at the hearing the decretal order, it must be rectified by re-hearing. Combs v. Proud, 1 C. C. 54. 2 Free. 182. PR. RE-HEARING, WHERE GRANTED.

In a bill of review, all things are to be performed according to the former decree that do not extinguish the right; otherwise, the non-performance is a good plea in bar, as if writings are to be brought into court or costs paid, but not to release the right, or make a conveyance, as that would destroy the right. Fittou v. Ld. Macclesfield, 2 Free. 88. Anon. 12 Mod. 343.

The new matter ought to be such as may be used as evidence of what was in issue in the cause. Patterson v. Slaughter, Amb. 293. See contra Anon. 2 Free. 31.

There can be no bill of review for any matter subsequent to the decree, as the plaintiff's confession. Curtis v. Smallridge, 2 Freem. 178. 1 C. C. 43.

Where the matters mentioned in the decree as proved were, in fact, not proved, it is not error to found a bill of review; for if the fact should be mistaken, it should be remedied by hearing before enrolment. Combs v. Proud, 1 C. C. 54. 2 Free. 182.

Matter of abatement is not error upon which to found a bill of review. Slingsby v. Hale, 1 C. C. 122. Ly. Cramborne v. Dalmahoy, 1 C. R. 231. 2 Free. 169.

A bill of review cannot be filed by the party in favour of whom the decree was pronounced. Glover v. Portington, 2 Free. 182. But see S. C. 1 C. C. 53, where the demurrer is said to have been over-ruled, and the bill consequently allowed. See also 3 Swan. 625.

The defendant, an infant, appealed, in the house of lords, from a decree obtained without examining witnesses; and a petition for leave to examine witnesses upon the appeal was rejected. This is no objection to the appellants bringing a bill of review. Needler v. Kendall, Rep. T. Finch, 468.

A bill of review will not lie against those who were not parties to the original bill. El. Carlisle v. Goble, 3 C. R. 94. Nel. 52. 2 Free. 148.

6. Bill of Revivor, and Original in Nature of Revivor.

Where, under order in creditor's suit, leave is given to file supplemental bill by creditor not party to original suit, on behalf of himself and other creditors, to have benefit of decree in that suit, plaintiff is entitled to same decree, to have benefit of former proceedings, as representatives of the original plaintiff would have been entitled on bill of revivor. Houlditch v. Donegall, 1 S. & S. 491. PR. DECREE; PR. BILL OF SUPPLEMENT.

Defendant to a bill of revivor cannot put new matter on record; which might, if stated in the answer to the original bill, have produced a different decree; it would be impertinent. Nanney v. Totty, 11 Price, 117. PL. ANSWER; PL. IMPERTINENCE.

If a bill be not properly a bill of revivor, or if plaintiff be not a party entitled to file a bill of revivor, the defendant should demur, as, by answering, he waives the objection. Id. ib.

Suit for specific performance of contract to purchase freehold; defendant had paid several large sums on account of the purchase-money, and a considerable portion was still due. He died when cause was at issue, leaving real and personal to infant children. Plaintiffs revived against executors only. Held that infant devisees were necessary parties. Suit ordered to stand over to amend, in that respect, by supplemental bill. Townsend v. Champervorne, 9 Price, 130. PL. PARTIES; DEVISEES.

Statute of limitations cannot be pleaded in bar to a bill of revivor, after a decree to account. Egremont v. Hamilton, 1 Ball & B. 531. STAT. OF LIMITATIONS; PL. PLEA OF STAT. OF LIMITATIONS; PR. DECREE TO ACCOUNT.

Abatement by the death of one of the plaintiffs, tenants in common; bill of revivor by his representative. The survivor, if not co-plaintiff, must be made defendant. Fallowes v. Williamson, 11 Ves. 306. PL. PARTIES; TENANTS IN COMMON.

Plea to bill of revivor for costs which had been taxed and ordered to be paid into the bank, overruled. Hall v. Smith, 1 Bro. C. C. 438. S. C. 2 Dick. 649. PL. PLEA; COSTS TAXED.

It is a constant rule, that matters subsequent to the original bill must come by way of supplemental bill and revivor. Brown v. Higden, 1 Ark. 291. BILL, SUPPLEMENTAL.

Defendant, as well as plaintiff, may bring a bill of revivor. Finch v. Ld. Winchester, 1 Eq. Ab. 2. PARTIES.

Bill of revivor must show that plaintiff has proved testator's will. Humphreys v. Inledon, Dick. 38.

Original bill, in nature of revivor only, does not open first decree. Tare v. Wardall, 1 Eq. Ab. 83. PR. DECREE.

Creditors admitted to come in may revive. Pitt v. Richmond, id. 3. PARTIES.

Heir and administrator of intestate must be parties to revive a decree for payment of money, and for conveying of lands. Ferrers v. Cherry, id. PL. PARTY.

Revivor of suit against husband and wife, on death of husband against wife, need not be by original bill. Ruthel v. Litton, Cary, 70.

Wife, after death of husband, sueth bill of revivor, and good. Parrot v. Rowdall, id.

If one defendant is not charged in bill of revivor, ordered he shall be discharged, unless cause shown in a day. Heines v. Day, Cary, 55.

7. Amended Bill.

Original bill filed to redeem mortgage, and answer put in showing plaintiff had no title to redeem. Plaintiff afterwards purchases title to redeem, and amends bill, and proceeds on it. Demurrer to amended bill allowed, on ground that it should have been carried on by supplemental bill; on application full costs were given. Pilkington v. Wignall, 2 Mad. 240. PL. DEMURRER.

It is not impertinent in amended bill to set forth part of answer by way of pretence, and interrogate as to it. Seetley v. Boehm, 2 Mad. 176. PL. IMPERTINENCE.

Defendant in his answer stated facts which had occurred since the filing of the bill, upon which the plaintiff amended his bill, stating facts more fully, on which the defendant pleaded as to part, demurred as to other part, and answered as to rest of amended bill: plea and demurrer overruled. Knight v. Mathews, 1 Mad. 566.

An amended bill repeating all the charges and allegations in the original bill, is prolix. Willis v. Evans, 2 Ball & B. 225.

In a bill for the specific execution of an agreement the plaintiff may abandon the agreement, and may by amended bill, seek to have the benefit of an agreement, admitted in the answer, and by charging that the allegations in the original are equally applicable to the agreement in the amended bill, may refer to them without repeating them, and thereby obtain all the benefit of the evidence stated as applicable to the first agreement. Id. 228. SPEC. PERF.

To an amended bill, a demurrer as to so much as had not been answered in the answer to the original bill, is bad. Mynd v. Francis, 1 Anst. 6. PL. DEMURRER.

8. Cross Bill.

Rector of M. claiming tithes in kind, the occupier and landlord filed a cross bill to establish modus payable to rector of S by the lord of the liberty of which the lands were parcel. It was objected, 1st, That the rector of S not disputing the modus, a bill would not lie to establish it; 2d, that the other owners of lands in the liberty should have been parties. Bill dismissed. Woolston v. Wright, 3 Anst. 801. TITHES, MODUS; PL. PARTY.

Whenever a defendant wants a discovery of a dein the hands of the plaintiff, he must file a cross bill for the purpose, although the deed be referred to by the original bill as being in the plaintiff's custody, and ready to be produced as the court should direct. Spragg v. Corner, 2 Cox, 103. PR. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS; DISCOVERY.

Where bill prays account, and allowances in that account, a defendant may equally object as if he had filed his cross bill. Adiff v. Murray, 2 Atk. 59. ACCOUNT.

9. Bill for Discovery and Relief generally.

Where specific relief is prayed, the ground for which fails, the plaintiff under the prayer for general relief can have such relief only as is consistent with the facts clearly and fully stated in the bill. King v. Rossett, 2 Y. & J. 33.

Where relief is prayed, and discovery as auxiliary only to that relief, if the ground for relief fails, the discovery cannot be obtained. Id. ib. PL. DISCOVERY.

Prima facie discovery is incidental to relief. Angell v. Angell, 1 S. & S. 83. DISCOVERY.

Plea to all relief and part of discovery, and answer to rest; plea overruled. James v. Sadgrove, 1 S. & S. 4. PLEA; DISCOVERY; ANSWER.

But otherwise if answer had been to matter in bill, which would have repelled defence by plea. Id. ib.

Where bill is for discovery in aid of defence at law, and for equitable relief, plea of title in defendant in equity to whole bill, though it might be good to relief, is bad to discovery. Gait v. Osbaldeston, 5 Mad. 428. But overruled on appeal, 1 Russ. 158. PL. PLEA; TITLE; PL. DISCOVERY.

Relief may be had under the general prayer without any particular prayer. Wilkinson v. Beal, 4 Mad. 408. PL. PRAYER.

In a bill for discovery and relief, a plaintiff not entitled to relief is not entitled to discovery. The converse of the rule will not hold. Att. Gen. v. Brown, 1 Swan. 294. PL. DISCOVERY.

Plaintiff not entitled to relief cannot have discovery. Hadley v. Hadley, 1 V. & B. 539. IB.

The rule that the plaintiff being entitled to discovery only, and not to the relief, a general demurrer lies, does not prevent a demurrer to relief giving the discovery. Trot v. Gee, 17 Ves. 273. PL. DEMURRER; PL. DISCOVERY.

Demurrer good to relief is good to discovery sought with a view to the relief. Baker v. Mellish, 10 Ves. 544. DEMURRER; DISCOVERY.

Plea allowed as to the relief, therefore good to discovery also, according to general rule. Sutton v. El. Scarborough, 9 Ves. 71. PL. PLEA; PL. DISCOVERY.

Where the plaintiff is entitled to the discovery he seeks in support of an action, a prayer for general relief, or for relief that is consequential to the prayer for discovery, as an injunction, will not sustain a demurrer. Brandon v. Sands, 2 Ves. J. 514. PL. DISCOVERY; PL. DEMURRER.

Where a bill prays relief and discovery, the plaintiff being entitled to discovery only, a general demurrer allowed. Colles v. Swayne, 4 Bro. C. C. 480. PL. DISCOVERY; PL. DEMURRER.

General demurrer allowed to a bill praying discovery and relief, where the relief is at law. Price v. James, 2 Bro. C. C. 319. S. C. 2 Dick. 697. IB.

A bill proper for discovery only, prays relief, yet a general demurrer was overruled, but without costs. Fry v. Penn, 2 Bro. C. C. 280. Sed quære, see id. 319. IB.

Title of purchase for valuable consideration is a good ground of defence, but not for relief. Patterson v. Slaughter, Ambli. 293. VEND. & PURCH.; PL. DEFENCE.

On bill to discover assets, equity can also give relief by decreeing payment of debt. Heath v. Percival, 1 Stra. 403. DISCOVERY; JURISDICTION.

10. Bill of Discovery.

A plea that the plaintiff has no interest in the subject of the suit, is a good plea to a bill for discovery and a commission. Mendizabel v. Machado, 1 Sim. 68. PL. PLEA.

Bill for discovery of money won at play under 9 Anne, c. 14. s. 3. dont lie against common informer suing for penalties. Orme v. Crockford, 1 M'Clel. 185. S. C. 13 Price, 376. GAMING; PL. PARTIS.

Commission to examine abroad is not incidental to discovery, therefore, though court refused discovery, it may grant commission. Thorpe v. Macanley, 5 Mad. 219. PR. COMMISSION TO EXAMINE ABROAD.

On bill for discovery and injunction to stay proceedings at law on bill of exchange, and for delivery up of bill to be cancelled, and charging fraud, not answered by defendant: If discovery obtained would be a defence at law, injunction to stay proceedings was refused, but granted to stay execution. Hoadlitch v. Niss, 8 Price, 689. PR. IN EXCH.; INJUNCTION TO STAY PROCEEDINGS AT LAW.

Bill by under-writers for discovery and commission to examine abroad, and injunction to stay proceedings at law against them on policy in meantime, praying relief, is not a bill for discovery merely, but for relief, and not demurrable as a bill for discovery praying relief for which there was no equity. Allan v. Copeland, 8 Price, 522.

Bill of discovery must state for what purpose discovery is sought or demurrable. Cardall v. Watkins, 5 Mad. 18.

Where bill prays relief against all defendants but one, against whom it only prays discovery, he cannot after answer, obtain order for costs; such order discharged. Att. Gen. v. Burch, 4 Mad. 178. PR. COSTS; WAIVER.

After a verdict at law, a bill, with proper charges, may be sustained for the discovery of documents necessary to a fair decision. Field v. Beaumont, 1 Swan. 209. VERDICT AT LAW.

Seemle, bill dont lie by purchaser from contingent remainder-man, for inspection of title deeds in hands of tenant for life. Noel v. Ward, 1 Mad. 322. TITLE DEEDS; TEN. FOR LIFE & REM.-MAN.

Plaintiff entitled to discovery only, praying relief, general demurrer lies. Albrecht v. Susman, 2 V. & B. 328. DEMURRER.

After an order in bankruptcy, for liberty to bring an action, with special direction for a production of papers, and not to set up the bankruptcy, a bill of discovery cannot be filed. Cooke v. Marsh, 18 Ves. 209. PR. ORDER, C. OR.

Defendant to a bill of discovery is entitled to the costs of the discovery immediately on putting in a full answer, and his right to these costs is not waived by his subsequently accepting the costs of an amendment, nor by his neglecting to serve the plaintiff with the order for costs of discovery, until after he has himself been served with the order to amend. Coventry v. Bentley, 3 Mer. 677. PR. COSTS.

The proper time to pray for costs of discovery is after the commission is returned. Banbury v. —, 9 Ves. 103. PR. COSTS.

Equity has no jurisdiction under 9 Anne, c. 14. or 18 G. 2. c. 24. to enforce discovery, prayed by common informer, of money won at play. Holloway v. Shakespeare, 1 Smith, 121. JURISDICTION.

Account is consequential upon discovery, though there might be a proceeding at law. Barker v. Dacie, 6 Ves. 688. JURISDICTION; ACCOUNT.

Plaintiff pays the costs upon a bill of discovery. Simmonds v. Id. Kinnaird, 4 Ves. 746. Pr. Costs.

In a bill of discovery to support an action by a common informer, for money won at play, it is sufficient to state that the defendants, or some of them for the benefit and on account of all, played and won. In such a bill it is not necessary to state the nature of the action brought; it is enough to say that an action was brought on the statute 9 Anne, to recover the money, and to shew by the facts that an action on the statute lay. Cocan v. Phillips, 3 Anst. 843. but this is overruled 13 Price, 376. S. C. 1 McClell. 185. GAMING; Pl. BILL.

A bill for discovery of the contents of a lost deed, and to have a new one executed, must be accompanied by an affidavit of the loss of the former. Rotham v. Dawson, 3 Anst. 859. LOSS OF DEEDS.

A bill lies to have discovery of the consideration of a security alleged to be given for money lost at play, and to have it delivered up. Andrews v. Berry, 3 Anst. 634. GAMING.

After judgment by default in an action upon a dividend under a commission of bankruptcy, the assignees filed a bill for discovery, and to have the proof of the debt expunged; demurrer allowed, the course being by petition. Clarke v. Capron, 2 Ves. J. 666. BANCY. PETITION; BANCY. EXPUNGING PROOF.

Action on bills of exchange; bill to have them delivered up as being given on a gaming transaction; demurrer was overruled. Newman v. Franco, 2 Anst. 519. Pl. DEMURRER; Pr. DELIVERY UP OF DEEDS.

Bill against winner of more than 10l. at play must state plaintiff to be the loser, or that three months have elapsed since offence. Hudson v. Davis, 2 Anst. 504. GAMING.

Plea of alien enemy is good to a bill for discovery. Such a plea stating this nation to be at war with the government of France, and that the plaintiffs are Frenchmen aliens, and enemies of the king, is sufficient. Doubigny v. Davallon, 2 Anst. 462. ALIEN ENEMY; Plea.

If plaintiff is entitled to the discovery he seeks in support of an action; a prayer for general relief, or for relief that is consequential to the prayer for discovery, as an injunction will not sustain a demurrer. Brandon v. Sands, 2 Ves. J. 514. Pl. RELIEF; Pl. DEMURRER.

Bill for discovery, and a delivery of a settlement under which plaintiff claimed, and other title deeds and possession of the estate; demurrer to all the relief, and all the discovery, except of the settlement, for want of equity, and answer admitting the settlement, and offering to produce it, and denying that defendant had any other relative to plaintiff's title, the title being legal, the court would only order the settlement to be produced at the trial; the demurrer, therefore, going to all the relief, the defendant had leave to amend. Renison v. Ashley, 2 Ves. J. 459. Pl. ANSWER, AMENDMENT OF; PRODUCTION OF DEEDS.

Bill of discovery in aid of an action of covenant; plea, a clause in the articles that any dispute should be referred. Plea overruled, discovery being of course while an action is brought and can be maintained. Mitchell v. Harris, 2 Ves. J. 129. 4 Bro. C. C. 311. Pl. Plea.

Where in a suit for tithes, the title to the rectory is in issue to a cross bill, praying a discovery of the title, the rector cannot demur, although no other title is set up. Bozman v. Lygon, 1 Anst. 4. DEMURRER; TITLE.

A bill for discovery of money, won at play by a common informer, will not lie till he has commenced some suit for relief. Mynd v. Francis, 1 Anst. 5. COMMON INFORMER; GAMING.

On a bill for discovery, the answer of the party interested cannot be dispensed with though an infant; and although the person, from whom his father purchased the right, has answered, and denied any knowledge of the circumstances. Hardcastle v. Shafto, 1 Anst. 77. ANSWER.

On bill for discovery and injunction, and commission abroad, defendant held entitled to costs of discovery, and injunction as incidental thereto, but costs refused to either party, as to commission. London Assurance Comp. v. Hankey, 1 Anst. 9. Pr. COSTS.

Rule that plaintiff, in bill of discovery, shall pay costs in all cases, is too general; he ought only where he files a bill in the first instance, not where compelled to it by defendant's refusal. Raymouth v. Boyer, 1 Ves. J. 423. COSTS.

Upon bill by heir at law for discovering and delivering up or depositing title deeds against persons in possession of them as executors, and in possession of the premises by agreement with a tenant by the courtesy, plaintiff need not state every link in his pedigree. Ford v. Peering, 1 Ves. J. 72. HEIR AT LAW.

General demurrer allowed to a bill, praying discovery and relief, where the relief is at law. Price v. James, 2 Bro. C. C. 319. S. C. 2 Dick. 697. Pl. DEMURRER; Pl. RELIEF.

Whenever a defendant wants a discovery of a deed in the hands of the plaintiff, he must file a cross bill for the purpose, although the deed be referred to by the original bill, as being in the plaintiff's custody, and ready to be produced as the court should direct. Spragg v. Comer, 2 Cox. 109. Pr. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS; CROSS BILL.

A bill proper for discovery only prays relief, yet a general demurrer was overruled, but without costs. Fry v. Penn, 2 Bro. C. C. 280. Sed quare. Id. 319. Pl. DEMURRER; Pl. RELIEF.

A, being entitled under a will to the use of certain articles of plate for her life, pawned them with B, who kept an open pawnbroker's shop. Bill was filed by the representatives of the testator after the death of A, against B for a discovery of the particular articles pawned, in order to enable the plaintiff to proceed in an action at law for the recovery of them. To this discovery the defendant pleaded certain articles of plate were deposited with him for certain sums of money bona fide lent and advanced thereon to A; but he did not, by his plea, (though he did by his answer), aver that he had no other articles of plate in his possession. For this defect in point of form, the plea was overruled. The defendant then insisted on the same point, by his answer in bar to the discovery; but the court thought, that where a plea to a bill of discovery was overruled the defendant could never insist on the same thing by answer. Horne v. Parker, 1 Cox, 224. S. C. 1 Bro. C. C. 578. Pl. Plea; Pl. ANSWER.

Plea of matter, which would be a good plea to the action at law, is not a good plea here to a bill for discovery leading to legal relief. Hutcheon v. Taylor, 2 Bro. C. C. 7. Pl. Plea.

A demurrer will not lie to a bill merely for a discovery to enable the plaintiff to go to law, on the ground that the plaintiff had not brought his action. Mandulay v. Morton, 1 Bro. C. C. 469. S. C. 2 Dick. 652. Pl. DEMURRER.

Plea that a writ of right has been tried, and determined against the plaintiff, a good plea for a bill of discovery of matter relating to the title. Leicester v. Perry, 1 Bro. C. C. 305. Pl. Plea.

Bill for account of goods landed at a certain quay, the plaintiff claiming a right of toll by prescription. Defendant denied plaintiff's title, and refused to discover the goods: Held, he was not compellable till plaintiff had established his right at law. Northleg v. Tuscombe, Amb. 612. TITLE.

Bill against children of discovery for sums advanced to them, pendente lite, by their father, an insolvent executor. It appears, on the answers, that two of them received 500*l.* each on their marriage, but two others received 500*l.* each for their maintenance. It was decreed that the two last should refund, although they denied knowledge of their father's insolvency. Partridge v. Gopp, Amb. 596. EXECUTOR ; FRAUDULENT GIFTS.

Bill by disinherited heir at law to have inspection of deeds dismissed without costs. Leman v. Alie, Amb. 163. HEIR AT LAW ; COSTS.

If heir at law bring bill for discovery, it is not of course that he shall pay costs, but shall be allowed to amend and pray inspection of deeds. Id. ib. HEIR AT LAW ; COSTS.

Bill of discovery lies to aid proceedings here or at law, as to a civil right, not indictment or information, nor by a lord for discovery whether this or that person is capable to answer an heriot. Ld. Montague v. Dudman, 2 Ves. 398.

Bill lies to discover the title of a person bringing ejectment, and to see if it is not in some other. Metcalf v. Hervey, 1 Ves. 249. TITLE.

Abatement after answer to bill of discovery, suit cannot be revived. Gould v. Barnes. Dick. 133.

Where a bill is brought for the discovery of concealments of a bankrupt's estate, the court will not allow defendants to look into their depositions taken by the commissioners before they put in their answer. Roden v. Dellon, 1 Atk. 289. BANKCY. ; INSPECTION OF PROCEEDINGS.

In a bill to stay waste, a plaintiff is not entitled to discovery unless he waives the double penalty. Butcher v. Allington, 3 Atk. 457. WASTE ; WAIVER OF PENALTIES.

Equity will dismiss bill for discovery of matters properly triable at law. Governors, &c. of Pens v. Hare, 2 Com. 694.

Defendant voluntarily entered into a bond to pay 500*l.*, or marry M within a twelvemonth. Under pretence of realising it, he carried it off without her consent. M brought her bill which, upon her death, was revived by her mother, the plaintiff: Held, that the plaintiff is not only intitled to a discovery here, but relief by payment of the money with interest from the day of filing the original bill. Atkins v. Farr, 1 Atk. 287.

A bill of discovery in aid of the jurisdiction of the ecclesiastical court is not admitted, because they are capable of coming at that discovery themselves. Dunn v. Coates, 1 Atk. 288. ECCLESIASTICAL COURT.

While a suit is depending in the ecclesiastical court for an administration, a bill may be brought for an account of the personal estate. Bill is allowed before probate, because the ecclesiastical court cannot secure the effects in the meantime. Phipps v. Steward, 1 Atk. 286.

Plea of fine and long possession under it, is a good bar to bill brought for discovery of deeds, declaring the uses of such fine. Holt v. Lowe, 5 Bro. P. C. 569. PL. PLEA.

On a bill to discover assets, equity can also give relief by decreeing payment of debt. Heath v. Percival, 1 Stra. 403. ACCOUNT ; RELIEF ; JURISDICTION.

If a bill pray discovery only, a plea to the discovery and relief is bad. Asgill v. Dawson, Bun. 70. PL. PLEA.

A remainder-man in tail, in a voluntary settlement, brings a bill for the discovery of the deed, and it appearing the entail was discontinued, the court would not relieve him. Kelley v. Berry, 2 Vern. 35. REMAINDER IN TAIL.

Bill of discovery lies in equity, though for matters sounding in trust. E. I. Comp. v. Evans, 1 Vern. 307.

Demurrer to a bill, brought to discover the tenant to the præcipe on a voluntary conveyance, allowed. Sherborne v. Clerk, 1 Vern. 273.

Bill by an administrator for discovery of the personal estate ; it is no bar to the discovery that the administration is litigated. Wright v. Bucks, 1 Vern. 106. ADMINISTRATOR.

11. Bill of Interpleader.

Stakeholder seeking to retain part of stake, cannot file interpleader, but must obtain injunction on order for time, & upon the answer. Mitchell v. Hayne, 2 S. & S. 63. STAKEHOLDER.

It is no objection to an interpleading bill, that a suit between the same parties, commenced by one of the claimants of the fund, is pending. Warrington v. Whelstone, 1 Jac. 202. PR. PENDENTE LITE.

Sheriff levying upon goods, alleged to be in settlement, cannot maintain a bill of interpleader. Slingsby v. Boulton, 1 V. & B. 334. SHERIFF.

Debtor on death of creditor is bound to pay to his representative, and cannot file bill for direction. Darthey v. Winter, 2 S. & S. 536. DEBTOR & CRED.

A bill of interpleader cannot be sustained upon equities ; the claims must be founded on legal rights, and must refer to precisely the same subject matter, and not to collateral demands arising out of the right immediately in dispute. Barclay v. Curtis, 9 Price, 661.

Agent to receive particular monies, is bound to pay the same over to principal, notwithstanding claims of third person ; therefore he cannot file bill of interpleader. Nicholson v. Knowles, 5 Mad. 47. PRIN. & AGENT.

Captain of ship may file interpleader where parties claim adversely under bill of lading. But otherwise, where paramount to it. Low v. Henderson, 3 Mad. 277. BILL OF LADING.

A debtor of the bankrupt cannot support an interpleading bill against the bankrupt and his assignees. Harlow v. Crowley, 1 Buck, 273.

Plaintiff having parted with the property, cannot sustain an interpleading bill against different claimants, upon an undertaking to pay over the value to the party entitled. Burnett v. Anderson, 1 Mer. 405.

It is sufficient to support a bill of interpleader, that each of the defendants has a claim to the matter in question, although one only can maintain an action at law ; the principle being, to prevent a plaintiff from being double vexed. It is therefore not necessary that he should have been actually sued. Morgan v. Morsack, 2 Mer. 107.

Interpleader allowed by a factor against both defendants residing abroad, and one not appearing. The subject, a policy on a cargo lost, for effecting which, the plaintiffs claimed to be reimbursed their expenses. Martinius v. Helmutz, Coop. 245. PRIN. & FACTOR.

An equitable claim against a legal right of action, is a ground of interpleader. Id. ib.

Interpleader ; all the defendants but one residing out of the jurisdiction in Scotland. The plaintiff after a reasonable time, having used due diligence to bring them in, being decreed to give up the subject to the only defendant appearing ; protected afterwards against the others by injunction and, order that service on the attorney should be good. Id. ib. 407. SECURITY ; JURISDICTION.

Bill of interpleader sustained upon bills of exchange, received by the plaintiff, as agent, to procure payment for his principal, in Scotland, to whom they were remitted, against an order for goods, pursued in an action of trover by the party who so remitted them, and by attachment in Scotland by a creditor of that party. Id. ib. PRIN. & AGENT ; BILL OF EXCHANGE.

Interpleader may be in favour of an insurance company against the landlord of premises which have been burnt down, but insured by him and the tenant of the premises, under an agreement for a lease, and claiming therefore a right to have the money laid out in rebuilding the premises. Paris v. Gilham, Coop. 56. INSURANCE ; LANDL. & TENANT.

Plaintiff in a bill of interpleader admits a title against himself in all the defendants ; and cannot say, that as to some he is a wrong doer. Slingsby v. Boulton, 1 V. & B. 534.

Interpleader upon colour of title given to a stranger. E. I. Comp. v. Edwards, 18 Ves. 376.

Interpleader on attorney's claim of lien upon a sum awarded as damages, under a judgment obtained by the client against the plaintiff. — v. Bolton, 18 Ves. 292. ATTORNEY & CLIENT ; LIEN.

Interpleader upon notice of a variety of claims by persons, among whom an entire charge upon an estate was split, though no suit instituted, and but one legal right of entry ; the principle being, not merely that the payment cannot be safely made, but that the party entitled to be discharged by a single payment should not be harassed by a number of suits. Angell v. Hadden, 15 Ves. 244.

The rule that a tenant cannot compel the landlord to interplead, does not prevail where the claim of a third person arises by the act of the landlord, subsequent to the commencement of the relation of landlord and tenant. Clarke v. Byrne, 13 Ves. 383. LANDL. & TENANT.

Devises filing a bill to establish a will, and carry the trusts into execution, have no right to call upon persons who claim paramount the will to litigate such claims with them. Dermisher v. Newenham, 2 Scho. & L. 199. DEVISEE ; WILL.

Tenant may file interpleader against his landlord, where it arises on act of landlord, subsequent to lease. Coutan v. Williams, 9 Ves. 107. LANDL. & TENANT.

A tenant, though threatened with suits at law on a title adverse to his landlord's, cannot make them interplead, Semble. Smith v. Target, 2 Anst. 529. LANDL. & TENANT.

A tenant cannot file an interpleading bill against his landlord. Where one claimant seeks a certain rent from the tenant in possession, and the other unliquidated damages for use and occupation, he cannot make them interplead. Johnson v. Atkinson, 3 Anst. 798. LANDL. & TENANT.

Tenant cannot file a bill of interpleader against his landlord, on notice of ejectment by a stranger, under a title adverse to that of the landlord. On suspicion of collusion, an inquiry into the circumstances was directed, and the report confirming the fraud, the bill was dismissed, with costs to the landlord, as between attorney and client, to be paid by the plaintiff and his solicitor, the latter to shew cause why he should not be struck off the roll. Dungey v. Angore, 2 Ves. J. 303. LANDL. & TENANT.

Bill of interpleader, is where two persons claim of a third the same debt, or the same duty. Id. 309.

An interpleading bill never suggests a case. Id. 311.

To support a bill of interpleader by a tenant, two persons must claim the same rent in privity of tenure and contract, as in the case of mortgagor and mortgagee, trustee and cestuique trust, &c. Id. 312.

A banker with whom property was deposited for safe custody, refused to deliver it to the owner, in prison under actions brought against him as partner in an insolvent mercantile house ; the banker was then served with attachments by the plaintiffs in those actions, and held to bail in trover by the owner : Held, that he was entitled to relief upon bill of interpleader ; but need not have come into equity ; as at law he would have been discharged on common bail upon bringing the deposit into court ; and proceedings in the action would have been stayed till the attachments were disposed of by the owner of the property, in the flame of the banker. Langston v. Boylston, 2 Ves. J. 101.

Where money in the public funds is the subject of a suit, to which the bank is made a defendant, the court will not, on the application of the bank, make any order on the litigating parties to restrain them from proceeding at law against the bank to compel a transfer, but they must file a bill of interpleader. Birch v. Corbin, 1 Cox, 144. BANK OF ENGLAND ; INJUNCTION.

Bill of interpleader dismissed with costs, where the question could be determined in the principal suit. Lloyd v. Tench, 2 Ves. 213.

Affidavit to bill of interpleader need not swear that it is at the plaintiff's own expence. Metcalf v. Hervey, 1 Ves. 248.

An executor, as he is in autre droit, unless he has proved testator's will, is not entitled to bring a bill of interpleader, till as standing in his place he has made himself a debtor : neither can he declare before probate, though he may bring an action. Mitchell v. Smart, 3 Atk. 606. EXECUTOR.

A demurrer allowed to a bill of interpleader, for that no legal step by distress or otherwise had been taken. Rowland v. Powell, Ridgw. 260.

Tenant paying rent into chancery is discharged. Alnate v. Bettam, Cary, 46.

Plaintiff in interpleader, if he behave properly, has costs of successful defendant, and latter has them again with his own from unsuccessful defendant. Hendry v. Key, Dick. 291.

Plaintiff must compel defendants to answer, and must reply, and have subpoena to rejoin, in order that defendant may examine witnesses. Id. ib.

12. Bills of Peace and Quia Timet.

A person having in articles of partnership, covenanted not to do certain acts after a specified period of time ; the court will not before the arrival of that period, grant an injunction to restrain him from acting in breach of his agreement, nor for mischief which is no breach at law of the covenant between the parties. Coates v. Coates, 6 Mad. 287. INJUNCTION.

The statutes providing for the relief of subject, accountants who have equities against the crown, held not to be confined to cases where the subject be actually sued or impleaded, but he may proceed by bill in equity in the first instance, and as it were quia timet, and that during the passing his accounts before the commissioners of audit. Colebrooke v. Att. Gen., 7 Pri. 146. STAT., C. OF; PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS.

Colonel of a regiment having taken a bond of indemnity from his agents, with another as surety, in respect of all charges, &c. to which he may become liable by their default, the agents having afterwards become bankrupt, and government having given notice to the representatives of the colonel (deceased) of a demand upon the colonel's estate, by virtue of an unliquidated account, a bill by the representatives of the colonel, against the representatives of the surety to pay the balance due to government, and also to set aside a sufficient sum out of their testator's estate to answer future contingent demands, though attempted to be supported upon the principle of a bill quia timet; dismissed with costs. Antobius v. Davidson, 3 Mer. 569.

Where title is defective, and acquiesced in with knowledge of its being so, then the possession is quieted. Hunce v. Gough, 1 Ball & B. 4. TITLE.

A covenant, that a specific sum should be paid to B, if B survived; A having aliened part of it; on a bill by B, A decreed to give security that it should be forthcoming. Flight v. Cook, 2 Ves. 619. SECURITY FOR PEACE, OF COURT.

Demurrer to bill to establish a right to an oyster fishery, as being a matter triable at law, allowed; the dispute being between only two lords of manors. Id. Tenham v. Herbert, 2 Atk. 483. JURISDICTION.

Where a man sets up an exclusive right, and the persons who controvert it are numerous, and he cannot by one action at law quiet that right, he may file a bill of peace, and the court will direct an issue to determine the right as between lords of manors and their tenants, or tenants of one manor and another. S. C. Id.

A bill of peace praying an injunction to stay the defendants, who have an interest in the manor of Tunbridge, from proceeding at law against the plaintiffs, for building houses on the manor without leave, and that they may accept of such a compensation as the court shall think reasonable. Here the court dissolved the injunction, as it cannot be applied to as an arbitrator, nor have any legislative authority, but acts in a judicial capacity. Congers v. Lat. Abergavenny, 1 Atk. 293.

Where there has been a possession of a fishery for a considerable length of time, a person who claims a sole right to it may bring a bill to be quieted in the possession, though he has not established his right at law; and it is no objection on demurrer to such bill, that the defendants have distinct rights, for upon an issue to try the general right, they may at law take advantage of their several exemptions and distinct rights. Mayor of York v. Pilkington, 1 Atk. 282. S. C. 9 Mod. 273.

A man who has been in possession of a water-course sixty years, may bring a bill against a mortgagee, who foreclosed the equity of redemption to be quieted in his possession, although he had not established his right at law. Bush v. Western, Prec. Chan. 630.

The court of chancery may grant a perpetual injunction, after five trials at bar on the same point, and verdicts the same way. El. Rath v. Sherwin, 10 Mod. 1. INJUNCT PERPETUAL.

Voluntary devise in possession may file bill against heir at law to quiet his possession. Woodgate v. Woodgate, 1 Eq. Ab. 132.

Bill will not lie to quiet one in the possession of a pew in a church, though plaintiff before had a decree before the ordinary for this pew. Baker v. Child, 2 Vern. 226.

One gives her son other land in lieu of land in-tailed, and by her will gives the intailed lands to her daughter, and takes a bond from her son to permit her daughter to enjoy the intailed lands. The son dies leaving an infant son, who being in possession of the lands that came in recompense, brings an ejectment of the intailed lands. By reason of the infancy of the grandson, the bond could not be sued. The daughter brings a bill, and is decreed to be quieted in possession of the intailed lands, until six months after the infant comes of age, and then the infant may shew cause. Thomas v. Gyles, 2 Vern. 232. INFANT; BOND; EJECTMENT.

A seized of Blackacre in tail and Whiteacre in fee, by mistake devises the intailed acre, and leaves the fee-simple acre to descend; the devisee upon his bill had a decree to enjoy. Id. 233. WILL, MISTAKE.

Bill of peace for preventing multiplicity of suits, proper. New Elm Hosp. v. Andover, 1 Vern. 266. Hove v. Bromsgrove, id. 22. MULTIPLICITY OF SUITS.

No injunction to quiet possession, but where the party has been in possession three years before filing his bill, or where the cause has been heard, and the merits determined. Lady Poigne's Case, 1 Vern. 156.

A is bound for B, and has a counter-bond; equity will compel B to pay the debt, though A is not sued. Ramelagh v. Hayes, 1 Vern. 190. PRINC. & SURETY.

Account decreed between two who had dealings only circuitously to avoid multiplicity of suits. Anon. Show. P. C. 17. PRIVACY OF CONTRACT.

13. Bill to perpetuate.

Upon the same principle where lands are devised by will, and there is no opportunity to prove and establish it at law, a bill to perpetuate testimony thereto will lie. Anon. Prac. Reg. 74.

Demurrer will lie to bill to perpetuate, if it does not state that no action can be immediately brought. Angell v. Angell, 1 S. & S. 83. PL. DEMURRER.

Qu. whether equity has jurisdiction to entertain bill to perpetuate testimony to claims to a dignity? El. Belfast v. Chichester, 2 J. & W. 439. DIGNITY; JURISDICTION.

Issue in tail cannot file bill to perpetuate testimony, even in case of an entail that cannot be barred. Id. ib. ISSUE IN TAIL.

A dignity is intailed on A, who dies leaving issue two sons, B and C. To bill filed in lifetime of B, by his eldest son, for perpetuating testimony of his father's marriage; demurrers by eldest son of C, who was dead, and attorney-general, were allowed. Id. ib. MARRIAGE; ISSUE IN TAIL.

In a suit to perpetuate testimony, motion for a further examination of witnesses as to the facts lately discovered, refused on the ground that a demurrer to a supplemental bill for the same purpose had been allowed. Knight v. Knight, 1 Jac. & W. 165. PR. EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES; DEMURRER.

Landlord may file a bill to perpetuate evidence of a demand, made under the tenantry act on his tenant to renew. Keating v. Sparrow, 1 Ball & B. 372. LANDL. & TENANT.

To support a bill to perpetuate testimony the plaintiff must have an interest; but the minuteness or remoteness of it is no objection. A mere contingency, however near and valuable (with the exception of the case of a wager,) the expectation of issue in tail, heir apparent, or next of kin of a lunatic, is not sufficient; therefore a demurrer to a bill by tenant in tail in remainder and his issue, to perpetuate testimony of the validity of his marriage, allowed. Allen v. Allen, 15 Ves. 130.

Bill to perpetuate testimony of legitimacy of plaintiff, entitled in remainder in tail, after estate for life. Demurrer by 7th and 8th in remainder, after plaintiff tiffs and other defendants, all infants, overruled; any interest, however slight, being sufficient. Ld. Dursley v. Berkeley, 6 Ves. 251.

Next of kin of lunatic, however hopeless his condition, have no interest whatever in the property, and cannot, therefore, restrain bill to perpetuate testimony. So their apparent cannot have a writ de ventre inspici in life of his ancestor; but they may contract upon their expectations, and may perpetuate testimony with reference to interest so created. Id. 260.

Bill to perpetuate will not lie where defendant might immediately bar that right. Id. 262.

This court will not take the least step against a purchaser for valuable consideration without notice, not even to perpetuate testimony against him. Jerrard v. Saunders, 2 Ves. J. 458. VALUABLE CONSIDERATION; VEND. & PURCH.

A tenant in tail out of possession, cannot bring bill to perpetuate testimony. Bradlyn v. Ord, 1 Atk. 571. ESTATE TAIL.

A man who is in possession of a fishery, may bring a bill to examine his witnesses in perpetuum rei memoriam, and establish his right, though he has not recovered an affirmance of it at law. Secus, if he is not in possession. Dorset v. Girdler, Prec. Chan. 531.

Bill will not lie to perpetuate testimony, &c. before trial, unless affidavit be made of the witnesses being infirm and unable to travel. Phillips v. Carver, 1 P. W. 117.

A man cannot bring a bill to examine witnesses in in perpetuum rei memoriam to establish his title, until he has made it good by a verdict at law, if he is under no impediment of trying his title at law. Parry v. Rogers, 1 Vern. 441.

Devisee shall not examine witnesses in perpetuum rei memoriam, to prove a will against a purchaser without notice, till the will has been established by a verdict at law. Bechinall v. Arnold, 1 Vern. 354. DEVISEE; PURCHASER.

Bill to perpetuate cannot pray other relief. Anon. 2 Vent. 366.

A bill to examine witnesses in perpetuum rei memoriam is not proper, until the party has established his right at law. Pawlet v. Ingres, 1 Vern. 308. TITLE.

Upon a bill to perpetuate the testimony of witnesses touching a right to a way, the plaintiff must set out the way exactly in his bill per et trans, as he ought to do in a declaration at law. But such a bill ought not to be brought for such trivial things, as right of common, or for ways or water-courses, or at least not till after a recovery at law. Gell v. Hayward, 1 Vern. 312. Id.

Bill lies to perpetuate the testimony of witnesses to prove a modus; but qu. if it will lie to establish a modus. Somerset v. Fotherby, 1 Vern. 185. MODUS.

A bill will not lie to perpetuate the testimony of witnesses to a lunatic's will in his lifetime, made before his lunacy. Sackville v. Ayleworth, 1 Vern. 105. LUNATIC; WILL.

14. Bill for Partition and other Matters.

A fine and non-claim cannot be pleaded in bar to a bill to prevent the setting up of an outstanding term. Leigh v. Leigh, 1 Sim. 349. PL. PLA.; FINE AND NON-CLAIM.

The statute of limitations may be pleaded in bar to a bill, to prevent the setting up outstanding terms. Jermyn v. Best, 1 Sim. 373. LIMIT. STAT. OF; PL. PLA.

The defendant, having sold and conveyed land to the plaintiff, suggesting that he had a title, and it afterwards appearing that he was not entitled to part, the same being an encroachment from a common, though no eviction had happened, or was threatened; a bill lies to set aside the conveyance, and for a return of the purchase money, and all expences. Edwards v. McLeay, Coop. 308. MISREPRESENTATION; VEND. & PURCH.; TITLE.

Bill for a partition against D, D by his answer sets up a partition made several years ago, as evidence whereof (amongst other things,) he states that plaintiff acted upon a moiety of the premises, as his several estates, and particularly that he made a lease of part thereof to C; plaintiff amends his bill, making C a party, charging, that the lease to him was made under circumstances of fraud and imposition, and praying, as against C, that the lease may be set aside, still praying a partition only as against D; demurrer by D, to the whole bill, for that it is exhibited against several persons, for several and distinct matters, allowed; plaintiff ought first to have filed his bill against C, only to impeach the lease. Whaley v. Dawson, 2 Scho. & L. 367. PL. MULTIFARIOUSNESS.

It is sufficient if the first tenant in tail is a party to a bill of foreclosure. Reynoldson v. Perkins, Amb. 564. S. C. 1 Dick. 427. PL. PARTY; TENANT IN TAIL, AND REM.-MAN.

Bill for partition will lie as to tithes: demurrer overruled. Gibson v. Montfort, 1 Ves. 494. TITHES.

On a bill for a partition, plaintiff must shew a title in himself, and not allege generally that he is in possession of a moiety. Cartwright v. Pulteney, 2 Atk. 380.

A voluntary devisee brings a bill to establish the will against one who is not heir at law; defendant by answer, claimed under some ancient settlement which he could not find, and hoped when he could, he should have the benefit of it: it was insisted for the plaintiff, that the defendant might try his title by a certain time, or in default, that the plaintiff might hold and enjoy against the defendant. Bill dismissed with costs. Chir v. Philpott, 2 Vern. 743.

III. DEMURRER.

1. The General Form.
2. Speaking Demurrer.
3. Where it lies.
4. When overruled by Answer. See also PL. ANSWER, 7.

1. The General Form.

Demurrer covering too much, overruled. Higgin v. Jackson, 1 McClel. & Y. 35.

By demurrer, defendant may assign as many reasons as he pleases, why plaintiff is not entitled by his own showing, to relief. Jones v. Frost, 3 Mad. 8. S. C. 1 Jac. 466.

General demurrer will not lie if plaintiff is on any part of his will entitled to relief. S. C. 3 Mad. 8.

A general demurrer to part of bill is bad pleading. Metcalf v. Brown, 5 Pri. 560.

Where defendant demurred generally to bill for discovery as to whether he had not deeds, &c. in his possession, destructive of his title, there being parts of the bill which, whatever should be the fate of the demurrer, ought to be answered, and the demurrer was on that account overruled: the court gave leave to withdraw and demur particularly, and answer on payment of costs, as between party and party. Wigham v. Leigh, 6 Pri. 88.

If the plaintiff is entitled to any part of the relief sought, a demurrer to the whole relief must be overruled. Att. Gen. v. Brown, 1 Swan. 304.

A demurrer admits as true what is stated by the bill as matter of fact, not what the plaintiff considers as fact, but which is merely inference from matter of law. Williams v. Steward, 3 Mer. 503.

Demurrer covering relief, to which plaintiff was entitled, and not distinctly pointing out what parts of of bill were demurred to, and what answered, overruled. Robinson v. Thomson, 2 V. & B. 118. S. P. Wetherhead v. Blackburn, 2 V. & B. 121.

Demurrer to whole bill must clearly state parts demurred to. Wetherhead v. Blackburn, 2 V. & B. 124.

Demurrer to so much of a bill as called for a discovery of cases laid before counsel, and the opinions, overruled as covering facts material to the plaintiff's case. Richards v. Jackson, 18 Ves. 472. DISCOVERY.

'The rule,' that the plaintiff being entitled to discovery only, and not to the relief, a general demurrer lies, does not prevent a demurrer to relief, giving the discovery. Todd v. Gee, 17 Ves. 273. P. L. DISCOVERY; P. L. RELIEF.

Demurrer not good in part, and bad in part, therefore going to relief, to which the plaintiff was entitled, overruled generally; the plaintiff a purchaser, not being barred by a report against the title in another suit, upon a bill against him by the vendors. Id. ib.

Demurrer cannot be good in part, and bad in part. Baker v. Mellish, 11 Ves. 70.

In an answer and demurrer, the defendant ought to specify distinctly what parts of the bill it is intended to cover by the demurrer. 'It is informal to say "as to so much of the bill as defendant is advised he is bound to answer," and then after answering some parts to demur, as to all the rest of the matters charged in the bill; it ought to be precisely stated what parts of the bill defendant refuses to answer. Devonsher v. Newenham, 2 Scho. & L. 199. P. L. ANSWER.

No general rule whether demurrer for want of parties, should state the parties. Ryle v. Price, 6 Ves. 781.

The ground of a demurrer must be a short point, upon which it is clear the bill would be dismissed with costs at the hearing; therefore, upon a bill by assignees of a bankrupt, for specific performance of an agreement previous to the bankruptcy, to grant a lease, the case consisting of a combination of circumstances, the evidence might sustain the relief, with some modification, upon which a demurrer was overruled. Brooke v. Hewitt, 3 Ves. 253.

Where, in a suit for tithes, the title to the rectory is in issue, to a cross bill praying a discovery of the title, the rector cannot demur, although no other title is set up. Bowman v. Lygon, 1 Anst. 4. P. L. DISCOVERY; TITLE.

To an amended bill, a demurrer as to so much as had not been answered in the answer to the original bill, is bad. Mynd v. Francis, 1 Anst. 6. P. L. AMENDED BILL.

Demurrer to a discovery of a trading overruled; a demurrer good if confined to questions as to having committed an act of bankruptcy. Chambers v. Thompson, 4 Bro. C. C. 434. DISCOVERY; BANKCY. TRADING.

Every thing well pleaded is confessed by demurrer. E. I. Comp. v. Hensham, 1 Ves. J. 289.

Demurrer admits only facts well pleaded, and the facts alone without the conclusion of law. Ford v. Peering, id. 78.

A defendant having demurred to a part only of a bill, and then answered other parts, it is no objection to the allowance of the demurrer, that it is equally applicable to the whole of the bill. Mayor of Dartmouth v. Seale, 1 Cox, 416.

There shall not be two demurrers to the same bill, but if a demurrer to the original bill be overruled, there may be a demurrer to the amended bill. Bancroft v. Wardour, 2 Bro. C. C. 66. S. C. 2 Dick. 672.

Whether a demurrer for want of parties should be to the whole bill, qu.? E. I. Comp. v. Coles, 3 Swan. 142. P. L. PARTIES.

A demurrer cannot be good in part, and bad in part, as plea may. Knight v. Mosely, Amb. 176.

Demurrer should precisely distinguish each part of the bill demurred to. Chetwynd v. Lindon, 2 Ves. 450.

Demurrer must abide by the bill; pleas suggest a fact to be proved. Brownward v. Edwards, 2 Ves. 247. P. L. PLEA.

As demurrer cannot be good for part, and bad for part, it was allowed as to the discovery sought in relation to the subornation of perjury, because it had been allowed as to the discovery sought concerning proceedings before the delegates. Baker v. Pritchard, 2 Atk. 389.

Demurrer must be good in the whole. Huggins v. York Building Comp., id. 44. S. C. Barn. 83.

A demurrer bad in part is void in toto; otherwise, as to a plea. El. Suffolk v. Green, 1 Atk. 451.

Demurring for want of jurisdiction is informal and improper; defendant should plead to the jurisdiction. Robertson v. Rous, 1 Atk. 544. JURISDICTION; P. L. PLEA.

If a defendant demurs because the bill contains several distinct matters against several defendants, he must, by answer, deny combination if it is charged by the bill. Poucel v. Ardenne, 1 Vern. 416. P. L. ANSWER.

Demurrer by witness overruled, he to pay costs. Wardell v. Dent, Dick. 334.

Demurrer to bill to perpetuate, and that plaintiff could try right then allowed. North v. Gray, Dick. 14.

General demurrer without any cause stated therein, overruled. Duffield v. Graves, Cary, 87. Offley v. Morgan, Cary, 107.

2. Speaking Demurrer.

A speaking demurrer is where a new fact is introduced, which is necessary to support the demurrer. Davies v. Williams, 1 Sim. 5.

A speaking demurrer is where, by way of argument or inference, the demurrer suggested a material fact, which was not to be found on the bill. Cawthorn v. Chalie, 2 S. & S. 129.

Demurrer only to what appears on face of the bill, else a speaking demurrer. Brownward v. Edwards, 2 Ves. 245.

Speaking demurrer over-ruled. Edsell v. Buchanan, 2 Ves. J. 83. 4 Bro. C. C. 254.

3. Where it lies.

Where a bill charges a defendant with acts which would subject him to a criminal prosecution under a statute, the defendant need not plead the statute, but may demur to the bill. Fleming v. St. John, 2 Sim. 181. P. L. PLEA.

A bill in equity does not lie by the assignees of a bankrupt against a judgment creditor and the sheriff, for monies levied under an execution upon a judgment by nil dicit. Mitchell v. Knott, 1 Sim. 497. BANKCY., ASSIGNEES IN.

A foreign state may sue in this court; but where a bill was filed by "The government of the state of Colombia and Don M. J. Hurtado, a citizen of that state, and minister plenipotentiary from the same to his Britannic majesty, and now residing at 33, Baker street, Portman square, in the county of Middlesex," a general demurrer was allowed to the bill, because the description of the plaintiffs did not enable the defendants to know upon whom process was to be served, in case a cross bill were filed. Colombian Government v. Rothschild, 1 Sim. 94.

Where a plaintiff, by the present practice of the court, may obtain that relief by petition for which a supplemental bill was formerly necessary, and prefers the latter course, the supplemental bill is not demurrable, but the proceeding will be taken into consideration on the question of costs. Davies v. Williams, 1 Sim. 5. PL. SUPPLEMENTAL BILL; PR. COSTS.

Bill for delivery of title deeds, and injunction to restrain setting up of outstanding term, to which no affidavit as to title deeds was annexed. Plea over-ruled, because it should have been confined to so much of bill as related to outstanding term, and because that part of bill relating to title deeds should have been demurred to for want of affidavit. Hook v. Dormer, 1 S. & S. 227. PL. PLEA; PL. BILL; AFFIDAVIT; TITLE DEEDS.

An estate being in lease, A enters and receives the rents during the continuance of the lease, and afterwards continues in possession up to a period more than twenty years distant from the time of his entry. Within twenty years after the expiration of the lease, B brings an ejectment, and files a bill for discovery: though the ejectment might be maintained at law, a demurrer to the discovery is good. Cholmondeley v. Clinton, 1 Turn. & R. 107.

Demurrer to a bill for a general account to be taken of all dealings and transactions between the parties, and for an injunction to restrain the defendant from taking out execution on a judgment recovered by him in an action at law, allowed, on the grounds that the statement in the bill did not furnish such a case of matter of account between the parties, as to entitle the plaintiff to the interference of the court, on the principles of equity, in that it was nothing more than matter of a set-off, or other defence at law; and if it had been a stronger case, the plaintiff, after having suffered the action at law to be tried and determined at nisi prius, had come too late to ask the interference of the court. Cooper v. Hatton, 12 Price, 502. ACCOUNT; SET-OFF.

Bill by assignees of bankrupt, brought for purpose of restraining bankrupt from disputing validity of commission by action at law; not alleging that the commission was a valid one, or that the bankrupt brought action only with a view to harass his assignees; general demurrer allowed. Kirkpatrick v. Dennett, 1 S. & S. 408. BANKCY. ASSIGNEES IN; PL. BILL.

Laches in filing bill cannot be taken advantage of, on arguing demurrer: it should be pleaded. Ross v. Willoughby, 10 Price, 2. LACHES; LENGTH OF TIME.

Demurrer will lie to bill to perpetuate, if it does not state that no action can be immediately brought. Angell v. Angell, 1 S. & S. 83. PL. BILL TO PERPETUATE.

Demurrer will hold only where, if matter alleged be taken as true, plaintiff has no title to relief. Piggott v. Williams, 6 Mad. 95.

Demurrer to bill, by creditors praying sale of testator's real estate to pay unsatisfied debts for want of sufficiency of personal, where he had directed his debts to be paid by his executors, and devised his real estate, on ground that it was not a charge on real estates, overruled, without prejudice, as being premature. Sanderson v. Wharton, 8 Price, 680. CREDITORS' SUIT.

It is good ground of demurrer, that counsel's signature does not appear on the bill. Kirkley v. Burton, 5 Mad. 378. PL. BILL; SIGNATURE OF COUNSEL.

Where witness is made party, merely for the purpose of discovery, it is demurrable. How v. Best, 5 Mad. 19. PL. DISCOVERY; PL. PARTY; PR. WITNESS.

Where, in aid of defence to action for libel, discovery would subject plaintiff at law to indictment, he is not bound to answer; but because bill sought commission to examine abroad, to which plaintiff in equity was entitled, demurrer to whole bill was overruled, with liberty to amend. Thorpe v. Macauley, 5 Mad. 219. PL. DISCOVERY AS TO CRIMINAL MATTER.

Demurrer lies to bill for delivery up of will to be cancelled, which has been pronounced bad by ecclesiastical court, and is therefore unavailable, and for a receiver till letters of administration granted where no reason shown why they cannot be immediately taken out. Jones v. Frost, 3 Mad. 1. PR. RECEIVER; DELIVERY UP OF DEEDS, &c.; ADMINISTRATION.

General demurrer will not lie to bill against feme covert seeking account of monies received under a will fraudulently obtained by her, and placed out in securities in trustees' names, and that the same may be repaid out of her separate estate. Greatley v. Noble, 3 Mad. 79. HUSB. & WIFE; SEPARATE ESTATE.

Demurrer for want of equity overruled, the plaintiff by his will claiming under a settlement stated in bill, but which the bill represented as incapable of being set forth with certainty, the same being in defendant's possession. Wright v. Plumtree, 3 Mad. 481.

A demurrer and answer, filed by a defendant, attached for want of an answer, after orders for time to plead, answer, or demur, not demurring alone, ordered to be taken off the file. Curzon v. De la Zouch, 1 Swan, 185. PR. TIME TO ANSWER; PR. ATTACHMENT; PR. TAKING PLEADINGS OFF FILE.

Original bill filed to redeem mortgage, and an answer was put in, showing plaintiff had no title to redeem. Plaintiff afterwards purchases title to redeem, and amends bill and proceeds on it. Demurrer to amended bill allowed, on ground that it should have been shown by supplemental bill: on application, full costs were given. Pilkington v. Wignall, 2 Mad. 240. PL. AMENDED BILL.

Demurrer to a bill by the heir at law for a discovery, seeking also relief, allowed; the relief sought being, first, that an issue might be directed to try the question in a different county, on an allegation of undue influence, an heir at law not being entitled to any issue, except by consent, and a bill in equity not lying to change the venue; secondly, for the production of title deeds, without its being shown how they can be of service in assisting him to recover at law; thirdly, to restrain the defendant (devisee) from setting up outstanding terms, unsupported by allegation that there are any outstanding terms which may be set up; fourthly, for an injunction to stay waste, &c., and for a receiver, there being no instance of the court so interfering as between heir at law and devisee, where their adverse rights are in litigation, and on the ground of negligence and delay, the bill having been filed more than two years after the death of the presumed testator, and no action yet brought, although the commission of the alleged acts of waste and destruction stated to have been immediately after his death; fifthly, that the plaintiff may be let into possession of copyholds unsundered to the use of the will, that being mere legal relief, although he might have been entitled to the discovery, whether there were any copyholds unsundered. The bill also going on to pray, in the character of one of the next of kin, for an injunction from interfering with the personal estate and a receiver, the injunction asked being for an indefinite period, and no allegation of a suit depending in the ecclesiastical court. And although some of the discovery sought might have been proper to be obtained on a bill for discovery only, yet the demurrer allowed as to that also, upon the ground that, to support a general demurrer to a bill seeking discovery and relief, it is sufficient to shew that the plaintiff is not entitled to the relief he prays. Jones v. Jones, 3 Mer. 161.

Demurrer to bill for discovery and relief, if good as to the relief, is good as to the discovery also. Williams v. Steward, 3 Mer. 502.

Demurrer to bill of discovery, in support of an action to recover the expenses of the entertainment given by the plaintiff under an agreement with the defendant, to introduce him to a woman of fortune, with a view of marriage, allowed. King v. Burr, id. 639. PUBLIC POLICY.

Demurrer by judgment creditor to bill for injunction to restrain him from taking out execution on his judgment against an estate sold, (before he had obtained judgment) and ineffectually conveyed to a purchaser, (the plaintiff) whereby the legal estate descended to the heir at law, overruled. Prior v. Penpraze, 4 Price, 99. INJUNCTION TO STAY EXECUTION.

Defendant to an injunction bill, having suffered the injunction to go against him upon a dedimus, the time for answering being expired, although not under an order for time, nor in contempt, quere, whether he may demur alone; and it seems that he cannot be allowed to do so. Hemunds v. Suvery, 3 Mer. 304. PR. TIME TO ANSWER.

On bill for specific performance of agreement to purchase against husband and wife, in which there was a statement that wife had separate estate, &c., with an interrogatory in support of statement as to the fact, demurrer by her allowed to such discovery. Francis v. Wiggzell, 1 Mad. 258. HUSB. & WIFE; SEPARATE ESTATE; SPEC. PERF.; DISCOVERY.

Where the object of a bill quia timet is to prevent the assignees of a bankrupt, purchaser of estate, from bringing an action to recover back part of consideration money remaining due to vendor, which had been paid to him subsequent to act of bankruptcy, on the ground of his having waived his equitable lien, by taking a bond for the purchase-money, if the bill charge as a fact, that the bond was given as a further additional or collateral security, the question of law cannot be raised on a general demurrer. Bruband v. Hoskins, 3 Price, Exch. 31.

Plea to bill, which is demurrable on face of it, overruled. Billing v. Flight, 1 Mad. 230. PLEA.

Demurrer of a married woman to a bill of discovery against her and her husband, in aid of an action for a debt on her account, allowed. Barron v. Grilant, 3 V. & B. 165. DISCOVERY; HUSB. & WIFE.

Demurrer by a mortgagee to a bill by a trustee under the will of the mortgagor, to carry into execution the trusts of the will, without offering to redeem the mortgage, allowed. Donough v. Sheehridge, 2 Ball & B. 555. MORTGAGE & MORTGEE.

Demurrer by a bankrupt to a bill joining him with his assignee in charges and prayer for relief, viz. the specific performance of a contract, previous to his bankruptcy, allowed. Whitworth v. Davis, 1 V. & B. 545. BANKRUPT; PL. PARTY.

Demurrer, that bill stated defendant's estate with uncertainty, viz. that he "is seised in fee, or otherwise well entitled to," and ore tenus, that reversioner was not party, overruled. Baring v. Nash, id. 551. PL. BILL, UNCERTAINTY.

Plaintiff entitled to discovery only praying relief. General demurrer lies. Albrecht v. Sussmann, 2 V. & B. 328. DISCOVERY.

Demurrer upon the statute of limitations to a bill for an account, stating that no demand was made for twelve years. Foster v. Hudson, 19 Ves. 180. LIMITATION, STAT. OF.

Counsel or attorney cannot be called upon to reveal the advice given to the client; demurrer, therefore, overruled as to the case and allowed as to the opinion. Richards v. Jackson, 18 Ves. 474. DISCOVERY; PROFESSIONAL CONFIDENCE.

Bill by a bankrupt and the assignees under an act, of which he afterwards took the benefit, against representatives of the deceased assignees and others for an account of his estate, and various transactions before and since the bankruptcy, no assignee in the bankruptcy being a party, and collusion with persons accountable to the estate charged against only some of the representatives of the assignees. Demurrer allowed generally for want of equity, and as relief might be had by petition in bankruptcy, ore tenus, the suit being multifarious, as uniting parties, though in some respect connected, having distinct interests. Sutton v. Davis, 18 Ves. 72. S. C. 1 Rose, B. C. 79. PL. MULTIFARIOUSNESS; PL. PARTIES.

Bill following life insurance, effected by the plaintiff's clerk with the plaintiff's money, procured by embezzlement, and transferred to the defendants for valuable consideration, but with notice. Demurrer allowed, the transaction amounting to felony by the 39 Geo. 3. c. 85, and therefore not raising a civil contract. Secondly, the policies not being the plaintiff's property. Cox v. Sutton, 17 Ves. 329. JURISDICTION; CRIMINAL MATTERS.

General demurrer lies, where the plaintiff, though entitled to discovery, is not entitled to relief. Speer v. Crawler, id. 216.

Bill for payment of a promissory note which had been cut in two parts, one being produced, and the other alleged to be lost, and offering an indemnity, dismissed, as proving the loss, an action might be maintained. Mossop v. Eadon, 16 Ves. 430. BILL OF EXCHANGE, &c. LOST.

Demurrer allowed to a bill by the bank of England for an injunction against the action of an executor claiming a transfer of stock. Considering the stock as specifically bequeathed (which was doubtful) to trustees in France upon special trusts, if the executor cannot maintain the action upon the nature of the bequest, or as having assented, the injunction is unnecessary: if he can, upon his title to the stock, to be applied as the other property, there is no equity. Bank of England v. Lunn, 15 Ves. 569. EXECUTOR; INJUNCTION; BANK OF ENGLAND.

Bill against a corporation, trustees for a charity, for a discovery and injunction against a resolution depriving the plaintiff of his office of schoolmaster, charged to have been procured by five of the members, including the bailiff, from improper motives, with reference to a parliamentary election. Demurrer by those five, on the ground that no title was shewn to discovery against them, and ore tenus, that the charge would be the subject of criminal prosecution, overruled. Dunster v. Corp. of Chippenham, 14 Vcs. 245. CORPORATION; PL. DISCOVERY.

Demurrer allowed to a bill for discovery and injunction against an action, the effect being a contract for participation in an illegal transaction, the result of combination of wholesale grocers, by the title of the "Fruit Club," acting by a select committee, of which the defendants were members, to purchase all imported fruit, though not strictly forestalling, regrating, or monopoly. Coxin v. Smith, 13 Ves. 542. DISCOVERY; FORESTALLING, &c.

If the case, as stated in the bill, does not entitle the plaintiff to a decree, a demurrer will lie. Hovenden v. Lal. Annesley, 2 Sch. & L. 638.

A general demurrer holds, where the plaintiff, entitled only to discovery, prays relief also. Gordon v. Simkinson, 11 Vcs. 569.

Demurrer good to relief is good to discovery, sought with a view to the relief. Baker v. Mellish, 10 Ves. 544. RELIEF; DISCOVERY.

Defendant, having applied and obtained an order for time to answer, cannot put in an answer and demurrer without a special case, as the demurrer, being coupled with answer, could not be taken off the file;

it was moved to expunge or overrule. Taylor v. Milner, 18 Ves. 444. PR. TIME TO ANSWER; PR. TAKING PLEADINGS OFF FILE.

A bureau delivered for the purpose of repairs to a person who discovered money in a secret drawer, which he converted to his own use. This amounts to a felony, and upon that ground a demurrer to a bill of discovery was allowed. Cartwright v. Green, 8 Ves. 405. DISCOVERY TENDING TO CRIMINATE.

A married woman may demur to a discovery that may subject husband to a charge of felony. Id. 406. DISCOVERY TENDING TO CRIMINATE; HUSB. & WIFE.

Demurrer allowed, the bill not alleging with sufficient certainty by whom the duties claimed by the city of London under letters patent, in respect of which a discovery was prayed in aid of an action, were payable. Mayor, &c. of London v. Levy, 8 Ves. 398.

Where defendant ought to have demurred to the jurisdiction, the court will make no decree. Sed quere, by cross bill that objection is waived; see title "Waiver." Burker v. Dacie, 6 Ves. 686. PR. DECREE.

General demurrer lies, the plaintiff being entitled to discovery, but not to relief. Id. ib.

Bill by creditors by judgment, who had sued out elegits for discovery of freehold estates, charging that defendant, upon his election as M. P., previously to judgments, gave in his qualification, and that if the estates composing it were conveyed away since, it was without consideration. Demurrer as to qualification, &c., and answer as to rest; but not going to charge of conveyance without consideration. Demurrer was overruled. Mountford v. Taylor, 6 Ves. 788. PL. DISCOVERY.

Bill alleging fraud as to quantity and quality of goods sold, not discovered till they were exported to America; that they were in consequence sold at a loss; and that plaintiff, being threatened with an action, paid the original price according to contract, under a protest that he would seek relief in equity; and praying an account and payment in respect of the loss, and a commission to America. Demurrer allowed. Kemp v. Pryor, 7 Ves. 237. ACQUISITION BY PAYMENT.

The rule that if the plaintiff is not entitled to the relief, though entitled to discovery, a general demurrer holds, does not preclude the defendant from demurring to the relief, and answering as to the discovery. Hodgkin v. Longden, 8 Ves. 2. PL. ANSWER.

Bill by heir at law against residuary devisees, legatees, and executors, suggesting a secret trust, undertaken at the request of testator, either not legally declared, or if so, void as to the real estate and written acknowledgments by defendants of an intended trust for charity purposes, the will also by equal legacies to them, and some particular expressions importing a trust. A general demurrer to discovery and relief was overruled. Muckleston v. Brown, 6 Ves. 52. PL. DISCOVERY.

Though plaintiff is entitled to discovery, if he prays relief to which he is not entitled, demurrer will lie. Id. 63.

Demurrer allowed to a bill to have a presentation to a living upon the next avoidance delivered up, charging the defendant with gross misconduct in obtaining it, and in other respects, while a private tutor in the family. M'Namara v. —, 5 Ves. 824. PRESENTATION TO LIVING; FRAUD, UNDUE INFLUENCE.

Demurrer by a married woman to a bill of discovery of transactions with her as agent to her husband, allowed. Le Terrier v. Marg. of Anspach, 5 Ves. 322. PL. DISCOVERY; HUSB. & WIFE.

Bill by the E. I. Comp. claiming from a part-owner of a ship freighted by them double the sum received by him for the sale of the command, to be paid or allowed under the charter-party and a bye-law to the company, one moiety to their use, the other to be paid or returned to the person who shall give the company information, and make proof, the deed being, on settling the account, cancelled through ignorance of the fact. Demurrer to the discovery, because it might subject the defendant to penalty, covering not only the direct charge, but also circumstances of mere inducement, as the execution and cancellation of the deed, and to the relief generally for want of equity, and for defect of parties, viz. the other part owners, particularly one who executed, and the informer, was overruled. E. I. Comp. v. Neave, 5 Ves. J. 173. E. I. COMP.; DISCOVERY TENDING TO FORFEITURE.

Demurrer, both to the discovery and relief, if good as to the latter, shall be allowed as to both, though the plaintiff may be entitled to the discovery. Id. 185.

Demurrer, on the ground of length of time to bill for redemption of mortgage, is good. Hardy v. Reeves, 4 Ves. 479. LENGTH OF TIME; MORTGAGE, REDEMPTION OF.

Demurrer allowed to bill of discovery, tending to shew maintenance of suit on part of defendant. Wallis v. Dk. Portland, 8 Bro. P. C. 161. PL. DISCOVERY TENDING TO CRIMINATE; MAINTENANCE OF SUIT.

Demurrer allowed to bill, after verdict at law on bond, praying discovery, if consideration was not an illicit connexion, and if defendant was not guilty of a general incontinence. Franco v. Bolton, 3 Ves. 368. PL. DISCOVERY TENDING TO CRIMINATE; BOND EX TURPI CAUSA.

A covenanted servant of the East India Company, being senior merchant, and acting as agent of company, as resident or chief at one of their factories, is incapable of forming any contract whatsoever in which the company is interested so as to derive profit to himself or any otherwise however than for the profit, &c. of the company. And if such contract be actually made between him, as a merchant dealing for himself, and the Company's board of trade in India, in which, undue advantage is taken by him by means of his knowledge and influence as resident at the factory, he cannot demur generally on the ground of want of equity to a bill for discovery and relief by the Company. Hinchman v. E. I. Comp., 8 Bro. P. C. 85. PL. DISCOVERY TENDING TO CRIMINATE; PRINCIPAL & AGENT.

Bill by a partner, under a parol agreement, charging misconduct in the other partner, and praying a dissolution, account and injunction from executing securities in the name of the firm; demurrer to prayer for a dissolution, because there was no writing between them; overruled. Master v. Kilton, 3 Ves. 74. PARTNERSHIP.

After twenty years' possession and a descent cast, the heir at law, of former owner, filed bill of discovery of title of occupant, suggesting pretended devise from his ancestor. Demurrer allowed. Mutlow v. Smith, 3 Anst. 709. DISCOVERY; TITLE; LENGTH OF TIME.

Bill charging that the defendants had got the title deeds, and mixed the boundaries, prayed a discovery, possession, and an account; demurrer allowed. Loker v. Rolle, 3 Ves. 4.

Bill prayed that the defendant might state the particulars of his pedigree as heir, and of the births, baptisms, marriages, deaths, or burials; demurrer allowed. Joy v. Kekewich, 2 Ves. J. 679. TITLE; PL. DISCOVERY.

Action on bills of exchange; bill to have them delivered up, as being given on a gaming transaction;

a demurrer was overruled. Newman v. Franco, 2 Anst. 519. PR. DELIVERY UP OF DEEDS; PL. DISCOVERY TENDING TO CRIMINATE.

Demurrer for cause that plaintiff has remedy at law will not be entertained if remedy there be doubtful or difficult. O'Brien v. Irwin, 1 Ridg. L. & S. 361. JURISDICTION.

Where statute of limitation had run against recovery of penalty for usury, the usurer cannot protect himself from discovery by demurrer founded on liability of subjecting himself to forfeiture. Talbot v. Smith, 1 Ridg. L. & S. 360. USURY; DISCOVERY; STAT. OF LIMITATION.

Plaintiffs, having brought an action against the defendant to recover payments made for insuring lottery tickets, prayed a discovery and account, offering to allow payments made by the defendant; as the defendant could not have that advantage at law, a demurrer was overruled. Brandon v. Johnson, 2 Ves. J. 316. PL. DISCOVERY; ACCOUNT.

Where the plaintiff is entitled to the discovery he seeks in support of an action, a prayer for general relief, or for relief, that is consequential to the prayer for discovery, as an injunction, will not sustain a demurrer. Brandon v. Sands, 2 Ves. J. 514. PL. DISCOVERY; PL. RELIEF.

Joint and separate demands by the same bill, demurrer allowed. Quare whether the clause in statute 8 Geo. 2. c. 17. directing that the date and name shall be engraved on each pint, relates to the penalties only, or whether that is necessary to maintain the exclusive property, if so, whether it ought to appear on the bill. Harrison v. Hogg, id. 322. PL. BILL.

Where a bill prays relief and discovery, the plaintiff being entitled to discovery only, a general demurrer allowed. Collis v. Swayne, 4 Bro. C. C. 480. PL. RELIEF & DISCOVERY.

Demurrer to bill for dower overruled, though it stated no impediment to succeeding at law. Mundy v. Mundy, id. 294. Vide S. C. 2 Ves. J. 122. 128. &c. DOWER; JURISDICTION.

Demurrer lies where it is clear that taking the charges to be true, the bill would be dismissed at the hearing. Uttersen v. Mair, 2 Ves. J. 95. S. C. 4 Bro. C. C. 270.

Demurrer to a cross bill to have an usurious security delivered up, not offering to pay the sum really due, allowed. Mason v. Gardiner, 4 Bro. C. C. 436. USURY; PL. BILL.

Demurrer of another cause pending, overruled; the cause depending being such as would not be effective, and the present bill making new parties. Law v. Rigby, id. 60. LIS PENDENS.

Testatrix gave the residue of her personal estate to trustees, to "cause to be erected and built a dwelling house to be appropriated for the use of a school-house." To a bill praying that the charity might be carried into effect, a demurrer that the charitable legacies were void allowed. Att. Gen. v. Nash, 3 Bro. C. C. 688. MORTMAIN.

One of sworn clerks of chancery files bill against all the six clerks, praying that agreement between them regulating practice might be set aside, order of master of rolls rescinded, and other regulations established. Demurrer allowed, that plaintiff had shown no title for court to interfere. Hill v. Sewell, 2 Bro. P. C. 541.

Demurrer allowed, the bill not connecting the fraud with the transaction sufficiently. E. I. Comp. v. Hensham, 1 Ves. J. 287. PL. BILL.

Where a bill seeks discovery of matter that the defendant is not obliged to answer, he must take the benefit of it by demurrer. Selby v. Selby, 4 Bro. C. C. 11. PL. DISCOVERY.

Demurrer to a bill charging fraud in a misrepresentation of the value of an estate to vendor on the ground that the transaction was twenty-seven years old, and had been confirmed by a deed twenty-three years since, disallowed. Deloraine v. Browne, 3 Bro. C. C. 633. LENGTH OF TIME.

Courts of equity have a current jurisdiction with courts of law in cases of fraud, and, therefore, a demurrer for want of equity will not lie to a bill praying relief against a fraudulent policy of insurance. Sowerby v. Warden, 2 Cox, 268. JURISDICTION; FRAUD.

A mother gives a promissory note to a trustee for the benefit of a child of which she is ancient. This not sufficiently nudum pactum for the court to allow a demurrer to a bill by the child, and the trustee to have it carried into execution. Seton v. Seton, 2 Bro. C. C. 610. NUDUM PACTUM.

General demurrer allowed to a bill praying discovery and relief where the relief is at law. Price v. James, id. 319. S. C. 2 Dick. 697. PL. RELIEF; PL. DISCOVERY.

Plaintiff claimed as heir at law of A, stating that one person through whom she had made title had three sons, and that she claimed under the second son, but without alleging that the first son died without issue. Demurrer, "for that the plaintiff had not by her bill sufficiently stated the pedigree by which she made title," was overruled. Delorne v. Hollingsworth, 1 Cox, 421. PL. TITLE.

The bill stated that a testator intended to republish his will, but was prevented from so doing by the fraud of the heir at law. A demurrer to so much of the bill as required him to discover whether the testator did not intend to republish his will, was, under these circumstances, overruled. Dixon v. Olmuis, id. 414. PL. DISCOVERY.

A bill proper for discovery only prays relief, yet a general demurrer was overruled, but without costs. Fry v. Penn, 2 Bro. C. C. 280. Sed quare, see id. 319. PL. RELIEF; PL. DISCOVERY.

Promise to renew a lease in consequence of money already laid out is nudum pactum, and will not be specifically performed, and money laid out afterwards will not vary it; on this ground a demurrer allowed. Robertson v. St. John, id. 140. LEASE, RENEWAL; CONSIDERATION.

Bill by next of kin, intended legatee, in an unexecuted testamentary paper before probate or administration obtained against the executor in a former will for an account of personal estate of testator (alleging fraud, collusion, &c.) Defendant demurs. Demurrer overruled. Morgan v. Harris, 2 Bro. C. C. 121. ACCOUNT.

Demurrer to a bill for an injunction to restrain injury to fish-ponds, overruled. The court also in this case restrained a tenant from building so as to interrupt his landlord's prospect. Bathurst v. Burden, id. 64. INJUNCTION AGAINST WASTE, &c.

Bill stated the plaintiff to be lessee of an ancient mill, and that defendant had erected flood-gates and other works on the river which obstructed plaintiff's mill, and prayed that defendant might be decreed to pull down these works, and be restrained from erecting new ones, such works having been erected about three years. Such a bill will not lie until the right be established at law, and a demurrer for want of equity is good. Weller v. Smeaton, 1 Cox, 102. TITLE; NUISANCE.

A demurrer will not lie to a bill merely for a discovery to enable the plaintiff to go to law, on the ground that the plaintiff had not brought his action. Moodaly v. Morton, 1 Bro. C. C. 469. S. C. 2 Dick. 652. PL. DISCOVERY.

Demurrer to a bill against the East India company and their secretary, praying a commission to examine witnesses in India, and that the defendants might discover by what authority plaintiff was dispossessed of a lease for supplying Madras with tobacco (the plaintiffs intending to bring an action), overruled. Id. ib.

Bill to be quieted in possession of a mill, and that defendants might pull down works about it, and be restricted from erecting others. Demurrer, because plaintiff had not established his right at law, allowed. Weller v. Smeaton, 1 Bro. C. C. 472. TITLE.

Demurrer will not lie to a bill stating a sale of the office of secondary to Wood-street comptroller, and praying an account of the profits of the office; for, upon demurrer, the nature of the office does not appear, nor, consequently, whether such a sale is illegal under stat. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. Demurrer to the whole bill, with an exception to a small part, may be good in point of form. Hicks v. Raincock, 1 Cox, 40. SALE OF OFFICES.

W devised to his wife for life, remainder to trustees to preserve contingent remainders; remainder to E for life; remainder to trustees, ut supra; remainder to the heirs of her body; remainder over. In a subsequent clause he declared his intention that E should have only a life estate. Upon a bill filed by the remainder-man for a conveyance in which E should take only a life estate, it was demurred to, and the demurrer allowed, because these are all legal estates. Thong v. Bedford, 1 Bro. C. C. 313. JURISDICTION; WILL C. OF.

Upon quare impedit brought against the plaintiff, he filed the present bill to discover whether the clerk presented to him by defendant had not given a general bond of resignation in order to set up that bond as a defence at law for having refused him institution. To this bill defendant demurred, 1st, on account of legality of such bond; 2dly, that the discovery was immaterial. Demurrer overruled. Sp. London v. Fytche, id. 96. PL. DISCOVERY TENDING TO CRIMINATE.

Motion to discharge a demurrer after motion for time to plead answer or demur not demurring alone, granted the answer only, denying combination. Lee v. Pascoe, id. 78. PL. TIME TO ANSWER, &c.

Demurrer to a bill for specific performance of an agreement, insisting on the statute of frauds, overruled on the merits. Howard v. Okeover, 3 Swan. 421. STAT. OF FRAUDS; SPEC. PER.

Validity of leases is triable at law; therefore, bill to set lease aside demurrable. Hutchinson v. Gamble, 2 Bro. P. C. 518. LEASE.

By the known law of the land, no alien born can take by grant, devise or other purchase, any freehold or chattels real for his own benefit; but can and does, in such cases, take for the benefit of the crown; yet this disability, being neither a penalty or forfeiture, the alien cannot demur to an information filed for discovering the place of his birth, in order to establish the fact of alienage. Duplexis v. Att. Gen. 1 Bro. P. C. 415. S. C. 2 Ves. 286. PL. DISCOVERY TENDING TO FORFEITURE; ALIEN.

An information is filed by the Attorney-general against A and B for a discovery of the place of their birth, charging them to be aliens. Demurrer, 1st, to jurisdiction of equity; 2nd, that the defendants were not bound to betray their own title, and, therefore, the king was not entitled to the discovery prayed. Demurrer overruled. The known method of recovering estates, held by aliens, for the benefit of the crown, is by a commission under the great seal, to enquire into the facts; and, on the inquest finding them, to seize the estate into the king's hands. And, in order to prove facts, the king has the same right to a discovery, by the assistance of a court of equity, as the subject has, and founded on the same principle of justice, viz. that it is in general against conscience for any one to enjoy the property of another by concealing his right. Id. 419.

Demurrer to discovery, for that plaintiff has not made such a case as entitles him to such discovery; on arguing the demurrer the court being of opinion the plaintiff was not entitled to relief, allowed the demurrer, though it was to the discovery only. Jefferys v. Baldwin, Amb. 164. DISCOVERY.

Though parties may demur to discover any thing which may prove illicit cohabitation, or what may subject them to pains, penalties, or ecclesiastical censures, &c., a charge against persons of a conspiracy or attempt to set up a bastard child, is not demurrable unto, not being per se an indictable offence. Chetwynd v. Lindon, 2 Ves. 450. PL. DISCOVERY TENDING TO CRIMINATE.

On a bill to set aside a usurious contract, defendant may demur to a discovery of what interest he agreed to take, for he cannot set forth that without discovering the very interest he has taken. Chauncey v. Tahourden, 2 Atk. 393. PL. DISCOVERY; USURY.

Demurrer to injunction as to a mandamus allowed; so to indictment, information, or prohibition. Ld. Montague v. Dudman, 2 Ves. 296.

A demurrer may be put in after a plea is overruled. E. L. Comp. v. Campbell, 1 Ves. 246. PR. PLEA OVERRULED.

Demurrer to information as subjecting defendant to pains and penalties. Id. 246. PL. DISCOVERY TENDING TO CRIMINATE.

Demurrer lies to a bill for discovery of an assignment of a lease without licence, if it does not expressly waive the forfeiture. Uxbridge v. Starveland, 1 Ves. 56. PL. DISCOVERY TENDING TO FORFEITURE; COVENANT, BREACH OF.

Demurrer allowed to a bill for payment of wages of knights of a shire, the remedy being at common law. Shepherd v. Cotton, 1 Ves. 38.

Demurrer to discovery of defendant's title under a settlement, in contradiction to which plaintiff claimed, overruled, being unsupported either by answer or plea to a specific charge in the bill. Stroud v. Deacon, 1 Ves. 37. PL. DISCOVERY.

Where the bill was for discovery, and to perpetuate testimony, and plaintiff amended by striking out the discovery and relief, but the bill, in praying process, prayed that defendant might abide such order and decree as the court should think proper; it was held a bill for relief, and a demurrer was allowed. Rose v. Gannell, 3 Atk. 439. PRAYER FOR RELIEF.

Defendant having examined B, his clerk, in court, plaintiff exhibited interrogatories to cross-examine him, to which he demurred, for that he knew nothing, but as defendant's clerk in court or agent; demurrer overruled, as covering too much, for it ought to conclude that he knew nothing but by the information of his client. Vaillant v. Dudomead, 2 Atk. 524. PROFESSIONAL SECRECY; PR. CROSS-EXAMINATION.

Where at law the party calls upon his attorney for a witness, the other side may cross-examine him to the point in the cause. S. C. ib.

Counsellor, solicitor, or attorney, may be privileged from being examined in such cases, but not an agent. Id. ib.

Demurrer to examination as being counsel for the opposite party was overruled, for that what he knew was as conveyancer only. S. C. ib.

A, by will, gave an estate to his wife, dur. viduat. with a limitation over, in case of her second marriage. The remainder-man brought a bill for discovery of her second marriage, to which she demurred, as subjecting her to a forfeiture. Demurrer overruled, for this is not a condition, but a limitation over of an estate, and therefore no forfeiture. If it had been a condition for the breach of which a forfeiture would have been incurred, such a demurrer would have been allowed. Chauncey v. Tahourden, 2 Atk. 392, 393. PL. DISCOVERY TENDING TO FORFEITURE.

Bill by executor for discovery of defendant's marriage, who demurred as it would be a forfeiture of her legacy, which was given conditionally, if she married with consent of trustees under the will. Demurrer allowed, as she cannot answer the marriage without shewing, at the same time, it was against consent. S. C. lb.

Demurrer will lie to bill brought to discover whether there is such a person, or where he is, in order only to make him a party. Dineley v. Dineley, 2 Atk. 394. PL. DISCOVERY.

Bill brought by principal to discover what goods defendant bought of his agent; he demurred, for that he was not obliged to set out what gain he had made by retail; demurrer overruled. Lisset v. Reare, 2 Atk. 394. lb.

A demurrer to part of a bill of discovery and answer to other part of the bill, the demurrer is overruled, if the answer extend to any of the facts covered by it, and there is no distinction in this respect between demurrers to bills for relief, and demurrers to bills for discovery only. Corbett v. Hawkins, 1 Y. & J. 421. PL. ANSWER.

Where, under a local act, the corporation were bound to pay a certain annual sum to the commissioners under the act, which sum was paid up to 1818, afterwards in 1821, an action was brought for the arrears then due, to which the corporation pleaded, in effect, a deficiency of revenue whereout the commissioners could pay the same; whereupon the commissioners filed a bill stating the facts, upon which the liability arose, and charging that the revenues were not deficient, setting forth various tolls, &c. which before and since the act the corporation had let on leases at large rents, and alleging that since that period it had received beyond the sum due to the commissioners, and leaving a surplus annually, praying a discovery and account, &c. To this the corporation demurred, first, as to the discovery and account prior to 1818, on the ground that any surplus previous thereto was not applicable to the payment of arrears of future years; they also put in an answer, admitting leases and receipts of various tolls, and certain harbouring dues and ferry tolls, contending that the latter were revenues not liable under the act to the payment of the charge, and that upon the other tolls there had been no surplus beyond the expences of collecting: Held, first, that the demurrers were overruled by the answer, and, second, that admitting the surplus of previous years not to be applicable, the discovery of the revenues in such antecedent years might furnish presumptive evidence and material upon the trial of the action. Archer v. Little, 1 Bli. N.S. 272.

A general demurrer, for want of equity, to bill for discovery in aid of action, interrogating as to certain facts, is overruled by defendant's answering as to any material fact, though it was done in compliance with the rule, on granting time to answer, &c. not demurring alone. On a special application, however, made before filing or arguing demurrer, leave will be given so as to relax this rule. Sherwood v. Clark, 9 Price, 259. PL. ANSWER; PR. TIME TO ANSWER.

Bill stating a sequestration for want of an answer, prayed a discovery and account of all money or other property of the defendants in the original cause, in the hands of defendants, who are bankers at the time of service of the sequestration, or since. Upon demurrer as to the money, and answer as to the rest of the bill, the Ld. Ch. determined against the demurrer upon the form, considering it overruled by the answer, and would not, in that stage of the cause, decide the two points, 1st, whether a sequestration on mesne process can be executed farther than to pay the expences; 2nd, whether a chose in action is liable to sequestration. *Simmonds v. A bill by the safety of an officer of the commissioners of excise, after being sued upon his bond for an account, alleging the officer had overpaid; the commissioners must be parties. Makepeace v. Needler, id. PRIN. & SURETY.

Bill to be relieved against a bail bond, assigned by the sheriff by fraud; plaintiff in the action at law must be made a party. Israel v. Nurbourne, 1 Vern. 87.

A mortgaged his land, and then confessed several judgments; some of the judgment creditors gave the mortgagee notice, and he afterwards obtained a decree to foreclose the mortgage. Those who gave notice may redeem as creditors, for a valuable consideration, but those who gave no previous notice of their judgments are barred of all redemption. Smith v. Valence, 1 Ch. Rep. 170. Vide Welden v. Rallison, 1 Ch. Rep. 171. MORTGAGE, FORECLOSURE OF.

One not a party to a bill dismissed, may file a new bill upon the same equity, because he cannot have a bill of review. Doult v. Smith, 2 C. C. 119.

So also where a bill is dismissed, upon defendant's proving himself a purchaser for valuable consideration, another may be exhibited, charging notice. Williams v. Williams, 1 C. C. 252.

King may sue in chancery, 1 Roll. Ab. 373. 1 Eq. Ab. 71.

Chancellor may sue in equity, but not judge his own case. Id.

If alien purchases land in name of another, admitting the king is entitled to the trust, yet he must sue in equity to have it executed. Id.

Where wrong party is sued, advantage must be taken by plea, and not by motion. Harrison v. Haute, Cary, 64.

2. Assignors and Assignees.

Mortgagee having assigned the whole of his interest, need not be made a party to a redemption bill. Norris v. Marshall, 5 Mad. 475. MORTGAGE ASSIGNMENT; MORTGAGEE; REDEMPTION.

Assignee of interest in suit cannot be made party without supplemental bill. Foster v. Deacon, 6 Mad. 69. SUPPLEMENTAL BILL; ASSIGNMENT, PEND. LITE.

He may petition to secure the fund. Id. ib.

Where assignment of bond is not available, court will direct obligees to permit their names to be used by plaintiff, assignee, in putting bond in suit. Jackson v. Ratford, 4 Price, 274. BOND, ASSIGNMENT OF.

If land is aliened pendente lite, though not prejudicial to plaintiff, yet alienee ought to be brought before a court. Daly v. Kelly, 4 Dow. 435. ALIENATION, PENDENTE LITE.

A writ of restitution will not be granted to put into possession a person, not a party to the cause, who had been turned out by an injunction, though he had a legal title. He having obtained such possession under a grant from the defendant pending the suit. Gaskell v. Durden, 2 Ball & B. 167. WRIT OF RESTITUTION.

In an assignment of mortgage without the authority or privity of mortgagor, the last assignee only is a necessary party to bill by mortgagor to account. Chambers v. Goldwin, 9 Ves. 269. MORTGAGE & MORTGAGEE; ASSIGNMENT OF MORTGAGE.

Bill by the assignee of a person who had made a general conveyance in trust for his creditors, and afterwards taken the benefit of an insolvent act in respect of the surplus against the assignee, the trustee and mortgagees, dismissed with costs. Spragg v. Binks, 9 Ves. 583. INSOLVENT; SURPLUS.

3. Attorney General.

Where a legacy of a sum of stock was bequeathed to the rector, churchwardens and overseers of the poor of a parish, upon trust to lay out and dispose of the interest and dividends in bread, to be given for ever annually to the poorest parishioners at the discretion of the rector, churchwardens and overseers, for the time being: held, that the rector, churchwardens and overseers might file a bill for payment of the legacy, and that an information by the attorney general was not necessary. Mayor v. Nixon, 2 Y. & J. 60. CHARITY.

Attorney general is necessary party to all suits for charity legacy, except where legacy is made part of its general funds. Wellbeloved v. Jones, 1 S. & S. 40. CHARITY; TRUSTEE.

To petition by householders under stat. 52 G. 3. c. 101, on account of misapplication of funds of parish charity, established by royal charter. Attorney general is not a necessary party: it is sufficient that he certify his allowance of it. In re Chertsey Market, 6 Price, 261.

In suit by equitable mortgagee to obtain benefit of mortgage on lands of mortgagor (who was a simple contract debtor of crown, which had been seized by crown and sold, the court ordered the money due to the depositary to be paid out of the proceeds of the sale before the crown should be satisfied; the purchaser under crown-assignee of term therein, the debtor, and the attorney general, were made parties. Cuskerd v. Ward, 6 Price, 411.

A decree pronounced in 1670 in a suit against the trustees of a charity, impropiate rectors, and persons interested in the due application of the funds, to which the attorney general was not a party, having directed the trustees under the indemnity of the court, to perform an agreement with the plaintiff in that suit, for granting a lease of tithes for 980 years, at a fixed pecuniary rent, and an exchange of lands, and the conveyances having been accordingly executed, and the rent constantly paid, and the lands enjoyed in conformity to the decree, an information by the attorney general, at the relation of the present trustees, against the person claiming under the plaintiff in the former suit, for an account of tithes, not stating the decree of 1670, which was set forth in the answer, was dismissed. Att. Gen. v. Warren, 2 Swan, 291. INFORMATION, DECREE, WHO BOUND BY.

Attorney general is not a necessary party to bill, to set aside ecclesiastical leases. Att. Gen. v. Moses, 2 Mad. 294. ECCLESIASTICAL LEASES.

When parties claim under too different grants from the crown, each reserving a rent, but of different amounts; inasmuch as the rights of the crown are concerned, the attorney general ought to be before the court. Hocenden v. Id. Annesley, 2 Scho. & L. 617.

Court refused to order dividends received before bill filed, of stock purchased by the old government of Switzerland; to be paid into court by the trustees, on application of the present government, without having the attorney general made a party. Doddler v. Bank of England, 10 Ves. 352. P.R. PAYMENT INTO COURT.

Bill for a legacy to a charity, without making the attorney general a party. Chitty v. Parker, 4 Bro. C. C. 38. CHARITY.

In a suit between the proprietors of provinces granted by the crown to settle boundaries, the attorney general should be a party. Pen v. Ld. Baltimore, Ridgw. 332.

A voluntary society entered into with intent to provide by a weekly subscription for such members as should become necessitous, and their widows, is in nature of a private charity, and it is not necessary to make the attorney general a party. Anon. 3 Atk. 277.

An inquisition of attainder is only to inform, and does not entitle the crown to any right; therefore the attorney general is not a necessary party to a bill, for an account of the estate of the subject of the inquisition. Burt v. Brown, 2 Atk. 309. ATTAINDER.

One having a bastard, leaves a personal estate to her executors in trust for the bastard who dies intestate, and without wife or issue. The executor brings a bill against one who has part of this personal estate in his hands. The defendant demurs, because the attorney general and the administrator of the bastard are not parties; demurrer disallowed, for that the executor has the legal title, and consequently may sue for the estate. Jones v. Goodchild, 3 P. W. 33. S. C. 2 Eq. Ab. 168. INTERSTACY; BASTARD.

A having outlawed B, brings a bill against B and C, a trustee for B, with respect to an annuity, to subject this annuity to the plaintiff's debt. The attorney general ought to be made a party, and the plaintiff must get a lease or grant in the court of exchequer from the crown. Bulch v. Wastall, 1 P. W. 445. OUTLAWRY.

Bill to avoid a lease, for that the lessor was a lunatic; the attorney general must be a party. Leigh v. Wood, Rep. T. Finch, 135. LUNATIC.

4. Bank of England.

Any court of equity may order the bank of England to suffer a transfer of such stock to be made, or to pay dividends belonging to, or standing in the names of any party to a suit; or issue an injunction to restrain such transfer or payment, although the bank be not a party; court being satisfied by the certificate of the accountant of the said corporation, duly signed by him, that the stock is standing in their books, in the name of the person required to transfer the same, and that after due service of a short order upon the said governor and company, &c., which shall contain no recital of their pleadings or other matter, than the title of the cause and the ordering part of such decree or order which respects the said governor and company, and for which the sum of 18s. and no more shall be paid, like process shall issue to enforce such order for decree as to enforce them against any party to a suit depending in such court, 39 & 40 G. 3. c. 36.

s. 1. On request of the clerk in court and solicitor of the party, the bank shall deliver a certificate, stating the amount of such stock or dividends, &c., for which the fees herein specified shall be paid. Act not to extend any further discovery than herein mentioned, nor to any case where the bank claim an interest in the fund, and the bank may state their objections to any transfer by motion or petition. Id. s. 2. BANK OF ENGLAND; P.R. STOCK, TRANSFER OF.

The costs of the bank paid out of the capital of a legacy, for the security of which they were made parties. Hammond v. Neame, 1 Swan. 38. BANK OF ENGLAND; P.R. COSTS.

Notwithstanding act of parliament, 39 & 40 G. 3. c. 36, bank of England may still be made parties to bill to restrain transfer of stock filed since that act; demurrer by bank overruled. Temple v. Bank of England, 6 Ves. 769. BANK OF ENGLAND.

5. Bankrupts and Insolvents, and Assignees.

Though on bankruptcy of mortgagor there was no bargain and sale of estate to assignees, yet bankrupt is not a necessary party to bill of foreclosure. Lloyd v. Lander, 5 Mad. 282. BANKRUPTCY ASSIGNMENT; BARGAIN & SALE; MORTGAGE.

• Obligor, though insolvent, and so stated in the bill, may yet be made party defendant, and is not allowed costs. Haywood v. Orey, 6 Mad. 113. INSOLVENCY; OBLIGOR; COSTS.

One, of two or more assignees of bankrupt, may sue in equity, without the others joining in the suit. Wilkins v. Fry, 1 Mer. 244. S. C. 2. Rose, 371. BANKCY. ASSIGNEES.

A bankrupt may file a bill for an account, and an injunction, without making his assignees parties to the suit. Larndes v. Taylor, 2 Rose, 365. BANKCY. ASSIGNEES.

Demurrer by a bankrupt to a bill, joining him with his assignees in charges and prayer for relief, viz. the specific performance of a contract previous to his bankruptcy, allowed. Whitworth v. Davis, 1 V. & B. 545. BANKRUPT; P.L. DEMURRER.

Whether a bankrupt can be made a party merely for discovery, and to maintain an injunction; Quere? Id. ib.

Bill by bankrupt against mortgagee of estates in England and Wales, for an account and payment of the balance to defendants, charging collusion generally, but not averring that there will be a surplus, nor charging a direct application to assignees to sue: Held demurrable. Benfield v. Solomons, 9. Ves. 77. P.L. BILL; BANKRUPT.

Bankrupt stating that apparent incumbrances are not substantial ones, and assignees refusing, or not permitted by other creditors to interfere, permitted to sue in their names, indemnifying them as to costs. Id. 84.

A bankrupt, or insolvent debtor, cannot file a bill of redemption in respect of his right to the surplus, but where he has a clear interest, and the assignees refuse, the Ld. Ch. will, upon petition, and an offer of indemnity, compel them to let him use their names. Spragg v. Binks, 5 Ves. J. 590. BANKRUPT; INSOLVENT.

Bill against bankrupt and assignees, charging a fraudulent bankruptcy to defraud the plaintiff's execution, and stating that under an agreement with the assignees for an arbitration, the plaintiff deposited the goods for sale, the produce to be in trust according to the award; that he had lost his copy, and the assignees had obtained the original from the person with whom it was deposited for the benefit of all parties, and refused inspection; prayed a discovery and injunction; a demurrer by the bankrupt disallowed. King v. Martin, 2 Ves. J. 641. BANKRUPT; DISCOVERY; AGREEMENT.

In a suit against assignees, tending to diminish the fund, the bankrupt may be examined as a witness, and ought not, therefore, to be a party. Griffin v. Archer, 2 Anst. 478. BANKRUPT; PR. WITNESS, COMPETENCY OF.

An uncertificated bankrupt filed a bill without making assignees parties. On circumstances, which raised a doubt as to the validity of the commission, the bill was retained with liberty to add parties. Govit v. Armitage, 2 Anst. 412. BANKRUPTCY; ASSIGNEES

A man, who has made an assignment of his property under an insolvent act, cannot sue in his own name, unless all his creditors have been paid. Gill v. Fleming, Ridgw. P. C. 431. INSOLVENT DEBTOR.

An insolvent debtor is not a necessary party to a bill by a purchaser of his interest in stock against his assignee; but if it has been sold for an apparently under price, the court will enquire into the real value previous to decreeing a specific performance. Collet v. Wollaston, 3 Bro. C. C. 228. INSOLVENT; SPECIFIC PERFORM.

Bill to be relieved against bonds which were assigned by commissioners of bankrupts, the assignee must be a party. Foord v. Lear, Barn. 265. Rep. T. Finch, 265. BANKCY., ASSIGNEE.

If a bill is brought for discovery of a bankrupt's estate, the bankrupt must be a party. Sharpe v. Gamon, 2 Vern. 32. BANKCY.

6. Co-obligors and others having joint Interest and Liability.

A bill will lie by the last indorsee of a lost bill of exchange to recover the amount from the acceptor; and prior indorsees need not be made parties to the suit. Macartney v. Graham, 2 Sim. 284. BILL OF EXCHANGE; DEEDS LOST.

To bill by obligee of joint and several bond, all obligors must be parties. Blund v. Winter, 1 S. & S. 246. BOND.

In bill by indorsee of bill of exchange, which has been lost, against acceptor, it is not necessary to make drawer a party. Daries v. Dodd, 4 Price, 176. LOSS OF DEEDS, &c.; BILL OF EXCHANGE.

All obligors in joint and several bond, principals and sureties must be parties generally. Exception where the surety is insolvent, or has paid nothing. Cockburn v. Thomson, 16 Ves. 326. PRINCIPAL & SURETY.

On a bill filed by a surety against his co-surety, and the principal for a contribution from the co-surety, in respect of money actually paid by the plaintiff for the principal, it is not necessary to prove the insolvency of the principal; otherwise, where the principal is not a party to the suit. Lawson v. Wright, 1 Cox, 275. PR. EVIDENCE; PRINCIPAL AND SURETY; CONTRIBUTION.

Three obligors in a bond: the obligee brought the principal and the representatives of one surety before the court, and stated that the other died insolvent; an objection for want of parties in this case was overruled. But where a debt is joint and several, each debtor must be before the court, for they are entitled to each other's assistance, as well as to a contribution from each other. So, where there are different funds, and plaintiff can sue either heir or executor, both must be made parties; but there are exceptions to this rule, as where some of the obligors are only sureties, for a surety need not be a party, unless he has paid the debt. So, where there are no personal assets, the representatives of an insolvent co-obligor need not be before the court. Mador v. Jackson, 2 Ark. 406. PRINCIPAL & SURETY.

If obligors are jointly and severally bound, they may be severally sued in equity as well as at law. Stanley v. Stock, Mos. 383. BOND.

Two obligors in a bond bound jointly and severally, and one dies, the executor of the deceased obligor may be sued in equity for the debt, without making the surviving obligor a party. Collins v. Griffith, 2 P. W. 313.

Bill against some parties liable to loss to bear their portion is not demurrable, because are all not made parties. Anon. 2 Eq. Ab. 166.

Where parties are jointly liable to account, it may be prayed against one only, as to what he has received, &c. Corsland v. Cely, Prec. Chan. 83. ACCOUNT.

A co-executor beyond seas need not be made party to a bill for account against the other. S. C. 1 Eq. Ab. 73. EXECUTOR.

So a co-factor. Id. ib.

A bill on a bond must be against all the obligors. Anon. 2 Free. 127.

The rule was dispensed with when the obligors were very numerous. Ld. Cranborne v. Crispe, Rep. T. Finch. 105.

7. Debtor to Estate of Testator.

Creditor permitted to sue debtor to estate upon collusion with executors. Benfield v. Solomons, 9 Ves. 86. DEBTOR & CRED.

Principle on which debtor to estate cannot be made defendant to bill by creditors, &c. against executor, equally applies to case of creditor over-paid by executor. Alsager v. Rowley, 6 Ves. 748. PRIVITY OF CONTRACT; DEBTOR & CRED.

Though, generally, a bill by those interested in the personal estate as creditor or next kin, will not lie against a debtor to the estate, it will, under circumstances, as in the case upon collusion with the representative; the defendant was also liable in the character of trustee and agent. Dorin v. Simpson, 4 Ves. 651. DEBTOR & CRED.; FRAUD, COLLUSION.

Creditor, filing a bill against executor, cannot make a debtor a party; in case of insolvency of the executor, the court will, on petition, appoint a receiver, and compel the executor to allow his name to be used in bringing actions. Uttersen v. Mair, 2 Ves. J. 95. S. C. 4 Bro. C. C. 270. DEBTOR & CRED.

A creditor, where there is a collusion between the executor and debtor to the estate, may make the latter a party to bill for account, or in the case of a partner of the testator. Newland v. Champion, 1 Ves. 105. ACCOUNT; DEBTOR & CRED.

Bill by creditors, and one residuary legatee against a debtor to estate; the executor, and other residuary legatees, to compel debtor to pay debt, is not maintainable. Bickley v. Donington, 2 Eq. Ab. 253. DEBTOR & CRED.; PRIVITY OF CONTRACT.

8. Debtor and Creditor.

To impeach a settlement for fraud, there must be a creditor to complain of it, and he must be enabled to sue by having obtained judgment at law for his debt, and must state that he is defrauded by it. Colman v. Croker, 1 Ves. J. 161. DEEDS, VOLUNTARY; FRAUD ON CRED.

Where executor of wife has been obliged to pay creditor of wife; on bill for reimbursement against executor of husband, creditor need not be party. Bertie v. Ld. Chesterfield, 9 Mod. 32.

If assignees of a bankrupt refused to bring a bill that is for the benefit of the bankrupt's estate, any creditor has a right to bring such bill under peril of costs. Franklyn v. Ferne, Barn. 30. BANKCY. ASSIGNEES REFUSAL TO SUE.

9. Ecclesiastical Persons.

See also PL. PARTIES, 21.—TITHES, VI. VII. and post, p. 804, subd. 21.

Bill by a vicar against a sequestrator for an account of profits during the vacancy, the bishop must be a party. Jones v. Barret, Bun. 192. SEQUESTRATION; BISHOP.

10. Executors and Administrators.

Where one executor has alone proved, he may sue without making the other executors parties, although they have not renounced. Davies v. Williams, 1 Sim. 5.

A testator resident in India, and having all his property there, bequeathed his residuary estate to H L; but if she should die before him, then to her children. H L died before the testator, and the executor, who was also resident in India, proved will there, and remitted residue to his agent in England, with directions to pay it to H L, or her children. A suit having been instituted by the children, who were infants, against the executors and his agents to have the residue secured: Held, that the legacy duty was payable upon it, and that administration to the testator ought to have been taken out in this country, and the administrator made a party to suit. Logan v. Fairlie, 2 S. & S. 284. LEGACY DUTY; ADMINISTRATION.

Share of an intestate's personal estate was assigned to trustees in trust, for the appointees of husband and wife, and in default of appointment, in trust for them and the survivor. Husband and wife sold and assigned this share. Husband died and then wife, having bequeathed all her personal estate to the plaintiff. Husband's personal representative is not a necessary party to a bill by the legatee to set aside the sale. Dowlin v. Macdougall & 1 S. & S. 367.

Two estates being mortgaged together, on the death of the mortgagee, the equity of redemption of the one devolves on A, that of the other on B; B is a necessary party to a bill by A for a redemption. Chelmondeley v. Clinton, 2 Jac. & W. 2. REDEMPTION OF MORTGAGE.

The personal representative of the mortgagor is a necessary party to a bill for the execution of a trust for sale by way of mortgage. Christophers v. Sparke, 2 Jac. & W. 229. MORTGAGE.

Testator appointed persons residing in India and Scotland his executors. Will was not proved in England. Executors in India remitted sum of money to agents in England, and creditor of testator filed bill against agents, praying an account and payment in meanwhile of the money to the accountant general. Demurrable because no personal representative of testator was made party. Lowe v. Farlie, 2 Mad. 101. FOREIGN WILL.

Mortgage by tenant in fee by creating a term, the personal representative ought not to be a party to a bill of foreclosure. Bradshaw v. Outram, 13 Ves. 234. MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE.

To bill by assignee of deceased executor and residuary legatee, agent to executor and residuary legatee, for moiety of residue. Representative of assignor need not be party, except to dispute assignment. Blake v. Jones, 3 Anst. 651. ASSIGNMENT.

Administrator not brought before master by motion, after a decree passed and entered, if there is anything in it affecting him by way of order to pay, otherwise if only for him to witness what is done. Habergham v. Vincent, 1 Ves. J. 68. PR. AMENDMENT; PR. DECREE.

If a bill be brought against principal and one surety, and it is admitted that the other is dead, insolvent, and there are no personal assets, his representatives need not be made parties. Madot v. Jackson, 3 Atk. 406. And see Angerstein v. Clark, 2 Dick. 738.

A, gave his real estate to B, and his personal to B and C, his executors, who proved will and acted. B dies. To bill brought for legacy, charged upon real and personal estate, it is not sufficient to make only B's heir at law and C parties, but B's executors likewise. Williams v. Williams, 9 Mod. 299.

Where some of the undertakers under the act of 4 Anne, c. 14. in regard to briefs, are dead, on a bill for an account, their representatives need not be brought before the court, for they are each answerable, the one for the other. Exp. Angel, 2 Atk. 162.

Though the person is come of age, during whose infancy the will appointed an executor dur. min., yet if he have not collected in the whole estate he must be brought before the court. Glass v. Oxenham, 2 Atk. 21. EXECUTOR DUR. MIN.

Where representation is contesting in spiritual court, bill for discovery of assets, without making administrator a party, may be brought. Plunket v. Penson, 2 Atk. 51. ADMOR. DISPUTED; ADMOR.

Plea that representatives of personal estate were not before court, allowed, though suspected to be for delay merely. Id. ib. PL. PLA.

Administrator though insolvent, is a necessary party to bill for discovery of assets. Ashurst v. Fyfe, 2 Atk. 51. ADMOR.; INSOLVENCY.

Bill brought to redeem against the defendant, who had notice of the plaintiffs title, but bought of W, who had no notice; the objection allowed for not bringing the representatives of W before the court, or otherwise the defendant would be deprived of that defence. Lowther v. Carlton, 2 Atk. 139.

A person acting under a letter of attorney from administrators, may be sued by them in their own right as their bailiff or receiver, and they need not name themselves administrators. Hudson v. Hudson, 3 Atk. 462.

A covenant for himself and his heirs, that a jointure house shall remain to the uses in the settlement. The jointress brings a bill against the heir for a performance. The defendant demurs, for that the executor ought to be made a party; held good. Knight v. Knight, 3 P. W. 331.

One devises that his executors should sell his land; and leaves two executors, one whereof dies and the other renounces, and administration is granted to A, who brings a bill against the heir to compel a sale; whether the renouncing executor, in whom the power of sale, collateral to the executorship was vested, ought not to be made a party? Yates v. Compton, 2 P. W. 308. EXOR., RENUNCIATION OF.

Bill for account cannot be filed against one co-executor only, either as a creditor or as residuary legatee. Scurry v. Morse, 9 Mod. 89. ACCOUNT.

Executor's name added to decree to account, without putting off cause. Pitt v. Brewster, Dick. 37.

Executor cannot bring a bill without shewing thereby that he has proved the will in the spiritual court, if he does, this is good cause of demurrer; but it is enough to allege he has duly proved the will, without saying in what court. Humphreys v. Ingledon, 1 P. W. 752. WILL, PROOF OF.

Where an executor in trust was outlawed, and a witness proved he had inquired after and could not find him, not necessary to make him a party. Heath v. Percival, 1 P. W. 684. 1 Str. 403. OUTLAWRY.

Executors of an insolvent lessee were necessary parties to bill against assignee of lessee's devisee for enforcing covenant to repair, &c. Sainsbury v. Granner, 2 Eq. Ab. 166.

Heir and administrator of party intestate, must be parties to revive decree for payment of money, and for conveying of lands. Ferrers v. Cherry, 1 Eq. Ab. 3. BILL OF REVIVOR.

Bill by a creditor against B for a discovery of the estate of H, supposed to be in his hands. Demurrer, for that no executor or administrator was a party, allowed. Conway v. Stroud, 2 Freem. 188.

The heir of the mortgagor forecloses the mortgage, the executor being no party. Upon a bill by the executor against the heir of the mortgagee and the mortgagor, the land was decreed to the executor; but if the executor of the mortgagee, after a foreclosure by the heir, brings a bill to have the benefit of the mortgage, the heir, if he thinks fit, may take the benefit of the foreclosure to himself, paying the executor the mortgage-money and interest. Clerk-on v. Bowyer, 2 Vern. 67. MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE.

A bill may be brought against an executor for discovery of the personal estate before the will is proved, or during the litigation thereof in the spiritual court. Dulwich College v. Johnson, 2 Vern. 49.

No good cause of demurrer, that an executor is not a party when plaintiff alleges in his bill he knows not who is executor, and prays defendant may discover him. Bowyer v. Corert, 1 Vern. 95. PR. DEMURRER.

Although an executor does actually release, yet he must be a party to the suit. Smithby v. Hinton, 1 Vern. 31. RELEASE.

It is sufficient to make those executors parties who have proved the will, and the other executors if they have demands out of the estate, may come in as creditors before the master. Brown v. Pitman, Gilb. Eq. Rep. 75. And see Wankford v. Wankford, 1 Salk. 307.

All executors must sue and be sued, though one be an infant. Offey v. Jenney, 3 C. R. 92. Nel. 42. Scurry v. Morse, 9 Mod. 89.

A demurrer allowed to a bill brought against plaintiff, who was supposed to have some of the deceased's effects in his hands, because there was no executor or administrator party; but if none administer, plaintiff as creditor may. Conway v. Stroude, 2 Freem. 188. EXOR. & ADMINOR.

A being seized of lands and indebted on judgment, died intestate, leaving a wife and son; the wife took out administration and entered upon the land as guardian and dies, leaving B her executrix, who possesses her personal estate; the son dies, and his heir, the plaintiff, pays the judgment; to a bill for an account of the profits of the land, the administrator de bonis non of A, is a proper party. Bressenden v. Deereets, 2 C. C. 197.

If the legatee of a term sue for it, he must make the executor a party, it is not sufficient to charge that he assents to the legacy. Moor v. Blagrave, 1 C. C. 277.

To an information on the behalf of a charity, to discover the profits of lands for the satisfaction of a legacy charged thereon, the executor must be a party. Att. Gen. v. Toisden, Rep. T. Finch. 336.

A creditor cannot in any case sue a debtor to the testator's estate, without making the executor a party. Rumney v. Mead, id. 303. Griffith v. Bateman, id. 334.

A creditor or legatee may bring a bill against a legatee or debtor, if he make the executor a party and charges collusion. Att. Gen. v. Wynne, Mos. 126.

A suit by the heir against the widow to compel her to abide by her election, to take a legacy in lieu of dower, an account of the personal estate was decreed, and the plaintiff had leave to amend, by making the executor a party. Lesquire v. Lesquire, Rep. T. Finch, 134.

Feme covert by leave of her husband took a bond in the name of her servant, but in trust for herself; her husband died, and the obligor paid the money to his administrator; to a bill of interpleader against the servant and the feme, the administrator must be a party. Flavell v. Bull, id. 330.

Bill stated that an estate purchased in defendant's name, was so purchased in trust for plaintiff's ancestor, who paid the purchase-money, and prayed a reconveyance: demurrer, for that the executor of the ancestor was not a party overruled. Atley v. Fountain, id. 4.

Suit by one surety against another for contribution, the representatives of another surety, who died insolvent, ought to be parties. Hole v. Harrison, id. 15. PRIN. & SURETY.

On a bill against the heir of a mortgagee to redeem, the executor or administrator must be made a party. Anon. 2 Freem. 52. MORTGOR. & MORTGEE.

Where the heir of the mortgagee brings a bill to compel the mortgagor to redeem, or be foreclosed, the executor must be a party. Freak v. Hearsey, 1 C. C. 51. 2 Freem. 180. Nel. 93. Clerkson v. Bowyer, 2 Vern. 66.

To a bill against the heir of the mortgagor, to have payment or hold without redemption; the personal representative of the mortgagor must be made a party. Necker v. Tutor, 2 C. C. 29.

A term of 1000 years was granted, but conditioned to sink and be extinguished upon payment of an annuity for forty-two years. In a bill brought by the heir of the grantor against the heir of the grantee, after the expiration of the forty-two years, for a surrender of the residue of the term, the personal representative of the grantor need not be parties. Bampfild v. Vaughan, Rep. T. Finch.

The heir of the obligor demurs, because his administrator was not made a party, and the demurrer was overruled, because he would not administer himself, and had opposed the plaintiff in taking out administration as principal creditor. D'Aranda v. Whittingham, Mos. 84.

11. Heir at Law.

See also HEIR AT LAW, II.

It is the practice to keep the heir at law before the court, even though he admit the will. Jackson v. Radford, 4 Price, 274. HEIR AT LAW.

A second mortgagee, to redeem a prior mortgage, must make the heir of the mortgagor a party, though the second mortgage is only of part of the estates comprised in the first, and under a different title. Palk v. Ld. Clinton, 12 Ves. 48. MORTGAGE, REDEMPTION OF.

On a bill, filed on behalf of younger children, to raise portions out of the real estate, the infant heir ought to be made a defendant, not a plaintiff. Plunket v. Joyce, 2 Scho. & L. 159. HEIR AT LAW.

Bill by devisees, in trust to sell for specific performance of an agreement to purchase, that the heir of the devisor is not a party to the suit, is not matter of exception to the report in favour of the title. Wake- man v. Dr. Rutland, 3 Ves. 234. HEIR AT LAW; EXCEPTIONS TO MASTER'S REPORT.

The heir of a private founder, who has appointed no visitor, must be made a party to an information for regulating a charity; but the court, in favour of charities, will direct an enquiry for the heir. Att. Gen. v. Guunt, 3 Swan. 148. CHARITY INFORMATION; HEIR AT LAW.

Deeds not delivered out of court to a devisee, unless the heir is before the court. Anon. 1 Ves. J. 29. PR. DELIVERY OF DEEDS; DEVISEE; HEIR AT LAW.

In a bill by a second mortgage to redeem the first mortgage, the mortgagor or his heirs must be before the court: heir being abroad, the court cannot proceed. Fell v. Brown, 2 Bro. C. C. 276. MORTGAGE, REDEMPTION OF.

Though, at law, a specialty creditor may sue either the heir or executor, yet, in equity, he must make both parties. Mados v. Jackson, 3 Atk. 406; and see Plunket v. Penon, 2 Atk. 51.

To bill against executors of testator, on whose land annuities were charged, seeking arrears accrued due in life of testator, heir need not be party; but for arrears since testator's death, he must. Weston v. Bowes, 9 Mod. 309. HEIR AT LAW.

In a bill by creditor, under the statute of fraudulent devises, against the assignee or devisee only, the heir at law is a necessary party; and for want of him, the cause ordered to stand over. Warren v. Stawell, 2 Atk. 125. Id.

If an action at law be brought, it must be both against the devisee and heir at law, and equity follows the law in this respect. Id. ib.

In a devise of lands to pay debts, if the creditors bring a bill to compel a sale, the heir is generally to be made a party. Secus, in case of trust created by deed to pay debts. Harris v. Ingledew, 3 P. W. 92. HEIR AT LAW; TRUST TO PAY DEBTS.

One seised of lands in fee binds himself and his heirs in a bond, and devises his lands to J in fee, and dies: in a bill brought by the obligee in the bond, to subject the devisee to the payment of debts, the devisor's heir must be made a party. Cawler v. Wade, 1 P. W. 99. HEIR AT LAW.

A, tenant for life, remainder to B in fee; B mortgaged the estate to C, who devised it to D: D need only foreclose against B, for the heir of C had no interest, and need not be made a party. Williams v. Day, 2 Ch. Ca. 32. MORTGAGE, FORECLOSURE OF.

12. Husband and Wife.

Where feme covert, having separate interest, joins as co-plaintiff or co-defendant with husband, it will not prejudice a future claim by her. Hughes v. Evans, 1 S. & S. 185. FEME COVERT.

On the death of a defendant, against whom the bill seeks to set aside a contract entered into by him for the sale of his wife's estate, it is regular to revive against his personal representative, without making wife a party. Humphreys v. Hollis, 1 Jac. 73. ABATEMENT & REVIVOR.

Hill filed by feme covert, stating her as a spinster, her solicitor being ignorant of her marriage, and her husband ignorant of this suit till after the decree: on motion, by consent, the husband was permitted to prosecute the decree under terms. Farer v. Wyatt, 5 Mad. 449. PR. MISNOMER; PR. DECREE, PROSECUTION.

In suit by feme covert, it is necessary that husband should be a substantive party, as wife's claim to separate estate is against the jus mariti. By joining the wife as co-plaintiff, husband admits the statement in bill that it is separate property of wife, and this will answer all the purpose of making him a defendant. Smith v. Myers, 3 Mad. 474.

Demurrer by a married woman to a bill praying discovery only against her, and relief against her husband as to contracts, &c., by her, as agent for her husband, alleging the vouchers, &c., to be in her possession; allowed, upon the objection, first, to making a mere agent a party; secondly, to admitting the testimony of a wife in her husband's cause. I.e. Testiere v. Marg. Anspach, 15 Ves. 169. AGENT; DISCOVERY.

Annuity being granted by feme covert, charged upon her separate estate, being void under statute for want of insertion of clause of redemption in the memorial, the consideration cannot be recovered out of her separate estate, though part of the money was applied in paying fines upon admission to copyholds. Plaintiff seeking relief, not merely against husband seised or entitled in right of his wife, but against the separate estate of wife, must serve the wife. Jones v. Harris, 9 Ves. 486.

Husband a formal party to bill against wife, in respect of separate estate. Lillia v. Airey, 1 Ves. J. 278.

Where a suit is relative to the separate estate of a wife, the bill ought to be filed by her prochein amy: if, however, such a suit be instituted by the husband and wife jointly, the court will secure the fund for the wife in the name of trustees or the accountant-general. Griffith v. Hood, 2 Ves. 452.

A husband, tenant for life, remainder to wife for life, brings a bill alone for the opinion of the court upon the settlement: objection, for want of making his wife a party, allowed. Herring v. Yoe, 1 Atk. 290.

A man may sue alone, without his wife, for a debt due to her by bond; but if he joins the wife in the action, and recovers judgment, and dies, the judgment will survive to her. Oglander v. Baston, 1 Vern. 396. CHOSES IN ACTION.

Regularly, husband and wife ought to join in suit; but if a feme covert demands relief for a separate maintenance settled by the husband, she may sue alone. Regnes v. Lewes, 1 C. C. 35.

If a husband sue for choses belonging to the wife as for a bond or legacy, she must be a party to the suit; but otherwise, if suing for a rent accruing in the wife's right after marriage. Clark v. Ld. Angier, 1 C. C. 41. S. C. Nel. 78.

Husband need not be joined with wife in her bill against trustee for separate maintenance. Lanky v. Goulding, Cary, 87.

13. Legatees and Devisees General and Residuary.

The general rule is, that appointees under a will of feme covert are necessary parties to suit concerning fund, which is subject of appointment. Court v. Jeffery, 1 S. & S. 105.

In ordinary cases, executor represents whole personal estate, and therefore legatee not necessary party. Id. ib. EXOR.; LEGATEE.

Suit for specific performance of contract to purchase freehold; defendant had paid several large sums on account of purchase-money, leaving a considerable portion still due; he died when cause was at issue, leaving real and personal to infant children. Plaintiff revived against executors only. Held, that infant devisees were necessary parties. Suit ordered to stand over to amend, in that respect, by supplemental bill. Townsend v. Champenowne, 9 Price, 130. PL. BILL OF REVIVOR.

A decree for redemption and general account, &c., having been made in the original and revived causes in favour of the supposed devisee, it cannot be restricted in the supplemental suit to an account to be taken as between the executors and mortgagees, &c., to the time of the death of the devisor, dismissing the bill as it regards the interest of the devisee; for th devisee is a necessary party to the account. Rylands v. Layton, 2 Bligh, 667. DEVISEE; PR. DECREE; ACCOUNT.

Residuary legatees not necessary parties to suit against executor. Brown v. Douthwaite, 1 Mad. 446. RESIDUARY LEGATEES.

Generally, a residuary legatee must bring before the court all persons interested in the residue; exception where not necessary or convenient. Cockburn v. Thompson, 16 Ves. 328. Id.

Residuary legatee need not be a party to a bill for specific legacy. Wainwright v. Waterman, 1 Ves. J. 30. Id.

All residuary devisees must be parties. Parsons v. Neville, 3 Bro. C. C. 365. RESIDUARY DEVISEES.

In a suit for a moiety of a residue the other persons interested must be before the court. Sheritt v. Birch, 3 Bro. C. C. 229.

Every legatee whose legacy is charged on real estate ought to be before the court. Morse v. Sadler, 1 Cox, 352. LEGATEES; CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

In a bill against the executor either by creditors or legatees, it is not necessary to make the residuary legatee a party. Lawson v. Barker, 1 Bro. C. C. 303. RESIDUARY LEGATEE.

Not necessary to make any other than the executors, parties relative to the personal estate, since he sustains the person of the testator to defend the estate for himself, creditors, and legatees. Peacock v. Monk, 1 Ves. 127. EXORS.

In a suit for a legacy, it is not necessary to make other legatees parties, although from a deficiency of assets, all the legatees must abate. Att. Gen. v. Ryder, 2 C. C. 178. LEGATEES.

Where a legacy is given to two, one cannot sue alone for it; if the residue be given to divers, they must all be parties; but when legacies are given to divers persons, each alone may sue for his own legacy. Haycock v. Haycock, 2 C. C. 124. Id.

A pecuniary legacy to each of three children, and the residue to be equally divided among them, to a bill by one legatee for the pecuniary legacy, it is not necessary to make the others parties, but if the bill is for the residuary share, the others must be parties. Dunstall v. Rabbet, Rep. T. Finch, 243. And see Atwood v. Hawkins, Rep. T. Finch, 113. Id.

Devise for seven years on condition that devisee should within the time pay devisors' debts, remainder to plaintiff at twenty-one; on a bill to compel payment of debts, or be let into possession, other parties to whom the estate is devised until plaintiff attained twenty-one, are necessary parties. Pigg v. Cordwell, Rep. T. Finch, 278. DEVISEES.

Administrator of an executor who was likewise a legatee by the will of the testator, exhibited his bill against the other executor; a demurrer for that the defendant's brothers, also legatees, and charged by the bill as combining with the defendant, were not parties, was allowed. Calle v. Greenhill, Rep. T. Finch, 202. LEGATEES; EXORS. & ADMORS.

14. Lessor and Lessee, and Sub-Lessee.

Defendant's setting up defence of title in landlord, and producing in evidence on hearing certain deeds belonging to landlord, ordered, on petition, to produce such deeds on trial of issue, or that they should admit facts which, as alleged by other party, deeds would establish, though landlord was not party to suit. Pulley v. Hilton, 10 Pri. 118. PR. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS; LANDL. & TEN.; PL. ADMISSIONS BY ANSWER.

Renewal decreed against a tenant under a bishop's lease without any contribution from his sub-lessee, he having covenanted that as often as the bishop should renew, he would renew without fine with his sub-lessee. The tenant and his lessor are necessary parties, the sub-lessee deriving his title from their covenants. Revell v. Hussey, 2 Ball & B. 280. LEASE, RENEWAL OF, FINE ON; CONTRIBUTION.

To a bill by mortgagee or trustee of a leasehold interest evicted for non-payment of rent, against the landlord, seeking a redemption; a demurrer, the lessee not being a party, allowed. Adams v. St. Leger, 1 Ball & B. 181. LANDL. & TEN.; REDEMPTION OF FORFEITED INTEREST.

One tenant in common having leased his share on a bill for partition, the lessee is a necessary party, and his costs must be borne by his lessor. Cornish v. Gest, 2 Cox, 27. TENANT IN COMMON; LESSOR & LESSEE.

A bill by a lessee for twenty-one years under the dean and chapter of W. against a lord of a manor and the tenant of a particular house which obstructed plaintiff's way, praying that the house might be pulled down, and that plaintiff be quieted in the possession of the way: held that the dean and chapter of Winchester, who were the owners of the inheritance, were necessary parties. Poors v. Clark, 2 Atk. 515. LANDL. & TEN.

On a bill for an injunction to stay an ejectment at law against the plaintiff's tenant, the tenant ought to be a party. Lawley v. Walden, 3 Swan, 142. LANDL. & TEN.; EJECTMENT; PR. INJUNCTION.

Lease of lands is granted, reserving mines, &c., and a power of working them, lessor paying for damages done, which mines were leased to B. On bill for performance of covenants against representatives of lessor, B need not be party. Green v. Poole, 5 Bro. P. C. 504. LESSOR & LESSEE.

15. Lord of Manor.

Where a bill is brought for surrender of a copyhold estate for lives, the lord must be made a party; because when the surrender is made, the estate is in the lord, and he is under no obligation to regrant it; contra in the case of copyholders of inheritance, there the lord need not be a party. Anon. 6 Vin. Ab. 239. COPYHOLD SURRENDER.

16. Incumbrancers, Mortgagor and Mortgagee, &c.

Persons entitled to part only of money due on mortgage, cannot file bill for foreclosure of that part alone of mortgaged premises. Palmer v. F. Carlisle, 1 S. & S. 423. MORTGAGE, FORECLOSURE; PARTITION.

There can be no redemption or foreclosure unless parties entitled to the whole of mortgage money are before the court. Id. ib. MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE; MORTGAGE REDEMPTION.

Mortgagee is not necessary party to bill for partition. Swan v. Swan, 8 Price, 518. PARTITION; MORTGOR. & MORTGEE.

A receiver cannot be appointed without mortgagee's being before the court, if a mortgage appears upon the face of pleadings. Price v. Williams, Coop. 31. RECEIVER; MORTGOR. & MORTGEE.

The court ordered a bill of foreclosure to stand over to make a judgment creditor, the only incumbrancer not before the court, a party, but would not adopt as a general rule the usual practice to make all incumbrancers parties. Jp. Winchester v. Beavor, 3 Ves. 314. INCUMBRANCER; MORTGAGE, FORECLOSURE OF.

Judgment creditor, prior to a mortgage, need not make the subsequent mortgagee party in order to postpone him. Shepherd v. Guinness, 3 Swan, 151. JUDGMENT CRED.; MORTGAGE; PRIORITY OF SECURITY.

To bill of foreclosure against the principal mortgagor, the mortgagor of another estate, as a collateral security, is a necessary party. Stokes v. Clendon, id. 150. SECURITY, COLLATERAL.

Annuitants prior to a mortgage need not be made parties to a suit by the mortgagee against the mortgagor for a sale, but the estate must be sold subject to the annuities. Delahere v. Norwood, id. 144. ANNUITANTS; MORTGAGE.

One mortgagee, out of several interested, cannot sustain a bill of foreclosure for his proportion alone, without making the others parties. Lowe v. Morgan, 1 Bro. C. C. 360. Montgomerie v. M. Bath, 3 Ves. 560. was contra. But see 1 Bro. C. C. 365. note. MORTGAGOR. & MORTGEE.

Where a bond creditor brings a bill against an executor for an account of assets and satisfaction, it is no objection for want of parties that he has not brought other bond creditors or creditors of a superior nature before the court, for the court only decrees an account, with a direction for the executor to pay in a course of administration. Anon. 3 Atk. 572.

The mortgagor or his heir should be a party to bill by mortgagee. Hovew v. Wadham, Ridg. 199. MORTGAGOR. & MORTGEE.

Prying relief where mortgagee is a party, is the same as praying to redeem, and if on a reference to a master they do not redeem him, the court will dismiss the bill, which is equivalent to a foreclosure. Cholmley v. De. Orford, 2 Atk. 267. MORTGAGE, REDEMPTION OF.

Heir of mortgagor need not bring original mortgage before court where latter has assigned without mortgagor's joining. Hill v. Adams, 2 Atk. 39. Id.

An old mortgage is made to B for 350*l.*, who, in 1705, makes an under mortgage to C for 300*l.* C brings a bill to foreclose; B the original mortgagee, or in case of his death, his representative, ought to be made a party. Hobart v. Abbot, 2 P. W. 643.

Where estate is subject to several incumbrances, one incumbrancer may sue without making the rest parties, at least it is cured by a decree directing an account to be taken of all the incumbrances affecting the estate. Odell v. Graydon, 6 Bro. P. C. 67.

Where person derives title under a dormant settlement, all remainder-men without settlement, as well as all mesne incumbrancers on estate, must be made parties to suit. Edgworth v. Edgworth, 5 Bro. P. C. 498.

A bill to foreclose having been filed in this case, the court made a decree and ordered the mortgaged lands to be sold; afterwards a third person, who had paid off the mortgage and taken an assignment thereof, and of the decree of foreclosure, applied to the court to set aside their order for a sale, which the court refusing, he appealed to the lords, by whom the order of refusal was affirmed with costs. Crowe v. Hultiday, 2 Ridg. P. C. 50. MORTGAGE, FORECLOSURE OF.

If a mortgagee in possession assign over, and the mortgagor prefer his bill, suggesting that the debt is fully paid, and for an account of the surplus, he must make the mortgagee and all the assignees parties; but if the bill be brought for an account, and to pay what is due, he need not make the mortgagee a party. Anon. 2 Free. 59. MORTGAGOR. & MORTGEE.; ASSGN. & ASSGN.; MORTGAGE, ASSIGNMENT OF.

Second mortgagee contesting, by his bill, the validity of the first mortgage, the mortgagor must be a party. Thomson v. Baskerville, 3 C. R. 215.

17. Where numerous.

A few of a large number of persons may institute a suit, on behalf of themselves and the rest, for relief against acts injurious to their common right, although the majority approve of those acts, and disapprove of the institution of the suit; and the attorney general need not be a party to it, but where the whole body concurs in an abuse, the suit must be instituted by the attorney general. Bramhall v. Smith, 1 Sim. 8. ATT. GEN.

If several of the shareholders assign by deed their deposits to others, and appoint the latter their attorneys for recovering their deposits, the assignees cannot sue on behalf of themselves and their assignors; but the latter, however numerous, must be parties to the suit. Blain v. Agar, 1 Sim. 374.

One shareholder of canal may file bill on behalf of self and others, to set aside agreement made contrary to provisions of the act of parliament. Gray v. Chaplin, 2 S. & S. 267.

Where object of suit is to avoid payment of rate levied on the inhabitants of a town, all having common interest to avoid the rate, any one or more of them may sue on behalf of themselves and the other inhabitants. Att. Gen. v. Heelis, id. 76. PARISH RATE.

Bill by some partners against committee of partnership for account, &c., must be on behalf of themselves and other partners not of committee. Baldwin v. Lawrence, id. 18. PARTNERSHIP.

Bill to carry trusts of creditor's deed into execution, may be filed on behalf of all creditors by one of them only, where they all executed the deed, but were very numerous. Wild v. Barham, id. 91.

The cases in which a bill can be filed by one person on behalf of himself and others, are cases in which the others have a choice between that and nothing. Jones v. Garcia Del Rio, 1 Turn. & R. 297.

Appointees being very numerous, and bill filed by some on behalf of all, court will dispense with general rule requiring all appointees to be parties. Manning v. Thesiger, 1 S. & S. 106.

A person having a common right against many other persons, may file a bill against some of them; and if the right is fairly established, the court will carry the decree into execution, against other persons not parties to the suit. Neale v. West Middlesex Waterworks Comp., 1 Jac. & W. 369.

But one of several inhabitants of a district, who claim a right under an act of parliament to be supplied with water by a public company, cannot file a bill on behalf of himself and others. Id. ib.

A joint stock company, established by act of parliament, vesting in them all property belonging to them, and authorising them to bring actions in the name of their treasurer for the time being, having purchased an estate pending a suit against the vendors, to compel the specific performance of an agreement to grant a lease of part, on a bill by the vendee against the treasurer and directors, the plaintiffs were declared entitled to a lease, and the treasurer was enjoined from disturbing their possession, though the rest of the proprietors, being very numerous, were not parties; but no decree could be made for the execution of a lease. Menz v. Maltby, 2 Swan. 277. JOINT STOCK COMPANY; PURCHASE, PENDENTE LITE.

Commissioners appointed by act of parliament, being authorised to levy a rate (not exceeding a certain proportion of the poor rate) on the occupiers of all houses, &c. in Brighton, for paving, lighting, and watching the town, and another rate, not exceeding a fixed sum, on every chaldron of coal landed on the beach, or otherwise brought into the town, for repairing or building works to protect the coast of Brighton against the encroachment of the sea (the act reciting, that the inhabitants were unable to raise money sufficient for that purpose without the aid of parliament), with power of distress for non-payment, and liberty to apply any surplus of the coal rate, after payment of the debt contracted on the security of that rate, and the expenses of repairs, &c. in aid of the rate for paving, &c., to an information by the attorney general, at the relation of inhabitants, filed against forty-eight commissioners (the whole number being a hundred), by the description of acting commissioners, stating that the commissioners had, during several years, levied the coal duty at its maximum, and applied a large proportion of the produce in aid of the town rate for paving, &c., instead of the construction and repair of works for the protection of the coast, and the discharge of the debt contracted on the security of the coal duty, and had distrained the goods of the relator for non-payment of the duty, and praying an account of the money levied and expended; an injunction against an undue levy, and a direction that the commissioners should replace any sums which they had applied to purposes not warranted by the act; a general demurrer for want of equity, and a demurrer ot tenus for defect of parties, were overruled. Att. Gen. v. Brown, 1 Swan. 265. PL. INFORMATION.

Society for relief in sickness, &c., by means of a fund raised by subscription of the members, considered merely as a partnership, having no corporate character. In a suit, therefore, against the trustees by some members for an account, alleging a dissolution contrary to the articles, all other members must be parties. Beaumont v. Meredith, 3 V. & B. 180. FRIENDLY SOCIETY; ACCOUNT.

The strict rule, that all persons materially interested must be parties, dispensed with, where it is impracticable, or very inconvenient, as in the case of a very numerous association in a joint concern, in effect a partnership. Defect of parties the subject of demurrer or plea, as it appears or not on the face of the bill. Cockburn v. Thompson, 16 Ves. 321.

Parties dispensed with for convenience in the first instance, coming in after institution of suit, must have opportunity of supporting their interests, rehearing, &c., a creditor, for instance; and if partner with debtor, subject to account. Id. 327.

Various cases, where parties dispensed with; bills by or against some tenants of a manor, as for suit to a mill, &c., some parishioners for tithes, or a modus, societies for insuring each other, which was not within the statute 6 Geo. 1. c. 18. Id. 328.

Bill by one of the officers and crew of a privateer against the owner, for an account of captures, according to the articles. Leave given to amend, by stating that the bill was on behalf of the plaintiff and all others; and upon that amendment, the account was decreed. Good v. Blewitt, 13 Ves. 397. ACCOUNT.

Upon a bill for equitable relief as to a rent charge, all the persons whose estates are liable must be parties. The rule dispensed with, under circumstances, making it impracticable, or highly inconvenient. Att. Gen. v. Jackson, 11 Ves. 367. RENT CHARGE.

General rule, requiring all persons interested to be parties, dispensed with, where it is impracticable or extremely difficult; in such a case to obtain a decree, to establish right of suit to a mill, for instance, court only requires parties sufficient to secure a fair contest, and right being established in that way, consequential relief may be had against the rest in another suit. Adair v. New River Comp., id. 429.

Demurrer (to bill by some members of lodge of freemasons against others, to have the dresses, &c. delivered up, and an injunction) was allowed on ground that they affected to sue as a corporate body; but leave was given to amend, the court holding jurisdiction for delivery of chattel; and where there is an interest, permitting some to sue as individuals representing the rest, in other instances than those of creditors and legatees, if convenient to justice that all should be parties. Lloyd v. Loaring, 6 Ves. 773. CHATTELS; PARTNERS.

A corporation may join in a suit to establish a claim of exemption on behalf of its individual members. Corp. of London v. Corp. of Liverpool, 3 Aust. 738. CORPORATION.

Any creditor may obtain an order for prosecuting a decree for an account. Crense v. Hunter, 2 Ves. J. 165. 4 Bro. C. C. 157. ACCOUNT; PR. DECREE, CARRYING INTO EXECUTION.

Where A, B, and C, on behalf of themselves and other members of a club, enter into articles with D to provide necessaries for the use and accommodation of the club, they are personally bound by such articles; and D is not obliged to resort to any of the other members for satisfaction of his demands. Dk. Queensbury v. Cullen, 1 Bro. P. C. 396. Affirming 1 Bro. C. C. 101.

Bill by a legatee, wrongly described by the testator, for his legacy, one of the next of kin being a party: a decree was made without requiring the other next of kin, who were numerous, to be brought before the court. Brulwin v. Harpur, Ambl. 374. LEGATEES.

Part of a ship's crew appointed two to be agents. On bill for account by such agents in their own names, and not "on behalf of themselves and the rest," a demurrer was allowed for not having made the whole parties. Leigh v. Thomas, 2 Ves. 312.

A few creditors may sue for themselves and rest, and the suit abates not by death of one. Id. 313.

Though some members of a corporate body be wanting, equity will decree execution of an agreement to grant a lease if the money is paid, for corporations differ from private persons, and the same rule in executing agreements will not hold. Winne v. Bampton, 3 Atk. 475. CORPORATION.

Bill by one tenant of the manor of A, suggesting a custom for the tenants of that manor to cut turf in the manor of B. Where several persons have the same right, and are disturbed, such bills are entertained to avoid a multiplicity of suits, since one or two determinations will establish the rights of all parties on the footing of one common interest; but in all such bills, all parties, or a determinable number, join in the name of the rest. Here, only one brings a bill in the general right, and not in a distinct right. Bill dismissed. Baker v. Rogers, Sel. Ch. Ca. 74. MULTIPLICITY OF SUITS.

Part of the proprietors of an undertaking may bring some others of them to an account, without making all the members parties, especially if they sue on behalf of themselves and others. Chancey v. May, Prec. Chan. 592. ACCOUNT.

In a suit on behalf of a charity for the arrears of a rent charge, it is not necessary to make all the terre-tenants of the land, out of which the rent issues, parties. Att. Gen. v. Wyburgh, 1 P. W. 599.

To bill for charitable uses, all the terre-tenants need not be made parties. Att. Gen. v. Shelly, 1 Salk. 162. CHARITY.

A agrees in writing with B and C to pave the streets in the parish of D; B and C, on behalf of themselves and the rest of the parish, agree to pay A. The agreement is lodged in the hands of B. A shall have his remedy against B and C, and they must resort to the rest of the parish. Meriel v. Wymondshall, Hard. 205. AGREEMENT, WHO BOUND.

Bill on bond must be against all the obligors. Anon. 2 Freem. but dispensed with where numerous. Cranbourne v. Crisp, Finch. 105.

18. Partners and Part-owners, Joint Tenants and Tenants in Common.

A B and C, being partners together, A agrees with D, to give him a moiety of his share in the concern ; an account may be decreed between A and D, without making B and C parties. Brown v. De Tastet, 1 Jac. 294. ACCOUNT BETWEEN WHOM ; PARTNERS.

One partner may file bill against his co-partner for account, without seeking a dissolution of partnership. Harrison v. Armitage, 4 Mad. 143. Sed quere. PARTNERSHIP, DISSOLUTION ; ACCOUNT.

One of two part-owners of a ship having assigned his share to the other, the former is a necessary party to a bill by a creditor of both against the representatives of the latter. Pierson v. Robinson, 3 Swan. 139. ASSIGNMT.

Abatement by the death of one of the plaintiffs, tenants in common, bill of revivor by his representative ; the survivor, if not a co-plaintiff must be made defendant. Fallowes v. Williamson, 11 Ves. 306. TENANTS IN COMMON ; REVIVOR, BILL OF.

Joint owner not necessary party to bill against factor, on a demand against the other moiety, defendant having kept separate accounts, and admitted the produce of that moiety to be in his possession. Weymouth v. Boyer, 1 Ves. J. 416.

A, stated by books in evidence for defendant to be a merchant abroad, and one witness swearing he knew him late a merchant abroad, and no evidence of his return sufficiently proved, out of the jurisdiction, as would be presumed at law, and defendant precluded from objecting that he was not a party. Id. ib.

One part-owner of a ship cannot bring a bill on behalf of himself and the other part-owners, but they must all be parties. Moffat v. Farquharson, 2 Bro. C. C. 338. PARTNERSHIP.

To a bill against a bailee for re-delivery of jewels, persons entitled to a part of them, are not necessary parties. Saville v. Tuncred, 3 Swan. 141. BAILEE ; PART-OWNERS.

In a suit for a share of a partnership adventure, all the parties having shares must be parties. Ireton v. Leves, Rep. T. Finch, 96. PARTNERS.

In a bill to establish a title of fish, all persons interested in any one particular adventure must be parties. Coppard v. Page, For. Exch. 1. Id.

Two joint tenants for life, if one of them exhibit a bill, the other must be made a party, without the bill shows that he is dead. Weston v. Keighley, Rep. T. Finch, 82. JOINT TENANTS.

19. Parties not interested as Witnesses, Agents, &amp;c.

If a motion is intended to lay the foundation for a subsequent application against the solicitor of some of the parties, the solicitor in his personal capacity ought to be made a party to that motion. Van Sandau v. Moore, 1 Russ. 441. PR. MOTION.

Where witness is made party, merely for purpose of discovery, it is demurrable. Hou v. Best, 5 Mad. 19. PL. DISCOVERY ; WITNESS ; PL. DEMURRER.

Chief clerk to company, though he has no interest, and may be examined as witness, may nevertheless be made a party in suit against such company for discovery. Gibbons v. Waterloo Bridge Comp. 5 Price, 491.

Demurrer to bill by annuitant, against an incorporated company and their clerk for discovery of funds not appropriated, overruled, on account of clerk joining in demurrer. Id. ib. PRINC. & AGENT.

Generally, it is not necessary to make an attorney a party, because he has title-deeds in his possession, although it may become so under particular circumstances. Fenwick v. Reed, 1 Mer. 114. SOL. & CLIENT.

Rule that mere witness, having no interest, ought not to be made party, is not without exception. Whitworth v. Davis, 1 V. & B. 550. WITNESS.

The only case in which a person, against whom no relief is prayed, is allowed to be made a party, is that of the agent of a corporation ; where an agent is so involved in a fraud, that the court will charge him with costs ; though relief cannot be prayed against him ; yet if the costs are not prayed against him, a demurrer lies. Le Teulier v. Marg. Anspach, 15 Ves. 164. But see 2 Ves. 284. AGENT.

General rule that a mere witness is not to be made a party ; exceptions in the cases of arbitrators and attorneys, and corporations, whose officers and servants are made parties. Dummer v. Corp. of Chippenham, 14 Ves. 252. WITNESS.

A solicitor assisting his client in obtaining a fraudulent release is properly made a party, and liable to costs, if the principal be not solvent. Bowles v. Stewart, 1 Scho. & L. 227. SOL. & CLIENT ; FRAUD.

Bill for discovery, in aid of an action ; demurrer by mere witness allowed, though discovery would be more beneficial than an examination at law, and notwithstanding a charge of interest in defendant as to which he may be called by plaintiff, waiving the objection, and if called against him, may be examined on the voir dire. Fenton v. Hughes, 7 Ves. 287. PR. WITNESS.

To bill for relief, mere witness cannot be party, except in the case of a secretary, &c. of a corporation. Id. 288. Id.

To bill against vendor for specific performance, his stewards and receivers ought not to be made parties, a specific performance being decreed, bill as against them dismissed with costs. McNamara v. Williams, 6 Ves. 143. SPEC. PERF.

An agent who was to have no emolument beyond his salary, decreed to account for profit made by a clandestine sale to his principal on his account. Timber purchased for a colliery ; before it was applied to the use of the colliery, some of the owners retired, and it was paid for by those only who remained : the former owners are not necessary parties to a suit by those who remained against the vendor on account of sale. Mussey v. Davies, 2 Ves. J. 317. PRINC. & AGENT ; ACCOUNT.

It is no answer on exceptions, that the defendant is a mere witness, and ought not to have been made a party ; for having submitted to answer, he must answer fully. Cookson v. Ellison, 2 Bro. C. C. 252. WITNESS ; WAIVER ; PR. EXCEPTIONS TO ANSWER.

The parent is not a necessary party to a suit to set aside a deed fraudulent on marriage, but is a competent witness to prove the fraud on a bill filed by the husband and wife. Scott v. Scott, 1 Cox, 367. FRAUD ON MARRIAGE ; PR. EVID. WITNESS, COMPETENCY OF.

A mere witness cannot be made a defendant for discovery of what he is examinable to, unless he is interested. If the bill charges he is interested, the defendant must plead and support it by an answer denying that allegation, and cannot demur. Plummer v. May, 1 Ves. 426. WITNESS ; PL. PLEA.

To a bill by representative of the pawnee of a chattel against a third person, merely for a delivery of it, the owner need not be a party. Saville v. Tankred, 1 Ves. 101.

An agent being prosecuted for contempt in disobeying an order of which he had no notice, may join in an appeal from that order, though no party to the cause in which the order was made. Stone v. Byrne, 5 Bro. P. C. 213. PR. APPEAL.

In an issue directed to try whether M made a contract for his own use, or in trust for B C and D, M is very properly made a party, and ought not to be a witness; because, as a witness, he was to answer to his own advantage, viz. to lessen the number of his partners in a beneficial contract. Dawson v. Franklyn, 4 Bro. P. C. 626. ISSUE AT LAW.

J, of K, caused a sum in S. S. stock, belonging to another person of the same name, to be transferred into his own name, and then into the name of a broker for sale, and who accordingly sold it for him: in a bill against the representative of J of K, and the S. S. company, the solicitor for the broker is not a necessary party. Harrison v. Pryse, Barn. 324. PRIN. & BROKER.

26. Tenant for Life; in Tail, and Remainder-man.

In a suit concerning the inheritance of a trust estate, settled on B for life, and after remainders to his unborn children, upon the person who should then be entitled to claim as Baron C in tail, with an ultimate remainder to the present baron C in fee; the person presumptively entitled to the barony, although no person entitled to a prior estate of inheritance is before the court, is not a necessary party. Cholmondeley v. Clinton, 2 Jac. & W. 2. REM.-MAN.

It is sufficient to bring the first tenant in tail before the court. Lloyd v. Jones, 9 Ves. 55. TEN. IN TAIL & REM.-MAN.

Tenant for life having made a lease of coal mines, amounting to a forfeiture, cannot join the remainder-man in a bill for an injunction. Wentworth v. Turner, 3 Ves. 3.

It is sufficient if the first tenant in tail is a party to a bill of foreclosure. Reynoldson v. Perkins, Amb. 664. S. C. 1 Dick. 427. PL. BILL OF FORECLOSURE; TEN. IN TAIL & REM.-MAN.

A party who is plaintiff has no right, in order to clear his own title, to bring remainder-man before the court, upon a discussion whether a prior remainder-man has title or not, and therefore a bill against them dismissed. Pelham v. Gregory, 1 Eden, 518.

On bill to execute trust, the first entitled to inheritance is a necessary party, if in being. Finch v. Finch, 2 Ves. 492.

Where a remainder-man brings a bill against tenants for life, to have the title deeds brought into court, parties claiming under the trust deed must be parties to the suit. Pyncent v. Pyncent, 3 Atk. 571. TEN. FOR LIFE & REM.-MAN.

Where mortgage in fee has made an absolute conveyance, with several limitations and remainders over, the first tenant in tail at least must be brought before the court. Yates v. Hambly, 2 Atk. 237. TEN. IN TAIL.

Bill to impeach settlement is not demurrable because remainder-man, expectant on an estate tail, is not made party. Anon. 2 Eq. Ab. 166. REM.-MAN.

Injunction to stay waste in cutting trees, granted on bill by party who was only tenant for life, and had no right to trees, and though party entitled to inheritance, was not joined. Dayrell v. Champness, 1 Eq. Ab. 400. INJUNC. TO STAY WASTE.

A made a mortgage, and then made a marriage settlement of the equity of redemption, wherein he limited it to his wife, then to the issue of his body, remainder in tail to his brother. The mortgagee brought his bill against the mortgagor for a foreclosure, but he did not make the brother a party, yet he had a decree. The mortgagor afterwards died without issue, and the lands remained to the brother by the settlement, who brought his bill to redeem, which was dismissed. Cartwright v. Barton, 1 Ch. Ca. 217. 220. MORTGAGE, FORECLOSURE OF.

Bill praying account of tithes, and merely stating that impropriator demised tithes to plaintiff, demurred to for want of title; but on argument plaintiff was allowed to amend, by making the impropriator a party, on payment of 5*l.* costs. Jackson v. Benson, 1 M'Clel. 62. S. C. 13 Price, 131. TITLE; PL. BILL AMENDMENT.

Landowner, not being an occupier, made defendant in a suit for tithes, is entitled to have the bill dismissed as against him, with costs, but if he mixes in defence, &c. it will be dismissed without costs. Markham v. Smith, 11 Price, 126. PR. COSTS.

Plaintiff in tithe cause, lessee of vicar, ordered on motion on part of defendant, to bring in and deliver to clerk in court, books, papers, &c. stated in affidavits to be in his possession, and to belong to vicar, who was not a party to suit. Foreman v. Cooper, 11 Price, 515. PR. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS.

Ordinary is a necessary party defendant to bill for establishing modus. Cook v. Butt, 6 Mad. 53. MODUS.

In a suit by an impropriator for tithes, when the defence is, that the tithe in question is vicarial, and the vicar, who is a defendant, dies during the suit, it is not necessary to make the new vicar a party, if the plaintiff will waive the account subsequent to his induction. Davis v. Benn, 1 Jac. 95.

The vicar is a necessary party to a bill for tithes by the impropriator against an occupier, when the defence made is, that the tithes in question are payable to him. S. C. 1 Jac. & W. 513.

A bill to establish a modus should be filed by certain owners and occupiers of land within the parish, on behalf of themselves, of all other owners, occupiers, &c., and the ordinary should always be a party. Hales v. Pomfret, Dan. 142.

An impropriator is not a necessary party to a bill by a vicar, against occupiers; and if made one, he may demur. Bill dismissed against him, but under circumstances, without costs. Williamson v. J. d. Lonsdale, Dan. 171. IMPROPRIATOR OF TITHES.

On bill to establish modus against dean and chapter as rector, the ordinary and parson are necessary parties. De Whelpdale v. Milburn, 5 Price, 485. MODUS.

Where a lay impropriator is not a necessary party, and ought to demur; if he does not but suffers the cause to go to the hearing, the court will not give him costs. Williamson v. Hutton, 9 Price, 187. PR. COSTS.

Rector ought not to be made party defendant in vicar's suit for an account of small tithes withheld by occupiers on a claim by rector. Williams v. Price, 4 Price, 156. ACCOUNT.

To a bill to establish a customary payment in lieu of the tithes, the ordinary must be a party. Gordon v. Simkinson, 11 Ves. 509.

One owner of lands in a township may sue for himself and the others, to establish a contributory modus for all the lands there. Chaytor v. Trinity College, 3 Anst. 841. MODUS.

Rector of M claiming tithes in kind, the occupier and landlord filed a cross bill to establish modus payable to rector of S by the lord of the liberty of which the lands were parcel. It was objected, 1st, that the rector of S not disputing the modus, a bill would not lie to establish it, and 2nd, that the other owners of the land in the liberty should have been parties; bill therefore dismissed. Woolston v. Wright, 3 Anst. 801. MODUS; PL. CROSS BILL.

Where an impropriator's right does not come in question, he need not be made a party to a bill for subtraction of tithes. Carter v. Bull, 3 Atk. 600.

Though a modus be laid in all the occupiers, yet suing part of the occupiers is sufficient, each being liable for the whole. Hardcastle v. Smithson, 3 Atk. 247.

To a bill for a portion of tithes in a neighbouring parish, the vicar of that parish must be a party. Bailey v. Worrall, Bunb. 115.

To a bill for tithes by the bishop and sequestrator during the incapacity of the incumbent, the incumbent must be a party. Bp. of London v. Nichols, Bunb. 141. And if a sequestrator file a bill for subtraction of tithes during the vacancy, the bishop of the diocese must be made a party, because the sequestrator must account to him for his receipts. Jones v. Barrett, Bunb. 192.

The improprator must be a party to a bill against his lessee, to establish a modus. Glanvil v. Trelawney, Bunb. 70. MODUS.

Bill to establish a custom, the owner of the inheritance must be a party. Spendler v. Potter, Bunb. 181. LOCAL CUSTOM.

Bill for tithes by the bishop and sequestrator, during the incapacity of the incumbent, dismissed, the incumbent not being a party. Bp. of London v. Nicholls, Bun. 141. INCUMBENT.

Bill by plaintiffs as lessees of the rector of W, for a portion of great and small tithes in S a neighbouring parish, the vicar of S, who might be entitled to the small tithes, is a necessary party. Bailey v. Worrall, Bun. 115. lb.

In a bill to establish a modus against the lessee of the improprator, the owners of the impropriation must be parties. Glanvil v. Trelawney, Bun. 70. IMPROPRIATION OF TITHES.

Decree, in time of Charles I., for payment of 40l. per annum out of particular lands, formerly part of the forest of Bladen, to the vicar, in lieu of tithes. In a bill against the land-owners to establish a right for this 40l. per annum, it is not necessary that the occupiers, as well as landowners, should be made parties to the bill. Cuthbert v. Westwood, Gilb. Eq. Rep. 320. LANDLORD AND TENANT.

22. Trustee and Cestui que trust, Guardian and Infant, Lunatic and Committee.

The trustees of a charity were made, as individuals, defendants to a suit for the administration of the charity, afterwards the information was amended, and they were made defendants in their corporate capacity, but the suit was not dismissed against them as individuals; at the hearing, the record was considered as constituting two different causes, and the cause against the trustees as individuals was dismissed with costs, though in the cause against them in their corporate capacity, a decree was made remedying abuses which had grown up in the charity, and regulating its future administration. Att. Gen. v. Mansfield, 2 Russ. 501. TRUSTEES OF CHARITY.

Trustee cannot file a bill concerning trust, without making cestuique trust parties, if they are numerous it ought to be filed by some on behalf of themselves and the rest. Douglas v. Horsfull, 2 S. & S. 184. TRUSTEE AND CESTUI QUE TRUST.

A testatrix gives a legacy in trust for the minister of a chapel, but directs that, upon a specified contingency, the legacy is to go to the trustees of a certain college; the interest is paid during many years to the minister of the chapel: Held, that the charity for the chapel may be established upon a bill and information to which the trustees of the college are not parties. Att. Gen. v. Goddards, 1 Turn. & R. 348. CHARITY.

Generally all persons interested are necessary parties to bill of foreclosure; and where equity of redemption was conveyed to trustees to sell, &c. with power to discharge purchaser, by receipt, it does not dispense with necessity of making cestui que trust parties. Calverley v. Phelps, 6 Mad. 229. FORECLOSURE; TRUSTEES; DEEDS, PARTIES TO.

Where there is no imputation of breach of trust in trustee's suffering deed to get out of his possession, he need not be party to bill for its restitution. Kaye v. Moore, 1 S. & S. 61. TRUSTEE.

In a bill to compel performance of covenant to surrender copyhold estate to A in trust for others, A must be a party. Cope v. Parry, 2 J. & W. 638. SPEC. PERF.; TRUSTEE.

In suit against trustees of charity, all the trustees must be parties, though they do not act. In re Chertsey Market, 6 Price, 261. TRUSTEES.

In bill to foreclose mortgage, trustee for mortgagee is a necessary party. Wood v. Williams, 4 Mad. 186. lb.

Right of a cestuique trust to proceed separately against one trustee implicated in a joint breach of trust. Walker v. Symonds, 3 Swan, 75. BR. OF TRUST; TRUSTEE.

To bill by person entitled to a certain aliquot portion of a certain ascertained sum in hands of trustees, co-cestuique trusts are not necessary parties. Smith v. Snow, 3 Mad. 10. CESTUI QUE TRUSTS.

If there are cestui que trusts who ought in strictness to be made parties to such a suit, and they are not so brought before court, their interests may be ascertained and protected (by indulgence of court) by a petition to be presented by them for that purpose, to obviate further delay and expence. Drew v. Harman, 5 Price, 319. CESTUI QUE TRUSTS.

Specific performance decreed at the instance of a person entitled to the benefit of an agreement, though not a party to it. Hook v. Kinneir, 3 Swan, 417. SPEC. PERF.; STRANGER.

A trustee laid out the money of different persons on a mortgage; foreclosure by cestuique trust as to his share, allowed. Montgonerie v. Marq. of Bath, 3 Ves. 560. but see Love v. Morgan, 1 Bro. C. C. 368, and note there contra. MORTGAGE, REDEMPTION OF.

Bill by one trustee of stock against the other, to compel him to replace it or give security according to his engagement, when the plaintiff joined in transferring the stock into his name, demurrer because the cestui que trusts were not parties, overruled with costs. Franco v. Franco, 3 Ves. 75. TRUST & CESTUI QUE TRUST.

In a devise to sell and the produce to be divided, all the persons interested in the fund must be made parties, though the land is sold before suit. Faithful v. Hunt, 3 Anst. 751.

A trustee in a will, who released and never acted, ought not to be made a party in a suit to set aside the will on ground of fraud, and therefore need not answer as to the fraud alleged. Richardson v. Hulbert, 1 Anst. 65. TRUSTEE.

If the trustees of a term and the cestui que trust are before the court, an intermediate trustee of the equitable interest need not be the party to a bill filed to carry the trusts of the term into execution. Head v. Teynham, 1 Cox, 57. TRUSTEES.

A bill charges forgery in a lease, and prays relief, the trustees who were parties to the lease, and to whom the fraud and breach of trust is imputed, must be parties. Jones v. Jones, 3 Atk. 110. lb.

Bill brought by the purchaser of annuity charged on bank stock, in trustees' names, to be paid the annuity and decreed. Floyer v. Sheppard, Amb. 18. TRUSTEE.

Where the real estate is in the hands of trustees, and the trustees convey it over without notice of the trust, if a bill is brought by the cestui que trust, the trustees must be made defendants. Harrison

v. Pryse, Barn. 324. VEND. & PURCH.; TRUSTEE & CESTUI QUE TRUST.

Bill of redemption against the trustee is not sufficient, the cestuique trust must be a party. Whistler v. Webb, Bun. 53. TRUSTEE & CESTUI QUE TRUST.

A cestui que trust must in all cases be a party, but the trustee need not, especially if cestui que trust undertakes for him. Kirk v. Clark, Prec. Chan. 275. Id.

Upon a bill for a specific performance of a covenant with A for the benefit of B, A must be a party. Cooke v. Cooke, 2 Vern. 36.

In a bill against executors who are only executors in trust, it is not necessary to make the cestui que trusts or security legatees parties. Anon. 1 Vern. 261. CESTUI QUE TRUSTS.

A trustee for three persons is called to account. All the cestuique trusts must be parties. Hamm v. Stevens, 1 Vern. 110.

It was found a lunatic by inquisition with a retrospect of seventeen years. It was also found that he had assigned a debt due to him for the purchase of a manor: on a bill by the attorney general, it was held that the lunatic ought to be relieved, but that he need not be made a party, though the defendant should have leave to traverse the inquisition. Att. Gen. v. Parkhurst, 1 Ch. Ca. 113. Et vide S. C. ib. 153, where it was held necessary that the lunatic should be made a party; sed secus of an idiot, for he shall not be admitted to stultify himself. LUNATIC.

A lunatic must be a party to a suit for his own benefit; otherwise, perhaps, in case of an idiot. Att. Gen. v. Woolrich, 1 C. C. 153. LUNATICS & IDIOTS.

But where the suit is to be relieved against an act done by the lunatics, as assigning a debt, he need not be a party. Att. Gen. v. Smith, 1 C. C. 113. Id.

Where a committee sue in the right of the lunatic, in such case the committee and the lunatic are made parties. Fuller v. Lance, 1 C. C. 18. LUNATIC, COMMITTEE OF.

23. Vendor and Purchaser.

Premises held under a demise containing a proviso, that lessees shall not assign without the licence of the landlord in writing, are sold under a decree to a purchaser, who pays his purchase money into court, and is let into possession, the landlord having refused to concur in the assignment, the representatives of the lessee filed a bill against him, alleging, that his conduct, with respect to the sale, had been such as to deprive him in equity of any right to an act on the legal construction of the covenant and proviso against assignment, and praying that he might be decreed to give his licence in writing for the transfer of the interest: the purchasers are necessary parties to such a bill. Mauie v. Dk. Beaufort, 1 Russ. 349. VEND. & PURCH.

To bill by creditors to set aside purchase from debtor on ground of fraud, mortgagee of purchaser ought to be made party. Copis v. Middleton, 2 Mad. 410. FRAUD; MORTGOR. & MORTGEE.

VI. PETITIONS.

See also BANKCY. VI. 11. (c); XVI. 3. (b); XVII. —CHARITY, IV. —LUNACY, IX. —MONEY TO BE LAID OUT IN LANDS.

A petition may be framed in the alternative, and the respondent cannot call upon the petitioner to elect to proceed for only one of the objects of the petition, unless under special circumstances. Exp. Schooley, Buck, 476.

The general rule in bankruptcy is, that if the petitioner do not pray his costs, he cannot have them. Exp. Atkinson, Buck, 215. BANKCY. COSTS; BANKCY. PETITION.

A petition to enforce a claim of proof ought to state the grounds of rejection by the commissioners. Exp. Schmaling, 1 Buck, 93. BANKCY. PETITION.

Petition for a rehearing, ordered to be taken off the file, on the ground of its making a different case from that on which the decree was pronounced. Qu. Whether by consenting to an order consequential on a decree, the party so consenting precludes himself from the right of appeal? Wood v. Griffith, 1 Mer. 35. WAIVER.

Petition of appeal may state the grounds in the answer against the decree. S. C. 19 Ves. 551.

Equitable relief against an uncertificated bankrupt, with suggestion of property subsequently acquired in trade, and ignorance of former bankruptcy in such subsequent creditors, refused on petition with liberty to file bill. Exp. Storks, 3 V. & B. 105. S. C. 2 Rose, 179. CERTIFICATE.

Petition for rehearing ought to state the grounds on which it is sought to rehear the cause; sed quare. Giffard v. Hott, 1 Scho. & L. 398.

Petition for rehearing, or for bill of review, is bad for uncertainty. Hyde v. Donne, 2 Aust. 551. BILL OF REVIEW, PETITION FOR.

On petitions in bankruptcy to be admitted to prove debts, which have been rejected by the commissioners, the petitioners ought to state to the court in the first instance the grounds of the commissioners' objection. Exp. Wilson, 1 Cox, 308. BANKCY., PROOF IN.

Upon a petition of appeal from an inferior court, the appellant need not assign particular errors as he must upon a bill of review. Addison v. Hindmarsh, 1 Vern. 442.

Bill of appeal from inferior courts must be upon the same evidence, and there can be no examination de novo, no more than there may be on a bill of review; but in the spiritual courts they allow new evidence upon appeals. Id. 443.

Appeals lie from the court of equity at Lancaster to the duchy court. Id. ib.

(a) Generally.

To a bill praying a reconveyance of four estates, the defendant put in a plea of a fine as to one, concluding with a disclaimer as to the others: the plea was overruled. Watkins v. Stone, 2 Sim. 49. DISCLAIMER.

Defendant cannot plead a payment as a modus, and afterwards insist upon the same payment as a composition, requiring six months to determine it. Wolley v. Brownhill, 1 M'Clel. 317. S. C. 13 Pri. 500.

Bill for delivery of title deeds and injunction to restrain setting up outstanding terms, to which no affidavit as to title deeds was annexed. Plea overruled, because it should have been confined to so much of bill as related to outstanding terms, and because that part of bill which related to title deeds should be demurred to for want of affidavit. Hook v. Dormer, 1 S. & S. 227. PL. BILL; AFFIDAVIT; TITLE DEEDS; PL. DEMURREN.

A plea not being a short answer to the demand bringing the question between the parties to a single point precisely meeting the allegations in the bill, overruled and ordered to stand for an answer, with liberty to plaintiff to except. Wing v. Murrells, 11 Pri. 723.

Plea to bill by person suing as Earl of S (earldom being a Scotch dignity) that he is not Earl of S, but that defendant is Earl of S and K, and averring that plaintiff is the natural son of the late Earl of S and K and M M, who were resident and domiciled in England at time of his birth, and were not married for several years after, overruled, there being no averment either that the title of S and K was the same, or that the plaintiff was born in England. Quære whether the plea should conclude in bar or abatement? E. Strathmore v. Cs. Strathmore, 2 J. & W. 541.

It is not correct to plead that by certain custom, used and approved in P and nineteen other parishes, no tithes of a particular kind were due and payable to rectors of P. Page v. Wilson, 2 J. & W. 521. TITHES, CUSTOM.

Where plea to the whole bill did not cover the whole relief prayed by bill, it was overruled. Barker v. Ray, 5 Mad. 64.

Plea founded on stat. 32 H. 8. c. 2. to bill of discovery overruled, though good in substance, because no specific answer given to certain statements in bill. Crow v. Tyrell, 2 Mad. 397. PL. DISCOVERY; STAT. C. OF.

Plea covering too much overruled. Noel v. Ward, 1 Mad. 322.

In pleading, case proved should correspond with case laid. Therefore, where in answer to bill for tithes certain customary payments were alleged, and some payments which, from their smallness appeared customary, were shown in evidence without making out moduses as laid, court of exchequer, without issue, decreed for plaintiff. Blake v. Veysie, 3 Dow. 189. TITHES.

Plea with an exception, not requiring a reference to the answer, allowed. Hove v. Duppa, 1 V. & B. 511.

Two inconsistent facts cannot be joined in one plea. Cited in Wood v. Strickland, 2 V. & B. 153. note (e). S. P. 1 Bro. C. C. 416. n.

Various facts cannot be joined in one plea unless conducive to a single point of defence, as several deeds tending to establish the single point of title, &c. Id. ib.

Plea supported by answer must also contain a denial generally by averment. Morrison v. Turnour, 18 Ves. 182.

In plea of payment of composition to bill for tithes, time when or where are not necessary to be stated. Mylton v. Harris, Wightw. 111.

Office of a plea generally not to deny the equity, but to bring forward a fact, the result, perhaps, of a combination of circumstances, which, if true, displaces the equity. Rouse v. Tord, 15 Ves. 377.

A plea must reduce the defence to a single point, which, however, may consist of a variety of facts. Ritchie v. Aylwin, id. 82.

To a plea in bar of a fine, a direct positive averment of seisin is necessary. Hobson v. Leubeaer, 13 Ves. 230. FINE & NONCLAIM.

Plea may be merely a negation of the circumstances stated by the bill. Shaw v. Ching, 11 Ves. 305.

Want of averment in plea of statute of limitations, that money was not received within six years, supplied, in substance, by averment that cause of action, if any, arose above six years before bill. Sutton v. E. Scarborough, 9 Ves. 77. LIMIT. STAT. OF.

Plea may be good in part, and bad in part, as to the difference in this respect between plea and demurrer. Mayor of London v. Levy, 8 Ves. 403.

Office of plea in bar at law, is to confess the right, and avoid it by matter dehors, so in this court in general cases. The excepted cases, where the plea must be supported by answer. Bayley v. Adams, 6 Ves. 594.

Plea of a fine overruled, because no seisin was stated. Page v. Lever, 2 Ves. J. 450.

Bill of foreclosure as to messuage and forty acres of land. Plea deducing title to premises, and stating them to be a messuage and tenement: plea held bad as not relating to land demanded. Wedlake v. Hutton, 3 Aust. 633.

Plea to discovery, that it may subject defendant to penalties of a statute, and also of articles of impeachment exhibited against him by the commissioners, and therefore void. Nobbissen v. Hastings, 2 Ves. J. 84. S. C. 4 Bro. C. C. 252.

To a charge in the bill that A died seized in fee of estates in D and elsewhere, plea of fine of all the estates charged in the bill, and of which A died seized in fee, sufficient, without averments that they were in D, and none elsewhere: court will not intend that there are advowsons merely because mentioned in the fine. Butler v. Ebery, 1 Ves. J. 136. FINE.

Plea by the East India company to a bill for an account filed by the Nabob of Arcot, that by charters confirmed by act of parliament they had certain powers by virtue of which the acts were doing, overruled, it not setting forth the contents of the charters and acts of parliament. Nabob of Arcot v. E. I. Comp. 3 Bro. C. C. 292. Vide S. C. 1 Ves. J. 371. JURISDICTION.

A plea against the jurisdiction of the court must shew what court has the proper jurisdiction. Id. ib.

Plea of conveyance, fine and non-claim, not multifarious, but a good plea to a bill impeaching the conveyance, as not being for a valuable consideration. Doble v. Cridland, 2 Bro. C. C. 274. PL. MULTIFARIOUSNESS.

A being entitled under a will to the use of certain articles of plate for her life, pawned them with B who kept an open pawnbroker's shop. Bill was filed by the representatives of the testator, after the death of

A against B, for a discovery of the particular articles pawned, in order to enable the plaintiffs to proceed in an action at law for the recovery of them. To this discovery the defendant pleaded, that certain articles of plate were deposited with him, for certain sums of money bona fide lent and advanced thereon to A; but he did not by his plea (though he did by his answer) aver that he had no other articles of plate in his possession. For this defect in point of form, the plea was overruled. The defendant then insisted on the same point by his answer in bar to the discovery; but the court thought that where a plea to a bill of discovery was overruled, the defendant could never insist on the same thing by answer. *Hoare v. If the principal be barred so is the interest. Id. 71.

Pleading to all except such parts of the bill as are not hereinafter answered, is too general. Id. ib.

A plea may stand for part, and overruled for part, otherwise as to a demurrer. Dormer v. Fortescue, 2 Atk. 284. DEMURRER.

Plea by widow to bill by creditors of testator, to discover her title to settlement, and offer to discover if they would confirm her title, overruled as not setting out the date, nor the lands contained in the settlement. Chamberlain v. Knapp, 1 Atk. 52.

Plea must aver matter pleaded positively. Hastings v. Draper, 1 Eq. Ab. 39.

A pleaded an inquisition post mortem E; whereby it appeared that B, under whom A claimed, was tenant in tail. The plaintiff objected that A ought to have pleaded the settlement whereby B was tenant in tail, and not to have pleaded that he was tenant in tail as appeared by the inquisition post mortem, finding the settlement. But plea was allowed. Kennedy v. Piggott, 6 Bro. P. C. 8.

Defendant put in answer, plaintiff after amends bill: defendant put in plea to whole bill; held regular. Gambier v. Leheup, Dick. 44.

(b) False Plea.

After decree for administration of assets, executor pleaded false plea to action brought against him by creditors of testator, in order to have an opportunity of applying for injunction to restrain action. Court granted injunction, and held creditor not entitled to judgment against executor, de bonis propriis. Fielden v. Fielden, 1 S. & S. 255. INJUNCTION; EXECUTOR.

False plea, put in for delay, ordered to be taken off the file, with costs to be paid by the solicitor. Aubrey v. Aspinall, 1 Jac. 441.

An action at law by creditor, against an administrator; defendant, by mistake of his attorney, pleads false plea, and verdict for the plaintiff, though merits never tried, yet equity will not relieve. Stephenson v. Wilson, 2 Vern. 325. ADMINISTRATOR; ACTION AT LAW.

Defendant puts in sham plea for delay, ordered on short day, either to be sworn to plea, or put in issuable plea. Lovell v. Hopkins, Cary, 70.

(c) Uncertainty.

Modus laid to be payable by "certain occupiers" uncertain, and not sufficient. De Whelpdale v. Milburn, 5 Price, 485. MODUS.

Moduses introduced by stating, that they are payable by occupiers in lieu of tithes within and throughout parish, (except the occupiers of several other farms and lands), not otherwise described than by their respective names: Held, ill-pleaded for uncertainty. Wright v. Southwood, 5 Price, 607. MODUS.

Uncertainty as to modus and bounds, in pleading modus, is bad. Gillebrand v. Scotson, 4 Price, 267. MODUS.

Upon a bill filed originally in the individual names of a corporation, adding their corporate character, and, on abatement, a bill of revivor in their corporate name only; demurrer, for want of privity, overruled; the naming of individuals, while the proceedings purport to be in a corporate character, and the corporate names added, is mere surplusage. Walker v. Warden, &c. of Christ Coll., 1 Bli. N. S. 9. PL. PARTIES.

Plea by husband and wife, entitled as joint and several plea; word "several" mere surplusage, and does not vitiate the plea. Fitch v. Chapman, 2 S. & S. 31. INTITULING PLEADING.

An allegation, merely surplusage, does not support an objection to a plea as multifarious. Claridge v. Hoare, 14 Ves. 59. MULTIFARIOUSNESS.

Unnecessary words, used in the laying a modus, which would make it indefinite, may be expunged. Ellis v. Saul, 1 Anst. 341. MODUS; PL. PLEA.

(e) Double.

On a special application under circumstances, court will allow pleading double. Gibson v. Whitehead, 4 Mad. 241.

Double pleas not allowed in equity, because, if case cannot be reduced to a single point, the defence may be more conveniently made by answer. Jones v. Frost, 3 Mad. 8.

Defendant, in title cause, having set up defence of composition real, cannot afterwards rely on its being in fact a modus; such defence being double, and too uncertain. Ward v. Shepherd, 3 Price, 608. TITHES.

Plea of statute of frauds, coupled with another defence to bill for specific performance, was ordered.

to stand till the hearing. Cooth v. Jackson, 6 Ves. 12. STAT. OF FRAUDS.

As to the effect of pleading many inconsistent defences, see Nagle v. Edwards, 3 Anst. 702.

A plea, stating that the plaintiffs, who claimed as citizens of London, never were resident there, or paying scot and lot; and that they were admitted freemen by fraud, for the purpose of enjoying the exemption claimed, is bad for duplicity. Corp. of London v. Corp. of Liverpool, 3 Anst. 738.

Plea of the statute of frauds averring, first, that there was no contract in writing; secondly, that there had been no acts done in part performance; overruled as double, and ordered to stand for an answer with liberty to except. Whitbread v. Brockhurst, 1 Bro. C. C. 404. PL. PLEA ORDERED TO STAND FOR ANSWER.

(f) Negative.

Answer to negative plea must be confined to facts specifically charged as evidence of plaintiff's title. Thring v. Edgar, 2 S. & S. 274.

Negative plea to belief of no mortgage, not going to material collateral charges tending to that point, is too loose and general, and overruled. Arnold v. Heasford, 1 M'Clel. & Y. 331.

Plea to the principal ground of relief, as the statute of frauds, with averment of no agreement in writing, not going to collateral circumstances charged as evidence of it; overruled. Evans v. Harris, 2 V. & B. 361. FRAUDS, STAT. OF.

Negative plea, as no partnership, not going to collateral circumstances charged as evidence of it, insufficient. Id. ib. PARTNERSHIP.

To a bill charging corruption of arbitrators, plea of the award merely not sufficient. Id. ib. AWARD.

Negative plea destroying whole foundation of the relief and discovery prayed, allowed. Drew v. Drew, 2 V. & B. 159.

The bill alleging the suppression of a codicil, on assurance by the testator, that he had directed his executors and residuary legatees to pay an annuity, and their promise to him accordingly repeated after his death, and acted upon by actual payment for several years; plea, merely denying the execution of any codicil, and any such direction, overruled. Chamberlain v. Agar, 2 V. & B. 259.

Negative plea to a bill for an account of stone taken from the plaintiff's quarry under a promise to account, alleging assurance that accounts were kept; plea, denying only the promise to account, but not that the accounts had been kept, overruled. Jones v. Davis, 16 Ves. 262.

Plea of the statute, 32 H. 8. c. 9. s. 3. against buying and selling pretended titles; and, also, that there was not any mortgage, as mentioned in the bill, to a bill that the defendant might redeem a mortgage upon a covenant in a lease from the defendant to the plaintiff: Held good, though a negative plea. Hitchins v. Lauder, Coop. 34. CHAMPERTY; DISCOVERY TENDING TO CRIMINATE.

A plea of a negative, that a plaintiff is not the person, or in the situation alleged, as "of no partner nor heir," is good. Hall v. Noyes, 3 Bro. C. C. 483. TITLE.

Negative plea disallowed. Gunn v. Prior, Dick. 657.

2. Pleas of Accounts stated or settled.

See also ACCOUNT.

In what way an account settled should be pleaded, or stated in answer. Capon v. Miles, 13 Price, 767. ACCOUNT SETTLED; PL. ANSWER.

Plea by a trustee of a settled account and release to inquiries, as to the execution of a trust: Held, bad for want of averment, that the matters enquired after would appear from the account. Clarke v. Earl Ormonde, 1 Jac. 116.

Plea of a settled account and release to a bill by cestuique trust against trustee, will not extend to the discovery of vouchers. Id. 117. PL. DISCOVERY.

How an account settled must be pleaded, and by what averments supported. Hadder v. Watts, 4 Price, Exch. 8.

Plea of a general agreement, and composition of accounts good without its being a minute strict settlement of items. Sewell v. Bridge, 1 Ves. 297.

A plea of a stated account to all matters before accounted for is bad; it should aver that it is just and true to the best of defendant's knowledge and belief. Anon. 3 Atk. 70.

Plea of a stated account must state that it was in writing, and set forth the amount of the balance. Burk v. Brown, 2 Atk. 399.

Plea of stated account is a bar to bill for general one, until specific errors are assigned; but it is not sufficient for purpose of setting up a stated account, merely to prove there has been a dividend between the parties. Dawson v. Dawson, 1 Atk. 1.

Where there is a plea of a stated account to bill brought for general one, plaintiff must amend. Sumner v. Thorpe, 2 Atk. 1. Id.

Bill for an account of money received for one who became a bankrupt; defendant pleaded, he received the money as a menial servant to the bankrupt, and had accounted for it to him. Plea overruled. Wagstaffe v. Belford, 1 Vern. 95.

3. Of Agreement.

See also AGREEMENT.

A bill being filed against two parties, praying accounts and relief against both; after one of the defendants had put in an answer, an agreement is made between the plaintiff and the two defendants by their agent, who is also interested as a party to the agreement, containing various provisions as to the transactions of mortgage and partnership in mines, which were the subject of the bill, besides other matters of agreement; and providing that "all proceedings in law and equity shall cease between the plaintiff and the two defendants;" this agreement that all proceedings, &c., shall cease, &c., cannot be pleaded in bar to the whole suit by the defendant who has not answered. Such a plea may operate to displace the equitable relief sought by the bill, so far as it regards the party who pleads, but as a bar to the whole suit it cannot be pleaded. Such a plea is, in effect a plea of one part of the agreement in bar of the whole suit, which is inadmissible. Wood v. Rowe, 2 Bligh, 595. S. C. 1 Jac. & W. 315. AGREEMENT TO STAY PROCEEDINGS.

The object of a plea to a bill in equity is to reduce the subject-matter of litigation to a single point, and to avoid the expense which would be incurred by entering into all the subject-matter of the dispute, which is not effected by a plea of an agreement, making provisions as to the subjects of the suit in a way which the decree in the cause could not effect. Id. ib.

If an agreement be made subsequent to the filing of a bill between the parties to the suit and other parties, for the purpose of putting an end to the proceedings in the suit, and other purposes, it cannot be pleaded in bar to the bill by one of the parties. If it could be so pleaded, it must contain averments that the conditions of the agreement have been performed, or from circumstances could not be performed; and that the other parties not joining in the plea are ready to perform the agreement; and events by which the agreement is affected ought also to be noticed in the averments. But semble, that in such a case the court not having the power to compel the performance of the agreement on the plea, a bill must be filed for the purpose, including all the parties, and all the subjects of the agreement. Id. ib.

A plea of an executory agreement, containing no averments, that all the parties to the agreement are ready to perform it, is not only insufficient for want of proper averments, but could not be made a good plea by any amendment; because it is not a proper subject of plea, but a mere right of action, and cannot be a bar to another suit instituted by the party against whom the right of action is claimed, especially where a long time has elapsed between the date of the agreement and the pleading of it. Id. 596. AGREEMENT EXECUTORY.

An executory agreement is a cause of action, and cannot be pleaded in bar to another cause of action. Id. ib.

Such an agreement is totally different from a release under seal, but considered as in the nature of a release, it could only be applied to such part of the relief sought by the bill, as relates to the questions at issue between the plaintiff and the party who proposes to have the benefit of the agreement by way of plea. It could not be pleaded in bar to the whole relief; for the cause must, at all events, proceed as to the relief sought against the other parties. Id. ib.

To plea for discovery and relief, plea of agreement to refer to arbitration overruled. Street v. Rigby, 6 Ves. 815.

Bill for specific performance of a parol agreement for a lease within the statute of frauds, charging possession taken under the agreement and other acts of part performance; plea of the statute and answer, not denying the acts alleged of part performance, but stating that being advised that he entered only as tenant at will, he gave notice to quit: plea overruled. Bowers v. Cutor, 4 Ves. 91. STAT. OF FRAUDS; PL. ANSWER; SPEC. PERF.

Bill of discovery in aid of an action of covenant; plea, a clause in the articles, that any dispute should be referred: plea overruled, discovery being of course, while an action is brought and can be maintained. Mitchell v. Harris, 2 Ves. J. 129. 4 Bro. C. C. 311. DISCOVERY.

The plea of an agreement at law, and that the defendant (then plaintiff) would not bring error for delay or file bill for injunction, a bad plea; but the court after such an agreement, will not grant an injunction as to that suit. Anth v. Sambourne, 4 Bro. C. C. 498. AGREEMENT.

Plea to a bill for an account of a partnership, that all matters in controversy were to be determined by arbitrators; allowed. Halfhide v. Fenning, 2 Bro. C. C. 336.

Agreement as to distribution of personal estate set aside, although ratified, the value appearing much greater than was known to the plaintiff at the time. Plea of inventory delivered and approved, and of agreement found on it without fraud; allowed. Cocking v. Pratt, 1 Ves. 401. AGREEMENT; FRAUD; MISCONCEPTION OF RIGHTS.

4. Of Attainder and Alien Enemy.

See also ALIENS. — ATTAINDER.

Alien carrying on trade in an enemy's country though resident there, also in the character of consul of a neutral state considered an alien enemy, and as such disabled to sue and liable to confiscation: plea of alien enemy allowed to a bill for relief, whether to a bill for discovery merely as a defence to an action. Quere? Albrecht v. Sussmann; 2 V. & B. 323. ALIEN.

Plea without oath, of plaintiff's conviction for felony, to a bill by the residuary legatee for an account of the personal estate of a testatrix who died after the conviction; but before sentence of transportation completed, allowed; the conviction is proved by the record alone; and it is not necessary to state even the identity upon oath. — v. Davis, 19 Ves. 81. PL. PLEA, ATTESTATION OF.

Plea of alien enemy is good to a bill for discovery. Such a plea stating this nation to be at war with the government of France, and that the plaintiffs are Frenchmen, aliens, and enemies of the king, is sufficient. Daubigny and Others v. Davallon and Others. 2 Anst. 462. ALIEN ENEMY; DISCOVERY.

If plea goes to show that no title was ever vested in plaintiff, though for that purpose it states an offence committed; conviction of the offence is not essential to the plea, and the same strictness is not required as in a case of forfeiture. Fall v. —. Mitf. Pl. 189.

On an information being filed against a person who had been in the service of the E. I. company abroad, for an account of his dealings and transactions, the defendant pleaded that he was an alien, but the plea was overruled; it appearing that the defendant had acted both in a civil and judicial capacity, and had taken the oath of allegiance. Bolts v. Att. Gen. 1 Bro. P. C. 421. ALIEN.

In a plea of conviction for capital offence, court of equity must judge with equal strictness, as if it were a plea at common law. Hark v. Brown, 2 Atk. 399. ATTAINDER.

Saying that A gave a mortal wound to B, of which he died, without mentioning in what part B received the wound, is bad: so saying that A was tried at G. assizes, without saying the persons who tried him had a commission of gaol delivery, is also bad. S. C. ib.

A plea of alien, the defendant must aver the party was an alien, or it is no bar. Id. 397.

5. Of Award.

See also ARBITRATION AND AWARD.

An award made under an agreement entered into after bill filed, to refer to arbitration, may be pleaded to bills. But where all the parties to a suit were not parties to award, (although plaintiff was a party,) and where part of prayer of bill was for execution of trusts of deed, under which some of parties to suit were interested, who were not parties to award; plea of award was ordered to stand for an answer, with liberty to except. Dryden v. Robinson, 2 S. & S. 529.

To bill for account, defendant may plead an award, averring that matter in question was comprehended in it. Farrington v. Chute, 1 Vern. 72. Burton v. Ellington, 3 Anst. 196.

So to a bill to set aside an award. Brown v. Brown, 2 Ch. Ca. 140. Allard v. Campbell, Bunb. 265. Anon. 3 Atk. 644.

But if there be particular charges of partiality, there must be an answer to them in support of plea. Allard v. Campbell, supra.

The bill stated an award, and that no provision was made for a particular event which had taken place, and by which the plaintiff was damaged. Plea, the award, the court thought the bill ought to have expressed particularly the damage sustained by the plaintiff, and allowed the plea. Routh v. Peach, 2 Anst. 519. PL. BILL.

On bill for account after award, on ground of matters stated not to have been comprehended in it, it must clearly appear the award is not final, or plea of award will be good. Id. 3 Anst. 637.

A submission to arbitration was made a rule of this court, and an award made. The bill stated the award to have been obtained by misrepresentation of facts not then known to the plaintiff. Plea, the award alone, and no answer; the plea is bad. Gurtside v. Gartside, 3 Anst. 735.

An award, impeached in the bill, must be pleaded nakedly. Edmunson v. Hartley, 1 Anst. 97.

Where the bill charged an award to have been obtained corruptly, the plea setting up the award and denying the specific charges of fraud is bad, as not bringing the cause to one point, and an answer to the same charges overrules the plea. Pope v. Bish, 1 Anst. 59. PLEA OVERRULED BY ANSWER.

To a bill to be relieved against an award, upon suggestion of misbehaviour, &c. in the arbitrators, a plea by the arbitrators of the submission and award, with an averment of impartiality, &c., overruled. Rybolt v. Barrell, 2 Eden, 131. Butcher v. Cole, cited 1 Anst. 95. Gartside v. Gartside, 3 Anst. 735. Evans v. Harris, 2 V. & B. 364.

A plea of an award to a bill for the same matter, allowed where it did not appear there was any discovery of new evidence subsequent to the award, or any fraudulent concealment of evidence by the defendant at the time of the award. Herbert v. Bulkeley, Ridg. 296.

If arbitrators plead their award to a bill charging partiality, they must support their plea, or pay costs. Lingood v. Croucher, 2 Atk. 395.

Where parties have agreed to make the submission to an award a rule of court, and to be restrained from bringing a bill in equity, the arbitrators, notwithstanding the award may be defective in point of law, may plead it in bar to a bill in equity. Id. ib.

6. Bankruptcy and Insolvency.

See also BANKRUPTCY, II.—INSOLVENCY.

Plea of bankruptcy good, though commission issued after filing of bill. Turner v. Robinson, 1 S. & S. 3.

Plea of certificate allowed, where before bankruptcy plaintiff had a remedy either by assumpsit or by action for tort. De Tastet v. Sharpe, 3 Mad. 51. S. C. Buck, 153. BANKCY. CERTIFICATE.

Plea of bankruptcy to bill by bankrupt seeking discovery, in aid of defence of action at law, and payment of balance found due to them in taking accounts, and injunction in meantime overruled. Lowndes v. Taylor, 1 Mad. 423.

Plea of bankruptcy to a bill by heir at law against devisee, overruled as bad in point of form, not averring distinctly and in succession the facts upon which the bankruptcy rested. Not sufficient for the purpose of such a plea to state that the plaintiff was duly found a bankrupt under the commission. Carlton v. Leighton, 3 Mer. 667.

Bill by an insolvent debtor against his assignees, under the 14 Geo. 3. and a debtor to his estate, stating collusion between them in not recovering the debt, praying that the assignees might be removed, and that specific performance of an agreement for a lease might be decreed against the debtor; plea, by the debtor, the assignment under the act, and that the right to sue was vested in the assignees; that the estate is insufficient, and denying collusion, held good. Bow- ser v. Hughes, 1 Anst. 101. INSOLVENCY, ASSIGNMENT IN.

Plea of the plaintiff's bankruptcy must be put in upon oath. Joseph v. Tuckay, 2 Cox, 44. PR. PLEA, JURAT.

A bankrupt having his certificate allowed, and having slipped his time of pleading it at law to a debt precedent to the bankruptcy, is not to be relieved in equity. Exp. Goodwin, 2 Vern. 696. LACHES.

Court of equity will not relieve against mispleading or neglect of pleading a proper plea at law. Id. ib.

7. Discovery tending to criminate or to create Forfeiture.

Where a bill charges a defendant with acts which would subject him to a criminal prosecution under a statute, the defendants need not plead the statute, but may demur to the bill. Fleming v. St. John, 2 Sim. 181. PL. DEMURRER.

Plea that the discovery will subject the defendant to penalties, does not require the support of an answer, as a plea of purchase for valuable consideration without notice does, as to facts from which notice is inferred. Claridge v. Houre, 14 Ves. 59. PL. ANSWER IN SUPPORT OF PLEA.

To a bill stating defendant's marriage with a particular woman; plea, she is his sister, protects him from discovery of any fact forming a link in the chain. Id. 651. INCEST.

Plea allowed to discovery of a marriage, which would subject one of the parties to punishment in the ecclesiastical court, the other being dead. Brownsword v. Edwards, 2 Ves. 243.

Plea on the ground of forfeiture must be confined to protect against a discovery of the act causing it, and not extend to matters collateral. Weaver v. Meath, 2 Ves. 108.

8. Statute of Frauds.

See also FRAUD, STATUTE OF.

Bill for specific performance, plea to the relief and to the discovery, except (stating the particulars of the statute of frauds, with an averment that there was no contract in writing, signed, &c., unless the note in the bill mentioned, can be so considered, and for answer,) as to the accepted particulars, admitting the note, &c., overruled, as tendering an immaterial issue. Morrison v. Turnour, 18 Ves. 175. STAT. OF FRAUDS; SPEC. PERF.

Bill for specific performance of a parol agreement to grant a lease for twenty years; plea of the statute of frauds and answer, denying that facts alleged as part performance, where done in part performance, the plea was saved to the hearing, with liberty to except; Ld. Chancellor inclining to the opinion, that though the agreement is admitted, the statute may be used as a defence to the suit. Moore v. Edwards, 4 Ves. 23. Id.

Bill by the tenant of a farm for a specific performance of a parol agreement for a new lease stating improvements made at a considerable expence, and continuance of possession after the expiration of the old lease and payment of an increased rent under the agreement; plea of the statute of frauds ordered to stand for an answer, with liberty to except. Willis v. Stradling, 3 Ves. 378. PR. PLEA ORDERED TO STAND FOR ANSWER; STATUTE OF FRAUDS; SPEC. PERF.

Plea of statute of frauds, a good defence to parol variation of agreement for a lease, not if it only amounts to waiver of part or to a declaration of trust. Jordan v. Sawkins, 1 Ves. J. 402.

*Plea of the statute of frauds to an executory contract overruled. Rondeau v. Wyntt, 3 Bro. C. C. 154. CONTRACT, EXECUTORY; FRAUDS, STAT. OF.

Plea of the statute of frauds to a bill for execution of a parol agreement for sale of lands, alleging certain acts as a part performance. The plea averring that there was no agreement in writing, and supported by an answer, insisting that such alleged acts did not amount to part performance; allowed on re-argument after much consideration. Whitechurch v. Beris, 2 Bro. C. C. 559. S. C. 2 Dick. 664. FRAUDS, STAT. OF.

Administratrix and her two children entitled to a lease of a house, agree by parol to make a lease to J, and the administratrix execute sa lease. Upon a bill to compel the children to join, they cannot plead the statute of frauds. Heigher v. Sturman, 1 Vern. 210.

A agrees by parol with B for the purchase of lands; B delivers a rent-roll, which was dated and altered in his own handwriting, and shewed by the title of it, that an agreement had been made between them for the sale of the estate, at twenty-one years' purchase. An abstract of the title was also delivered to A, together with the deeds, in order to be compared with the rent-roll. B likewise wrote letters to several of his creditors, informing them, that he had contracted with A for the sale of his estate, at twenty-one years purchase, and sent the tenants to treat with A for a renewal of their leases. Notwithstanding all these circumstances, upon A's filing a bill for a specific execution of the agreement; B pleaded the statute of frauds in bar to both the discovery and relief; and the plea was allowed. Whaley v. Baguel, 1 Bro. P. C. 345. SPEC. PERF.

Plea of statute of frauds to discovery of a parol agreement, not allowed where part performance. Taylor v. Beech, 1 Ves. 297. FRAUDS, STAT. OF; PART PERF.

Plaintiff whilst a papist assigned advowson to defendant for ninety-nine years, and having conformed, brought his bill for re-assignment of the term, suggesting he had only assigned it in trust for himself, to avoid the penalties of the statutes 3 Jac. 1. and 1 W. & M. Defendant pleaded the statute of frauds in bar to the discovery, but by his answer admitted that the advowson was assigned to him for the purposes charged by the bill: Held, the plea must be overruled, being coupled with an answer admitting the facts. Cottington v. Fletcher, 2 Atk. 155. PL. ANSWER, ADMISSIONS &c.

Lord Hardwicke was inclined to think if the defendant had demurred to this part of the bill, such a fraudulent conveyance would at the hearing have been made absolute against the grantor. Id.

If defendant pleads statute of frauds against specific performance, he must by answer deny agreement, for otherwise he admits it, and takes it out of statute. Child v. Godolphin, Dick. 39.

To a bill for specific performance, a plea that there was no agreement in writing, was overruled. Child v. Comber, 3 Swan. 423. STATUTE OF FRAUDS; SPEC. PERF.

In pleading the statute of frauds, it is necessary to say that the agreement was not reduced into writing. Mussell v. Cook, Proc. Chan. 533.

9. To Jurisdiction.

See also JURISDICTION.

In an ecclesiastical court a party is cited as respondent within the jurisdiction, and appears, and pleads without objection, he cannot afterward put that fact in issue; and in such case an interverner is not at liberty to raise an objection to the jurisdiction on that ground. Chichester v. Donegal, 6 Mad. 375. JURISDICTION OF ECCLESIASTICAL COURT; WAIVER.

Plea of the stock-jobbing act to a bill for discovery of stock transactions, overruled, as the second section of the act requires parties to make a discovery whereon to found an action. Bancroft v. Wentworth, 3 Bro. C. C. 11. STOCK-JOBGING; DISCOVERY, TENDING TO CRIMINATE.

A, by lease, grants B a liberty of mining for coals for 100 years, paying rent by the eighth part of coals. The colliery is worked and then discontinued. C claiming the land under A, works the mine, whereupon those claiming under B, file bill to restrain C, and discovery of B's title to maintain action of trespass. Plea in bar by C to discovery and relief, that B, and those under him, had ceased working mine for 55 years, and had, therefore, waived right and benefit of lease; overruled, matter being properly triable at law. Crang v. Adams, 5 Bro. P. C. 588.

Plea to jurisdiction of a general court must show where it is: not so of inferior court. Rp. Sodor and Man v. El. Derby, 2 Ves. 357.

Plea to jurisdiction overruled in toto, as a demurrer covering too much. Id. ib.

Devise of a rectory to a college on trust (inter alia) to present the senior divine, then a fellow. Plea to jurisdiction, as being in the visitor, overruled. Green v. Rutherford, 1 Ves. 462. CHARITY.

On a plea to the jurisdiction it must be shewn what other court has jurisdiction. Derby v. Athol, 1 Ves. 202. S. C. Dick. 129.

Demurring for want of jurisdiction is informal and improper. Defendant should plead to the jurisdiction. Robertson v. Rous, 1 Atk. 544. JURISDICT.; PL. DEMURRER.

Bill, that the defendant might redeem a mortgage of the island of Sark, or be foreclosed, defendant pleaded to the jurisdiction of the court, that the island was part of the duchy of Normandy, and had laws of their own, and were under the jurisdiction of the courts of Guernsey. Plea overruled, because the mortgage was of the whole island, and for that the defendant was served here for equitas agit in personam. Toller v. Carteret, 2 Vern. 494.

If the party insists the court of chancery has not jurisdiction of the matter in question, he must plead to the jurisdiction of the court, and not object it at the hearing. Trelawny v. Williams, 2 Vern. 484.

If the plaintiff, captain of a man of war, seizes the defendant's ship (being an interloper) out of the limits of the East India company's charter, and she and her goods condemned in the admiralty, and delivered over to the king's use. The defendant, the owner and freighter of the ship, brings trover, and recovers 1300*l.* damages. The plaintiff brings a bill to be relieved against this judgment. Defendant pleads the judgment and proceedings at law. Plea overruled. Tyrrel v. Blake, 2 Vern. 155.

Indebitatus assumpsit for goods sold and delivered, and verdict for plaintiff, defendant brought a bill suggesting that he was master of the buck hounds, and acted only in relation to his office, and that the king ought to pay for these goods, defendant pleaded the verdict, and demand, for that the matter was consumable at law. Plea overruled. Graham v. Stamper, 2 Vern. 146.

Bill for an account of the profits of mines. Defendant pleads an act of parliament which had given an exclusive jurisdiction of all matters arising within the mines to the court of A, but had not averred there was a court of equity there. Plea overruled. Strade v. Little, 1 Vern. 59.

To a bill for a distribution of an intestate's estate, defendant pleaded that the ordinary is made judge, and appointed to take security. Plea overruled. Pumpkin v. Green, 2 Ch. Ca. 95. DISTRIBUTION.

If a cause has been heard in the exchequer, and two issues directed, viz. will or no will, and a verdict for plaintiff in both, and the court had dismissed the bill, yet an original bill may be brought in chancery for relief in those matters. Anon. 1 Ch. Ca. 155. A bill was brought in chancery concerning tithes and parish bounds, which proceeded to answer and replication; then plaintiff exhibited another bill in the exchequer, and examined witnesses; then he proceeded again in chancery, and replied. Defendant pleaded the proceedings in the exchequer. Plea allowed as to the examination of the same matters which shall not be examined again in chancery. Id. ib.

The plaintiff brought a certiorari bill: the defendant pleaded a decree in the mayor's court, and an enrolment which was said to be only pronuncial, and it was referred to a master to certify, whether it was before the bill. Cook v. Delebere, 3 C. R. 67. PR. CERTIORARI.

Statute of limitations cannot be pleaded in bar to a bill of revivor after decree to account. Egremont v. Hamilton, 1 Ball & B. 531. BILL OF REVIVOR; PR. DECREE TO ACCT.

Plea of the statute of limitations to a bill of discovery overruled, upon letters assigning reasons for declining to pay, and recommending the plaintiff to bring an action, as amounting to an acknowledgement of the debt, sufficient to take it out of the statute upon the authorities, though against principle. Baillie v. Sibbald, 15 Ves. 185; but see 9 G. 4. c. 14.

Where there is a suit pending for forty years, and not abated, but remaining in such a situation that the defendant might at any time have applied to dismiss the bill if he had thought fit; he shall not avail himself of laches in the plaintiff in not proceeding in bar of the relief sought. Secus semble, if the suit had abated in the mean time. Giffard v. Hart, 1 Scho. & L. 386. LACHES.

Plea of statute of limitations by an executor, the testator having died in 1786, though probate was not taken till 1802; allowed: the allegation of the bill upon a fair construction being that the defendant had possessed the personal estate, and therefore might have been sued as executor de son tort, previously to 1792. Webster v. Webster, 10 Ves. 93. EXOR.

Plea of statute of limitations supported by answer ordered to stand for answer, with liberty to except; the charges in bill not being sufficiently answered. Bayley v. Adams, 6 Ves. 586. PLEA ORDERED TO STAND FOR ANSWER.

Bill by annuitant under a will for an account for arrears against two administrators with the will an-nexed; one pleaded the statute of limitations to so much as sought satisfaction for the arrears, or so much as was stated to have accrued due previous to six years before the bill; he also, by answer, set up an agreement to relinquish the annuity: plea overruled, without prejudice to insisting on the same matter by answer. Higgins v. Crawford, 2 Ves. J. 570. ACCOUNT, HOW FAR.

Defendant pleaded forty years' possession without account or admission of any debt; to a bill setting up an old mortgage, and stating an account settled, and that owing to infancy, coverture and other disabilities plaintiffs' could not proceed: the plea was allowed. Blewitt v. Thomas, 2 Ves. J. 669. LENGTH OF TIME.

Bill against the devise of mortgaged premises, by the heir of mortgagor, for discovery and redemption, charging acknowledgements, that the estate was held in mortgage, and that accounts had been kept. Plea of possession for fifty years under conveyances from the mortgagee, ordered to stand for an answer. Lake v. Thomas, 3 Ves. 17. LENGTH OF TIME; DISCOVERY; MORTGAGE, REDEMPTION OF.

Plea to bill of review of length of time since enrolment of decree, under which part of estate had been sold to bona fide purchaser, who had had possession for twenty-seven years. On argument of plea, and on appeal, leave was given to withdraw plea, with liberty to plead and demur, answer, or demur alone without introduction of new matter. Gorman v. McCulloch, 5 Bro. P. C. 597. PR. BILL OF REVIEW; LENGTH OF TIME; PR. LEAVE TO WITHDRAW PLEA AND PLEAD, DEMUR, &c.

Length of time, proper for plea, not demurrer. Gregor v. Molesworth, 2 Ves. 109.

Where, in execution of power, cestuique trust appoints trustees to convey to use of A, and charges estate with annuities, it is a conveyance of the legal estate to A, and not a trust; so that length of time will run against annuities, if not demanded. Weldon v. Bowes, 9 Mod. 309. LENGTH OF TIME; TRUST.

Statute of limitations may be pleaded as to a debt, but not to discovery as to when debt was due. Mackworth v. Clifton, 2 Atk. 51. S. P. Downing v. Kirby, Finch. Rep. 14. DISCOVERY.

If the statute of limitations be neither pleaded nor insisted on by the answer, defendant cannot have benefit of it in bar to plaintiff's demand. Prince v. Heylin, 1 Atk. 494. PL. ANSWER.

The statute of limitations no good plea where the bill charges a fraud; but then it should be charged by the bill that the fraud was discovered within six years before the bill was filed. S. S. Comp. v. Wyndmull, 3 P. W. 143. FRAUD; LIMIT. STAT. OF.

Statute of limitations cannot be pleaded where estate in law is in trustees. Lawley v. Lawley, 9 Mod. 33. TRUST.

The statute of limitations cannot be pleaded to a bill for tithes. Marston v. Cleypole, Bunb. 213. TITHES.

The statute of limitations is no plea in bar to an open account. Scudenore v. White, 1 Vern. 456. ACCOUNT.

11. Lis Pendens, former Suit, or Decree.

See also LIS PENDENS.

Suit by husband and wife against trustees of latter's separate property cannot be pleaded in bar to a subsequent suit by her and her next friend against her trustees and husband, although the relief prayed in both suits is the same. Reeve v. Dalby, 2 S. & S. 464. FORMER SUIT.

To a bill of review and reversal for error apparent on the decree, a plea of the decree and a demurrer against opening the enrolment allowed; the facts constituting the error not forming part of the record of the decree, being neither proved or relied on at the original hearing. O'Brien v. Connor, 2 Ball & B. 146. DECREE; REVIEW, BILL OF.

Decree in former suit cannot be pleaded to bill for tithes of any subsequent year. Minor Canons of St. Paul's v. Crickell, Wightw. 30. PR. DECREE.

Plea of a suit depending in the court of chancery in Ireland, for the same matter, overruled. Ld. Dillon v. Alvaes, 4 Ves. 357. JURISDICTION.

A suit pending in England is not a good plea in bar to a subsequent suit in the plantations for the same matter. Bayley v. Edwards, 3 Swan. 703. LIS PENDENS.

Plea of former decree for payment of tithes, where a modus and lands alleged to be covered by it were improperly stated, so that the court could not direct an issue, is not a good plea in bar to bill brought for establishing the modus. Collins v. Gough, 7 Bro. P. C. 94. MODUS.

Plea of former suit must aver both suits for same matter. Devie v. Ld. Brownlow, Dick. 611.

Plea that a writ of right has been tried and determined against the plaintiff, a good plea for a bill for discovery of matter relative to the title. Leicester v. Perry, 1 Bro. C. C. 305. DISCOVERY.

Plea of the sentence of the court of admiralty mentioned in the bill, overruled, as bringing no new matter before the court. Roberts v. Hartley, 1 Bro. C. C. 57.

Register's minutes of decree, dismissing a bill, are not pleadable to another suit for same matter. Charles v. Rowley, 2 Bro. P. C. 485.

A plea of a former decree overruled, the same matter not being in issue in the former suit. Moore v. Battie, Amb. 372. S. C. 1 Eden, 273.

A decree cannot be pleaded (in bar of the suit) unless it has been signed and enrolled. Kinsey v. Kinsey, 2 Ves. 577. S. C. 1 Atk. 809. PR. DECREE, ENROLMENT OF.

A plea of former suit depending is good against a creditor coming in before the master, he being a quasi party to such suit. Nere v. Weston, 3 Atk. 557. LIS PENDENS.

To a bill against defendant, as executor, for an account, he pleaded a suit in the chancery of Jamaica, for the same matter, to which he had put in an answer, with the account annexed, and soon after quitted Jamaica, for the sake of his health, but left his attorney there to manage his suit, which was still depending. Ld. Hardwicke said, that neither the term, nor even the year in which the suit was instituted, being set out for certain, there is not that averment which courts of law and equity both require in pleas; and as it was therefore defective in form, he over-ruled the plea. Foster v. Fassall, 3 Atk. 587. FOREIGN COURT; LIS PENDENS.

Though an action has been brought in Ireland on a bond, and sued to judgment there, it cannot be pleaded to an action here. Id. 589. Id.

A plea of former decree must set forth so much of the former bill and answer as to show that the same point was then in issue. Child v. Gibson, 2 Atk. 603.

A co-administrator, who was a plaintiff in a bill in 1732, brings, in 1739, a bill, partly of revivor and partly supplemental, to nearly the same purpose as the original. Ld. Hardwicke allowed the plea of a former dismission. Bowden v. Beauchamp, 2 Atk. 82.

Plea of bill being for same matter overruled, where the last was brought in a different right. Huggins v.

York Building Company, 2 Atk. 44. S. C. Barn. 83. LIS PENDENS.

Where a purchaser pleads a former suit, he must shew it was res judicata, and absolutely determined by the court that plaintiff had no title. Brandlin v. Ord, 1 Atk. 571.

A bill, dropped for want of prosecution, cannot be pleaded as a decree of dismission. S. C. Id. PR. BILL, DISMISSAL OF.

An original independent decree may be had in this court, where all the facts are stated by the bill, notwithstanding a former decree for the same matter in Wales. Morgan v. —, 1 Atk. 408. JURISDICTION.

Bill to redeem, mortgage being overpaid, decree of foreclosure, signed and enrolled, is good plea in bar. Malloch v. Galton, Dick. 65.

Plea of former suit depending must aver that defendant appeared and put in his answer, &c., to such former suit. Moor v. Welsh Copper Company, 1 Eq. Ab. 39.

Pleading the decree is unnecessary, if it is fairly set forth in the bill of review. See 5 Bro. P. C. 397. (n.) Mitf. 166. PR. BILL OF REVIEW.

A decree was made in the court of exchequer against tenant for life, to hinder him from committing waste, which decree was founded on a deed of settlement; and, upon a bill now brought to set aside that deed, the defendant pleaded the decree in the exchequer, which was overruled. Wing v. Wing, 9 Mod. 109. DECREE IN EXCHEQUER, EFFECT OF.

On suggestion of a gross fraud, the court will, upon an original bill, overrule a plea of a decree, and a report made and confirmed thereon, if the suggestion of fraud be not denied. Lloyd v. Mansell, 2 P. W. 73. FRAUD, DECREE OBTAINED BY.

Not necessary, in a plea of a former suit brought for the same matter, to aver that such suit is depending. Umlin v. Hudson, 1 Vern. 332.

A decree of dismission may be pleaded in bar to a new bill, though it is not signed and enrolled. Prettyman v. Prettyman, 1 Vern. 310. PR. DECREE, ENROLMENT OF.

After a bill brought in the exchequer to foreclose, the defendants may bring a bill in this court to redeem; the pendency of the former suit is not pleadable. Neuburg v. Wren, 1 Vern. 220. MORTGAGE, REDEMPTION OF.

If an infant legatee sues in the ecclesiastical court, and afterwards in chancery, the suit depending in the ecclesiastical court cannot be pleaded in bar, for there is no such security for the infant's advantage as in chancery, especially as to interest. Howell v. Waldron, 2 Ch. Ca. 85.

12. Of Lunacy.

See also LUNACY.

Lunatic may stultify himself as to acts done in prejudice of himself, though not of others, especially where his committee joins with him in the suit. Ridler v. Ridler, 1 Eq. Ab. 279. LUNATIC.

13. Of Outlawry.

See also OUTLAWRY.

Defendant against whom attachment has issued for want of answer, may file plea of outlawry. Waters v. Chambers, 1 S. & S. 225. PRACTICE; ATTACHMENT.

Plea of outlawry to which neither office copy of record of outlawry, nor of capius utlegatum was an-nixed, but only certificate from clerk of outlawries, held bad, but leave given to amend, because defect arose from clerk of outlawries, and not defendant, and did not affect substance of plea. Waters v. Mayhew, 1 S. & S. 220.

No plea of outlawry in a suit for the same duty or thing, for which relief is sought by the bill. Philips v. Gibbons, 1 V. & B. 184.

The attorney-general of the duchy court exhibits an information in the behalf of one part-owner of coal mines against the other; outlawry in the relator is a good plea. Att. Gen. v. Heath, Prec. Chan. 13. RELATOR.

Outlawry no bar to the suit of an executor. Killigrew v. Killigrew, 1 Vern. 184.

14. For want of Parties.

See also PL. PARTIES.

Plea for want of parties is in bar, and goes to whole bill, as well to discovery as relief. Plunkett v. Pen-son, 2 Atk. 51.

Plea that personal representatives were not before court, allowed, though suspected to be for delay merely. Id. ib.

On bill brought by bankrupt against defendant, his supposed debtor, for an account, the assignees under commission were charged in a proper manner, but the prayer of process was only against the defendant, a good plea in abatement that the assignees were not made parties. Fawkes v. Pratt, 1 P. W. 593.

15. Of Purchase.

See also AGREEMENT.—VENDOR AND PURCHASER.

Plea of valuable consideration without notice, no protection against adverse claim of which purchaser might have had notice, by using due diligence. Jackson v. Rowe, 2 S. & S. 472. VEND. & PURCH.; NOTICE.

In plea of purchase for valuable consideration without notice, it is enough to deny notice generally, in plea, unless facts are specially charged in bill as evidence of notice. Pennington v. Beechy, 2 S. & S. 282.

Where in a plea of purchase for valuable consideration, the purchaser omitted to deny notice, and the plaintiff replied to it, instead of setting it down for argument: if the defendant prove what he has pleaded, the bill as against him must be dismissed with costs. Eyre v. Dolphin, 2 Ball & B. 302. WAIVER.

So of an answer to that effect unless fraud proved. Id. 303.

A plea of purchaser without notice is a bar to the discovery as well as the relief, but if not insisted on by the defendant, he must answer and confess the notice, or the plaintiff may except to the answer, but if he does not except, the affirmative of proving notice will be on him. Comme semble. Id. ib. PL. DISCOVERY; PR. EVID. ONUS PROBANDI.

Defendant pleading purchase for valuable consideration, without notice, must aver that the vendor was seised and was in possession, which would be satisfied by possession of his tenant. Daniels v. Davison, 16 Ves. 252. S. P. Att. Gen. v. Backhouse, 17 Ves. 290.

Whoever has the best right to call for the legal title can avail himself of the plea of purchaser for valuable consideration, without notice. Medlicott v. O'Donel, 1 Ball & B. 171.

Bill by tenant in tail in possession under marriage settlement, for discovery and delivery of title deeds; plea, mortgage by tenant for life alleging himself to be seised in fee, and in possession of premises and deeds as apparent owner, allowed. Walwyn v. Lee, 9 Ves. 24. VENDOR & PURCH.; NOTICE.

Averments necessary to plea of purchase for valuable consideration, without notice that vendor or mortgagor was owner, or pretended owner, and that he was in possession, not that purchaser was. Id. 32. VENDOR & PURCH.; NOTICE.

Bill by tenant for life in possession for discovery and delivery of the title deeds; plea, a mortgage in fee, by a former tenant for life, alleging himself to be seised in fee without notice; ordered to stand for an answer, with liberty to except, Strode v. Blackburn, 3 Ves. 222. TITLE; PLEA ORDER TO STAND FOR ANSWER.

Plea averring in answer to a charge of constructive notice, that to the defendant's knowledge and belief there was no notice, disallowed. He ought to answer the facts, and the court is to make the construction. Jerrard v. Saunders, 2 Ves. P. 187. 4 Bro. C. C. 322.

Plea of purchase for valuable consideration not good to a bill for a dower. Williams v. Lamb, 3 Bro. C. C. 264. DOWER.

Purchase for a valuable consideration bona fide paid, held a good defence, though the consideration was much less than the real value. Bullock v. Sadler, Ambl. 764. CONSON. INADEQUACY OF; VENDOR & PURCH.

Plea of purchase from one having a reversionary estate, and consequently not in possession, overruled, because it did not set out how the person from whom the title was deduced became entitled. Hughes v. Garth, 2 Eden, 168. S. C. Ambl. 421. TITLE.

Title of purchaser for valuable consideration is a good ground of defence, but not for relief. Patterson v. Slaughter, Ambl. 293. VENDOR & PURCH.; PL. RELIEF.

The plea must be of a purchase for valuable consideration without notice, upon money actually paid; otherwise it is disallowed. Harrison v. Southcote, 1 Atk. 538.

On plea of purchase for valuable consideration, the consideration must be actually paid; if in fact it is only secured to be paid, the plea will be overruled. Hardingham v. Nicholls, 3 Atk. 304.

A plea of purchase for valuable consideration, without notice of plaintiff's title, it is sufficient to aver that the person who conveyed was seised, or pretended to be seised, when he executed the purchase deeds; but where a fine or non-claim is the bar, averment of actual seisin is necessary. Story v. Id. Windsor, 2 Atk. 630. S. C. 1 Ch. Ca. 34. VENDOR & PURCH.; NOTICE.

A purchaser denying notice at or before the execution of the deeds, is not sufficient; he must aver that he had none at or before the payment of the money. S. C. Id. NOTICE.

In pleading there is the same strictness in equity as at law. S. C. 2 Atk. 632.

If a person purchases an estate which he sees has a defect upon the face of the deed, yet a fine will be a bar, for that defect is the very occasion of levying the fine; secus as to a purchase from a trustee or mortgagee. S. C. Id.

Denying notice of plaintiff's title at the time of the execution of the deed, or payment of the consideration money, is not sufficient; you must swear you had no notice at or before the execution. Fitzgerald v. Burk, 2 Atk. 397. NOTICE.

In the pleading of a purchase or mortgage the defendant must plead that the seller or mortgagor was, or pretended to be, seised in fee. Head v. Egerton, 3 P. W. 281.

In a plea of a purchase it is a sufficient denial of notice to say, that at the time of the purchase he had no notice, without saying, or any time before. Jones v. Thomas, 3 P. W. 243. NOTICE; VENDOR & PURCH.

He who would entitle himself to protection of equity as a purchaser, must claim under actual conveyance, but need not have the legal estate. Fitzgerald v. Fauconberge, Fitzgib. 207, 213.

He that is purchaser in law, as by taking estate in right of wife by his marriage, is not a purchaser in notion of equity. Id. 212.

Plea of purchaser for valuable consideration without notice of plaintiff's title, is good as a plea in bar, and protects the defendant from giving an answer to title set up by plaintiff. Id. 207. 2 Mad. Ch. 321. DISCOVERY.

Purchase for valuable consideration, without notice of any incumbrance, is a good plea. Anon. 3 Salk. 85.

The bishop brings a bill against one that was an assignee of a lease, charging that defendant knew that the lease was expired, and that the same did appear by writing in his custody. Defendant pleads that he was a purchaser of the lease, and was then informed that there were fifty-seven years to come in the lease, and therefore gave nineteen years' purchase for it; allowed, a good plea. Bp. of Worcester v. Parker, 2 Vern. 255.

Plea of a purchase for valuable consideration must allege seisin and possession in the vendor. Trevanian v. Morse, 1 Vern. 246.

A man who purchases without notice of a prior incumbrance, or prior right, shall not have his title impeached in equity, nor shall he be compelled to discover any writings which may weaken his title, neither shall any advantage be taken from him, which may defend him at law. Harding v. Hardres, Rep. temp. Finch. 9. Hayman v. Gomedon, id. 34. Snelling v. Squibb, 2 Ch. Ca. 47. Wilkerv. Bodington, 2 Vern. 509. Stephens v. Gaul, id. 701. He must plead himself a purchaser without notice. Bodmin v. Vendebn, 1 Vern. 179. But he need not set forth the consideration he paid. Morr v. Mayhew, 1 Ch. Ca. 34. 2 Freem. 175. VENDOR & PURCH.; NOTICE.

16. Of Release, Payment, Compromise.

See also these titles, ante and post.

A plea of release, if the consideration be impeached, must contain averments supported fully by answer, covering the grounds upon which the consideration is impugned, and cannot extend to a discovery of the consideration. Parker v. Alcock, 1 Y. & J. 432. RELEASE.

To bill filed by residuary legatee (to whom, with others, the debts due from a concern in which the testator had been a partner with one of his legatees, had been bequeathed) against the others for an account of monies due from the partnership to the testator, charging defendant with owing the concern various sums of money, having possession of the partnership books: it is not a good plea that all the monies due from the partnership of the testator at the time of his death, consisted wholly of money lent by him to defendant, and that (as was the fact,) the testator by his will had forgiven and released defendant from all monies lent and advanced by him during his lifetime, the release by the will being treated as referring to specific sums advanced independently of the partnership debts. Hanson v. Hanson, 4 Pri. 168.

A defence of compromise or release is not proper for answer; it is available by way of plea only.

Leonard v. Leonard, 1 Ball & B. 323. PL. ANSWER; COMPROMISE; RELEASE.

To a bill stating various dealings between M and R, from 1788 to 1794, imputing fraud and unfair dealing, and various usurious charges, over-charges, and mistakes in accounts delivered, and praying a discovery of the several transactions, and a general account; the defendant, to so much of the bill as sought a discovery, and prayed an account of the dealings and transactions prior to, and upon the 27th of May, 1791; and as to all relief and discovery grounded thereon, pleaded a release made and executed on the 8th of June 1791, with an averment that said release was prepared with the consent of, and freely and voluntarily executed by M, and without any fraud or undue practice on the part of R: plea ordered to stand for an answer, with liberty to except. Rooke v. Morgell, 2 Scho. & L. 721.

Bill, charging fraud in obtaining a release; plea, the release, supported by an answer denying the fraud: the benefit of the plea was saved to the hearing. Lloyd v. Smith, 1 Anst. 258. RELEASE.

Plea of payment of a sum into the ecclesiastical court, to prevent a commission of appraisement, and accepted, a receipt given, disallowed as a plea in bar to a suit; it not shewing that the party had no farther demand. Samuda v. Furtado, 3 Bro. C. C. 70.

Plea of payment to bill of discovery overruled as issue triable at law. Hurdman v. Taylor, Dick. 651.

If one obligor pays and sues the other at law, in name of obligee, payment may be pleaded, but not payment by a stranger, as representative of deceased obligor in joint bond is. Church v. Bishop, 2 Ves. 372.

As a plea containing an exception of matters thereafter mentioned is bad, and must be overruled, so a plea of a release "further, and other than in the plea set forth," is incorrect, though not sufficient to overrule it; it was therefore ordered to stand for an answer with liberty to except. Salkeld v. Science, 2 Ves. 107.

Plea of a general release, containing the words "decrees and orders of the court of chancery," is a good bar to any demand set up under a decree of that court made prior to the date of the release; and if the defendant by his answer denies all charges of fraud, &c. in obtaining the release, such answer is sufficient to corroborate the plea. Walter v. Glanville, 5 Bro. P. C. 555. RELEASE.

17. Of Title.

See also TITLE.

A plea that the plaintiff has no interest in the subject of the suit, is a good plea to a bill for discovery and a commission. Mendizabel v. Muchado, 1 Sim. 68. PL. DISCOVERY, BILL OF.

Where bill is for discovery in aid of defence at law, and for equitable relief; plea of title in defendant in equity to whole bill is bad. Gait v. Osbaldeston, 5 Mad. 428. But reversed on appeal. S. C. 1 Russ. 158. TITLE; PL. DISCOVERY; PR. RELIEF.

Plea of title to bill by improper rector for account of tithes, overruled. Heathcote v. Aldridge, 1 Mad. 236. TITLE; TITHES.

Plea that there are no outstanding leases allowed to ejectment bill, which stated outstanding leases and prayed relief. Armitage v. Wadsworth, 1 Mad. 189.

To a bill to set aside a conveyance for fraud, &c.; plea of title paramount under a former conveyance of all the estate and interest under which the plaintiff claimed, allowed. Hove v. Duppa, 1 V. & B. 511. as to the subject of the suit, does not protect him from TITLE.

Plea, that the plaintiff is not heir, was held in this case, and in Gunn v. Prior, 2 Dick. 657. 1 Cox, 197. and Forr. Exch. Rep. 88. note, a bad plea; but Lord Thurlow afterwards altered his opinion. Newman v. Wallis, 2 Bro. C. C. 143. HEIR AT LAW.

Where a bill is filed by a person claiming as heir at law, quare, whether a plea that the plaintiff is not heir, is a good plea? It seems, that if the plea goes on to shake a pedigree by way of showing that the plaintiff is not heir, and adds at the end, that the plaintiff is not in manner aforesaid, or in any other manner heir, that is a good plea in point of form, although the title of the plaintiff is not concluded by the pedigree. Gunn v. Prior, 1 Cox. 197. HEIR AT LAW.

Where the statute of mortmain, 9 G. 2. is pleaded to an information by a defendant who is in possession, he need not show title in himself, but only want of title in the relators. Att. Gen. v. Weymouth, Amb. 22. TITLE; MORTMAIN.

A plea of a bare title only, without setting forth any consideration, will not protect a defendant from giving an answer to the title set up by the plaintiff. Brereton v. Gamul, 2 Atk. 241.

Plaintiff entitles himself as administrator; defendant pleads plaintiff is not administrator: a good plea in abatement in equity, as well as at law. Winn v. Fletcher, 1 Vern. 473. TITLE.

A died beyond the sea, and made a nuncupative will; B took administration here, and brought his bill for a discovery of the supposed intestate's personal estate; the defendant pleaded the will, and that he was executor, and that A left no assets but what were beyond seas: plea allowed. Jauncy v. Sealey, 1 Vern. 397. ADMINISTRATION; FOREIGN COUNTRY, PERSONAL ESTATE IN.

The defendant pleaded himself heir on the part of the mother, and did not say he was heir of the whole blood: plea overruled. Addison v. Hindmarsh, 1 Vern. 442. HEIR AT LAW.

A freeman of London dies intestate, leaving a wife, and no child; bill is brought against the widow, who was administratrix, for a distribution of the testamentary part; defendant pleads, that by the custom it belonged to her as administratrix, and was not distributable by the statute: plea allowed. Matthews v. Newly, 1 Vern. 133. CUSTOM OF LONDON.

18. Where it lies generally.

An executor filed a bill before probate; plea that he had not proved the will, allowed. Simons v. Milman, 2 Sim. 241. EXOR.; WILL, PROBATE OF.

To a bill by assignees of a bankrupt, a plea that the suit had been instituted without the consent of the creditors, or of the commissioners, as required by the statutes 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. and the 6 Geo. 4. c. 16., was allowed, chiefly on the ground of a similar plea, having been allowed in the court of chancery in Ockleston v. Benson, 2 Sim. & Stu. 265. Boxon v. Williams, 2 Y. & J. 475. BANKCY., POWER OF ASSIGNEES TO BRING ACTIONS.

A fine and non-claim cannot be pleaded in bar to a bill to prevent the setting up of an outstanding term. Leigh v. Leigh, 1 Sim. 349. FINE & NON-CLAIM; BILL TO PREVENT SETTING UP OUTSTANDING TERMS.

To bill by assignees of bankrupt against creditor, a plea that suit was not instituted according to 5 G. 2. c. 30. s. 38. (See 6 G. 4. c. 16. s. 88.): Held good. Ockleston v. Benson, 2 S. & S. 265. But see contra, Bevan v. Lewis, 2 G. & J. 245. BANKCY.

Matters pleadable which arise after filing of bill. Turner v. Robinson, 1 S. & S. 3. TIME.

Plea which negatives plaintiff's title, though it protects defendant generally, from answer and discovery,

TITLE.

It is not by the practice of this court required of a party charged by a bill, to have deeds and documents, &c., in his possession, material to the case on the other side, that he should protect himself from producing them by plea. The court will take care that he be not called on without good reason to produce his securities, for they watch with jealousy proceedings instituted for that purpose, and will require an unanswerable case to warrant their interference in making an order for their production. Vansittart v. Barber, 9 Price, 641. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS.

To bill against occupier, for amount of tithes arising from farms and lands, situate within the township of K., in the parish of L.; a plea, that defendant did not occupy any lands or farm within parish of L., or the titheable places thereof, allowed. Warrington v. Mothersill, 7 Price, 666. TITHES.

Plea to bill which is demurrable on face of it, overruled. Billing v. Flight, 1 Mad. 230. DEMURRER.

If bill is open to demurrer, plea cannot be resorted to. Plea to be good must state some new matter, which is a bar to plaintiff. Stiff v. Andrews, 2 Mad. 10.

Plea of plenarty. Qu., if it will hold to a bill seeking possession of a donative living? Mutter v. Chauvel, 1 Mer. 475. PLENARTY.

To bill to stay proceedings in action, brought by defendant as landlord, on account of dilapidations of buildings by plaintiff as tenant, and for discovery, whether defendant has not, since commencement of action, assigned his interest in buildings; defendant cannot protect himself from discovery by plea, that when dilapidations were committed defendant was entitled, and that they ever since continued out of repair. Dk. of Bedford v. Macnamara, 1 Price, 208. DISCOVERY.

Plea filed under an order for time to answer, regular. De Minckhuys v. Udney, 16 Ves. 356. TIME TO ANSWER.

Motion to take off the file for irregularity, a plea to a bill, amended under the usual order, after exceptions allowed, refused; as a case for a plea may arise, either from the amendments themselves, or from their effect upon the original part of the bill. Ritchie v. Aylwin, 15 Ves. 79. PR. TAKING PROC. OFF FILE.

Plea allowed as to the relief, therefore good to discovery also, according to general rule. Sutton v. Ld. Scarborough, 9 Ves. 71. PL. DISCOVERY; PL. RELIEF.

The refusal of a summary application to set aside an annuity, is no objection to the same ground being taken again, upon an attempt to enforce it. Bromley v. Holland, 5 Ves. 617.

Plea to bill of discovery in support of an action, under stat. 9 Anne, c. 14., for money lost at play by the assignee of the loser, a bankrupt, that the action was not commenced, and the bill exhibited within three months, overruled. Brandon v. Sands, 2 Ves. J. 514. STAT. C. OF; GAMING.

A defendant to a bill of revivor, cannot plead to that suit a plea which has been pleaded by the original defendant, and overruled. Samuda v. Furtado, 3 Bro. C. C. 70. PR. PLEA; PR. ABATEMENT & REVIVOR.

Plea to bill of revivor for costs, which had been taxed and ordered to be paid into the bank, overruled. Hall v. Smith, 1 Bro. C. C. 438. S. C. 2 Dick. 649. PR. COSTS TAXED; REVIVOR, BILL OF.

Plea of matter, which would be a good plea to the action at law, is not a good plea here to a bill for discovery leading to legal relief. Hindman v. Taylor, 2 Bro. C. C. 7. DISCOVERY.

No second dilatory plea allowed; but answer may insist on what was overruled as a plea. Finch v. Finch, 2 Ves. 492. PL. ANSWER.

A mere witness cannot be made a defendant for discovery of what he is examinable to, unless he is interested. If the bill charges, he is interested, the defendant must plead and support it by an answer denying that allegation, and cannot demur. Plummer v. May, 1 Ves. 426. PL. PARTY; WITNESS.

Defence proper for plea should reduce the cause to a particular point, and from thence create a bar to the suit. Chapman v. Turner, 1 Atk. 54.

In what case plea proper. Anon. 2 Eq. Ab. 76.

The plea of a fine and long possession under it, is a good bar to a bill brought for discovery of deeds, declaring the uses of such fine. Holt v. Loue, 5 Bro. P. C. 569. PL. DISCOVERY.

Where the testator had pleaded to a bill, and died before the plea was argued, the executor may plead de novo, for the first plea cannot be now argued. Micklethwaite v. Calverly, Forres, 3.

But if executor has assets he will be bound. Id. ib. EXECUTOR; PR. ABATEMENT & REVIVOR.

Defendant cannot plead and demur to same part of bill. Cotter v. Laver, 1 Eq. Ab. 42. PLEAD. DEMURRER.

A plea of the stat. of 13 Eliz. c. 20. is good to a bill brought by a lessee for tithes. Bockenham v. Bentfield, 1 Com. Rep. 392. Id.

Possession under a decree of foreclosure inrolled is a good plea. Nicholls v. Short, 15 Vin. 478. pl. 2.

Solicitor brings a bill for his fees. Plea of statute 3 Jac., that the plaintiff had not signed his bill. Good plea. Norris v. Bacon, 1 Vern. 312. SOL. & CLIENT, SIGNATURE OF BILL OF COSTS; PR. COSTS.

Plea of privilege by some of the defendants is not good, if there is another defendant not privileged. Fanshaw v. Fanshaw, 1 Vern. 246. OFFICERS OF COURT.

19. Ordered to stand for Answer.

To bill against two defendants to redeem an estate tail, plea by one defendant, 1st, averring as to one tenement undisputed possession since 1775, and 2nd, denying as to the other all interest. The first plea being bad, held that second could not be sustained as separate defence. Plea therefore overruled, and ordered to stand for an answer with liberty to except. Cowne v. Douglas, 1 McClel. & Y. 321. LENGTH OF TIME.

Plea of simony for tithes ordered to stand for an answer with liberty to except as being multifarious. Wood v. Strickland, 2 V. & B. 150. SIMONY; MULTIFARIOUSNESS.

Plea (to a bill to redeem a mortgage,) of a conveyance by the mortgagor of the equity of redemption, in trust to sell and pay the mortgage, and a bond debt from him and two other persons, and a conveyance from the trustee to the mortgagee, nobody offering at an auction so much as was due for the mortgage-money with interest and costs: ordered to stand for an answer with liberty to except. Stubback v. Leatt, Coop. 46. MORTGGE. REDEMP. OF.

To bill by heir against devisee, alleging that devise was upon a secret trust or undertaking for charity against 9 G. 2. c. 36. a plea of statute of frauds was ordered to stand for an answer, with liberty to except. Stickland v. Aldridge, 9 Ves. 516. STAT. OF FRAUDS.

Plea covering too much ordered to stand for answer with liberty to except. Jones v. Pengree, 6 Ves. 580.

Bill by the tenant of a farm for a specific performance of a parol agreement for a new lease, stating improvements made at a considerable expence, and continuance of possession after the expiration of the old lease, and payment of an increased rent under the agreement. Plea of the statute of frauds ordered to stand for an answer, with liberty to except. Wills v. Stradling, 3 Ves. 378. PL. PLEA; STAT. OF FRAUDS; SPEC. PERF.

Bill by tenant for life in possession for discovery and delivery of the title deeds. Plea a mortgage in fee by a former tenant for life, alleging himself to be seised in fee without notice, ordered to stand for an answer with liberty to except. Strode v. Blackburn, 3 Ves. 222. PL. PLEA; TITLE.

Plea that the person through whom the plaintiff claimed, died a bachelor, and without issue, ordered to stand for an answer with liberty to except. King v. Holcombe, 4 Bro. C. C. 439.

Plea of an award and release to a bill to open an account; ordered to stand for an answer with liberty to except. Burton v. Ellington, 3 Bro. C. C. 196. ACCOUNT.

Plea of the statute of frauds, averring 1st, that there was no contract in writing; 2nd, that there had been no acts done in part performance; overruled as double, and ordered to stand for an answer, with liberty to except. Whitread v. Brockhurst, 1 Bro. C. C. 404. PL. PLEA DOUBLE.

20. When overruled by Answer.

When to creditor's bill, defendant pleaded that deceased was not indebted to plaintiff at death, and accompanied plea by answer denying existence of debt, and the manner in which it was alleged to have been contracted: Held that the answer overruled the plea. Thring v. Edgar, 2 S. & S. 274.

Plea by one defendant to bill by tenant in tail for redemption of estate, if fine levied of part of estate, averring that the part included in the fine was the only part in which the defendant claimed interest, and accompanied with answer, admitting possession of title deeds, &c. Held that plea was overruled by answer. Watkins v. Stone, 2 S. & S. 560.

Plea to all relief and part of discovery and answer to restrain, plea overruled. James v. Sudgrove, 1 S. & S. 4. RELIEF; DISCOVERY; ANSWER.

But otherwise if answer had been to matter in bill which would have repelled defence by plea. Id. ib.

Where the bill charged an award to have been obtained corruptly, the plea setting up the award and denying the specific charges of fraud is bad, as not bringing the cause to one point, and an answer to the same charges overrules the plea. Pope v. Bish, 1 Anst. 59. PL. PLEA.

Where a plea is a bar to the whole bill, if at all, an answer to any matters which ought to have been covered by the plea, overrules it. Blacket v. Langlands, 1 Anst. 14.

Where defendant by plea insists that he ought not be obliged to discover several matters therein mentioned, and yet by answer discovers those very particalars, plea is bad in form and cannot be supported.

Dobbyn v. Barker, 5 Bro. P. C. 573.

VIII. REPLICATIONS.

Where a supplemental bill is not a supplemental suit, but only introduces supplementary matter, the whole record is one cause, and a general replication applies to whole record, and not merely to the original bill. Cutton v. Carlisle, 5 Mad. 427. PL. SUPPLEMENTAL BILL.

Where there is a plea and answer, and the plaintiff replies, the replication must be to the answer, as well as the plea. Nicol v. Wiseman, 2 Vern. 46.

Bill for an account of a co-partnership, defendant pleaded an award averring the matter in question, comprised in the award. Plaintiff replied generally to the plea, and though the plaintiff ought to have set down the plea to be argued, and not to have replied to it, yet court decreed defendant to account. But afterwards though this decree was signed and enrolled, court ordered defendant only to answer. Farrington v. Chute, 1 Vern. 72. PARTNERSHIP; ACCOUNT.

I. GENERALLY.

Will directed settlement to be made of real estate on A and his first and other sons in tail, with powers of jointuring, leasing, sale, and exchange, and all other clauses, powers, and provisos usually inserted in settlements of some kind: Held, the last words did not give power to charge with portions. Higginson v. Barnaby, 2 S. & S. 516. POWERS, WILL; C. OF.

Portions by will, governed by rules from the civil law, not applicable to a deed. Hubert v. Parsons, 2 Ves. 261.

Construction of a trust, surplus rents, &c. not included in the term, "portion." Fane v. l'ane, 1 Ves. 57.

Portion, not only implies a fortune out of the father's estate, but may also relate to what the wife brings with her in marriage, and answers to the Latin word dos. Wood v. Bryant, 2 Atk. 522.

In marriage settlement, it was agreed that if there should be but one daughter, she should have 500*l.* for her portion, and 200*l.* each should be paid to every of the other younger daughters. There were three daughters: Held, each were only entitled to 200*l.* Chamberlain v. White, 6 Bro. P. C. 61. SETTLEMENT, C. OF.

A, by letter, says he will give 1500*l.* with his daughter; the daughter marries, and A is privy to it, and seems to approve of it. The daughter dies, and the husband takes administration. The father decreed to pay the 1500*l.* portion. Wankford v. Fotheroy 2 Vern. 822. SEEC. PERE.

One, by his will, gives 3000*l.* to his younger children, which was secured by mortgage from A, and declares that if his eldest son does not pay this 3000*l.*, then his lands shall go to the younger children. A brings a bill to redeem his mortgage, and to pay in his mortgage money, and pays it pursuant to the decree; and the master puts it out upon a security, that proves ill. The eldest son shall not be compelled to pay it over again to his younger brothers. Oldfield v. Oldfield, 1 Vern. 336. INVESTMENT DEFECTIVE.

Marriage portion recovered at common law, and reversed in exchequer, and holpen in chancery. Cutting v. —, Cary, 8.

II. CONDITIONAL, WHEN NO DEVISE OVER.

The rule that a condition to marry with consent is in terrorem only when no devise over, must be understood of legacies only, and not of portions. Harvey

v. Aston, 1 Atk. 379. S. C. Forres, 212, and note (i) Id. 217. CONDITION, MARRIAGE WITH CONSENT.

A, by will, gives portions to his daughters, but mentions no time when to be paid, but adds a proviso, that his daughter should marry with consent of his wife, and if any married without such consent, her portion to go over. On a bill, brought by the daughters for their portions, the court decreed the portions to be paid, but on security, to refund if the condition should be broken. Aston v. Aston, 2 Vern. 452. 1 Ch. Rep. 164. Pre. Ch. 226. S. C. WILL, C. OF; CONDITION, SUBSEQUENT; SECURITY.

Portions at twenty-one or marriage, "when C and his wife should die without issue male." Held, a condition precedent, and not to be raised till both are dead; though one die, and the other remain tenant in tail after possibility of issue extinct. Champney v. Champney, 10 Mod. 314. CONDON, PRECEDENT; SETTLEMENT, C. OF; TENANT IN TAIL AFTER POSSIBILITY OF ISSUE EXTINGUISHED.

III. WHEN VESTED, AND DIFFERENCE WHEN NOT CHARGED ON LAND.

Terms to commence after the father's death, to raise portions for younger children in such shares and portions as he should appoint, for want of appointment, equally, to sons at twenty-one, to daughters at twenty-one or marriage, to be paid immediately after the decease of its father; with survivorship in case of a child before the portion should become due and payable. The father died without making any appointment: Held, the portions vested at twenty-one or marriage during his life. Cholmondeley v. Meyrick, 1 Eden. 77. S. C. cit. 3 Bro. C. C. 253. n. SETTLEMENT, C. OF.

Power to father to raise for younger children, not exceeding 3000*l.*; if no appointment, the estate charged with 3000*l.*, for the sons at twenty-one, for the daughters at twenty-one or marriage. Nothing vested in the father's lifetime, and representatives of one who attained twenty-one, and became elder, but died in father's life, not intitled to a share. Loder v. Loder, 2 Ves. 531.

Trust "to raise" 5000*l.* portion, "and pay it" to such younger child as the father should appoint, for want of appointment, to the younger children at twenty-one, with interest for their maintenance, &c. in the meantime, &c. &c. The only younger child died at two years old: Held, not to be vested in him so as to be claimed by the father as his representative. Hubert v. Parsons, 2 Ves. 261. INTEREST VESTED.

Marriage settlement on husband and wife for life, and trust term if no issue male, or if all should die without issue male before twenty-one years, to raise portions for daughters, &c. A son attained twenty-one, but died in father's lifetime without issue male. The portions not raiseable. Worsley v. El. Granville, 2 Ves. 331.

Portions not to be raised for representative of child dying before he wanted it. Ld. Teynham v. Webb, 2 Ves. 209.

Portions in a settlement by a term after mother's death for defendants, to grow due, and payable at twenty-one, or marriage, &c. One daughter having, after twenty-one and marriage, died in life of mother, her portion shall go to her representatives, and not to her sister. Emperor v. Rolfe, 1 Ves. 208. SETTLEMENT, C. OF.

By settlement on the marriage of A with C, in case there was no issue male, and there should be daughters living at the death of the father, who should attain twenty-one, or be married, then such daughters should have 2000*l.* a-piece; there were three daughters and no sons; defendant, one of the daughters, married D, and previous to her marriage, covenanted to assign (with D's consent) 500*l.* to trustees in trust, after the death of D and the defendant, to pay it amongst the children of the bodies of the defendant and D; and that D should, after the marriage, assign to the trustees all the monies and securities for it, then due and belonging to defendant. A died in 1744.—D, in 1745, intestate, to whom defendant administered, and received the 2000*l.* Held, that the children, who were a son and daughter, have a right to the portion, which was decreed to be secured for their benefit, though under the articles, the real estate was in the mother's power, and vested in her in tail; yet, in equity, it is to be carried into strict settlement to the wife for life, then to the first, &c. sons in tail, and, in default of issue male, to daughters. Bush v. Dalway, 3 Atk. 530. INTEREST VESTED.

When a portion is to be raised out of land, if the person die before the day of payment, it sinks for the benefit of the heir. Lowther v. Conder, 1 Atk. 131.

A reasonable distinction may be made between a time of payment that has been denied from the circumstances of the fund. Id.

If a father enter into a bond to pay 1000*l.* to his daughter after his wife's death, it would have been forfeited if the executors had refused to pay after wife's death, notwithstanding she survived the daughter. When no time of payment is fixed, a legacy in general is held to be paid immediately, unless the end for which it was given ceased. Id.

A devised all his land to B and C, and their heirs, in trust to sell part of his lands, and pay his debts, as far as the produce would go; and as to the rest in trust to receive the rents and make leases for ninety-nine years, determinable on three lives, and therewith to pay his debts and legacies, then to the use of D's wife for life, remainder to her issue; and he made the trustees executors; he likewise gave 500*l.* to his nephew E, to be paid at twenty-one, or marriage, who died under twenty-one. The lands directed to be sold were insufficient to pay the debts, and testator's personal estate was only 700*l.*: Held, the nephew's legacy being charged on real as well as personal estate, cannot be raised, as he did not live to attain twenty-one. Prowes v. Abington, 1 Atk. 482.

The resolutions that there is no difference between a charge on the real estate only, and a charge on the real and personal estate too, are so strong that they are not to be shaken. S. C. 2 Atk. 485.

* Whether charge on land be created by deed or will, whether given by way of portion for a child, or merely as a legacy by collateral relations or others, if the party die before the day of payment, cannot be raised. The reason is, that the court of equity governs itself by the rules of the common law, for then if A covenant to pay money to B at a future day, and B die before the day the money is not due to his representative. Id. 485.

Whether portion charged on land be given with or without interest by deed or by will, if the person die before it becomes payable, it shall sink in the estate. Boycot v. Cotton, 1 Atk. 555. CHARGE ON LAND.

If a party die before a portion becomes payable, if out of land, it shall not be raised; but if a personal legacy, and legatee dies before the time of payment, it shall go to the executor. Harvey v. Aston, 1 Atk. 379. S. C. Forres, 212, and note (i) 217.

Portions charged on land do not vest till the time of payment comes, therefore in the case of a marriage with consent, and the consent is not obtained, there is no rule of law or equity which can excuse the want of it so as to claim the portion. Id. 561. S. C. Forres, 212, and note (i) 217. CONDITION OF CONSENT.

A, the father, and B, the eldest son, re-settle an estate, to the use of A for life as to part, then to trustees for two hundred years, to raise 1100*l.* to be paid to the second son within six years after A's death, or as soon after as the same could be raised, and in the meantime interest from A's death, for and towards his maintenance, remainder to B, the eldest, &c.; C died indebted, and two years after him, A died, from whom a good estate came to B: the creditors cannot have this portion raised, the contingency upon which it was payable, never happening. Brudley v. Powell, Forres. 193.

A settles his estate on his sister B for life, remainder to her second and other sons in tail, &c., and gives her a power, with the consent of C, her husband, and for C surviving B, to charge it with a sum not exceeding 12,000*l.* for their children; and if they, or the survivor of them do not appoint the provision, then 2000*l.* each to be raised for younger sons, and 3000*l.* each for daughters, at their ages of twenty-one, with interest at 5 per cent. for their maintenance, to commence from the time of the appointment; and if no appointment, then from the death of the survivor of B and C, and if any of the younger children die before their shares become payable, the same to go to the survivor; A dies; C dies, leaving four younger sons, and two daughters, one of which died an infant soon after her father; then B dies, without making any appointment: the whole 14000*l.* shall be raised, and carry interest from the death of B. Rolt v. Rolt, Forres. 189.

Term of 1000 years, to secure daughters' portions, payable at sixteen, proviso if no daughter at the time of failure of issue male the portion to sink; there is a daughter who attains to sixteen, and marries without consent, and no son by the marriage; but the daughter dies in the lifetime of the father and mother, and consequently, while there might be a son, the portion sinks. Gordon v. Raynes, 3 P. W. 134.

Portion secured out of the land, and the daughter dies before the portion becomes payable, it sinks into the land. So, if a legacy be given out of land to J S, payable at twenty-one, and J S dies before twenty-one, the legacy sinks: secus, in both cases where the legacy or portion is given out of a personal estate. Id. ib.

If I secure a portion to a child by deed, payable at twenty-one, out of land, and the child dies before twenty-one, the portion shall sink into the land, and not go to the executor: so, if I devise a portion to a child out of land, payable at twenty-one, and the child dies before twenty-one, the portion shall sink; also, the portion shall sink as well for the benefit of heres factus, as of the heres natus. So, though the money given to the child, be not said to be for a portion, if it appear to be so in fact, if by the will the portion be given out of a real and personal estate payable to the child at twenty-one, and the child die before twenty-one, then so much as will arise out of the personal estate, shall go to the executor or administrator, but what would arise out of the land must sink. Jennings v. Locks, 2 P. W. 276. PORTION, WHEN LAYED.

Term raised to secure daughters' portions; trust thereof declared, that if the husband should leave no heir male by the marriage, and should leave a daughter or daughters, then the trustees to raise portions payable to daughters at twenty-one or marriage; proviso that if the husband should die without leaving a daughter living at his death, then the term to cease; there is no issue male by the marriage, but there is a daughter who attains twenty-one and marries; mother dies, and daughter dies in the father's lifetime, leaving issue, her husband administers to her; he shall have no portion. Wingrave v. Pelgrave, 1 P. W. 401.

By marriage settlement a term is created for raising 400*l.* a piece for younger children, to be paid them within a year after the father's death, and with interest from his death; one of the children dies after the father, but within a year after his death, the portion not being raised: held, that it should sink in the inheritance, and not be raised for the benefit of its representative. Tournay v. Tournay, Pre. Chan. 290. SETTLED. C. OF.

A term is limited to raise portions for daughters if no sons, provided such daughters survive their father; a daughter dies in the life of her father: her portion shall not be raised. Hickman v. Anderson, 2 Vern. 654.

A term is limited in remainder after the father's death, &c. trust if he died without issue male, and there should be one or more daughters unmarried or unprovided for at his death; the trustees were to raise 2000*l.* for their portions, to be paid at eighteen or marriage. The mother being dead, and there being one daughter who was married, and no issue male, the court would not decree the portion to be raised in the life of the father, it not vesting till his death. Corbett v. Maydwell, 2 Vern. 640. 3 Ch. Rep. 190. 1 Salk. 159. S. C.

A term is created by marriage settlement, to raise 3000*l.* for daughter's portions, within twelve months after death of the survivor of the husband and wife; there being one daughter, the father devises the trust lands to make good his wife's jointure, and to raise 5000*l.* for his daughter's portion; the daughter shall not have two portions of 3000*l.*, and she dying at the age of five years, and the portion to be raised out of land; it shall not be raised for her administrator, but the interest or maintenance the child was entitled to shall. Brewin v. Brewin, Pre. Ch. 195. S. C. 2 Vern. 439. DOUBLE PORTIONS.

Portions provided by marriage settlement for younger children, to be paid at such time as the trustees shall think proper. One of the children dying at seventeen, before any apportionment, his portion shall sink in the inheritance, but maintenance, and a sum paid in placing him out apprentice to be allowed out of the trust estate. Warr v. Warr, Pre. Chan. 213.

A, by will, gives 500*l.* to his daughter, to be paid by his executors at her age of twenty-one, out of his personal estate and rents of his real, and if not raised by that time, the executors to stand seised and take the rents till the 500*l.* was raised, and after payment gives the land to his son. The daughter marries at eighteen, and dies under twenty-one; the husband takes administration: decreed the portion to be raised, and that by a sale, though the land, by reason of the incumbrances, would produce little more than the 500*l.* Jackson v. Farrand, 2 Vern. 424. Pre. Ch. 109. S. C. WILL, C. OF; INTEREST VESTED.

A having entailed his land on his son, subject to a mortgage, by will devises his leasehold and personal estate to pay his debts and legacies, and directs, if his personal estate is applied to pay the mortgage, it should be kept on foot to make good his daughter's portion, and gives her 3000*l.* to be paid at twenty-one or marriage, if married with consent, if not, but 1000*l.* She died at six years of age: the portion shall not be raised for the benefit of her administrator. Yates v. Phetipplace, 2 Vern. 416. Pre. Ch. 140. S. C. WILL, C. OF.

One charges his lands with 6000*l.* for the child, of which his wife was privement encient, if it proved a daughter, with a clause of entry for non-payment. A daughter is born and dies; the 6000*l.* shall go to her administrator. Norfolk v. Gifford, 2 Vern. 208. Id.

One devises 100*l.* to his daughter for her portion, charged upon a real estate, and payable at twenty-one; daughter dies before twenty-one: the portion shall sink in the land; otherwise if no time had been limited for the payment of the portion, for in that case it goes to the executor of the daughter; no difference where the portion is secured by a settlement or a will, if secured out of a real estate, and the party dies before it is payable; in either case it sinks in the lands. Smith v. Smith, 2 Vern. 92. WILL., C. OF.

Term limited by a settlement to raise portions for younger children, payable at twenty-one or marriage; one of them dies under twenty-one and unmarried: her portion shall not be raised for the benefit of the administratrix; otherwise, if the portion was to be raised out of a personal estate. Poulet v. Poulet, 1 Vern. 204. SETTLE., C. OF.

IV. VESTED, BUT NOT PAYABLE.

Where portions were provided for daughters on failure of issue male, to be paid at twenty-one or marriage, after the death of the survivor of the father or mother; the father having died, and there being an only daughter who had attained twenty-one, it was held, from the clear indication of the intention to postpone the raising till after the death of the survivor, that the portion should not be raised during the lifetime of the mother. Verney v. El. Verney, 2 Eden, 25. SETTLE., C. OF.

Under marriage articles, 2000*l.* part of 3000*l.* vested in trustees, was to be paid to such son as should attain the age of twenty-one, when, and at such time as he should have attained the age of twenty-three. The eldest son attained twenty-one, but died before twenty-three: held, that he became absolutely entitled to the money, and the time of payment only was postponed to the age of twenty-three. Combe v. Combe, 2 Atk. 185.

Term created for daughters' portions, commencing after the death of the father and mother, upon trust to raise the portions from and after the commencement of the term. Father dies, leaving a daughter: decreed, the portion is vested, but not raiseable during the life of the mother. Butler v. Duncomb, 1 P. W. 448. 2 Vern. 760. 10 Mod. 432. S. C.

V. SURVIVORSHIP, AND ACCRUAL OF.

Father having power under marriage settlement to appoint shares, in which his younger children were to take a sum to be raised for their portions, having exercised that power by will, afterwards advances one of daughters, took release from her of her portion, and by codicil revoked his appointment by will as to her: held, her portion was to go to the other children. Noel v. Id. Walsingham, 2 S. & S. 99. PARENT & CHILD; ADVANCEMENT.

When father has power to appoint among children, and one died in his lifetime, held, that share which lapsed by death should go among all, as in default of appointment, notwithstanding a direction that each receiving a share should release the fund, and there is no presumption of satisfaction or purchase from another provision, which was expressly made in satisfaction of different interest. Burges v. Mawbey, 10 Ves. 319. POWER, EXECUTION OF; LAPSE.

Portions held vested in the case of parent and child, by implication from the whole settlement against express words; and a clause of survivorship upon death of child before the portion should become payable, was upon the authorities construed before it should be vested. Hope v. Id. Chyden, 6 Ves. 499. SETTLE., C. OF.

VI. WHEN AND HOW RAISEABLE.

Where real estates are devised in strict settlement, subject to trust for raising portions to younger children, during minority of tenant for life, out of rents and profits, or by sale or mortgage; held certain funds, that had arisen from rents during such minority, were applicable to payment of the portions, and that deficiency only could be raised by sale or mortgage. Warter v. Hutchinson, 1 S. & S. 276. WILL., C. OF.

Where parent is tenant for life of settled estate, with remainder to trustees for 500 years, upon trust to raise portions for younger children, and parent has power to appoint portions by deed or will, they cannot be raised during parent's lifetime, and whole sum cannot be raised until they have attained twenty-one. Wynter v. Bold, 1 S. & S. 507. TRUST.

Portions to be raised by a trust term in a marriage settlement: the real estate held the primary fund, and a covenant by the settlor to pay them, auxiliary only. Lechmere v. Churilton, 15 Ves. 193.

Portion raised out of reversionary term: the rule is, that it depends upon the particular penning of the trust, and a fair construction of the whole instrument, as to the intention. Upon limitation to parent for life, with a term to raise portions at twenty-one, or marriage; if there is nothing more, and the interests are vested, and the contingencies happened, at which the portions are to be paid, upon the general rule the interest is payable, and the portions must be raised by sale or mortgage of the term. Codrington v. Id. Foley, 6 Ves. 364.

The court leans against the construction for raising portions or maintenance out of a reversionary term; and upon that principle, when the term fell into possession, and the portion was raised, refused to charge the difference between the sum annually allowed by the infant's grandfather for her maintenance, and the sum charged. Clinton v. Seymour, 4 Ves. 440. REVERSION; MAINTENANCE.

Portions charged on a reversionary fund shall not in general be raised till the term comes into possession, yet when it is expressly directed, under a power, that they shall be raised as soon as may be, they shall bear interest from the death of testator. Comney v. Conway, 3 Bro. C. C. 267. But see note there.

A power in a settlement to raise a portion for a younger child, at such time as the parent should direct: he directs it to be raised when she is fourteen, and, she dying, files his bill for it as her administrator. The portion shall not be raised for the father. Hinchinbroke v. Seymour, 1 Bro. C. C. 396. POWER, ILLUSORY APPOINTMENT.

Estate settled on husband and wife for life, and then to trustees for a term to raise portions for daughter, by leasing, assigning, or mortgaging: the husband dies, leaving daughters at his death, and no issue male. Her portions shall be raised in the life of the mother out of the reversion. Smith v. Evans, Amb. 533. SETTLEMENT, C. OF.

Term to raise daughter's portion, to daughters of son, on failure of issue male of grandson, with power for grandson to jointure: Held, the portions not raiseable, nor interest payable, till after the death of the jointress. Churchman v. Harvey, Amb. 336. Id.

One having two sons, G and C, and a daughter, devises several estates to his two sons and their issue, with cross remainders, and declared, that if either of them should die without issue living at his death, so that his estate should come to his brother, the surviving brother should pay 2000*l.* to his daughter within one year after his brother's death, and charged the estate with it: G died, leaving two sons; afterwards, C died, without issue. Quere? Whether the 2000*l.* should be raised : Held it should. Tollett v. Tollett, Amb. 177. WILL, C. op.

The court in late cases have thought it hard to raise daughters' portions in the father's lifetime, and therefore refused to do it. Hall v. Carter, 2 Atk. 356. S. C. 9 Mod. 347.

In late cases, where the portion was large, the court have refused it in favour of the remainder-man. S. C. Id.

A jointress having, on the execution of the power creating her jointure, an estate precedent to a term for raising portions, the portions cannot be raised in the lifetime of the jointress, so as to affect her. S. C. Id.

Conveyancers now insert negative words, to prevent portions being raised in a father and mother's lifetime. S. C. Id.

A power in trustees of raising portions by rents or by mortgage, is no reason for postponing the raising, in order that they may make their election. S. C. Id.

Directing a gross sum to be raised does not imply that it shall be raised at once, for it may be raised out of the rents and profits, and so laid up till it amounts to that sum. Okeden v. Okeden, 1 Atk. 550.

The court of equity lays great stress upon a particular time being appointed for payment of a portion, and have enlarged the power of trustees to raise it within the time. Id. 551.

Where land was originally charged with daughters' portions, it must bear the burthen, and they shall not be paid out of the personal estate. Burgoyne v. Fox, 1 Atk. 576. CHARGE ON LAND.

Where there is a term for years for raising daughters' portions, payable at a certain time, and a vested interest, they shall not stay till the death of the father and mother ; but the court will lay hold of the slightest circumstance in a settlement that shows an intention to postpone raising them in the life of father and mother. Stanley v. Stanley, 1 Atk. 549.

A, upon his marriage with B, settles his estate to the use of himself for life, remainder to first and other sons in tail male, remainder to trustees for one thousand years, remainder to his brother C for life, remainder to the heirs male of his body, hereafter to be begotten ; and then declares the trust of the term, that if there should be no issue male of the bodies of A & B begotten, that should live to the age of twenty-one years, or be married and have issue, and that there should be a daughter or daughters of the bodies of A & B, such daughter should have 4000*l.* for her portion ; and if two or more, they to have 5000*l.* equally to be divided at their ages of twenty-one, or days of marriage, which should first happen ; and if only one daughter, she to have the yearly sum of 100*l.* to be paid her half yearly for her maintenance : if two or more, the like sum to be paid them half yearly, in equal shares, until their respective portions paid ; if the portions not paid, the trustees to raise them out of the rents, or by sale, or mortgage of the premises, or of part. Provided, that if the father should, in his life-time, prefer them in marriage with portions equivalent, or the remainder-man should, after the father's death, or that there should be no daughter who should attain the age of twenty-one, or be married, then the term to cease. B died in the life-time of A, leaving no son, but three daughters, who are all unmarried : C took an estate tail under this settlement ; and the portions may be raised for the daughters in the life-time of A, their father. Ilebbethwaite v. Cartwright, Forres. 30. SETTLE. C. OP. WHAT ESTATE ; ESTATE TAIL.

Where portions were directed to be raised " as soon as conveniently may be," court decreed a sale of the lands. Ashion v. —, 10 Mod. 401. SETTLE. C. OP.

As to how and when portions are to be raised.
VOL. II.

Feelyn v. Feelyn, Fitzgib. 131. S. C. 2 P. W. 659, Kelw. 18.

Upon a marriage settlement, lands are limited to the use of the husband and wife for their lives, remainder to their first and every other son in tail, and in default of issue male of the marriage, to trustees in trust to raise 2,500*l.* for daughters, payable at twenty-one or marriage, which shall first happen, and out of the profits to pay 100*l.* per annum for maintenance, the first payment of the maintenance to commence after the estate of the trustees shall have come into possession : husband dies without issue male, leaving a daughter, and a wife who is jointured in the premises ; the portion shall not be raised in the mother's life-time. Brome v. Berkley, 2 P. W. 484. affd. 6 Bro. P. C. 108. SETTLE. C. OP.

Portions secured by settlement out of lands, or articulated so to be, are not to be paid out of the personal estate. Edwards v. Freeman, 2 P. W. 437.

One has several daughters, and, being seised in fee, charges his lands with 1000*l.* a piece to his daughters, payable at twenty-one, or marriage ; and if any die, then to the survivors, but no time limited when the additional portion should be paid to the surviving daughters. If one die unmarried before twenty-one, the additional portion shall not be paid to the surviving daughters until the deceased daughter should have come to twenty-one. Feltham v. Feltham, 2 P. W. 271.

The trust of a term is to raise daughters' portions by rents, issues, and profits, or by making leases for three lives, at the ancient rent, or by granting copyholds on fines, the money to be paid to the daughters at the age of eighteen, or marriage, or as soon after as the same could be raised out of the premises as aforesaid. The portions, as it seems, may not be raised by sale or mortgage. Mills v. Banks, 3 P. W. 1.

A reversionary term, raised for securing maintenance and portions of daughters, shall, in cases of necessity, be mortgaged to pay either ; and when fallen into possession, shall pay all the arrears of maintenance incurred before it came into possession. Ravenhill v. Dansey, 2 P. W. 179.

The trust of a term was for raising a portion for a daughter, in default of issue male, payable at eighteen, or marriage, or so soon after as the same might conveniently be raised ; the mother died, leaving only one daughter. The court was of opinion that the portion could not be conveniently raised by sale of the reversion. Reresby v. Newland, 2 P. W. 93. Affd. 6 Bro. P. C. 75.

The court will not go farther than warranted by precedents, in selling reversionary terms to pay portions. Id. ib.

A trust term for raising daughters' portions ; if it direct a particular method of raising the portions, it implies a negative that they shall not be raised any other way. Joy v. Gilbert, 2 P. W. 13. Pro. Cha. 583. Affd. 6 Bro. P. C. 68.

A trust term to raise portions out of the rents, &c., as well as by leasing for three lives, or twenty-one years, at the old rent : this extends only to raise the portions by annual profits, or by leasing, and not by mortgage or sale ; and if the trustee in such trust term mortgage for the portion, the mortgage is void when the portion might have been raised by the profits. Id. ib.

Where a portion is to be raised by the annual profits or fines, if no time be appointed, the portion is not due till such time as it might be so raised. Id. 20. Pro. Cha. 583. Affd. 6 Bro. P. C. 68.

A reversionary term sold for the raising of daughter's portion. Sandys v. Sandys, 1 P. W. 707.

Under what circumstances payment of portion under a will shall be postponed until all the father's debts are satisfied. Duty v. French, 6 Bro. P. C. 55. ADMON. OF ASSETS.

Term limited in remainder after father's death, in trust for raising portions for daughters at eighteen, or marriage: portions may be raised during life of father. Cobett v. Maidwell, 1 Salk. 158.

A portion, charged on lands by virtue of a power, shall be raised by a sale or mortgage, and not by the rents and profits of the lands charged; because it could not thereby be received in any reasonable time: the party entitled might be abridged of half the value of the portion by that manner of raising it. Kelly v. Id. Bellew, 4 Bro. P. C. 504.

By marriage settlement, lands are limited to husband and wife for their lives, remainder to the heirs male of their bodies; and if there should be no issue male of their bodies, and one or more daughters, then to trustees for 500 years from the decease of the survivor, in trust, by sale or mortgage to raise 1000*l.* for daughters' portions; but there is no time appointed for the payment of them: the father dies, leaving a daughter only. The portion vesting in the daughter in the lifetime of the mother, it was decreed to be raised by a sale, with reasonable maintenance in the mean time, though no maintenance is provided by a settlement. Staniforth v. Staniforth, 2 Vern. 460. MAINTENANCE; SETTLEMENT, C. OF.

By marriage settlement, a term is limited to raise 5000*l.*; if but one daughter, to be paid at twenty-one, or marriage, which should first happen after the death of the father and mother, or within six months after either of those days or times. There being one daughter only, and she having attained twenty one, and her father being dead, her portion was decreed to be raised in the lifetime of her mother. Gerrard v. Gerrard, 2 Vern. 458. SETTLEMENT, C. OF.

Where a term is limited to raise portions for younger children by rents and profits, the heir may have the portions raised by a sale, though the younger children oppose it, as well as he may insist on a sale if he think fit. Warburton v. Warburton, 2 Vern. 420.

Where there is a trust for raising portions out of rents and profits, the lands may be sold. Sheldon v. Dormer, 2 Vern. 310. POWER OF SALE.

Where the ordinary profits of a term are not sufficient to raise a portion, timber may be felled, or a mine worked for it, against the heir. Offley v. Offley, Prec. Chan. 27.

Portions raised in the lifetime of the father. Hillier v. Jones, 1 Eq. Ab. 337.

Lands are settled on marriage, upon condition, if there should be a daughter, the persons in remainder should pay her 2000*l.* at sixteen, with power for the daughter, in case of non-payment, to distrain for the 2000*l.* and damages. Though no power to sell, yet a sale decreed for raising the portion. Wharton v. Wharton, 2 Vern. 1. SETTLEMENT, C. OF; POWER OF SALE.

Lands of an heir are charged with portions to infants at twenty-one, or marriage. The portions shall not be admitted to be paid in before they grow due in case of the land. Oldfield v. Oldfield, 1 Vern. 337.

If lands are devised to a wife for life, and afterwards to be sold by the executor to pay younger children's portions, and the executor and the wife die, the younger children may compel the heir to sell, though the executor had only an authority. Garfoot v. Garfoot, 1 Ch. Ca. 35. 2 Freem. 176. HAIN, WHEN DECREED TO JOIN IN SALE.

VII. WHERE LANDS ARE LIABLE.

A by several deeds charges different parts of his real estates with portions for his younger children, and afterwards by his will confirms the charges so made, and then gives the residue of his personal estate, after payment of his debts and legacies, to trustees in trust to lay out the same in purchase of land to be settled to particular uses. The eldest son brings bill controverting the validity of the deeds, and insisting that the personal estate was liable to make good the several charges so far as it would extend: Held, that personal estate should go according to will, and that each particular estate should bear the specific charge made upon it. Ferrers v. Ferrers, 6 Bro. P. C. 97. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE; EXEMPTION OF PERSONAL ESTATE.

A devises 500*l.* a piece to his three daughters at their ages of twenty-one, or marriage, to be paid out of his stock, and devises the rents of his real estate to his wife for life, in lieu of dower, and for the maintenance of his children, and towards making up their portions; and after his debts and legacies paid, devises the lands to his son, who, together with his wife, he made executors. The stock was but of 100*l.* value; the wife being dead, and the two eldest daughters having had their portions paid them, hold that the lands were liable in the hands of the son to the youngest daughter's portion. Tomkins v. Tomkins, Prec. Chan. 397. S. C. Gilb. Eq. Rep. 90. WILL, C. OF; CHARGE ON LANDS.

A, on marriage of his son, settles lands which he covenants to be worth 800*l.* per annum, reserving to himself a power of charging the same with 1200*l.* for the portions of his younger children. A charged the estate with only 600*l.*; but because the value of the lands was defective, the son refused to pay these portions: Held, that the portions were well charged, as they only amounted to a moiety of what the father had power to charge; and if there was a deficiency in the value of the lands, the son ought to sue upon the covenant for satisfaction out of his father's assets. Ormsby v. Dodwell, 6 Bro. P. C. 41. CHARGE ON LAND.

By a marriage settlement a freehold estate was settled on husband and wife for their lives, remainder to the first, &c. son in tail, remainder to trustees for 500 years to raise portions for daughters, remainders over; covenant from the husband to settle his copyhold estate to the same uses. A surrender is made, but no term is limited. The freehold estate not being sufficient to raise the daughter's portions, decreed, the copyhold estate should be charged, and liable to raise the portions. Shouldham v. Shouldham, 2 Vern. 321. SETTLEMENT, MARRIAGE C. OF; COPYHOLD, CHARGE ON.

VIII. MERGER OF, IN LANDS CHARGED.

Lands charged with portion for A, afterwards descending to A, held not to extinguish or satisfy the portion. Rushout v. Rushout, 6 Bro. P. C. 89.

A daughter's portion secured by a trust term, not extinguished by a devise of the lands to the daughter in tail. Lawrance v. Blatchford, 2 Vern. 457.

By a marriage settlement lands are limited to the husband and wife, with remainder to their first, &c. son, and then a term for years to secure portions for daughters. The husband dies, leaving only a daughter, upon whom the inheritance descends. The daughter dies an infant, and indebted, and disposes of her portion by her will. Equity relieves against the merger of the portion. Powell v. Morgan, id. 90. MERGER.

IX. WHEN SATISFACTION OF A DEBT OR LEGACY.

Implied satisfaction of a debt from a father to his child, by a marriage portion of a greater amount,

Chave v. Farrent, 18 Ves. 8. DEBT, SATISFACTION; PARENT & CHILD; DEBTOR & CRED.

Portion a satisfaction of a legacy from the father to the same amount, the evidence not being sufficient to repel the presumption. Ellison v. Cookson, 1 Ves. J. 100. LEGACY, SATISFACTION OF; PARENT & CHILD.

2000*l.* paid by testator on marriage of daughter, with covenant to pay 4000*l.* more at death, is extinguishment of two legacies given to her by prior will. Clarke v. Burgoine, Dick. 353.

X. DOUBLE.

See PORTIONS, XI.

A power upon marriage was reserved to the father to appoint 1000*l.*, charged upon certain lands, amongst the younger children of the marriage. Upon his second marriage, he charged other lands with 5000*l.* for the younger children (naming them) of the first marriage. These portions are not accumulative, and the latter only to be raised. A younger son, though named as one to take part of the 5000*l.* afterwards becoming the eldest before the portions raised, and as heir taking the estate charged, not entitled to any part of the charge. Savage v. Carball, 1 Ball & B. 265.

In cases of portions, courts of equity lean against double provisions moving from the father to the same persons, and for the same purposes. Id. 276.

Every appointment to a younger son, is under a condition that he become not the eldest son and heir. Id. ib.

Gift of 500*l.* by father to daughter, held not a satisfaction in part of legacy of 1000*l.* by previous will, the presumption against double portions in case of parent and child being repelled by circumstances, the gift not being by way of portion, but after marriage, and from a particular motive appearing by declaration of testator to wife, which she proved. Robinson v. Whitley, 9 Ves. 577. WILL, C. OF; LEGACY, SATISFACTION OF.

C provided by his will a maintenance for his second son out of the real estate; he afterwards gave large legacies to his younger children, with maintenance out of the interest: the second son entitled to both maintenances. Clive v. Walsh, 1 Bro. C. C. 146. WILL, C. OF.

A, upon his second marriage, settles lands to raise 5000*l.* for the children of the marriage. Having four children by that marriage, he by his will, in which he takes no notice of the settlement, gives 1000*l.* to each of them as his or her portion: Held, that they were not entitled to portions under both instruments, and that as they had accepted the provision by the will, they were bound by such acceptance. Byde v. Byde, 2 Eden, 18. S. C. 1 Cox, 44.

The court leans against double portions, yet regard must be had to circumstances, as where there is an eldest son, or more children, and the demand would be to their prejudice: otherwise, in the case of an only child. Bellasis v. Uthbatt, 1 Atk. 427. WILL, C. OF, GENERALLY.

A man has one daughter, to whom 8000*l.* is secured by marriage settlement, and afterwards he gives 8000*l.* by his will for her portion, and 200*l.* per annum. The daughter shall have but one 8000*l.*, though she may elect which of the portions she pleases. Copley v. Copley, 1 P. W. 147. PORTION, SATISFACTION OF.

A makes two of his daughters executrixes, and directs them to distribute a sum of 400*l.*, and also the residue of his personal estate, among themselves, and their brothers and sisters, according to their needs and necessities, as they in their discretion should think fit. The court restrained the exercise of this power, by decreeing a double share to the eldest son and heir, looking upon him as necessitous person. Warburton v. Warburton, 4 Bro. P. C. 1. WILL, DISCRETIONARY JURISDICTION.

A term is created by marriage settlement to raise 3000*l.* for daughters' portions within twelve months after the death of the survivor of the husband and wife. There being one daughter, the father devises the trust lands to make good his wife's jointure, and to raise 3000*l.* for his daughter's portion: the daughter shall not have two portions of 3000*l.*; and she dying at the age of five years, and the portion to be raised out of land, it shall not be raised for her administrator, but the interest or maintenance the child was entitled to, shall. Brewin v. Brewin, Prec. Chan. 195. S. C. 2 Vern. 439. PORTIONS, WHEN AND HOW RAISEABLE.

A cumulative provision in will shall not double a portion, unless plainly proved that testator intended it to be so. Blois v. Blois, 2 Vent. 347. LEGACY, ACCUMULATIVE.

A, by settlement, was made tenant in tail, and a provision was made of 3000*l.* a-piece to his daughters. A docked the entail, and bequeathed to his daughters 3000*l.* a-piece. It was proved that A had declared he would augment his daughters' portions. Decreed, the daughters to have both sums. Pile v. Pile, 1 Ch. Rep. 199.

XI. SATISFACTION.

See PORTIONS, X.

Portion by settlement vested at twenty-one or marriage of daughters, to be paid at the death of the surviving partner; if the parents, or either, should, in their or either of their life-time, settle, give, or advance money, land, &c. on marriage, or otherwise, such advancement to be taken as part or the whole of the portion, unless the contrary declared in writing. A legacy payable at twenty-one, a satisfaction pro tanto. Onslow v. Mitchell, 18 Ves. 490. SETTLE, C. OF.

Rule as to satisfaction of portion by a legacy, that there must be some express evidence, or at least a strong presumption that it was intended as such, slight variation in the time of payment, between twenty-one and twenty-one or marriage, immaterial. Id. ib.

Though generally a satisfaction by will of a portion must be of the same nature, and equally certain, a bequest of a share in powder works, to be made up in value 10,000*l.* charged with an annuity of 20*l.* for a life, was held a satisfaction of a portion of 2000*l.* Bengough v. Walker, 15 Ves. 507.

Portion by will prima facie a satisfaction of a portion by settlement. Tolson v. Collins, 4 Ves. 491. SETTLE, SATISFACTION OF; WILL.

Bequest of the residue of testator's personal estate, to a younger son, being greater than the provision by the father's marriage settlement, is a satisfaction of that portion. Kirkman v. Morgan, 2 Bro. C. C. 394.

By marriage settlement part of wife's fortune was advanced to husband for the purpose of his trade, for which he secured her an annuity, the rest being settled upon the children, after the decease of husband and wife, in such proportions as the wife should direct; by will he directed the wife should relinquish her claim under the settlement, and left a larger sum to trustees, the interest to be paid to her while sole, with a power to her to dispose of the whole among the children; that is a satisfaction for their portions under the settlement. Moulson v. Moulson, 1 Bro. C. C. 82. SETTLEMENT, SATISFACTION OF.

Declaration in the deed providing portions for daughters, that if any lands should come from the father they should be taken as part of the portions; an estate tail being devised, it is to be considered as part satisfaction, according to the value of it. Watson v. Lincoln, Amb. 328. DEEDS, C. OF.

Portions for younger children under a settlement; father provides otherwise for one; intending 10,000*l.* a piece for the rest; they are confined to that, and not also to claim an equivalent for the other's share out of provision made; otherwise if they had other satisfaction. Dk. Bridgewater v. Egerton, 2 Ves. 123.

L, previous to his marriage with A, covenanted that he would, by will or by some good assurance, grant to D or her mother, or her executors, &c. in trust for D, 1000*l.* to be paid to her after his decease, for her separate use; and in case he should not by deed or will assure the same, then his executors, &c. should pay the 1000*l.* L died without such deed or will: Held, that D was not entitled to the 1000*l.* and her distributive share of L's personal estate also, it being meant by L not as a debt, but as a security only for his wife's provision. Lee v. Cox, 3 Atk. 419. SETTLEMENT, C. OF.

In a settlement a term was raised for daughters' portions, viz. 10,000*l.* with a proviso, that if the father, by deed or will, should give or leave the sum of 10,000*l.* to his said daughter, it should be a satisfaction; the father leaves land to the daughters of the value of 10,000*l.*, this no satisfaction. Chuplin v. Chaplin, 3 P. W. 245. Id.

In a settlement made on the second marriage of S was a proviso, that "if any estate of inheritance shall descend from the father to the daughters (of the marriage) of as great value (to be sold) as their portions, then the trust (term created to raise such portions) shall cease for the benefit of the person who shall be entitled to the settled lands as next in remainder." S the father, being seised of other lands in fee, devised them to his daughters in tail: Held, this not such an estate of inheritance as will be a satisfaction of the portions for the daughters of S, by his second wife, because the daughters claim those lands by purchase, and the proviso in the marriage settlement restrains the satisfaction to lands coming to the daughters by descent from their father. Saville v. Saville, 2 Atk. 458. Sel. Ch. Ca. 32.

Held also that the valuation of lands descending from the father to the daughters, and which would have to go in satisfaction of the portions, must be made according to the value of the lands at the time of the descent; for till valuation made, it could not be known whether they were a full or a partial satisfaction. S. C. 2 Atk. 461.

Lands descended to the daughter in tail are not such an estate of inheritance as is within the meaning of the proviso, for such an inheritance was intended as of certain value, an inheritance in fee simple. S. C. Id.

Reversions in tail, expectant on the deaths of others, are not such estates of inheritance descended from the father as are within the intent of the proviso. Id. 463.

Tenant for life shall keep down interest by rents and profits; but portions or principal money due on any other incumbrance, shall be borne by the whole estate; therefore, tenant for life shall not account for rents, or value of timber cut down, in order that they might be applied towards raising portions. S. C. Id.

TENANT FOR LIFE; PAYING OFF INCUMBRANCES. A man has one daughter to whom 8,000*l.* is secured by marriage settlement, and afterwards he gives 8000*l.* by his will, for her portion, and 200*l.* per annum; the daughter shall have but one 8000*l.*, though she may elect which of the portions she pleases. Copley v. Copley, 1 P. W. 147. DOUBLE PORTION.

A legacy of 150*l.* given by a collateral ancestor to the daughter of A, which was paid A, and who after gave her 1000*l.* portion, settled a church lease on her, and maintained her and her husband fourteen years, yet held no satisfaction. Chidley v. Lee, Prec. Chan. 228.

By a marriage, in case of failure of issue male, a remainder is limited to the daughters until they should raise 3000*l.* for portions. There is issue a son and two daughters; the father, by will, gives the daughters 700*l.* a-piece and dies; the son gives by his will to the daughters to the amount of 7000*l.*, and devises the land to his male heirs, and dies without issue. The father or son's legacies to the daughters shall not be a bar and satisfaction of the 3000*l.* secured by the marriage settlement. Duffield v. Smith, 2 Vern. 258.

By a marriage settlement a term for years, expectant on failure of issue male, is raised for securing 3000*l.* portions for daughters, not preferred in the life of the father, payable at eighteen or marriage; there are a son and two daughters. The father in his lifetime, by a sale of part of his estate, raises 1800*l.* for his daughters, which, by another deed, was made payable at twenty-one or marriage, and dies, leaving also a son by a former marriage, who dies an infant, without issue. This 1800*l.* though payable at a different time, and though not intended to go as part of the portion (there being a son then living), shall be taken as part of the 3000*l.* portion. Jesson v. Jesson, 2 Vern. 255.

XII. WHEN SUBJECT TO DEBTS.

A lent B and C 200*l.* and took their bond for 800*l.* payable on the marriage of either, or on the death of either's father; B's father died, and C married, but his portion was vested in trustees; equity would not subject this portion to the payment of C's bond. Rich v. Sydenham, 3 Ch. Rep. 76. BOND, NOW PAYABLE.

Where a tenant in tail in remainder had agreed to pay a sum of money after the death and failure of issue of his brother, the tenant in tail in possession, and had secured the money by a mortgage of the estate, and covenanted to levy a fine and suffer a recovery, to give effect to the mortgage, but coming into possession of the estate, refused to perform this covenant, the court appointed a receiver of the rents. Free v. Hinde, 2 Sim. 7. PR. RECEIVER.

In a suit to set aside post obit securities, an injunction being granted, the principal and interest will be ordered into court, and will not be paid to the defendant. Marsack v. Farlow, 1 Jac. 572.

An action on a post obit, as contrary to the principles of this court, was restrained, and subsequent motion to set aside the injunction was refused with costs, such case being against general rule, that costs of motion for injunction, or to dissolve injunction, refused, are costs in cause. *Marsack v. A survives a year and eight months, having, on death of B, confirmed the bargain by a new bond, &c. freely, and paying part. No relief given in this case, except as to the penalty. El. Chesterfield v. Janson, 2 Ves. 125.

Post obit security bond by A in 1720, for payment in six months after his father's death, if he survived; otherwise to be void; the father, then seventy, dies in 1731; A in 1734. No relief against the penalty, there being no proof of imposition, although suspicious circumstances in it. Hill v. Caillovel, 1 Ves. 122.

POSTHUMOUS CHILDREN, THEIR RIGHTS AND INCAPACITIES.

Bequest to all children "born in the lifetime of testator," includes child of which the feme was en-ciente at death of testator. Trowers v. Butts, 1 S. & S. 181. WILL, C. OF.

Legacy in trust for the children of A to be equally divided between them, with benefit of survivorship, and a provision for maintenance out of the interest; A having no children at the death of the testator, held, that after-born children would take, and that the interest, till the birth of a child, fell into the residue. Harris v. Lloyd, 1 Turn. & R. 310. WILL, C. OF, WHO TAKE; INTERMEDIATE PROFITS.

Devise in favour of children of testator's sister held, on construction of the whole will, to apply to such children only as were living at the testator's death, and not to include after-born children. Scott v. Harwood, 5 Mad. 332. WILL, C. OF.

Gift to all and every the children of nephews and nieces lawfully begotten, includes after-born children. Browne v. Groombridge, 4 Mad. 495. WILL, C. OF, WHO TAKE.

Devise to S for life, and after her decease estate to be settled by counsel, and go amongst testator's grandchildren of male kind, and issue in tail male with remainder over. Only one grandchild was born in testator's lifetime, but two were born afterwards before death of S: Held, such after-born children were entitled. Marshall v. Bousfield, 2 Mad. 166. Id.

Bequest of residue, after death of A, to five children, and to the son of my son T and his other children that were living, held to pass shares to children of son born after the testator's death, and before death of wife. Tebbs v. Carpenter, 1 Mad. 290. Id.

Legacies to all the children of the testator's sister of 2000*l.* each, payable at twenty-one or marriage of daughters; and until the shares become payable, the interest, &c. thereof respectively to be paid to his sister for her separate use; a fund to be set apart for paying the legacies to his said sister's children as they became due, and in case he shall die before all her sons shall attain twenty-one, or before all the daughters attain that age or marry, the interest, &c. of the legacies for such sons and daughters as should be under age or unmarried, to be applied towards their education, &c.: all children, including those born after the testator's death, entitled, and an inquiry was directed what would be a proper sum to be set apart to answer the legacies to future children. Deffis v. Goldschmidt, 19 Ves. 566. Id.

Under a devise by a married man having no legitimate children, "to the children which I may have by A, and living at my decease," natural children who had acquired the reputation of being his children by her before the date of the will, entitled as upon the whole will intended and sufficiently described, rejecting as a description of the devisees, passages in a written book, unattested, of which probate was admitted under a reference in the will to "the observations and directions which I shall leave in a written book." Whether, if there were also legitimate children by the same mother, they could take together under the same description, and whether future illegitimate children can take under any description in a will, Qu.? Wilkinson v. Adam, 1 V. & B. 422. Affirmed, 12 Pri. 470. Id.

Where there is an immediate devise to children and grandchildren generally vesting in possession on death of the testator, after-born children are excluded. But if the vesting in possession be postponed, then after-born children in esse at the time of distribution are entitled, though devise immediate. Crone v. Odell, 1 Ball & B. 483. Affl. 3 Dow, P. R. 61. WILL, C. OF, WHO TAKE.

Where devise immediate, and the description of persons to take general, those answering it on testator's death alone can take, and after-born children are excluded. But where the enjoyments are postponed to a particular period, or until a particular event happen, those then answering the description will take, and after-born children will be included. Crone v. Odell, 1 Ball & B. 459. Affl. 3 Dow, 61. Id.

When life estate is interposed between the death of testator and the enjoyment by the children of the tenant for life, and there is nothing to limit the general description, after-born children will be included. Id. ib.

In a legacy to the children of A, those born before the time of distribution are entitled to share, unless a time of distribution is expressly provided, excluding those born afterwards by the necessity of a previous distribution. Walker v. Shure, 15 Ves. 125. WILL, C. OF, WHO TAKE.

Trust, by will, for all the children of A, when and as they shall severally attain sixteen, with a direction for the maintenance; those born after the eldest attain sixteen were excluded: maintenance was directed without regard to the father's ability. Hoots v. Pratt, 3 Ves. 730. WILL, C. OF, WHO TAKE; MAINTENANCE.

Testator gave to each and every of his children born or thereafter to be born, and who should be living at the time of his death, 5000*l.* a-piece to be paid at their ages of twenty-one, &c. with interest from the day of his death. A child en ventre sa mere is entitled to a legacy of 5000*l.*, but the interest is to be computed only from the birth. Rawlins v. Rawlins, 2 Cox, 425. WILL, C. OF.

Under a devise to all the children of A except B, a posthumous child is entitled. Clarke v. Blake, 2 Ves. J. 672. Id.

The testator gave to A B's children, 50*l.* to every child he hath by his wife, to be paid them as they come of age: there were eleven children at the date of the will, thirteen at the testator's death, and three born afterwards. The thirteen children living at the death of the testator are entitled to their legacies, but not those born afterwards. Ringrose v. Bramham, 2 Cox, 384. Id.

Child born after death of testator decreed to take under a general gift to A for life, then to the children of A, but this point not contested. Simmons v. Valance, 4 Bro. C. C. 345. WILL, C. OF, WHO TAKE.

Gift by will of a specific sum among the six children of A. A had six children at the time, one more was born after the testator's will, but before the codicils; she shall not take a share with the six born before. Sherer v. Bishop, id. 55. Id.

Testator gave the residue of his real and personal estate to his wife for life, and upon her decease he bequeathed it to the children of A and his wife Jane, to be equally divided amongst them, the said Jane's children, and not to any children by any other marriage of either party: the residue is divisible amongst the children of A and his wife, who were living at the death of the wife, but will not extend to children born after that time. Ayton v. Ayton, 1 Cox, 327. Id.

An immediate devise to great-grandchildren will not include a great-grandchild in ventre sa mere at the testator's death. Freemantle v. Freemantle, id. 248. WILL, C. OF.

Testator gave 350*l.* to the children of his sister at twenty-one (with interest), and if any died before, to the survivor or survivors. A child born after the testator's death, but during the infancy of the others, is entitled to a share. Gilmore v. Severn, 1 Bro. C. C. 583. WILL, C. OF, WHO ENTITLED.

E devised all her real estates to trustees for a term of 500 years to raise 200*l.* for the purposes in the will mentioned; and after the determination of that term, and subject thereto, to other trustees for 1000 years, in trust to pay out of the rents certain annuities; and subject to the said two terms, she gave the premises to all and every the child and children of her brother T, and the heirs of their bodies, &c. T had two children at the death of the testatrix, and one born afterwards, but before the death of the annuitant. This is an immediate devise, and the last mentioned child being born after the testatrix's death, is not entitled to any share of the premises. Singleton v. Gilbert, 1 Cox, 68. WILL, C. OF, WHO TAKE.

Bequest, "and after death, &c. I give and leave to each of the children of R and of B his wife, 50*l.*, which shall be paid to them when they shall be of age:" Held, vested legacies, and that after-born child shall take. Att. Gen. v. Crespin, 1 Bro. C. C. 386. WILL, C. OF; INTEREST, VESTED.

Devise to all the children of A at the respective ages of twenty-one; a child born after the death of the testatrix shall take. Congreve v. Congreve, id. 530. WILL, C. OF, WHO TAKE.

20,000*l.* left to executors in trust to dispose, or in such proportions, &c. as they should think fit amongst such of the testator's relations as should not be worth 2000*l.*, and should apply within two years after the testator's death. One within the description applied and had a sum ordered her, but died before it was paid: Held, her representative entitled to it. A child born after the death of the testator, who was of consanguinity, claimed and died without issue; held not within the description, though en ventre sa mere at testator's death. Bennett v. Honeywood, Ambl. 708. Id.

One devises to his son then living, and if he dies under twenty-one, and testator's wife shall be enicient at his death with other child or children, then to such at twenty-one; but if no such, then over to his nephews. Two children were born after the will in the lifetime of the testator: held to take under the devise. White v. Barber, id. 701. Id.

Legacy to children of A lawfully begotten, or to be begotten, extends only to those born in lifetime of testator. Sprackling v. Rainer, Dick. 344.

Devise of real estate to H, his daughter, for life; and after her death, without issue, to sell and divide the money among all and every the children of his two sisters. The sisters had several children born in the lifetime of testator; one of them had a child born afterwards, but in the lifetime of H. H died without issue: Held, the after-born child entitled. Bartlett v. Hollister, Ambl. 334. S. C. 1 Bro. C. C. 530. in note. WILL, C. OF.

Bequest of residue to children of A, the interest to be paid for their learning, and, at the age of twenty, to be equally divided between them; but if A have no children, the interest to be paid to A for seven years, and then the whole to be paid to her. Whether after-born child shall take, Quæ? A new bill by the husband after the death of his wife, and several children to whom he was administrator, to have the question determined; and Id. Camden, Ch. was clear of opinion that the interest vested at the death of the testator, being given per verba de presenti, and that the after-born child was excluded. Hodges v. Isaac, Ambl. 348. Id.

Legacy to children of S, he having but one born.

Those born after held entitled. Maddison v. Andrews, 1 Ves. 58. WILL, C. OF, WHO TAKE.

A posthumous child within a provision in marriage articles, for such children of the marriage as should be living at the death of the father or mother. Millar v. Turner, id. 85. MARRIAGE SETTLEMENT, WHO TAKE.

A posthumous child born after the next rent day, and since the death of the father, is entitled under 10 & 11 W. 3. c. 16. to the intermediate profits of the lands settled, as well as the lands themselves, and the court will consider an uncle as a receiver, or a trustee for an afterborn son, though the point at law be against him. The profits of an estate descended belongs to a posthumous child from his birth only. Rassett v. Bassett, 3 Atk. 203. 206. 207. Vide Goodtitle v. Neumann, 3 Wils. 526. It is evident that all skillful conveyancers have considered that the statute carries the intermediate profits as well as the estate; for before that statute, and before the case of Reere v. Long, 3 Lev. 408, they always inserted a limitation to preserve contingent remainders to posthumous children, but since that time they have omitted it. Bussell v. Bassett, sup. Et vide Robinson v. Robinson, 2 Ves. 231. INTERMEDIATE PROFITS.

Testator bequeathed 500*l.* to be paid to his grandson P if he lived to be twenty-one, and in case he died before then, to the other child or children of his daughter equally, arriving at such age. P died before twenty-one, and no child of P was born or living at testator's death. The grandchildren, born after the death of testator were held entitled to the 500*l.* for not being in esse in his lifetime, he must have had in his view the future children of his daughter. Haughton v. Harrison, 2 Atk. 329. WILL, C. OF, WHO TAKE.

A parent is bound by nature to support a child, but this has not been intended to grandchildren, and therefore not entitled to interest. S. C. Id.

If the child or children of P arrive at twenty-one, then the 500*l.* was directed to be paid to them, and interest from the time it becomes payable. S. C. Id.

J died intestate, and left issue who died within a week after his father and his wife enient; and on the 20th May following the plaintiff was born, and is entitled to her share under the statute of distributions, as much as if she had existed in his lifetime. Wallis v. Hodson, 2 Atk. 114. DISTRIBUTION, STAT. OF.

A will can never relate to a child who was not in esse till some years after testator's death. Heathe v. Heathe, 2 Atk. 122. WILL, C. OF.

A parent's duty to provide for all his children will extend to posthumous ones. Wallis v. Hodson, 2 Atk. 116. PARENT & CHILD.

Distributory share vests on the intestate's death, but not so as to exclude a posthumous child. Edwards v. Freeman 2 P. W. 446. DISTRIBUTION; INTEREST VESTED.

One devises, in case he have no son at the time of his death, to S. The testator dies, leaves his wife privement enient with a son; this posthumous son is a son living at the testator's death, and S not entitled. Burdet v. Hopegood, 1 P. W. 486. WILLS, C. OF; WHO TAKE.

An after-born child of a freeman of London shall come in with the others for a customary share. Wal-sam v. Skinner, Prec. Chan. 499. S. C. Gilb. Eq. Rep. 153. CUSTOM OF LONDON.

One devises the surplus of his estate to his grandchildren living at his death. Grandchildren born after his decease shall not take. Musgrave v. Parry, 2 Vern. 710. WILL, C. OF; WHO TAKE.

One devises the surplus of his personal estate to the children of A and B: neither of them has a child at the making of the will, or the death of testator. The devise is executory, and shall extend to any children that A and B shall afterwards have, and the children of each shall take per capita, and not per stirpes. Weld v. Bradbury, 2 Vern. 705. WILL, C. OF; WHO TAKE; DISTRIBUTION.

Lands by marriage settlement are limited to the son in tail male, remainder to A, the husband, in fee, provided if A and his wife, or either of them die without issue male living at the time of his or her death, leaving only one daughter unmarried, the trustees to stand seised till they have raised 1500*l.* for such daughter, and if more daughters unmarried at the death of A and his wife, or either of them, and no issue male being begotten between them, then 3000*l.* for such daughters. A dies leaving daughters, and his wife enient of a son which is afterwards born, whether the daughters are entitled to the 3000*l.* Palmer v. Cracroft, 2 Vern. 578. SETTLEMENT, C. OF, WHO TAKE.

A devise to J and his heirs; if he has children, they take with their father; but if he has none, it is an estate tail: or devise to a man and his children of his personal estate; a child born after the death of the testator shall not take. A devises to two and the heirs of their bodies: it is a joint estate for life, and several inheritances; and so it is if there is a devise over; but if there is a devise over, and one of them dies without issue, a moiety shall go over to the remainder. A devise to the issue of A, and, for want of such issue, to B; A has a son and a daughter: they shall take as persons described, but shall take only an estate for their lives. Cook v. Cook, 2 Vern. 545. WILL, C. OF, WHO TAKE.

Devise thus: "All the rest of my estate I give to be equally divided between my three daughters, F, G, and A, and all my grandchildren and great-grandchildren, or so many of them as shall be living within two years next after my decease." This was held to extend only to those then born, and not to any to be born within two years after testator's death. Trelawney v. Molesworth, Colles' P. C. 163. WILL, C. OF, WHO TAKE.

A legacy of 500*l.* is given to the eldest son of A, to be begotten, to place him out apprentice: A has a son born after the testator's death, who brings a bill for the legacy; and it is decreed to be paid him forthwith, though not born in the testator's lifetime, and though the 500*l.* was given for a particular purpose. Nevill v. Nevill, 2 Vern. 431. Id.

A devised a term for years to his daughter and her children, (she having then three children), "and also to such other children as she should have, and the children of those children." She had other children afterwards. Per cur., the woman and her three children took jointly each a fourth part, and that the after-born children took nothing. Alcock v. Ellen, 2 Freem. 186. Vide Minshull v. Minshull, 1 Atk. 413. Id.

A conveys a term for years, in trust to raise 1500*l.* for such child or children as should be living at his death. A posthumous child held a child living at his death, to take within the meaning of that trust, which was not to be construed so strictly as a limitation at law. Hale v. Hale, Proc. Chan. 50.

1. Effect of, as to Assets, Dower, Priority, &c.

Power of appointment by will executed; appointee is a trustee for creditors of testator at time of his death; but not at time of making will. Jenney v. Andrews, 6 Mad. 264. DEBT. & CRED.; ASSETS.

Certain lands were conveyed to A B, his heirs, &c. to such uses as C D should by deed appoint, and in default of, and until appointment, to the use of C D in fee. C D afterwards, in execution of power, appoints lands in favour of E F in fee. C D was married at time of making the appointment. Qu. is wife dowerable? Ran v. Pung, 5 Mad. 310. Held she is not. S. C. 5 Barn. & Ald. 561. DOWER, OF WHAT.

Execution of a power is a limitation of a use, which must arise, if at all, at the time of execution, and is as if expressed in the original settlement. Wright v. Wakeford, 17 Ves. 457.

An annuity granted by a feme covert, having a power to dispose of her separate estates to A, a young lady, upon her marriage, for whom she promised to provide, is a specific lien on the grantor's estate. Power v. Bailey, 1 Ball & B. 49. FEME COVERT, SEPARATE ESTATES; SPEC. LIEN.

A power when executed takes place according to the original deed creating it. Mosley v. Mosley, 5 Ves. 249. PRIORITY OF SERV.

Distinction between a power and absolute property. A power, unless executed, not assets for debts. Holmes v. Coghill, 12 Ves. 206. ASSETS.

Power by marriage settlement to husband to charge, is not confined to the immediately preceding limitations of the reversion to him, but held to overreach all the prior limitations. Construction of a charge by will, if the reversion should never fall to testator, viz. if it should not come to him personally in his life, the charge is therefore ineffectual, though the reversion came to his heir. Stackhouse v. Barnston, 10 Ves. 453. CHARGE.

Execution of power by will is revoked by subsequent conveyance upon a sale by the tenant for life having obtained the legal estate, and that not being an execution within the intent of the power, the estate passed under a general residuary devise against the purchaser. Reid v. Shergold, 10 Ves. 370. POWER; REVOCATION.

Where father has power to appoint among children, and one died in his lifetime. Held, that share which lapsed by death should go among all, as in default of appointment, notwithstanding a direction that each receiving a share should release the fund; and there is no presumption of satisfaction or purchase from another provision, which was expressly made in satisfaction of different interest. Burges v. Mawbey, 10 Ves. 319. SATISFACTION OF PORTION; LAPSE.

The execution of power of appointment operates by way of limitation of a use, under and by the effect of the instrument, reserving the power; the fee vesting in the mean time. Maundrell v. Maundrell, 10 Ves. 255.

The execution of a power of appointment operates as a limitation of a use, attaching upon the seisin in the feoffees, &c. under the old instrument. Id. 10 Ves. 264.

An appointment is made to all and every the daughter and daughters of R, and the heirs of their body and bodies, and in default of such issue to A. There were only two daughters, and one of them died under twenty-one, sans issue. Held, that the surviving daughter was entitled, though there were no cross remainders between them. Wright v. Ld. Cadogan, 1 Bro. P. C. 486.

A general power of appointment over an estate, in lieu of a present interest in it, having been executed voluntarily, though for a daughter, was held to be assets in favour of creditors. Townshend v. Windham, 2 Ves. 1. ASSETS; DEBT. & CRED.

Devise of 30,000*l.* to testator's wife for life, and afterwards to be distributed among his children, as she by deed, will, or instrument in nature of a will, should appoint. She having married again, appoints by will (inter alia) unto two of the children, who died in her lifetime. Held, that their representatives were not entitled, and that the shares so appointed to them lapsed and fell into the residue. Dk. Marlborough v. Godolphin, 2 Ves. 61. LEGACY LAPSED.

Appointee under a power must claim also according to nature of the instrument. Id. 77.

Appointee takes under the power, as if inserted therein: but not so as to take by relation from creation of the power, as in assignment on commission of bankruptcy, or in bargain and sale inrolled. Id. ib.

Naked powers construed strictly; powers coupled with interest liberally. Id. ib.

Appointment by will under a power, void by the death of the appointee in the life of testatrix; and if a power is preferred to be executed by a will, such instrument must have all the qualities of a will. Oke v. Heath, 1 Ves. 139.

Where there is general power given or reserved to a person for such uses, &c. as he shall appoint, this makes it his absolute estate, and it will be subject to his debts. Troughton v. Troughton, 3 Atk. 656. 1 Ves. 86. ASSETS.

A had a power to charge a sum of money on land, by deed or will, and executed it by a voluntary deed. The court, in favour of the creditors of A, will consider it as personal assets, and lay hold of it for their benefit. Pack v. Bathurst, 3 Atk. 269. ASSETS; DEEDS VOLUNTARY.

A wife having power to appoint 4000*l.* to any of her kin, and for want of appointment to go according to the statute, appoints it by will to her nephew, "upon condition" that he paid his mother an annuity of 100*l.*; she then bequeathed to her niece, S, all the real and residue of what she had power to dispose of. The nephew dying in her lifetime, the appointment as to him was void; but not so as to the annuitant, and the remainder was held to pass by the above residuary bequest. Oke v. Henth, 1 Ves. 135.

G having a power to charge his estate with 2000*l.*, by his will gave 500*l.* a piece to his two sisters, and died in debt to the plaintiffs; considered as the personal estate of G, and subject to his debts. Bainton v. Ward, 2 Atk. 172. ASSETS.

If a power to dispose by appointment of a reversion in fee be not made use of, yet it shall be assets. Id.

Nothing is more certain in law, than that when any act is done under a power, that act is deemed to be done by the grantor of the power, and to have its validity from him, and not from the person who executes it. Middleton v. Crofts, 2 Atk. 661.

A, by marriage settlement, having a power to charge the estate with any sum not exceeding 3000*l.*, for such purposes as he thought fit, by deed appoints the 3000*l.* as a collateral security for quiet enjoyment of an estate he had sold, and if no incumbrance did appear, the appointment to be void, and by will devises the 3000*l.* to his daughter; and upon a bill by the creditors of A, the 3000*l.* was decreed to be applied to the payment of his debts. Tassells v. Cornwallis, 2 Vern. 465. PRE. CH. 432. S. C. ADMON. OF ASSETS.

Where a man has a power to dispose of money by his will, this is assets and liable to his debts. Thompson v. Towne, 2 Vern. 319. PRE. CH. 52. S. C. ASSETS.

2. What amounts to an Execution.

A, having power to appoint by will certain funds in such manner as should think fit, he by his will so executed and attested as required by the power, gives and bequeaths to his relations sums of money, amounting in the whole to precisely the sum of which he had the power to dispose, but without any reference or allusion in his will to the power, or any words indicative of his intention to execute it: Held that the will was a good execution of the power. Quære, if the court, in deciding whether a will is a good execution of a power, can look at the state of the testator's property at the time of making his will, as a guide to his intention? Lownds v. Lownds, 1 Y. & J. 445. WILL, C. OF.

Where husband having in articles power to appoint wife's real estate, and by other articles, to appoint his own real estate, by will, reciting power over his own estates in exercise of that power and all other powers, appointed his own real estates and all other real estates over which he had power in trust, and making no mention in any part of will of wife's estates or of his power over them, and expressing that all persons taking under his will should be bound by the doctrine of election: Held, that wife's estate was included in the appointment by will. Trollope v. Linton, 1 S. & S. 477. WILL, C. OF.

Power for husband to appoint estates to children of marriage, for such estates, and in such parts, and in such manner and form as he should by deed or will appoint, is exercised by appointment to trustees for term of 500 years, upon trusts to raise sums by way of portions for children, and words, "manner and form," enable husband to give them equitable estate. Id. ib.

A testator having a power of appointment over certain freehold and copyhold estates, and being seised of other freehold estates, devises all his freehold and copyhold estates, without reference to the power: Held an execution of the power as to the copyhold estates, but not as to the freehold estates, which were subject to the power. Lewis v. Lewellyn, 1 Turn. & R. 104.

A, being possessed of two freehold houses, and having power of appointment over lands, and money to be laid out in land, by her will devises "all and every her freehold messuages, lands, tenements, and hereditaments" for sale: Held not an execution of the power. Hoste v. Blackman, 6 Mad. 190.

A testator having a general power over a sum in the funds, limited in default of appointment to his children, and having no other funded property, bequeaths all his personal estate, "consisting of money invested in any of the public funds, household furniture, &c." This is not an execution of the power. The circumstance of his having no other funded property is not to be adverted to, on the question, whether he was or was not executing the power. Webb v. Honnor, 1 Jac. & W. 352.

To execute a power over personal estate, it is not necessary to refer to it, but there must be very clear internal evidence of the intention. Id. 357.

The will (attested by three witnesses) of a person having a power to dispose of a fund consisting partly of real estates, and partly of household furniture, linen, and plate, containing a gift of "all my estates and effects of whatsoever denomination," and of "my household furniture, with linen and plate," is not an execution of the power. Jones v. Curry, 1 Swan. 66. WILL, C. OF.

M gives to the defendant all her freehold and copyhold estates, upon trust to permit S to receive the rents, &c. during her life, and after her death to sell, and out of the produce to pay 100*l.* to such person as she should by will appoint. S by will, without reference to the power, gives 100*l.* and the whole of her household furniture to the plaintiff. It was charged by the bill, and not denied, that the testatrix had no personal property at the time of her death, besides some household furniture to a very small amount in value; but no evidence was gone into, and an inquiry was asked as to the state of the property at the time of making the will, with the view of ascertaining that the testatrix must have intended the gift of the 100*l.* as in execution of her power. But the inquiry was refused and the bill dismissed. Jones v. Tucker, 2 Mer. 533. PR. INQUIRY AS TO THE TESTATOR'S PERSONAL ESTATE; WILL, C. OF.

No inquiry as to the quantum of personal property, to determine whether a gift is, or is not, in execution of a power. Secus, as to an inquiry whether there be anything but copyhold to answer a devise of land; the question there being, whether there was anything for the will to operate upon at the time when it was made; whereas a will of personalty speaks at the death. Id. ib.

Copyhold conveyed in trust to sell the money to be deemed part of his personal estate, and in trust for such uses as he should by deed or will appoint, and in default for his right heir. A will executed on the same day but not referring to the deed, directing a sale of particular property, and disposing of personal estate in general terms, held not applicable to the estate conveyed by the deed which went to the heir, no use being by the subsequent instrument declared if the estate was converted. Lowes v. Hackward, 18 Ves. 168. WILL, C. OF.

A rent-charge till a debt paid, granted by a tenant for life having a power to raise by sale or mortgage a certain sum for payment of his debts, a good execution of the power, though referrible to his interest as well as to his power. Parol evidence to shew that the deed was not intended to be in execution of the power inadmissible as going to contradict it. Blake v. Marrell, 2 Ball. & B. 35. affd. 4 Dow, P. Rep. 248. EVIDENCE, PAROL.

The recital of a power not necessary to the due execution of it. Id. 44.

On the execution of a power it is not requisite to refer to a power, it is sufficient if reference be had to the subject of it. Dillon v. Dillon, 1 Ball & B. 92.

Power of appointment not executed by general words in a will, "all my personal estate, &c. and all my estate and interest therein." Bradley v. Westcott, 13 Ves. 445.

Power of appointment not executed by appointing an executor. Id. 452.

Power may be executed by will applying to the subject without an express reference to the power. Id. ib.

By fine and deed declaring the uses, the estate of a feme covert is conveyed to a trustee, to discharge certain specified debts, and "other sums borrowed or to be borrowed by the husband and wife for the like or other purposes," and subject thereto, "to such uses as the wife should appoint by deed under hand and seal." A joint bond and warrant to confess judgment executed by husband and wife, was a good execution of the particular power given to both, or semble, of the general power given to the wife. Dillon v. Grace, Hearn v. Cavanagh, 2 Scho. & L. 456.

A power to husband alone to appoint a sum of 4000*l.* which in default of appointment was limited in a particular way, was not well executed by an appointment by husband and wife of 6000*l.* given in lieu of the 4000*l.* by a subsequent deed, and which 6000*l.* was to go differently in default of appointment. Hamilton v. Royse, 2 Scho. & L. 315. HUSB. & WIFE.

It is not necessary to recite an intention to execute a power, if the act can be done only by that authority, but where the act purports to pass the interest, it shall be considered so intended and not to exercise an authority. Maundrell v. Maundrell, 10 Ves. 257.

Though to effect the execution of a power by will a direct reference to the power is not necessary, the intention must distinctly point to the subject of it, as if something is included which the testator had not otherwise than under the power; and part of the will, unless applied to it, would be wholly inoperative. Beninet v. Barrow, 8 Ves. 609. WILL. C. OF.

Power not executed by general bequest of "my estate and effects," which will pass only what the testator has an interest in, not what he has an authority over. Rouch v. Haynes, 8 Ves. 588. WILL. C. OF.

Power executed by will but afterwards discharged and a new power created. A subsequent codicil will not, by the mere effect of republishing the will, be an execution of the power. Holmes v. Coghall, 7 Ves. 499.

Power of appointment not executed by will, having no reference to the power or the subject of it, and the court will not inquire into the circumstances of the property. Namock v. Horton, 7 Ves. 391.

Covenant to settle an estate in strict settlement, subject to a power to the father, tenant for life, in case there should be any younger child or children, to charge such sum or sums for such younger child or children, payable in such proportions, and at such times as he should appoint. The power was held well executed by a will directing a sale and appointing the money. Long v. Long, 5 Ves. 445.

A, by a voluntary deed, assigned all the personal estate which he was then or might at any time afterwards be possessed of or entitled to, upon trust to pay the interest, &c. to himself for life, and after his decease to such persons as he should appoint by will for their lives, and subject thereto, to pay the principal to his next of kin, who should be living at his decease, his, her, or their executors, &c. Soon afterwards the testator by his will gave some legacies, and gave the residue to the persons by name who were his next of kin at the execution of the deed, and at his death, upon whose bill claiming under the deed, an account of the trust estate received by the trustees, and of the personal estate, &c. and to set aside the legacies, it was held that the power was not executed by the will; but one of the plaintiffs being clearly affected with notice and acquiescence in the plan of giving the legacies, instead of executing the power, the cause was ordered to stand over with liberty to file a bill to establish the legacies, the court inclining, in case the other plaintiff could be affected with notice, at all events to apply the interest of the personal estate during the lives of the legatees in payment of the legacies; they were afterwards paid under a compromise. Griffin v. Nanson, 4 Ves. 343. FRAUD; NOTICE.

Power attempted to be executed by invalid instruments, held not executed by the general words of a will containing no reference to it. Macleoth v. Bacon, 5 Ves. 159. WILL. C. OF.

Three powers by settlement, first to husband and wife jointly, to raise and appoint 3000*l.*; secondly, to husband alone to raise and appoint such sum as would, with the sum before raised make 5000*l.* the wife joining in raising 3000*l.* under the joint power for the husband, he covenanted not to charge by the power reserved to him alone, or any other power whatsoever during her life, and so long as said 3000*l.* should remain unpaid with her consent. After her death he, by deed-poll, did charge with 2000*l.* more to be paid to his executors for debts, &c. and otherwise in performance of his will, or as he should appoint by it, and died leaving his second wife executrix, without taking notice by his will of the charge, but the deed-poll was found uncanceled among his papers; the 2000*l.* well charged, and went to the executrix without a special appointment. El. Uxbridge v. Bayly, 1 Ves. J. 499. 4 Bro. C.C. 13.

Devise properly attested of land, upon several trusts, remainder to such trusts as testator should by deed appoint, whether land would pass by the deed of appointment? Sent to law upon a case stating the devise to be to uses. Hubergham v. l'incert, 1 Ves. J. 410. WILL. C. OF.

The testator having a power over 3000*l.* originally the property of his wife, gave several legacies, and then after the death of his wife the residue to the defendant, his estate was not sufficient to pay the legacies, yet held that the will was not an execution of the power, the same not being referred to, nor any thing by which an intention appeared in testator to execute it. Evidence to shew the testator's own estate was insufficient for the purposes of his will without the 3000*l.* rejected. Andrews v. Emmet, 2 Bro. C.C. 297. PR. EVID.

Power to charge a particular sum reserved by owner of the inheritance, not executed in his lifetime, held to be executed in substance by his will, charging debts and legacies on all his real and personal estate, though it did not refer to the power. Maddison v. Andrew, 1 Ves. 56.

Power reserved by the owner of an estate to be construed liberally, and no occasion to refer to the power if it is done in substance. Id. 61.

A man may execute a power without reciting it; but he should mention the estate he disposes of. Exp. Caswall, 1 Atk. 559. Molton v. Hutchinson, id. 558. Probert v. Morgan, id. 441.

C, by will, gave the produce of 1000*l.* stock to F for life, with a power to dispose of 400*l.* thereof by writing, signed in the presence of three witnesses; and if F made no appointment, then the 400*l.* to go to a charity; F by will gave several legacies, and then the residue among his nearest relations: Held, no execution of the power, and that the 400*l.* would not pass by the bequest of the residue, neither could parol evidence be admitted of the intent: Decreed, the 400*l.* to go according to the will of C, the first testator. Molton v. Hutchinson, 1 Atk. 558. Andrews v. Emmet, 2 Bro. C.C. 297.

If a person, in the execution of a power, sufficiently describes the estate he had a power to charge, the estate is bound, though there is no reference to the deed out of which the power arises. Probert v. Morgan, 1 Atk. 441.

If one has made himself tenant for life of lands in Dale, with a power by any writing, &c. to revoke these uses and limit new ones, and he afterwards by will devises all his lands in Dale, &c. to S, having no other lands in Dale, excepting these, they shall pass if the will be circumstanced, as the power requires, though no mention be made of the power. Deg v. Deg, 2 P. W. 415.

3. Compliance with Conditions.

Where power was to be executed by will, signed and published in the presence of, and attested by three witnesses: Held, that will concluding with declaration, "this is my last will and testament," and expressed to be signed by testatrix in the presence of three witnesses, was not a good appointment, because publication not attested. Stanhope v. Ker, 2 S. & S. 37. WILL, ATTESTATION OF.

By a marriage settlement, containing the usual limitations, the husband, having a life estate in reversion, expectant upon the death of his father, was empowered when in possession under the limitations of the settlement, to revoke, &c. as to so much and such part of the premises conveyed, "as shall be then in possession of any one or more tenants, by virtue of any one or more lease or leases, whereon a rent or rents, not exceeding 300*l.* by the year in the whole, shall be reserved, &c. so as there shall not, at the time of such revocation, be less than twenty years, or three lives, unexpired of such lease or leases." The clause of the settlement conferring the power concluded, with a declaration, that it was the true intent and meaning of the parties, that the husband should, at any time during his life, after he should come into, and be in the actual possession of the premises (settled), have absolute power and dominion over so much thereof as should be of the clear yearly value of 300*l.* sterling, and be at full liberty to dispose of the same in such manner, and to such uses and purposes, as he should think proper. The husband (donee of the power), after the death of his father, when he was in possession under the trusts of the settlement, by a deed of revocation, purporting to be an execution of the power, and reciting that certain lands therein specified then produced a clear yearly rent of 300*l.* or thereabouts, revoked the uses of the settlement as to those lands, and appointed the same in trust for him (the donee), his heirs, and assigns. Afterwards the donee died indebted to an amount exceeding the value of the lands so appointed, and having no other estate or effects, by his will duly attested, and reciting his title and power to dispose of the lands specified in the deed of revocation and appointment, he devised to trustees his right and interest therein, upon trust, to sell the same, and out of the purchase money to pay his debts, &c. The lands revoked, appointed, and devised, except a very small part, to the value of 8*l.* a year, were not (as recited in the deed of revocation) under lease at the time of the appointment by that deed, nor at the date of the will; but in a suit instituted on behalf of creditors and legatees, to carry the trusts of the will into execution, it was found and reported by the officer of the court, that the lands so appointed and devised were of the value of 300*l.* a year. By the decree in that suit the will was established, and the revocation and appointment held valid; and, upon appeal, to the house of lords against the decree, it was held that the power was rightly applied to the subject, and that the appointment was well executed.

Lidwell v. Holland, 2 Bligh, 99. SETTLEMENT, MARRIAGE.

Quere, Whether a power to revoke uses "from time to time during his natural life," such revocations and re-appointment "to be sealed, signed and delivered, in the presence of, and attested by two or more credible witnesses" can be executed by will, Edwards v. Edwards, 3 Mad. 197.

Power to trustees to advance to A 1,000*l.*, with consent of B, under her hand, signed by two witnesses. Trustees advance the sum without consent. Subsequent acquiescence by such deed not sufficient, and trustees ordered to refund. Bateman v. Davis, 3 Mad. 98. ACQUIESCENCE; TRUSTEES, LIABILITY.

Power to A to dispose of estate by will duly executed and attested, and in default of appointment, to A's executors or administrators to their own benefit; will not signed, sealed or attested; held, no execution of power; and no executor being named in such will, A's administratrix entitled beneficially. Sanders v. Franks, 2 Mad. 147.

Quere, Whether power given to be executed by will, "signed and published in presence of, and attested by two or more credible witnesses;" is executed by will, signed by testatrix, and attested generally: "witness A B, and C D"? (held not, by court of C. P. 2 Mad. 156.) Moodie v. Reid, 1 Mad. 516.

Legacy in trust to be laid out in stock, the dividends as they came due to A for life; and after her decease, to pay the principal according to her appointment by will or otherwise, with power to her to purchase with it an annuity with the approbation of the trustees, but not to sell it: A has an absolute power of disposition, and her will was held a sufficient indication of her intention to take the whole, making a formal appointment or writing unnecessary. Irwin v. Farrar, 19 Ves. 86. WILL, C. OF, WHAT INTEREST.

Under a power of sale, with a consent of parties testified by any writing, &c. under their and his hands, &c. attested by two or more witnesses; the attestation going only to sealing and delivery; held, not sufficient, nor a subsequent attestation that they also signed, but a case was directed. Wright v. Wakeford, 17 Ves. 454.

Power to be executed by a deed, signed and sealed in the presence of witnesses, and the deed expressed to be so executed, though the attestation appeared to be only to the sealing and delivery, signature in the presence of the witnesses presumed. Id. 458.

An express estate for life, with a power to dispose by will, does not give an absolute interest so as to preclude the necessity of executing the power. Reid v. Shergold, 10 Ves. 370. WILL, C. OF; POWER, EXECUTION OF; ESTATE FOR LIFE.

Power of appointment by deed, to be signed and sealed in the presence of witnesses; the attestation applying only to sealing and delivery, though the deed purported to be signed sealed and executed; it was presumed that the signature was in the presence of the witnesses. McQueen v. Farquhar, 11 Ves. 467.

Under a power to alter uses, the new use will not arise except in the very circumstances prescribed by the contract. Id. 475.

Power of appointment in such shares and proportions as husband and wife should by any deed in writing direct, not well executed by appointment by the will of the husband, with a written indorsement thereon, made by the wife after his death, expressing her approbation; nor would it have been better if the wife had ratified it at the time of the execution, it being revocable by the husband during his life. Bushell v. Bushell, 1 Scho. & L. 96.

Power to revoke uses substituting other estates; quere, whether a substitution of equitable for legal estates, though a bad execution at law, is sufficient in equity, as where it is done by appointing under a power, and declaring uses upon the appointment which are consequently mere trusts. Cox v. Chamberlain, 4 Ves. 632.

Money invested in trust for a married woman to pay her interest for life to her separate use, and after her decease to such person, and subject to such powers, &c. as she should by any instrument in writing from time to time, or by will appoint (during her present coverture;) she cannot dispose of the principal at once by deed, but a revocable act only. Sackett v. Wray, 4 Bro. C. C. 483. SETTLEMENT, C. OF.

Where a seal is required by the power, an appointment among children without seal is bad; as to supplying the want of due execution of such a power for favoured objects, quære? M'Adam v. Logan, 3 Bro. C. C. 310.

Will made under a power, but not duly attested to pass real estate, a good execution of the power quoad the personalty. Duff v. Dalzell, 1 Bro. C. C. 147.

Power contained in a will, for the devisees for life, when in possession, to cut down timber, as four trustees, or the survivors or survivor of them should assign, allow of, or direct; all the four trustees being dead, held, that the court would execute the trust by referring it to a master, to see what timber was fit to be cut down from time to time. Hewett v. Hewett, 2 Eden, 332. S. C. Ambl. 508. WILL, CONSTRUCTION OF; PR. REFERENCE TO MASTER.

An affirmative power must be strictly pursued, but a negative one by way of restriction need not. Churchman v. Harvey, Ambl. 340.

Power for tenant for life to appoint to his wife for life as a jointure, and the appointment is for ninety-nine years if she should so long live, is not a good execution of power at law. Id. ib.

Where a wife has a power to dispose of her separate estate, her disposition of it must be by acts strictly pursuing the power. Ross v. Ever, 3 Atk. 601. Burnett v. Mann, 1 Ves. 157. HUSB. & WIFE, SEPARATE ESTATE.

Power over land by deed or will "duly" executed requires three witnesses; but where will is to operate by way of appointment, taking no effect from the statute, such defect may be cured in equity. Wilkes v. Holmes, 9 Mod. 485.

Father tenant for life and two sons, article to charge with a sum for younger children after father's death, as he by will duly executed should direct; he directs by will with two witnesses only; good execution of the power, nothing passing from the father; otherwise if by owner of the estate. Jones v. Clunghs, 2 Vcs. 365. Sed quære, see Belt's Supplement, 360.

Will to pass lands by virtue of a power, must be executed according to the statute of frauds. Dk. of Marlborough v. Ld. Godolphin, 2 Ves. 76.

Where a testator orders his money to be laid out in land in a particular county, and his trustees cannot purchase in that county, the court, after a convenient time, will deviate from the strict terms of the trust. So, where trustees cannot purchase a freehold without great disadvantage, unless they take a college-holding with it, the court will dispense with the strict directions of the will. Maynwaring v. Maynwaring, 3 Atk. 414. PERF. CY PRES.

A power of revocation is reserved to A by any writing under hand and seal, and of appointing new uses, by the same or any other deed: A, by his will, without taking any notice of power, devises to B: held, a good execution. Roscommon v. Foulke, 6 Bro. P. C. 158.

By settlement before marriage 3000*l.* stock belonging to the wife, was vested in trustees, who were to transfer one moiety to such person, &c. and for such uses, &c. as she should by her last will in writing, or other writing under hand and seal, to be attested by two or more credible witnesses, appoint, &c. and for want of such appointment, &c. then in trust to transfer all such stocks to her executors or administrators. After death a paper was found in her closet of her hand-writing, by which she gave different sums to different persons, but not signed or sealed by her, nor attested by witnesses. Lord H. held, that the words under her hand and seal, to be attested by two or more credible witnesses, are referrible to the will, as well as to the other writing; and for want of the ceremony of sealing and attestation by witnesses, this paper was not a good execution of the power. Ross v. Ever, 3 Atk. 156. Held, that a stamp was equal to a seal in the execution of a power which requires sealing. Sprange v. Bernard, 2 Bro. C. C. 585.

Baron and feme seised in fee, in right of the feme by deed and fine, settled the premises to the use of the baron and feme for their lives, remainder to the first, &c. son in tail, remainder to daughters in tail, remainder to the husband and wife and their heirs, with power to the baron, during the joint lives of him and his wife, by his last will or any writing purporting to be his last will under hand and seal attested by three witnesses, if baron dies before his wife, to charge the premises with 2000*l.*; the like power (mutatis mutandis) to his wife if she die first, to charge the premises with the like sum; husband by will under his hand attested by three witnesses, but not sealed, charges the premises with 2000*l.* held void, being without a seal. Taylor v. Johnson, 2 P. W. 506. See note, id. 511.

Power to appoint an use of land by deed or will; a will attested by two witnesses not a good appointment, because in such case "by a will" must be intended, such a will as is proper to dispose of land; so though the words are, "or other writing in nature of a will." Longford v. Eyre, 1 P. W. 742.

A, having a power to dispose of land with consent of trustees, devises the lands by her will; this being without the consent of the trustees, is void. Hutton v. Simpson, 2 Vern. 723. Pre Ch. 439. Gilb. Eq. Rep. 115, 120.

A devises freehold lands for a charity, but the will was not executed in the presence of three witnesses; adjudged, the will being void as a will, it could not operate as an appointment within the statute of 43 Eliz. Att. Gen. v. Burnes, 2 Vern. 597. Pro. Ch. 270. S. C. Gilb. Eq. Rep. 5.

But such a will may operate as an appointment as to copyhold lands, where there is a surrender to the use of the will, they passing by the surrender and not by the will. Id. ib.

A devises by will to which there are no witnesses, and afterwards makes a codicil, executed in the presence of three witnesses; the will is void as to the land, and the codicil will not support it. Id. ib.

4. By Married Women.

Husband and wife having a joint power to appoint by formal deed over wife's estate, agree in writing to sell it. Specific performance refused, as the agreement was invalid against a married woman. Martin v. Mitchell, 2 J. & W. 425. AGREEMENT; SPEC. PERF.

Injunction to restrain husband from preventing his wife's solicitor and friends from having access to her, she being confined by dangerous illness in his house, to enable her to execute a deed of appointment under a power in her marriage settlement, refused, it not being proved that she had given instructions for such a deed. Whether under any circumstances, such an injunction would be granted, Quære? Middleton v. Middleton, 1 J. & W. 94. INJUNCTION.

A trust term created by a marriage settlement, to raise a sum of money on the decease of the survivor of the husband and wife, in case there should be no issue of the marriage living at her death, and to be paid as the wife, at any time or times during her coverture, and notwithstanding the same, by any deed or writing, &c., should appoint or devise. The power cannot be exercised during widowhood, or a second marriage. Horseman v. Abbey, 1 Jac. & W. 321. SETTLEMENT, C. OF.

Under a bequest of stock, in trust to permit a woman to receive the dividends for life for her sole and separate use, &c., and to pay the same into her own proper hands, and that her receipt and receipts should from time to time be sufficient discharges; a sale by her of part of the dividends established. A bond fide sale of dividends of stock is not within the annuity act. Browne v. Like, 14 Ves. 302. ANNUITY ACT.

A, entitled to the interest of money for life, with power of appointment as to the principal, receives for her support a part of the principal, and appoints to her husband; the husband cannot claim his part of the principal. Randal v. Hearle, 2 Anst. 363.

Money vested in trustees, in trust for husband and wife successively for life, and remainder to the children, and in default thereof to such person as the wife should appoint; a deed of the wife, conveying this contingent interest, was established. Guise, Bt. v. Small, 1 Anst. 277. CONVEYANCE.

A woman being about to marry, enters into an agreement with the future husband, (without seal or stamp,) by which her property is settled upon the survivor for life, with power to the wife to dispose by will made after the marriage; she then immediately makes a will, by which she gives her property to the intended husband; and afterwards (on the same day,) she marries, the articles resting in agreement give the husband an equitable estate for life, but the will is revoked (not being protected by the power) by the subsequent marriage. Hodsdon v. Lloyd, 2 Bro. C. C. 534. WILL, WHO MAY MAKE.

A sum of money in the public funds being given by will to trustees for the separate use of a feme covert, and to be subject to her appointment after her death; the wife made an appointment of this money to her husband; and in bill filed by husband and wife against the trustees to transfer this fund, the court on examination of the wife, decreed the same accordingly. Frederick v. Hartwell, 1 Cox, 193.

A woman entitled to the trust of a reversion in fee of lands, reserves to herself, by articles previous to her marriage, a power of disposing of all her estate to such uses as she shall think proper. She afterwards makes an appointment in favour of her husband and children. This appointment was held good, although no conveyance of the reversion was ever executed. Wright v. Ld. Cadogan, 1 Bro. P. C. 486.

A woman by marriage articles reserves a power of disposing of her present or any future estate, real or personal, by deed or will. A devise is a good execution of her power, the legal estate being in trustees. Devise to first and other sons, and in default to daughters as tenants in common, and in default of such issue over, raises cross remainders between the daughters. Wright v. Englefield, Amb. 468. S. C. 2 Eden, 239. WILL, C. OF.

Feme covert having power to convey her estate after her death, conveys it by lease and release, to take effect after her death; she afterwards joins with her husband in levying a fine to different uses. The lease and release held to have no effect, and the fine operated. Bramhall v. Hall, Amb. 467. S. C. 2 Eden, 220. not S. P. FINE & RECOVERY; LEASE & RELEASE.

Appointment pursuant to a power good, though executed by will of a feme covert. Burnet v. Mann, 1 Ves. 156. FEME COVERT.

Bill by husband and wife, who had a power of appointment for her separate use, submitting that the subject of it should be applied in payment of his debts, by mortgage and otherwise, for which a decree passes, tantamount to an actual appointment. The heir, therefore, although in being at the time, and not made a party to the original suit, was not permitted to unravel the accounts taken under that decree, but only to surcharge and falsify. Allen v. Pupworth, 1 Ves. 163. See Observation on this case, 4 Ves. 138. n.; and Belt. Supp. 88. HEIR AT LAW; ACCOUNT, OPENING.

M married E's daughter; after some years the daughter eloped, and then E left by will 6000*l.* in trust, to dispose of the principal and interest as his daughter should by deed or will appoint. M afterwards met and took possession of his wife, when she agreed, that if M would permit her to live separate, she would pay him 1000*l.* and settle 200*l.* per annum on him for life, and articles were accordingly executed; on a bill to set aside the articles, and that M should elect to take the 200*l.* per annum; decreed, that the articles were a good execution of the power created by the will of E, and that M was not bound to elect. Moore v. Freeman, Bunb. 205. 3 Bro. P. C. 378.

If a wife has a power to dispose of money in the life of her husband, she may dispose of it by a writing in nature of a will, though not so provided. Swayer v. Bleisoe, 2 Vern. 329. S. C. 11. 244.

Feme covert may, in life of husband, dispose of money saved out of her separate maintenance. Id. 244.

There is a diversity between a naked power, and a power which flows from an interest, for where a bare power is given to a feme by will to sell lands, though she afterwards marries, she may sell the lands, and may sell to her husband; but where a feme, upon a settlement of her own estate, reserves a power which flows from an interest, that power ought to be executed by the feme whilst sole, and yet it is said such power ought to be taken liberally, though formerly they were taken strictly. Marq. of Antrim v. Dk. of Bucks, 1 Ch. Ca. 17. S. C. 3 Salk. 276. 2 Freem. 163.

Where a reversioner upon an estate for life made a settlement on herself for life, with power for her, being sole, to make leases for three lives in possession, and she and her husband in the lifetime of the tenant for life made a lease for twenty-one years, habendum from the date; it was held not pursuant to her power, for by the marriage, she put herself under the controul of her husband. Id. 1 Ch. C. 17. In this case Ld. K. took a diversity between a naked power and a power which flows from an interest.

5. Exclusive and Illusory Appointment.

Voluntary settlement of personal property, in trust for such one or more of his children, as the settlor shall appoint. Appointment to one child, exclusively, upon a secret understanding that that child shall reassign a part of the fund to, or in favour of a stranger. This appointment is a fraud upon the settlement, and void, not only to the extent of the sum assigned back, but in totum. Bill by purchaser for valuable consideration, without notice, under this appointment, dismissed as against the person entitled under the settlement in default of appointment, such person having also the legal estate in the fund which was the subject of the appointment. Daubeny v. Cockburn, 1 Mer. 626. VERN. & PUNCH.

Appointment of 200*l.* stock, though a very unequal proportion of the fund, held not illusory. Butcher and Gooday v. Butcher, 1 V. & B. 79.

The question whether an appointment is or is not illusory, must be determined upon the circumstances of each case, according to a sound discretion; the power, however large the terms, being in some degree coupled with a trust; but an equal distribution is not required, nor any reason for the inequality, unless a share is clearly unsubstantial. Id. 8.

Equitable jurisdiction upon illusory appointment, discretionary according to the circumstances. Bar v. Whitbread, 16 Ves. 15.

Execution of a power of appointment among children and grandchildren, by giving 100*l.* to one, 2400*l.* the residue of the fund to the only other object, established under the circumstances, the former being at time of appointment an uncertificated bankrupt, and other interests being given to him and his family by the instrument creating and executing the power. Id. ib.

Out of a fund of 2500*l.* appointment of 33*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* to two children, each, and the 33*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* among the children of another child, (the power extending to their issue,) and 2400*l.* equally to two other children, the only other objects, established. Mocatta v. Lou-sada, 12 Ves. 123.

Appointment of 55,000*l.* to one child, 1100*l.* to another, and 500*l.* among the others, seven in number: Held not illusory. Duke v. Sylvester, 12 Ves. 126.

Appointment of 100*l.* S. S. annuities to one child, and 2400*l.* the residue, to another, those being the only objects of the power: Held not illusory. Baz v. Whitbread, 10 Ves. 31.

Appointment of 200*l.* out of property of 20,000*l.* Held not illusory, though very unequal. Butcher v. Butcher, 9 Ves. 382.

A having a power of appointment of 2000*l.* among younger children, having two sons and a daughter, his eldest son being an idiot, and the second son having obtained a part of the surplus profits of the estate during the idiot's life, A appoints 1999*l.* to the daughter and 20*s.* only to the second son. This appointment illusory; perhaps it might have been good, if the second son had had a certain provision alias under the time of the execution of the power. Lysaght v. Royse, 2 Scho. & L. 151.

Settlement upon such child or children as father should appoint: appointment excluding one, established. Kemworthy v. Bate, 6 Ves. 793.

Under such a power to appoint among several subjects, each must have a share, and by the rule in equity as to illusory appointments, a substantial share, unless a good reason appears, as another provision by the person executing the power, not from any other quarter. Under such a power an appointment of a fund, nearly 1900*l.* among three children the objects, 10*l.* to one, 50*l.* to another, and the remainder to the third, all having other provisions alias under, was set aside as illusory. Evidence that an appointment was improperly obtained, being executed by a will regularly proved, was rejected. Kemp v. Kemp, 5 Ves. 849. EVIDENCE.

Power to appoint to the use of such child or children, &c. an appointment to one or more, good. Id. 857.

Voluntary bond to pay to and among all such child or children of A, in such parts, &c. as the obligor should, by deed or will, appoint, and for want of appointment, and as to what should be unappointed, to and among all such child or children of A as might survive the obligor. Appointment by will of the whole fund to one of six children, established. Wollen v. Tanner, 5 Ves. 218.

An appointment by a father not illusory where he gives other provisions to the object excluded. Long v. Long, 5 Ves. 445. See Spencer v. Spencer, id. 368.

Appointment giving very small shares to some of the objects, set aside as illusory. Spencer v. Spencer, id. 362.

But the rule as to illusory appointments is not to be applied where a sufficient reason appears upon the face of the appointment, perhaps not between parent and child, if clearly proved. Id. 368. See Long v. Long, id. 445.

Trusts in marriage articles to pay certain funds, the property of the wife, to all and every her child and children, in such parts, &c. as she should by will give, &c. and for want of such gift, &c. to all and every her child and children, part and share alike, and for want of such issue, over. By her will she gave ten guineas, part of the fund, to her eldest son, declaring that he was otherwise provided for by the will of his uncle; and the remainder she gave to all her other children, naming them, equally, with survivorship in case of the death of any during minority, and before receipt of his, her, or their shares; and in case of the death of her eldest son before he comes to the possession of his uncle's fortune, she gave her second son only ten guineas. The only provision of the eldest son was a remainder in tail after the life estate of his father, who survived his wife. The court was of opinion first, that children illegitimate, being born after elopement, and no access, clearly could not take; secondly, that a share appointed to a child who died in the life of her mother, lapsed; but the case was determined upon the third point, that under the circumstances the appointment of ten guineas was illusory, and, therefore the whole was void, and the fund was distributed among the surviving children and the representative of the deceased child; the interest vesting on the birth, liable to be divested only by appointment. Fandersee v. Acton, 4 Ves. 771.

Under a power to appoint to and among several persons, each of the objects must have a part, but a court of law will not enter into the amount of the share appointed. Id. 785.

Under a power to appoint among all children, if part is well appointed to some, leaving a share not illusory, which is afterwards appointed so as entirely to exclude one, the last appointment is void. Wilson v. Piggott, 2 Ves. J. 354.

Testator, under a power to appoint among children, appointed to the husband of a daughter for life, and if she survived him, to her for life, and having advanced her in marriage, recited that as a reason for giving her a small share; this is not illusory. Bristow v. Warden, 2 Ves. J. 336.

Gift to A and his issue, to be divided among them as he thinks fit, the issue have an interest in all events, and A has no authority but as to the proportions; if no appointment, equally. Where to be divided among issue, the proportion must not be illusory. Hockley v. Maubey, 1 Ves. J. 150. WILL, C. OF.

Power to appoint in shares, &c. as P should think proper, not exceeding estates tail; he appoints to two of his children, one acre for life, then to fall into the residue of the estate, which he gave to his second son for life, with remainders over. This execution of the power is illusory and bad. Pocklington v. Rayne, 1 Bro. C. C. 450.

Devise of all to wife, that she might give her children such fortunes as she should think proper or they deserve, there being five children, and the eldest being provided for, an appointment of a guinea to him and the rest among the other children, was held a good appointment. Burrell v. Burrell, Amb. 660. WILL, C. OF.

Power to appoint among children, each must have a part, not illusory nor reversionary; but a particular interest, as for life, may be given to one. Such a power will not extend to grandchildren, nor can a discretion be given to another to appoint. But though that would be void, it would not devolve on the court, which is only where the power is well created, but by accident cannot be executed by the party. Alexander v. Alexander, 2 Ves. 460.

Power of appointment by mother may be unequally distributed, but not so as to be illusory, unless there is a great misbehaviour. Maddison v. Andrew, 1 Ves. 59.

A father has a power to appoint a certain sum for the advancement of his younger children; he has several children, and devises the whole sum to one of them, reciting that the rest were otherwise provided for by their grandfather. This is not a good appointment. Menyey v. Walker, Forres. 72.

If a man gives his wife power to divide his estate amongst his three children, she must do it equally. Astry v. Astry, Prec. Chan. 256.

A man gives legacies to his children to be paid at twenty-one or marriage, and if any of them die before twenty-one or marriage, the legacy of such child to be disposed of to one or more of the children then living in such manner as his wife, whom he made executrix, should think fit. One of the children died under age and unmarried; the mother appoints the whole legacy of such child to one of the other children: a good appointment. Thomas v. Thomas, 2 Vern. 513.

Where an executrix has a general power to distribute a sum of money amongst children at discretion, an unreasonable or indiscreet disposition may be controlled by a court of equity. Id. ib.

A directs his lands shall descend to his three daughters in such shares and proportions as his wife, by deed, shall appoint. She makes a very unequal distribution; whether equity will relieve against it. Wall v. Thurlborne, 1 Vern. 355. WILL., C. OF.

Personal estate devised to the wife, upon trust not to dispose thereof, but if for the benefit of her children; she, by will, gives 5s. only to one child; decreed the estate to be divided equally. Gibson v. Kinven, 1 Vern. 66.

6. When an Interest is given.

A testator makes a general devise of all his lands in nine parishes; in five of them he had only lands in fee; in three others he had only lands over which he had a power of appointment; in the other he had lands in fee, and also lands over which his power extended: all the lands pass by his will, except the lands in the latter parish, which were subject to his power. Napier v. Napier, 1 Sim. 28. WILL., C. OF. WHAT PASSES.

A and his wife, and B and C, having a joint power of appointing certain lands which, in default of appointment, stood limited (subject to a life interest reserved to C in part of them), to A in fee, by lease and release, being a settlement made in contemplation of the marriage of B, granted, bargained, sold, released, conveyed, directed, limited, and appointed the premises to M, to hold the same to him and his heirs, to the old uses, until the marriage, and after the marriage as to certain parts of the lands to the use of A and his wife during the life of the longest liver, to be in bar of her dower; and as to other parts to the use of A for life, and the use of C for life respectively, remainder to the use of M during the lives of A and his wife, and of C respectively, in order to preserve contingent uses, remainder to the use of B and her intended husband, during the life of the longest liver of them, remainder to the use of M, to support contingent uses; remainder to the use of M for a term of 500 years upon certain trusts, remainder to the use of the first and other sons of the marriage successively in tail, remainder to the use of the daughters in tail, remainder to the use of A and his heirs. Held that the release operated not as an appointment under the power, but as a conveyance of the interest; and therefore, that the legal fee did not vest in M. Wynne v. Griffith, 1 Russ. 283.

Renewal of a college lease by tenant for life, with a power of appointment in her own name and at her expence, has not the effect of an appointment in her own favour; and therefore, by the death of the appointee in the life of the tenant, there will be a resulting trust by lapse for the representative of the author of the power. Brookman v. Hales, 2 Ves. & B. 45. RESULTING TRUST; LEASE, RENEWAL OF.

Husband having power of appointment paramount to right of dower, in default thereof, to himself for life, remainder to his right heirs, if the power could have effect, yet a purchaser taking by a conveyance, adapted to pass the interest in the estate, as a limitation in fee, was held to take in that way, not by way of appointment, and therefore, subject to dower. Maunderell v. Maunderell, 7 Ves. 567. See this case further, 10 Ves. 246. VENDOR & PURCH.; DOWER.

An express estate for life, with a power to dispose by will, does not give an absolute interest, so as to preclude the necessity of executing the power. Reid v. Shergold, 10 Ves. 370. WILL., C. OF; ESTATE FOR LIFE; POWER.

A, having both a power and an interest, the estate being conveyed to such uses as he should appoint, and in default of appointment to him in fee, conveys by lease and release, using also words of appointment; deed operates as a conveyance of his interest, not as an execution of his power, especially if the effect of the latter construction will defeat the object. Cox v. Chamberlain, 4 Ves. 631.

Testator gave 1000*l.* stock to a married woman for her separate use, and whenever she should die, to be absolutely in her own power to dispose of by will or writing purporting to be her will, to any person or persons, purpose or purposes, she should think proper, but in case of failure of any such disposition or appointment to go over: this is not a power, but an absolute gift, qualified only to exclude the husband, upon the death of his wife; therefore it passed by general words in her will. Hales v. Margerum, 3 Ves. 299. WILL., C. OF.

Where person having particular estate, and also a power, makes a disposition containing words both of appointment and conveyance, it shall not operate as an appointment, and also as a conveyance against the intention of the party executing the instrument. Langley v. Brown, 2 Atk. 199.

A trust is limited to A, his heirs, and assigns, or to such as he or they may appoint: A devises these lands by a will, attested but by two witnesses; the will void, and shall not operate as an appointment. Wingstaff v. Wagstaff, 2 P. W. 258. WILL, EXECUTION OF.

7. When void in Equity.

Devises in trust having the legal estate, with a power of leasing, in possession, until the cestuique trusts attained twenty-one, leases not conformable to the power held void in equity, and not confirmed by acceptance of rent. Boues v. East London Water-works Comp., 1 Jac. 324. LEASE, CONFIRMATION OF.

Payment of a valuable consideration by a person not having the legal estate, and not being an object of the power, cannot set up an invalid appointment in favour of such purchaser. Daubeny v. Cockburn, 1 Mer. 638. VENDOR & PURCH.

Secus, where the power is unlimited as to its objects, and the appointment is only impeachable on the ground of its being voluntary. Id. ib.

Agreement by one of the objects of a power, to return part in consideration of an appointment in its favour, is a fraud in the appointee as well as in the appointor, both on the other objects of the power, and on the party who is to take in default of appointment. Id. 644. FRAUD.

Secus, where the appointee is not privy to the corrupt agreement. Id. ib.

Father, tenant for life, with a power to appoint the fee among his sons, in such shares as he pleased; by one deed, upon the coming of age of his eldest son, appoints the fee to him; by a second deed, dated two days after, the son is made to join the father in a mortgage, to secure a debt due by the father; and by a third deed, dated the next day, the son is made tenant for life of the equity of redemption, with remainder to his issue in tail male; reversion in fee to the father, and an additional charge for the younger children of the father, is created. On bill by the son of the appointee, to be relieved from the additional charge and mortgage, held, first, that the deed so far as it charged the additional sum for younger children, was good, but the limitations void, and the excess corrected; secondly, that the mortgage was a fraud upon the power, the father deriving a benefit to himself, and declared void, the mortgagee having notice of it. Palmer v. Wheeler, 2 Ball & B. 18.

Equity will not relieve against a contract entered into by a child, with a parent, for an appointment from him; and a purchaser from the parent, with notice of the fraud, will be affected with it. Id. 30. PARENT & CHILD; NOTICE; VEND. & PURCH.

Though a party is not permitted to execute a power for his own benefit, and the objection cannot be waived by a party participating in the benefit as against other interests, the court will not act against the title upon a mere suspicion that a transaction was of that nature, appearing fair both upon the instruments and the abstract, viz. purchase under the execution of a power of appointment by a father, subject to estates for life, in him and his wife, in favour of their son, all three joining and receiving the money; the fair value which is presumed to be received according to their interests in the estate, and the purchaser not bound to see to the application. McQueen v. Furquhar, 11 Ves. 467.

The court will not execute a power given by the testator to trustees, to continue his charities, or to give any others they should think fit. Cox v. Bussett, 3 Ves. 155. CHARITY.

Power of jointuring executed in favour of a wife, but with an agreement that a wife should only receive a part as an annuity for her own benefit, and that the residue should be applied to the payment of the husband's debts; held a fraud upon the power, and the execution set aside, except so far as related to the annuity, the bill containing a submission to pay it, and only seeking relief against the other objects of the appointment. Alegu v. Belchier, 1 Eden, 132. FRAUD.

A, by marriage settlement, is tenant for life, remainder to trustees, to raise 4000*l.* for younger children's portions, as A should appoint, remainder to his first and other sons in tail. A appoints the 4000*l.* amongst his younger children, and particularly 2600*l.* thereof to B, his second son. The eldest son dies six years afterwards, whereby B became eldest son, and entitled to the whole estate after his father's death; and thereupon A makes a new appointment of the 2600*l.* to one of his daughters. Decreed, the last appointment to take place, the first being made to B upon a tacit or implied condition, that he should not become the eldest son. Chadwick v. Doleman, 2 Vern. 528.

8. Partial Execution, and at what Time Power may be executed.

A power in a settlement to raise a portion for a younger child at such time as the parent should direct, he directs it to be raised when she is fourteen, and she dying, files his bill for it as her administrator; the portion shall not be raised for the father. Hinchinbroke v. Seymour, 1 Bro. C. C. 395. PORTION, WHEN RAISEABLE.

Where there was a joint power to husband and wife, of appointing a sum of money among children, with power, in default thereof, for the survivor to appoint; a partial execution by both of the original power, was held to prevent the execution of the secondary power by the wife who survived. Simpson v. Paul, 2 Eden, 34. HUSB. & WIFE.

Power to husband and wife to charge a term in lands, with sum or sums, not exceeding 200*l.*, for their daughters A and B, as the husband and wife should appoint, and in failure of their joint appointment, as the survivors should appoint, with interest from such time as the term should commence in possession, and not before. The term was not to commence in possession until after the death of the survivor. The husband and wife in execution of the power, direct the 200*l.* to be equally divided between the two daughters, six months after the decease of the father and mother; and if either of them die before payment, or the money become due, then the share of her so dying to be laid out for the benefit of her executors; one of the daughters died after the appointment, and before the time of payment: Held, a good appointment to the daughters themselves, but the appointment to executors is void; but as one of the appointees died before the time of payment, her share sinks into the estate. The joint appointment having appointed the whole, the share of the daughter who died is not subject to any further appointment. Branch v. Nisbett, 1 Cox, 13.

A power of appointing a fee may be executed at several times, viz. at one time to pass an estate for life, and the fee at another. Borey v. Smith, 1 Vern. 85. 2 Ch. Ca. 124. S. C.

9. Excessive Execution of.

See POWERS, VI.

Appointment void as far as it exceeds the power, viz. to grandchildren under a power to appoint to children. Butcher and Gooday v. Butcher, 1 V. & B. 79.

The donee of a power cannot appoint to any persons, not the objects of the power. Palmer v. Wheeler, 2 Ball & B. 27.

Excess in the execution of a power, if capable of separation, will be corrected. Id. 28.

Marriage articles carried into execution by limiting estates in strict settlement to A and B respectively, with cross remainders between B and the issue of A, with power to A to appoint latter's estates among his children. The will of A referring to the estate, but not to the power, declared a good execution of the power to the extent of limiting estates tail to the children, the excess reformed to effectuate the general intention of the articles. Dillon v. Dillon, 1 Ball & B. 77. MARRIAGE ARTICLES.

Excessive appointment under power is void as to excess only; viz. to grandchildren under power to appoint to children. Butcher v. Butcher, 9 Ves. 382.

When a power is exceeded in the execution, in order to reject the excess, and let the appointment stand, the court must see distinctly what the person executing the power, had in view, and be satisfied that if he had rightly understood the extent of his power, he would so have executed it. Hamilton v. Royse, 2 Scho. & L. 315.

A settlement was made in pursuance of articles previous to the marriage, to convey to the use of the husband for life, remainder to the wife for life; remainder upon trust to convey unto and amongst all or any of the children, in such parts and proportions, &c. as the husband and wife, or the survivor, should by deed or writing, with or without power of revocation, or by will, appoint, and in default of appointment, to the first and other sons in tail male; remainder, subject to trusts that failed, to the heirs of the husband. A joint appointment by deed, subject to a proviso for revocation and re-appointment by the husband and wife, and the survivor, was held well revoked by the wife surviving; and by the same deed, a re-appointment to the daughter and two sons successively for life, with remainders in tail to the grand-children, and the ultimate remainder to the daughter in fee, was held void for the excess beyond the power, viz. the estates to the grandchildren, and the ultimate limitation upon them to the daughter, and the principle of cy pres is not applicable; all beyond the life-estates of the children, therefore, shall go as in default of appointment. Brudenel v. Elwes, 7 Ves. 382.

An appointment exceeding the power by a limitation to objects not within the power, is void as to the excess. Crompe v. Barrow, 4 Ves. 681.

Father, having power to appoint among children, and purchasing the share of one, cannot by appointment entitle himself to more than the share of that child in default of appointment. Smith v. Ld. Camel-ford, 2 Ves. 714.

The doctrine of cy pres does not apply to personal estate, therefore, where, under a power to appoint personal estate to children or issue, an appointment is made to a son for life, then among all his children, if none, to him, his executors, &c., the limitation to his children, being void because not retained within the legal bounds, cannot be made good cy pres. Routledge v. Dorril, 2 Ves. J. 357.

By articles the wife's fortune and an equal sum advanced by the husband were agreed to be settled for the husband for their joint lives; and if he should die first, leaving issue by her, for her for life; after her decease, as to the capital, in such manner as he should appoint; in default of appointment to be divided equally among the issue at twenty-one without maintenance, and survivorship. After marriage in pursuance of the articles an estate purchased with the fund was settled upon the husband for the joint lives of him and his wife, remainder to trustees to preserve, &c., remainder, in case of his death first, without issue, to certain uses, remainder in case of his death first, leaving any child or children, to the wife for life, remainder to all the child or children in such shares as the husband should appoint, for want of appointment equally in tail, with cross remainder, remainder to the heirs of the husband; children only are the objects, and an appointment to a child for life, remainder to his children as he shall appoint, is an excess of power, and the doctrine of cy pres, by giving the child an estate tail is not applicable, but the appointment is void for the excess only, and what is ill-appointed goes as in default of appointment. Bristow v. Warde, 2 Ves. J. 336. SETTLEMENT, C. OF.

Under a power to devise among children, the testatrix gives to A, one of the children, for life, remainder to trustees to preserve contingent remainders, remainder to first and other sons, &c., remainder to B, another son in the same way; quare, whether the excess being void, the power is null, and the heir at law shall take, or the sons should take successive life estates as good under the power, or whether, to maintain the general intent, the sons shall take estates tail? Griffith v. Harrison, 3 Bro. C. C. 410.

A power to appoint among children does not extend to grandchildren. The appointment being bad under the power, the party taking benefit of it not obliged to make satisfaction out of the personal estate which he took under the same will. Robinson v. Hardcastle, 2 Bro. C. C. 344. GRANDCHILDREN.

Testator having a power of appointing lands to such of his sons, in such shares, and for such estates, and with such limitations over as he should think proper (in default of whose appointment the lands were to go to his first and other sons in tail male successively) appointed them by will to A his eldest son, for life, remainder to the first and other sons in tail male successively; remainder, subject to a charge of 1000*l.* to the testator's daughter, to B and C, his second and third sons, for their lives, as tenants in common, with several remainders in tail to their issue. Per Yelverton C. J., the charge of 1000*l.* is void, and B and C, having several other devises and bequests made to them by the same will, are not bound to make their election on the testator's death, nor to confirm the charge, when the remainder to them vests in possession. Stewart v. Henry, Vern. & Scriv. 49. WILL, ELECTION.

Power may be good and bad in part, and the excess only void where the execution is complete, and the bounds between it and excess clear. Alexander v. Alexander, 2 Ves. 644.

Where there has been an excess in the execution of a power, it is void quoad the surplus, but good within the limits of the power. Hervey v. Hervey, 1 Atk. 569. Vide Parry v. Brown, Nels. 87. 2 Ves. 644. Palmer v. Wheeler, 2 Ball & B. 27.

Devise to A, the testator's wife, and then to be at her disposal, provided it be to any of his children, gives an estate for life with a power to dispose of the fee. And where such devise with an after-taken husband did by lease and release and fine, convey the premises to a trustee and his heir, to the use of the wife for life without impeachment of waste, remainder to her daughter by her first husband and the heirs of her body, remainder to the son by the first husband and his heirs, this adjudged a good execution of the power. Tomlinson v. Dighton, 1 P. W. 149. S. C. Salk. 239. 10 Mod. 31. Com. Rep. 194. WILL, C. OF. ESTATE FOR LIFE.

10. Defective Execution, when supplied.

See also POWER, I. 11.

The defective execution of a power aided in favour of an eldest, against younger children, also provided for; probate held not to be conclusive proof that instruments, so far as they affect real estates, are of a testamentary character. Hume v. Rundell, 6 Mad. 331.

Defective execution of power by wife not supplied in favour of husband. Moodie v. Reid, 1 Mad. 516. HUSB. & WIFE.

Though equity will, in certain cases, aid a defective execution of a power, the want of execution cannot be supplied, even for creditors. Holmes v. Coghill, 12 Ves. 206.

Power of appointment among three persons, executed by a transfer of one third to one under an order on petition, stating, that the person having the power was desirous that the fund might be equally divided; that person dying without any farther execution, the court gave the two remaining thirds respectively to another of the objects, and to the administratrix of the third, who was dead, but had survived the person having the power. Fortescue v. Gregor, 5 Ves. 553.

Under a power for raising portions for younger children, an appointment by a charge confined to the particular event of four or more, was not extended by implication from general words in a subsequent part of the deed, providing for the case of no appointment. Mosley v. Mosley, 5 Ves. 249.

Where testator refers to a power, but does not legally execute it, but has other estates to which the will can apply, the defect of the execution cannot be supplied, though where he could not make the gift, but by virtue of the power, he shall be supposed to have intended to execute it, and therefore the defect shall be supplied. Lowson v. Lowson, 3 Bro. C. C. 272.

A court of equity will not, against the reversioner, reform a lease executed under a power, where it contains covenants not warranted. Melwin v. Sandham, 3 Swan. 685. LEASE, REFORMATION OF; JURISDICTION.

Where a power is reserved to be executed by deed, in the presence of three witnesses, it is by marriage settlement executed; but the deed is attested by only two, this shall be supplied. Wade v. Paget, 1 Bro. C. C. 364. For the judgment vide, S. C. 1 Cox, Ch. Ca. 74.

A power to be executed by writing, in the presence of three witnesses, it is executed in consideration of marriage, in the presence of two witnesses only: this defective execution shall be supplied. Id. 368.

Defective execution of a power refused to be supplied in favour of a natural son against persons claiming under a subsequent valid execution of it. Bramhall v. Hall, 2 Eden, 220. S. C. Ambl. 467. BASTARD.

Defective execution of power decreed in favour of valuable consideration. Wilkie v. Holme, Dick. 165.

Power to make provision for children by deed, is well executed by will. Sneed v. Sneed, Ambl. 64. S. C. Comp. 264. cited.

A wife, in the event of her surviving her husband, and not having younger children, had a power to dispose of 4000*l.* by deed or will, executed in the presence of three witnesses; and this sum was a charge on the real estate of the husband. Before her second marriage, she, by articles executed in the presence of two witnesses only, appointed 2000*l.* out of the 4000*l.* to be for the use of her intended husband, and the remaining 2000*l.* she disposed of by will, but did not execute it in the presence of three witnesses: Held, that the articles were a good appointment of the 2000*l.* for the benefit of her second husband; for though the appointment was inaccurately and informally expressed, yet being executed for a valuable consideration, equity will supply the defect; but the will, under which the 2000*l.* was given, being a voluntary disposition, and not pursuing the power, was held a void appointment, and the 2000*l.* shall sink into the real estate. Sergison v. Sealy, 2 Atk. 414. S. C. 9 Mod. 370.

By a son's marriage settlement, lands were settled on father for life, with a power for him to make a jointure of such lands as he thought proper, not exceeding 600*l.* per annum; remainder to the son in tail, remainders over. The father afterwards, on his second marriage, conveys an estate of 900*l.* per annum to trustees, in trust to pay 200*l.* clear as pin-money to intended wife, and if she survive him, to pay her 300*l.* per annum for her jointure. After marriage, by a second deed, he gave her another 300*l.* per annum clear, as a further jointure. By a third deed, as further provision for the wife, he conveyed all the same lands to same trustees, to raise the further sum of 100*l.* for pin-money, and the neat sum of 600*l.* per annum as a provision for her in case she survived him, in bar of all other provisions before made; and he thereby declared that it was the intention of that deed, and of the preceding ones, to secure a jointure to his then wife, not exceeding 600*l.* The son and trustees were decreed to convey a jointure not exceeding 600*l.* per annum, subject to taxes, repairs, &c. Hervey v. Hervey, 1 Atk. 561.

Equity will supply the defective execution of a power, as well in the case of younger children and a provision for a wife, as in favour of purchasers or creditors; and where such provisions are intended, their being voluntary is no impediment. It has been said, that a wife or child applying for aid in the defective execution of a power, must be wholly unprovided for: but that is not the right rule, for by the invariable and proper rule, the court considers a husband or father the most competent judge what is a reasonable provision; yet where a wife has not the provision stipulated for her by her jointure, she shall be considered as wholly unprovided for, and according to the rules of equity, shall be aided in carrying a defective provision into execution. Id. 563. S. C. 9 Mod. 225.

Imperfect execution of power to jointure by articles completed by words of request in a codicil. Vernon v. Vernon, Ambl. 3.

Equity aids a defective execution of a power, if for a valuable consideration, and this against a remainderman, or one not claiming under the power. Cotter v. Layer, 2 P. W. 623.

Where there is a power to declare an use by writing attested by three witnesses, and such use is declared by a writing only attested by two, if for a valuable consideration, equity will help it. Id. ib.

Husband has a power to make a jointure to his wife by deed; he does it by will, and she has no other provision, equity will make this good. Tollet v. Tollet, 2 P. W. 489.

A tenant for life, with power to grant leases for twenty-one years, or three lives, agrees to grant a lease for thirty-one years: held, that he is only bound to grant such a lease as is warranted by the power. Byrne v. Acton, 1 Bro. P. C. 186. SPEC. PERF.; TENANT FOR LIFE.

If a man by will empowers his wife to dispose of his personal estate, with the consent of the trustees, the wife, without such consent, cannot by her will devise it; and therefore the husband, as to that part, died intestate. Symson v. Hornsby, Prec. Chan. 452. WILL, C. OF.

A, tenant for life, remainder to his first and other sons in tail; remainder to B for life; remainder to his first and other sons in tail; remainder to C, with a power to B, after A's death, without issue, to make a jointure. B married in the life of A, and before marriage covenanted to make a jointure, and to execute his power when in possession. A died without issue, and B survived, but died without making a jointure. B's widow brought a bill against C, to have a jointure made, because B, surviving A, might have executed his power, and might have covenanted so to do: decreed. Alford v. Alford, Gilb. Eq. Rep. 167. JOINTURE.

Defective execution of power aided. Gooding v. Gooding, 1 Eq. Ab. 342.

Tenant in tail, with power to make a jointure, dies before execution, without issue; remainderman makes a jointure to his wife; administratrix of his first wife brings a bill for an account of the profits agreed to be settled: bill dismissed. Elliot v. Hele, 1 Vern. 406.

If a man makes a settlement of his estate on his eldest son in tail, with a power by deed or will under seal, to charge the lands with any sum not exceeding 500*l.* and he prepares a deed and gets it engrossed, by which he appoints the 500*l.* to his younger children, and dies before it is signed or sealed; yet this is a good execution of the power, the substance being performed. Smith v. Ashton, 1 Ch. Ca. 264. Ca. Temp. Finch. 273. 1 Freem. 308. 3 Keb. 551. 3 Salk. 277. S. C. mentioned as a will.

11. Non-Execution.

See also POWER, I. 10.

Powers must be expressed, not implied, and are construed strictly; though defective executions are in certain cases supplied in equity, the want of execution cannot. Hixon v. Oliver, 13 Ves. 114.

Decree for raising money under deed of appointment, though the only copy produced appeared not executed, upon recitals of it in two settlements as a subsisting effectual deed, and evidence from books of a deceased solicitor of charges for the preparation and execution of it. Skipwith v. Shirley, 11 Ves. 64. EVIDENCE.

Non-execution of a power is where nothing is done; defective execution is where there has been an intention to execute, and that intention sufficiently declared; but the act declaring the intention is not an execution in the form prescribed. Shannon v. Bradstreet, 1 Scho. & L. 63.

The court cannot execute a mere power, but will execute a trust which fails by the death of the trustee, or accident. Brown v. Higgs, 8 Ves. 570. JURISDICTION; TRUST.

Power, which by the will the party is required to execute as a duty, he is a trustee for the exercise of it, and has no discretion whether he will exercise it or not. The court adopts the principle as to trusts, and will not permit his negligence, accident, or other circumstances, to disappoint the interest of those for whose benefit he is to execute it. Id. 574. Id. ib.

The want of execution of power cannot be supplied, though a defective execution may. Holmes v. Coghill, 7 Ves. 499.

Power unexecuted is not assets to pay debts. Id. ib. ASSETS.

Testator devised a freehold estate to his wife for her life, and then directed that she should dispose of the same amongst the testator's children by her at her decease, as she should think proper; the wife made no disposition of the estate: the children took no interest in the estate under the will. Crossling v. Crossling, 2 Cox, 396. WILL, C. OF, WHAT INTEREST.

Jewels, &c. to A for life, then to such grand-children as she should appoint; in default of appointment they shall go equally. Witts v. Boddington, 3 Bro. C. C. 95. WILL, C. OF.

Where a person has an absolute and general power of appointing a fund, as well in his lifetime as at his death, and there is no gift over, yet if no appointment be made, his administrator cannot claim the fund, and even creditors will not be entitled to the benefit of it without some step taken towards an appointment; though where any such appointment be made, the court will arrest the fund in transitu for the benefit of creditors. Harrington v. Hart, 1 Cox, 131. ASSETS.

2500*l.* is provided by settlement for the issue of the marriage, in such proportion as the husband should appoint; he dies, leaving a daughter only, and makes no appointment: she shall have the 2500*l.* Davy v. Hooper, 2 Vern. 665. Affirmed, 6 Bro. P. C. 51. SETTLE. C. OF.

A, by will, devises his lands to trustees to sell, and to dispose of the money as he by writing should appoint, and for want of appointment to his four nephews; and by writing appoints his trustees to pay several sums to several persons, but not near the value of lands: decreed, the surplus to the heir, and not to the nephews, as an interest resulting, and not disposed of. City of London v. Garraway, 2 Vern. 571. WILL, C. OF; HEIR AT LAW; RESULTING TRUST; LANDS DEVISED TO BE SOLD.

Upon settlement of lands to be sold in trust for several purposes, the residue is given to B and his heirs, reserving only 200*l.* to appointee of settlor; settlor died without appointing: the 200*l.* shall go to his heir, and not to B, or his assignees. Anon. 1 Com. 345. SETTLE. C. OF; HEIR; TRUST, RESULTING.

II. WHEN THEY SURVIVE.

Power to the survivor of husband and wife to appoint among children, not well executed by a deed by both. M'Adam v. Logan, 3 Bro. C. C. 310.

Where feme covert conveys stock to trustees to use of intended husband and self for life, with power to dispose of part, this power survives to wife.

Homer v. Bendloe, 9 Mod. 335. HUSB. & WIFE; SURVIVORSHIP.

A, on his marriage, conveys his land to a trustee to the use of himself for life, remainder to his wife for life, remainder to the heirs of their two bodies, remainder to A in fee. Proviso, that in default of issue of the marriage, the trustees shall convey to such uses as the survivor should appoint. Although the husband devises the land, and dies first without issue, yet the wife has a good power of disposing of the estate by her appointment. Bp. Oton v. Leighton, 2 Vern. 376. MARRIAGE SETTLE. C. OF; HUSB. & WIFE.

III. WHEN THEY TEND TO PERPETUITY.

Settlement on husband and wife for lives, remainder to sons in tail male, remainder to daughters in tail, remainder to survivor of husband or wife in fee, with power to wife if husband survived, and all the children of marriage died without issue, to charge estate with 5000*l.*: Held, that power is too remote and void. Bristow v. Boothby, 2 S. & S. 465. SETTLEMENT, C. OF.

Personal estate settled on marriage for the husband for life, then for the wife for life, then to and among all and every the children and grandchildren, or issue in such shares, under such restrictions, at such times and in such manner, as they or the survivor should appoint by deed or deeds, or by will, for want of appointment, to all and every the children and grandchildren, or issue living at the decease of the survivor, equally payable at twenty-one, or marriage; if but one, to that one; provided that in case of no appointment the issue of any children dead should not have a greater share than their parents would have had; issue only are within the power, but in any degree; but an appointment to any issue not living must be restrained to twenty-one years after lives in being at the creation of the power, otherwise it is void, even as to such as come in esse within those limits; but on marriage of a daughter, interests may be given to her children generally, and to the husband. What is ill appointed, goes as in default of appointment; but children of a living parent cannot take under the proviso. Routledge v. Dorrit, 2 Ves. 356. SETTLE. EXECUTION OF.

Issue will extend to any remote degree, as a description of objects of the power of A to distribute among them as he thinks fit; but they must all be in existence during his life. Hockley v. Mawbey, 1 Ves. J. 150. WILL, C. OF.

Power of alterations of estates tail as they were to come in esse into tenancies for life, held to be void. Heath v. Heath, 2 Eden, 330.

IV. POWERS OF LEASING.

Power reserved upon marriage settlement to tenants for life to grant or renew leases for lives, provided that a right of re-entry is reserved upon such leases for non-payment of rent, is well executed by lease for lives, providing a re-entry in case the rent remains in arrear fifteen days, and there is no sufficient distress on premises. Smith v. Ed. Jersey, 3 Bligh. 290. LEASE.

Tenant for life, with power to grant leases by deed, does not execute power by a written agreement for lease. Symons v. Symons, 6 Mad. 207. LEASE; AGREEMENT.

Power of leasing in trustees of a charity controuled for the benefit of the charity. Exp. Berkhamstead Free School, 2 V. & B. 138. CHARITY.

Tenant for life, with a leasing power, enters into an agreement by article to make a lease pursuant to the power. This agreement shall bind the remainderman. Shannon v. Bradstreet, 1 Scho. & L. 52. TEN. FOR LIFE & REMAINDER-MAN; COVT. WHO BOUND BY.

G, tenant for life in settlement, is thereby empowered to make leases for lives of lands in Ireland, at the best rent, without fine, and with consent of trustees to raise any sum of money. The trustees, in pursuance of powers, consent that G should, by mortgaging all or any part of lands, or in any other manner he should think fit, raise any sum of money not exceeding 5000*l.* G, being in distress, and involved in litigation, in consideration of 300*l.* and rent, grants to V, his solicitor, part of the lands in settlement upon a lease for lives. The grant and receipt, expressing that 300*l.* was raised under a power and consent as part of the 5000*l.*, were duly registered. The rent and premium, calculated at 6 per cent., were considerably short of the annual value. On appeal, held a good execution of power, but void as fraudulently obtained by V. Ward v. Hartpole, 3 Bligh. 470. FRAUD.

Tenant for life of estate, on which were mines opened, with power to let leases in possession for twenty-one years, reserving best rent, leases the mines, opened and unopened, for twenty-six years, without reference to the power, and before the expiration of a former lease, reserving ore as rent to him, his heirs and assigns: 1st, The former lease shall be presumed surrendered: 2nd, The lease shall bind the remainderman for twenty-one years: 3rd, Ore, is quasi rent of mines: 4th, Evidence let in to prove the lease engrossed and executed after it bore date: 5th, The rent reserved not being a gross sum for all the mines, but separate on each, the power is well executed as to the open mines, though not of mines unopened. Campbell v. Leach, Amb. 740.

In a settlement, a power is reserved to tenant for life to make leases of all lands anciently demised, reserving the ancient rents, and of the other lands, reserving the best improved rents. Tenant for life being ill, and not having the counterparts of the old leases, makes a general lease to his sister of all the lands, paying for the lands that had been let, the ancient and accustomed rents, and for the lands not usually let, the full and improved rents and value thereof. Lease adjudged void by the Lord Keeper and Lord C. J. Trevor: contra, the opinion of the Lord C. J. Holt. Orbey v. Mohun, 2 Vern. 531. Prec. Ch. 257. Gilb. Eq. Rep. 45. S. C. This affd. 6 Bro. P. C. 145.

Where one has power to make leases for ten years, and he makes one for twenty, it is a good lease for ten years. Pawcay v. Bowen, 1 Ch. Ca. 23. 3 Ch. Rep. 11.

If power be reserved to make leases by covenant without transmutation of possession, chancery will not help. Cary, 29.

V. WHAT ARE CONSTRUED USUAL POWERS.

Will directed settlement to be made of real estate on A and his first and other sons in tail, with powers of jointuring, leasing, sale, and exchange, and all other clauses, powers, and provisos, usually inserted in settlements of same kind. Held these last words did not give power to charge with portions. Higginson v. Barnely, 2 N. & S. 516. PORTIONS; WILL, C. OF.

A will, directing a settlement of estates, and that there should be inserted all proper power for making leases and otherwise, according to circumstances, to and for the tenants for life, to be exercised by them when qualified, and when not by the trustees, does not authorise the insertion of a power of sale and exchange. Horne v. Barton, 1 Jac. 437. WILL, C. OF; SETTLEMENT.

Articles for a settlement on ward of court, with a power of leasing for twenty-one years, and other usual powers, &c., do not authorise the introduction of a power of granting building leases for long terms. Pearse v. Bown, 1 Jac. 158. SETTLEMENT, MARRIAGE ARTICLES, C. OF.

A will, directing a settlement of estates, and that there should be inserted all proper powers for making leases, and otherwise according to circumstances, for the tenants for life, to be exercised by them when qualified, and when not by the trustees, does not authorise the insertion of a power of sale and exchange to the trustees, to be exercised with the consent of the tenant for life. Whether the will authorises the introduction of a power of sale and exchange of any description? Brewster v. Angell, 1 Jac. & W. 625. WILL, C. OF.

VI. POWERS TO APPOINT TO CHILDREN.

See also POWER, I. 9.

Power to appoint amongst testator's present or future grand-children, or their respective issue, does not authorise the donee to exclude the children of a deceased grand-child, who were living at the donee's death. Cyrilwite v. Robinson, 2 Sim. 43.

Power in will to J, to appoint "to use of such child or children, and for such estate, and in such parts, and in such manner and form, as the said J should, by deed or will, limit or appoint, or give or devise; and in default of such appointment, to the children equally, as tenants in common." J originally appointed the trust estate to the grandchild of testator absolutely in fee; but by subsequent deed, and pursuant to an agreement made prior to the execution of the power, a term of two hundred years was created and vested in trustees, to provide for the costs of the appointee in the original suit, and the costs of the parties to that instrument in another suit to be instituted by them in the name of the appointee, and for his benefit, and to raise and pay annuities to the other objects of the power; and, subject to the term and its trusts, the estate was re-settled to the use of the appointee for life, remainder in fee to his children; and if no son should attain twenty-one, or no daughter attain that age, or marriage, then to appointee in fee. Held a good appointment. Tucker v. Sanger, 1 M'Clel. 439. S. C. 13 Price, 607.

A power to appoint the proportions in which definite objects are to take tacitly includes a gift to them in default of appointment. Kennedy v. Kingston, 2 J. & W. 434.

Devise to testator's widow for life, to be by her divided amongst such of testator's children and their issue as should be surviving at her death. The power well executed by a will, appointing a share to each of the surviving children of the testator, or, in case of their deaths, to their children respectively, and another share to the children of a deceased child. Exp. Williams, 1 Jac. & W. 89.

Power of appointment in a marriage settlement, held to comprehend, as its objects, all the children of the marriage, and not to be confined to such of the children only as should be living at the death of the survivor of the parents. Hougrave v. Cartier, Coop. 66. S. C. 3 Ves. & B. 79.

Under power to appoint amongst children, interests may be given to grandchildren, by way of settlement on their mother, with her consent and her husband's. White v. St. Barbe, 1 V. & B. 399.

Appointment to a deceased child, or its representatives, void. Butcher and Gooday v. Butcher, 1 V. & B. 91.

The old practice of executing a power of appointment after the death of one of the objects, by giving part to the survivors, and letting the rest go, as in default of appointment among all, incorrect. Id. ib.

A father, having a power of appointing among his children, cannot, from the execution of it, derive to himself a benefit. Palmer v. Wheeler, 1 Ball & B. 29.

Bequest to such of the children of A as B shall, by will, direct, and, in default of such direction, among the children, share and share alike. B's disposition, by will, in favour of the children living at her death, established against the claim of one born afterwards, under the general words. Paul v. Compton, 8 Ves. 375. WILL, C. OF, WHO TAKE.

Under marriage articles, 15,000l. was vested in trustees on trust, together with 5000l. covenanted by the husband to be paid, to be laid out in land, to be settled upon the husband for life, remainder to the wife for life, remainder to the use of such child and children, in such shares, for such estates, and subject to such powers, limitations, and provisions, as the husband and wife, or the survivor, should appoint; in default of appointment, to the children in tail; in default of issue, to the husband in fee. The husband and wife joined in a direction to the trustees, reciting their resolution to invest the trust fund in an estate lately purchased by the husband for 16,300l., and directing them to deliver the said stock, &c., to him, at the price they were at on the day of the purchase, which was done. The wife died. There were two daughters. The father, by will reciting the purchase, and that he had not conveyed it to the uses of the settlement, and that it was not his intention that the said purchase should be an investment of the trust fund, but that fund, with its increase, should be taken out of his personal estate, gave 10,000l. part of the trust fund, in trust to be laid out in land, to be conveyed to one daughter for life, for her separate use, remainder to her children in tail; remainder to the other daughter in fee, for whom he also appointed the residue of the fund, but revoked that by codicil, reciting a portion given on her marriage. Held, 1st, That grandchildren are not objects of the power, but the excess only would be void: 2ndly, The fund, with its increase, was vested in the purchase: 3rdly, There was no appointment of the estate, or money due on the covenant: 4thly, The remainders, in default of appointment, are vested subject to be devested by appointment, and will take effect as to what is ill appointed or unappointed: 5thly, The share of the daughter, to whom the portion was advanced on marriage, was thereby satisfied. Smith v. Ltd. Camelford, 2 Ves. J. 698. See this case, nom. Pitt v. Jackson, 2 Bro. C. C. 51. SETTLEMENT, MARRIAGE ARTICLES, C. OF.

Testator appoints to grandchildren, under a power to appoint to children a fund, to go in default of appointment, equally: the appointment being bad, the children, having legacies, must elect. Whistler v. Webster, 2 Ves. J. 366. WILL; ELECTION.

Power to divide a fund among all and every the children, to be vested at twenty-one; and in default, or part execution, the whole, or part unappointed, to go to all. There were two children, a son and a daughter; a partial provision was made for the son, who died unmarried, and without issue. A subsequent appointment of the whole residue to the daughter is a good execution of the power. Boyle v. Ep. of Peterborough, 3 Bro. P. C. 243. S. C. 1 Ves. J. 299.

Power to appoint among nephews and nieces, does not extend to great nephews, &c.; and if part be appointed, not pursuant to the power, the money so appointed lapses into, and passes under, the appointment of the residue which was properly appointed. Falkner v. Buttler, Ambl. 614.

By marriage settlement, 1500l. was provided for younger children, in such shares as the parents should appoint; in default of appointment, to all the children, after the death of the wife. The parents afterwards made an appointment, excluding one child: this deed vests the portions in the children born or to be born, except the one excluded. Mayhew v. Middleditch, 1 Bro. C. C. 162. MARRIAGE SETTLEMENT, C. OF; INTEREST VESTED.

Execution of a power of appointment to children held good, though it extended to the issue of one of them, under the special circumstances of the case. Langston v. Blackmore, Ambl. 289. See Tucker v. Sanger, 1 M'Clel. 449. S. C. 13 Price, 609. PARENT & CHILD.

A father, having a power of appointment amongst children, cannot take any benefit himself, but must appoint to a child or children, and cannot give any interest to a stranger: but if a further advantage is given to the child than he could have under the power, and the father sells part of his own interest, the court will not weigh the consideration. Id. ib.

A power to make a provision for younger children by deed was executed by will, and held good. Sneed v. Sneed, Ambl. 64. Tyllet v. Tollet, 2 P. W. 489. Smith v. Ashton, 1 Ch. Ca. 264.

Power to charge lands for portions for younger children living at the father's death: a child in ventre sa mere, is a child within the power. Beale v. Beale, 1 P. W. 246. INFANT IN VENTRE SA MERE.

VII. POWER OF SALE.

Testator directs his real and personal property to be sold and divided. Held, that executors have an implied power to sell real estate. Tylden v. Hyde, 2 S. & S. 238. WILL, C. OF.

Where articles stipulate for a division of the partnership property at the end of the partnership, a sale is intended. Rigden v. Pierce, 6 Mad. 353. DEED, C. OF.

Devise to testator's wife, she paying his debts and 15l. to A B, if so much can be spared, and rest of estate to go to A B, after her death, gives her the fee and power of sale. Dolton v. Heuven, 6 Mad. 9. DEVISE; WILL, C. OF; EST. FER-SIMPLE.

Power of sale to be exercised with consent of three trustees, their heirs, and assigns, and the trustees or the survivor, his executors or administrators, to give give receipts. A new trustee is appointed, in the place of one who retires; another trustee dies. Whether the power can be exercised with the consent of the continuing and the new trustee: Qu? Hall v. Dewes, 1 Jac. 189.

Injunction not granted to restrain mortgagee from selling under power in mortgage deed, otherwise where there is a trustee for sale, and he proceeds precipitately and without notice to both parties. Anon. 6 Mad. 10. INJUNCT.; MORTGAGE;

Where estate is devised in trust for two daughters for life, with remainder in each moiety for their children at twenty-one, and a power of sale is given to trustees; the power of sale subsists, though one daughter is dead and her children have attained twenty-one. Trouer v. Knightley, 6 Mad. 136. TRUST.

Where tenant for life is directed to renew, with power to raise fine by mortgage, and court directs fine to be raised by sale or mortgage; if money cannot be raised on mortgage, parties cannot be compelled to insure life of cestuique vie for better security of mortgage, but must sell. Grantley v. Garthwaite, 6 Mad. 96. ESTATE FOR LIFE; CHARGE; INSURANCE.

Power of sale, in the event of two of testators children disapproving of the manner of managing his lands and houses, does not arise upon their notifying their opinion, that the executors are inadequate to the management. Semble. Patton v. Randall, 1 Jac. & W. 189.

Direction for the sale, in a given event, of an estate devised by the will, without expressing by whom it was to be sold, does not give a power of sale to the executors by implication. Id. ib. EXECUTOR; WILL, C. OF.

A power of sale not expressly given to any one, is not to be implied to the executors, because the devisees of the estate are minors. Id. ib.

Power given to trustees to sell land and divide produce amongst the cestuique trusts, who were infants, enables trustees alone to give effectual receipts to purchasers. Sowarby v. Lucy, 4 Mad. 142. TRUSTEES.

Who is to execute power of sale of real estate, is implied to be in him through whose hands the fund is to pass. Benthum v. Wiltshire, 4 Mad. 44. WILL, C. OF.

Power of sale given to three trustees, held not to be well executed by two surviving trustees. Townsend v. Wilson, 3 Mad. 261.

A testator having by his will, devised his freehold and copyhold estates in trust for his son in strict settlement, with remainder to his nephew; and having given by his first codicil, a special power of sale over a part of his estates, to be exercised at the request of his son, in favour of his nephew; and, by his second codicil, a general power of sale over "all or any part of his estates," to be exercised at the discretion of his trustees; the conveyance by the trustees must contain both the particular and the general power of sale. Green v. Wigglesworth, 1 Swan. 234. WILL, C. OF; CONVEYANCE.

Testator devises to A and B, (whom he appoints his executors,) upon trust, to sell for such purposes as he shall hereafter appoint, and then directs his debts to be paid by his executors. Under this devise, A and B are authorized to sell for payment of debts. Burke v. De. Devonshire, 3 Mer. 310.

Where at time of deposit by way of equitable mortgage, power of sale was given by agreement to mortgagee, on note being given to repay the money secured, mortgagee cannot make a valid assignment of premises in event of bankruptcy of party pledging, without notice to and concurrence of assignees of bankrupt in the conveyance. Hawkins v. Ramshotton, 1 Price, 138. BANKRY. ASSIGNEES; EQUITABLE MORTGAGE; TITLE.

Purchases held not a substitution for estates sold under a power in a settlement, to sell and invest the money in estates to be settled to the same uses, there being no original trust, subsequent agreement, or representation relied on. Denton v. Davies, 18 Ves. 499.

Leasehold estates bequeathed in trust, to pay the rents and profits to the persons for the time being entitled under the limitations of real estate devised in strict settlement, with power to trustees at any time, with consent of the persons so entitled, or if minors, at their own discretion, to sell and invest the produce in real estate to the same uses. The leasehold estates vest absolutely in the tenant in tail upon his birth, and the power is void. Ware v. Polhill, 11 Ves. 257. WILL, C. OF; INTEREST VESTED.

Contract by trustees under power of sale, though by subsequent events it cannot be executed under the power, shall be made good in equity by the effect of the interest acquired on the estate, bound by the contract. Mortlock v. Buller, 10 Ves. 315. AFFID. 2 DOW, Rep. 518. TRUSTEES; CONTRACT.

Trustees to pay debts, may fairly raise by sale or mortgage, without waiting for a decree. El. Bath v. El. Bradford, 2 Ves. 590. TRUST TO PAY DEBTS.

Devise of "rents, profits, and produce," of W. I. stock, to be consigned to trustees and applied by them in disencumbering an estate in Scotland of debts, and also in payment of other debts, funeral expences, and legacies. Held on rehearing, that such charges could only be paid out of the annual perception of rents and profits, and that part of the former decree, which had directed a sale, was reserved. Conyngham v. Conyngham, 1 Ves. 522. WILL, C. OF.

A sale directed on the words "rents and profits alone," though generally contrary to testator's intent in aid of a creditor, on the ground of law, that in a will those words meant and passed the land itself; another construction however, as to legacies, upon the addition of the words "as the rents and profits, &c. should advance the money." Baines v. Dixon, 1 Ves. 41. WILL, C. OF.

Devise in trust to sell, and a charge to pay debts, give equally a power of sale. Elliot v. Merriman, 2 Atk. 43. S. C. Barn. 78. POWER, C. OF.

A proviso in the will of R, that if his personal estate, and house, and lands at W. should not be sufficient to pay his debts, then his executors to raise the the same out of the copyhold premises, enables the trustees, if the rents are not sufficient, to sell the copyhold lands to satisfy the testator's intention of paying his debts. Buteman v. Buteman, 1 Atk. 421. WILL, C. OF.

A devises his real and personal estate for payment of debts. The personal estate being not sufficient, the executors may sell the real estate, although no directions are given in the will as to who shall sell, and the money arising from the sale is legal assets in the hands of the executors. Blatch v. Wilder, 1 Atk. 420. WILL, C. OF; ASSETS LEGAL.

The words, "to be raised by rents and profits," will imply a power to sell. Green v. Belchier, 1 Atk. 506. Okeken v. Okeken, 1 Atk. 551., and notes.

Mortgagee of stock cannot sell it. Harrison v. Franks, 2 Eq. Ab. 725. MORTGAGE OF STOCK.

Trust of a term to raise portions out of the rents and profits, to be paid as soon as conveniently may be. By virtue of the word "profits," trustees may sell or mortgage; scus, it said "annual profits." Trufford v. Ashton, 1 P. W. 415.

Where there is a trust for raising portions out of rents and profits, the lands may be sold. Sheldon v. Dormer, 2 Vern. 310. TRUST TO RAISE PORTIONS.

A devises lands to B in tail, remainder to C, and gives his executors power to raise out of his estate 500*l.* for his next of kin, and desires him to see his debts paid. This gives the executor a power to sell the lands to pay his debts. Wareham v. Brown, 2 Vern. 154. WILL, C. OF.

Lands are settled on marriage upon condition if there should be a daughter, the persons in remainder should pay her 2000*l.* at sixteen, with power for the daughter, in case of non-payment, to distrain for the 2000*l.* and damages. Though no power to sell, yet a sale decreed for raising the portion. Wharton v. Wharton, 2 Vern. 1. SETTLEMENT, C. OF; PORTIONS, HOW RAISED.

A, the cestuique trust of lands in L., devises several legacies, "all which before mentioned legacies, not limited to a continued payment, my will is, shall be paid within a year, if my lands in N. can be sold," and gives residue, after debts and legacies paid, to defendant her executor. Held, executors had power to sell. Elton v. Harrison, 2 Swan. 276. EXORS.

If trustees are empowered to pay portions at fixed days out of the rents and profits of lands, and they are inadequate, the trustees may sell the lands. Backhouse v. Middleton, 1 Ch. Ca. 175. TRUST.

Where trustees have a power of selling a real estate, or keeping it in land at their option, it will be subject to the same trust, as the personal estate is applied to, whether converted into money or not. Cook v. Duckenfield, 2 Atk. 563. ASSETS.

Whosoever takes under a power, takes from the grantor, and not from the power itself. Id. 565.

A man, by empowering other persons to dispose of his estate, disinherits his heir as much as by his own actual disposition. Id. 567. RESERVING TRUST.

Where testator says, "I will my ~~heir~~ shall sell the land," without mentioning for what purpose, he is not obliged to sell, but if he appoints his executor to sell, it is turned into personal assets, and leaves no resulting trust in the heir. S. C. Id.

VIII. POWER OF REVOCATION.

Settlement of two estates in remainder on W for life, with remainder to his sons in strict settlement, and remainder over to M with power to tenants for life in possession to charge the estates with a jointure of 400*l.*, and power to revoke the uses of the settlement as to one of the estates, and to appoint new uses. By a subsequent deed the settlor exercises the power of revocation as to the remainder to M, and in lieu thereof appoints that estate to S, and repeats several of the powers contained in the first settlement, and gave power to W and S to charge the estate with 400*l.* jointure; W, by separate deeds, executes both powers of jointure: Held, on bill by his widow for both jointures, that W had no new power to jointure under the second settlement. Wigzell v. Smith, 1 S. & S. 321. SETTLEMENT, C. OF.

Power given by will and codicil to sell to certain persons at a fixed price, revoked by a subsequent codicil devising the premises to trustees to be sold for the payment of debts, and subject thereto upon the limitations of the will. Bridges v. Rier, 1 Jac. & W. 74.

Whether power in a will to sell several estates to certain persons at a fixed price is entirely revoked by a codicil, devising one of the estates to different uses? Quare. Id. ib.

Deed executed according to power, containing no clause for power to revoke it, cannot be revoked, though original power gave such clause. Worrall v. Jacob, 3 Mer. 256.

Execution of power by will is revoked by subsequent conveyance upon a sale by the tenant for life having obtained the legal estate; and that not being an execution within the interest of the power, the estate passed under a general residuary devise against the purchaser. Reid v. Shergold, 10 Ves. 370. POWER, EXECUTION OF.

Testatrix gave a fund, over which she had a power to appoint, to trustees in trust for her residuary legatee after named, and gave general residue to A. By codicil she revoked the bequest of the residue to A, and gave it to A and B; A held entitled solely to fund under appointment. Roach v. Haynes, 6 Ves. 153. affirmed, 8 Ves. 584. WILL, C. OF.

Charge well created by settlement, though for volunteer, not revoked by general revocation of the uses under a power for the mere purpose of partition of joint estate and resettling to the same uses, the separate part to be taken on partition. El. Uxbridge v. Bayly, 1 Ves. J. 449. 4 Bro. C. C. 18.

A partial appointment by will under a power is revocable by a subsequent appointment by deed, though no power of revocation is reserved by the will, or the instrument which created the power. Liste v. Lisle, 1 Bro. C. C. 533.

A papist, having a power of revocation under a settlement made prior to the Irish popery acts, executes that power after the acts passed: Held, that the revocation was good. French v. Caddell, 3 Bro. P. C. 266. PAPIST.

Power without revocation reserved, once executed, is not to be revoked and executed anew. Ld. Teynham v. Webb, 2 Ves. 211.

Power of revocation and to appoint new uses; express revocation must be reserved, or it is executed. Dk. Marlborough v. Td. Godolphin, 2 Ves. 76.

Where person had power of appointment, and at the end of the settlement it was declared that every appointment made by her by virtue of the power in the deed, might from time to time be revoked and a new appointment made. She made an appointment without reserving a power of revocation, and then executed another appointment. Lord Hardwick inclined to think both powers might be executed once, as they seemed to be distinct and separate powers. Langleigh v. Brown, 2 Atk. 199.

General power of revocation in preamble of deed may be abridged by special power in operating part of it. Fitzgerald v. Fauconberg, Fitzgib. 214. DEED, C. OF.

Where owner of estate in voluntary deed reserves power to himself, it is to be construed more favourably than power reserved to a stranger. Id. ib. 220.

One makes a settlement with power by deed to revoke it, and by the same deed, or any other, from time to time limit new uses; he revokes the settlement and limits new uses, but reserves no further power to himself; he cannot by virtue of the first power limit any other uses. Hele v. Bond, Prec. Chan. 474. SETTLEMENT, C. OF.

A proviso in a settlement if the wife survive her husband, they not having issue between them, then she may revoke the settlement; husband dies leaving a son who dies in the life of his mother, she may revoke the settlement. Molt v. Barlen, 2 Vern. 651. Pre. Ch. 293. S. C. SETTLEMENT, C. OF.

A person having only an authority to execute, cannot annex a power of revocation when he executes it. Hall v. Thurboine, 1 Vern. 355.

Mortgage in fee is a revocation pro tanto only of a settlement, with power of revocation. Thorne v. Thorne, 1 Vern. 182. MORTGAGE.

Power of new limitation when incident to power of revocation, though not expressly reserved. Witham v. Bland, 3 Swan. 277. CONVEYANCE.

IX. LIMITATIONS IN DEFAULT OF APPOINTMENT.

Under a general power of appointment among all the children by deed or will from time to time, &c., in default of appointment, equally at twenty-one, &c., the death of one above that age does not prevent an appointment to the survivors. Butcher and Gooday v. Butcher, 1 V. & B. 79.

Power to appoint to or among one or more younger children; in default of appointment, equally. One of two objects being removed by effect of express satisfaction by way of advancement, the other takes the whole, as in the case of death, by analogy to customs of York and London. Folkes v. Western, 9 Ves. 456.

Settlement of the wife's estate to such uses as the husband and wife or the survivor should appoint by deed or will with three witnesses, in default thereof, to the heirs of the husband; the wife surviving, made a disposition by her will to a charity, and therefore void: Decreed to the heir of the husband. Att. Gen. v. Ward, 3 Ves. 327. SETTLEMENT, C. OF.

Money settled in trust, to be paid according to the appointment of A, and in default thereof, to his legal representatives, according to the course of administration. A, by will, in pursuance of the power, appoints to his legal representatives, according to the course of administration, and makes a residuary legatee, whom he appoints one of his executors. Upon the will, the next of kin are entitled. Jenning v. Gallimore, 3 Ves. 146.

4000*l.* settled on marriage in trust after the decease of the husband and wife, to pay among all and every the child and children, other than an eldest or only son, at such time and in such proportion as he or she or the survivor should appoint by deed or will, for want of appointment, among such child and children, other than, &c., equally to be divided, if but one, to that one, payable at twenty-one or marriage, or as soon after as the life interest should drop; the shares of any dying before, payable in the 4000*l.*, or so much as should not be appointed, to go to the survivors at the same time. There were four children; the marriage settlement of one recited, that she was entitled to 1000*l.*, part of this fund; one-fourth of it was appointed to another on his marriage; and to a third, 1000*l.* as her share of that portion; the fourth died above twenty-one, before his father, who survived his wife, and died without any further appointment: Held, that 3000*l.* was well appointed, and that the remainder vested in all equally, according to the direction for want of appointment. Wilson v. Piggott, 2 Ves. J. 351. SETTLEMENT, C. OF.

X. POWER OF ATTORNEY.

Power of attorney to sue in plaintiff's name need not be stated in bill, but if stated, proof will be directed of it before master in taking the accounts. Edney v. Jewell, 6 Mad. 165. PR. EVIDENCE; PR. BILL.

The bill of sale passes the absolute property in a ship at sea, subject only to be divested in case of the indorsement on the certificate of registry not being made within ten days after the return of the ship to port. Power of attorney to sign an indorsement on the certificate, not revoked by bankruptcy of the vendor subsequent to the execution of the power, but previous to the indorsement, being a power only to do a mere formal act, which the bankrupt himself might have been compelled to execute, notwithstanding his bankruptcy, and for a valuable consideration. Therefore, in this case, the indorsement on the certificate being made within the ten days, under a power of attorney, the grantor of which had since become bankrupt: Held a sufficient compliance with the terms of the registry act. Dixon v. Exart, 3 Mer. 322. S. C. Buck, 94. SHIP REGISTRY ACT; BANKRY. EFFECT OF.

Power of attorney executed abroad, and authenticated by notary, and affidavit verifying signature of notary, ordered to be acted upon by accountant-general, without certificate of chief magistrate of the place. Id. Kinnaird v. Ly. Salloun, 1 Mad. 227. DEEDS, ATTESTATION; NOTARY PUBLIC.

Power of attorney to a creditor to receive a debt, not accompanying any assignment of it, nor making part of any security given, but with declarations, that it was to enable the creditor to apply the money to his debt, not an appropriation; and therefore failed by the death of the debtor. Lepard v. Vernon, 2 Ves. & B. 51. PR. ABATEMENT BY DEATH.

Answer of defendant abroad, not being required to be put in on oath, ordered to be put in by person having power of attorney to defend suits, &c., without signature. Bayley v. DeWalkiers, 10 Ves. 441. PR. ANSWER, SIGNATURE.

A legacy of 100*l.* was ordered to be paid to a person having a general power of attorney from the legatee, without any power authorising him to receive this legacy specifically. Carr v. Eastabrook, 2 Cox, 390. PAYMENT OUT OF COURT.

Service on person holding power of defendant abroad, held good. Hales v. Sutton, Dick. 26. Carter v. De Brune, id. 39.

XI. MERGER, EXTINGUISHMENT, & SUSPENSION.

Where a tenant for life of trust monies, with a power for appointing part for advancing his children, assigned his whole interest, &c., as security for annuity granted by him, he was held to have precluded himself from exercise of power for advancement, though the annuity was of a much less value than the fund. Noel v. Henley, 1 McClel. & Y. 303.

Power of appointment in grantor for life, though in favour of particular objects, is not a trust, and may be extinguished by a recovery. Smith v. Deeth, 5 Mad. 371. TRUST; RECOVERY.

Power of appointment does not prevent the fee vesting subject to be divested by execution of the power. Such a power is a mode which the owner of the estate reserves to himself, or gives to another, through the medium of the statute of uses of raising and passing an estate. Maundrell v. Maundrell, 10 Ves. 265, 266.

A general power of appointment over the whole estate may subsist in the same person who has the fee simple. Maundrell v. Maundrell, 10 Ves. 247, overthrowing the principle of Cross v. Hudson, 3 Bro. C. C. 30. See note there.

A bare naked power is not barred by any of the statutes of fines; otherwise as to an interesse termini. Willis v. Shorrell, 1 Atk. 476. Neither can a collateral or naked power be barred or extinguished by fine, forfeiture, or any other conveyance. Albany's ca., 1 Co. 111. Digge's ca., 1 Co. 174. Edwards v. Slater, Hard. 415. FINE & RECOVERY.

Where power is given to a woman to dispose of estate by will, and she marries, sensible, it is a suspension of power. Set quare. Rich v. Beaumont, 6 Bro. P. C. 152. MARRIAGE, EFFECT OF.

Tenant for ninety-nine years, if he so long live, with a power of charging the premises with sums of money, joins in suffering a recovery, and declares the uses thereof: this extinguishes the power of charging the estate. Savile v. Blacket, 1 P. W. 777.

XII. CONSTRUCTION OF POWERS IN GENERAL.

A power of sale and exchange vested in the trustees of a settlement, may be exercised by the trustees upon a sale to, or an exchange with, the tenant for life of the settled estates. Where, upon the exercise of such a power, it is declared, that the estate shall be vested in the purchaser, the purchase being made in the name of a trustee, an appointment to the trustee, in trust for the purchaser, is a valid execution of the power. Howard v. Ducane, 1 Turn. & R. 81. TRUSTEES.

Power to a tenant for life, lord of a manor, to enfranchise, and for that purpose to convey the freehold to the customary or copyhold tenants, authorizes a conveyance of the freehold to one who is equitably entitled, and has been erroneously admitted without a previous surrender by his trustee. Wilson v. Allen, 1 Jac. & W. 611. COPYHOLD, ENFRANCHISEMENT OF.

Power to charge portions not inconsistent with an estate tail. Jervoise v. De Northumberland, 1 Jac. & W. 575. ESTATE TAIL.

Power to exchange does not, it seems, warrant a partition. Att. Gen. v. Hamilton, 1 Mad. 214. PARTITION; EXCHANGE OF ESTATES.

Power to charge a sum in gross implies power to give interest also. Roe v. Pogson, 2 Mad. 457. INTEREST.

Direction to trustees to cut trees in aid of testator's real and personal estate: held not a trust, but a mere power upon the whole of the will. Gower v. Eyre, Cooper, 156. TRUST; WILL, C. OF.

Power to appoint estates, to be purchased with money, produced by the sale of other estates, well executed by an appointment, operating directly on the original estates. Bullock v. Hodgkiss, 1 V. & B. 471.

Power to appoint an estate includes a power to dispose of the estate and appoint the produce. The same effect has been given in the more doubtful case of a power to charge; and a power to appoint the money, produced by an estate directed to be sold, has been considered as a power to appoint the estate itself. Id. 478.

Devise, subject as to part to a devise to trustees and their heirs, for debts, in aid of the personal estate, and as to part to mortgages in fee to sons and a daughter, and their respective issue male in strict settlement, &c., with power to the sons respectively, when in possession, to convey or appoint all or any part to trustees on trust by the rents and profits, to raise a rent charge as and for a jointure for any wife or wives, for each such wife's natural life only, and also to charge portions by deed and to lease for twenty-one years. Execution of the power by conveyance to trustees and their heirs on trust, by the rents and profits, to raise and pay a jointure during the wife's natural life only, and charging portions, with covenant for title, and for quiet enjoyment, by the trustees during the natural life only of the wife. As to the estate of the trustees at law, quære? the court of king's bench certifying, that they took an estate in fee, and the court of common pleas, that they took no estate whatsoever. Wykham v. Wykham, 18 Ves. 395. WILL, C. OF, WHAT ESTATE.

Power of appointment in tenant for life subject to condition of her remaining sole and unmarried, which condition was qualified by proviso, that a marriage, with consent of A B & C, should not determine that power. Condition held a condition subsequent, and becoming impossible by death of A, B, & C, marriage of tenant for life after their death without their consent did not determine the power. Aislabe v. Rice, 3 Mad. 256. CONDITION, SUBSEQUENT.

Power of sale not well executed by a partition. M'Queen v. Farquhar, 11 Ves. 467. PARTITION.

Power of exchange or partition does not include a power of sale. Id. 473.

A trust created to raise 36,000*l.* for the portions of three children, A, L & C, to be paid to and amongst them at such time and times, and in such share and proportion as M should appoint by deed or will, and in default of appointment, to be paid to and amongst the said A, L & C, in equal shares, on their respectively attaining twenty-one or marriage; provided, that if any of the said daughters should die under twenty-one, or unmarried, 24,000*l.* only to be raised for the surviving daughters, to be paid to and amongst them at such time or times, and in such shares as M should appoint; and if no appointment, then to be paid equally between them at twenty-one or marriage, and if two die before twenty-one and unmarried, then a like proviso for raising only 12,000*l.* L attains twenty-one, and dies. The whole 36,000*l.* to be raised; but M has no power to appoint the share of L. It goes equally between the survivors and the personal representatives of L. An appointment as to the remaining 24,000*l.* between A & C, unequally, is good. Vane v. Ld. Duncannon, 2 Scho. & L. 118. SETTLE. C. OF.

Power to appoint land is well executed by a charge. Kemworthy v. Bate, 6 Ves. 796.

Power of appointing real estate is well executed by a devise to trustees to sell, and an appointment of money produced by the sale. Id. 793.

Power to charge includes power to sell. Id. 797.

Devise in trust to dispose of the premises unto and amongst the devisee's four children, in such manner, shares, &c. as he should, by deed or will, appoint. One dying in the life of his father before appointment, was held entitled to a fourth; the father, after that child's death, having appointed three fourths to his three surviving children respectively. Reade v. Reade, 5 Ves. 744. This decision, as far as it leaves one fourth to the deceased child, is questioned by Ld. Eldon. Butcher v. Butcher, 1 V. & B. 192. WILL, C. OF.

Appointment by father and son under a power, of money charged on an estate, that in case the son should survive, it should be applied by him in and towards payment of the debts of the father, and subject thereto, the residue, if any, should go, and be considered as part of the personal estate of the father, and in case the latter should survive, it should go and be paid by them, his executors, &c. in and towards satisfaction of his debts, with a similar provision as to the residue: the father surviving appointed in favour of another son for valuable consideration as to part; as to that the decree directed payment under the appointment. Clinton v. Seymour, 4 Ves. 440.

Power to appoint for the benefit of a married woman and her family, would not include the husband in general; but upon the whole will an appointment in his favour was established. M'Leoth v. Bacon, 5 Ves. 159.

A devised all his estates to widow for life, remainder to nephew, he paying 2000*l.* to appointee of widow, and made her executrix and residuary legatee. The estates were held under church leases, which testator renewed after will. Qu. if a revocation? The widow, by will, "in pursuance of power," appointed plaintiff and devised estates, "so given by her said husband's will, and all her interest, &c. therein," to trustees, for nephew, on his paying the said 2000*l.* "according to the true intent, &c. of husband's will; but not before or otherwise." Supposing the renewal of leases a revocation, the widow shall be presumed to have designedly given effect to real intent of husband. Penrice v. Gomers, 3 Anst. 621. WILL, C. OF; WILL, REVOC. OF; RENEWAL OF LEASES.

A power to charge a sum in gross, implies a power to give any rate of legal interest, and the rule of the court to give 4 per cent. applies only where no rate is specified by the party having powers to fix it. Lewis v. Freke, 2 Ves. J. 507. INTEREST.

Partition of an estate in common, a good execution of a power to sell or exchange. Abel v. Heathcote, 2 Ves. J. 98. S. C. 4 Bro. C. C. 278. PARTITION.

A devised to B, for life, remainder to his first and other sons in tail male, remainder over in trust to convey the premises, or any part thereof, to such child or children of testator's daughter, and her then husband, other than and except their eldest son, for the time being, and the issue male or female of such child or children (except as before excepted), for such estates, and in such shares, and subject to such limitations as she, by deed or will, should appoint; and for want of appointment by her, or for so much as shall not have been appointed by her, then as her husband should, by deed or will, appoint; and for want of such appointment, or for so much, &c. then as their eldest son for the time being shall appoint. The husband, by his will (his wife having died without appointing), appointed to his younger sons, by name in tail with cross remainders in tail, and if all his said younger sons should die without issue, then to his daughters. He died, leaving his sons the appointees, still younger sons; afterwards one of them became the only surviving son, the rest being dead without issue, and then the trust estate vested in possession by the death of B without issue male. The daughters of the appointor claimed the estate, considering the appointment to their surviving brother as defeated, by his being, as they said, an eldest son for the time being, and so excluded by the will of A; and the other brothers, the appointees, being dead without issue. But it was decreed by Lifford C., that the appointment to him continued undisturbed; that "time being" meant the time of the appointment being made, that the appointees were as if named in the will of A, and that the daughters could only claim under the appointment of their father, who limited it to them in the event of all his sons, the appointees, dying without issue, which did not happen. Jones v. Cope, Vern. & Scriv. 29. WILL, C. OF, WHO TAKE.

Where lands of a specific annual value are settled in jointure, pursuant to a power, the value is to be estimated at the death of the husband. Cs. Londonderry v. Wayne, 2 Eden, 170. S. C. Ambl. 424.

A, by will, devised his collieries, &c. to trustees, upon trusts to dispose and convey the same in such manner as his daughter, M., whether sole or covert, should direct or appoint; and for want of such direction or appointment, to apply the money arising thereby to certain purposes in his will mentioned. He then declared, "that though his meaning was to give his said daughter the absolute disposal of the said collieries, &c., to prevent the expences and trouble that must attend the management of affairs of such a nature, under the direction of the court of chancery; he requested his said daughter to direct the money arising therefrom, to be applied in such manner as he had directed the same in default of her direction and appointment." The daughter made an appointment in favour of her husband absolutely. But this appointment was held to be void, as being contrary to the testator's intention. El. Bute v. Stuart, 1 Bro. P. C. 476. WILL, C. OF.

Writing in nature of a will by feme covert under a power, not a proper will, and the appointees take under the power coupled with the writing; yet it has effect of a will to three intents; the words have the same liberal construction; it is ambulatory until testator's death, whom appointee might survive, and can take only from testatrix's death. Southby v. Stonehouse, 2 Ves. 612. FEME COVERT.

Where given to those not capable, together with another who is capable, the latter will take the whole. Under such a power, it cannot be given free from debts of the appointee. Alexander v. Alexander, 2 Ves. 640. Id.

Power to husband to make jointure not exceeding clear yearly value of 100*l.* for every 1000*l.* portion; part of the portion is limited, the interest to the husband for life, then to increase younger children's fortune; if none, to survivor of husband or wife: this considered as received by him, as settled fairly for the family and for his benefit, and within interest of the power. "Clear" means, as at the time of making the jointure, and not during its continuance, which would make these powers fluctuating. "Clear" means free from charges usually allowed between buyer and seller, and by the course of the country borne by tenant, but subject to land-tax, and those borne by landlord. El. Tyromel v. Dk. Anoster, 2 Ves. 500. S. C. Ambl. 237.

Power of appointment by a father not well executed, being contrary to the intention as collected from a reasonable construction of the recital of the deed which created the power: "and" construed "or." Burleigh v. Pearson, 1 Ves. 281.

Devise in trust to sell, and a charge to pay debts, give equally power of sale. Elliot v. Merriman, 2 Atk. 43. S. C. Barn. 78. POWER OF SALE.

A general power to raise portions for daughters may be restrained and qualified by particular proviso. Fane v. Dk. Devonshire, 6 Bro. P. C. 137.

Power to charge lands with sum of money, imports interest thereof also. Ld. Kilmurry v. Geery, 2 Salk. 538. INT. WHEN PAYABLE.

A settles land to the use of himself for life, remainder to such of his four children, and in such shares and proportions, as A by any writing shall appoint. A may not only limit the land to any of his children, but may charge the land with any rent-charge or sums of money for any of his children. Thwaytes v. Dye, 2 Vern. 80. SETTLEMENT, C. OF.

XIII. TRANSFER OF POWERS BY DELEGATION OR ACT OF LAW.

Bankrupt seised for life, with a general power of appointment, with remainder, in default of appointment, to the heirs of his body, cannot be compelled by decree in equity to execute the power for his creditors: but see 6 G. 4. c. 16. s. 77. Thorpe v. Goodall, 17 Ves. 388. 460. S. C. 1 Rose, 270. BANKCY. CONVEYANCE BY BANKRUPT.

Mere power unexecuted in a tenant for life who becomes bankrupt, does not vest in his assignees. Townshend v. Windham, 2 Ves. 3. BANKCY. ASSIGNMENT, WHAT PASSES.

A power under a settlement for a husband to dispose of a reversionary interest in an estate, in such proportions as he should think fit, among the issue of the marriage, he, by will, delegates it to his wife in such shares as she pleases between his son and daughter: Held to be like a power of attorney, and not transmissible to a third person, but could be executed by the husband only. Ingram v. Ingram, 2 Atk. 88. ALIENATION.

A bill having been filed by a number of persons, on behalf of themselves and other creditors of a banking-house, an order is obtained by A, one of the plaintiffs, to amend the bill by striking out the names of the co-partners, but no amendment is actually made; many years afterwards, the executors of A, not knowing that the record had not been amended, file a bill of revivor, as if A had been the sole plaintiff, and an order of revivor being obtained, move in the revived cause for a receiver. Such a motion is irregular, notwithstanding that the order of revivor has not been discharged. Hughes v. Dumbell, 1 Russ. 317.

A bill against several defendants being retained, with liberty for the plaintiff to bring an action against one of the defendants, the trial may take place during an abatement, occasioned by the death of one of the other defendants, if the decree does not direct them to attend it. Humphreys v. Holt, 1 Jac. 73. PR. RETAINING BILL; PR. ACTION AT LAW.

A suit by a corporation does not become defective on the death of some of the members; otherwise of a suit by the members in their individual characters. Blackburn v. Jepson, 3 Swan. 138. CORPORATION.

Order to dismiss for want of prosecution, after an abatement, although irregular, not to be regarded as a nullity; consequently, that order must be discharged before the plaintiff can obtain an order to revive the suit. Boddy v. Kent, 1 Mer. 361. PR. ORDER TO DISMISS FOR WANT OF PROSECUTION.

Separation a mensa thoro in the spiritual court, only propter sevitiam aut adulterium; and after reconciliation, the same cause cannot be revived. Id. St. John v. St. John, 11 Ves. 532.

The right of children to a provision out of the property of their mother, under decree directing a settlement by husband on her and her children, exists notwithstanding death of mother before the report. Murray v. Elbank, 10 Ves. 84. HUSB. & WIFE, SETTLED BY COURT; PARENT & CHILD.

Order for transfer and payment out of court, though case abated; the right being clear. Roundell v. Turner, 6 Ves. 250. PR. PAYMT. OUT OF COURT.

If settlement of the wife's equitable interest had been approved and ordered by the court, it is binding notwithstanding the death of either party before it is carried into effect. Macanley v. Philips, 4 Ves. 19 HUSB. & WIFE, SETTLED BY COURT.

Where there is a reference to the master in a case of lunacy, he shall make his report, although the lunatic be dead. Exp. Armstrong, 3 Bro. C. C. 238. LUNACY; PR. REF. TO MASTER.

Not necessary to revive a perpetual injunction on death of party. Askew v. Townsend, Dick. 471.

After abatement, defendant having absconded, and stat. 5 G. 2. c. 25. being complied with, bill to be taken pro confesso. Seagood v. Ferrard, id. 300. Fit vid. 63.

Depositions from abroad, published, though taken during abatement. Sinclair v. James, id. 277.

Though a cause be abated, money may be ordered to be paid out of court, without reviving the cause, upon the consent of all the parties actually interested. Beard v. El. Powis, 2 Ves. 399. PR. PAYMT. OUT OF COURT.

Abatement, after answer to bill of discovery, suit cannot be revived. Gould v. Barnes, Dick. 133.

Depositions allowed to be read, though taken during abatement. Thompson v. Took, id. 115.

Sequestration as a process, abates on death of plaintiff, and revivor of suit. Hyde v. Foster, id. 132.

A sequestration issues as a mesne process of the court, falls with the death of the person; but if for non-performance of a decree, the death of the party does not determine it. Hawkins v. Crook, 2 Atk. 594. Burdett v. Rockley, 1 Vern. 58. PR. SEQUESTRATION.

On an appeal, the house reserved giving judgment upon the point, until an account between the parties was taken. The account is accordingly taken, but before the appeal is brought on again, one of the parties dies; the suit below is thereupon regularly revived. Held, the appeal need not be also revived. Lake v. Mason, 5 Bro. P. C. 281. PR. APPEAL.

Defendants enrolled decree after abatement, and held regular. De Berks v. Sheffield, Amb. 586. PR. ENROLMENT OF DECREE.

Man and wife sue for promise made to wife during coverture, wife dies; suit does not abate. Thorne v. Brand, Cary, 62.

After abatement defendant absconding, 5 Geo. 2. c. 25., must be complied with. James v. Dore, Dick. 63.

Though by death of cestuique trust, the suit abates as to him, yet if there be a decree against him and his trustees to convey, &c., the trustees are obliged to convey the legal title, for the death of either party makes an abatement only quoad himself. Finch v. Id. Winchelsea, 1 Eq. Ab. 2. TRUSTEES & CESTUIQUE TRUST.

The court will order money out of court to person entitled to it by decree, notwithstanding death of some of the parties. Id. ib. PR. PAYMT. OUT OF COURT.

If, after a decree to account, an executor or administrator does not revive within six years, this is not within the statute of limitations. Hollingshead's case, 1 P. W. 742. DECREE TO ACCOUNT; LIMITATIONS STAT. OF.

Decrees of this court take effect from the time they are pronounced, and the death of the parties shall not hinder the enrolment in convenient time. Clapham v. Phillips, Rep. T. Finch, 169. PR. DECREE, ENROLMENT OF.

A decree may be enrolled after the party's death by order. Anon. 2 C. C. 227. PR. DECREE.

(b) By Death.

Husband and wife defendants to a bill praying an assignment of a term, which the wife by answer claims to hold, to preserve her title to dower; on the death of the husband, the suit may proceed without a supplemental bill, semble. Mole v. Smith, 1 Jac. 495. HUSB. & WIFE.

P. ami of feme plaintiff being dead, she was ordered to appoint new one in two months, or bill dismissed with costs out of fund in court. Barlee v. Barlee, 1 S. & S. 100. P. AMI.

A commission of bankruptcy cannot proceed, after the death of the party against whom it issued, if before a declaration of bankruptcy. Exp. Isaac, 2 Ves. & B. 29. BANKCY. COMMISS. OF.

Power of attorney to a creditor to receive debt, not accompanying any assignment of it nor taking part of any security given, but with declarations that it was to enable the creditor to apply the money to his debt, held not an appropriation, and therefore failed by the death of the debtor. Lepard v. Vernon, 2 Ves. & B. 51. POWER OF ATTORNEY.

Death of one of defendants, does not necessarily prevent judgment. Davies v. Davies, 9 Ves. 461. PR. JUDGMENT.

If a defendant in equity becomes bankrupt, the plaintiff cannot therefore dismiss his own bill without paying costs; it is no abatement. Rutherford v. Miller, 2 Anst. 458. DISMISSAL OF BILL; BANKCY.

An order was made that the plaintiff should set down his cause to be heard within a limited time, or that the bill should be dismissed without further order; in the mean time the suit abated by the death of a defendant: this abatement suspends the effects of the former order. Greyson v. Oswald, 1 Cox. 343. PR. ORDER TO SET DOWN CAUSE.

Sequestration to compel performance of a decree abated by death of plaintiff. Wharam v. Broughton, 1 Ves. 182. PR. SEQUESTRATION.

Also the suit abates, a further act being necessary, so that a bill of revivor must be filed: no subpoena, scilicet, as the decree was not signed and enrolled. Id. ib.

Et. scilicet, not abated by death of plaintiff, the right being vested; otherwise of an extent where a liberata is necessary; so of a sequestration, because a further act is necessary. Id. ib.

Plaintiff gave feme covert a promissory note, and the husband dying before answer to a bill of discovery of the consideration: held, that suit was abated. Lightbourn v. Holyday, 2 Eq. Ab. 1. HUSB. & WIFE.

Though by 8 Will. 3. a suit shall not abate by the death of one defendant; yet it must be taken with this restriction, that the subject-matter of the bill is not hurt thereby. Brown v. Higden, 1 Ark. 291.

A custody of a lunatic's estate granted to baron and feme (the feme being next of kin) determines on her death. Exp. Lym, Forres. 143. LUNATIC, COMMITTEE OF; HUSB. & WIFE.

Bill for a legacy against baron and feme who was executrix of testator, defendants answer and witnesses are examined and publication passed; husband dies; no abatement, and the wife shall be bound by the answer and depositions; but it might be otherwise if the wife's inheritance was in question. Shelbury v. Briggs, 2 Vern. 249. See quere, see Anon. id. 197. PR. EVIDENCE; HUSB. & WIFE.

In a bill of interpleader, a trial of law is directed between the defendants; the suit, if thereby ended as to the plaintiff, so that if the plaintiff dies, defendant may proceed without reviving the cause. Anon. 1 Vern. 351. PR. INTERPLEADER.

A sequestration which issues as mesne process determines by the death of the party, otherwise if it issues after a decree, though for a personal duty. Burdett v. Rockly, 1 Vern. 58. PR. SEQUESTRATION.

Effect of a sequestration binds from the time of awarding the commission, and not only from the time of executing it. Id. ib.

Bill against husband and wife abates by death of former. Anon. 3 Salk. 84. HUSB. & WIFE.

If the bill be brought by husband and wife for a demand in her right, and the husband dies, it is in the nature of a chose in action and survives, and the cause does not abate. Perry v. Juton, 3 C. R. 40. HUSB. & WIFE.

Where joint tenants file a bill, and one dies, his interest survives to the other, and therefore there is no abatement. See quere as to tenants in common. 1 Eq. Ab. 1. Wright v. Dorset, 3 C. R. 66. JOINT TENANCY.

Bill by husband and wife for promise made to both; since bill filed wife died: it is not necessary to revive. Thorne v. Brend, Cary, 89.

(c) By Bankruptcy or Insolvency.

The devisee having taken the benefit of an insolvent act, and made the assignee a party to the suit, who, by his answer, disclaimed all knowledge of the assignment, and refused to undertake the trust for the creditors, he cannot be compelled to act, and the suit remains imperfect until another assignee is appointed and made a party: a decree made in such a state of the cause is erroneous. Rylands v. Latouche, 2 Bli. 567. RENOUNCEMENT OF TRUST; INSOLVENCY, ASSIGNEE IN.

Plaintiff becoming bankrupt, a special motion must be made and notice served on assignees that they file supplemental bill; in nature of revivor within given time, or bill may stand dismissed. Porter v. Cox, 5 Mad. 80. BANKRUPTCY, EFFECT OF.

On plaintiff's bankruptcy, defendant may move that assignees file supplemental bill in given time, or that bill stand dismissed. Wheeler v. Malins, 4 Mad. 171. BANKCY. EFFECT OF, PR. MOTION TO DISMISS.

By the bankruptcy of the plaintiff the suit becomes defective if not abated by analogy to law, the assignees ordered to be made parties in a limited time, or the bill to be dismissed; whether with costs? Randall v. Mumford, 18 Ves. 424. S. C. 1 Rose, B. C. 196. BANKCY.

By the insolvency of the plaintiff pending an account, the suit is abated. Williams v. Kinder, 4 Ves. 389. INSOLVENCY.

Bankruptcy of the plaintiff does not abate a suit in equity, and the bill may therefore be dismissed with costs for want of prosecution. Davidson v. Butler, 2 Anst. 460. BANKCY.; DISMISSAL OF BILL.

A plaintiff having become bankrupt, and his assignees not having the consent of the creditors to proceed in the cause in due time, the defendants obtained an order to dismiss the bill for want of prosecution. Order discharged under the circumstances upon the terms of the assignees filing a bill of revivor within a week (whether bankruptcy is an absolute abatement of the suit, quere?) Lingard v. Wigg, 3 Bro. C. C. 435. PR. DISMISSAL OF BILL; BANKCY.

(d) By Marriage.

Upon the marriage of female plaintiff, revivor alone will not do, where the interests of third person, viz. trustees and the issue must be brought forward, making a supplemental bill necessary. But a motion to stay an attachment for want of answer was refused, being made with consent of the husband, in the face of his covenant, to permit the suit to be revived and prosecuted by the trustees in his name, for the benefit of the family, Mereweather v. Mellish, 13 Ves. 161.

Abatement by marriage of feme plaintiff to bill of discovery after answer: Held that defendant cannot have his costs. Dodson v. Jude, 10 Ves. 31. PR. COSTS; PR. BILL OF DISCOVERY.

Infant plaintiff a ward of court having married, proceedings stayed till husband shall appear. Bruinell v. McPherson, 7 Ves. 237. AWARD OF COURT.

Bill to revive bill of revivor lies. Att. Gen. v. Burkham, Hard. Exch. 201.

Feme sole sues out a commission to examine witnesses; before they are examined she marries. Their depositions ordered to stand. Winter v. Daniele, 1oth. 99. PR. COMMISSION TO EXAMINE; PR. EVIDENCE.

(e) By Infant coming of Age.

Bill by administrator durante minoritate abates by infant coming of age, therefore supplemental bill is necessary. Stubbs v. Leigh, 1 Cox, 133.

By the infant's coming of age, administration durante minoritate ceases, and suit by such administrator is thereby determined for that the infant cannot go on therewith, but must begin anew, unless a decree to account were had, in which case the infant on a bill brought for that purpose, may be allowed to go on therewith. Jones v. Bassett, Prec. Chan. 174. ADMOR. DUR. MIN. ETATE.

An infant suing by prochein ami comes of age, afterward publication passed, and the cause came on to be heard. It was objected that the suit was abated, but the court overruled the objection and proceeded to hear the cause, and in such cases the course is to proceed to hearing without any change in the proceedings. Cur. Can. 464.

Infants coming of age do not abate bill brought by administrator durante minoritate. Cary, 22.

(b) For Costs.

The general rule being, that there shall be no revivor for costs alone, yet where the costs have been taxed previous to the abatement, it seems there is a right to revive merely for the purpose of having them paid; and where the abatement has happened by the death of the party in whose favour the costs were awarded, it is the settled practice of the court that his representative may revive for such purpose. Louten v. Mayor, &c. of Colchester, 2 Mer. 113.

A cause is not out of court for this purpose, in consequence of the bill being dismissed. Enrolment of the decree not necessary to entitle the representative of a party to revive for costs; revivor for costs decreed out of a particular fund, is another exception to the general rule. Id. ib. DECREE, ENROLMENT OF.

No revivor for costs alone, unless they are to be paid out of estate. Jenour v. Jenour, 10 Ves. 572.

Revivor for costs only on the death of the plaintiff entitled to them, though before the report, and they were not to come out of a particular fund. Morgan v. Scudamore, 3 Ves. 195.

Though, generally speaking, costs die with the party if they have not been taxed, several exceptions are allowed to it, and revivor may be for costs alone, under particular circumstances, as where a duty is decreed, or where out of a particular fund, though nothing more to be done. Kemp v. Mackrell, 2 Ves. 579.

Where, at the hearing of an original and cross cause, the cross bill was dismissed with costs, and an account directed in the original suit, and the plaintiff died before the account was taken, the court held it a decree executory, and therefore that the representative of the plaintiff was entitled to revive for the costs of the cross cause. S. C. 3 Atk. 812. 2 Ves. 580.

And where a duty is also decreed, or where the costs are directed out of a particular fund, though nothing in the decree remains to be done, the case is held to be an exception to the rule. Id. ib.

Revivor is allowed for costs taxed; costs die with the party, unless taxed, and even where taxed in the lifetime of such party, and the person to pay them is in prison; he will be discharged unless there be a revivor within a reasonable time: this in like manner as in a case of sequestration. White v. Hayward, 2 Ves. 461.

Though the strict rule be not to allow revivor merely for costs which have not been taxed, the court leans against enforcing it if there be any thing in the decree yet remaining to be executed. Johnson v. Peck, 2 Ves. 465.

The court inclines against the rule of not reviving for costs untaxed, and therefore will not enforce it if the decree remains in any part unexecuted, and if the decree is against an executor for a sum with costs out of assets, and the executor pays the sum, but not the costs, and dies, it is held a decree executory, and the plaintiff entitled to revive. Id. and S. C. Johnson v. Leake, 3 Atk. 773.

After verdict on issue directed, leases decreed to be delivered up to the plaintiff; after the master had settled the amount of the costs, but before report, the plaintiff died. On demurrer to so much of the bill by his devisees as prayed revivor, the court inclined to hold the rule not to revive for costs only, not applicable where the party to receive them dies also; that the taxation would relate to the time when the amount was settled, so as to take it out of the rule; but the demurrer was overruled, as it did not appear on the bill that the decree had been executed by delivering up the leases. Morgan v. Scudamore, 2 Ves. J. 313.

Where the party to pay costs dies, and they are not taxed, no revivor for them only, because a personal demand. Id. ib. 315.

A representative of a person who had obtained an order to tax a bill, can revive it only on an undertaking to pay. Murphy v. Bulderston, 2 Atk. 114. PR. ORDER TO TAX, REVIVAL OF; EXORS. & ADMORS.

Baron and feme brings a bill to redeem a mortgage, defendants plead to the bill, and the plea overruled, and costs given to the plaintiffs, which by the course of the court, are 5*l.* Baron dies; the feme by survivorship shall have the costs. Copple v. —, 2 P. W. 486. HUSB. & WIFE; PR. TAXED COSTS; SURVIVORSHIP.

Bond given to a baron and feme during coverture, baron dies; the bond will survive to the wife, id. 497. Id.

Suit cannot be revived for costs only, though taxed, unless decree is enrolled. Gleham v. Statwell, Dick. 14. But see 2 Mer. 113. DECREE, ENROLLMENT OF.

(c) How revived.

Bill of revivor having been filed, but no order to revive obtained, court ordered plaintiff to revive within ten days, or original and revived bill to be dismissed. Bolton v. Bolton, 2 S. & S. 371. PR. ORDER TO REVIVE.

Where a feme plaintiff marries, and the husband dies before revivor, a bill of revivor is unnecessary, but the subsequent proceedings ought to be in the name, and description acquired by the marriage. Godkin v. El. Ferrers, Mitf. 47. HUSB. & WIFE.

Where sole relator dies, application for new one must be made by the attorney general. Att. Gen. v. Plumptree, 5 Mad. 452. RELATOR.

Where husband and wife are defendants, and by the death of the husband a new interest arises to the wife, the suit becomes defective, a supplemental bill is necessary, and she is not bound by the answer put in during the coverture. Neale v. Smith, 1 Jac. & W. 665. See 1 Jac. 490. HUSB. & WIFE; SUPPL. BILL.

On abatement by bankruptcy of defendant, an executor, after decree to account, supplemental bill in nature of revivor is necessary. Russell v. Sharp, 1 V. & B. 500. EXOR.; PR. SUPPL. BILL; PR. DECREE TO ACCOUNT.

Where a party is avoiding service, and the clerk in court is dead, the proper course is to move first, that service of a subpoena to name clerk in court, on the solicitor, may be good service; and if none is named, then that service on the solicitor may be good service. Franklyn v. Colhoun, 12 Ves. 2. PR. SUBPOENA SERVICE SUBSTITUTED; PR. OFFICERS OF COURT, CLERK IN COURT.

When an appeal is abated in the House of Lords, the order to revive is obtained of course, and there is no fresh summons. Byne v. Potter, 5 Ves. 305. PR. APPEAL IN HOUSE OF LORDS.

The defendant dying after service of the subpoena to hear judgment, whether upon a bill of revivor, a new subpoena to hear judgment is necessary, quere? Id. ib. PR. SUBPOENA TO HEAR JUDGMENT; PR. BILL OF REVIVOR.

Where a defendant dies pending an injunction against him to restrain proceedings in an ejectment, the heir at law may move, that plaintiff in equity may revive within a week, or the injunction be dissolved. Hill v. Hoare, 2 Cox, 50. HEIR AT LAW; INJUNCTION.

Although a defendant has appeared and answered the original bill, if he cannot be found to be served with a subpoena to answer a bill of revivor, the plaintiff must proceed under 5 G. 2. c. 25. to have the bill taken pro confesso. Henderson v. Meggs, 2 Bro. C. C. 127. PR. BILL, PRO CONFESSO; STAT. C. OF; PR. SERVICE OF SUBPOENA.

Not necessary to revive a perpetual injunction on death of party. Askew v. Townsend, Dick. 471.

Service of subpoena to revive, on defendant's clerk in court, in original cause refused. Brewin v. Lee, Dick. 545. Id. Lee v. Warner, Dick. 546.

Stat. 5 G. 2. c. 25. extends to bill of revivor. Att. Gen. v. Smith, id. 135.

Bill abated by marriage of plaintiff, no revivor till after cross bill, filed loses priority. Smart v. Floyer, id. 260.

The plaintiff, on the death of the defendant, is not obliged to bring a bill of revivor, but may file a new bill. Anon. 3 Atk. 486.

If the party's clerk in court be dead, no process can be taken out against the party, until he has appointed a new clerk in court, and a subpoena ad faciend. attorn. must be taken out for that purpose. Ratcliff v. Roper, 1 P. W. 420. PR. CLK. IN COURT.

Part of the matters being omitted in drawing up the decree, and after the decree signed and enrolled, the defendant dies, a bill of revivor lies to revive the matters omitted. Williams v. Arthur, 1 C. C. 37. 2 Free. 177. PR. DECREE.

After decree signed and enrolled, and several proceedings had respecting costs, the suit abated by death of the plaintiff; held, a bill of revivor was the proper mode of reviving the decree. Croster v. Wisiter, 2 C. R. 67. 1b.

Where a suit abates, plaintiff may bring an original bill, or bill of revivor at his election. Spencer v. Wray, 1 Vern. 463.

To be suppressed if scandalous or impertinent. Id. 25.

When insufficient, for first answer defendant to pay costs. Id. 28.

For second, when insufficient on same points, double costs. Id. 28.

So for third, treble costs. Id. 28.

So for fourth, quadruple costs, and defendant to be committed and examined on interrogatories. Id. 28. 183.

If certified, sufficient, plaintiff is to pay costs. Id. 28. 182.

Cannot be excepted to as insufficient after replication. Id. 28.

Must be direct to matter charged as defendant's own acts, if laid as done within seven years before. Id. 28. 179.

Unless on exception taken, the court dispenses with so positive an answer. Id. 179.

How defendant must traverse a fact. Id. 29. 179.

Answer admitted true in all points when hearing prayed on bill and answer. Id. 29. 180.

To be read at hearing where no counsel appears for defendant, and process served. Id. 29. 198.

Report on reference of answer, as insufficient, to be procured and filed within a month, or reference void. Id. 53.

Answer not to be stuffed with repetitions of deeds in hac verba. Id. 69. 166.

Only to contain the effect and substance, &c. in brief terms, avoiding useless traverses, tautologies, &c. Id. 70. 166.

If, on answer, there is sufficient for a decree, cause to be set down on bill and answer. Id. 78. 180.

Answer not to be copied until filed and hand of six clerk put to it. Id. 110. 123. 187.

Taken by commissioner not to be opened or copied until returned to six clerk. Id. 111. 191.

To be filed with six clerk. Id. 123. 135. 140. 168. 231.

Not to be impertinent or scandalous. Id. 25. 266.

Is not of record until filed with six clerk. Id. 168.

No commission to take an answer to issue, party being in contempt, without motion and affidavits. Id. 178.

No second commission to answer, but on special order or plaintiff assenting. Id. 178. 183.

If, on exceptions to answer, defendant do not within eight days amend or put in a second insufficient answer, plaintiff may refer. Id. 182.

And for second insufficient answer defendant to pay costs. Id. 182. 183.

The course if answer is filed in vacation. Id. 182.

If answer reported good, plaintiff is to pay costs. Id. 182.

So on second application for time to answer amended bill, or after exceptions allowed. Id. 455. But this not to preclude special application. Id. 456.

2. Form of.

Answer ordered off the file, it purporting to be an answer to the bill of five complainants when there were six. Cope v. Parry, 1 Mad. 83. PR. INTITUTING PLEADINGS.

Joint and several answer, including in title persons who declined joining in suit, ordered to be received as answer of those who swore without striking out names of the others. Done v. Read, 2 V. & B. 310. PL. PARTIES.

Where a foreigner puts in an answer in his own language, a sworn translation must be filed with it. Simmonds v. Cs. Du Barré, 3 Brown, C. C. 265. FOREIGNER.

3. Signature of.

All answers to be signed by defendant in presence of master or commissioners. Beame's Ord. p. 452, and by counsel. Id. 25. 70. 165.

Where an answer is contained in more than one skin of parchment, every skin must be signed by the defendant, and therefore where in a country cause an answer was comprised in two skins, and the last only was signed, the court directed that an officer should take the answer into the country, and procure the signature of the defendant to the other skin, unless the defendant should previously come to town and sign it. Jacobs v. Badger, 1 Y. & J. 166.

Answer on two skins must be signed on both, and where answer was attended also with other irregularities, ordered to be taken off file with liberty to put on another, first to be impounded to guard against perjury. Bailey v. Forbes, 1 M'Clel. & Y. 462.

If one only of several skins of answer be signed by defendant, it will be ordered off the file to be resworn, and signed. But where it appeared probable from the motion (for shewing cause against an order nisi for dissolving an injunction obtained for want of answer) being delayed till the last day, that the object of the application was to protract the injunction, the court permitted the answer to be filed, resigned, and resworn on the following day tunc pronunc, to save the order nisi, and prevent the delay. Costs of the motion were also refused. Carver v. Bonsanquet, 13 Price, 604. S.C. 1 M'Clel. 456.

If a bill and cross bill be filed, the plaintiff in the original bill has a right to the first answer, and may move to stay proceedings in the cross cause till the original bill is answered, though the plaintiff in the cross bill may be in a situation to enforce an answer first. The right of the plaintiff in the original bill to make the motion, was held not to have been waived, by his having taken out the common orders for time to answer the cross bill. Harris v. Harris, 1 Turn. & R. 165. PR. CROSS BILL; WAIVER; PR. ORDER FOR TIME TO ANSWER.

Guardian of infant defendant being a co-defendant, need only sign the joint answer once. Anon. 2 J. & W. 553. GUARDIAN; INFANT.

Plaintiff in original bill amending after cross bill filed, loses his right to receive an answer to original bill before he answers the cross bill. But in order to stay proceedings on original bill until cross bill is answered, defendant in original bill must obtain an order to stay proceedings. Noel v. King, 2 Mad. 392. PR. CROSS BILL; PR. STAYING PROCEEDINGS.

Defendant only signing first skin of answer, before filing, allowed to sign the rest on the file, and time allowed him to come to town for that purpose. Clarke v. Mansfield, 3 Price, 605.

The signature of counsel is necessary to an answer. The constant and undisturbed practice of the court is binding, as the law of the court, without positive order. The old practice on country commissions equivalent to a signature by counsel. Brown v. Bruce, 2 Mer. 1. PR. SIGN BY COUNSEL.

Order on plaintiff's motion, that defendant shall be at liberty to put in his answer without oath or signature, of course, if defendant is in this country; if abroad, his consent required. Codner v. Hersey, 18 Ves. 463. PR. ORDER.

Answer of a mere trustee, without interest in a state of incapacity, not to be taken without oath and signature. The proper course is to have a guardian appointed. Wilcox v. Grace, 14 Ves. 172. LUNATIC TRUSTEE.

Order made to take the answer of defendants, they being out of the jurisdiction, without oath and signature. Harding v. Harding, 12 Ves. 159.

Answer of defendant abroad (not being one required to be put in on oath) ordered to be put in by person having power of attorney to defend suits, &c. without signature. Bayley v. De Walkiers, 10 Ves. 441. POWER OF ATTORNEY.

Under special circumstances and by consent, six clerk was directed to receive the answer to bill of foreclosure, though not signed by defendant. — v. Lake, 6 Ves. 171. a. S. P. — v. Gwillim, id. 285.

Where counsel's name to answer was forged, the court will not order it off file to prejudice of innocent plaintiff. Bull v. Griffin, 2 Anst. 563. SIGNATURE OF COUNSEL.

4. Jurat of.

By order of the House of Lords, Dec. 3, 1640, the nobility of this kingdom, and Lords of the Upper House of Parliament, and the widows and dowagers of the temporal lords shall answer as defendants upon protestation of honour only, and such order shall extend to all answers and examinations upon interrogatories. Beame's Ord. Ch. 105. ~~FEELS~~.

Exceptions cannot be taken to answer put in without oath. Hiles v. El. Bute, 2 Fowl. Exch. Pr. 11.

Answer taken off the file for irregularity on the grounds (inter alia) that in jurat as to one defendant, a mistake had been made in the year 1817 being written for 1827, and that the answer had been affirmed by another of the defendants who was a quaker, under a commission issued to take the answer of that defendant upon his corporal oath. Parke v. Christey, 1 Y. & J. 533. ~~PH. TAKING PLEADINGS OFF FILE.~~

Answer of two defendants sworn only by one, ordered to be taken off the file. Cooke v. Westall, 1 Mad. 265.

Answer without oath or attestation of honour, regarded for the purposes of civil justice as if with that sanction. Curling v. Townshend, 19 Ves. 628.

Answer taken by commission abroad, ordered to be filed, without the usual oath of the messenger under the circumstances, that it had been opened by the defendant's solicitor, and afterwards read in the presence of the plaintiff, upon affidavits of the messenger, &c. identifying it, and accounting for its being opened, as the effect of accident, the farther irregularity being cured by the consent. Car v. Newman, 2 V. & B. 168.

An amendment in the title of an answer being necessary, viz. instead of "the farther answer to the original amended bill," entitling it "the farther answer to the original bill, and the answer to the amended bill," the answer so amended, must in the case of a peer, be again attested upon honour, as in the case of a common defendant it must be re-sworn. Peacock v. Dr. Redford, 1 V. & B. 186. ~~PH. AMENDMENT OF ANSWER; PEER.~~

If one puts in his answer as being a quaker, the court will not enquire whether he is such. Marsh v. Robinson, 2 Anst. 479. AFFIRMATION OF QUAKER.

An answer prepared for five, cannot be sworn to as the answer of three of them only. Harris v. James, 3 Bro. C. C. 399.

The court allowed a quaker to put in his answer without oath or affirmation, where the bill appeared frivolous. Wood v. Story, 1 P. W. 781. QUAKER.

A bill against a corporation to discover writings. The defendants answer under the common seal, and so being not sworn will answer nothing in their own prejudice. Ordered that the clerk of the company, and such principal members as the plaintiff shall think fit, answer on oath, and that a master settle the oath. Anon. 1 Vern. 117. CORPORATION.

Court has directed defendant to answer without oath, for purpose of entitling plaintiff to commission to examine abroad, even though injunction had been decreed against defendant till plaintiffs right had been tried and ascertained at law. E. I. Comp. v. Sandys, 1 Vern. 127. 130. Vide Anon. 1 P. W. 523.

In what cases a peer shall answer on oath. Meers v. Ld. Stourton, 2 Salk. 512. ~~PEER.~~

Answer and plea returned as an answer only, rejected, the plea not being upon oath, but without costs, because the commissioner's fault and not the defendant's. Jefferson v. Dawson, 2 C. C. 208.

Members of a corporation charged as private persons, answer upon oath. Warr v. Comp. of Felt-Makers, Toth. 7.

Bishop to answer upon oath. Mayor of Sarum v. Epis. Sarum, Toth. 12.

A bill being preferred against a quaker for tithes, who refused to answer upon oath, the defendant was brought to the bar, and having been brought three times before, the bill was taken pro confesso, and it was referred to a master to examine what was due, and not to be armed with a commission for that purpose. Anon. 2 C. C. 237. 2 Free. 27. ~~PR. BILL PRO CONFESSO; QUAKER.~~

5. Schedules.

Rule that there must be schedule before court will order production of deeds and papers, applies only in cases of discovery. Anon. 6 Mad. 97. ~~PL. DISCOVERY; PR. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS, &c.~~

Where in schedule to answer material error was discovered only on taking account before master. On petition and affidavit, supplemental schedules were allowed to be put in. French v. Myles, 4 Mad. 404.

Motion for payment of money into court, not admitted to be due, even upon the examination of the defendant, but appearing due by his schedule, according to the plaintiff's calculation, refused. For such a purpose the result of the schedule, ascertaining the sum due, must clearly appear verified by affidavit. Quarrell v. Beckford, 14 Ves. 177. ~~PR. PAYMENT INTO COURT.~~

6. In what Time.

Defendant in country cause to answer, &c. in eight days, or obtain time. Gen. Order, Exch. June 30, 1828. 2 Y. & J. 492.

Defendant in country causes must put in his answer within eight days after appearance, or obtain the usual orders for time. 3d Gen. Order, 3d April, 1828.

Every defendant to put in his answer within eight days after appearance and bill filed, if the bill shall be filed in term, or within two days after, in case he does not desire a commission, which is to be entered under his appearance, and to be returnable the beginning of the following term; and no defendant living within twenty miles to have a commission without special order. Ord. Exch. 1685, Kirkby's Ed. 5.

Commission to examine in West Indies, on bill filed for discovery in aid of action at law brought by plaintiff, and for commission, (not praying relief,) ordered on motion, although defendant's answer had not come in, time having however expired. Hebberson v. Cambridge, 13 Price, 796. ~~PR. MOTION; PR. COMMISSION TO EXAMINE ABROAD.~~

Where defendant enters appearance gratis, time within which he must answer or sue out commission, is calculated from such his actual appearance. Webster v. Threlfull, 1 S. & S. 135. ~~PR. APPEARANCE GRATIS.~~

To prevent attachment, or injunction, or motion to extend common injunction, to stay trial answer must at latest be filed the evening before seal-day. Whitehouse v. Hickman, 1 S. & S. 102. ~~PR. FILING PLEADINGS.~~

Answer filed on seal-day is too late to prevent motion to extend common injunction, although motion on account of press of business was not made until following day. Id. ib.

Neither will mistake in office hours tend to excuse the delay. Ibbotson v. Booth, id. 103.

Plea and answer cannot be filed until demurrer actually taken off file after order for that purpose. Cust.

v. Boole, 1 S. & S. 218. PR. PLEA; PR. FILING PLEADINGS, &c.; PR. DEMURRER; PR. ORDER TO TAKE DEMURRER OFF FILE.

Where defendant is not bound to appear before particular day, but prior thereto does appear gratis, the time for answering, &c. is calculated from the actual appearance. Hanworth v. Wallater, 5 Mad. 422. PR. APPEARANCE GRATIS.

The further answer of a defendant, being sworn at the house of a master, and filed in the six clerks' office, on the evening of the day on which the master had reported a former answer insufficient; an order obtained at the sitting of the court on the next morning for an injunction, is irregular. Secus, if the answer had not been filed on the day, on which it was sworn. Duckworth v. Boulcott, 3 Swan. 266. PR. INJUNCTION.

Motion to discharge an order for an injunction, and to set aside an attachment on which the injunction had issued, refused: the answer having been sworn on the evening before, but not filed until after the injunction issued. Bruce v. Webb, 2 Mer. 474. PR. INJUNCTION, DISSOLUTION OF.

Where a bill of review was irregular, as containing new matter, and yet filed without leave, but the defendant had inadvertently obtained an order for time, the court gave him leave to withdraw it. Vide Houghton v. West, 2 Bro. P. C. 93.

In Tonkin v. Lethbridge, 9 Ves. 178, where an answer evidently evasive was put in for the purpose of gaining time, the Ld. Chancellor said, that where further time is necessary, it is more proper to apply by affidavit. He had acted upon that ground as to Ld. Rosslyn's order. The usual time of six weeks is only for general cases. In some it is too much, and though the court would not encourage such applications, it must be understood to bend to circumstances. See Smith v. Serle, 14 Ves. 415, as to taking an answer, clearly evasive, off the file.

A defendant in all cases, by the course of the court, has eight days, exclusive of the day of appearance to answer plaintiff's bill. Hinde, 225.

If a man whose residence is in the country, be found in town, and there served with a subpoena, he is only entitled to eight days time to answer, and not to a dedimus to answer in the country, because the time for answering depends on the place where the subpoena was served. Coningsby v. Price, Gilb. For. Rom. 43.

7. Ordered in a given time to be put in.

If the attorney-general do not put in his answer to a bill filed against him within a reasonable time, the court will order that unless the answer be put in by a short day the bill be set down to be taken pro confesso. Peto v. Att. Gen. 1 Y. & J. 509. ATTORNEY-GENERAL; PR. TAKING BILL PRO CONFESSO.

A solicitor who had prevailed on a party to file a bill against others, and himself acting as the plaintiff's solicitor in the suit, and did not put in his answer; ordered to file his answer in a given time, on motion, upon notice. Jennaway v. Middleton, 9 Price, 666.

Order made that defendant should within four days answer interrogatories, or in default a sergeant at arms to go. Insufficient answer put in; sergeant ordered to take him. Weston v. Jay, 1 Mad. 527. ANSWER, INSUFFICIENCY; PR. PROCESS.

Solicitor who had instituted suit as plaintiff's solicitor, but was afterwards made defendant, after several years, not having put in an answer, ordered to answer within a week. Mootham v. Hale, 3 Y. & B. 92. SOLICITOR.

A copyholder in fee, by will charged his lands with his debts, the land being in England, and the heir an infant in Scotland, the creditors bring a bill to have their debts paid out of the copyhold premises; whereupon the heir appears, and there is an attachment for want of an answer, but the heir being an infant, the next step is to bring up the body, the heir being in Scotland, and out of the reach of the process of court. The plaintiff cannot bring up the body, the infant shall answer by a certain time, or shew cause why a receiver should not be appointed. Leg v. Turnbull, 2 P. W. 409. JURISDICTION; INFANT.

8. Commission to take.

By 55 Geo. 3. c. 157. the Ld. Ch. and court of exchequer in Ireland is authorised to appoint extra commissioners for taking answers of defendants in suits in the courts of equity in Ireland, residing in Great Britain; and by Order of 20th May, 1816, for carrying such act into effect, when any answer is in future to be taken in Great Britain, it shall be taken by the extra commissioners of the district wherein such defendant resides, and that fourteen day's notice shall be given to plaintiff's clerk in court and solicitor, of the name and residence of such extra commissioner, and time and place of tendering such answer.

As well on new commissions to take answers and pleas in the country, as before the masters in chancery, the commissioners shall see the defendants sign their answers and pleas in future. General Order, April 27, 1748, 2 Atk. 289.

In all joint commissions to take answers, &c. the name of the commissioners agreed on shall be entered in a book for that purpose, to be kept by the six clerk who has the carriage of the commission, and subscribed unto by each six clerk in the cause, or in their absence, by their deputy or deputies, whereby no alteration may be had of the commissioners' names agreed on, but by order; and the under clerk not to presume to agree on the commissioners' names in any other manner. Ld. Manchester's Ord. 1646. Beame's Ord. 107.

No answer taken by commission to be opened or copied till it be returned to the six clerk, out of whose office the commission issued, or, in his absence, to his deputy, and until publication be passed in the cause. Ld. Manchester's Ord. 1646. Beame's Ord. 111. Nor any answer taken by commission to be opened by any of the under clerks, before they be delivered to the six clerk in the cause, or his deputy. Ld. Clarendon's Ord. 1661. Beame's Ord. 191.

After a contempt duly prosecuted to an attachment with proclamations returned, no commission to answer shall issue, but on motion, and affidavit of the party's inability to travel, or other good matter, to satisfy the court touching that delay. Ld. Clarendon's Ord. 1661. Beame's Ord. 178. And see the references in the editor's note.

Yet where defendant was in contempt for non-appearance, and took out a commission to answer, the court would not quash it, nor force him to appear, but said if the commission had not been gone, but was about to go, the court would have stayed it until pearance. Anon. Wy. Pr. Reg. 114.

After a commission once obtained to answer, no second commission shall be granted without special order of court, upon good reason shewn, or plaintiff's own assent. Ld. Clarendon's Ord. 1661. Beame's Ord. 178.

So, after an answer reported insufficient, no new commission shall be awarded for taking a second answer unless it be by order, on affidavit made of the party's inability to travel, or other good matter shewn, and first paying the costs of the insufficient answer. Ibid. Beame's Ord. 183.

All answers coming in after the setting down of causes, are to be taken as answers of the succeeding term. Ord. Exch. (15). Kirkby's Ord. Exch. 10. 1 Fowl. Ex. Pr. 428.

No commission whereby any answer is returned, shall, after the return, be broken open, but in the presence of the six clerk to whom it properly belongs, or his deputy; or, in his or their absence, by some other of the six clerks, not towards the cause. Sir O. Bridgman's Ord. 1668. Beame's Ord. Ch. 230.

No defendant living within fifteen miles of London, to have a commission but by special order of court: and all defendants living within fifty miles of London, appearing on process returnable on the first return of Easter or Michaelmas terms, desiring a commission to answer, are to return such commission by the end of the same term. Ord. Exch. (7.) 1688. Kirkby's Ord. Exch. 5. 1 Fowl. 412. Defendant may obtain this commission, though he lives within twenty miles, on an affidavit of illness and inability to travel. Jordan v. Lefevre, Exch. Newl. Pr. 125.

Notice of executing a commission being given, plaintiff's commissioners attended at the place and day from nine till twelve, and from one till three, but defendant's commissioners did not come; the answer, however, was sworn the same day. Plaintiff moved that it should be suppressed. The court said, his commissioners should have staid till six o'clock. Anon. Wy. Pr. Reg. 116.

No answer taken by commission to be filed, or any copy thereof taken, before a fiat, fairly engrossed on parchment, shall be fixed thereto, to warrant such commission. Ord. Exch. 13th Nov. 1731. Kirkby's Ord. Exch. 32.

Defendant's solicitor may be commissioner to take his answer. Bird v. Branker, 2 S. & S. 186. SOLICITOR & CLIENT.

Party in contempt, obtaining an order for commission to take "plea, answer or demurrer," may put in a plea. Barber v. Crueshaw, 6 Mad. 284. PLEA; CONTEMPT.

Infant defendants being out of the kingdom, a guardian ad litem was appointed by commission to put in their answer. Supplemental bill was filed, to which same infants were defendants and still abroad. Ordered on motion, that same guardians might put in their answer to supplemental bill. Lushington v. Sewell, 6 Mad. 28. INFANT; PR. GUARDIAN AD LITEM.

Where answer is to be taken by commission, in which plaintiff joins, plaintiff is entitled to six days' notice of time and place of taking the answer to be given to the commissioner named by him, and such notice should be a six days' notice, and be signed by two of the other commissioners. Pound v. Wildgoose, 8 Price, 102. NOTICE.

And where an answer was taken at the office of defendant's solicitor on the 22d, pursuant to notice given by such solicitor on the 17th, the answer was ordered to be taken off the file for irregularity, but without costs. S. C.

When commission issues to take answer of a foreigner, a power to take it through an interpreter when necessary, is virtually implied; and if the commissioners certify that the defendant was duly sworn to such answers in presence of commissioners, and it appear by affidavit of one of commissioners, that the interpreter was duly sworn, and that he believes, the defendant understood the contents of the answer, it is sufficiently verified. Longman v. Noras, 6 Price, 108. INTERPRETER.

Defendant, in contempt for want of answer, may, without consent, move for commission to take same. Mainwaring v. Wilding, 3 Mad. 41. PR. CONTEMPT.

A joint and several answer was taken by commission, and in the title of it, the names of two persons appeared, who declined joining therein, and put in a joint answer with other defendants. The V. C. ordered it to be received as the answer of those who swore it, without striking out the names of the others. Dons v. Read, 2 Ves. & B. 310. But in Cooke v. Westall, 1 Mad. 265, an answer, purporting to be the answer of two, though sworn only by one, was ordered to be taken off the file. Et vide Hope v. Parry, ib. 83.

An infant defendant abroad cannot have a guardian assigned to put in his answer on motion, but a commission must go. Tappen v. Norman, 11 Ves. 563. INFANT; PR. GUARDIAN, ASSIGNING OF.

Defendant may obtain a commission, though he lives within twenty miles of London, on a proper affidavit that he is ill, and unable to travel to London. Att. Gen. v. Bennett, Anderson v. Camden, Newl. Pr. 125. Jordan v. Lefevre, in Exch. 1b.

The old rule of court, before the stat. 4 & 5 Ann. for amendment of the law, was to send to the commissioners the tenor of the bill, and they examined defendant in taking his answer by this tenor, in the same manner as if they had been examining him on interrogatories; but by degrees the inserting the tenor of the bill was done so loosely, that it did not answer the end, and therefore the act abolished the practice. As this is now omitted, the party, as well as the commissioners should sign an answer taken in the country; but it need not be signed by counsel. Barley v. Pearson, 3 Atk. 440.

A commission to take an answer of a person resident in a foreign country at war with us, must be executed in that very country; a commission directed to examine witnesses is executed at the nearest neutral port. — v. Romney, Ambli. 62. PR. COMMISSION TO EXAMINE ABROAD.

Where a defendant was deaf, and incapable of giving instructions for his answer, the court, on motion, ordered a commission to issue for taking the answer in the old way, with the bill annexed, for the commissioners themselves to endeavour to take the answer. Gregory v. Waver, 2 Mad. Prin. 278.

As to the form of the jurat of answer of a heathen or disbeliever, see Runkissen v. Barker, 1 Atk. 19.

An answer of two defendants, on motion, suppressed for irregularity, because it was underwrit "jurat" and not "jurati" or "ambo jurati." Anon. Mos. 238.

By the constant rules of the court, a dedimus to take an answer is returnable the first return of the next term; but by the practice, as allowed by the M. R., it is not returned till the second return of Hilary and Trinity terms, because the vacations between Michaelmas and Hilary, and between Easter and Trinity, are so short. Anon. Mos. 176. See Newl. Pr. 125.

Defendant cannot plead after proclamations returned, nor can plea be taken upon a general commission to take the answer only. Lloyd v. Gunter, 1 Vern. 275. See 1 Sim. & S. 226. PR. PLEA; PR. PROCLAMATION.

Answer returned and the indorsement of executio istius brevis omitted, supplied by other words in return. Penn v. Chelle, 1 Vern. 41.

If commissioners to take answer fail in duty, party wronged thereby must make affidavit thereof, and then take out attachment. Cary, 30.

If commissioner refuse to join in commission, attachment issued for not returning the commission, will be discharged on payment of costs, and a new commission granted. Marshall v. Harwood, id. 113.

Commission to take answer, granted on return of a languedus in prison. Thomas v. Hoell, id. 36.

Plaintiff, one of commissioners, to take answer; defendant in contempt, but discharged, and new commission granted. Marshall v. Harwood, id. 79.

Commission to take answer upon certificate of oath before mayor of L. of impotency. Wotton v. Lewescombe, id. 83. Dodderidge v. Lasty and Vivan v. Napper, id. 84.

Commission for answer; defendant being seventy years of age. Hill v. Worlen, Cary, 108.

Defendant taking commission to answer, cannot demur. Stukly v. Lutterell, id. 53. Pain v. Carew, id. 100.

9. Time given to Answer.

Where defendants having stood out all process of contempt for want of an answer, at the return of the commission of rebellion, entered an appearance, with a clerk in court, paid the costs of contempt, and obtained the usual order for time to answer; on an application for an attachment against the defendants for not putting in their answers, the court held, that according to the established practice of the court, the defendants were entitled, on paying the costs of contempt, to appear and take the usual orders for time, in the same manner as if they had not been in contempt, but expressed its disapprobation of the practice. Hill v. Muckay, 2 Y. & J. 472. But see "New Orders," pl. 24.

Where a defendant, after notice of the plaintiff's intention to issue an attachment, unless an order for time is obtained, procures the order, but is unable on account of the press of business to get it drawn up, and omits to give the defendant notice of the order, until an attachment is sealed, he cannot set aside the attachment. Kirkpatrick v. Meers, 2 Sim. 16. PR. ATTACHMENT.

An order for time to answer, unless drawn up and served, will not stop an attachment. Gayler v. Fitzjohn, 1 Sim. 386. Id.

A plaintiff is entitled to move for a commission to examine witnesses abroad, as soon as the defendant has obtained an order for time, though he has neither filed his answer, nor is in contempt. Mendicabul v. Machado, 2 Russ. 540. PR. MOTION FOR COMMISSION ABROAD.

Though injunction not applied for on original bill, yet if bill is amended, injunction will be granted as of course, on defendant taking time to answer amended bill. Statham v. Hughes, 2 S. & S. 382. INJUNCTION; BILL, AMEND. OF.

Where a demurrer is overruled, the defendant, at the time of its being overruled, may move for time to answer. Trim v. Baker, 1 Turn. & R. 254. PR. DEMURRER.

After a plea overruled, an order for time to answer, obtained as of course, is irregular. Ferrand v. Pelham, id. 404. PR. PLEA.

Husband and wife being defendants; wife, after obtaining order to answer separately, is entitled to all the orders for time to answer, and is not bound by any previous order obtained by husband for that purpose on behalf of himself and her. Jackson v. Haworth, 1 S. & S. 161. HUSB. & WIFE.

After demurrer overruled, time to answer merely, can only be obtained on special application. Trim v. Baker, 1 S. & S. 469; and see note, id. 470. S. C. 1 T. & R. 253. PR. DEMURRER; PR. MOTION OF COURSE.

If a bill and cross-bill be filed, the plaintiff in the original bill has a right to the first answer, and may move to stay proceedings in the cross cause till the original bill is answered, though the plaintiff in the cross-bill may be in a situation to enforce an answer first. The right of the plaintiff in the original bill to make the motion, was held not to have been waived, by his having taken out the common orders for time to answer the cross-bill. Harris v. Harris, 1 Turn. & R. 165. PR. CROSS-BILL; PR. ANSWER; WAIVER.

Defendant being in contempt for want of answer, puts in one, and obtains order for discharge, upon payment or tender of costs of contempt. Costs tendered, but not accepted. Answer was excepted to and referred, and after warrants to proceed before master, defendant submitted to exceptions. Plaintiff did not proceed immediately upon former contempt, but waited for answer and exceptions. Held, defendant entitled to order for time to answer exceptions. Cox v. Champneys, 6 Mad. 262. PR. CONTEMPT; WAIVER; PR. EXCEPTIONS.

Court will not grant a defendant, in a suit for tithes, who has filed a cross-bill against plaintiff for discovery, time to answer the original bill, until after the answer to the cross-bill is put in; defendant should amend the answer, if necessary. Dolben v. Whittington, 11 Price, 28. CROSS-BILL.

A general demurrer, for want of equity, to bill for discovery in aid of action, interrogating as to certain facts, is overruled by defendant's answering as to any material fact, though it was done in compliance with rule, on granting time to answer, &c., not demurring alone. On a special application, however, made before filing or arguing demurrer, leave will be given so as to relax this rule. Sherwood v. Clark, 9 Price, 259. PR. DEMURRER OVERRULED BY ANSWER; PR. ANSWER.

After an order, that the defendants should have a fortnight's time to answer, after the plaintiff had produced an instrument stated in the bill, fifteen months having elapsed without production, the plaintiff was ordered to produce the instrument on or before a day named, and production not being made, the bill was dismissed with costs. Princess of Wales v. El. Liverpool, 3 Swan. 567. PR. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS.

After motion for a month's time to answer the original bill, after cross-bill is answered, and the month expires, a motion cannot be made as of course for further time to answer the original bill. Noel v. King, 3 Mad. 183. PR. CROSS-BILL.

Copy of petition for third order for time to answer, ought to be served on plaintiff, or else it is invalid. Newcombe v. Rowlings, 3 Mad. 246. PR. PETITION, SERVICE OF.

Subpoena served on defendant at home in London, but he resided in the country; attachment issued and he appeared. Held, appearance waived irregularly, and that it made it a town cause; order obtained for six weeks' time to answer was therefore discharged with costs, as being irregular. Bound v. Wells, 3 Mad. 434. PR. TOWN CAUSE; WAIVER; PR. APPEARANCE; PR. PROCESSES, IRREGULARITY OF.

In a bill against executors, the plaintiff having stated two promissory notes of the same date, one for 15,000*l.* sterling the other for 15,000*l.* French louis, given by the testator for securing a sum of 15,000*l.*; on an affidavit by one of his executors, that he had inspected the first note, and observed on the face of it, circumstances tending to impeach its authenticity; that he was informed and believed, that the second note had been produced by the plaintiff for payment in a foreign country; and that he was advised and believed that it was necessary, in order that his answer might fully meet the case, that he should before answer, have inspection of the second note; it was ordered, that the defendants should not be compelled to answer, till a fortnight after production of the second note. Princess of Wales v. El. Liverpool, 1 Swan. 114. PR. INSPECTION OF DEEDS, &c.

A demurrer and answer filed by a defendant, attached for want of an answer, after orders for time to plead, answer, or demur, not demurring alone; ordered to be taken off the file. Curzon v. De la Zouch, 1 Swan. 185. PR. ATTACHMENT; PR. DEMURRER; PR. TAKING PLEADINGS OFF FILE.

Where the plaintiff, by an amended bill required the defendant to answer as to certain facts, upon the inspection of papers, stated to be left by the plaintiff in the hands of his clerk in court, the defendant, having obtained one order for time, was allowed, on affidavit that the papers were not left for inspection till some time after that order obtained, as much time in addition, without prejudice to the usual order on a second application, after that additional time has expired. Furnsworth v. Yemans, 2 Mer. 142.

Defendant to an injunction bill, having suffered the injunction to go against him, upon a dedimus, the time for answering being expired, although not under an order for time, nor in contempt, q.v. whether he may demur alone? and it seems that he cannot be allowed to do so. Edmonds v. Savery, 3 Mer. 304. PR. DEMURRER.

After time obtained to answer only, a motion will not be granted for leave to demur, unless under special circumstances, such as surprise. Bruce v. Allan, 1 Mad. 556. DEMURRER.

Motion for time to answer on same day attachment is sealed; attachment has precedence; so of answer put in on same day. Stephens v. Neale, 1 Mad. 550. PR. ATTACHMENT.

After order for time to answer, a demurrer may be taken off the file. Dyson v. Benson, Coop. 116. PR. DEMURRER.

Time allowed defendant to answer amended bill is eight days, or he must, within that time, apply for time to answer. But on special application to be allowed to answer amended bill, even after plaintiff has replied, and called on defendant to join in commission, court will grant it, on condition of answering and joining commission immediately. Church v. Legent, 2 Price, 45. AMENDED BILL.

After a demurrer overruled, time to answer can be obtained only on a special application. Jones v. Szaby, 1 Swan. 194. (n.) Contra; where held after demurrer overruled, order is of course for month to plead or answer. Gryllith v. Wood, 1 V. & B. 541. PR. DEMURRER.

Mere denial of combination not a compliance with the terms of the order for time to answer, &c., not demurring alone. Wetherhead v. Blackburn, 2 V. & B. 123.

Illness an exception to the rule that an application for time on special grounds must be made in the first instance before the usual orders obtained. — v. Riddle, 19 Ves. 112.

Construction of the general order, (23d January, 1794.) Defendant, after exceptions allowed, not having previously come under terms, is entitled, of course, to one order for time; the general order not attaching before the second application for time to answer an amended bill, or after exceptions allowed. Wills v. Powell, 17 Ves. 113. GENERAL ORDER, C. OF.

Plea filed under an order for time to answer, regular. De Minck v. Udney, 16 Ves. 355. PL. PLEA.

Special order, under circumstances, for time to answer, without first obtaining the usual order. Norris v. Kennedy, 12 Ves. 66.

Defendant, having applied and obtained an order for time to answer, cannot put in an answer and demurrer, without a special case. As the demurrer being coupled with answer could not be taken off the file, it was moved to expunge or overrule it. Taylor v. Milner, 10 Ves. 444. PR. DEMURRER; PR. TAKING PLEADINGS OFF FILE.

Admission of single fact, besides denial of combination, is a compliance with the terms not to demur alone. Baker v. Mellish, 11 Ves. 73. PR. DEMURRER.

Plaintiff amended his bill, praying costs: the amended bill is not within the general order, 23d June, 1794, and defendant therefore is entitled to the same time as upon an original bill. Spencer v. Bryant, 9 Ves. 231. PR. AMENDED BILL; PR. TIME TO ANSWER.

Defendant, after an order for time, cannot have security for costs from plaintiff living out of jurisdiction. Anon. 10 Ves. 287. PR. SECURITY FOR COSTS.

Where more than usual time for answering is necessary, the proper course is to apply on affidavit, not to put in a short evasive answer for purpose of gaining time. Tonkin v. Lethbridge, 9 Ves. 178.

Defendant, submitting to exceptions, is not entitled to further time under the general order, 23d January, 1794, having previously had three orders for time, consenting to a sergeant at arms, as required by that order. Portier v. De la Cour, 8 Ves. 601. GENERAL ORDER, C. OF.

A mere denial of combination, by answer, does not satisfy the undertaking not to demur alone. Lansdown v. Elderton, 8 Ves. 526. PL. ANSWER.

Construction of the general order, 23d January, 1794, in the case of a peer defendant, that in the cases specified, upon application for time to answer, the defendant enter his appearance, and undertake, that if the answer is not put in, a sequestration, i. e., a sequestration absolute. Gregor v. Ld. Arundel, 8 Ves. 87. GENERAL ORDER, C. OF; PEER; PR. SEQUESTRATION.

Demurrer and answer, after a peremptory order for three weeks further time to answer, following an order for a month to plead answer or demur, not demurring alone, ordered to be taken off the file. Mann v. King, 18 Ves. 297. PL. DEMURRER.

After two insufficient answers, defendant is not entitled to six weeks' time to answer. Gregor v. Ld. Arundel, 6 Ves. 144. PR. ANSWER INSUFFICIENT.

After an order for time to answer, the bill may be referred for scandal, but not for impertinence. Anon. 5 Ves. 656. PR. REFERENCE FOR SCANDAL; PR. REFERENCE OF IMPERTINENCE.

The court refused to vacate the enrolment of a decree dismissing the bill with costs, by default; and afterwards, upon a new bill for the same purpose, granted a motion for time to answer until a month after payment of the costs of the other cause, adopting the practice at law. Pickett v. Loggan, 5 Ves. 702. PR. VACATING ENROLMENT OF DECREE; COSTS.

After exceptions are allowed, defendant has eight days to answer, and then may have an order for three weeks, to commence from end of eight days. Coran v. Philips, 3 Anst. 937. PR. EXCEPTIONS TO ANSWER.

Where the bill is amended after answer, by adding a defendant, the original defendant cannot answer the amended bill, nor have any order for time to answer. Gill v. Matthews, 3 Anst. 879. PR. AMENDED BILL; PR. ANSWER.

Demurrer allowed in the exchequer, upon argument, with 30s. costs. In another suit in chancery between the same parties, and to the same effect, it was ordered, on motion, that the defendant should have time to answer till payment of those costs, but without prejudice to an application to dismiss the bill. Holbrooke v. Cracroft, 5 Ves. 706. COSTS.

General order, that on a third application for time to answer, the defendant shall submit to a sergeant at arms, if he does not answer within the time, and also that he shall submit to the same terms, on a second application for time to answer an amended bill, or after exceptions allowed. Order of Court, 23d January, 4 Bro. C. C. 544. Vide etiam Beame's Ord. Ch. 455.

Upon time granted to answer only, a demurrer, though only to part, and answer to the rest, shall not be put in. Kenrick v. Clayton, 2 Bro. C. C. 214. S. C. Dick. 685.

Putting in a plea is a sufficient compliance with orders for time to answer. Roberts v. Hartley, 1 Bro. C. C. 66. S. C. 2 Dick. 554. PL. PLEA.

Defendant cannot demur, after obtaining time to answer only. Penn v. Id. Baltimore, Dick. 273.

Plea put in after time to answer obtained, discharged. Newton v. Dent, Dick. 234.

Where injunction was issued irregularly, held defendant had not waived objection to the irregularity, by asking for time to answer. Tratens v. Stafford, 2 Ves. 19. PR. INJUNC.; PR. IRREGULARITY, WAIVER OF.

On time given to answer, the defendant may put in a plea, for that is an answer, and on oath, but he cannot put in demurrer. Anon. 2 P. W. 464, and see notes there. PR. PLEA.

The court condemned the practice of allowing as much time of course after an insufficient answer, as on the original answer; also as to the costs of attachments, a proposed remedy by order. Anon. 2 Ves. J. 270. S. C. nom. Gordon v. Pitt, 4 Bro. C. C. 406. PR. ANSWER, INSUFFICIENCY OF.

Defendant has leave to plead answer and demur, but not to demur alone. The defendant demurs, and answers only by denying combination, or some such trifling matter. Demurrer set aside. Stephenson v. Gardiner, 2 P. W. 286.

A and B jointly confess a judgment to C for 400*l.*, and afterwards file a bill against him to set it aside as unfairly obtained, and for an injunction in the mean time, C having got an order for time: the injunction issued, of course; but, on putting in his answer, he moved to dissolve the injunction, and, being told it was dissolved, he took B in execution upon the judgment: but being afterwards informed that the plaintiff, by filing exceptions to his answer, had continued the injunction, he immediately discharged B out of custody. The judgment being joint, it was insisted that the discharge of one from the execution operated at law as a discharge of both; and therefore A and B brought an audita querela in B. R. to be relieved against the judgment, on the ground of such discharge; but, on a bill filed by C, the court decreed him the whole 400*l.*, with his costs, both at law and in equity, and ordered a perpetual injunction to stay all proceedings on the audita querela. Clerke v. Moore, 4 Bro. P. C. 723. JUDGMENT; DEBTOR & CRED. DISCHARGE; PR. INJUNC. PERPETUAL; PR. INJUNC.

The defendant obtained an order to refer the bill for impetunence, after he had twice prayed time to answer: the chancellor ordered that he should procure a report within four days, or the order be discharged. Anon. Mos. 71. PR. REFERENCE FOR IMPETUNENCE.

The defendant having made oath that he could not answer without sight of writings in the country, and then putting in a demurrer, an attachment was awarded against him. Farmer v. Fox, Toth, 15. Cary, 158.

A defendant is entitled, as of course, to three orders for time to answer. Prac. Reg. 15.

10. Effect of Answer being put in, and of the want of, generally.

Contempt for want of answer may, after answer is filed, be discharged by waiver on part of plaintiff. Huskins v. Lloyd, 1 S. & S. 393. WAIVER; PR. CONTEMPT.

Where one plaintiff dies before answer, suit is abated, and defendant cannot move that supplemental bill be filed within limited time. Adamson v. Hull, 1 S. & S. 249. S. C. 1 T. & R. 258. PR. ABATEMENT AND REVIVOR.

Attachment for want of answer to amended bill cannot issue till amendments have been entered in six clerk's book, and there is no difference between the amendments of a bill which has been answered, and those of a bill which has not. Adamson v. Blackstock, 1 S. & S. 118. PR. ATTACHMENT; PR. BILL, AMENDMENT.

Purchaser taking possession without consent or privity of vendor, ordered on motion before answer, to pay purchase money into court. Blackburn v. Stace, 6 Mad. 69. VENDOR & PURCH.; PAYMENT INTO COURT.

Injunction to restrain trial on affidavit, that plaintiff cannot safely defend the action without discovery, and that it will give a good and effectual defence, not discharged upon the answer of one defendant only. White v. Steinwuchs, 19 Ves. 83. PR. INJUNC., AFFIDAVIT IN SUPPORT OF; PR. INJUNC., DISSOLUTION OF.

Motion by defendants to a bill for partnership account, for a production of the accounts before answer, refused. Pickering v. Rigby, 18 Ves. 484. PR. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS, &c.; PARTNERSHIP.

Defendant in Newgate, under a criminal sentence, having been brought up by habeas corpus, for not putting in his answer, and remanded to Newgate; as to the further proceeding, quare? Lloyd v. Passingham, 15 Ves. 179. HABEAS CORPUS; PRISONER FOR CRIME.

Though generally a party cannot be heard until he has cleared his contempt, a step taken by the other party waives the contempt for all purposes, except the right to costs in the cause, not to be obtained by process of contempt; acceptance of the answer, therefore, a waiver of the contempt, for the purpose of enabling the defendant to dismiss the bill for want of prosecution. Anon. 15 Ves. 174. PR. CONTEMPT, WAIVER OF; PR. BILL, DISMISSAL OF.

Amendment permitted, after answer without prejudice, to exceptions, by praying injunction upon a decuratit, and a purpose of collusive sale by the executrix, a person of no property, to the trustee: the amendment confined to the prayer. Jacob v. Hall, 12 Ves. 458. PR. BILL, AMENDMENT AFTER ANSWER.

Injunction nisi not dissolved by putting in answer unless costs of contempt be paid. Hall v. Darney, Dick. 289.

Plaintiff is not bound to make his election till defendant has answered. Tillotson v. Ganson, 1 Vern. 103. ELECTION.

Plaintiff may revive when time for answering is out. Wakelinn v. Wathill, Dick. 13.

Plaintiff's witnesses being old, examined before defendant's answer put in. Bagnold v. Green, Cary, 48. Dick. 2.

No witness examined before answer generally. Salisbury v. Hinde, Cary, 93.

Attachment issued against the wife alone, and not the husband, for that she would not answer the bill. Keies v. Macher, Toth, 15. HUSB. & WIFE; PR. ATTACHMENT.

11. Further.

If master find answer insufficient, he must fix time for putting in further answer. 8 Gen. Ord. 3 April, 1828.

Leave given to convert a bill of discovery into a bill for relief; where after answer a bill for discovery and for a commission is allowed to be converted into a bill for relief, the defendant is entitled to have leave to put in such an answer to the amended bill as he might have filed if there had been no answer to the bill of discovery. Lousada v. Templer, 2 Russ. 561. PR. DISCOVERY, BILL OF, AMENDMENT OF.

In an injunction cause, a defendant to whose answer exceptions have been allowed, is entitled to file a further answer, after notice to his solicitor, that the plaintiff has presented a petition for an order to be at liberty to amend, and that the defendant may answer amendments and exceptions together, provided the further answer be filed before the order is actually served. Leyburn v. Leyburn, 2 Russ. 577.

Defendant may file further answer before master has signed his report of insufficiency of first answer. Wynne v. Jackson, 2 S. & S. 226. MASTER'S REPORT.

New exceptions cannot be taken to the further answer of the original bill, but if that answer be considered insufficient, it must be referred back to master upon old exceptions. Williams v. Davis, 1 S. & S. 426. PR. ANSWER, EXCEPTIONS TO.

Further explanatory answers by leave of the court, allowed. Robinson v. Scotney, 19 Ves. 584.

Pending exceptions to answer a further answer cannot be filed in this court until those exceptions are argued and disposed of. Tender of further answer is submission to exceptions, and injunction may be moved for thereupon, as of course. Edwards v. Johnson, 1 Price, 203. PR. EXCEPTIONS TO ANSWER; PR. INJUNCT.

Explanation by a second answer does not take away the opportunity of indicting upon the former answer. Edwards v. McLeay, 2 V. & B. 258. INDICTMENT.

Second answer may be put in pending exceptions to the first. Knox v. Symmonds, 1 Ves. J. 87. PR. EXCEPTIONS TO ANSWER.

Second answer may be filed at any time before the order to amend, &c. even the moment exceptions are taken. Id. 88.

Order for amendment without costs, requiring no further answer: the amendment was by inserting prayer for injunction. Held defendant might answer further, gratis. Saory v. Dyer, Anbl. 70. PR. COSTS; PR. BILL, AMENDMENT.

A plea or demurrer, accompanied by an answer to any part of the bill, even a denial of combination merely, if the plea or demurrer be overruled, the plaintiff must except to the answer as insufficient, and defendant need not put in any further answer until the plaintiff has taken exceptions. Coles v. Turner, Bun. 123. PR. EXCEPTIONS TO ANSWER.

12. Supplemental.

Leave given after replication to file a supplemental answer to a bill of dower, in order to state a fine and non-claim, which had been omitted through ignorance in the original answer. Jackson v. Parish, 1 Sim. 505.

Where a defendant by his answer alleged certain moduses, to be payable in lieu of tithes, but did not state any time at which the moduses were payable, the court permitted the defendant to file a supplemental answer for that purpose, on the terms of paying the costs, and did not require an affidavit from the defendant explaining the omission, holding that the moduses as pleaded were void. Scott v. Carter, 1 V. & J. 452.

Further supplemental answer may be used to correct or explain an obvious mistake or ambiguity in original answer, but not with a view merely to strengthen defendant's case. Kidworth v. Dilworth, 5 Price, 564.

Supplemental answer substituted lately for liberty to amend an answer; permitted with great caution; only on some ground of justice, as fraud; not on negligence, unless the party was led into it, requiring a precise statement of what is to be put on the record. Curling v. Townshend, 19 Ves. 628.

Supplemental answer permitted to correct mistake; but held strictly to mistake, clearly sworn to, and probable in itself. The solicitor who put in the former answer being dead, whose letter admitting the fact contrary to that answer, would not be evidence in a prosecution for perjury against the defendant, which ought not to be influenced by the admission or refusal of the application. Strange v. Collins, 2 V. & B. 163. EVIDENCE; MISTAKE; PR. ANSWER, AMENDMENT OF.

Liberty to file a supplemental answer relative to a fact on defendant's affidavit, that at the time of filing the answer he had no recollection of the fact, and had since discovered it. Additional answer admitted with difficulty, if prejudicial to the plaintiff; easily, if for his benefit; subject, if no such objection, to the propriety of a prosecution for perjury. Permission to file a supplemental answer, or the refusal of it, to have no influence on a prosecution for perjury. Edwards v. McLeay, 2 V. & B. 256.

Liberty by supplemental answer to correct a fact, by stating that the possession was taken under the contract of part of the premises only, not of the whole, as stated in the answer, the defendant being previously in possession as tenant of the other part, and swearing that the mis-statement was merely from not conceiving it material, refused without an affidavit, that he meant by the original answer to swear to the fact as it really was. Livesey v. Wilson, 1 V. & B. 149.

The instances of permitting and refusing amendment by supplemental answer, are collected in note (a). Id. 150.

Practice formerly was, to permit the amendment of an answer in cases of mistake; now a supplemental answer is put in. The affidavit must state, that defendant when he put in his answer did not know the circumstances upon which he applies, or any other circumstances on which he ought to have stated fact otherwise. Wills v. Wood, 10 Ves. 401. PR. AMENDMENT OF ANSWER; PR. AFFIDAVIT.

Upon discovery of new matter in an account, the court will permit a supplemental answer after application. Muggridge v. Hodgson, 2 Anst. 443.

Court will not allow amendment of answer in any case, nor a supplemental answer, unless on new matter or a sufficient reason appearing for not inserting it in original. Tennant v. Wilmore, 2 Anst. 362.

A defendant having become better apprized of any matters after putting in his answer, cannot controvert or question his own admissions, &c. on the subject by a cross bill. His proper course is to put the further facts on the record by way of supplemental answer. Berkley v. Ryder, 2 Ves. 533.

13. Separate.

Reference directed to ascertain if separate answers all to same effect, by defendants having same interests was vexatious. VanSandau v. Moore, 2 S. & S. 509. VEXATION.

A bill being filed by a shareholder in a joint stock company against the directors and other shareholders, in order to have the partnership dissolved, and the proper accounts taken, fourteen of the directors, who all appeared by the solicitor of the company, having filed fourteen separate answers with long schedules to each, all of which answers and schedules were nearly verbatim the same: held, that in that stage of the cause, no inquiry could be directed into the necessity or expediency of filing those separate answers, with a view to the defence of the suit; the plaintiff in such a suit, notwithstanding the adoption of such a mode of defence, will not be permitted to dismiss his bill without costs on his application, nor will any reference be directed to the master, with a view to modify the costs which the plaintiff shall pay. S. C. 1 Russ. 441. PR. INQUIRY; PR. COSTS.

The court cannot require several defendants to join in their defence. Id. ib.

Husband and wife being defendants, wife after obtaining order to answer separately, is entitled to all orders for time to answer, and is not bound by any previous order obtained by husband for that purpose on behalf of himself and her. Jackson v. Haworth,

1 S. & S. 161. HUSB. & WIFE; PR. TIME TO ANSWER.

Husband and wife defendants, husband without order for wife to answer separate, puts in separate answer, stating wife did not live with him, and he had no influence over her; he being taken up on attachment for want of wife's answer, ordered to be discharged, and wife to answer separate, and indemnify husband his costs. Gary v. Whittingham, 1 S. & S. 163. HUSB. & WIFE; PR. INDEMNITY; PR. COSTS.

Husband and wife defendants, husband abroad, plaintiff may obtain order for wife to answer separate. Id. ib.

Bill against husband and wife in respect of wife's executorship; husband bankrupt, and abroad, attachment issued against him for want of answer; wife must be ruled upon notice to answer separately before attachment can issue against her. Bunyan v. Mortimer, 6 Mad. 278. PR. ATTACHMENT; HUSB. & WIFE.

Husband and wife being defendants in a suit and living separate, husband was allowed, on affidavit of separation, and that he had no controul or influence over her, to put in separate answer and order was made that he should not be liable to process for her neglect to answer. Barry v. Cane, 3 Mad. 472. Id.

Order upon a married woman to put in an answer to a bill by her husband. Ainslie v. Medlicott, 13 Ves. 266. Id.

After a joint answer by husband and wife, and amendment of bill, the husband going abroad, the wife being a material party, cannot be brought into contempt without an order to answer separately. Tarleton v. Duer, 10 Ves. 442. HUSB. & WIFE; PR. CONTEMPT.

Motion by plaintiff for a separate answer by a feme covert, because her husband was a prisoner in the king's bench, refused. Anon. 2 Ves. J. 332. HUSB. & WIFE.

Under circumstances leave given to husband to answer separate from wife. Chambers v. Bull, 1 Anst. 269. Id.

Leave given to wife to answer separate, without prejudice as to validity of marriage. Wyburn v. Blount, Dick. 155.

Husband being abroad, a wife having appeared and obtained an order to answer separately, whereby she fixed herself from process of contempt, will not be allowed to have her own acts set aside. Travers v. Butkeley, 1 Ves. 384. S. C. 1 Dick. 138. HUSB. & WIFE.

A husband bringing a bill against wife, this is admitting her to be a feme sole, and she must put in her answer as such, and no order is necessary. Exp. Strangeways, 3 Atk. 478. Id.

A feme covert is liable to be arrested by the serjeant at arms for not putting in a separate answer pursuant to an order obtained at her own request. Poncel v. Prentice, Ridgw. 258. FEME COVERT; SERJEANT ARMS.

Wife may apply to answer separate from husband. Exp. Haskin, 2 Atk. 50. HUSB. & WIFE.

Regularly the answer of a feme covert, if separate, ought to have an order to warrant it; but if feme covert's separate answer be put in without an order, and the same be a fair honest answer and deliberately put in with the consent of the husband, and the plaintiff accepts it, and replies, the court will not, at the motion of the wife or of her executors, set it aside. Chandos v. Talbot, 2 P. W. 371. FEME COVERT.

Where husband will answer to prejudice of his wife who is executrix, leave on motion will be given to answer separate. Anon. 2 Eq. Ab. 66. HUSB. & WIFE.

Feme covert, whose husband is in the galleys, ordered to answer alone. Castleton v. Fitzwilliam, Cary, 100.

Where a feme covert lived apart from her husband, and the court thought the husband not chargeable for the matter in question, she was ordered to answer separately. Plomer v. Plomer, 1 C. R. 68. HUSB. & WIFE.

14. To Amended Bill.

Exceptions to an answer having been allowed, plaintiff obtained an order to amend, and for defendant to answer the exceptions and amendments at the same time; defendant put in an answer to the amended bill only: the plaintiff then issued an attachment: held, that it was irregular, and that plaintiff ought to have moved to take the second answer off the file. De Tastet v. Lopez, 1 Sim. 11. PR. MOTION TO TAKE PLEADINGS OFF FILE; PR. ATTACHMENT.

Where plaintiff takes no exceptions to answer to original bill, he cannot to answer to amended bill, on a principle which would have equally applied to original bill. Owen v. Leighton, 2 S. & S. 234. PR. EXCEPTIONS.

Injunction of course for want of answer to an amended bill, an answer having been put in to the original bill, and no injunction obtained upon that. Netherpe v. Law, 13 Ves. 323. PR. INJUNCTION FOR WANT OF ANSWER; PR. AMENDED BILL.

Where the bill is amended after answer, if the amended bill is not answered, the plaintiff is entitled to decree that the bill be taken pro confesso, generally. Jopling v. Stuart, 4 Ves. 619. PR. BILL PRO CONFESSO; AMENDED BILL.

Where the bill is amended after answer, by adding a defendant, the original defendant cannot answer the amended bill, nor have any order for time to answer. Gill v. Matthews, 3 Anst. 879. AMENDED BILL; TIME TO ANSWER.

15. Amendment.

Motion by defendant to take answer defective in title off file, and amend and re-swear it, allowed. White v. Godbold, 1 Mad. 269.

Defendant cannot take answer off the file to correct a mistake, but must file a supplemental answer. Taylor v. Oler, 3 Pucc. 83.

Signature of counsel to answer not appearing on record, defendant must apply for leave to amend. Harrison v. Delmont, 1 Price, 163. PR. SIGNATURE OF COUNSEL.

Supplemental answer permitted to correct mistake, but held strictly to mistake clearly sworn to and probable in itself, the solicitor who put in the former answer being dead, whose letter admitting the fact contrary to that answer would not be evidence in a prosecution for perjury against the defendant, which ought not to be influenced by the admission or refusal of the application. Strange v. Collins, 2 V. & B. 163. EVID. ; MISTAKE ; PR. SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER.

Leave to amend an answer refused. Edwards v. M'Leau, 2 V. & B. 266.

An amendment in the title of an answer being necessary, viz. instead of "the farther answer to the original amended bill," entitling it "the farther answer to the original bill, and the answer to the amended bill," the answer so amended, must in the case of a peer be again attested upon honour; as in the case of a common defendant it must be re-sworn. Peacock v. Dk. Bedford, 1 V. & B. 186. PR. ANSWER, JURAT OF; PEER.

An infant defendant may before he attains twenty-one, amend his answer and go into a new defence. Savage v. Carroll, 1 Ball & B. 548. INFANT.

Answer will not be allowed to be taken off file for purpose of amending any clerical error, a supplemental answer must be filed. Ridley v. Obee, Wightw. 32.

Where in answer there is a mere mistake in a name, it may be taken off file and re-sworn. Griffiths v. Wood, 11 Ves. 63.

The practice formerly was to permit the amendment of an answer in case of mistake; now a supplemental answer is put in. The affidavit must state that defendant when he put in his answer, did not know the circumstances upon which he applies, or any other circumstance on which he ought to have stated the fact otherwise. Wells v. Wood, 10 Ves. 401. PR. SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER; PR. AFFIDAVIT.

Answer not allowed to be taken off the file upon mistake, but a supplemental answer permitted. Dolder v. Bank of England, 10 Ves. 285.

In a case of mistake in an answer it was not allowed to be taken off the file, but an additional answer giving the explanation was permitted. Jennings v. Merton Col. 8 Ves. 79.

Amendment of answer not permitted even by striking out matter. Harris v. Daubeny, 3 Anst. 717.

In the exchequer, on exceptions to answer, if defendant intends to submit to exceptions, he must give notice thereof to the other party, before he can file his amended answer. In chancery it is otherwise. Anon. 1 Anst. 86. PR. EXCEPTIONS TO ANSWER.

An answer shall not be amended after an indictment for perjury preferred or threatened in order to avoid the indictment. Fernsy v. Macnamara, 1 Bro. C. C. 419.

Liberty given to amend answer by striking out admissions of plaintiff's pedigree after publication. Kingscote v. Bainsby, Dick. 485.

A defendant after having put in his answer discovers a new title, and on petition, the answer ordered to be taken off the file, and the new matter added. But by the present practice a defendant is not allowed to amend his answer, but on a proper case made out is permitted to file a supplemental answer. Patterson v. Slaughter, Ambl. 292.

Answer not permitted to be amended by striking out the admission of a fact, but otherwise of a matter of law. Pearce v. Grose, Ambl. 65. 3 Atk. 532.

Defendant having mistaken facts at time of putting in answer, cannot contravene his own admissions by a cross bill, but he must move to amend answer. Barkley v. Ryder, 2 Ves. 532.

Leave given to amend mistake in date of caption. Sherrat v. Trussler, 1 Fowl. Exch. 440. But not place of caption. Janner v. Ashley, id. ib. Leave to rectify mistake in title. Woodyer v. Crumpler, id. 441. Lloyd v. Hutton, id. and in names of party. Keane v. Stanly, id. ib. And to add name of party omitted in title. Wright v. Campbell, id. So to annex schedules therein referred to, and to reswear same. Bryan v. Truman, id. And to amend fact in answer. Scott v. Allgood, id. 438. Reeve v. Miller, id. 439.

The defendant's prayer to amend her answer by adding a new fact granted on the particular circumstances of the case. Wharton v. Wharton, 2 Atk. 294.

Where a defendant has mistaken a fact or a date, the court will give him leave to amend his answer. S. C. Id.

An answer amended after hearing a decree on affidavit of the solicitor and his clerk, that the mistake was in engrossing the answer from the draft and the draft produced. Gainsborough v. Gifford, 2 P. W. 427.

Liberty given to amend answer so as to explain admission of assets. Dagly v. Crump, Dick. 35.

On a bill brought by the next of kin of the testator against the executor for an account of the surplus, the executor answered and waived the benefit of the surplus by mistake of the law on that point, and though he afterwards proved it to have been the testator's intent that he should have the surplus, yet court refused to amend his answer. Raetius v. Powell, 1 P. W. 300. MISTAKE.

Defendant by answer consented that an award made by her father might be confirmed, prayed she might amend her answer, she having made oath that she never read the award, and that her answer was prepared by her father, who had wronged her in the award. Motion refused. Harcourt v. Sherrard, 2 Vern. 404. FRAUD.

The court permitted a defendant to amend her answer before replication, upon affidavit that the matter mistaken was added in the margin of the draft after she had perused it. Chute v. Ly. Dacres, 1 C. C. 29. 2 Freem. 173. See Ward v. Colmer, Toth. 9.

16. Evasive.

An answer, however evasive, will not be ordered to be taken off the file after the plaintiff has excepted to it. Glassington v. Thwaites, 2 Russ. 458. PR. TAKING PLEADINGS OFF FILE; WAIVER.

An answer merely evasive, to be considered as no answer, and taken off the file. Smith v. Searle, 14 Ves. 415. See 10 P. M. 117.

Where more than usual time for answering is requisite, defendant should apply for time by affidavit, and not put in an evasive answer. Tompkin v. Lethbridge, 9 Ves. 178. TIME TO ANSWER.

Exceptions must be set down in writing, and delivered to counsel or attorney. Id. 78. 181.

Exceptions to an answer must be signed by counsel. Yates v. Hardy, 1 Jac. 223. PR. SIGNATURE OF COUNSEL.

Exceptions not signed by counsel, taken off the file, though the defendant had taken an office copy of them, and the plaintiff had obtained an order of reference. Id. PR. SIGNATURE OF COUNSEL; WAIVER.

(b) Effect of.

Defendant allowed a certain time to amend, &c. Beames' Ord. 78. 181.

Order to dissolve injunction nisi, obtained after exceptions to answer filed, is irregular. Williams v. Davis, 1 S. & S. 262. PR. INJUNC.

After undertaking to show cause on the merits, against dissolving an injunction, exceptions cannot be shown for cause. Harcourt v. Ramsbottom, 3 Swan. 362. PR. INJUNC. DISSOLVING CAUSE AGAINST.

If answer put in and excepted to, defendant cannot move on answer that plaintiff elect law or equity. Brown v. Poynts, 3 Mad. 24. PR. ELECTION, LAW OR EQUITY.

The defendant having put in his answer to the amended bill, which answer was excepted to, motion to dissolve the injunction absolutely in the first instance, refused, the court being unable to judge, except upon reference to the master, whether the answer is a sufficient answer. Tipan v. Mortlock, 2 Mer. 476. PR. INJUNC. DISSOLUTION OF.

Pending exceptions to answer, a further answer cannot be filed in this court, until those exceptions are argued and disposed of: tender of further answer is a submission to exceptions, and injunction may be moved for, as of course. Edwards v. Johnson, 1 Pri. 203. PR. FURTHER ANSWER; PR. INJUNC.

Injunction against verdict in a joint action dissolved as to defendants who answered, but not as to others, pending exceptions to their answers. Josephs v. Doubleday, 1 V. & B. 497. INJUNC. DISSOLVING.

The effect of taking exceptions pending a demurrer to discovery, is to admit the demurrer. Plaintiff permitted to withdraw the exceptions paying the costs, without prejudice. Boyd v. Mills, 13 Ves. 85. PR. DEMURRER.

In an injunction cause, where exceptions are taken to the answer, it is irregular to obtain an order to amend bill until the exceptions are disposed of. Dixon v. Redmond, 2 Scho. & L. 515. PR. INJUNC.; PR. BILL, AMENDMENT.

Injunction obtained for want of answer on exceptions to subsequent answer being overruled, defendant cannot, in Exchequer, as of course, move to dissolve injunction; secus, in chancery. — v. Dubarry, 1 Anst. 255. INJUNC. DISSOLVING.

Second answer may be put in pending exceptions to the first. Knox v. Symmonds, 1 Ves. J. 87. PR. ANSWER.

Bill for relief and discovery; answer to relief: plea to discovery; argument of plea necessary before exceptions taken to answer. Pigot v. Storr, Dick. 496. Id. Siluey v. Perry, Dick. 602.

Bill taken pro confesso upon sequestration, for want of better answer first having on exceptions to part been reported insufficient. Turner v. Turner, id. 316.

Answer reported insufficient, plaintiff obtained order to amend, and that defendant may answer amendments and exceptions at same time; defendant may answer exceptions alone if put in before order is served. Bethuen v. Bateman, Dick. 296.

Where exceptions are shown for cause against dissolving an injunction, and the answer is reported sufficient, the injunction cannot be revived on the merits disclosed by that answer. Peyto v. Hudson, 3 Swan. 363. PR. INJUNCTION REVIVING.

On enlargement of the time for showing cause against dissolving an injunction, the plaintiff cannot show exceptions for cause. Pineiro v. Porter, 3 Swan. 362. PR. ENLARGEMENT OF TIME TO SHew CAUSE; INJUNC. DISSOLVING, CAUSE AGAINST.

(c) When necessary or proper to be taken.

Bill against assignees of a bankrupt for an account and injunction to restrain proceedings at law. One of the assignees put in a separate answer, stating that his name had been used in the action at law without his knowledge or authority; that he had not acted as assignee except in some trifling particulars not connected with the matter in the bill mentioned, and that he was wholly ignorant of the matter set forth in the bill. Exceptions to the answer, because the defendant had not answered each interrogatory, overruled with costs. Jones v. Wiggins, 2 Y. & J. 385. PR. ANSWER.

Exceptions to an answer filed after the bill has been amended, will not be taken off the file if no answer is required to the amendments. Miller v. Wheatley, 1 Sim. 296. PR. AMENDMENT OF BILL.

Leave given to require by exceptions to an answer to an amended bill, an answer to statements contained in the original bill and not answered in the answer to the original bill, though no exceptions had been taken to that answer. Glassington v. Thwaites, 2 Russ. 458.

Bill for account answered, and bill amended by unimportant facts. Answer to amended bill stating circumstances more explicitly as to facts of original bill, cannot be excepted to without special application for leave to file exceptions. Ireing v. Piana, 1 McClel. & Y. 563.

It is a general rule that after an order to amend, the right to except to answer to original bill is waived. S. C. id.

Where plaintiff takes no exceptions to answer to original bill, he cannot to answer to amended bill, on a principle which would equally have applied to original bill. Orey v. Leighton, 2 S. & S. 234. PR. ANSWER TO AMENDED BILL.

General answer of Attorney-general to bill by opposite party for discovery in aid of his defence in an information at law, cannot be excepted to. Darison v. Att. Gen. cited in Att. Gen. v. Lambert, 5 Pri. 398. note. PR. ANSWER; ATT. GEN.

Exceptions to answer are only material when it omits to answer any matter in bill which is material and of importance to plaintiff's case. Hirst v. Peirse, 4 Pri. 339.

Bill by a testamentary guardian and husband against the trustee of the property to be allowed maintenance for minors; exceptions taken to the answer for scandal and impertinence, in stating that the husband of the guardian was not a fit person to have the management of the minors, "being a man of small fortune, increasing family, and also a settler," allowed. Corbet v. Tottenham, 1 Ball & B. 59. GUARDIAN; PR. ANSWER; IMPERTINENCE.

No exception can be taken to an infant's answer; in that case, therefore, cause against dissolving an injunction must be upon the merits according to the answer, and though it was manifestly insufficient, the injunction was dissolved. Lucas v. Lucas, 13 Ves. 274. S. P. Copland v. Wheeler, 4 Bro. C. C. 266. INFANT; PR. INJUNCTION, DISSOLVING.

Amendment of bill, merely adding a defendant requiring no further answer, does not prevent the plaintiff from excepting to answer. Taylor v. Wrench, 9 Ves. 315. PR. AMENDMENT OF BILL.

It is no answer on exceptions that the defendant is a mere witness, and ought not to have been made a party for having submitted to answer, he must answer fully. Cookson v. Ellison, 2 Bro. C. C. 252. PL. PARTY; WITNESS; WAIVER.

If defendant's answer separately, exceptions must be taken to each. Sydolph v. Monkton, Dick. 609.

No exception can be taken to an answer whilst a plea is depending, for that must first be removed out of the way. Baker v. Pritchard, 2 Atk. 390. LIT. PENDENS.

If a demurrer be to part of the plaintiff's bill, and an insufficient answer to the residue, yet the plaintiff cannot except until the demurrer is argued. London Assur. Comp. v. E. I. Comp. 3 P. W. 326. PR. DEMURRER.

If a plea or demurrer be overruled, the defendant must answer the whole bill, and the ordinary process of contempt issues to compel an answer as in other cases; but if an answer was filed with the plea or demurrer, the defendant, upon his plea or demurrer being overruled, need not put in another answer till the plaintiff has taken exceptions. Cotes v. Turner,

PR. OVERRULING PLEA; PR. DEMURRER, OVERRULING.

A plea or demurrer accompanied by an answer to any part of the bill, even a denial of combination merely, if the plea or demurrer be overruled, the plaintiff must except to the answer as insufficient, and defendant need not put in any further answer until the plaintiff has taken exceptions. Id. PR. FURTHER ANSWER.

Exceptions cannot be taken to an infant's answer because he is not bound by it, but may amend it when he comes of age. Studrick v. Pargiter, Bun. 338. INFANT.

If a plea is to stand for an answer with liberty to except, the plaintiff may except to the rest of the answer. Coke v. Wilcocks, Mos. 73. PR. PLEA ORDERED TO STAND FOR ANSWER.

Where a defendant pleads to part and answers to the residue of the bill, the plaintiff cannot except to the answer till the plea is argued, or an order obtained that it shall stand for an answer, with liberty to except. Darnell v. Reyny, 1 Vern. 344. PR. PLEA.

In all cases plaintiff allowed two months to deliver exceptions to answer. 4th Gen. Order, 3rd April, 1828. See Beame's Ord. 254, 258. 2 Fowl. Exch. 2. 3.

Exceptions to answer not submitted to plaintiff at end of eight days, may refer the answer, and must do it within the then next six days. 5th Gen. Order, 3rd April, 1828. PR. REFERENCE OF ANSWER.

Plaintiff in a bill for discovery only, is not entitled as of course to two terms to except to the answer filed in the vacation. Hewart v. Semple, 5 Ves. 86. But see Baring v. Princes, 1 Mad. 526. PR. BILL OF DISCOVERY.

Bill for relief and discovery; answer to relief; plea to discovery; argument of plea not necessary before exceptions taken to answer. Pigot v. Stace, Dick. 496. Sidau v. Perry, Dick. 602.

Answer reported insufficient; plaintiff obtained order to amend, and that defendant may answer amendment and exceptions at same time, defendant may answer exceptions alone if put in before the order is served. Bethuen v. Bateman, id. 296.

If in Michaelmas term an answer comes in, and the plaintiff does not take exceptions within eight days of Hilary term after, yet, on applying to the court, he is entitled to take exceptions, provided he does it within two terms, the term in which he moves being inclusive. Anon. 3 Atk. 19.

After order to elect law or equity, plaintiff cannot move on motion of course, for leave to file exceptions nunc pro tunc, but ought to make special application for that purpose, and for an order to suspend election till exceptions are answered. Cunpland v. Bradock, 5 Mad. 14. See Noel v. Ward, 1 Mad. 339. ELECTION.

Exceptions nunc pro tunc, may be filed to answer to bill of discovery. Baring v. Princes, 1 Mad. 526. BILL OF DISCOVERY; NUNC PRO TUNC.

Motion of course, to file exceptions nunc pro tunc, within two terms, and the following vacation, from the date of the master's report of impertinence. Dyer v. Dyer, 1 Mer. 1. PR. MOTION OF COURSE.

Exceptions filed which may be nunc pro tunc of course, upon application within two terms after answer, and afterwards upon special cause, will sustain an injunction. Gooding v. Woodhams, 14 Ves. 536. PR. DISSOLVING INJUNCTION.

Time allowed for filing exceptions nunc pro tunc, is two terms, and the following vacation. Thomas v.
VOL. II.

Jewellyn, 6 Ves. 823. See Thoburn v. Barrett, 2 Fowl. 35.

Where in the vacation a plea is ordered to stand for an answer, with liberty to except, the exceptions strictly ought to be filed within eight days of the ensuing term, but an order to file them nunc pro tunc is seldom refused if applied for before the second term expires. Diggs v. Colebrook, Barn. 52.

(f) Deposit on.

Deposit on filing exceptions. Beame's Ord. 320.

Where several exceptions are taken to answer, and master reports answer sufficient, and one general exception is taken to his report, and some of exceptions to answer are allowed, some not, and others waived, court in its discretion may order deposit to be divided. Dawson v. Bush, 2 Mad. 184. See 12 Ves. 166.

(g) Further Exceptions.

New exception cannot be taken to further answer of the original bill, but if that answer be considered insufficient, it must be referred back to master upon the old exceptions. Williams v. Davis, 1 S. & S. 426. PR. ANSWER FURTHER.

Plaintiff having obtained the usual order to amend, and that the defendant shall answer amendments and exception together, cannot take a new exception, as to any thing in the original bill, but must go before the master upon the old exceptions as they apply to the original bill, and upon new exceptions as to the new matter introduced by the amendments, which, however, the master may consider with reference to such parts of the original bill as apply to them. Partridge v. Haycraft, 11 Ves. 570. PR. ORDER TO AMEND.

After answer upon exceptions plaintiff cannot add to his exceptions, but may refer the answer back upon them. Id. 575.

(h) Waiver.

Where motion would have the effect of waiving exceptions to answer, court will not qualify their order by making it without prejudice to exceptions being taken. Phillips v. Stephenson, 11 Pri. 733. WAIVER; PR. MOTION.

Plaintiff moving as of course, to amend bill after exceptions to answer, waives them; he must move specially for leave without prejudice. De la Torre v. Bernaldes, 4 Mad. 396. WAIVER; PR. AMENDMENT.

(i) Submission or otherwise to.

Exceptions to answer not submitted to plaintiff at end of eight days, may refer the answer and must do it within the then next six days. 5th Gen. Ord. 3d April 1828.

Where a great number of exceptions were taken to an answer, and shortly before the argument the defendant submitted to answer them, in consequence of which it was urged that the answer was clearly evasive, and that the ordinary costs were greatly inadequate, yet the court refused to give extra costs, but reserved the consideration of them until the hearing of the cause. Attwood v. Small, 2 Y. & J. 72. PR. COSTS.

Exceptions to answer containing in substance, but not verbatim, the interrogatories not answered, will be overruled. But if defendant has submitted to answer, and his farther answer is referred back, he is too late to object to the form of the exception. Hodgson v. Butterfield, 2 S. & S. 236. WAIVER.

Defendant being in contempt for want of answer, puts in one and obtains order for discharge on payment or tender of costs of contempt; costs tendered but not accepted. Answer excepted to and referred, and after warrants to proceed before master taken out, defendant submits to exceptions. Plaintiff did not proceed immediately on former contempt, but waits for answer to exceptions: Held defendant entitled to order for time to answer exceptions. Cox v. Champneys, 6 Mad. 262. WAIVER; PR. CONTEMPT; PR. TIME TO ANSWER EXCEPTIONS.

When plaintiff has obtained order to amend, the defendant having submitted to exceptions, court will order plaintiff as of course, to amend within a given time or discharge former order. Benedict v. Thackeray, 5 Price Exch. 592. PR. AMENDMENT.

After motion to amend the bill, and that amendments and exceptions shall be answered together, if the exceptions are answered before the order is drawn up, it is regular. Partridge v. Huercraft, 11 Ves. 578. PR. ORDER TO AMEND AND ANSWER EXCEPTIONS.

In the exchequer on exceptions to answer, if defendant intends to submit to exceptions he must give notice thereof to the other party before he can file his amended answer. In chancery it is otherwise. Anon. 1 Anst. 86. PR. AMENDED ANSWER.

As to the practice of giving time to put in a further answer, after a submission to answer exceptions. Hineley v. Tomkinson, 1 Cox, 177. PR. TIME TO ANSWER.

(J) Reference on exceptions.

Plaintiff must refer a second or third answer within a fortnight. 6th Gen. Order, 3d April, 1828.

Second or third answer referred on old exceptions, those which require answer must be stated. 7th Gen. Order, 3d April, 1828.

If defendant neglect to amend, &c. and on reference answer be found insufficient, he is to pay costs. Beames' Orders, 79.

If he do not amend within eight days, or put in a second insufficient answer, plaintiff may refer. Id. 182.

And for second insufficient answer, defendant to pay costs. Id.

The course, if answer is filed in vacation. Id.

If answer reported good, plaintiff to pay costs. Id.

As to different answers, certificate insufficient. Id. 182, 163, 318.

It is irregular to obtain one order of reference only, where more than one answer is excepted to. Allison v. Moorsom, 2 S. & S. 478.

Where plaintiff before answer obtains injunction, and when answer is put in, excepts to the same, he cannot move to refer exceptions instantly. Chandler v. Partington, 1 Mad. 102.

After a reference to the master of exceptions to an answer, and order for leave to amend, and that the defendant might answer the exceptions and amendments at the same time, obtained before the report, on the allegation that the master had allowed some of the exceptions, discharged with costs. Job v. Baker, 2 Swan. 255. PR. BILL, LEAVE TO AMEND.

Motion on answer, to dissolve injunction nisi, plaintiff shewing exceptions for cause, must procure the report in four days, but the time is extended by courtesy. Bishop v. Birch, 2 Ves. & B. 42. PR. DISSOLVING INJUNCTION NISI.

If bill be for discovery of matters penal at common law, or by statute, the defendant need not demur or plead, but it will be admitted on exceptions; but when the time for suing a penalty expires between the first and second answers, and exception is taken to the second answer for not discovering, the exceptions shall be allowed, and the party is bound to discover. s. v. Farrington, 3 Bro. C. C. 38. S. C.

2 Cox, 202. STAT. OF LIMIT.; FORFEITURE; DISCOVERY.

Exceptions to answer; the answer reported to be sufficient; plaintiff amends, upon answer coming in; seventy exceptions taken; motion that these exceptions be referred to the same master with the former set, granted. Pratt v. Tessier, 1 Bro. C. C. 39.

Exceptions to joint answer of defendants, A and B. A died, exceptions referred to B's answer only. Herbert v. Pusey, Dick. 265.

(k) Argument, and hearing of.

Where exceptions are taken to the answer to the original bill, and exceptions are also taken to the answer to the amended bill, a separate rule for the argument of each set of exceptions must be given, and it is irregular to set them down for argument under one rule. Eastwood v. Dobree, 1 Y. & J. 508.

In chancery, exceptions to answer are always argued and determined before the master. In the exchequer, they are argued and determined by the court itself. John v. Dacie, 13 Price, 632. PR. IN EXCH.

Exceptions standing in paper for argument, can only be heard at the sitting of the court. Memorandum, 5 Price, 607. PR. HEARING IN EXCHEQUER.

See the orders in Kerby Ord. 35, 38, 39. O'Keefe Ord. 63, 69. 2 Fowl. 4, 5, 7, & 2 Mad. Chan. 349.

The court will not grant an order to prove exhibits at the hearing of exceptions, because you can offer nothing at the hearing that was not before the master. Anon. 1 Mos. 191. PR. EXHIBITS.

Three defendants put in a joint and several answer, which is reported insufficient; two of them submit to the exceptions; this will not prevent the other bringing them on to be argued. Prac. Reg. 204.

(l) Allowance, and overruling of.

Taxed costs allowed on overruling frivolous exceptions to an answer to a bill for discovery, instead of 40s. the ordinary costs. Jones v. Steele, 1 McClel. & Y. 274. PR. COSTS.

The test of the materiality of exceptions, is to ascertain if the answer excepted to should admit or deny the interrogatory, whether it would assist the plaintiff's equity, or advance his claim to the relief sought by his bill. Batty v. Kendrick, 13 Price, 291.

Court refused to allow defendant costs, in case where only four out of thirty-five exceptions taken were allowed, five only having been argued, and one of them overruled. Daniel v. Bishop, 13 Price, 15. PR. COSTS.

The course of the court as to costs, is to allow 40s. on overruling exceptions, and 60s. on allowing. S. C. Id. ib.

Where one of several exceptions had been argued and allowed, and being held material, an injunction had been granted thereon, and the plaintiffs did not afterwards set down the others for argument, they were, on motion without notice, overruled. Jackson v. Strong, 13 Price, 309, note.

When some exceptions to answer are allowed and some disallowed, master should point out by report, which are and are not allowed. Agur v. Gurney, 2 Mad. 389. MASTER'S REPORT.

Amendment of bill, after exceptions to answer, allowed, does not prejudice injunction previously obtained. Adney v. Flood, 1 Mad. 449. BILL, AMENDMENT; INJUNCTION.

Upon exceptions taken to an answer for insufficiency, the master may look to the materiality of them, and overrule immaterial exceptions. Agar v. Regent's Canal Comp., Cooper, 212.

Injunction not revived pending a rehearing of order, allowing exceptions to report of insufficiency of answer. Scott v. Mackintosh, 1 V. & B. 503. PR. INJUNCTION, REVIVAL OF; PR. REHEARING.

After exceptions are allowed, the defendant has eight days to answer, and then may have an order for three weeks, to commence from end of ten days. Cowan v. Phillips, 3 Anst. 937. PR. TIME TO ANSWER.

If answer reported sufficient, and on exceptions held insufficient, defendant is not to pay the 40s. costs for insufficient answer. Knightly v. Deacon, Dick. 82.

Where, on exceptions to an answer, the court is equally divided, they are over-ruled of course. Hamilton v. Fleetwood, Bunb. 47.

18. Reference for scandal and impertinence.

See also PR. MASTER, 1. (d).

Ordered, that in future all references of answers of defendants for insufficiency, or for scandal and impertinence, or for impertinence made in the same cause, be made to the same master. And farther, that where answers of defendants have been referred for scandal and impertinence, or for impertinence, and the court shall afterwards refer the same for insufficiency, the latter reference be made to the same master as the former reference. Gen. Order, 10th March, 1818.

Where reference of answer for impertinence is shewn as cause against dissolving injunction, and report is to be obtained in four days, which is not done, injunction is dissolved, and report being afterwards obtained, will not be cause to revive it, as in case of insufficiency. Dancy v. Brown, 4 Mad. 238. PR. INJUNCTION, DISSOLVING, CAUSE AGAINST.

Plaintiff a pauper: costs of impertinence expunged from the answer, ordered to be taxed, as dies costs to be paid into court. Rattray v. George, 16 Ves. 232. PR. COSTS; PR. PAUPER CAUSE.

A reference of the answer for impertinence, is good cause against dissolving an injunction. Fisher v. Bayley, 12 Ves. 18. PR. INJUNCTION, DISSOLUTION OF.

Answer referred for scandal, on motion of co-defendant. Coffin v. Cooper, 6 Ves. 514.

A stranger to record may refer for scandal. Id. ib. Sed qv. 4 Mad. 252.

Reference of answer for scandal or impertinence, is not cause for continuing injunction. Milner v. Golding, Dick. 672.

On an answer being reported scandalous or impertinent, if the plaintiff except to the report, he must shew specially wherein it is scandalous or impertinent. Cruken v. Wright, 2 P. W. 181. PR. EXCEPTIONS TO REPORT.

19. Sufficiency.

See also PR. MASTER, 1. (d).

Answer found sufficient, shall be so from date of report. If defendant submit to answer without report, it shall be insufficient from date of submission. 9th Gen. Order, 3rd April, 1828.

Master, on deciding on sufficiency of an answer, may look at the materiality of the question. 74th Gen. Order, 3rd April, 1828.

Ordered, that in future all references of answers of defendants for insufficiency, or for scandal and impertinence, or for impertinence made in the same cause, be made to the same master. And farther, that where answers of defendants have been referred for scandal or impertinence, or for impertinence, and the court shall afterwards refer the same for insufficiency, the latter reference be made to the same master as the former reference. Gen. Order, 10th March, 1818.

After a fourth answer reported insufficient, it is a motion, of course, that the defendant shall be examined upon interrogatories, and stadd committed. The interrogatories are to be settled by the master, and must go directly to the points to which the exceptions are sustained. The defendant, instead of putting in a written examination to the interrogatories, is to be examined personally upon them by the master. Farquharson v. Balfour, 1 Turn. & R. 184. PR. EXAMINATION OF DEFENDANT ON INTERROGATORIES.

Mode of conducting the personal examination of a defendant upon interrogatories after a fourth insufficient answer. Id. 200.

Sufficiency of a fourth answer to be decided upon, not by looking at the fourth answer only, but by looking at it connected and taken with the three preceding answers. Id. 189.

Insufficient answer, no answer. Edwards v. M'Leay, 2 V. & B. 258.

No reference for insufficiency, until reference for impertinence is determined. Lacy v. Hornby, id. 293.

An injunction against proceeding at law is gone by the master's report, that the answer is sufficient, and is not sustained by exceptions. The order extending it to stay trial, which in the court of chancery is a distinct order, falls also as a part of the original injunction, without a motion to dissolve. Bishton v. Birch, 2 V. & B. 40. INJUNC. AGAINST PROCEEDINGS AT LAW.

Defendant having put in three insufficient answers, in custody for want of fourth, entitled to discharge on filing of fourth answer. Balfour v. Farquharson, 1 S. & S. 72. Affil. 1 Turn. & R. 184. See also Bayly v. Bayly, 11 Ves. 151. PR. CONTEMPT, DISCHARGE.

On a motion to dissolve a special injunction staying the trial of an action till further order, the master, on a reference for impertinence, having reported the answer impertinent in a small part only, and the plaintiffs having excepted to the report, and insisting on their right, after the question of impertinence was decided, to except to the answer for insufficiency, the lord chancellor examined the bill and answer, and dissolved the injunction, so far as it extended to stay trial. Tophael v. Birdwood, 1 Swan. 228.

Defendant, after two orders for time, having filed answer which was found in part illegible, a motion to take it off file, resisted on affidavit that it was legible when sworn, was refused. Att. Gen. v. Mayor of Fowey, 3 Swan. 184. PR. TAKING PLEA OFF FILE.

The general rule as to costs of insufficient answers. Const v. Ebers, 1 Mad. 530. PR. COSTS.

Order made, that defendant should, within four days, answer interrogatories, or in default, a serjeant at arms to go. Insufficient answer put in, serjeant at arms ordered to take him. Weston v. Jay, 1 Mad. 527. PR. INTERROGATORIES, ANSWER TO; PR. PROCESS.

The right to process under an undertaking for a serjeant at arms, &c. immediately on exceptions to the report of an insufficient answer disallowed, waived by plaintiffs taking out a subpoena for a better answer, and excepting to the report entitling defendant to eight days after the exceptions are disposed of. Algar v. Regents Canal Comp., 19 Ves. 379. S. C. Coop. 221. WAIVER; PR. PROCESS; SERJ. AT ARMS; PR. EXCEPTIONS TO REPORT.

Defendant, in contempt, putting in answer, to which exceptions were allowed. Plaintiff not accepting costs, may go on with old process. But if in custody, old process is discharged pending reference by tender of costs. Boehm v. De Tastet, 1 V. & B. 324. PR. PROCESS; PR. COSTS; WAIVER.

An answer filed is a sufficient objection to a motion to extend an injunction to stay trial; but, as the defendant submitted to exceptions, the order was made: an insufficient answer being no answer. Rishton v. H. 1 V. & B. 366. PR. INJUNC. TO STAY PROCS. REL. ENDING TO STAY TRIAL.

After answer reported insufficient, plaintiff may proceed upon his old process of contempt without a new order, if he has not accepted costs. Coutson v. Wharm, id. 331. PR. PROCESS; PR. COSTS; WAIVER.

Defendant taken upon the process for want of an answer, on putting in an answer is entitled to be discharged without waiting for the report that it is sufficient. Hawes v. Taylor, 16 Ves. 418. PR. DISCHARGE FROM CONTMPT FOR WANT OF ANSWER.

After two insufficient answers defendant is not entitled to six weeks time to answer. Gregor v. Id. Arnold, 6 Ves. 144. PR. TIME TO ANSWER.

An insufficient answer does not entitle defendants to be discharged from process of contempt. Wallop v. Brown, 4 Bro. C. C. 213. PR. DISCHARGE FROM CONTMPT.

The court condemned the practice of allowing as much time of course after an insufficient answer as on the original answer; also as to the costs of attachments proposed a remedy by order. Anon. 2 Ves. J. 270. S. C. nom. Gordon v. Pitt, 4 Bro. C. C. 466. PR. TIME TO ANSWER.

Order for a messenger for want of an answer. Defendant put in an answer which was reported insufficient. This being as no answer, the messenger was to proceed to execute the former order. E. I. Comp. v. Daerres, 1 Cox, 343. PR. MESSENGER.

Defendants answer reported insufficient, and order served on him to amend bill, and answer amendments and exceptions at same time: till this done, defendant cannot dissolve injunction obtained on original bill. Magne v. Hechin, Dick. 255.

Insufficient answer no answer. Turner v. Turner, id. 316.

Bill taken pro confesso on sequestration for want of a better answer, first having, on exceptions to part, been reported insufficient. Id. ib.

Also where defendant in contempt for want of answer puts in insufficient answer, plaintiff may go on with process where he left off. Broughd v. Childerster, id. 379.

Putting in answer is good cause against sequestration nisi against purchaser; but if answer insufficient, plaintiff must move again for sequestration nisi. Rasleigh v. Butler, id. 152.

Defendant, in custody for want of further answer putting it in, will be discharged on paying the costs of the contempt. If that answer, or any further one, proves to be insufficient, the plaintiff may resume the process where it left off. Child v. Brabson, 2 Ves. 119. S. P. Anon. 1 Ch. Ca. 238. Id. Abergavenny v. Ly. Abergavenny, Kel. 5. PR. DISCHARGE FROM CONTMPT.

If answer reported sufficient, and on exceptions held insufficient, defendant is not to pay the 40s. costs of an insufficient answer. Knightly v. Deacon, Dick. 82.

One defendant's answer is reported insufficient, and the master's report on exceptions confirmed; afterwards the other defendant put in the like answer. The court, for avoiding delay, will judge of the insufficiency of the answer without sending it to a master. West v. Id. Delaware, 1 Vern. 74. 2 Vent. 357. S. C.

Exceptions for insufficiency having been allowed to two answers, the plaintiff amended; defendant answered the amendments, to which answer exceptions were taken and allowed. The defendant shall pay costs as for a third insufficient answer. Harman v. Lupton, Bun. 203. PR. COSTS.

20. Who bound.

Infant's answer cannot be read against him, nor accepted to, and may be amended when he comes of age. Savage v. Curroll, 1 Ball & B. 553. INFANT.

But Ld. Hardwicke doubted whether an infant can, before he comes of age, put in a new answer, so as to rehear the cause over again; for if there should be a decree against him on the second hearing, he may, with as much reason, put in a third answer, which would occasion infinite vexation. Bennet v. Lee, 2 Atk. 487. INFANT.

Purchase to the use of baron and feme and their heirs; they join in a mortgage to the vendor to secure part of the purchase money; upon a bill to foreclose they answer jointly: the husband dies, and the wife insists on the want of a fine: held, the joint answer is equal to a fine, and mortgage good. Anon. Mos. 248. HUSB. & WIFE.

After a decree nisi against an infant, on such infant's coming of age, and before the decree made absolute, he may put in a new answer. Fountain v. Cairne, 1 P. W. 504. INFANT.

The defendant, by answer, accuses himself and his co-defendants, and is believed against himself, but not against his fellow. Michel v. Webb, Toth, 10. PR. EVIDENCE, ANSWER.

It is a motion of course for the defendant, after he comes of age, to be at liberty to put in a new answer, or amend his answer put in whilst he was an infant, if he has a day by the decree to shew cause after he comes of age. Anon. Mos. 66. But see Bennet v. Lee, 2 Atk. 487. INFANT; PR. DEMUR. PAROL.

21. Liberty to withdraw.

An infant defendant, before he comes of age, may apply to put in a better answer, where it is probable he may not be able to command the same evidence when he is of age. Bennet v. Lee, 2 Atk. 532. INFANT.

Defendant, not before conscious of his right, allowed to re-file new answer. Alpha v. Payman, Dick. 33.

The attorney-general may have liberty to withdraw his general answer, and put in another, insisting on the particular right of the crown. Errington v. Att. Gen. Bun. 303. ATT. GEN.

22. Priority.

Bill abated by marriage of plaintiff, no revivor till after cross bill filed, loses priority. Smart v. Floyer, Dick. 260.

Original bill must be answered first; but if, after cross bill filed, plaintiff materially amends, he loses his priority. Long v. Burton, Dick. 82.

The original bill is to be first answered; but if the plaintiff, after his cross bill filed, amend his bill, he loses his priority. Steward v. Roe, 2 P. W. 435. PR. CROSS BILL.

First bill to be answered before the cross bill: A brings his bill against B and C, who put in insufficient answers, and prefer their cross bill against A. B becomes a bankrupt; his assignees bring their bill, in nature of a bill of revivor, against A. They shall not go on till C has answered A's bill. Child v. Frederick, 1 P. W. 266. Id.

An appeal will not lie in chancery from a decree in a county palatine. Portington v. Tarbock, 1 Vern. 177. and S. P. Jennet v. Bishop, id. 184. COUNTY PALATINE.

2. When and on what grounds it lies, or when barred, and when on new matter.

Decree having been made upon bill in equity by a lay inpropriator for an account of tithes, the defendant in the suit appeals against so much of the decree as relates to part of the lands made subject to the account. The decree is reversed upon the ground that the plaintiff in the suit has not proved his title; whereupon defendant in suit presents a new appeal against the remainder of the decree: held, that a second appeal in such suit cannot be maintained; whether such appeal would be entertained in a suit where the title is in issue, quære? Norbury v. Meade, 3 Bl. 261.

A party having appealed against one part of a decree in a suit where the title is not in issue, thereby virtually submits to the rest of it, and cannot afterwards present a new appeal against other part of same decree; when such appeal is presented, the party seized with it ought not to answer, but to present a counter petition to have it dismissed. If he treats it as an effective appeal by answering and suffering it to proceed before he presents a counter petition, he will not be entitled to costs. Id. PR. COSTS.

Both parties ordered to be examined upon the trial of an issue directed upon a motion for an injunction supported by the plaintiff's affidavit, and opposed upon the affidavit of the defendant contradicting it; an order directing an issue not to be appealed from after the trial has taken place, scilicet. De Tistel v. Bordower, 1 Jac. 516. PR. EXAMIN. OF PARTIES TO SUIT; PR. ISSUE AT LAW.

Appeal not barred by consent to an order under the decree; but that order ought to be inserted in the petition of appeal. Wood v. Griffith, 19 Ves. 550.

Upon an application for a commission of delegates, the chancellor will not decide whether the appeal be in time, but will leave the question to the court of delegates. If it were quite plain that no appeal lay, a commission should not be granted; serus, if that question doubtful; semble. Heed v. Harris, 2 Scho. & L. 563.

By an order of the house of lords, of the 24th of March, 1725, the time for receiving appeals is limited to five years from the signing and enrolling of the decree; and therefore, upon an appeal brought from two decrees, of the 15th of July, 1728, and the 5th of February, 1731, which were enrolled in March, 1764, the house declared that the appeal ought not to have been received, and accordingly it was dismissed. In making this order, the house is said to have considered the enrolment of any decree pronounced by the court of chancery, as being, by legal relation, the act of the same day on which the decree was pronounced. Smythe v. Clay, 1 Bro. P. C. 453.

All appeals from chancery to the lords must be made within five years from the signing and enrolment of the decree. Hill v. White, Mos. 30.

Upon an appeal from a sentence of the admiralty of the Cinque Ports, the lord warden granted a commission of delegates; and, upon a demurrer to a bill for that the plaintiff did not set forth that the lord warden had authority to grant such commission, the court made no order as to that matter, but could not relieve the plaintiff, because the appeal was not made till fifteen days after the sentence. Denew v. Stock, Rep. Temp. Finch. 437.

4. Who may prosecute.

A suit having been instituted by a deviser, and revived by a party as devisee, whose supposed right is displaced by the discovery of a later will, the cause cannot be continued for the benefit of the effective devisee, by agreement between that devisee and the plaintiff in the suit, so as to enable the devisee under the second will (not being a party to the suit) to appeal against a decree; and an appeal cause cannot be heard before the court of appeal, until he is made a party in the suit below. In such a case, where the suit had been originally instituted by the deviser, and upon his death revived by the party claiming under the first will, semble, that the proper course to be adopted by the devisee under the second, is not (as in this case) to file a supplemental bill, praying to have the benefit of the proceedings in the revived suit, but to revive, de novo, the suit as abated on the death of the devisor. Rylands v. Latouche, 2 Bligh, 566. DEVISEE; PR. DECREE; PL. PARTY.

The case is different where a decree is defective only because incidental parties are not before the court; as in the case of an assignment, in trust for payment of debts, reserving the surplus, if the assignee obtains a decree, and afterwards it appears that he had assigned his interest before the decree, his assignees may, by supplemental bill, have the benefit of that decree. Binks v. Binks, 2 Bl. 593. DEVISEE; PR. DECREE; PL. PARTY.

Where party to suit sells and conveys all his right, &c., under decree, to another for valuable consideration, such sale, &c., is an absolute bar to appeal by him from that decree. Cusack v. Gilbert, 5 Bro. P. C. 471. CONVEYANCE.

Under what circumstances an appeal may be brought from an old decree, by a person who was neither party or privy to the suit in which the decree was made. No appeal lies to the house of lords in Ireland, from the judgment or decree of any court in that kingdom. The statute of 6 Geo. 1. c. 5. did not introduce any new law, but is only declarative of what the law was before: but this act is now repealed by the statute 22 Geo. 3. c. 53. Vernon v. Vernon, 1 Bro. P. C. 440. STRANGER TO DECREE.

An agent being prosecuted for contempt in disobeying an order of which he had no notice, may join in an appeal from that order, though not party to cause in which the order was made. Stone v. Burne, 5 Bro. P. C. 213. PL. PARTY.

5. Evidence on.

On appeal and re-hearing, additional evidence permitted in some instances: if the rule is so, it must be subject to costs. White v. Fussell, 1 V. & B. 153. PR. EVID. FURTHER; PR. RE-HEARING.

On the hearing of all appeals, this principle universally prevails, that no evidence can be received which was not laid before the court below; nor can any evidence, which was received below, be objected to above, unless the admission of improper evidence be among the points of the appeal. Eden v. El. Rute, 1 Bro. P. C. 465.

Where it does not appear by the register's minutes that any evidence was read at the hearing of the cause, the court ought not, upon a subsequent application, make an order that the evidence should be entered as read. Id. ib.

On an appeal from the rolls, the appellant may be let into new evidence, which was not read there, provided he will give up his deposit. Hedges v. Cardonnel, 2 Atk. 408. DEPOSIT.

On an appeal from the rolls to chancellor, the cause is open, and the party is at liberty to read new proof, and offer what he can against the decree. Wright v. Pilling, Prec. Chan. 496.

No evidence can be given, on hearing of appeal in house of lords, which was not read or insisted on in court below. Braesh v. Moore, 3 Bro. P. C. 546.

No proofs to be read in the house of lords which were not made use of in chancery. Button v. Price, Prec. Chan. 212.

6. Abatement and Revivor of.

A suit having been instituted by a devisor, and revived by a party as devisee, whose supposed right is displaced by the discovery of a later will, the cause cannot be continued for the benefit of the effective devisee, by agreement between the devisee and the plaintiff in the suit, so as to enable the devisee under the second will (not being a party to the suit) to appeal against the decree; and an appeal cause cannot be heard before the court of appeal, until he is made a party in the suit below. In such a case, where the suit had been originally instituted by the devisee, and upon his death revived by the party claiming under the first will, semble, that the proper course to be adopted by the devisee under the second, is not (as in this case) to file a supplemental bill, praying to have the benefit of the proceedings in the revived suit, but to revive, de novo, the suit as abated on the death of the devisor. Rylands v. Latouche, 2 Bligh, 566. DEVISEE; PR. DECREE; PL. PARTY.

The case is different where a decree is defective only because incidental parties are not before the court; as in the case of an assignment in trust for payment of debts, reserving the surplus, if the assignee obtains a decree, and afterwards it appears that he had assigned his interest before the decree, his assignees may, by supplemental bill, have the benefit of that decree. Binks v. Binks, 2 Bl. 593. Id.

When an appeal is abated in the house of lords, the order to revive is obtained of course, and there is no fresh summons. Byne v. Potter, 5 Ves. 305.

On an appeal, the house reserved giving judgment upon the point, until an account was taken between the parties. The account is accordingly taken; but, before the appeal is brought on again, one of the parties dies. The suit below is thereupon regularly revived. This is sufficient, and the appeal need not be revived. Luke v. Mason, 5 Bro. P. C. 281.

7. Effect of, and staying Proceedings during.

Upon appeal against a decree after the case printed, and an appendix of the evidence, as entered in the registrar's notes of proofs on the hearing, it is irregular to proceed by order upon motion in the court below, to expunge any part of such evidence as entered by mistake, but the course is to apply to the house by petition for leave to proceed in the court below to rectify it. Lopdell v. Creagh, 1 Bl. N. S. 225. PR. EVIDENCE; MISTAKE.

The taking of an account will not be stayed pending an appeal. Nerot v. Burnand, 2 Russ. 56. ACCT.

Pending an appeal, the court will sometimes stay the sale of property which the decree has directed to be sold, but if the property consists of personal chattels remaining in the possession of the appellant, he must give ample security for their value. Id. ib. PR. INJUNCTION TO STAY SALE. SECURITY.

Motion to stay all proceedings under decree till after decision of appeal to house of lords, unsupported by affidavit, and before signature of counsel obtained, refused with costs. Edwards v. Morgan, 1 M'Clel. & Y. 258. MOTION TO STAY DECREE.

The writ of ne exeat regno does not issue for alimony after a decree in the ecclesiastical court, pending an appeal from that decree. Street v. Street, 1 Turn. & R. 322. ALIMONY; NE EXEAT REGNO.

Pending an appeal from an order overruling a demurrer, the court will stay proceedings for enforcing an answer, where answering would render the appeal useless. Wood v. Milner, 1 Jac. & W. 636. STAYING PROCEEDINGS.

Pending an appeal from the rolls, an application to stay further proceedings, or to stay a final decree, must be made to the lord chancellor. M'Naghten v. Boehm, Id. 48. STAYING PROCEEDINGS.

Application to suspend an order of the court till an appeal, of which notice had been given, should be determined, would be more properly made to the court of appeal, particularly where that court has already interfered in the cause; but the court will suspend their order for a given period, and to a certain extent, on motion, for the purpose of giving the party an opportunity of applying to the appellate court. Lewes v. Morgan, 5 Price, 468. PR. SUSPENSION OF ORDER OF COURT.

Notwithstanding appeal from decree, party may sue out subpoena for costs decreed. Tyson v. Cox, 3 Mad. 278. PR. SUBPOENA FOR COSTS.

An appeal pending in house of lords is no objection to deputy remembrancer taxing costs, but payment will be suspended. Meade v. Norbury, 4 Price, 322. PR. TAXATION OF COSTS.

An appeal does not form a ground to stay process for costs previously commenced, viz. by subpoena. Distinction where the appeal is before any step taken. Roberts v. Tottu, 19 Ves. 446. PR. STAYING PROCEEDINGS; PR. COSTS.

Appeal to the lord chancellor from a part of the decree, affirmed on a rehearing at the rolls; but the other party having previously appealed from another part of the decree, the second appeal brought up to the first. Blackburn v. Jepson, 2 V. & B. 359. See this case, 17 Ves. 473. and 3 Swan. 132.

Decree not suspended by an appeal without a special ground the subject of discretion; a legacy therefore, paid out of court upon security, notwithstanding an appeal. Way v. Foy, 18 Ves. 452. PR. DECREE.

Appeal generally does not stay proceedings under a decree. The costs upon a special application follow the judgment if unfavourable. Willm v. Willm, 16 Ves. 216. See also Tyson v. Cox, 3 Mad. 278. PR. COSTS.

General rule that an appeal does not stay proceedings, without especial ground. The decree being for the specific performance of a contract for purchase, according to the answer, the execution only was suspended, the master to proceed to settle the conveyance, &c. Gwynn v. Lethbridge, 14 Ves. 585. PR. STAYING PROCEEDINGS.

Order of the house of lords made, that proceedings under a decree of a court of equity shall not be stayed by an appeal, unless by special order, upon application to the house or the court. Writ of error generally stays execution in civil cases, not in criminal. Jinguenin v. Benten, 15 Ves. 180. See Lewes v. Morgan, 5 Price, 468. PR. STAYING PROCEEDINGS.

Petition of rehearing after an appeal from the rolls, dismissed. E. I. Comp. v. Boddam, 13 Ves. 421. PR. REHEARING.

Appeal to house of lords, does not stay proceedings in court below. Wardens, &c. of St. Paul's v. Morris, 9 Ves. 516.

Upon an appeal from the rolls to the lord chancellor or lord keeper, the cause is entirely open. Needham v. Smith, 2 Vern. 464.

After a decree of dismissal affirmed on appeal to the lords, bill is brought for the discovery of a deed, (said to be burnt pending the suit,) which made out the plaintiff's title, and the bill is brought, that after such discovery, the plaintiff might apply to the house of lords for relief; on demurrer the defendant ordered to answer, but plaintiff to proceed no further without leave of court. Barbon v. Searle, 1 Vern. 416. DISCOVERY.

Upon a prorogation, the party may proceed in the account, notwithstanding an appeal in parliament. Propham v. Bamfield, 1 Vern. 344.

8. Practice on Generally.

Deposit on petition of appeal or rehearing, shall be 20*l*. 42 Gen. Ord. 3d Apr. 1828.

See the standing orders of House of Lords relating to appeal, collected in Bridg. Prac. Dig. 48.

Upon the hearing of a petition of appeal presented by the defendant, leave was given to the plaintiffs to amend their bill, by making it either a bill and information, or an information. President of St. Mary Magdalen, Oxford v. Sibthorp, 1 Russ. 154. PR. BILL, AMENDMENT OF.

An appeal may be prosecuted in forma pauperis. Bland v. Lamb, 2 J. & W. 302. PAUPER.

Petition of appeal not being answered till the day after it has been presented, not to prejudice the party, being strictly entitled to have it answered immediately. Robinson v. Newdwick, 3 Mer. 15.

Appeal ordered to be taken off the file with costs, as upon a different case, and introducing a variety of representation not made in the court below. Wood v. Griffith, 19 Ves. 550.

Object and effect of the late order of the house of lords, requiring the parties to appeals to print their cases forthwith, applying generally to all appeals, to check the abuse of appealing merely for delay and vexation. Way v. Foy, 18 Ves. 453.

Signature of counsel on appeal to the house of lords, equivalent to the certificate on appeal to the lord chancellor. Id. SIGNATURE OF COUNSEL.

Plaintiff appealing from a decree dismissing the bill, is entitled to the usual order, for the production and inspection of deeds. Church v. Barclay, 16 Ves. 435. PR. PRODUCTION OF DEED.

Order on motion and consent, that a petition of appeal from the rolls, may be withdrawn. Thomson v. Thomson, 10 Ves. 30.

Upon appeal to delegates, appellant may demand an adjournment from first meeting of judges to examine the transmiss of proceedings. Goodwin v. Giesler, 1 Ridg. L. & S. 371. PR. ADJOURNMENT.

An appeal from the rolls to the lord chancellor cannot be reheard. Fox v. Blackerth, 2 Cox. 158. PR. REHEARING.

Pending appeal, plaintiff files supplemental bill to carry on decree: held, regular. Woodward v. Woodward, Dick. 33.

1. Effect of, and of want of.

The grantor of an annuity secured by an equitable charge on certain lands, which are subject to a prior charge, goes to reside abroad, but by his agent continues in the receipt of the rents and profits. The court, on the application of the annuitant, will appoint a receiver, though the grantor has not appeared to the suit. Tunfield v. Irvine, 2 Russ. 149. ANNUITY; PR. RECEIVER.

Subpoena was served on defendant at house in London, but he resided in country; attachments issued, and he appeared. Held, appearance waived irregularity; that it must be considered a town cause; therefore, an order obtained for six weeks time to answer, was discharged with costs, as being irregular. Bound v. Wells, 3 Mad. 434. WAIVER; PR. PROCESS, IRREGULARITY OF; PR. TOWN CAUSE; PR. TIME TO ANSWER.

The defendant not appearing in support of a demurrer, the court, on production of an affidavit of service of the order for setting down the demurrer, will not overrule the demurrer, but hear the plaintiff. Penfield v. Ramsbottom, 1 Swan. 652. PR. DEMURRER.

Subpoena to testify in Guildhall, London, attachment for non-appearance. Batt v. Rookes, id. 61.

Husband appears, and wife not; attachment against both. Monro v. Abel, id. 65.

2. When substituted, and its incidents.

Appearances may be put in for defendants, having privilege of parliament, in courts of equity, on return of process of sequestration. 45 Geo. 3. c. 124. s. 4. In default of answer to bill in equity, against persons having privilege of parliament, bill shall be taken pro confesso. Id. s. 5. PRIVILEGE OF PARLIAMENT.

Any person not entering appearance within the usual time after subpoena, and justly suspected to abscond to avoid the process, court to fix a day for his appearance, to be inserted in the Gazette, and published in the parish church of the defendant, and posted in some public place. 5 G. 2. c. 25. s. 1.

Defendants brought into court by habeas corpus, and refusing to enter appearance, court to order it for them. 5 G. 2. c. 25. s. 2.

Appearance once entered by attorney, can only be struck out by leave of court. Menties v. Rodrigues, 1 Price, 92.

Time enlarged for appearance to a bill of foreclosure under stat. 5 Geo. 2. c. 25. notices in the parish church having been prevented while under repair. Knowles v. Broome, 1 V. & B. 305. STATUTE, C. OF; PR. FORECLOSURE.

Member of parliament refusing to enter an appearance, the court appointed a clerk in court, to enter an appearance for him under statute 45 Geo. 3. c. 124. Read v. Phillips, 16 Ves. 436. STAT. C. OF; MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT.

An infant cannot appear by attorney, for he must appear by his guardian. Dwyer v. O'Brien, 1 Ridg. P.C. 38. (n). INFANT.

The mother of an infant defendant appeared as his guardian, though not really so, but the court refused to set aside the appearance on that ground. Humphrey v. Brewer, Vern. & Scriv. 386. GUARD. & WARD.

Defendant left kingdom two years preceding filing of bill; on affidavit that defendant continued abroad to elude justice, defendant ordered to appear under 5 Geo. 2. c. 25. Mason v. Polier, Dick. 401. Sed quare; vide note Wyatt's edit. 1803.

If a bill is brought against baron and feme for a demand out of the separate estate of the feme, and the husband is beyond sea, and not amenable by the process of the court, yet if the wife is served with a subpoena, she must appear and answer the plaintiff's bill. Dubois v. Hole, 2 Vern. 613. FEME COVERT.

If both husband and wife are served with a subpoena, or the husband only, but with notice that his wife is a defendant, he must appear for both, else an attachment may issue in the first case against both, and in the latter against the husband. Prac. Reg. 37. HUSB. & WIFE.

3. Undertaking to appear.

When plaintiff's solicitor serves defendant's solicitor with subpoena, to hear judgment, and obtains an undertaking from him to appear, and plaintiff makes default at hearing; on affidavit of these facts, bill will be dismissed with costs. Mackness v. Johnstone, 1 McClell. 148. PR. DISMISSAL OF BILL.

Undertaking, to appear to hear judgment, given by solicitor of either of parties, in a cause which has been set down, is not sufficient to make it unnecessary for the other party to prove service of subpoena to hear judgment upon such of those persons who ought to be before court, as are absent when cause is called on. Bishop v. Bishop, 9 Price, 481. PR. AFFIDAVIT OF SERVICE.

In the case, however, of an information against a corporate body, an affidavit of indorsement of undertaking, to appear at hearing, by solicitor of defendant, on the writ of distringas, and another affidavit stating that, on service of letter missive on bishop, his solicitor had thought it unnecessary to appear for him; decree nisi was made in the absence of the defendant. Att. Gen. v. Poor of Alverstoke, 9 Price, 482. IB.

Court will not attach party for not appearing to bill of injunction, according to undertaking of solicitor who accepted subpoena. Pemberton v. Gilby, 9 Price, 146. PR. ATTACHMENT; SOL. & CLI.

Solicitor ordered to pay all the costs occasioned by his refusing to appear for defendant at the hearing, pursuant to his undertaking, and the costs of the application. Cook v. Broomhead, 16 Ves. 133. PR. COSTS; SOL. & CLI.

Defendant by consent to appear gratis at hearing, and pray no day over, making default, decree was pronounced. Dean v. Abel, Dick. 287.

4. Gratis.

Where defendant enters appearance gratis, time within which he must answer or sue out commission is to be calculated from date of such actual appearance. Webster v. Threlfall, 1 S. & S. 135. PR. ANSWER.

Where defendant is not bound to appear before particular day, but prior thereto appears gratis, the time for answering, &c. is calculated from the actual appearance. Hamwarst v. Wellster, 5 Mad. 422. IB.

Attachment against husband and wife for want of wife's answer, stayed against husband, but wife attached. Leibly v. Taylor, Dick. 372. See Dick. 133.

The brief of a party in the cause is clandestinely taken out of the chamber of his attorney, and made an improper use of by the opposite party. The court ordered the brief to be returned, and granted an attachment, not only against the person who had obtained it, but also against those who had made use of it. Though a brief is not of itself evidence against the party for whom it is prepared, yet, as a discovery of the secrets and merits of his case may be productive of perjury, or subornation of perjury, and thereby obstruct the justice of the court in which the suit is depending; the obtaining of it in a surreptitious manner, is an offence highly deserving the censure and punishment of that court. Hateman v. Coneary, 1 Bro. P. C. 619.

Where a solicitor has been negligent in attending to a client's business, the court can grant an attachment against him; and courts of law exercise the same summary jurisdiction over attorneys. Lloyd v. Nangle, 3 Atk. 568. SOLICITOR & CLIENT.

Attachment against defendant upon confession, that he was served. Waters v. Herd, id. 73. Stow v. Maddock, id. 82.

Maltreatment of server of writ, attachment issues. Dustones v. Apprice, id. 91.

Subpoena shown and offered, attachment for non-appearance. Peris v. Thomas, id. 94.

Plaintiff, serving subpoena, denying defendant sight, &c. of it, and no bill in court, attachment against plaintiff. Mead v. Crosse, id. 96.

Attachment for breaking order of court. Stephens v. Budden, id. 103.

Attachment discharged, subpoena counterfeit. Baily v. Harte, id. 105.

Attachment issues against the wife alone, and not the husband, for that she would not answer the bill. Kries v. Macher, Tolt. 15. Husn. & Wife; PR. ANSWER.

On the return of a subpoena, if a witness will not appear, and be examined, the party may take attachment against him; and if he appears, and deposes on the other side, his depositions may be suppressed on motion. Dolman v. Pritman, 3 C. R. 64. S. C. Anon. 2 Fre. 134. PR. WITNESS.

3. Affidavits in Support.

An affidavit that, "the (sole) defendant has been served with a true copy of a subpoena," is too loose and general to support an attachment for want of appearance. Henchcliffe v. Gracie, 1 M'Clel & Y 277.

In the case of articles of peace where party complained of is not in court, an attachment for breach of the peace goes on the oath of the complainant. Exp. Gumbleton, 2 Atk. 70. S. C. 9 Mod. 232. PR. SUPPLICAVIT.

If affidavit whereon attachment founded be filed before return thereof; held good. Read v. Ward, Dick. 76.

This, though contrary to the general orders of the court, has been the constant practice, and in a late case, after much discussion, the court hesitated to decide upon the point of practice, but ordered that in future, no process should issue without an affidavit previously filed. Broomhead v. Smith, 8 Ves. 557.

4. Discharge from.

If a defendant who has been taken on an attachment still refuses to answer, the plaintiff may at the same time proceed to enforce an answer by the process of this court, and bring an action against him and his sureties on the bond given to the sheriff under the attachment. Beddall v. Page, 2 Sim. 224. PR. ANSWER; PR. INJUNC. TO STAY WASTE; PR. BAIL.

Notwithstanding, an offer has been made to pay all the expences which the party has been put to, by the irregularity in issuing an attachment, he has a right to have the judgment of the court on the question of its regularity, and is therefore entitled to the costs of the motion for setting it aside. Froud v. Laurence, 1 Jac. & W. 655. COSTS.

Subpoena served on defendant at home in London, but he resided in the country; attachment issued, and he appeared: held, appearance waived irregularity, and that it made it a town cause; order obtained for six weeks time to answer, was therefore discharged with costs as being irregular. Pound v. Wells, 3 Mad. 434. WAIVER; PR. APPEARANCE; PR. TOWN CAUSE; PR. TIME TO ANSWER.

Certificate discharges attachment against an executor for nonpayment of a sum of money. Wall v. Atkinson, Coop. 198. EXECUTOR; BANKCY. CERTIFICATE, EFFECT OF.

Defendant in contempt putting in answer to which exceptions were allowed, plaintiff not accepting costs, may go on with old process; but if in custody, old process is discharged during reference by tender of costs. Buehm v. De Tastet, 1 V. & B. 324. INSUFFICIENCY OF ANSWER; WAIVER; PR. COSTS.

After answer reported insufficient, plaintiff may proceed upon his old process of contempt without a new order, if he has not accepted costs. Coulson v. Graham, 1 V. & B. 331. Id.

Discharge by habeas corpus from commitment under an attachment for breach of a writ of execution of a decree for payment of money, on account of a devastavit as executor, committed before, though not ascertained by the report, or decreed to be paid, till after the time fixed by an insolvent act; of which the party had taken the benefit. Wheldale v. Wheldale, 16 Ves. 376.

Court will not upon motion discharge a person in execution for costs upon a demand arising to him upon the person to whom he is in execution. Holworthy v. Allen, 2 Bro. C. C. 17. S. C. 1 Cox, 202. Quod vide. SET-OFF.

Where remedy is given by attachment, as by 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 15 concerning awards, made a rule of court; the attachment is gone, and remedy lost, by the death of the defendant. Webster v. Bishop, 2 Vern. 444.

If one be taken upon an attachment, either in process or in execution after a decree, yet in both cases on his appearing before the register he is to be discharged, and to answer the interrogatories at large, not in custody; and if he be continued in custody, the court on motion and appearing before the register, will discharge him. Danby v. Lawson, Prec. Chan. 110. PR. EXAMINATION ON INTERROGATORIES.

5. Against Prisoners.

Special return to an attachment for not appearing, that defendant was imprisoned for felony, the plaintiff must proceed in the usual way by habeas corpus. Rogers v. Kirkpatrick, 3 Ves. 471. PR. HABEAS CORPUS.

Where an attachment issues against a defendant in custody in the king's bench prison, it is to be lodged with the marshal, and an habeas corpus may then be moved for before return of the attachment. Trotter v. Trotter, 1 Jac. 533. PR. PRISONER.

An attachment for non-performance of an order against one in the fleet, is directed to the warden of the fleet, and on his return that defendant is his prisoner, the party may move for sequestration. Anon. Mos. 301.

6. Service of.

Husband and wife defendants, husband abroad, wife alone served with the subpoena; attachment directed against her for want of appearance. Rushell v. Bushell, 1 S. & S. 164. HUSB. & WIFE.

Where an attachment issues against a defendant in custody in the king's bench prison, it is to be lodged with the marshal, and an habeas corpus may then be moved for before return of the attachment. Trotter v. Trotter, 1 Jac. 533. PR. PRISONER.

Where there is only one defendant, in the exchequer, the subpoena itself must be served, and not a copy of it. De Tilton v. Sidney, 1 Anst. 79. PR. SERVICE OF SUBPOENA.

Defendant 140 miles off served two days before end of term, attachment discharged. Smith v. Weare, Cary, 88.

7. Entry of.

An attachment must be entered in the register's book before it is issued. Smith v. Thompson, 4 Mad. 179. Beames' Ord. 110.

Every attachment returned on which an order for a sergeant at arms is grounded, must be entered in the register's office else irregular. James v. Philips, 2 P. W. 657.

8. Return to.

By 47th order of exchequer, where sheriff neglects to return a process delivered to him, rule may be given on last day of term for him to return writ by seal day, or be amerced 40s. Kirkby's Ord. 25. See 1 Fowl. Exch. 155. See also Beames' Ord. 199.

Attachment returnable within eight days after the purification. The eight days mean eight days entire. Moolham v. Wickett, 1 Mer. 243. TIME, COMPUTATION OF.

Where order for messenger has been issued against the sheriff for contempt in not returning attachment against defendant for not putting in answer (other attachments having been issued before) it is peremptory, and court will not stay the order, although it go to affect the sheriff not in office at the time of original neglect, nor will they enlarge the time limited by the order. Thomas v. Matthias, 2 Price, 32. PR. ORDER FOR MESSENGER.

The previous order to high sheriff to return the process may be well served on his under-sheriff. Id. ib.

Day given to sheriff to return attachment upon pain of 5*l*. Crompton v. Meredith, Cary, 77. See also Stratling v. Pembroke, id. 62. Hadley v. Wright, id. 109. Clough v. Cross, Dick. 555. Anon. Wyatt, Pr. Reg. 394. Harr. Pr. 118.

9. For want of Answer.

Exceptions to an answer having been allowed, plaintiff obtained an order to amend, and for defendant to answer the exceptions and amendments at the same time: defendant put in an answer to the amended bill only. The plaintiff then issued an attachment: Held that it was irregular, and that plaintiff ought to have moved to take the second answer off the file. De Tastet v. Lopez, 1 Sim. 11. PR. MOTION TO TAKE PLEADINGS OFF FILE; PR. ANSWER TO AMENDED BILL.

Attachment for want of answer to amended bill cannot issue until the amendments have been entered in six clerks' book, and there is no difference between the amendments of a bill which has been answered and those of a bill which has not been answered. Adamson v. Blackstock, 1 S. & S. 118. PR. ANSWER; PR. BILL, AMENDMENTS.

Defendant against whom attachment has issued for want of answer, may file plea of outlawry. Waters v. Chambers, 1 S. & S. 225. PR. PLEA, OUTLAWRY.

After attachment for want of answer, defendant can only answer. Broughton v. Jones, 3 Mad. 42.

Attachments issued for want of answer, after information that they would be sealed at the next private seal, and notice of a petition presented for an order for farther time, set aside for irregularity, due diligence having been used to obtain the order, but without costs, no communication having been made of circumstances which occasioned delay. Barrett v. Barrett, 3 Swan. 395.

A demurrer and answer filed by a defendant attached for want of an answer, after orders for time to plead, answer, or demur, not demurring alone, ordered to be taken off the file. Curzon v. De La Zouche 1 Swan. 185. PR. DEMURRER; PR. TIME TO ANSWER; PR. TAKING PLEADINGS OFF FILE.

After attachment against infant for want of answer, the proper course is a messenger to bring him into court to have a guardian assigned him. Eyles v. Le Gros, 9 Ves. 12. GUARDIAN; INFANT.

Defendant in confinement under sentence for felony, cannot be brought up by habeas corpus upon an attachment for want of an answer. Rogers v. Kirkpatrick, 3 Ves. 573. PR. HAB. CORP.

10. For Costs.

Demurrer to examination by witness overruled, subpoena for costs not of course. Valiant v. Dodemead, Dick. 92.

Costs to be paid out of estate, no subpoena lies against defendant, but part of estate to be sold. Cannon v. Beeln, Dick. 115.

The sheriff cannot take a bail bond upon an attachment for not paying costs, but in such case a messenger is to go to bring in the party. Anon. Proc. Chan. 331. PR. MESSENGER; PR. BAIL.

11. With Proclamations.

After contempt duly prosecuted to attachment with proclamations returned, no commission to answer shall issue, but on motion, and affidavit of party's inability to travel, or other good matter, to satisfy court touching that delay. Beames' Ord. 178.

After the return of the writ of attachment with proclamations, defendant cannot put in plea and answer. Sanders v. Murney, 1 S. & S. 225. Lloyd v. Gunter, 1 Vern. 275. PR. PLEA; PR. ANSWER.

Discharged paying ordinary fee, answer being in before. Trussell v. Mills, Cary, 78.

VII. ATTACHMENT AGAINST PROPERTY.

A chose in action is neither subject to an execution at law, or to be attached in equity by creditors in the lifetime of the debtor. Grogan v. Cooke, 2 Ball & B. 233. CHOSE IN ACTION; EXECUTION.

VIII. BAIL.

See also PRINCIPAL AND SURETY.

If a defendant who has been taken on an attachment and given bail to sheriff, still refuses to answer, the plaintiff may at the same time proceed to enforce an answer by the process of this court, and bring an action against him and his sureties on the bond given to the sheriff under the attachment. Beddall v. Page, 2 Sim. 224. PR. INJUNCTION TO STAY PROC. AT LAW; PR. ATTACHMENT.

Defendant being committed for want of answer, his bail, under a writ ne exeat regno, not discharged. Stapleton v. Peill, 19 Ves. 615. NE EXEAT REGNO; PR. COMMITMENT FOR WANT OF ANSWER.

After injunction obtained by principal, proceeding against bail is a breach of injunction. Chaplin v. Cooper, 1 V. & B. 19. INJUNC. BREACH OF.

In an account ne exeat regno granted, though bail might be had at law. Hanney v. McEntire, 11 Ves. 55. NE EXEAT REGNO; ACCOUNT.

Defendant cannot be held to bail a second time for the same cause. Answick v. Barklay, 8 Ves. 596.

Plaintiff at law has a right to hold defendant to bail upon his own affidavit, but there have been cases in which the court of law has permitted an explanation of the circumstances by the affidavit of the defendant, particularly between foreigners and upon foreign transactions, and where an abuse of the process appeared, has directed common bail to be filed. De Carriere v. De Calonne, 4 Ves. 590.

Injunction obtained by bail against a creditor who had obtained a verdict, dissolved, the principal debtor being made a party defendant, and stated by bill to be out of jurisdiction. Roverey v. Grayson, 3 Swan. 145. PR. INJUNCTION.

In the language of the court, bail are the gaolers of the principal, hence arrest by them good even on a Sunday. Lip. Gibbons, 1 Atk. 239. SUNDAY.

Bankrupt may be surrendered by bail within the time of privilege. Id. 238. Vide 3 East. 145. 1 Pri. 74. BANKCY. PRIVILEGE FROM ARREST.

Where bail is put in above, an injunction to stay proceedings against the principal extends to proceedings against the bail. Where bail is only put in below, such an injunction extends to proceedings on the bail bond. Stone v. Tuffin, Amb. 32. PR. INJUNCTION, EXTENT OF.

The sheriff cannot take a bail bond upon an attachment for not paying costs, but in such case a messenger is to go to bring in the party. Anon. Proc. Chan. 331. PR. ATTACHMENT FOR COSTS; PR. MESSENGER.

To bill to be relieved against bail bond assigned by fraud to sheriff, plaintiff at law is necessary party. Israel v. Narbourne, 1 Vern. 87.

Commissioners of rebellion have discretion to take bail. Inglet v. Vaughan, Dick. 7.

Bail bonds taken on commission of rebellion usually taken in name of holder of great seal, master of rolls, or two masters in chancery. Cary, 58.

BILL. See CHARITY, IV.—PR. EVID. 13.

IX. BILL, AMENDED.

See also PR. INJUNCTION, 3.

A plaintiff who had obtained the common injunction, as of course procured an order to amend, and then obtained an injunction upon the amended bill as of course: Held, that a special application ought to have been made. Home v. Watson, 2 Sim. 85. PR. INJUNCTION.

Though injunction is not applied for on original bill, yet if bill is amended, injunction will be granted as of course on defendant taking order for time to answer amended bill. Statham v. Hughes, 2 S. & S. 382. INJUNC. TIME TO ANSWER.

Where draft of amended bill is signed by same counsel who signed original bill, and no new engrossment is necessary, counsel's name need not be repeated on the amendment. Webster v. Threfall, 1 S. & S. 135. PR. SIG. OF COUNSEL.

Otherwise if by different counsel. Id. ib.

Where neither draft amendment nor engrossed signed by counsel, bill taken off file for irregularity. Pitt v. Mackleux, id. 136.

Attachment for want of answer to amended bill cannot issue till amendments have been entered in six clerks' books, and there is no difference between the amendments of a bill which has been answered, and those of a bill which has not. Adamson v. Blackstock, 1 S. & S. 118. PR. ATTACHMENT; PR. ANSWER.

Where original bill is amended stating a new case, but containing some of the same interrogatories as were in original bill, such interrogatories must be answered again. Matarredo v. Maitland, 3 Mad. 66. PR. ANSWER.

Where a bill has been amended, the amended bill is the only one upon record. The original bill, therefore, cannot be read as evidence to prove what a plaintiff considered his right to be at the time of filing it. Hales v. Pomfret, Dan. 141. EVIDENCE.

Time allowed defendant to answer amendments in bill is eight days, or he must within that period apply for time to answer. But on special application to be allowed to answer amended bill, even after plaintiff has replied and called on defendant to join in commission, court will grant it on condition of answering and joining commission immediately. Church v. Legent, 2 Pri. 45. PR. TIME TO ANSWER.

Injunction refused on merits in answer, is not of course on filing amended bill. Bliss v. Boscouen, 2 V. & B. 101. INJUNCTION.

Where much new matter is put in issue by an amended bill, it must be done by new engrossment; where but little, by interpolation. Willis v. Evans, 2 Ball & B. 220.

Injunction of course for want of answer to an amended bill, an answer having been put in to the original bill, and no injunction obtained upon that. Nelthorpe v. Law, 13 Ves. 323. PR. INJUNC. FOR WANT OF ANSWER; PR. ANSWER.

Plaintiff amended his bill, paying costs. The amended bill is not within the general order, 23rd June, 1794; and defendant, therefore, is entitled to the same time as upon an original bill. Spencer v. Bryant, 9 Ves. 231. PR. AMENDED BILL; PR. TIME TO ANSWER.

Where the bill is amended after answer, if the amended bill is not answered, the plaintiff is entitled to a decree that the bill be taken pro confesso generally. Topling v. Stuart, 4 Ves. 619. PR. BILL, PRO CONFESSO; ANSWER.

Subpoena not necessary to an amended bill. Sheffington v. —, 4 Ves. 66. PR. SUBPOENA.

Where the bill is amended after answer, by adding a defendant, the original defendant cannot answer the amended bill, nor have any order for time to answer. Gill v. Mathews, 3 Anst. 879. TIME TO ANSWER; ANSWER.

Amended bill is out of court by allowance of plea posterior to the date of the bill, otherwise if prior. Jennings v. Pearce, 1 Ves. J. 448. PR. PLEA.

On amended bill it is not necessary to serve new subpoenas on the original defendants. Angerstein v. Clarke, 1 Ves. J. 250. PR. SUBPOENA.

After injunction dissolved upon the merits, motion to stay trial of ejectment till full answer to the amended bill, refused with costs. Ly. Markham v. Dickenson, id. 30. PR. INJUNC.; PR. MOTION TO STAY TRIAL.

Original and amended bill are but one record. Vere v. Glynn, Dick. 441.

Where new matter is suggested by an amended or supplemental bill foreign and repugnant to the title set up by the original bill, there can be no proceedings against the defendant without serving him with subpoena ad fac. attorn., nor ought the cause be brought to a hearing without such service, because defendant should have an opportunity of defending himself against such matter. Chevers v. Geoghegan, 6 Bro. P. C. 11.

A defendant having appeared and answered the original bill, the plaintiff afterwards amended it, at which time the defendant was out of the jurisdiction. The court will not order service on the clerk in court in the original suit to be taken as good service on the defendant of the subpoena to appear to and answer the amended bill. Roberts v. Worsley, 2 Cox, 389. PR. SUBSTITUTED SERVICE.

The original bill brought for discovery only, the amended bill prays relief; the answer to this is to be considered as a part of the answer to the original bill as much as if engrossed in the same parchment, and a part of the same record. Helduard v. Cressy, 3 Atk. 333. PR. ANSWER, WHAT.

X. BILL, AMENDMENT OF.

1. Generally, when necessary, when granted, and in what matters allowed.
2. Effect of, and of motion for leave to amend.
3. In what time, and order to amend in a given time.
4. When of course, or only by special application.
6. Motion to amend, necessary steps on.
6. Motion to amend without prejudice, when granted.
7. Effect of order for leave to amend.

1. Generally, when necessary, when granted, and in what matters allowed.

Replication allowed to be withdrawn, and bill amended by striking out the name of a plaintiff, and making him a defendant, and by stating such facts and circumstances relating to certain transactions between that plaintiff and the defendant as were material to show that the other plaintiffs were not, and ought not to be bound by the acts or misrepresentation of that plaintiff, respecting the property in the pleadings mentioned, or the purchase thereof, and as were material to show that such acts and misrepresentations of the said plaintiff were evidence against the defendant, the plaintiffs who made the application giving security for costs, to the satisfaction of the master, and undertaking to amend within a given time, paying the costs of the application, the usual costs of the amendment, and withdrawing the replication; the extra costs of the amendments to be costs in the cause. Small v. Atwood, 2 Y. & J. 512. PR. WITHDRAWING REPLICATION.

A bill may be amended by adding plaintiffs, notwithstanding the defendants have answered it. Hickens v. Congreve, 1 Sim. 500.

It is not necessary to amend a bill for the purpose of introducing facts disclosed in the answer on which the plaintiff means to rely as parts of his case, entitling him to the relief which he has prayed. Attwood v. ———, 1 Russ. 353.

Upon the hearing of a petition of appeals presented by the defendants, leave was given to the plaintiffs to amend their bill by making it either a bill and information, or an information. President of St. Mary Magdalene, Oxford y. Sibthorp, 1 Russ. 154. PR. AFFIDAVIT.

After plea of settled account allowed of bill, motion to amend bill by stating facts which tended to show that there was no settled account, or that plaintiff ought to be allowed to surcharge and falsify, was refused with costs. Taylor v. Shaw, 2 S. & S. 12. PR. PLEA.

Bill praying an account of tithes, and merely stating that the impropriate rector demised the tithes to plaintiff demurred to for want of title, but on argument plaintiff was allowed to amend by making the impropriate rector a party, on payment of 5*l.* costs. Jackson v. Benson, 1 M'Clell. 62. S. C. 13 Pri. 131. PL. PARTIES; PL. TITLE.

Plaintiff filing bill, and after answer amending bill, so as to make case quite reverse, ordered that he pay costs of original bill and parts of answer set forth by reason of that bill, and costs of the motion as a vexatious proceeding. Marour v. Fry, 2 S. & S. 113. VEXATION; COSTS.

Where bill had been amended three times, and the two last were by negligence of plaintiff, defendant was allowed extra costs for those latter amendments. Watts v. Manning, 1 S. & S. 421. PR. COSTS; LACHES.

If plaintiff obtain an order to amend without costs, amending the defendant's office copy, and the amendments require a new ingrossment, he may amend without a new order, paying the 20*s.* costs. Cox v. Champneys, 6 Mad. 314. PR. COSTS.

Costs of an irregular motion for leave to amend, not having been paid, a second motion was also refused with costs. Phillips v. Stephenson, 9 Pri. 205. COSTS.

If the plaintiff in a suit omits to put facts in issue by his original bill, or by amendment, leave to file a supplemental or amended bill, after the suit is at issue, ought not to be granted by the court, on the ground of inadvertence. A petition to obtain such leave ought to make out a case of new evidence lately discovered, material to the plaintiff's equity, and which, with reasonable diligence, could not have been discovered before; but in such case the suit ought to be disposed of without prejudice to the matter omitted to be put in issue, which the plaintiff may prosecute in any future suit. McNeill v. Cahill, 2 Bli. 229.

After commission to examine abroad sent, a witness before commission had reached its destination returned to England, and motion made to examine him de bene esse, but refused, and held that bill must be amended. Athins v. Palmer, 5 Mad. 19. PR. COMMISSION TO EXAMINE ABROAD; PR. EXAMON. DE BENE ESSE.

On a motion for a defendant to produce a deed before the examiner, affidavits cannot be read to prove the fact of its being in his possession, it must appear upon his answer; leave given, though the cause was at issue, to amend the bill, for the purpose of obtaining that admission. Barnet v. Noble, 1 Jac. & W. 227. PR. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS; PL. ANSWER.

Plaintiff amending, without requiring a further answer, should call on the defendant for his office-copy to be amended, but when, though he neglected this, the defendant was otherwise apprised that an amendment had been made, but permitted the cause to come to a hearing, held that he could not then object. Woodhouse v. Meredith, 1 Jac. & W. 204. PR. NOTICE.

After a reference to the master of exceptions to an answer, an order for leave to amend, and that the defendant might answer the exceptions and amendments at the same time, obtained before the report, on the allegation that the master had allowed some of the exceptions, discharged with costs. Jub v. Barker, 2 Swan. 265. PR. EXCEPTIONS.

Court will not allow plaintiff who has been dilatory in his former proceedings to amend his bill, and if refused, it is with costs. Milward v. Oldfield, 4 Pri. 325. DELAY.

Motion for leave to amend, after replications filed and subpoenas served, specifying the nature of the intended amendments, and not requiring a further answer, refused; the case being that of a bill filed in 1814, to set aside a purchase made in 1799, for fraud, inferred from great undervalue, the defendant by his answer denying knowledge of the value at the time of making the purchase, and the amendments sought to be introduced tending to fix him with the fact of such knowledge. Dean, &c. of Christ Church v. Simonds, 2 Mer. 467.

On a plea to a bill of discovery, the vice chancellor being of opinion that a cestui que trust could not file such a bill without the trustees, in whom the legal estate was vested, directed a case for the opinion of a court of law on the question where the legal estate actually was, and ordered the plea to stand over till the return of the judge's certificate. The parties not being able to agree on the case, a motion for leave to amend the bill by adding the trustee as a plaintiff, pending the vice chancellor's order, refused. Cholmondeley v. Clinton, 2 Mer. 71. PR. PLEA; PR. ORDER DIRECTING CASE FOR COURT OF LAW.

No instance of bill of discovery being allowed to be amended by adding parties as plaintiffs. Id. 74. BILL OF DISCOVERY.

Plaintiff not entitled, upon paying the common costs of amendment, to change entirely the nature of his bill, as by converting a prayer for an account against a bailiff into a bill to foreclose a mortgage, after an issue against the plaintiff, finding him a mortgagee. Smith v. Smith, Coop. 141. PR. COSTS.

Plaintiff cannot move to amend his bill on an affidavit of equitable facts without notice to defendant: but if circumstances of case require it, and it is late in the term, court will order defendant to accept short notice of motion. Harrison v. Delmont, 11 Tr. 117. PR. NOTICE.

Plaintiff cannot amend bill to enjoin further proceedings at law after verdict, without first paying into court the sum recovered at law, although the original bill was filed before verdict obtained: but he may be allowed to amend on bringing in money by a certain day. Id. 118. PR. INJUNCTION; PR. PAYMENT INTO COURT.

After answer, motion to amend by striking out, relief refused. Cholmondeley v. Clinton, 2 V. & B. 113.

After answer to a bill of discovery, motion to amend the bill by adding a prayer for relief, refused with costs. Butterworth v. Bailey, 15 Ves. 358. PR. BILL OF DISCOVERY.

The plaintiff praying relief to which he is not entitled, viz. a sale under a trust instead of a redemption or foreclosure as a mortgagee, cannot have the different relief under the general prayer, but the proper relief may be obtained by amendment, and for that purpose another party being necessary, liberty was given to amend by adding parties, which includes the introduction in the statement of facts consequential upon that addition, and praying such relief as he may be advised. Palk v. Clinton, 12 Ves. 48. S. P. Jones v. Jones, 3 Atk. 110. PR. PRAYER.

Where amendment is permitted, if so considerable as to deface the record, it must be taken off the file, and a new record substituted. Boyd v. Mills, 13 Ves. 86.

The original bill was filed by three partners, who afterwards became bankrupt, the assignees under the commission being desirous of examining one of the bankrupts as a witness; it was ordered that they should be at liberty to amend the bill by striking out the name of the bankrupt as a plaintiff, and then to examine him as a witness. Gower v. Atkinson, 2 Cox, 393. WITNESS; BANKRUPT.

Evidence of a plaintiff being necessary, and defendant refusing to consent to his examination, the bill on motion amended by making him a defendant, and replication withdrawn on terms of costs, amending defendant's copy, and requiring no further answer. Motteux v. Mackreth, 1 Ves. J. 142. PR. EVIDENCE; PR. PARTY PLAINTIFF.

Administrator not brought before the master by motion after a decree passed and entered, if anything in it affecting him by way of order to pay, otherwise if only to witness what is done. Hubergham v. Vincent, 1 Ves. J. 68. PR. DECREE; PL. PARTIES.

Plaintiff suing in forma pauperis, shall not amend by leaving out defendants, without paying their costs. Wilkinson v. Belcher, 2 Bro. C. C. 272. PR. PAUPER; PR. COSTS.

The plaintiff amends several times, yet he shall not pay taxed costs, but only forty shillings, unless in a case of particular oppression. El. Masserene v. Lyndon, 2 Bro. C. C. 291. PR. COSTS.

Plaintiff amended his bill three times on payment of twenty shillings costs, and obtained a fourth order for that purpose. The amendment being frivolous, the court gave the defendant taxed costs of the former amendments. Reunet v. Green, 1 Cox, 253. PR. COSTS.

After demurrer allowed, bill being out of court, no amendment possible. Watkins v. Bush, Dick. 701.

Bill amended by striking out party and making him defendant after bill dismissed. Duraud v. Hutchinson, Dick. 456.

Plaintiff to pay seven pounds extra for length of amendments. Freke v. Culppeper, Dick. 284.

After publication passed and the cause set down, the plaintiff can amend by making parties only, and cannot introduce new charges, or put a material fact in issue which was not in the case before; such amendment if necessary must be by supplemental bill. Goodwin v. Goodwin, 3 Atk. 370.

After a third order of amendment a defendant will be allowed costs to be taxed. Anon. 2 Atk. 123. PR. COSTS.

Where amendments are so large that they cannot be added, a new engrossment and a new service on the parties is necessary. Vernon v. Vaudry, 2 Atk. 119.

After publication plaintiff cannot amend without withdrawing his replication. Anon. 1 Atk. 51. PR. REPLICATION.

Plaintiff wishing to amend bill after plea set down, admits plea, and on payment of usual costs of five pounds, plaintiff is at liberty to amend. Lopes v. De Tastet, 3 Mad. 183. PR. PLEA.

Amendment of bill after exceptions to answer allowed, do not prejudice injunction previously obtained. Adney v. Flood, 1 Mad. 449. INJUNCTION; EXCEPTIONS TO ANSWER.

Injunction falls by amending bill, unless expressly saved. Bliss v. Boscawen, 2 V. & B. 102. PR. INJUNCTION, DISSOLVING.

Although irregular to file an amended bill without leave, after an order to continue an injunction on the terms of speeding the cause, yet the amendment being material, and such as the court would have allowed, and the plaintiff offering terms which tended to prevent delay, the injunction was continued, plaintiff paying the costs of defendant's motion to dissolve it. Webb v. Hannan, 2 Scho. & Lef. 516. PR. INJUNCTION.

Amendment of bill merely adding a defendant, requiring no further answer, does not prevent the plaintiff from excepting to answer. Taylor v. Wrench, 9 Ves. 315. PR. EXCEPTIONS TO ANSWER.

A cause coming on to be heard, stood over, with liberty for the plaintiff to amend; he did amend, but did not proceed further; defendant may move to dismiss the bill for want of prosecution, and it is not necessary to set down the cause again for the purpose. Mitchell v. Lowndes, 2 Cox, 15. PR. DISMISSAL OF BILL; PR. SETTING DOWN CAUSE.

Bill to perpetuate testimony of modus being amended, by adding essential party, after commission executed, but before publication a new commission was granted. Biddleford v. Partridge, 3 Anst. 646. PR. COMMISSION TO PERPETUATE TESTIMONY.

If after a cross-bill filed, plaintiff in original bill will amend it in material parts, and thinks fit to compel an answer to the amendments at the same time with the original bill, he waives his priority of answer to the original. Long v. Burton, 2 Atk. 218. PR. CROSS-BILL; PRIORITY OF SUIT.

When a bill is amended both in discovery and relief, the pendency of suit as to those parts is only from the time of the amendment. S. C. Ib. LIS PENDENS.

3. In what time, and order to amend in a given time.

Regulations as to the allowance of time to amend, &c. 19th Gen. Order, 3rd April, 1828.

On order for leave to amend, plaintiff must undertake to amend within three weeks. 14th Gen. Order, 3rd April, 1828.

An order to amend, and for defendant to answer amendments and exceptions at the same time, obtained before the filing of the report, allowing the exceptions as irregular. Rushton v. Troughton, 2 Sim. 33.

Where a plaintiff amended his bill after answer, but did not serve a subpoena to answer the amendments or file a replication to the answer, an order obtained, as of course, to dismiss the bill for want of prosecution, after three terms from the filing of the answer, but within three terms from the date of the amendments, was held to be regular, though the defendant had obtained an order that the plaintiff should amend his bill within a limited time, and the plaintiff had also amended the defendant's office copy of the bill. Cooke v. Davies, 1 Turn. & R. 309. PR. BILL, DISMISSAL.

Plaintiff having obtained order that defendant may answer exceptions and amendments at same time, defendant may immediately move that amendments be made within ten days, or order be discharged. Whitehouse v. Hickman, 1 S. & S. 105.

Where plaintiff has obtained order to amend, the defendant having submitted to exceptions, court will order plaintiff, as of course, to amend within a given time, or discharge former order. Benedict v. Thackeray, 5 Price, 592. PR. EXCEPTIONS.

4. When of course, or only by special application.

Plaintiff, before filing replication, may obtain an order for leave to amend to bill, as of course; but no further order but on special application. 13th Gen. Order, 3rd April, 1828.

Where the defendant pleads to a bill, it is of course for the plaintiff to amend, on payment of the costs of the plea, and it is not necessary that the plea should be first argued. Parker v. Alcock, 1 Y. & J. 195.

After plea allowed to part of bill, plaintiff cannot amend his bill without special order, to be obtained on notice of motion, stating proposed amendments. Taylor v. Shaw, 2 S. & S. 12. PR. PLEA.

It is not of course to amend bill after answer, by adding another person as co-plaintiff, except where such person stands in precisely the same interest as the plaintiff. Governers of Lucton School v. Scarlet, 13 Price, 54. S. C. 1 McClell. 17. PL. PARTIES.

Where motion to amend after answer, by adding party plaintiff, is of course, it must be on affidavit, shewing the materiality of the amendment, and that fact on which it is founded came to plaintiff's knowledge after bill filed, and consent of such party to be made co-plaintiff, should be produced and verified. Id. PR. MOTION TO AMEND AFFIDAVIT IN SUPPORT.

After replication and subpoena to rejoin, plaintiff cannot amend bill without special application, shewing that using all possible diligence he was not in a condition to apply sooner. Wright v. Howard, 6 Mad. 106.

After motion to dismiss, and undertaking to speed cause, plaintiff can only amend on special application. Muys v. —, 4 Mad. 268. PR. MOTION TO DISMISS; SPEEDING CAUSE.

Amendment of bill, after exceptions allowed and not answered, does not prejudice an injunction previously obtained. Therefore a motion is of course for leave to amend, and that defendant may answer amendments and exceptions together. Dipper v. Durant, 3 Mer. 465. PR. INJUNCTION.

5. Motion to amend, necessary steps on.

Upon an application for the plaintiff to amend his bill without prejudice, obtained on the merits, the particular amendments must be specified. Bell v. Brookbank, 2 Y. & J. 181. PR. INJUNCTION.

Where a bill is amended after answer, but no subpoena is served to answer the amended bill, the amendments go for nothing. Cooke v. Davies, 1 Turn. & R. 310.

Information amended without the sanction of the attorney general, ordered to be taken off the file, with costs. Att. Gen. v. Fellows, 1 Jac. & W. 254.

In an injunction cause, where exceptions are taken to an answer, it is irregular to obtain an order to amend, until the exceptions are disposed of. Dixon v. Redmond, 2 Sch. & L. 515. PR. EXCEPTIONS TO ANSWER; PR. INJUNCTION.

After order to dismiss for want of prosecution, the plaintiff filed a replication, and afterwards moved to withdraw the replication, and amend, on affidavit of materiality: he must also shew why the amendment could not have been made before. Longman v. Culford, 3 Aust. 807. PR. MOTION TO WITHDRAW REPLICATION, AND AMEND.

6. Motion to amend, without prejudice, when granted.

Motion for leave to amend, without prejudice to a ne exeat, refused. Grant v. Grant, 2 Sim. 14. NE EXEAT REGNO.

Motion to amend bill of discovery after answer, without prejudice to injunction, by adding prayer for relief and otherwise, as plaintiff should be advised, refused. Jackson v. Strong, 1 McClell. 245. S. C. 13 Price, 494. INJUNCTION.

Amendment of bill allowed, without prejudice to an injunction obtained on merits. King v. Turner, 6 Mad. 255. INJUNCTION.

Injunction obtained ex parte. The answer was put in; whereupon motion was made to amend bill, without prejudice to injunction, and the proposed amendments were stated, but motion refused. Penfold v. Storcht, 3 Mad. 471. PR. INJUNCTION.

On motion for reference under 7 G. 2. c. 20. the court refused to direct master to take into account costs incurred at law, no mention of proceedings at law having been made in the bill; but leave was given to amend bill in that respect, and directed motion to stand over till bill amended. Millard v. Mager, 3 Mad. 433. PR. COSTS; PR. REFERENCE TO MASTER; MORTGAGE, FORECLOSURE OF.

After injunction obtained against A, one of two defendants, A and B, who afterwards put in their answers, leave was given, on application, supported by affidavit, to amend bill without prejudice to injunction; answers of B, stating facts, which were a surprise on plaintiff, and which made amendments necessary. Vesey v. Wilks, 3 Mad. 475. PR. INJUNCTION.

Plaintiff, in a bill for an injunction, must state at once the whole case within his knowledge; but the court, though very jealous of amendment, without prejudice to the injunction, permits even re-amendment, ascertaining precisely its nature, and, by clear and positive affidavit, that the plaintiff had not a knowledge of the facts, enabling him to bring that case upon the record see Sharp v. —, 3 V. & B. 144. PR. BILL FOR INJUNCTION.

Re-amendment permitted without prejudice to an injunction, on affidavit, that the facts, which must be stated, came to the plaintiff's knowledge since the bill filed, and on payment of costs. Id. 145. INJUNCTION.

After answer not excepted to, liberty to amend the bill, without prejudice to the injunction, staying proceedings at law, being the common injunction not upon the merits, refused, with costs. Turner v. Bayley, 2 V. & B. 330. PR. INJUNCTION.

Amendment permitted after answer, without prejudice to exceptions, by praying injunction upon a devastavit, and a purpose of collusive sale by the executrix, a person of no property to the trustee. The amendment confined to the prayer. Jacob v. Hall, 12 Ves. 458. PR. ANSWER.

7. Effect of Order for leave to amend.

After issue joined, defendant cannot move to dismiss bill for want of prosecution; but plaintiff having obtained order to amend, defendant must move for amendment in a certain time, or dismissal. Pratt v. Holbrook, 5 Mad. 30. DISMISSAL FOR WANT OF PROSECUTION.

After an answer has been reported insufficient, an order to amend, and for the defendant to answer amendments and exceptions together prevents the defendant from taking exceptions to the report if it be served before the exceptions are set down. Farquharson v. Balfour, 1 Jac. 587. PR. EXCEPTIONS TO REPORT.

Order to amend bill not served or drawn up cannot prevent the motion to dismiss for want of prosecution. Morris v. Owen, 1 V. & B. 523. PR. MOTION TO DISMISS.

Plaintiff having obtained the usual order to amend, and that the defendant shall answer amendments, and exception together cannot take a new exception as to any thing in the original but must go before the master upon the old exceptions, as they apply to the original bill, and upon new exceptions as to the new matter introduced by the amendments which, however, the master may consider with reference to such parts of the original bill as apply to them. Partridge v. Haycraft, 11 Ves. 570. PR. EXCEPTIONS TO ANSWER.

Order to amend not served or drawn up, does not prevent motion to dismiss bill for want of prosecution. Anon. 7 Ves. 222. PR. DISMISSAL OF BILL.

The plaintiff having an order to amend without costs, not requiring any further answer, and amending the defendant's office copy, the practice is, that the defendant must bring his office copy to the plaintiff's clerk in court, to be amended, and is at liberty to put in a further answer within eight days after service of the order, before which time the plaintiff cannot file a replication. Lloyd v. Lloyd, 2 Cox. 431.

Order for amendment without costs requiring no further answer; the amendment was by inserting prayer for injunction: held, the defendant might answer further gratis. Sarony v. Dyer, Amb. 70. PR. COSTS; PR. FURTHER ANSWER.

In general, the amendment of a bill puts an end to all process of contempt for want of an answer, and the court will not allow a plaintiff to amend without prejudice to a sequestration, notwithstanding he undertakes not to require any answer to the amendments. Symonds v. Dr. Cumberland, 2 Cox. 411. CONTEMPT; SEQUESTRATION.

Upon an order at the instance of a defendant to amend by a short day, or be dismissed, it is sufficient to amend by expunging another defendant, though immaterial to the defendant, at whose instance the order was made. Att. Gen. v. Id. Stamford, 3 Swan. 240.

Plaintiff, in original bill, loses his priority of suit, and his right to have an answer to the original bill before he is called upon to answer cross bill, by amending the original bill, although such amendment be after the order for time to answer cross bill, until after answer to original bill. Johnson v. Freer, 2 Cox, 371. PRIORITY OF SUIT; CROSS BILL.

Injunction does not drop of course on plaintiff's amending bill. Mason v. Murray, Dick. 536.

Amendments made in bill after injunction, cannot be used in support of injunction. Vere v. Glynn, id. 441.

Amendment of bill after plea is not allowance of plea. Id. ib.

Original and amended bill but one record. Id. ib. Answer reported insufficient, plaintiff obtained order to amend, and that defendant may answer exceptions and amendments at same time, defendants may answer exceptions alone if put in before order is served. Bethuen v. Bateman, id. 296.

Bill amended after plea set down, on payment of 20s. costs, and 5l. for plea. Vernon v. Cud, id. 358.

Defendant put in answer; plaintiffs afterwards amends bill; defendant then put in plea to whole bill: held good. Gambier v. Le Houp, id. 44.

2. Generally, and what a ground for.

Upon the plaintiff's dismissing his own bill, or the defendant dismissing the same for want of prosecution, the plaintiff shall pay to the defendant full costs to be taxed; no copy of any bill to go with the decretum of commission for taking the defendant's answer. 4 Ann. c. 16. s. 23. PR. COSTS.

On demurrer to the whole bill being allowed, the bill shall be dismissed, and costs shall be taxed as upon a dismissal, except the costs on the demurrer, which shall be allowed as heretofore. General Rule, Feb. 13. 1 Scho. & L. 304. PR. COSTS; PR. DEMURRER.

By General Order, 27th April, 1748, where the cause is set down on bill and answer only, or where it is so set down after withdrawing replication, it shall be discretionary in the court to dismiss the suit with 40s. costs, or costs to be taxed, or with no costs. Beame's Ord. Ch. 450. PR. COSTS.

A plaintiff resident abroad, who had been ordered to give the security for costs, but had not complied, ordered to give the security, and, on default, his bill to be dismissed. Camac v. Grant, 1 Sim. 348. PR. SECURITY FOR COSTS.

Where there are two plaintiffs, and one of them only becomes bankrupt, the bill may be dismissed upon the usual motion. Caddick v. Masson, 1 Sim. 501. BANKCY.

When the plaintiff's solicitor serves the defendant's solicitor with subpoena to hear judgment, and obtains an undertaking from him to appear, and plaintiff makes default at hearing; on affidavit of these facts, bill will be dismissed with costs. Mackness v. Johnstone, 1 McClell. 148. PR. UNDERTAKING TO APPEAR AT HEARING.

Where a cause was not proceeded in for three clear terms after answer, the common order to dismiss the bill for want of prosecution, obtained by the defendant in the vacation after the third term, was held to be regular. Farquharson v. Seton, 1 Turn. & R. 378.

Where the plaintiff is misnamed in an order to dismiss a bill for want of prosecution, in consequence of an error in the six clerk's certificate, a replication filed after service of the order will not be irregular. *Semble. The plaintiff cannot move to dismiss his bill after decree. Guilbert v. Hawkes, 2 Free. 158. 1 C. C. 40. PR. DECREE.

4. By consent.

A bill cannot be dismissed by agreement of the parties; some step in court must be taken for that purpose. Rouse v. Wood, 1 Jac. & W. 345.

Infants being made co-plaintiffs in two suits relative to the same matter, the court will not, before a decree, on the master's report that one suit is more for the benefit of the infants, dismiss the bill in the other suit, unless by consent. Mortimer v. West, 1 Swan. 358. PR. REFERENCE; INFANT.

After decree, the bill cannot be dismissed by consent; but an arrangement for disposing of the fund in court may have effect, by consent, on further directions. Lashley v. Hogg, 11 Ves. 602. PR. DECREE, EFFECT OF.

5. Effect of generally.

After the dismissal of a bill for the specific execution of an agreement, the plaintiff being unable to make a good title, an injunction to restrain him from proceeding on the agreement at law granted, on motion, the defendant undertaking forthwith to file a bill. M'Namara v. Arthur, 2 Ball & B. 349. INJUNCT. TO STAY PROCS.; PR. MOTION; SPEC. PERF.

The dismissal of a suit, without prejudice, either in law or equity, is no bar to a suit for same matter in another court. Seymour v. Nosworthy, 1 C. C. 155.

6. For want of Prosecution.

Answer deemed sufficient, if plaintiff shall not proceed, defendant may move at first seal after following term upon notice, that the bill be dismissed; and it shall be so dismissed, unless plaintiff file replication, and undertake to speed the cause. 16 Gen. Order, 3d April, 1828.

Time for dismissal for want of prosecution being arrived, and plaintiff having become bankrupt, ordered that it be dismissed without costs, unless assignees file supplemental bill within three weeks. Chap v. Hallett, 2 S. & S. 496. BANKRUPT.

A bill cannot be dismissed, for want of prosecution, by an order, made, as of course, upon petition at the rolls. Van Sandau v. Moore, 1 Russ. 441. PR. MOTION OF COURT.

It is of course that a plaintiff, even after the peremptory order to speed his cause, should have an order for a commission to examine witnesses, with liberty to execute the same in term time. Field v. Soule, 1 Russ. 82. PR. COMM. TO EXAMINE; PR. MOTION OF COURT.

A plaintiff, after allowing more than three terms to elapse without taking any proceedings, amended his bill under an order for that purpose, and amended also the defendant's office copy; an order, dismissing the bill for want of prosecution, obtained, as of course, on the usual certificate within six or seven days from the amendment of the record, was discharged as irregular. Kendall v. Peckett, 1 Russ. 152. PR. AMENDMENT OF BILL.

Semble, where replication is filed, defendant cannot dismiss bill for want of prosecution, but should set down the cause. Atkinson v. Hutton, 13 Price, 6. PR. REPLICATION.

Plaintiff, failing in showing special cause against an order obtained for dismissing their bill from want of prosecution, must, if he procure the bill to be retained on undertaking to speed, pay costs of motion to dismiss, as one of the terms of retaining the bill. The special cause shown being that some of defendants are in contempt, and that plaintiffs were proceeding to attach them, must be supported by affidavit. Id. ib. PR. COSTS.

Where a plaintiff amended his bill after answer, but did not serve a subpoena to answer the amendments, or file a replication to the answer, an order obtained, as of course, to dismiss the bill for want of prosecution, after three terms from the filing of the answer, but within three terms from the date of the amendments, was held to be regular, though the defendant had obtained an order that the plaintiff should amend his bill within a limited time, and the plaintiff had amended accordingly, and had also amended the defendant's office copy of the bill. Cooke v. Davies, 1 Turn. & R. 309. PR. AMENDMENT OF BILL AFTER ANSWER.

After issue joined, defendant cannot move to dismiss for want of prosecution; but plaintiff having order to amend, defendant must move for amendment in certain time, or dismissal. Pratt v. Holbrook, 5 Mad. 30. PR. AMENDMENT.

Notice was given of motion to dismiss. On same day, motion was made, and, subsequent thereto, replication was filed. Bill is not dismissed, nor defendant entitled to costs of motion. Reynolds v. Nelson, 5 Mad. 60. See observations on this case, 10 Ves. 404. n. DIVISION OF TIME; REPLICATION; PR. FILING PLEADINGS.

On motion to dismiss for want of prosecution, the six clerk, (see obs. 10 Ves. 404. n.) in his certificate as to proceedings in the cause, (which may be obtained after motion is made) must not state any proceedings subsequent to the motion. King v. Noel, 5 Mad. 13. PR. CERTIFICATE OF CLERK IN COURT.

After motion to dismiss, and undertaking to speed cause, plaintiff can only amend by special application. Myers v. ———, 4 Mad. 268. PR. MOTION TO DISMISS; PR. AMENDMENT.

The only answer to motion to dismiss, is an undertaking to speed cause. Stedman v. Ellis, 4 Mad. 240. PR. UNDERTAKING TO SPEED CAUSE.

Defendant, who has become bankrupt since filing bill, may move to disavow for want of prosecution, so that plaintiff undertakes to speed cause. Rhode v. Spear, 4 Mad. 51. BANKRUPT.

Replication filed after the notice of, but before the motion to dismiss; motion not sustainable: defendant entitled to costs. Spurrier v. Bennett, 4 Mad. 39. PR. COSTS; PR. NOTICE; PR. REPLICATION.

On plaintiff's bankruptcy, defendant may move that assignees file supplemental bill in a given time, or that bill stand dismissed. Wheeler v. Mullins, 4 Mad. 171. PR. ABATEMENT & REVIVOR; BANKRUPTCY, ETC. OF.

Where bankrupt's bill is dismissed for want of prosecution, he cannot be made to pay costs. Id. ib. COSTS; BANKRUPT, LAB. OF.

Undertaking to speed, signed by counsel and left at registrar's office, on same day the motion to dismiss was made, held sufficient. Lyndon v. Lyndon, 3 Mad. 240. PR. UNDERTAKING TO SPEED CAUSE.

Bill after the usual motion to dismiss for want of prosecution, retained on terms of paying costs, &c. on application, within a reasonable time, not as formerly, ex parte, but special, on affidavit with notice. Fuller v. Willis, 3 V. & B. 1. PR. RETAINING BILL.

It is not the ordinary practice to restore a bill, which has been regularly dismissed for want of prosecution; but this may be done under the circumstances of the case. Harman v. S. I. Waterworks Comp., 2 Mer. 63.

The refusal of a motion to discharge an order to dismiss, does not constitute a ground to prevent the party from applying to have the bill restored. Id. ib.

A bill which has been regularly dismissed, will not be restored for the mere purpose of agitating the question of costs. Id. ib.

Replication filed on day cause is shown against dismissal of bill, ordered to be taken off file as irregular. Christie v. De Tastet, 1 Price, 242. PR. REPLICATION; PR. FILING PLEADINGS.

Court will not hear special cause against dismissal of bill, unless notice of cause intended to be shown be previously given to defendant. Id. ib. PR. NOTICE.

Reference for scandal and impertinence, is a sufficient proceeding with effect to save a bill. Goodwin v. Davis, 1 Price, 373. PR. REFERENCE FOR SCANDAL.

Order to dismiss a bill for want of prosecution, not of course pending a reference on motion; the title alone being in question. Briscoe v. Brett, 2 V. & B. 377. PR. REFERENCE AS TO TITLE.

Motion to dismiss the bill for want of prosecution since the answer, not prevented by an injunction till answer. Notice not proper; and the production of the six clerk's certificate to the register, sufficient without producing it in court. Day v. State, 3 V. & B. 170. PR. INJUNCTION.

In undertaking to speed cause upon motion, of dismissal for want of prosecution; the term includes the vacation following. Finlay v. Wood, 1 V. & B. 499. PR. UNDERTAKING TO SPEED CAUSE.

Notice is not necessary of motion to dismiss bill for want of prosecution, three terms having elapsed after answer without replication; nor is it necessary to produce six clerk's certificate on the motion, if it is produced to register when order is drawn up. Att. Gen. v. Finch, 1 V. & B. 368. PR. NOTICE.

Order to amend bill not served or drawn up, cannot prevent motion to dismiss for want of prosecution. Morris v. Owen, 1 V. & B. 523. PR. ORDER TO AMEND.

Plaintiff under an undertaking to speed his cause, obtained an order to withdraw his replication, and set down on bill and answer; but did not serve a subpoena to hear judgment, or appear when the cause was called. The bill was dismissed with costs. Rogers v. Gore, 17 Ves. 130. PR. SERVICE OF SUBPOENA TO HEAR JUDGMENT; PR. UNDERTAKING TO SPEED CAUSE.

Order made to dismiss the bill for want of prosecution after three terms, without replication, of course without notice, and pending an injunction staying execution. Naylor v. Taylor, 16 Ves. 137. See A. note 35. S. P. Jackson v. Pownall, id. 204. PR. NOTICE; PR. INJUNCTION.

Order, dismissing a bill for want of prosecution, after three terms expired, without any steps taken, obtained upon motion of course, not requiring notice. Degraves v. Lane, 15 Ves. 291.

Though generally a party cannot be heard until he has cleared his contempt, a step taken by the other party waives the contempt for all purposes, except the right to costs in the cause not to be obtained by process of contempt. Acceptance of the answer, therefore, is a waiver of the contempt, for the purpose of enabling the defendant to dismiss the bill for want of prosecution. Anon. 15 Ves. 174. PR. CONTEMPT AND WAIVER OF; PR. ANSWER; WAIVER.

Order to dismiss the bill for want of prosecution, cannot be had if a proceeding had been taken before the motion; but if the order has been obtained irregularly, by the misrepresentation of the plaintiff, he shall pay the costs of discharging it. Anon. 14 Ves. 492. PR. COSTS.

The only answer to the motion to dismiss for the want of prosecution, is the usual undertaking to speed the cause. A special ground must be the subject of a special application. Bligh v. —, 13 Ves. 456. PR. UNDERTAKING TO SPEED CAUSE.

The only answer to the motion to dismiss the bill for want of prosecution, is the undertaking to speed the cause. Special circumstances must be the ground of special application. Lambert v. Lambert, 11 Ves. 608.

Order to dismiss for want of prosecution, regular according to the practice, though the six clerk's certificate appeared on the face of the order to be of a subsequent date. M'Mahon v. Lissau, 12 Ves. 465. See Wills v. Pugh, 10 Ves. 402., and note 404.

Order to amend, not served or drawn up, does not prevent a motion to dismiss the bill for want of prosecution. Anon. 7 Ves. 222. PR. ORDER TO AMEND.

After subpoena to rejoin, a bill may be dismissed for want of prosecution. Squirrel v. Squirrel, 3 Swan. 250. PR. SUBPOENA TO REJOIN.

Bill retained for a twelvemonth, with liberty for the plaintiff to bring an action, and in case the plaintiff should not try such action, within a twelvemonth, then the bill was to stand dismissed with costs; the plaintiff did not try his action within the time; the bill is not ipso facto out of court, but the defendant must either set down the cause for further directions, or move to dismiss the bill. Stevens v. Froed, 2 Cox, 374. PR. RETAINING BILL.

General demurrer put in, but never argued, and no proceedings afterwards; the defendant cannot have the bill dismissed for want of prosecution, as he had an equal power to move. Anon. 2 Ves. J. 287. DEMURRER.

A defendant having filed a general demurrer to a bill, cannot move to dismiss the bill for want of prosecution, but should set down the demurrer for argument. Simpson v. Denham, 2 Cox, 377. Id.

A plaintiff having become bankrupt, and his assignees not having the consent of the creditors to proceed in the cause in due time, the defendants obtained an order to dismiss the bill for want of prosecution. ### XIV. BILL OF INTERPLEADER.

See also PR. COSTS, 10 (s).—PR. EVID. 11. (f).—PR. PAYMENT INTO COURT, 2.

A bill of interpleader ought to be filed immediately after or before the commencement of proceedings at law, and not be delayed till after a judgment or verdict has been obtained; and therefore, where an interpleading bill was filed after a verdict had been obtained by one of the parties, and an injunction had been granted, on the money being paid into court, the court dissolved the injunction, though the answer of only one of the parties had come in, the plaintiff not satisfactorily accounting for the delay in filing his bill. Cornish v. Tanner, 1 Y. & J. 333. DELAY.

No affidavit is necessary to support a motion by a plaintiff in an interpleading suit, for liberty to pay the money into court, and for an injunction. Hallbank v. Sparkes, 1 Sim. 385. PR. AFFIDAVIT IN SUPPORT OF MOTION; PR. PAYMENT INTO COURT.

Where two parties claim fund in hands of stakeholder, the former may make motion by consent, to avoid expense of bill of interpleader, that stakeholders pay the money into court, but stakeholders cannot make such motion, they not being parties to the suit.

Belbee v. Belbee, 6 Mad. 28. STAKEHOLDER; PR. PAYMENT INTO COURT.

To support an application that service of subpoena on a bill of interpleader upon solicitor who conducts the action, might be deemed good service, it is not only necessary that party applying should state that he knows not where plaintiff at law is, and that solicitor has refused to appear, but solicitor should be stated to have positively refused to inform them where plaintiff at law is to be found, and also that the process should have been previously formally tendered to him. E. I. Comp. v. Collins, 6 Price, 404. PR. SUBPENA, SERVICE SUBSTITUTED.

A plaintiff in an interpleading bill having done all in his power to bring the parties before the court, may obtain a decree although one of defendants has not answered, and is present at the hearing, if he (having appeared to the process) has been duly brought into contempt for want of answer. Farebrother v. Prater, 5 Price, 303. PR. DECREE.

Motion for injunction to stay proceedings at law, on filing bill of interpleader and affidavit, refused. Craggan v. Simmons, 3 Mad. 130. PR. INJUNC. TO STAY PROCS.

Injunction not dissolved as of course, on one answer only coming in to interpleading bill, but plaintiff's delay to get in the other answer is a special ground for application to dissolve, or to have the money out of court. Hyde v. Warren, 19 Ves. 322. PR. INJUNC. DISSOLVING.

Principle of interpleader, that the defendant who improperly raises double claim, pays the costs, but the plaintiff who is considered as undertaking to bring the defendants before the court, must use reasonable diligence to get in the answer of one out of the jurisdiction; if he will not come in, the other who appears must have the stake, and the plaintiff will be protected, but whether he must not pay the costs, quere? Martinius v. Helmuth, cited in Strickson v. Andersen, 2 V. & B. 412. note (1). 2nd edition. COSTS.

No instance of a bill of interpleader brought to a hearing. Id. ib. HEARING.

The plaintiff in a bill of interpleader is not entitled, after replying to the answers, to move for his costs, but must set down the cause for hearing. Jones v. Gilham, Cooper, 49. PR. REPLY; PR. COSTS.

Injunction upon an interpleading bill against bankrupts and their assignees, by a debtor to the estate, sued by the bankrupts with the view of indirectly contesting the commission. Lovells v. Cornford, 18 Ves. 299. INJUNC.; BANKCY. COMMISSION.

Questions arising on bills of interpleader are disposed of in various modes, according to the nature of the question, and in the manner in which it is brought before the court: interpleading bill is considered as putting the defendants to contest their respective claims, as a bill by an executor or trustee to obtain the direction of the court upon the adverse claims of the defendants; therefore, at the hearing, if the question between the defendants is ripe for decision, the court decides it, and if not ripe for decision, directs an action or an issue, or a reference to the master, as best suited to the nature of the case. Angell v. Hadden, 16 Ves. 202.

Interpleading bill by a tenant, to ascertain to which of the claimants he was to pay his rents; the one establishing his title by evidence, the other making default at the hearing, payment decreed to the former, and a perpetual injunction against the other. Id. 203.

Costs as between defendants to interpleading bill. Croton v. Williams, 9 Ves. 107. PR. COSTS; PARTY DEFENDANT.

On a bill of interpleader, defendant who made it necessary, ordered to pay all costs; plaintiff has a lien for his costs upon bill paid into court. Aldridge v. Mesner, 6 Ves. 418. PR. COSTS.

In support of a motion for injunction on interpleading bill, affidavits of the facts may be read; as it is exactly on the footing of waste. Collusion not to be presumed against the affidavit of the plaintiff in interpleading bill; nor can counter affidavit prevail against it. Langston v. Boylston, 2 Ves. J. 101. PR. INJUNC. AFFIDAVITS IN SUPPORT.

On bill of interpleader by the owner of an estate against the grantee, of a rent charge out of it, (assigned to secure an annuity) and the annuitant; the annuity being void, the arrears of the rent charge in court were paid to the original grantee, and the annuitant was held not entitled to have the consideration repaid out of that fund, there being only a general debt at law, and no lien. Dk. Bolton v. Williams, 2 Ves. J. 138. 4 Bro. C. C. 297. LIEN; ANNUITY.

After the right is decided between the parties, the costs must be paid by the defendant who is found in the wrong, to the plaintiff and the other defendants. Dowson v. Hardeastle, 2 Cox, 278. S. C. 1 Ves. J. 368. S. P. Edelson v. Roberts, id. 280. PR. COSTS.

Upon an interpleading bill, quære, whether the money ought not to be actually brought into court before the motion for an injunction, though the practice seems to have been, that it was time enough if brought in upon showing cause against the motion to dissolve the injunction? Dungey v. Angore, 3 Bro. C. C. 36. Vide sequel of S. C. 2 Ves. J. 304. PR. PAYMT. INTO COURT.

In the course of the proceedings on a bill of interpleader, a commission issued on the part of one defendant for the examination of witnesses, of which notice was given to the plaintiff, but not to the other defendant. This practice, though it may be inconvenient, is not irregular. Brymer v. Buchanan, 1 Cox, 425.

Decree in a suit of interpleader, against a defendant who did not appear. Hodges v. Smith, 1 Cox, 357. PR. DECREE PRO CONFESSO.

Tenants filing a bill of interpleader against annuitants, and bringing rents into court, paid their costs out of the rents. Aldridge v. Thompson, 2 Bro. C. C. 149. LANDL. & TENANT; PR. COSTS; PR. PAYMENT INTO CT.

In a bill of interpleader, a trial at law is directed between the defendants; the suit is thereby ended as to the plaintiff, so that if the plaintiff dies, defendants may proceed without reviving the cause. Anon. 1 Vern. 351. PR. ABATEMENT AND REVIVOR.

In a bill of interpleader, it is not necessary that the plaintiff should bring the money into court, unless the other side require it; but the plaintiff should, by his bill, offer to bring in the whole of the demand. El. Thanet v. Paterson, Barn. 251. PR. PAYMT. INTO CT.

XV. BILL TO PERPETUATE.

Costs of perpetuating testimony of will allowed to purchaser. Mackrell v. Hunt, cited 2 Mad. 37. VEND. & PURCH.; PR. COSTS.

Distinction between examination to perpetuate and de bene esse. In a suit for the former purpose, after the examination, there is an end to the issue. Morrison v. Arnold, 19 Ves. 671. EXAMON. DE BENE ESSE.

Defendant to a bill to perpetuate testimony, entitled of his costs immediately after the commission executed upon the allegation, that he did not examine any witnesses. Foulds v. Middles, 1 V. & B. 138. COSTS.

On a bill to perpetuate testimony, defendant entitled to costs of answering, there being no examination of witnesses. Lecky v. Murray, 1 Ball & B. 391. COSTS.

On a bill for examining witnesses in perpetuum rei memoriam: Held that publication of the depositions should not be allowed unless in a strong case. Harris v. Cotterell, 3 Mer. 678. PR. PUBLICATION.

Bill to perpetuate testimony merely, ought not to be brought to a hearing; but if it prays relief, the defendant may set it down for dismissal. Vaughan v. Fitzgerald, 1 Scho. & L. 316. PR. HEARING.

Bill to perpetuate testimony may be dismissed for want of prosecution any time before replication and examination. If cause is set down to be heard, the bill will be dismissed with costs, so as not to prejudice the perpetuating the testimony. Anon. Amb. 237. S. C. 2 Ves. 497. PR. DISMISSAL OF BILL.

Bill to perpetuate the testimony of a will if brought to hearing, to be dismissed with costs. Hall v. Hodgesdon, 2 P. W. 162. PR. HEARING.

Court will not give leave to plaintiff to examine witnesses to perpetuate testimony, though in case of a purchase of a reversion, where there can be no trial at law during the estate for life. Hitchcock v. Sedgwick, 2 Vern. 159.

XVI. BILL OF REVIEW, PROCEEDINGS AND EVIDENCE ON.

Bill of review, on error in law, Beame's Ord. 2.

On new matter, id.

Not on new proof, id.

Except by leave of court, id.

Not necessary in case of miscasting, id. 3.

Not allowed unless decrees first performed, id.

Except the act decreed would extinguish party's right at law, id. 4.

Party bringing bill of review to enter into recognizances, id.

Must deposit 50*l.* with registrar, id. 313.

No supplemental bill, in nature of bill of review, to be exhibited without leave of court, and party to deposit altogether 50*l.* id. 368.

Costs of course upon a bill of review for error; where no error in the decree. Bolger v. Mackell, 5 Ves. 510. PR. COSTS.

Lies to vary decree, though not signed and enrolled. Davis v. Larner, Dick. 42.

Supplemental bill in nature of review cannot be heard until petition to rehear original cause is presented. Moore v. Moore, Dick. 66.

Error discovered after report confirmed, ground for bill of review. Worge v. Bradley, Dick. 570.

Plea to bill of review of length of time since enrolment of decree, under which part of estate had been sold to bona fide purchaser who had had possession twenty-seven years. On argument of plea and appeal, leave given to withdraw plea, with liberty to plead and demur, answer or demur alone, without introducing new matter. Gorman v. McCulloch, 5 Bro. P. C. 597. PL. PLEA; LENGTH OF TIME; PR. PLEA, LEAVE TO WITHDRAW AND PLEAD DEMUR, &c.

Defendant filed supplemental bill in nature of review, without leave and without deposit, rectified by subsequent order and payment ex pres of deposit. Loubier v. Cross, Dick. 223.

Papers in the hands of a party to a former cause after publication had passed, though not produced then, may be read upon a bill of review. Standish v. Bradley, 2 Atk. 177.

When bill of review is brought for error apparent, the constant method is for defendant to put in a plea and demurrer; a plea of the decree, and a demurrer against opening the enrolment. Could v. Tancred, Id. 554.

Reading the decree is unnecessary if it is fairly set forth in the bill. See 5 Bro. P. C. 597. (n.) Miffl. 166. PL. PLEA OF FORMER DECREE.

On arguing demurrer to a bill of review, what appears on the face of the decree can be read only, but after a demurrer overruled, a plaintiff may read any evidence as at a rehearing. Catterall v. Purchase, 1 Atk. 290. PR. DEMURRER; PR. EVIDENCE.

Where a demurrer to a bill of review is allowed, it may be enrolled, otherwise if the demurrer is disallowed. Woots v. Tucker, 2 Vern. 120. PR. DEMURRER, ENROLMENT OF.

Bills of review classed. After a demurrer to a bill of review for error overruled, the decree is reversed without further hearing. Cook v. Bamfield, 3 Swan. 607. PR. DEMURRER.

Proofs in an original bill not allowed to be read on a bill of review. Moseley v. Maynard, 2 C. R. 18.

XVII. BILL OF REVIVOR.

Where cause is set down, and subpoena to hear judgment served, and afterwards bill of revivor is filed, no new subpoena to hear judgment is necessary. Bray v. Woodran, 6 Mad. 72. PR. SUBPOENA TO HEAR JUDGMENT.

Plaintiff filing a bill of revivor after decree, and neglecting to revive, the defendant, having answered, allowed to proceed on the plaintiff's bill. Gordon v. Bertrum, 1 Mer. 154.

The defendant dying after service of the subpoena to hear judgment, whether, upon a bill of revivor, a new subpoena to hear judgment is necessary: Quare? Byne v. Potter, 5 Ves. 395. PR. SUBPOENA TO HEAR JUDGMENT; PR. ABATEMENT & REVIVOR.

A defendant to a bill of revivor cannot plead to that suit, a plea which has been pleaded by the original defendant and overruled. Samuda v. Furtado, 3 Bro. C. C. 70. PL. PLEA; PR. PLEA.

If, after bill for that purpose, plaintiff neglects to revive decree, defendant may, and carry on decree under plaintiff's bill. Whitehear v. Hughes, Dick. 203.

Devisee can only revive decree by supplemental bill in nature of revivor. Id. ib.

And in that case, on neglect of plaintiff, defendant may set down cause to be heard at his own instance. Id. ib. 284.

Statute, 5 Geo. 2. c. 15. extends to bill of revivor. Att. Gen. v. Smith, Dick. 135.

An appearance is necessary to a bill of revivor. Anon. 3 Atk. 690. PR. APPEARANCE.

If, on bill of revivor, the defendant's time for answering be out, the court will order proceedings to be revived. So, where the defendant, by his answer, insists that the plaintiff is not entitled to revive, for this ought to be shewn either by plea or demurrer; but, if in such case it appears at the hearing, that the plaintiff had no title to revive, he cannot have a decree. Harris v. Pollard, 3 P. W. 348.

Revivor of suit against husband and wife, on decree against wife, need not be by original bill. Ruthil v. Litten, Cary, 70.

Wife, after death of husband, sueth bill of revivor, and good. Parrot v. Randal. Id.

Plaintiff marries before answer, but no advantage taken by defendant, bill of revivor unnecessary. Fairfield v. Greenfield, Cary, 52.

If one of defendants is not charged in bill of revivor ordered, he shall be discharged, unless cause shewn by a day. Heimes v. Day, Cary, 55.

XVIII. CAUSE, GENERALLY, AND OF ADJOURNING, ADVANCING, CONSOLIDATING, RESTORING, RETAINING AND SPEEDING.

See also PR. COSTS, 10. (i).—PR. HEARING, AND SETTING DOWN CAUSES.—PR. BILL, DISMISSAL OF.

Cause adjourned, costs of day 10l., as well in rolls as in court of chancery. 35 General Ord. 3 April, 1828. PR. COSTS.

Where cause is compromised or abated, solicitor shall certify this to registrar of the court. 39.

At request of any person the clerk in court shall certify the dates and general descriptions of the proceedings which have taken place in any cause. 43.

Where cause is struck out of paper by laches of attorney, motion to reinstate it cannot be made till attorney pay 3s. 4d. personally out of his own pocket. Reg. Gen. February 24, 1795. Exch. 1 Ridg. L. & S. 601. LACHES; ATTORNEY & CLIENT.

Bill restored, though the order to dismiss was not obtained till after a considerable interval since the last proceedings in the cause; and, though the plaintiff had acquiesced in the order, the suit being one in which the main object was answered, when an injunction was obtained. Barfield v. Nicholson, 1 Sim. 494.

In equity, where a party shews upon affidavit that he was surprised by a cause being in the paper on a particular day, and being disposed of in his absence, the court, upon motion, will restore it to the paper to be heard, and a petition is not necessary for that purpose. Rowley v. Carter, 1 Y. & J. 511. SURPRISE.

Where the evidence proves the execution of a will, but the witnesses have not been examined as to the sanity of the testator, the cause will be adjourned at the hearing, and liberty will be given to exhibit an interrogatory to his sanity. Abrams v. Winship, 1 Rus. 562. WILL, PROOF OF.

No application, to take a petition out of its turn, can be heard, unless notice has been given of the intention to make such application. In re Bell, 1 G. & J. 182. PR. NOTICE.

Cause standing in the paper of the day, and being about to come on to be heard at the sittings, the court nevertheless granted a motion for transferring it to a future day; and that a cross cause should be advanced in the paper to be heard at the same time. Roberts v. West, 11 Price, 514.

Adjournment of hearing of petition in bankruptcy can only be obtained by petition in bankruptcy. In re Hardy, 6 Mad. 252. PETITION; BANKRUPTCY.

Where defendant in title cause submits to part of plaintiff's demand, the court will, on motion for that purpose on part of defendant, refer it to master in any stage of proceeding to ascertain what is due, and to tax costs, the defendant undertaking to pay the amount without prejudice to any other question in the cause. Lowe v. Firkins, 11 Price, 453. TRUTH; PR. REFERENCE TO MASTER.

A bill against several defendants being retained with liberty for the plaintiff to bring an action against one of the defendants, the trial may take place during an abatement occasioned by the death of one of the other defendants, if the decree does not direct them to attend it. Humphreys v. Hollis, 1 Jac. 73. PR. ABATEMENT; PR. ACTION AT LAW.

On affidavit that accident prevented filing replication in time, cause was restored on usual terms. Att. Gen. v. Fellows, 6 Mad. 111. ACCUSATION.

The probable absence of a counsel is a sufficient ground for postponing the trial of an issue. Bearblock v. Tyler, 1 Jac. & W. 225. COUNSEL.

Rector's books not to be proved videlicet; and leave to put off the cause, in order to prove them by interrogatories refused. Lake v. Skinner, 1 Jac. & W. 9. EVIDENCE VIVA VOCE.

Cross bill filed only just before cause coming on for hearing, not cause to adjourn it. Coates v. Pearson, 4 Mad. 262. Duck, 326. S. C. PR. CROSS BILL.

Cause not in the paper called on to prove a will under the circumstances. Anon. 4 Mad. 271.

The only answer to motion to dismiss is an undertaking to speed cause. Steadman v. Ellis, 4 Mad. 240. PR. MOTION TO DISMISS.

Causes in equity cannot be consolidated. Forman v. Blake, 7 Price, 654. Or all but one stayed, and the rest to be decided by that. Id. 8 Price, 572, sed vid. 1 Fowl. Pr. 214. cont.

Reference whether several tithe causes should be consolidated, not of course before answer. Keighley v. Brown, 16 Ves. 344. PR. REFERENCE.

Undertaking to speed signed by counsel and left at registrar's office on same day motion to dismiss was made, held sufficient. Lyndon v. Lyndon, 3 Mad. 240. PR. MOTION TO DISMISS.

On undertaking to speed cause, on motion to dismiss, plaintiff has only the term, and not the vacation also to proceed in. Wilson v. Thompson, 2 Mad. 123.

Motion by plaintiff to advance demurrer to bill for injunction and receiver, refused on account of delay in filing bill. Jones v. Taylor, id. 181.

On motion after order to dismiss bill for want of prosecution, supported by affidavit of merits, &c.; the bill retained on terms of paying costs. Bellingham v. Bruty, 1 Mad. 265. PR. ORDER TO DISMISS BILL.

Court will not order a cause set down for hearing to be advanced in the paper on ground that subject-matter of suit is an arbitration of matters of account, and that if award should be set aside, the applicant would, on going into account again, lose the advantage of a witness not expected to live. Dalzell v. Bailey, 3 Pri. 2.

After a cause is set down for hearing, it may be advanced at the discretion of the court. Hoyle v. Linesay, 1 Mer. 381.

Demurrer in Vice Chancellor's paper cannot be directed by him to be heard at an earlier day than the paper mentions, but may be advanced to the head of the paper of that day. Anon. 1 Mad. 557. DEMURRER.

Cause set down to obtain decrees pro confesso advanced in paper on motion. Hart v. Ashton, id. 175.

Bill, after the usual motion to dismiss for want of prosecution, retained on terms of paying costs, &c. on application within a reasonable time, not, as formerly, ex parte, but special, on affidavit with notice. Fuller v. Willis, 3 V. & B. 1. PR. MOTION TO DISMISS BILL.

In undertaking to speed cause upon motion to dismiss for want of prosecution, the term includes the vacation following. Findlay v. Wood, 1 V. & B. 499. PR. MOTION TO DISMISS.

Plaintiff, under an undertaking to speed his cause, obtained an order to withdraw his replication, and set down on bill and answer; but did not serve a subpoena to hear judgment, or appear when the cause was called. The bill was dismissed with costs. Rogers v. Goore, 17 Ves. 130. PR. DISMISSAL OF BILL; PR. SERVICE OF SUBPOENA TO HEAR JUDGMENT.

Order obtained by plaintiff, under the usual undertaking to speed his cause, for liberty to withdraw his replication and amend the bill, discharged with costs. Pitt v. Watts, 16 Ves. 126. PR. ORDER TO WITHDRAW REPLICATION AND AMEND.

The only answer to the motion to dismiss for the want of prosecution is the usual undertaking to speed the cause. A special ground must be the subject of a special application. Bligh v. —, 13 Ves. 455. PR. MOTION TO DISMISS.

Bill by a married woman claiming under a bond by her husband, to a trustee for separate maintenance, admitted to have been destroyed by them on the ground of subsequent incontinence. The bill retained, with liberty to bring an action. Seagrave v. Seagrave, id. 439. Husa & Wife; Born.

Though by demurrer to whole bill allowed, the bill is strictly out of court, yet even after bill dismissed by order, the cause has been set on foot again. Baker v. Mellish, 11 Ves. 72. PR. DEMURRER.

Plaintiff, notwithstanding bankruptcy of defendant, and though all relief can be had under the commission, may be driven to an undertaking to speed cause by motion to dismiss with costs for want of prosecution. Monteith v. Taylor, 9 Ves. 615. BANCY.

One defendant may obtain the usual order to speed the cause by motion to dismiss for want of prosecution, though the other defendant stands out process of contempt, and it can be of no use to go to a hearing without him. Anon. id. 512. PR. CONTEMPT.

The cases where bill is retained that there may be a trial at law, are where it is necessary to establish a legal right in order to establish the equitable relief; but where the subject appeared to be matter of law, the bill was dismissed. Walton v. Law, 6 Ves. 150.

Deviso of fee-farm rents revoked in equity as well as at law by subsequent conveyance to trustee, operating an alteration of estate beyond mere purpose of securing a mortgage, but on account of laches of plaintiffs, the heirs at law; court would not give relief further than by retaining bill, with liberty to bring action, &c. to give an opportunity of taking opinion of court of law, upon question whether there is a revocation at law, or whether court of law will presume republication from the long possession, leaving open the question whether plaintiffs are entitled to any account, and for how far back. Harmood v. O'Goulden, 6 Ves. 199. WILL, REVOC. OF; LACHES.

It is not a necessary consequence that bill will not be dismissed because it has been retained for the purpose of a trial at law. Id. 225. PR. DISMISSAL OF BILL.

The defendant's producing the lease for a year, and a copy of the release, the original not being forthcoming, the bill was retained with liberty to bring an ejectment, and in default the bill to be dismissed with costs. Snell v. Silcock, 5 Ves. 469. EVIDENCE; LEASE & RELEASE.

Bill retained for a twelve month with liberty for the plaintiff to bring an action, and in case the plaintiff should not try such action within a twelve-month, then the bill was to stand dismissed, with costs; the plaintiff did not try his action within the time; the bill is not ipso facto out of court, but the defendant must either set down the cause for further directions, or move to dismiss the bill. Sterens v. Pracht, 2 Cox, 374. S. C. 2 Ves. J. 518. PR. DISMISSAL OF BILL.

Upon appeal to delegates, appellant may demand an adjournment from first meeting of judges to examine the transmiss of proceedings. Goodwin v. Giesler, 1 Ridg. L. & S. 371. PR. APPEAL TO DELEGATES.

After an order to speed the cause, the plaintiff has a whole term, and a vacation to proceed in before the bill can be dismissed. Mangleman v. Prosser, 3 Bro. C. C. 191.; but see note there contra. PR. BILL, DISMISSAL OF.

Bill to have a voluntary deed delivered up<sup>xx</sup>, dismissed; cross bill to execute it retained for a year, with liberty to sue upon a covenant in the deed. Colman v. Sarrell, 1 Ves. J. 50. S.C. 3 Bro. C. C. VOLUNTARY DEED.

Bill for a fee-farm rent retained for a year, and plaintiff to try his title at law. D. Leeds v. Corp. of New Radnor, 2 Bro. C. C. 338. See this case, id. 518.

After an undertaking to speed a cause, the plaintiff cannot as of course obtain an order to withdraw his replication and amend the bill. Ryan v. Stewart, 1 Cox. 397. PR. MOTION TO WITHDRAW REPLICATION & AMEND.

Bill for rent of a mine retained for a year to suffer plaintiff to try an issue as to the quantity of coal which, by the custom of the country, constituted a stack, the reservation being 1s. per stack. Geast v. Barker, 2 Bro. C. C. 61. ISSUE AT LAW.

Leave given to examine witness after adjournment of cause. Bank v. Farques, Amb. 145. PR. EXAMINATION OF WITNESS.

If the plaintiff produce the order for a subpoena to rejoin, and an affidavit of some of the parties being out of the kingdom, the court will not dismiss the bill for want of prosecution. Anon. 2 Atk. 604.

Though bill has been dismissed for want of such order and affidavit, yet upon producing them afterwards, and payment of costs out of pocket, the court will retain it. S.C. ib.

On motion to retain the bill, plaintiff must show that the order for the subpoena to rejoin was dated before the notice to dismiss. S.C. ib.

XIX. CAUSE, CONDUCT OF.

Bill filed by one creditor on behalf of self and rest, he has absolute dominion over suit till decree, and may dismiss bill at pleasure. But seems, after decree, the rest may prosecute it if they think fit. Hansford v. Store, 2 S. & S. 196. PR. CREDITOR'S SUIT.

Conduct of suit given, on motion to one of two co-plaintiffs, the other not appearing to have any interest. Routinsen v. Halper, 2 S. & S. 27.

CERTIFICATE, see PR. MASTER, REFERENCE, &c.

XX. CERTIORARI.

Where causes are removed by special certiorari on a bill containing matter of equity, plaintiff is, on receipt of his writ, to put in bond to prove his suggestion, within fourteen days after the receipt, which, if he do not prove then, on certificate from either of the examiners to the lord chancellor, the cause shall be dismissed with costs, and a procedendo be granted. 1st. Bacon's Order, 1618. Beame's Ord. Chan. 12. See Mif. Pl. 40. Harr. 49. Hinde's Pr. 28. 581. and the other references in Mr. Beame's note. So Chetley v. Allen, Toth. 145, plaintiff may examine, and have publication within fourteen days after the return of the certiorari to pray the surmises, and give the court jurisdiction; but defendant is not to examine, nor publish any to disprove it; and if on plaintiff's proofs it be retained, then plaintiff and defendant may examine orderly, touching the body of the cause, and have publication according to the rules; and though defendant examine as soon as the answer, yet shall not they be published but in ordinary course.

If the suggestions of the certiorari bill be not proved, a procedendo may be applied for and obtained, which is a writ directed to the judge of the inferior court, requiring him to proceed in a cause sought to be removed into a court of equity by certiorari, plaintiff not having sufficiently proved his suggestions in such bill. Rogers v. —, 1 Mad. Ch. 184.

It is sufficient cause for granting a writ of certiorari to remove proceedings in replevin from a court of great sessions in Wales, that the title to the freehold is in question. Edwards v. Davies, 2 Russ. 153.

Plaintiff had moved proceedings in replevin from county court in Wales to court of great session, he may obtain from this court a certiorari to remove them into K. B. without any special ground shown. Edwards v. Bowen, 2 S. & S. 514.

Writ of certiorari to the court of great sessions in Wales, quashed, it having issued without a special ground laid first, and directing the tenor of the record instead of the record itself to be returned. Pierce v. Thomas, 1 Jac. 54.

Where the tenor of a record instead of the record itself is removed by certiorari out of an inferior court, it is erroneous, as no proceedings can be had upon it. Woodcraft v. Kinaston, 2 Atk. 317. S.C. 9 Mod. 305. Dick. 233.

Where a replevin is in a court of record, you may remove it by a certiorari, either from the court of K. B. or from this court. Id.

A habeas corpus and a certiorari differ; that removes the body sum causâ, and you declare de novo in the superior court. Id. HABEAS CORPUS.

Where a certiorari issues in order only to use the record as evidence, then the tenor if returned is sufficient, and countervails the plea of nil tuel record; but when the record itself is to be proceeded upon, the record must be returned. Id.

Whether it be before judgment or after makes no difference: in both cases the record itself must be returned. Id.

The court may supersede a certificate, but cannot quash it without a view of the record. Id.

Certiorari to remove suit from chancery of Durham to high court of chancery, on account of affinity of one party, granted. Hilton v. Lawson, Cary. 48.

On hearing of certiorari from mayor's court, pleadings in mayor's court opened first. Clifford v. Beeson, Dick. 33.

If upon a certiorari bill the cause is brought on to hearing, the court if they think fit may make a decree, or send it back to the mayor's court to be determined there; and sometimes the court sends it back after publication passed, and a subpoena to hear judgment before the cause comes to a hearing. Stephenson v. Houlditch, 2 Vern. 491.

Proceedings can no more be removed out of a county palatine by a certiorari bill in chancery, than by a writ of error at law in case of a judgment there. Duckenfield v. Nosworthy, 6 Vin. Ab. 581. pl. 23. COUNTY PALATINE.

A certiorari bill may be brought to remove a cause out of a court of equity in a county palatine to this court. Portington v. Tarbock, 1 Vern. 178. COUNTY PALATINE.

The plaintiff brought a certiorari bill, the defendant pleaded a decree in the mayor's court, and an enrolment which was said to be only pronouncial, and it was referred to a master to certify whether it was before the bill. Cook v. Delebere, 3 C. R. 67. PL. PLEA TO JURISDICTION.

Proceedings in the lord mayor's court of attachment cannot be removed by certiorari into chancery. Souton v. Cutler, 2 Rep. Ch. 108. A plaintiff cannot remove his own bill by certiorari. S.C. Ex vide Curs. Canc. 454.

The plaintiff brought a certiorari bill to remove a cause of the mayor's court, his witnesses living out of that jurisdiction, and inserted other matters relating to an account not in controversy in the mayor's court. After examination of witnesses, the defendant moved for a procedendo, insisting that if the cause should be heard in chancery he could not be relieved, not having any bill there, but a procedendo was refused, the bill containing other matters, not determinable in the mayor's court, and the bill could not be divided, but the cause after hearing was dismissed. Rich v. Jaques, 1 C. C. 31.

After a decree to account in the Exchequer of Chester, the defendant shall not have a certiorari bill upon a pretence that his witnesses and deeds are out of that jurisdiction. Davis v. Davis, Rep. Temp. Finch. 452.

Though the plaintiff is to examine and have publication within fourteen days after the return of the certiorari, to prove his suggestions, and give the court jurisdiction, the defendant is not at liberty to examine or publish any thing to disprove it, and though the defendant should examine as soon as answer, yet the depositions shall not be published but in ordinary course, for after the plaintiff's first examination to affirm the jurisdiction, if the court retain the cause, both parties are to examine orderly to the merits and body of the cause, and have publication according to the ordinary rules. Cheeky v. Allen, Toth. 115. PR. PUBLICATION.

Because a certiorari was made with a long return, (skipping a term,) a procedendo awarded. Ashley v. Gidser, Toth. 162. Vide Woodroffe v. Kinaston, 1 Dick. 233. ante. S. P.

XXI. CHARGE AND DISCHARGE.

See also ACCOUNT, VIII. 2.

In support of a charge brought in under the decree, two witnesses examined by the plaintiff to prove the defendant's hand-writing, said that they did not believe it to be his hand-writing; leave was given to the plaintiff to examine fresh witnesses to the same point. Greenwood v. Parsons, 2 Sim. 229. EXAMIN. OF WITNESSES.

A charge by admission in the answer can be disallowed by showing the application immediately the receipt of the money, as one transaction, not by distinct independent items on the other side of the account. Robinson v. Seaton, 19 Ves. 583.

Where a bill for an account is filed, if defendant set forth in a schedule to his answer an account, charging himself with sums of money, and in another schedule, an account of the disbursements of those sums, he cannot discharge himself by the second schedule, although he would be charged on his admission in the first. But this principle does not apply to a case, where an account, furnished by a party before any suit is instituted, is produced, to charge him with the items on the debit side, for the principle that a party producing a document in evidence, makes the whole evidence, then applies, and the accounting party is entitled to resort to the credit side in support of his discharge. Boardman v. Jackson, 2 Ball & B. 382.

A discharge carried in before a master may be referred for impertinence. Price v. Shaw, 2 Cox, 184. PR. REFERENCE FOR IMPERTINENCE.

The court will not order a balance upon charge and discharge in the master's office, to be paid in before the master has made his report, even upon his certificate of the same. Far v. Mackreth, 3 Bro. C. C. 45. ACCOUNT.

XXII. COMMISSION TO ASCERTAIN BOUNDARIES AND VALUE OF LANDS.

See also BOUNDARIES.

A termor having by himself or his under tenants, suffered the boundaries between the demised premises and contiguous lands of his own to become confused, not entitled, after the expiration of the term, to a commission to ascertain them in opposition to the assignee of the lessor, who then entered, and had since continued in possession of both, it not being shown that such possession was improperly obtained. Commission to ascertain boundaries only to be granted, when the confusion has been occasioned by the misconduct of the defendant, or those under whom he claims, and only where it is shown that they cannot be ascertained without the assistance of the court. Miller v. Warmington, 1 Jac. & W. 184.

On a bill by a prebendary against his lessees, for a commission to ascertain the boundaries of the prebendal lands, the prebendary is entitled to name as many commissioners as his lessees. Willis v. Parkinson, 1 Swan. 9.

Commission to ascertain and distinguish boundaries, and, if not to be distinguished, to set out the value, upon a bill by a prebendary against lessees of the prebendal lands, also owners of other lands within the parish, with which the prebendal lands had become intermixed and confounded by reason of the unity of possession. S. C. 2 Mer. 507. See Speer v. Crawler, id. 410.

Bill by lord of the manor of W. against the lord of the adjoining manor of J., (who was also lessee of the manor of W.) and against commissioners under an act for inclosing lands within the manor of J., alleging confusion of boundaries arising out of the union of possession of the two manors; and that the defendants were preparing in combination together, to set out a boundary of the manor of S., which would include lands belonging to the manor of W., prayed a commission to set out the land lying within, and being part and parcel of the manor of W. The answer of the defendant, lord of the manor of J. set out boundaries, referring to perambulations made previous to the union of possession; and, the lease having expired since the filing of the bill, and it not being established in evidence, that there was any confusion of boundaries occasioned by default or neglect of the owners of J. while lessees of W., the bill was dismissed with costs, as against the commissioners, but without costs as against the other defendant. Speer v. Crawler, id. 410.

Jurisdiction, as to granting commission to ascertain boundaries, deduced from the writ de rationalibus divisis, or that de perambulatione faciendis. Consent, the ground upon which it was first exercised, then upon the application of a party, having an equitable claim, and no objection made; but a court of equity will not interfere between two independent proprietors, to force either to have his right so determined. Id. ib. JURISDICTION.

The circumstance of confusion of boundaries constitutes, per se, no ground for the interposition of the court. Id. 418.

A commission to settle the boundaries of a manor, or of a parish, ought not to be granted by a court of equity, where the interests of all parties who may probably be concerned, are not before the court. Atkins v. Hatton, 2 Anst. 386. PL. PARTIES.

Commissioners of perambulation must make a return, and if they cannot agree in making it, they may report specially. But before they make such return or report, the court will not grant a new commission, upon the allegation of their disagreement. Carberry v. Munell, Vern. & Scriv. 112.

The court will not grant a commission if defendant denies he has any of plaintiff's lands in his possession, for that would be to admit plaintiff's title in general; but if defendant has admitted plaintiff's title, and the dispute is only about the particular lands, there a commission is proper. Hp. Ely v. Kenrick, Bunb. 322.

On a bill to settle the boundaries of a manor, it was decreed, that each party should give to the other a note of their boundaries, and that it should be tried in a feigned issue, and the issue being found for the defendant on the first, second, and third trial, the defendant was not only allowed the costs of all the trials at law, but also the costs in equity, in regard the defendant had no bill, and the plaintiff might have tried it at law, without coming into equity. On a bill of partition, no costs on either side, because it is for the benefit of both parties. Metcalf v. Beckwith, 2 P. W. 376. S. P. Lethulier v. Castlemain, Sel. Ca. Ch. 60. Dick. 46. PR. COSTS; ISSUE AT LAW.

In this case the court ordered the commissioners to amend their return of a commission to ascertain the boundaries of a manor. Rouse v. Barker, Bunb. 251.

A bill does not lie to settle the boundaries of a parish, it being merely a question of law. St. Luke's v. St. Leonard's, 1 Bro. C. C. 40. 2 Dick. 550. S. C. nom. Waring v. Hatham, more fully stated, 2 Anstr. 395. Atkins v. Hulton, 2 Anst. 386.

The court has never entertained bills for establishing boundaries, unless where the soil itself is in question, or where there might have been a multiplicity of suits. The court has no power to fix the boundaries of legal estates, unless some equity is superinduced by the act of the parties, as some particular circumstance of fraud, or confusion, where one party has ploughed too near the other, or the like, nor has the court a power to issue commissions to fix boundaries of course. Hake v. Coopers, 1 Eden, 331. 2 Cox, 360. Vide Ross v. Barker, 4 Bro. P. C. 660. Hp. of Durham's case, 12 Vin. 268. That the confusion of boundaries does not per se constitute a ground for the interference of the court, see Speer v. Crawler, 2 Mer. 410. 418.

Where it does not seem the fault of either party that the lands are confounded, the court directs that the expence of the commission to settle boundaries shall be borne equally, though the interest of one party is less than that of the other; which saves the greater expence of directing the master to ascertain the proportionate value. Norris v. Le Neve, 3 Atk. 82. PR. COSTS.

Though in general a person cannot compel another to set forth by what title, and under whom he derives his estate, merely because his lands lie next to plaintiff's; yet on a dispute as to boundaries, or where there is unity of possession, defendant must set forth in his answer how he is entitled, especially where he has not demurred to this part of the bill. Champernown v. Totness Borough, 2 Atk. 112.

A bill lies not to ascertain the bounds of a manor in part, unless plaintiff establish by proof what share he claims. Webb v. Banks, 2 Eq. Ab. 164.

Bill against land owners to establish a right of 40l. per annua, in lieu of tithes, which by a decree temp. Car. 1. were to be paid out of particular lands to the vicar of C: decreed, a commission to ascertain the value of the land, and the owners' tithes, and what proportion of the 40l. each tenant ought to pay. Cuthbert v. Westwood, Gilb. Eq. Rep. 230.

COMMISSION OF BANKRUPTCY, see BANKRUPTCY, VI.

COMMISSION OF LUNACY, see LUNACY, IV.

COMMISSION TO EXAMINE, see PR. EVID. 28. (1).

XXIII. COMMISSION OF PARTITION.

See also ESTATE, VII.—STAT. C. OF, II. 35.

Exceptions will not lie to the return of commissioners, in a suit for partition, on the ground of inequality of value in the lots. In all cases of improper conduct in the commissioners, a motion must be made to suppress the return. Jones v. Totty, 1 Sim. 136. PR. EXCEPTIONS.

Where schedule written on paper was returned with commission of partition, the plaintiff's clerk in court was allowed to engross it on parchment and file engrossment, with return, in analogy to practice where foreign deposition are returned on paper. S. C. 2 S. & S. 219.

Mortgagee not a necessary party to bill for partition. Sloan v. Sloan, 8 Price, 518.

Commissioners under a commission of partition, have no lien on the commission for their charges. Young v. Sutton, 2 V. & B. 365. LAM.

The general rule as to costs of partition, seems to be, that as the party comes into equity for his own convenience instead of going to law, the rule of law should be adopted, and therefore no costs should be given until the commission, that the costs of issuing, executing, and confirming the commission, should be borne by the parties in proportion to the value of their respective interests; and there should be no costs of subsequent proceeding. Agar v. Fairfar, 17 Ves. 533. 558.

And in Baring v. Nash, 1 V. & B. 564. held the habit of court is not to give costs to hearing, and to divide expence of conveyance, and partition in proportion to interests.

Under commission of partition to four commissioners, two different returns were made by each two commissioners; the court would not act on either, but directed new commission to five commissioners. Watson v. Northumberland, 11 Ves. 153.

Commissioners making different returns, a new commission of partition ordered: but the defendants should not have excepted, but moved to suppress the returns; the deposit therefore ordered to be paid to the plaintiff. Corbet v. Davenant, 2 Bro. C. C. 252. See 6 PR. 332. n.

On a bill for partition, the costs of executing the commission, and of all necessary proceedings in the suit, must be paid by the parties in proportion to their interest. Calmady v. Culmady, 2 Ves. J. 568.

In Cornish v. Gest, 2 Cox, 27; Buller J. says, it is perfectly settled, that each party pays his own costs on a bill of partition, and that without reference to the quantity of interest that each has in the estate. And in Hyde v. Hindly, 2 Cox, 408. the M. B. recognised this to be the rule of the court; though he said, that, if a party entitled to forty-nine fiftieths of an estate were to bring the party entitled to the other fiftieth into court for a partition, he should hesitate much before he made such a defendant pay half the costs.

In Cornish v. Gest, sup. the question was, as to the costs of one of the parties, and it was held that they must be paid by his landlord, who was the occasion of his being brought before the court.

If a bill be brought in equity for a partition, there can be no costs given on either side, because it is an amicable suit. Anon. 6 Vin. Ab. 332. pl. 31; it being for the benefit of both parties to have their shares in severalty. Metcalf v. Beckwith, 2 P. W. 375. In Nevis v. Levene, Amb. 237. it is said, that partition was to be at the expence of both parties; but Mr. Beames, (Costs, 48. n.) suggests, that this may be the same case with Norris v. Le Nere, 3 Atk. 82. and that, though stated by Amb. as a case of partition, it was a case respecting settling boundaries.

On a bill for partition, there is no occasion to examine witnesses before the hearing. Said arguendo, that the commissioners may examine witnesses under the commission ore tenus, or take their depositions in writing, as they shall think fit, and found their partition on such evidence. Meers v. Ld. Shourton, 1 Dick. 21.

XXIV. COMMISSION OF REBELLION.

Where defendants having stood out all process of contempt for want of an answer, at the return of the commission of rebellion, entered an appearance, with a clerk in court, paid the costs of contempt, and obtained the usual order for time to answer; on an application for an attachment against the defendants for not putting in their answers, the court held, that according to the established practice of the court, the defendants were entitled, on paying the costs of contempt, to appear and take the usual orders for time, in the same manner as if they had not been in contempt, but expressed its disapprobation of the practice. Hill v. Mackay, 2 Y. & J. 472. But see New Orders, pl. 24.

Though a commission of rebellion may be executed on a Sunday, yet the chancellor said, he should much disapprove of such an execution of it, unless in cases of absolute necessity; and if executed in church the court would punish the commissioners; and they would have been punishable at law. Anon. Wy. Pr. Reg. 131. In Exp. Whitechurch, 1 Atk. 57., it is held, that a commission of rebellion may be executed on Sunday, though it only issued for want of appearance or answer. Super.

By course of court, commission issues to sheriff of Middlesex only. 2 P. W. 657. n.

Defendant refusing to produce deeds, though summoned, the common order under the master's certificate, for a serjeant-at-arms, was granted. Defendant kept himself shut up in his apartments (being a lodger) except on a Sunday. A motion was then made for a commission of rebellion, but refused. Edwards v. Pool, 2 Dick. 693.

Defendant being in contempt to a sequestration for want of answer, put in his answer, and it was then discovered that the commission of rebellion and subsequent proceedings were indorsed "at the suit of B" only, whereas the previous proceedings were endorsed "at the suit of B, and others." On application to rectify the mistake, Ld. Ch. said, defendant had acquiesced by putting in his answer, and the first process being right, he would order it. Bennett v. Button, id. 135. WATER OF IRREGULARITY.

If defendant be taken under a commission of rebellion issued irregularly, he shall have his costs. Bailey v. Devereaux, 1 Vern. 269. Costs.

But court will enjoin action at law founded on such irregularity of process. Id. PR. INJUNCT. AGAINST PROC. AT LAW.

Commissioners of rebellion, where it is on the ordinary process, not only might, but ought to take security, though a serjeant-at-arms could not. Aliter, where it is on an attachment or contempt of an order; they ought then to have the body in court at the return. Jones v. Clement, Dumb. 50. BART.

And in a case in the exchequer, where the commissioners in a commission issued on income process, refused bail, and took defendant to prison, they were ordered to attend the court with their prisoner on the following Wednesday. Powell v. Watts, 1 Fowl. Ex. Pr. 158. Id.

Commissioners in a commission of rebellion may take or refuse bail at their discretion; but if they refuse they ought to bring the party up without delay. In a case where a defendant was imprisoned six weeks under such a commission, and bail refused, the commissioner was ordered to be committed, and to pay costs. Ingleit v. Vaughan, 1 Ch. R. 261. 1 Dick. 7. S. C. S. P. Anon. Toth. 37. Id.

Commission of rebellion issued against a party; another appearing before the commissioners as the party, was apprehended by them, but he resisted, and tore the commission to pieces. On motion for attachment, it was granted nisi, though said per Hale, C. B., that the affirming himself to be the party against whom they have the warrant, would not excuse them in false imprisonment. Thurbane's Case, Hardr. 323.

A commissioner in a commission of rebellion letting defendant escape, committed till he bring in defendant, or pay the debt. Sacherrell v. Sacherrell, Toth. 38. In a similar case commissioners were ordered to be committed till they had paid the debt. Nelson v. Yelverton, id. 39, 40. IRREGULARITY OF PROCESS.

Wife taken to prison under commission of rebellion issued against her and her husband, though he was not brought in to answer. Ordered to be discharged with costs. Rowe v. Bourne, Choice Ca. in Ch. 171. HUSB. & WIFE.

Defendant was apprehended under a commission of rebellion, when neither the attachment nor proclamation of rebellion had been entered with the register. Contempt discharged with costs, to be paid by the clerk in court who made out the commission. Hollingsworth v. Harding, id. 154. See James v. Phillips; 1 P. W. 657.

Commission of rebellion for non-payment of costs issued against defendant to J D, who apprehended him, and delivered him to the sheriff for safe custody. On his refusal to deliver him to the commissioner, or to bring him into court, a day was given to him to do so, under pain of 10l. Frans v. Rics, Cary, 150.

Defendant this day made his personal appearance on a commission of rebellion, for saving his bond to the commissioners in that behalf. Brown v. Derby, id. 82.

XXV. COMMISSION OF REVIEW.

See also titles PL. & PR. BILL OF REVIEW.

Commission of review is a matter of grace. Kennedy v. St. Casilis, 2 Swan. 328.

Application for a commission of review, to rehear a sentence of the prerogative court, upon a will affirmed by the delegates, referred to the Ld. Ch., who certified against granting the commission, on the ground that the case did not furnish any such debt, with reference to the facts, or to import points of law, as made it expedient to grant the commission, which is prayed of the grace and benignity of the crown, regulated by sound discretion, usually withholding it upon grounds of public expediency, unless there are very cogent reasons for believing, that the sentence is founded in error, in fact, or in law, or unless the doctrines of law, upon which it is supposed to be founded, are so questionable and important, as to make it clearly fit that they should be considered in the most solemn manner. Engleton v. Kingston, 8 Ves. 438.

A different conclusion of fact upon the evidence, not a sufficient ground for the extraordinary relief of a commission of review. Id. 471.

The prerogative of granting a commission of review, is to be exercised upon the peculiar circumstances, and the importance of the case. In this instance, a sentence of the court of delegates setting aside a will, the report of the Ld. Ch. was against the application, his lordship concurring upon the evidence, that the will was obtained, or an alteration prevented, by undue influence, and there being no question of law. Upon this proceeding no costs are given. Exp. Fearon, 5 Ves. 633.

Commission of review, granted upon a sentence of the court of delegates affirming a sentence of the prerogative court establishing a will. Matthews v. Warner, 4 Ves. 186.

As to proceedings on commission of review. Goodwin v. Giesler, 1 Ridg. L. & S. 371.

A commission of review is not a matter of right but of favour. Hill v. White, Mos. 30.

If five judges are present, and two are against the sentence, it is no cause for a commission of review. Id.

The prerogative court and court of delegates in England gave sentence in favour of a will, and likewise the prerogative court in Ireland; but the delegates in Ireland reversed that sentence two years after the English sentence; both sides petitioned for a commission of review. Id. Ch. declared he would advise his majesty to grant a commission to review the sentence in Ireland, but to suspend the commission of the first petitioners, till those commissioners had given sentence. Id. ib.

A commission of review to reverse a sentence given by the court of delegates, is matter of discretion and not of right, and if it be a heard case, the chancellor will advise the crown to deny it. Franklin's Case, 2 P. W. 209. Sel. Ca. in Ch. 47.

In this case, a commission was granted pending an indictment for forgery of a will. Popping's Case, Sel. Ch. Ca. 48.

XXVI. COMMITMENT.

As to the commitment for breach of a decree. Beames' Ord. 5, 6.

Where oath is made of beating or abusing a party serving process, &c. the offender on motion to stand committed, and no examination. Id. 204.

So on affidavit by two of scandalous or contemptuous words against court, or the proceedings thereof, the offender to stand committed on motion, &c. Id. 205.

A single affidavit sufficient in such case to ground attachment. Id.

And if contempt is confessed or proved, party to stand committed. Id.

For contempts against the orders or decrees of the court, an attachment first issues on affidavit; then the party is to be examined on interrogatories, and his examination referred; and if on his examination, he confess his contempt, he is to be committed; if not, the adverse party may examine witnesses to prove the contempt, and thereupon if the contempt appear, the party is to be committed; if not, or if the party that pursues the contempt fails in putting in interrogatories or other prosecution, or fails in the proof of the contempt, the party charged with the contempt is to be discharged with costs. Beame's Ord. 34. Ord. Ch. O'Keeffe's Ed. 21., where it is said (in u.) that the practice is to grant a conditional order for an attachment, and not an absolute order in the first instance.

No commitment on a foreign affidavit, as perjury cannot be assigned. Musgrave v. Medea, 19 Ves. 652. FOREIGN AFFIDAVIT.

Defendant being committed for want of answer, his bail under a writ ne erret nigro, not discharged. Staplyton v. Peill, 19 Ves. 615. NE ERRET NIGRO; BAIL, DISCHARGE OF.

Comparison of handwriting, though lately admitted as evidence, if confirmed by the contents of correspondence, refused in the instance of a single letter, for the purpose of commitment. Wade v. Broughton, 3 V. & B. 172. EVIDENCE; HANDWRITING.

For the purpose of commitment under short order to pay money, the persons serving the order must have authority to receive the money. Wilkins v. Stephens, 19 Ves. 117. AUTHORITY; PR. SERVICE OF SHORT ORDER FOR PAYMENT.

Commitment for breach of franchise. Exp. Carpenter, Dick. 334.

If one be taken up on an attachment, either in process or in execution after decree, on appearance before the register, he is to be discharged, and to answer the interrogatories at large, not in custody; and if he be continued in custody, on motion and appearance before the register, he will be discharged. Danby v. Lawson, Pre. Ch. 110. 1 Eq. Abr. 351. pl. 3.

In all cases of commitment there must be an affidavit of service. Whitehead v. Thistlethwait, 3 Atk. 618.

A husband and wife committed. Wheatley v. St. John, Toth. 40.

Defendant shut up close in the K. B. Serape v. Steward, ib. Defendant committed to Bridewell. Pope v. Newman, ib. Defendant and his wife committed for non-performance of a decree. Walker v. Ardrue, ib.

2. What constitutes, process and commitment for.

Process of contempt may be resumed at the point at which it had been before cleared. 21 General Ord. 3 April, 1824.

Process of contempt to be made out in the proper county where the party is resident, and the prosecutor to endeavour to procure the first and preceding process to be executed, or else to pay costs. General Ord. 17 November. 1 C. R. 55. Begine's Ord. Ch. 60.

Defendant committed for breach of an injunction after notice of its having been obtained, although the order for the injunction had not been served. Lansdown v. Rose, 2 Jac. & W. 264. INJUNCTION, BREACH OF; PR. NOTICE.

Although a reference to arbitration is made under an order of the court, either party may revoke the authority of the arbitrator before the award is made; but it is a high contempt so to do. Huggett v. Welch, 1 Sim. 134. ARBITRATION.

The court will not interfere to relieve parties upon the terms of their paying the costs from process of contempt issued regularly, and without any breach of good faith. Hutton v. Tipton, 1 Russ. 323.

The ordinary rule of the court in cases of contempt is, that there shall be a personal examination of the party. Farquharson v. Balfour, 1 Turn. & R. 197.

The defendant may be attended by counsel upon his examination before the master. Id. ib.

Revocation of the authority of an arbitrator, the submission to whose award has been made a rule of court, is a contempt. Harcourt v. Ramsbottom, 1 Jac. & W. 511. ARBITRATION, AWARD.

In general the amendment of a bill puts an end to all process of contempt for want of an answer, and the court will not allow a plaintiff to amend without prejudice to a sequestration, notwithstanding he undertakes not to require any answer to the amendments. Nymonds v. Ds. Cumberland, 2 Cox. 411. AMENDMENT; SEQUESTRATION.

Defendant in contempt discharged on putting in an answer and depositing the utmost sum to which costs would amount, subject to taxation. Broughton v. Martyn, 4 Bro. C. C. 296.

Order that the master may proceed on exceptions to an answer put in by a person in custody for want of an answer de die in diem, but the defendant cannot be detained in custody, and the bills of costs must be delivered immediately. Wallop v. Brown, 4 Bro. C. C. 212.

An insufficient answer does not entitle defendants to be discharged from process of contempt. Id. 223. (n). ANSWER, INSUFFICIENT.

There must be a reference to the master for a proper settlement, before contempt for marrying a ward of court can be cleared. Stevens v. Savage, 1 Ves. J. 154. WARD OF COURT; PR. REFERENCE; SETTLEMENT BY COURT.

Estate ordered to be sold for debts; money raised under sequestration paid into court, though contempt cleared. — v. Bennett, 1 Ves. J. 89. PR. PAYMENT INTO COURT; PR. SEQUESTRATION.

Defendant, in custody for want of further answer, putting it in, will be discharged on paying the costs of the contempt. If that answer or any further one proves to be insufficient, the plaintiff may resume the process where it left off. Child v. Brabson, 2 Ves. 110. S. P. Anon. 1 Ch. Ca. 238. Id. Abergavenny v. Ly. Abergavenny, Kel. 5. PR. INSUFFICIENCY OF ANSWER.

Affidavits of defendant's illness and inability to put in answer are admissible evidence on which to ground application to discharge process of contempt and receive answer, though the suit be instituted in Ireland and the affidavits sworn in England. And though a decree has been taken pro confesso in consequence of contempt. Benson v. Vernon, 3 Bro. P. C. 626. PR. EVIDENCE.

Where defendant is in contempt, and puts in insufficient answer, and plaintiff accepts costs, contempt is waived; and to resume contempt, process must issue de novo from its commencement. Otherwise if costs had not been accepted. Huistwell v. Grainger, 1 Eq. Ab. 351. WAIVER.

The defendant is in contempt to a seigneur at arms, for not answering, and then puts in an insufficient answer. If the plaintiff's clerk in court accepts the costs, it purges the contempt; but if the costs be not accepted, the plaintiff may go on in his process of contempt where he left off for a further answer. Anon. 2 P. W. 481.

A general act of pardon, though with an exception of contempts, stands to pardon contempts in marrying infant wards of a court of equity. Phipps v. Anglesea, 1 P. W. 696. PARDON.

Witness unable to travel discharged of contempt. More v. Wreham, Cary, 99.

The defendant committed to the Fleet for not performing a decree and a sequestration, and the plaintiff put in possession of the lands, shall not be discharged till the lands are assured to the plaintiff, or money and damages satisfied. Perryman v. Denham, 1 C. R. 152.

If the contempt be pardoned, the defendant is rectus in curia, and may proceed as if no process had issued. Anon. 1 C. C. 238.

An attachment after a decree for dismissal is in nature of an execution at law, and a general pardon may pardon the contempt but not the debt. Bartram v. Dannel, Rep. T. Finch, 253.

Contempt discharged by a general pardon. Anon. 1 C. C. 238.

1. Generally.

Solicitor for two defendants will not be allowed separate costs of answer for each, unless properly incurred. 27th General Ord. 3d April, 1828.

Every warrant for attendance before the master shall be peremptory, and solicitor not attending, shall be disallowed his fee, or attending more than one hour, it shall be increased in proportion. 59th General Ord. 1b.

Where two counsel are proper, the costs of retainer to be allowed, though both be of outer bar. 33d General Ord. 1b.

Sworn clerks and waiting clerks shall only receive fees when they attend and their attendance is necessary. 37th General Ord. 1b.

Where a plaintiff, by the present practice of the court may obtain that relief by petition, for which a supplemental bill was formerly necessary, and prefers the latter course, the supplemental bill is not demurrable; but the proceeding will be taken into consideration on the question of costs. Davies v. Williams, 1 Sim. 5. PL. DEMURRER; PL. SUPPLEMENTAL BILL.

The costs of documentary evidence not read, nor entered as read, were disallowed. Stuart v. Greenall, 1 McClell. 705. S. C. 13 Price, 755. PR. EVIDENCE.

Devisee cannot retain his own debt in priority to costs. Lovnes v. Stotherd, 1 S. & S. 461. DEVISEE; RETAINER.

Erasures in answer and in jurat, and alterations in commission do not furnish ground for taking answer off file. Motion refused without costs. Gwynn v. Bodmer, 9 Price, 320. PR. ANSWER, ERASURE IN; PR. TAKING PLEADINGS OFF FILE.

Although, in a charity case, the proper relief may be granted, though not prayed for, yet the state of the record is to be considered with reference to the question of costs. Att. Gen. v. Hartley, 2 Jac. & W. 370. CHARITY.

The answer of a peer upon his protestation of honour may be read on the question of costs. Dawson v. Ellis, 1 Jac. & W. 524. EVIDENCE; PEER.

In creditor's suit, the plaintiff's solicitor having refused to attend the accountant-general with master's report, unless a contribution was made to him of one shilling in the pound. On motion, he being ordered to attend on payment to him of the fee of six shillings and eight pence for attendance with each creditor, and his claim disallowed, the costs thereof were allowed to such as had tendered him the six shillings and eight pence, but not otherwise. Shortley v. Selby, 5 Mad. 448. TENDER.

Assignees who are brought before the court upon supplemental bill may be liable to costs of whole suit, Whitcomb v. Minchin, 5 Mad. 91. ASSIGNEES; PR. SUPPLEMENTAL BILL.

Here there is great doubt in a question, costs will not follow the decree. Deurden v. Ld. Byron, 8 Price, 465.

Where plaintiff's bill in equity is ancillary to his legal title, and he fails at law, though defendant benefited by bill, plaintiff must pay costs in equity. Menrick v. Whishaw, 4 Mad. 272.

Right of defendants under a decree reserving costs, to a continued representation of all the original plaintiffs, (though not necessary parties,) as a security. Blackburn v. Jepson, 3 Swan. 138. PL. PARTIES.

Answer, though not evidence in cause, may be read as to costs. Howell v. George, 1 Mad. 13. EVIDENCE; ANSWER.

Protection of commissioners of bankruptcy to bankrupt from arrest granted at a private meeting on the application of the bankrupt, the day after he was served with notice, and before the first public meeting, good order on the plaintiff in the action to discharge the bankrupt, and the officer to pay the costs. Exp. Wood, 18 Ves. 1. S. C. 1 Rose, B. C. 46. BANKRUPT, PRIVILEGE FROM ARREST.

No general rule as to costs, the court must be governed by circumstances. Skirrett v. Athy, 1 Ball & B. 435.

Costs in equity in the discretion of the court, upon the circumstances not following the event by a positive rule, as at law, though prima facie that is the course, and circumstances must be brought forward by the party who fails. In this instance, a bill by a vendor for a specific performance the report being against the title, the bill was dismissed with costs upon the circumstances, the purchaser having taken possession at the instance of the vendor representing the title to be perfect, though possession taken generally is of weight as to costs. The court looks at the answer upon a question of costs. Vancouver v. Bliss, 11 Ves. 458.

Costs are entirely in discretion of court. Bromley v. Holland, 7 Ves. 28.

Defendant ordered to deposit books in the hands of the deputy remembrancer for inspection of other party, and afterwards ordered to account, in doing which he must refer to these books, is not obliged to pay the fees of the office in taking copies. Gabbitt v. Cavenish, 2 Anst. 547. PR. EVIDENCE.

After decree for debt and costs, attachments may be taken out for each separately. Frazer v. Thoburn, 2 Anst. 380. PR. ATTACHMENT.

A sum certain given for costs where small. Wilding v. Wilding, 4 Bro. C. C. 100.

Exceptions are not regularly taken to the master's report for costs only, but should be by petition. Pitt v. Mackreth, 3 Bro. C.C. 321. PR. EXCEPTIONS TO MASTER'S REPORT: PR. PLUTION.

A made a will, giving his personal estate to his five infant children by his first wife: he afterwards marries a second wife, by whom he had one child, who died soon after his birth; on the death of A, the executors attempted to prove the will, but were opposed by the widow on the ground that the will was revoked by the second marriage: a deed was then executed, by which the wife agreed on certain considerations to permit the will to be proved. The widow having married a second husband, they filed their bill in this court to set aside the deed, as having been obtained by fraud or surprize, and to have the assets administered, as in the case of an intestacy. This court directed the parties to proceed in the prerogative court, and reserved further directions. The prerogative court decided in favour of the will. The plaintiff appealed to the delegates, but afterwards agreed to abandon the appeal on payment of 200*l*. This court then directed the accounts of the personal estate, &c. Notwithstanding the plaintiffs failed in setting aside the will, yet as, in any case, it was necessary that the accounts should be taken in this court, the plaintiffs had their costs out of the fund. Thompson v. Sheppard, 2 Cox, 161.

Application for costs refused, there being no bill in court. Eip. Proctors, Dick. 634.

Bill dismissed, costs given against one defendant, and plaintiff to pay other defendants theirs. Guest v. Harris, 1*l*. 644.

Sequestration improperly executed; therefore, though bill to be taken pro confesso, and sequestrators to account, costs were reserved generally. Heater v. Waterman, 1*l*. 335.

Costs in equity are discretionary, and given to the time of the decree at law, unless directed by the court, and wait until the final judgment. Jones v. Carter, 2 Atk. 409.

Demurrer overruled, and costs paid. On re-arguing, demurrer allowed; costs to be refunded. Oats v. Chapman, Dick. 143. S.C. 1 Ves. 512. 2 Ves. 100. DISMISSAL.

Voluntary release by a party to his opponent not to defeat the clerk in court of his lien for costs. If the suit had ended in a bona fide compromise for a reasonable consideration paid, it would have been otherwise. Anon. 2 Ves. 25. REFUSAL; SOL. & CLERK.

It is conscience and not an authority which directs the court in giving costs. Corp. of Bedford v. Lenthall, 2 Atk. 552.

Commissioners of charitable uses have no power under 13 Eliz. c. 4. to give costs, but this court can do it. Aulet v. Dodd, 2 Atk. 249. COUNTERY.

As it may accelerate a decree, the court postpones the consideration of costs till a cause comes back from the master. Scarborough v. Birkin, 2 Atk. 111.

Plaintiff may apply for costs when defendant gives unnecessary trouble in carrying a decree into execution. Id.

In equity as well as at law, costs follow the justice of the demand. Roberts v. Kiffin, 2 Atk. 113.

Solicitor brings a bill for his fees: plea of statute, that the plaintiff had not signed his bill, good. Norris v. Bacon, 1 Vern. 312. PL. PETIT; LITIGATOR & CLERK, SIGNATURE OF BILL OF COSTS.

A bill may be brought for solicitor's fees only, if for business done in this court: and so it may where the business is done in another court, if it relates to another demand made by plaintiff in this court. Rumelagh v. Thornehill, 1 Ves. 203. 2 Ch. Ca. 153. S.C. SOL. & CLERK.

Billet served, and no bill in court, costs awarded. Porter v. Coleman, Cary, 100. Cook v. Baker, 1*l*. 83.

Costs allowed for want of bill, though billet lost. Id. 107. Brown v. Stoyek, 1*l*. 109.

No costs allowed on disclaimer. Read v. Hawstead, 1*l*. 109.

Costs allowed, defendant being on commission of rebellion. Morgan v. George, 1*l*. 1*h*.

Costs for want of bill. Parsons v. Hilford, 1*l*. 75.

Costs given against plaintiff and clerk who made process before bill in court. Garneton v. Bradwell, 1*l*. 33.

Subpoena served at suit of persons unknown, and no bill in court: server pays costs. Anon. 1*l*. 64.

Plaintiff requiring defendant to appear, shewing no writ and no bill in court, pays twenty shillings costs. Syers v. Cotts, 1*l*. 68.

Defendant appears, no bill in court, subpoena is lost by him, therefore no costs, but attachment is stayed. Parry v. Morgan, 1*l*. 69. Sed. vid. 1*l*. 74.

Costs for want of bill. Grey v. Gurney, 1*l*. 69.

Costs to solicitor of defendant, on affidavit of being served with process, and of defendant's impotency to attend, no bill being in court, allowed against plaintiff. Griffith v. Prestwick, 1*l*. 72.

Costs for want of bill, upon showing writ, but not delivering it. Symons v. Pinsonby, 1*l*. 72.

Costs for want of bill, though subpoena lost, yet allowed. Metham v. Fouchant, 1*l*. 74. Sed. vid. Parry v. Morgan, 1*l*. 69.

2. How lost.

(a) Generally.

(b) By fraud.

(c) By tender of demand, &c.

(a) Generally.

Where plaintiff's solicitor, with notice, suffers defendant to satisfy plaintiff's demand, without taking effectual security for payment of his costs, the court will not suffer him to proceed in suit against defendant for recovery of them. Morse v. Cook, 1 M'Cl. 211. S.C. 13 Pri. 437. SOL. & CLERK, LIES.

If claim of plaintiff in title suit be larger than he can support, the court will give costs against him for the excess, up to the time of his giving notice of abandoning any part of the excessive demand made by the bill. Wolley v. Brownhill, 13 Pri. 500. S.C. 1 M'Cl. 317. TITLES.

Objection for want of parties not being taken till hearing, defendant does not get his costs. Court v. Egan, 1 S. & S. 106. PL. PARTIES.

The messenger having defendant in custody under an attachment, and having afterwards let him go at large upon his undertaking to pay the costs, cannot use the process to compel payment. Jenkins v. Sandys, 1 Jac. 233. PR. MISTAKE.

Where defendant is in custody for contempt in not putting in an answer, and he puts in one which plaintiff accepts, plaintiff cannot, under process of contempt, recover costs; and semble, he loses them. Cox v. Ebers, 1 Mad. 530. WAIVER; CONTEMPT.

No costs where the caveat was not unreasonable. Exp. For. IV. & B. 67. PATENT; CAVEAT.

Nor where question fairly raised. Stains v. Morris, 1 V. & B. 8.

Costs not given on a motion, unless mentioned in the notice. Munn v. King, 18 Ves. 297. PR. NOTICE OF MOTION.

Bill by representatives of annuitant for arrears, brought twenty-two years after death of annuitant, dismissed with costs. Smallman v. —, 2 Atk. 71. ANNUITY, ARREARS.

Where bond set aside against public policy, at suit of the particeps criminis, no costs are given: secus, where at suit of an innocent party. Debenham v. Or, 1 Ves. 277. BOND AGAINST PUBLIC POLICY.

If an obligee will put in a bad answer, and insist on more than what is really due, he shall lose his costs in equity, though entitled to them at law. Forward v. Duffield, 3 Atk. 555. OBLIGOR & OBLIGEE.

If a defendant disclaims generally, and the plaintiff replies to her answer, and serves her with a subpoena to rejoin, she is entitled to have costs against him for the vexation. Williams v. Longfellow, 3 Atk. 582. PR. VEXATION.

The master, to whom it was referred, reported the proceedings under a commission for examination of witnesses irregular; on exceptions, the court thought them regular, and allowed the exceptions, and the party who succeeded had his costs of the application. Ld. H. discharged the order for costs, because the plaintiff's was not a vexatious proceeding; but in the master's opinion, well founded; and the rule is not to give costs, but where no just ground appears for the proceeding. Anon. 3 Atk. 235.

Where there has been no demand for, or payment of rent for thirty years, defendant will not be made to pay costs in equity. Anon. 2 Atk. 14.

Where defendant will not admit a general right, but puts plaintiff to proof of it, he shall pay costs of suit. Trinity House v. Ryall, 2 Bro. P. C. 389.

On decree for tithes, and report of only 9s. due, yet party entitled to his costs. Griffith v. Lewis, 2 Bro. P. C. 407.

Defendant does not lose his costs by appearing voluntarily. Boucher v. Grills, Dick. 38.

Costs not always to follow the event of the cause, as where, though money was found due to the defendant upon account, yet it appearing to be much less than had been claimed by the defendant's answer; in that case the defendant was allowed no costs. Att. Gen. v. Brewers' Comp. 1 P. W. 376.

In all suits where, at the hearing it shall appear plaintiff had not probable cause of suit, defendant shall have the utmost costs. Beame's Ord. 24.

If replication is not filed before subpoena to rejoin is returnable, defendant to have costs. H. 109.

A defendant endeavouring to get the plaintiff to come to an agreement with him, to take a very small sum of money in satisfaction of all his interest in the estate, is a reason for making him pay costs of suit. Arver v. Osborne, Barn. 349.

Plaintiff suing for thirteen different species of tithes, proved but one, yet the court decreed costs generally. Smith v. Morgan, Bun. 335. But see reporter's note, id. ib. TITHES.

(b) By fraud.

A creditor being obliged to re-convey, on payment of what was due on an estate in the West Indies, acquired by an unconscientious use of legal process, was deprived of costs subsequent to the payment of money into court. Ld. Cranston v. Johnston, 5 Ves. 277. DEBT; CRED.

Apothecary agreed to give his patient fifty guineas to receive five hundred, or an annuity of one hundred, if he should survive a year, which he did; bill against executors dismissed, as plaintiff could not succeed at law, but without costs, on account of the money actually advanced, which must have been repaid upon a bill to set aside the agreement. Priestly v. Wilkinson, 1 Ves. J. 214. FRAUD; BARGAIN.

No costs to any party claiming under a contract not meritorious, even though recovered upon; not even to a trustee. Colman v. Sarrell, 1 Ves. J. 55. DEEDS, VOLUNTARY.

In case of a gross fraud, the court will give costs to be ascertained by the party's own oath. Dyer v. Tynewell, 2 Vern. 123. 2 Freem. 112. S.C. FRAUD.

(c) Tender of Demand.

The costs of a suit for payment of a legacy which the executor and residuary legatee had offered to pay, ordered to come out of the testator's general estate, because the executor had qualified his offer to pay, by a restriction which he had no right to impose. Walter v. Patey, 1 Russ. 375. EXOR.

Where defendant in a title cause sets up a modus, and is desirous of protecting himself from costs, he should move for an order that plaintiff accept sums admitted due by answer, or proceed at peril of costs; and court will notice the tender by minute. The motion may be made without notice or payment of money into court. Davis v. Mosley, 9 Phil. 211. MODUS; TITHES; PR. PAYMENT INTO CT.

Answer stating tender before bill filed, but not proved, will not save costs. Milnes v. Davison, 3 Mad. 374. PL. ANSWER; TENDER.

In a suit for various articles of tithes, the defendant offered to pay into court the value of all but one article, with costs: held, he must pay costs incurred by claim of whole of them. Worrall v. Millor, 3 Aust. 632.

Tender must be very express, and formal to prevent costs. Gannon v. Stone, 1 Ves. 339. TENDER.

If to a bill for tithes, defendant does not show a previous tender, or make one by his answer, plaintiff shall have an account; if the tender be only by answer, defendant shall account with costs, but if made before, he shall save his costs. Anon. Bunb. 28. That a tender may be made after answer, vide Bp. Euter v. Trenchard, Bunb. 47. TITHES; TENDER.

3. Apportionment of, and Contribution for.

Where the same solicitor acts for an executor and the other co-defendants, the estate will be charged in respect of the executors costs only, with that proportion of the sum due to the solicitor from his clients, which the executor, as between himself and the co-defendants, ought to bear. Harmer v. Harris, 1 Russ. 155. EXOR.; SOL. & CLIENT.

There being no issue joined between co-defendants, the answer of one cannot be read against the other, even as to costs, other than as a suggestion on which court may direct inquiry before master. Cherret v. Jones, 6 Mad. 267. CO-DEFENDANTS; EVIDENCE; ANSWER.

Where one of several co-defendants in a title cause, wherein a general decree for costs had been made, survived the rest, the court refused to order the costs to be apportioned so as to relieve the survivor from the whole of them. Michel v. Bullen, 6 Price, 87. APPORTIONMENT.

Apportionment of the costs of granting a lease of a lunatic's estate, between the estate and the lessee. Etp. Prickett, 3 Swan. 130. LUNATIC; LEASE.

When different demands arise in a cause, the costs should be arranged as the equities between the parties require. Shim v. Gough, 2 Ball & B. 34.

In equity, the costs are arranged according to the equities of the parties; and the solicitor's lien is only upon the balance under that arrangement. Taylor v. Popham, 15 Ves. 72. SOL. & CLIENT; LIEN.

Several defendants entitled to a fund in equal shares, and long enquiries being necessary as to one share only, the costs were apportioned. Baseri v. Serra, 14 Ves. 313.

Under a joint order for costs, one party absconded, and was never served: a proceeding against the other good. Exp. Bishop, 8 Ves. 333.

On a bill for partition, the costs of executing the commission, and of all necessary proceedings in the cause, must be defrayed by the parties in proportion to their interests. Canons of St. Paul's v. Crickett, 2 Ves. J. 567. PARTITION.

In cases of partition, where the parties are entitled unequally, if the plaintiff be entitled to the smaller share, the costs shall be borne equally. Sed quare, if the plaintiff be entitled to the larger share. Hyde v. Hurdlev, 2 Cox, 408. Id.

Though the interest of one party is more considerable than that of the other, yet they shall equally bear the expence of a commission for settling boundaries, and separating freehold from copyhold. Norris v. Le Neve, 3 Atk. 83. BOUNDARIES, COMM. TO SETTLE.

Where two defendants were sued for tithes, and one made default, the court decreed the whole costs against the other, and left him to get the contribution as he could. Lloyd v. Mackworth, Bunb. 138. TITHES.

Plaintiff brought his bill for thirteen sorts of tithe, and proved only one sort due: though he did not abridge his replication, yet the court decreed him his costs generally. (But the reporter says too hastily decreed.) Smith v. Morgan, Bunb. 335. Id.

4. From what Fund.

In transfer of stock, &c., L. C. may direct costs to be paid out of fund, &c. 6 Geo. 4. c. 74. s. 16. STOCK, TRANSFER OF.

Plaintiff, in interpleading bill, is entitled to be paid his costs out of fund in court, subject of suit. Campbell v. Solmans, 1 S. & S. 462. INTERPLEADER; LIEN.

Person made party to suit only for protection of trustees, is entitled to his costs out of trust fund. Hicks v. Wrench, 6 Mad. 93.

On petition, under the stat. 56 Geo. 3. c. 60., for a re-transfer of an unclaimed stock that has been transferred to the sinking fund, the costs are in general to be paid out of the stock in question. Exp. Martin, 1 Jac. 55. PR. RE-TRANSFER OF UNCLAIMED DIVIDENDS.

In a suit for account of residue, one of residuary legatees having, by assigning and taking benefit of insolvent act, rendered two supplemental bills necessary, the additional costs are to be borne by his share. Bruce v. Ormond, 2 J. & W. 435.

Costs of unsuccessful defence of an infant, charged not upon general fund, but on his own share. Orford v. Churchill, 3 V. & B. 59. INFANT.

Where question arises on interest in a trust fund separated from general residue, the costs must come out of the particular fund; and, having been given by decree, as specifically prayed by bill, out of the general personal estate, the decree, although affirmed in other respects, was corrected in that particular; being considered as relief prayed, and therefore not within the rule against appeal for costs only. Jenour v. Jenour, 10 Ves. 562. TRUST; APPEAL.

Bill by infant dismissed with costs, upon facts which, though not known when the bill was filed, might have been with reasonable diligence. The next friend not allowed the costs out of the infant's estate; but whether they shall be repaid, and from what fund, or by whom, was reserved until the hearing. Pearce v. Pearce, 9 Ves. 548. INFANT; PROCHIN AMI.

Costs of a suit for legacy out of the residue: the suit being rendered necessary either by the conduct of executrix, who was the residuary legatee, or by the disposition of the testatrix. Wilson v. Brownsmith, 9 Ves. 180. LEGACY.

Where the suit is occasioned by a difficulty arising from the will of the testator, the costs are to be paid out of the general fund. Pearson v. Pearson, 1 Scho. & L. 12. WILL, C. or.

Costs of doubt upon meaning of will are to be paid out of general property. Barrington v. Tristram, 6 Ves. 345. Id.

When a testator expresses himself so ambiguously as to make it necessary to come to this court, the costs shall be paid out of his general assets. Jolliffe v. East, 3 Bro. C. C. 25. Id.

Tenants filing a bill of interpleader against annuitants, and bringing rents into court, paid their costs out of the rents. Aldridge v. Thompson, 2 Bro. C. C. 149. LANDL. & TEN.; PR. INTERPLEADER; PR. PAYMT. INTO COURT.

"Costs to be paid out of estate;" no subpœna lies against defendant, but part of estate to be sold. Cannon v. Bealy, Dick. 115.

On bill for specific legacy, costs were decreed out of the other part of testator's personal property, that legacy might be complete. Bagshaw v. Newton, 9 Mod. 283. LEG. SPEC.

Where a bill is brought to secure and have the benefit of a contingent interest devised over, the costs shall be paid out of the assets of the testator, who, by his will, has occasioned the difficulty. Stodhouse v. Hodgson, 3 P. W. 303.

If an infant sues for a legacy, costs must be paid out of the assets, and not out of the legacy. Anon. Mos. 5. INFANT; LEGACY.

The defendant, who was decreed to pay the costs, having run away, and the prochein amy poor, the solicitor was paid the bill of costs out of the money lodged in court for the benefit of the plaintiffs during their infancy. Stephens v. Muddu, Mos. 319.

5. Payment or Tender when necessary, and effect of.

Under order of 5th August, 1818 (3 Mad. 318) motion cannot be made till costs given by order, are paid. Bellchambers v. Gianni, 3 Mad. 550. GEN. ORD. C. or.

Costs of an irregular motion, for leave to amend, not having been paid, a second motion was also refused with costs. Phillips v. Stephenson, 9 Price, 205. PR. BILL, MOTION FOR LEAVE TO AMEND.

Defendant in custody under an attachment, and a messenger ordered, discharged on putting in his answer: but on exceptions allowed, the plaintiffs not having accepted the costs, resumes the process where it stopped; if costs were accepted he begins again; costs on motion against settled practice. Mill v. Turner, 2 V. & B. 372. PR. CONTEMPT.

After answer reported insufficient, plaintiff may proceed upon his old process of contempt, without a new order, if he has not accepted costs. Wilson v. Graham, 1 V. & B. 331. INSUFFICIENCY OF ANSWER; PR. PROCESS; WAIVER.

Defendant in contempt, putting in answer to which exceptions were allowed, plaintiff not accepting costs may go on with old process; but if in custody, old process is discharged, pending reference by tender of costs. Boehm v. De Tastet, 1 V. & B. 324. PR. ANSWER, INSUFFICIENCY; PR. PROCESS; WAIVER.

Practice of staying proceedings till costs of former proceedings paid, is not applied to the case of a suit, as ejectment at law, and a suit in the spiritual court by some of the next of kin disputing, as paupers, a will, on the ground of incapacity, the plaintiff in equity being another next of kin. Wild v. Hobson, 2 V. & B. 105. JURISDICT.; PR. STAYING PROC. By accepting answer, immediate right of costs under process of contempt, are waived. Smith v. Blofield, 2 V. & B. 100. WARRANT; PR. CONTEMPT.

Defendant in custody for want of his examination discharged, immediately on putting it in; but if, on reference, it proves insufficient, the plaintiff not having accepted the costs, may proceed from the last process. Bonus v. Flack, 18 Ves. 287. PR. PROCESS; PR. CONTEMPT, DISCHARGE FROM CUSTODY.

To prevent decree pro confesso, defendant should have not only the answer on file, but also a receipt for costs; the answer being actually filed without payment or tender of costs, the defendant was remanded, to give an opportunity of moving, to take it off the file for irregularity, but plaintiff having taken an office copy of an answer that course failed. Sedgeir v. Tyte, 11 Ves. 202. PR. DECREE PRO CONFESSO; PR. ANSWER; WAIVER.

The court refused to vacate the enrolment of a decree, dismissing the bill with costs, by default, and afterwards, upon a new bill for the same purpose, granted a motion for time to answer until a month after payment of the costs of the other cause, adopting the practice at law. Pickett v. Laggan, 5 Ves. 702. PR. VACATING ENROLMENT OF DECREE; PR. TIME TO ANSWER.

After an assignment of a mortgage, payments to the mortgagee, with notice, must be allowed by the assignee, the registry, the premises being in 'Middlesex, is not notice for this purpose. Sorrell*, 4 Ves. 389. REGISTRY OF DEEDS; NOTICE; TENDER; MORTGAGE & MORTGEE.

The plaintiff filed his bill in chancery, and dismissed after answer; he then filed another bill in exchequer for same matter: proceedings stopped till costs in chancery paid. Baldwyn v. Malo, 3 Anst. 835. PR. STAYING PROCS.

Bill for tithes, modus set up as defence; motion by defendant, to pay up arrears of modus, with costs up to time, refused; but plaintiff proceeding and then abandoning suit, costs after tender allowed to defendant. Dean, &c. of Bristol v. Donnesthorpe, 1 Anst. 272. TENDER; TITHES.

Injunction nisi not dissolved by putting in answer until costs of contempt be paid. Hall v. Darney, Dick, 289.

Plaintiff allowed to bring a bill of review without paying the costs decreed in the original cause, upon making oath he was not worth 40*l.* besides the matter in question. Filton v. Macclesfield, 1 Vern. 264. PR. PAUPER; PR. BILL OF REVIEW.

Where a defendant has demurred, he may assign another cause of demurrer at the bar, paying costs, and if such cause of demurrer is overruled, he ought to pay double costs; but when a defendant has pleaded, and there is no demurrer in court, he cannot demur at the bar, though he would pay costs. Durdant v. Reilman, 1 Vern. 78. PR. DEMURRER OR TENUS.

6. Security for.

The bond for security of plaintiff's costs shall be in penal sum of 100*l.* 40 Gen. Order, 3d April, 1828.

A plaintiff resident abroad, who had been ordered to give the security for costs, but had not complied: ordered to give the security, and on default, his bill to be dismissed. Camas v. Grant, 1 Sim. 348. PR. BILL, DISMISSAL OF.

Plaintiff compelled to give security for costs, on affidavit of his residing in Ireland, the cause not having been at issue, and the venue laid in Middlesex, and proceedings stayed in the meantime. Moloney v. Smith, 1 McClell. & Y. 213.

Prochein ami becoming insolvent, and receiving goods after answer filed; motion, that he might be removed and another appointed, refused as informal; but leave given to apply to stay proceedings, until he be changed, or security given for costs. *Pennington v. Where plaintiff is bound to give security, each defendant suing by separate clerk, in court is entitled to separate bond of 40*l.*, though only one is payable. Lowles v. Robertson, 4 Mad. 465.

Security for costs by plaintiff, refused; an answer being by mistake filed after defendant knew plaintiff was abroad, but sworn long before. Dyott v. Dyott, 1 Mad. 186.

A plaintiff residing in England, obliged, on filing a bill in Ireland, to give security for costs, notwithstanding 41 Geo. 3. c. 90. s. 5. gives an attachment in England to enforce an order or decree made in Ireland for payment of money; the practice of the court not being altered by that act. Mullett v. Christmas, 2 Ball & B. 422.

Plaintiff resident in England ordered to give security for costs after appearance by defendant, but before answer. Stackpole v. O'Callaghan, 1 Ball & B. 566.

Security for costs by a plaintiff, gone abroad, refused after answer, on affidavit of his intention to return; and his family remaining in this country. White v. Groathead, 15 Ves. 2.

Order to stay proceedings until security given for costs, upon affidavit, that the plaintiff, since the answer, had abandoned this country and resides in the Isle of Man. Weeks v. Cole, 14 Ves. 518.

The usual security for costs by a plaintiff residing out of the jurisdiction, not increased upon special circumstances as distress; unless the plaintiff asking some favour, terms may be imposed upon him. Ogilvie v. Herne, 11 Ves. 598.

Defendant, after an order for time, cannot have security for costs from plaintiff living out of jurisdiction. Anon. 10 Ves. 287. PR. ORDER FOR TIME.

Plaintiff residing abroad; not ordered to give security for costs where there were co-plaintiffs residing in England. Walker v. Easterby, 6 Ves. 612.

The simple fact that the plaintiff is gone abroad is not a sufficient ground to compel him to give security for costs. Hoby v. Hitchcock, 5 Ves. 699.

Plaintiff, by an order of the secretary of state, confined, and to be removed out of the kingdom.

under the alien act, ordered, on motion after appearance and before answer, to give security for the costs, according to the practice where the plaintiff is resident abroad. Seiluz v. Hanson, 5 Ves. 261. ALIEN; PRISONER.

If plaintiff is insolvent, and gives a wrong residence, ordered to give a note of residence or security for costs. James v. Gilladam, 2 Aust. 552. INSOLVENCY.

The court refused to make a prochein ami, in indigent circumstances, give security to answer costs. Squirrel v. Squirrel, 2 Dick. 765.

Plaintiff is not compellable to give security for costs, unless he state himself, or if he sworn, that he is resident abroad, or going to reside abroad. Green v. Churnock, 2 Cox, 284. S. C. 3 Bro. C. C. 371. 1 Ves. J. 396.

Affidavit to ground an order for a plaintiff to give security for costs, when it doth not appear by the bill that he lives abroad out of the jurisdiction of the court, if he hath left the kingdom since filing, the bill must go on and say to settle abroad. Anon. 2 Dick. 775.

Security for costs not granted, after any step taken by defendant. Craig v. Bolton, 2 Bro. C. C. 609.

A defendant may apply for security for costs after answer, if he had no notice, at the time of answering, that the plaintiff was out of the jurisdiction; but if he takes any step in the cause after such notice, he waives the security for costs. Id. ib.

Master to settle security to be given for costs by plaintiff, foreign merchant. Odwyer v. Salcedor, Dick. 372.

Where plaintiff under protection of foreign ambassador, he must give security for costs. Adderly v. Smith, id. 35.

Where one plaintiff resident in England, no security is required for costs. Winthorpe v. Royal Exchange Assurance Comp. id. 232.

The ancient sum of 40*l.*, as the amount in which security must be given to answer costs on the plaintiff's residing abroad, is not increased under adverse motion on any special circumstances. If, however, such a plaintiff asks a favour of the court, further terms may be imposed on him. Gage v. J. y. Stafford, 2 Ves. 557.

Consul abroad, plaintiff in suit need not give security for costs. Colebrook v. Jones, id. 154.

Where plaintiff is abroad, and the defendant becomes apprised of it, he cannot obtain security for costs, if he afterwards takes any other step in the cause, such as applying for time to answer. Mellioruchy v. Mellioruchy, 2 Ves. 24. S. C. Dick. 147.

Defendant applying within seven years to put in answer, &c., according to 5 G. 2. c. 25., he must give approved security for costs. Bp. Rochester v. Knapp, Dick. 70.

If an ambassador's servant brings a bill, he must give security to answer costs, as being a person privileged. Gordwin v. Archer, 2 P. W. 452.

A prochein ami shall not be obliged to give security because he is a privileged person. Anon. Mos. 86. PR. PROCHIEIN AMI.

If the plaintiff is in the service of a foreign envoy, he must give security to pay costs. Anon. id. 175.

Where it appears upon affidavit that the prochein ami is insolvent, he must give security for costs. Wale v. Sutter, Mos. 47. Anon. id. 86. PR. PROCHIEIN AMI.

The court of exchequer refused to allow a deposit of 40*l.*, the amount of the security, to stand in the stead of the security. Ker v. Ds. Munster, Bun. 35.

Where the defendant usually resided at Oporto, and had not answered, but was in contempt, the court ordered him to give plaintiff security for costs until answer or further answer. Anon. id. 183.

The court will compel a Scotchman to give security for costs as a foreigner. Ker v. Ds. Munster, id. 35.

A motion, that defendant residing at Oporto should give security for costs before he returned there, refused, the answer having been filed. Whitehead v. Murat, id. 183.

Where the original defendant who had obtained security for costs became bankrupt, his assignees, who had become parties by supplemental bill, were held entitled to call for a fresh security, as they could not have the benefit of the recognizance already entered into. Ogborne v. Bartlett, Beame's on Costs, 359. BANKCY. ASSIGNEES.

7. Setting off.

In a suit for the administration of assets, a debtor to the estate, who is entitled to have his costs of suit out of the fund, will not be allowed to receive payment of them while his debt continues unsatisfied, but the costs due to him will be set off pro tanto against the debt due from him. Harmer v. Harris, 1 Russ. 155. ADMIN. OF ASSETS; DEBTOR & CRED.

Court will not direct costs of suit and of action between same parties to be set off against each other. Wright v. Mudie, 1 S. & S. 266.

Costs at law and in equity between the same parties set off, after decree omitting such a provision. Shine v. Gough, 2 Ball & B. 33. PR. DECREE.

Costs ordered to be paid, but not taxed until after the bankruptcy of the person to receive them, cannot be set off by the party, from whom they were due, proving a debt under the commission. Eap. Rhodes, 15 Ves. 539. BANKCY. SETT-OFF.

Where there are costs in equity and at law due from the opposite parties, the court will not set off the costs at law against those in equity, if the solicitor in equity claims his lien on the latter. Smith v. Brocklesby, 1 Aust. 61. SOL. & CLIENT, LIEN.

Court will not upon motion discharge a person in execution for costs upon a demand arising to him upon the person to whom he is in execution. Holworthy v. Allen, 2 Bro. C. C. 17. S. C. 1 Cox, 202. quod vide. PR. EXECUTION, DISCHARGE.

Bill praying relief as well as discovery whilst plaintiff was proceeding at law in same account, though amended by striking out the part which prayed relief; and bill was thereupon dismissed, and costs of the dismissal were taxed to the defendant at 38*l.* Plaintiff recovered judgment against defendant in damages and costs to the amount of 440*l.*, and petitioned to set off costs at law against costs in equity. Ld. Hardwicke thought it reasonable; and if the precedents would justify him, said he would grant the petition. Gurish v. Donovan, 2 Atk. 166.

8. When stayed by appeal.

An account of tithes hay being decreed, the defendant appealed from so much as directed an account in respect of lands in the township of S, and the decree was to that extent ultimately reversed; pending the appeal the plaintiff took the account as to all the lands, including those in the township of S, the court, on application, refusing to restrain him. On an application for costs, held, that it was convenient that the whole account should be taken at the same time, and refused costs on either side as to that part of account relating to the township of S. Drake v. Smyth, 1 M'Clel. & Y. 380. TITLE ACCOUNT.

Notwithstanding appeal from decree, party may sue out subpoena for costs decreed. Tyson v. Cox, 3 Mad. 278. PR. APPEAL.

An appeal pending in house of lords is no objection to deputy remembrancer taxing costs, but payment will be suspended. Meade v. Norbury, 4 Price, 322. PR. APPEAL, EFFECT OF.

Appeal, generally, does not stay proceedings under a decree. The costs upon a special application follow the judgment if unfavourable. Willan v. Willan, 16 Ves. 216. See also Tyson v. Cox, 3 Mad. 278. PR. APPEAL, EFFECT OF, ON PROCEEDINGS.

(a) Generally.

Regulations where a master is directed to settle a conveyance, or to tax costs. 76th Gen. Order, 3rd April, 1828. PR. SETTLEMENT OF CONVEYANCE.

The master was ordered to tax the costs of all parties, and the amount was directed to be paid out of the assets of the testator in the cause by his executors, who were to be at liberty to pay the costs of certain parties to A, their solicitor. A was an attorney of K B and C P, but never had been admitted as a solicitor in the court of chancery, and the master for that reason disallowed the whole of his charges, except what he had paid to his clerk in court. He had, however, previously received from his clients to the full amount of his bills. The clients then petitioned for an order on the master to review his certificate and tax A's bills; but their petition was dismissed. Prebble v. Bognhurst, 2 Sim. 247. SOLICITOR.

In equity, the proper mode in this court of objecting to the master's taxation of costs is to move upon affidavits, stating the ground of objection, for leave to file exceptions to the report. Wright v. Southwood, 1 Y. & J. 420. PR. MASTER'S REPORT.

Where a solicitor engaged in various suits, obtained payment out of court of a sum of money standing in trust in the cause, and retained it towards his costs, and upon a subsequent taxation of his bill it appeared, that at the time he obtained payment of the money he had in fact already been over paid, the court refused, upon a motion for that purpose, to charge him with interest, the parties having made considerable delay before they taxed the costs, and there being no fraud or laches imputable to the solicitor. S.C. id. 527. SOL. & CLIENT; INTEREST; LACHES.

Where decree orders defendant to retain his costs, when taxed, out of the balance in his hands, and pay the residue into court, if the defendant delays to get costs taxed, plaintiff must move that he may bring his bill of costs to be taxed within limited time, and not that he may pay in the whole balance. Newsome v. Shearman, 2 S. & S. 95. PR. DECREE.

A solicitor's bill having been partly taxed, and paid, an order, obtained as of course, referring the bill generally for taxation, was discharged with costs. The conduct of the solicitor cannot be adduced in support of such an order; and the costs of affidavits upon that subject were ordered to be paid as between solicitor and client. Chilton v. Pardon, 1 Turn. & R. 301. And see Gretton v. Leyburne, id. 407. SOL. & CLIENT; PR. COSTS, WHO PAY.

An order, directing the costs of the suit to be taxed, warrants a taxation up to the time of the master's making his report. Semble. Id. 304.

A solicitor cannot obtain the taxation of his agent's bill, without bringing the amount into court. Ostle v. Christian, 1 Turn. & R. 324. PR. PAYMT. INTO COURT; SOL. & AGENT.

The court refused (but without costs) a motion for special direction to master, requiring him to deduct in his taxation of costs of the parties, the costs which he should allow to defendant from those which he should allow to plaintiff (who had become insolvent) after decree had been passed and acted upon. Rumney v. Beale, 10 Price, 113. INSOLVENCY; SET-OFF.

Taxation of costs not ordered on application of solicitor himself. Sayers v. Walond, 1 S. & S. 97. SOL. & CLIENT.

A party liable under a bond of indemnity for the costs of another, having on a compromise, paid what the solicitor stated to be the amount of them, is entitled afterwards to have the bill taxed. Bulme v. Paver, 1 Jac. 305.

It cannot be made one of the terms of the compromise of a suit, that the solicitor's bill should be paid without taxation. Semb. Id. 307. AGREEMENT.

Where a commission is taken out upon a debt due to a solicitor for costs, any creditor may have the bill of costs taxed, if the bankrupt, at the time of his bankruptcy, was not concluded. Exp. Prideaux, 1 G. S. J. 28. BANKRUPTCY, PROOF IN; SOL. & CLIENT.

A party who by agreement has paid the bill of costs of another party, cannot apply for a taxation. Langford v. Nott, 1 Jac. & W. 291.

A settlement of a bill of costs during the continuance of the suit, while the client has no professional adviser, except the solicitor himself, is not a bar to its taxation. Crossley v. Parker, 1 Jac. & W. 460. SOL. & CLIENT.

Charges by a country solicitor, for attending the cause in London, to be allowed in some cases; but the circumstance of their being undertaken by the direction of the client, is not alone a sufficient ground for allowing them, as the solicitor himself is better able to judge of their necessity. Id. ib.

The bill of town agent of attorney, cannot be ordered to be taxed on motion of client. Willmore v. Bryan, 8 Price, 677. PRIN. & AGENT; SOL. & CLIENT.

Costs of notice of motion to confirm master's report that answer was impertinent, allowed on taxation. Donison v. Curry, 8 Price, 87. note. PR. NOTICE OF MOTION.

Not of course for to refer to master, bill of costs up to the choice of assignees, already taxed by commissioners. Particular objections must be stated. Solicitor refusing to give copy of bill, sufficient to ground it. Exp. Sutton, 4 Mad. 395. BANKCY. COSTS IN TAXATION OF.

Where the amount of a solicitor's bill up to the choice of assignees, is prima facie exorbitant, it is of course to refer it to the master to be taxed. Exp. Emery, Buck. 422.

It is of course upon an ex parte application to have an order to tax a solicitor's bill. If the solicitor wish to modify or discharge the order, he must apply to the court for that purpose. Exp. Hewitt, Buck. 388.

It is a contempt of the great seal for a petitioning creditor to strike a docket at the instance of a solicitor, who undertakes to prove the act of bankruptcy, and to guarantee him against any expences he may be put to by issuing the commission, and the court therefore, will not upon the petition of such a creditor, tax the solicitor's bill of costs. Exp. Wilson, Buck. 306. BANKCY. COMM.; CONTEMPT; SOLR. & CLIENT.

Exceptions do not lie to master's report as to costs, nor can there be a re-taxation as to quantum. Irregularity in proceedings, or master acting on mistaken principle, may induce court to interfere. Fenton v. Crickett, 3 Mad. 496. PR. MASTER'S REPORT; EXCEPTIONS.

Order directing taxation of a solicitor's bill for business done in the court of great sessions, discharged; the court not assuming jurisdiction for that purpose alone. Exp. Partridge, 3 Swan. 398. GREAT SESSION; JURISDICT.

Reference of a solicitor's bill of costs, to be taxed upon the application of one of two trustees and executors, by whom he had been employed in the conduct of the cause, and in other matters relating to the executorship; the executor making the application not having acted, and his co-executor refusing to consent to the application, the bill having been long since paid by the acting executor, but unknown to the parties beneficially interested, and no settlement of the executorship accounts having been made, notwithstanding repeated applications, until lately, and the cestuique trusts (one of them a married woman) having executed a release to the executor: motion, on behalf of the solicitor, to discharge the order of reference, refused; the cestuique trust having a right to use the name of his trustee for the purpose of taxation, and the release to the executors, not operating to prevent him from prosecuting against the solicitor the remedy given him by the statute. Hazard v. Lane, 3 Mer. 285. TRUSTEE.

The court has no jurisdiction to order the taxation of a solicitor's bill of costs, for business done in a cause in the court of great sessions in Wales, where there is no detention of title deeds, nor any other matter besides costs in dispute. Exp. Partridge, 2 Mer. 500. JURISDICT.; COURT OF GREAT SESSION IN WALES.

Bill of costs by a solicitor under commission of bankruptcy, though approved of by commissioners, and stated and allowed in accounts of assignees, held taxable under 5 Geo. 2. c. 30. s. 46. See 6 Geo. 4. c. 16. s. 14. Exp. Gregson, 3 Mad. 49. BANKCY. COSTS.

Taxation of a solicitor's bill refused, after a security given, payment and acquiescence; some charges, though improper, not being so gross as to amount to fraud. Plenderleath v. Fraser, 3 V. & B. 174. LENGTH OF TIME; ACQUIESCENCE.

Generally a bond, taken by a solicitor from the client in the progress of a cause, subject to taxation. Id. 175. SOL. & CLIENT; BOND.

Solicitor may proceed to tax his costs after a verdict at law, with a view to commence an action in his own name for the amount, after a final settlement between the parties by arbitration without his concurrence, notwithstanding an injunction to stay execution. Brooks v. Bourne, 1 Price, 72. INJUNCT. BREACH OF.

No jurisdiction for taxing a solicitor's bill of costs for obtaining an act of parliament. Exp. Wheeler, 3 V. & B. 21. JURISDICT.; ACT OF PARLIAMENT.

Taxation of a solicitor's bill in the house of lords, only through the recognizance. Id. 22.

Though the court will open a solicitor's bill, and order taxation, after several years and a security given, or even payment, upon gross errors, fraud or undue pressure, where nothing appeared but a trifling inaccuracy, and under other favourable circumstances, the court would not restrain proceeding upon a security, obtained while business was depending. Cooke v. Settee, 1 V. & B. 126. SOLICITOR'S & CLIENT; SECURITY; LENGTH OF TIME; FRAUD, FIN. SIT.

An attorney's bill of costs settled and paid, or after judgment in an action, not to be referred for taxation of course; as it may upon a special case of fraud, or improper charges, notwithstanding payment, a release, judgment, or other security. Langstaffe v. Taylor, 14 Ves. 262.

Order in bankruptcy for taxation of a solicitor's bill, for business done in bankruptcy, and otherwise. Exp. Arrowsmith, 13 Ves. 124. BANKCY. SOLICITOR'S BILL.

Order for taxing a bill of costs, entitled in the cause, if obtained by the party to the cause, regular under the general jurisdiction. But a person not a party in the cause, must apply ex parte under the stat. 2 G. 2. c. 25. s. 22. Such an irregularity would be waived by proceeding under the order. Bignol v. Bignol, 11 Ves. 328. INTITULING PLEADINGS.

Proceeding before I.d. Ch. as exercising the visitatorial power upon a royal foundation, is not within 2 G. 2. c. 23. s. 23., as to taxation of bill of costs. Exp. Dunn, 9 Ves. 547. STAT. C. OF.

Where an attorney has been seven years without getting his bills taxed after an order so to do, and they are lost in the mean time in the master's office, the court will not allow it to go again to the master. Yea v. Yea, 2 Anst. 494. LACHES; SOL. & CLIENT.

Several bills were delivered in, settled and paid, in the course of a long cause, and a receipt in full given; at the end of the cause the client moved to refer them all for taxation. The order was discharged. Pistor v. Dunbar, 1 Anst. 186. LENGTH OF TIME; ACQUIESCENCE.

Where any part of solicitor's bill relates to business done in this court the whole may be taxed, although part of the business was for other persons jointly with the person applying. Margerum v. Sandiford, 3 Bro. C. C. 233.

Order on the application of a solicitor to tax his own agent's bill. Corner v. Luke, 2 Cox, 173. SOLR. & AGENT.

Bill may be taxed after bond and mortgage given as security for same. Aubrey v. Popkin, Dick. 403.

And also after payment made for purpose of getting papers from solicitor's hands. Id. ib. 404.

Solicitor's bill taxed without bringing the money into court as formerly. The judgment not afterward opened for the client to have an account taken in respect of monies due to him. Anon. 2 Ves. 452. PR. PAYMT. INTO COURT.

Where the poverty of a plaintiff would not allow her to carry on the cause, her costs were ordered to be taxed and paid to her, to enable her to go on with the cause. Jones v. Coreter, 2 Atk. 400.

Though the plaintiff has not replied to the defendant's answer, yet desisting him to do an act will entitle the defendant to his costs to be taxed. Sutton v. Stone, id. 101.

Court will order attorney's bill to be taxed, though he has a mortgage to secure payment. Walmesley v. Booth, id. 29. SOLR. & CLIENT.

Court refused to order account of attorney's bill taxed by prothonotary of C. P. Osbaldeston v. Cross, 2 Com. 612. ACCOUNT; JURISDICTION.

The usual order for taxation, empowers the master to examine the solicitor as to what money he had received only, but upon proper affidavits the court will order him to be examined as to his disbursements. Anon. Mos. 331. PR. EXAMINATION BY MASTER; SOLICITOR.

And where an order of taxation and payment the solicitor assigned his bill to a purchaser and absconded, the court was inclined to think, that the purchaser could not stand in place of the solicitor, until he had procured him to be examined under the order. Wilson v. Williams, Barn. 263. Id. ib.

On the client's neglecting to attend the master on the taxation of the bill, the chancellor would not order him to bring the money into court, but only that the order of reference should be discharged, if he did not procure a report in a fortnight. Anon. Mos. 68. PR. ATTENDANCE BEFORE MASTER; PR. PAYMENT INTO COURT.

In a suit against an attorney, for the purpose of having his bills of costs on the plaintiff taxed, and for an injunction against his proceeding at law in the mean time, defendants moved that the costs might be taxed as between attorney and client, but the court said, that the rules of taxation of costs, as between attorney and client, did not apply where they appear in the court as party and party in a cause, and that these costs therefore must be taxed as between party and party. Spelman v. Woodbine, 1 Cox, 49. SOL. & CLIENT.

(b) Costs of Taxation of Costs.

If bill of costs is taxed after solicitor's death, his representative will not be ordered to pay costs of taxation, although more than a sixth is deducted. In re Cole, 2 S. & S. 462. SOL. & CL.

Sums deducted in respect of business done for a third person, at the alleged retainer of the client, but the authority not proved, are always computed as deductions in the question of costs of taxation. Rigby v. Edwards, 5 Mad. 20.

Where solicitor became liable to costs of taxation, but without deducting them, brought an action for taxed costs; on petition the action was staid, and reference made to master to tax costs of taxation, after deducting which, solicitor was ordered to be paid costs. Exp. Bellott v. Lingard, 4 Mad. 379. PR. STAYING PROCS.; PR. PETITION.

Held that a solicitor must pay the costs of the taxation of his bill of costs, reduced by the taxation more than one-sixth of the amount, which reduction arose from the master disallowing extra fees, paid to the commissioners for travelling expences. Exp. Inman, 1 Buck. 129.

Where bill reduced one-sixth part, solicitor pays costs of taxation. Exp. Hatheray, 2 Mad. 329.

Rule of taxation is adopted in bankruptcy, if more than one-sixth is deducted, solicitor pays costs of taxation. Exp. Westall, 3 V. & B. 141. BANKCY.

Solicitor allowed costs of taxation, the reduction of his bill being less than a sixth, charged with costs of proceedings before the master, creating useless expence. Yea v. Yea, 14 Ves. 154. SOL. & CL.

Where the solicitor was guilty of great delay in bringing in his bills, the court will not give him his costs of the taxation, although less than one-sixth part is taken off. Yea v. Yea, 2 Anst. 589. LACHES.

On taxation of costs, the court cannot make the attorney pay the costs of the taxation, unless for improper items in the bill, amounting to a sixth. S. C. Id. 494.

Though not a sixth deducted from bill, circumstances having given sufficient ground of suspicion for necessity of taxation, costs of taxation were refused to solicitor. Webb v. Stone, 1 Anst. 260.

Solicitor's bill reduced to less than one twenty-eighth part, costs of taxation refused him. Ramden v. Hilton, Dick. 322.

(c) Effect of, and of costs untaxed, and of appeal, rehearing, and revivor for.

An order signed and passed cannot be corrected in respect of costs, by a separate petition as to costs only, where the question is, not as to the personal payment of costs, but whether they are payable out of a particular fund, a petition for rehearing may be presented for the purpose of determining that question. Exp. Baines, 1 G. & J. 259.

By original and supplemental bill an agreement is made a rule of court, which determines all matters in difference in the suit, but reserves the question of costs. A petition dismissed, which prayed the direction of the court as to costs; the court enters into the question of costs only as incidental to its decision upon the merits of the cause. Gibson v. Id. Cranley, 6 Mad. 365.

Court will not hear suit for settlement of costs only, even on mutual consent. Roberts v. Roberts, 1 S. & S. 39.

Ne erant does not lie in respect of costs taxed in a chancery suit. Goodman v. Sayers, 5 Mad. 471. NE EXERAT REGNO.

Order discharged, on ground that costs of two previous applications, which had been refused with costs, had not been paid. Killing v. Killing, 6 Mad. 68. PR. ORDER, DISCHARGE.

If costs are not taxed, however, non-payment is no objection. Id. ib. n. (b).

If either party die before taxation of costs, they are lost. Jupp v. Geering, 5 Mad. 375. DEATH; TAXATION.

So, if not before bankruptcy, they cannot be proved under commission. Id. ib. 377. note (m). BANKCY. TAXATION.

The general rule being, that there shall be no revivor for costs alone, yet, where the costs have been taxed previous to the abatement, it seems there is a right to revive merely for the purpose of having them paid; and where the abatement has happened by the death of the party in whose favour the costs were awarded, it is the settled practice of the court that his representative may revive for such purpose. Swetten v. Mayor, &c. of Colchester, 2 Mer. 113. PR. ABATEMENT & REVIVOR.

A cause is not out of court for this purpose, in consequence of the bill being dismissed. Enrolment of the decree not necessary to entitle the representative of a party to revive for costs; revivor for costs decreed out of a particular fund is another exception to the general rule. Id. ib.

Though no appeal is allowed on matters of costs only, they may be considered on an appeal on other grounds. Fitzgibbon v. Scanlan, 1 Dow, 270. APPEAL.

Where, at the hearing of an original and cross cause, the cross bill was dismissed with costs, and an account directed in the original suit, and the plaintiff died before the account was taken, the court held it a decree executory, and therefore that the representative of the plaintiff was entitled to revive for the costs of the cross cause. Kemp v. Mackrell, 3 Atk. 812. 2 Ves. 580. PR. ABATEMENT & REVIVOR.

And where a duty is also decreed, or when the costs are directed out of a particular fund, though nothing in the decree remains to be done, the case is held to be an exception to the rule. Id. ib.

Distinction, where costs are disposed of as a subject of relief; an appeal not open to the objection, upon an appeal for costs only. Taylor v. Popham, 15 Ves. 72. PR. APPEAL.

No revivor for costs alone, unless they are to be paid out of estate. Jenour v. Jenour, 10 Ves. 572. PR. REVIVOR.

Abatement by marriage of feme plaintiff, to bill of discovery after answer; held that defendant cannot have his costs. Dobson v. Juda, 10 Ves. 31. PR. ABATEMENT & REVIVOR; PR. BILL OF DISCOVERY.

Revivor for costs only, on the death of the plaintiff, entitled to them, though before the report, and they were not to come out of a particular fund. Morgan v. Scudamore, 3 Ves. 195. PL. REVIVOR.

After verdict, on issue directed, leases decreed to be delivered up to the plaintiff: after the master had settled the amount of the costs, but before report the plaintiff died: on demurrer to so much of the bill by his devisee, as prayed revivor: the court inclined to hold to the rule, not to revive for costs only: not applicable, where the party to receive them dies; also that the taxation would relate to the time when the amount was settled, so as to take it out of the rule; but the demurrer was overruled, as it did not appear on the bill that the decree had been executed by delivering up the leases. S. C. 2 Ves. J. 313. Id.

Where the party to pay costs dies, and they are not taxed, no revivor for them only, because a personal demand. Id. ib. 315.

After a decree passed, the court will not, on a petition, give the costs of the suit to a defendant, although a mere trustee, and as such entitled to them, if they had been asked for on the hearing. Colman v. Suerell, 2 Cox, 205. LACHES.

Plea to bill of revivor for costs, which had been taxed and ordered to be paid into the bank, overruled. Hall v. Smith, 1 Bro. C. C. 438. S. C. 2 Dick. 649. PL. PLEA; PL. REVIVOR, BILL OF.

There shall not be an appeal or rehearing for costs only. Newton v. Bennet, 1 Bro. C. C. 140. S. C. 2 Dick. 594. PR. APPEAL; PR. REHEARING.

An appeal or rehearing for costs only, allowed under particular circumstances. Cowper v. Scott, 1 Eden, 17. S. C. 1 Bro. C. C. 141. PR. APPEAL.

Where costs are decreed to all parties out of a real estate, though one of them die before taxation, the costs are a lien upon the estate, and the heir at law of the deceased party is entitled, and there being nothing in the decree executory, there is no occasion to revive. Blower v. Morret, 1 Dick. 254. 3 Atk. 772. LIEN.

The court inclines against the rule of not reviving for costs untaxed, and therefore will not enforce it, if the decree remains in any part unexecuted; and if the decree is against an executor, for a sum with costs, out of assets, and the executor pays the sum, but not the costs, and dies, it is held a decree executory, and the plaintiff entitled to revive. Johnson v. Peck, 2 Ves. 465. S. C. Johnson v. Lecker, 3 Atk. 773. PR. ABATEMENT & REVIVOR.

Revivor is allowed for costs taxed. Costs die with the party, unless taxed, and even where taxed in the lifetime of such party, and the person to pay them is in prison, he will be discharged, unless there be a revivor within a reasonable time; this in like manner as in a case of sequestration. White v. Hayward, 2 Ves. 461. S. C. 1 Dick. 173. Id.

Though the strict rule be not to allow revivor merely for costs which have not been taxed, the court leans against enforcing it, if there be any thing in the decree yet remaining to be executed. Johnson v. Peck, 2 Ves. 465. Id.

Defendant's examination insufficient; plaintiff died; suit revived; ordered to tax costs of insufficient examination. Lyne v. Ably, Dick. 143.

Though, generally speaking, costs die with the party if they have not been taxed, several exceptions are allowed to it, and revivor may be for costs alone under particular circumstances, as where a duty is decreed, or where out of a particular fund, though no more to be done. Kemp v. Mackrell, 2 Ves.

PR. ABATEMENT & REVIVOR.

Where a solicitor's bill of costs is taxed, he may take out an attachment for them without previously taking out a subpoena, but he must serve his client with the order for taxing his bill of costs, and with the master's report of such costs. Murphy v. Balderston, Barn. 266. 2 Atk. 114. SOL. & CLI.; PR. ATTACHMENT.

A representative of a person who had obtained an order to tax a bill, can revive it only on an undertaking to pay. S. C. 2 Atk. 114. PR. ABATEMENT & REVIVOR; EXORS. & ADMORS.

Baron and feme bring a bill to redeem a mortgage; defendants plead to the bill, and the plea overruled, and costs given to the plaintiffs, which by the course of the court are 5*l.*; baron dies; the feme by survivorship shall have the costs. Coppin v. —, 2 P. W. 496. HUSB. & WIFE; ABATEMENT & REVIVOR; SURVIVORSHIP.

Suit may be revived for costs taxed. Edgill v. Brown, Dick. 62.

No revivor for costs only, though taxed, unless decree is enrolled. Glenham v. Stutwell, Dick. 14. But see 2 Mer. 113.

(d) Where party shall pay taxed costs, or only the ordinary costs.

On allowance of plea or demurrer plaintiff shall pay defendant taxed costs of it; and if it be to whole bill, then the further taxed costs of the suit. 31 Gen. Order, 3d April, 1828.

Ordered, that if a party gives notice of motion, and does not move accordingly, he shall, when no affidavit is filed, pay to the other side 40*s.* costs upon the production of the notice of motion. But where an affidavit is filed by either party, the party giving such notice of motion, and not moving, shall pay to the other side costs to be taxed by the master, unless the court itself shall direct, upon production of the notice of motion, what sum shall be paid for costs. Gen. Order, 5th August, 1818. S. C. 1 Swan. 128. 1 Wils. 309.

In regard to dismissing bill, where the cause is set down on bill and answer only, or where it is so set down after withdrawing a replication, it shall be discretionary in the court for the future, to dismiss with 40*s.* costs, or costs to be taxed, or with no costs. Gen. Ord. April 27, 1748. 2 Atk. 288. Beame's Ord. 450.

Taxed costs allowed on overruling frivolous exceptions to an answer to a bill for discovery, instead of 40*s.* costs, the ordinary costs. Jones v. Steele, 1 McClel. & Y. 274. PR. EXCEPTIONS.

Where bill had been amended three times, and the two last were by the negligence or error of plaintiff, the defendant was allowed extra costs for those latter amendments. Watts v. Manning, 1 S. & S. 421. PR. BILL, AMENDMENT; LACHES.

Bill demurred to allowed to be dismissed on paying 5*l.* costs of demurrer. Edwards v. Edwards, 6 Mad. 255. PR. DISMISSAL OF BILL; PR. DEMURRER.

Taxed costs are given in exchange on allowing a demurrer to the whole bill. Jones v. Jones, 7 Price, 663. PR. DEMURRER.

Form of order when full costs are given on allowance of demurrer under Lord Rosslyn's Order, 6 Feb. 1792. (Beame's Orders, 456). Pilkington v. Wignall, 2 Mad. 348. PR. ORDER, FORM OF; REG., GENERAL, C. OF.

Party liable to full costs beyond the 5*l.*, on allowance, or overruling a plea or demurrer at the discretion of the court. Order of Court, 6 Feb. 1794. 4 Bro. C. C. 545. Beame's Ord. 456.

Full costs may be given under the above order, though application not made for three weeks after allowance of demurrer. Wood v. Dignoley, 1 Mad. 32. DEMURRER; REG., GENERAL, C. OF.

Order to withdraw replication on payment of 20*s.*

costs of course; the General Order, 27 April, 1748, giving a discretion to exceed 40s. costs in case of dismissal on bill and answer. Cowdell v. Tatlock, 3 V. & B. 19. PR. WITHDRAWING REPLICATION; REG. GEN., C. OF.

Full costs on a demurrer allowed to a third bill for the same cause, under the General Order, 1794, upon a subsequent application. Griffith v. Wood, 1 V. & B. 307. PR. DEMURRER; REG. GEN., C. OF.

On demurrer to the whole bill being allowed, the bill shall be dismissed, and costs shall be taxed as upon a dismissal, except the costs on the demurrer, which shall be allowed as heretofore. General Rule, 1804, Feb. 13. 1 Scho. & L. 364. PR. BILL, DISMISSAL; PR. DEMURRER.

Demurrer set down for argument being submitted to, and the bill amended, 5l. costs were allowed. Anon. 9 Ves. 221.

Demurrer allowed in the exchequer upon argument with 30s. costs. In another suit in chancery, between the same parties, and to the same effect, it was ordered on motion, that the defendant should have time to answer till payment of those costs, but without prejudice to an application to dismiss the bill. Holbrooke v. Cracroft, 5 Ves. 706. PR. TIME TO ANSWER.

Where a cause is heard on bill and answer 40s. costs on dismissing the bill unless a special case. Bayly v. Corp. of Leominster, 1 Ves. J. 474. 3 Bro. C. C. 529. PR. DISMISSAL OF BILL.

The plaintiff amends several times, yet he shall not pay taxed costs, but only 40s., unless in a case of particular oppression. El. Masserene v. Lyndon, 2 Bro. C. C. 291. PR. AMENDMENT.

Plaintiff amended his bill three times on payment of 20s. costs, and obtained a fourth order for that purpose. The amendments being frivolous, the court gave the defendant taxed costs of the former amendments. Rennet v. Green, 1 Cox. 253. PR. BILL, AMENDMENT.

Notwithstanding the common course of the court is to give 40s. costs upon dismissal of a suit heard on bill and answer; yet, if the party be vexatious, full cost may be given. Mansel v. Boules, 1 Bro. C. C. 403. S. C. 2 Dick. 646. PR. DISMISSAL OF BILL.

Bill amended after plea set down on payment of 20s. costs, and 5l. for plea. Vernon v. Cue, 1 Dick. 358.

Where the court did not think the answer full enough, and directed an issue upon the merits, this is not hearing a cause upon bill and answer only, but a subsequent proceeding, and therefore out of the rule of dismissal with 40s. costs. Newson v. Grey, 2 Atk. 286.

Where a cause is referred to a master to take an account, the court looks on the reference as a subsequent proceeding beyond the bill and answer, and will dismiss the bill with costs to be taxed. Ib.

Where principal and interest is not paid on the day fixed by the master, on the defendants setting down the cause again, the bill will be dismissed with costs to be taxed. Ib.

Where a plaintiff, merely to keep his cause alive, replies, and afterwards withdraws his replication, and sets it down on bill and answer only, that it may be dismissed with 40s. costs; this is evading the justice of the court; for otherwise he must have paid the full costs. Ib.

If answer reported sufficient, and, on exceptions, held insufficient, defendant is not to pay 40s. costs for insufficient answer. Knightly v. Deacon, 1 Dick. 82.

After a third order of amendment, a defendant will be allowed costs to be taxed. Anon. 2 Atk. 123. PR. AMENDMENT.

On payment of 20s. costs, bill may be amended after answer put in; but Ld. Ch. said he would see how to make more adequate compensation to defendant in future. Deggs v. Colebrooke, 1 Atk. 396. PR. BILL, AMENDMENT.

Bill not to be dismissed on 20s. costs, but defendant to be paid the costs which he swears he is out of purse. General Ord. 1685, 1 Vern. 334. PR. DISMISSAL OF BILL.

(e) Costs in Cause, or Extra Costs.

Costs occasioned to defendant by amendment of plaintiff's bill, are part of defendant's costs in the cause. 29th Gen. Order, 3rd April, 1829.

Costs occasioned plaintiff by insufficiency of defendant's answer, part of plaintiff's costs in the cause. 28th Gen. Order, 3rd April, 1828.

Plaintiff disallowed costs of amending bill: the costs occasioned to defendant by such amendment, shall be deducted from costs he pays. 30th Gen. Order, 3rd April, 1828.

In suit to redeem, costs of exceptions allowed to report of impertinence in an examination put in by defendant, are to be costs in the cause: plaintiff is entitled immediately to costs occasioned by false affidavit; that one of plaintiffs was dead. Bally v. Williams, 1 McClell. & Y. 334.

Party making successful motion is entitled to his costs, as costs in the cause; but the party opposing it, is not entitled to his costs, as costs in the cause. Per V. Ch. 1 S. & S. 357. PR. MOTION.

Party making unsuccessful motion not entitled to costs, as costs in the cause; but party opposing it, is entitled to his costs, as costs in the cause. Id. ib.

Where motion made by one party, and not opposed by another, costs of both parties are costs in cause. Id. ib.

As contrary to the principle of the court, an action on a post obit was restrained, and subsequent motion to set aside the injunction was refused with costs; such case being against the general rule, that costs of motion for injunction, or to dissolve an injunction, refused, are costs in the cause. Marsack v. Reeves, 6 Mad. 108. PR. INJUNCTION TO STAY PROCEEDINGS AT LAW.

Where defendant in title cause examines many witnesses, whose testimony is inadmissible to any extent, the court will give the plaintiff his costs of the rejected depositions, independently of the result of the cause. Petch v. Dalton, 6 Price, 232. PR. EVID. DEPOSITIONS OF WITNESSES.

A writ of execution of an order for payment of money was issued, and afterwards an attachment, on which defendant was taken, and he paid the money: motion afterwards made for reference to master, to tax subsequent costs, and that defendant might be ordered to pay such costs, was refused. Collins v. Oump, 3 Mad. 390.

Plaintiff having put in an examination reported insufficient by master, defendant held entitled to reference to tax costs in respect of it. Hubbard v. Hewlett, 2 Mad. 469. PR. EXAMINATION.

Answer being referred for impertinence, and reported not impertinent, order, upon motion, to refer it to the master to tax the defendant's costs. Tyrril v. Radtger, 1 Mer. 132. PR. REFERENCE FOR IMPERTINENCE.

Separate report under circumstances allowed as to costs alone, without waiting for general report in the cause. Edes v. Ross, 2 Mad. 448. PR. SEPARATE REPORT.

Where bill is reported impertinent, the defendant is entitled to a reference to tax costs instantly after report made. Muscott v. Hulhed, 4 Bro. C. C. 222. PR. IMPERTINENCE.

Plaintiff to pay 7l. extra for length of amendments. Frels v. Culpepper, 1 Dick. 284.

Where the master reports an answer insufficient, and upon exceptions, it is held to be sufficient, the party succeeding in the application is not entitled to costs, but they shall abide the event of the cause. Arion 3 Ark. 335.

But the court on special motion may give costs, though the master reports in favour of the other party. Id. ib.

(f) Allowances beyond taxed costs, and as between attorney and client, or party and party.

Costs as between solicitor and client, allowed to the Archbishop and Bishop when made parties to a suit, respecting the validity of the election of a vicar. In what case trustees are allowed costs only, as between party and party. Idenbrough v. Arch. of Canterbury, 2 Russ. 93.

(a) Affidavit after notice to appear.

Ordered, that if a party gives notice of motion and does not revive accordingly, he shall, when no affidavit is filed, pay to the other side 40s. costs, upon production of the notice of motion. But when an affidavit is filed by either party, the party giving such notice of motion and not moving shall pay to the other side costs to be taxed by the master, unless the court itself shall direct upon production of the notice of motion what sum shall be paid for costs. Gen. Order, 5th August, 1818. S. O. 1 Swan. 128. 1 Wils. 309.

Where proceeding fails from non-attendance, master may certify the costs to be paid by the party in default, and court, on motion or petition, will order payment. 55th Gen. Order, 3rd April, 1828. PR. NON-ATTENDANCE BEFORE MASTER.

Petitioner not appearing respondent is entitled to costs on producing his own affidavit of having been served. Exp. Garth, 2 G. & J. 392.

Where costs of day are ordered, service of the order is not necessary but to found a preliminary objection to hearing of petition; an affidavit of demand is necessary. Exp. Leech, id. 78.

A party is not subjected to costs by the abandonment of motion after one single notice of motion. Hurd v. Parlington, 1 M'Clel. & Y. 40. PR. IN EXCH.; MOTION, ABANDONMENT OF, AFTER NOTICE OF.

Where court is moved for payment of costs under general order, 5th August, 1818, (3 Mad. 318. 1 Swan. 328.) on account of a notice of motion which has been abandoned, such notice of motion must be mentioned to the court, and must also be produced to registrar before he draws up order. Whitely v. Haigh, 3 Mad. 437. GEN. ORD. C. OF; PR. MOTION ABANDONMENT; PR. NOTICE OF MOTION.

Before this order, a party was at liberty to give and abandon three notices of motion without paying costs. Shelly v. Shelly, 8 Ves. 316. Anderson v. Palmer, 14 Ves. 151. Witcombe v. Minchin, 1 Wils. 1.

And a renewed motion cannot be made until the costs occasioned by the former notice of motion are paid. Bellchambers v. Giant, 3 Mad. 550. See also Tarent v. Trewitt, Bunb. 86.

Objection to a motion, upon the right to costs of previous notices abandoned, cannot be made until the fourth. Anderson v. Palmer, 14 Ves. 151. PR. NOTICE OF MOTION, ABANDONMENT OF.

A motion had been made, the effect of which was allowed, but the party moving was ordered to pay costs for a deficiency of notice. It was then moved and ordered, that to avoid the expence of taxing upon a sum that must be trifling, a sum certain should be ordered for costs. Wilding v. Wilding, 4 Bro. C. C. 100.

If three notices of motion are given, the party cannot move on a fourth without paying the costs of the three first. Tarent v. Trewitt, Bunb. 86.

Suit dismissed with costs, plaintiff not appearing at hearing. Fincham v. Backwood, Cury, 45.

Plaintiff showed defendant subpoena, but delivered no note of day of appearance; defendant appeared but finds no bill, he shall have good costs and attachment against plaintiff. Brightman v. Portrell, id. 59.

(b) Account.

In a suit for partition and an account, the defendant improperly disputing the plaintiff's title, ordered to pay so much of the costs as related to the account and to the proof of the plaintiff's title. Hill v. Pullbrook, 1 Jac. 574. PARTITION.

Plaintiff always pay costs where an account turns against him, or where he prevails, in nothing but what he might have insisted on at law. Lyre v. Parnel, 6 Vin. 267, pl. 23.

It is the constant course of the court where mutual account is decreed, to reserve costs till after the report, that the court may have it in their power to punish the wrong-doer. Rider v. Bailey, 6 Vin. 332, pl. 32.

A decree for costs necessarily follows a decree for payment of principal and interest. E. I. Comp. v. Ekins, 6 Vin. Ab. 365, pl. 13. 2 Bro. P. C. 382.

Costs generally follow the event of an account, but where the account is intricate or doubtful, there shall be no costs. Pitt v. Page, 1 Bro. P. C. 1. S. C. 6 Vin. Ab. 332, pl. 32. ACCOUNT.

(c) Amendment.

If plaintiff shall not amend his bill within four days after order obtained and demurrer put in, grounded on an error in the bill, and pay the costs, the demurrer shall be determined in open court. Ord. Exch. Kirby's Ed. 8. See 1 Fowl. 126.

Plaintiff filing bill, and after answer amending bill, so as to make case quite reverse. Ordered that he pay costs of original bill, and parts of answer set forth by reason of that bill, and costs of the motion as a vexatious proceeding. Mavour v. Fry, 2 S. & S. 113. PR. VEXATION.

If plaintiff obtain an order to amend without costs amending the defendant's office-copy, and the amendments require a new engrossment, he may amend without a new order paying the 20s. costs. Carv. Champneys, 6 Mad. 314.

Plaintiff not entitled upon paying the common costs of amendment, to change entirely the nature of his bill, as by converting a prayer for an account against a bailiff into a bill to foreclose a mortgage, after an issue against the plaintiff finding him a mortgagee. Smith v. Smith, Coop. 141. Et vide (n.) to Mazarredo v. Maitland, 3 Mad. 72.

Plaintiff amended three times on payment of 20s. costs, and then obtained a fourth order, which defendant moved to discharge, and that the master might tax the costs of the former amendments. Motion granted, on the amendments appearing to be frivolous and vexatious, and in fact repetitions of what was in the former bill. Rennet v. Green, 1 Cox, 253.

But in Masarene v. London, 2 Bro. C. C. 291, Ld. Chancellor refused a similar application, saying, that the mere statement of the number of sheets in the several amended bills was not sufficient to break through the general rule, but in order to do this, there must be a case of particular oppression.

Order for amendment without costs requiring no further answer; the amendment was by inserting prayer for injunction: Held, the defendant might answer further gratis. Sarory v. Dyer, Amb. 70. PR. FURTHER ANSWER.

Plaintiff, after amending four times, applied again and obtained the common order to amend on payment of 20s. costs. The amendments being long, defendant was put to considerable expence in taking a copy, and therefore applied to have the order discharged. This the court refused to do, but directed plaintiff to pay defendant 7l. costs beyond the 20s. Froke v. Culpepper, 1 Dick. 284. But where, in a similar case, defendant had consented to the amendments on terms, the court refused to discharge the fourth order, or to allow full costs. Brindal v. Thompson, Barn. 333, 2 Ark. 123. S. C.

The cause went off at the hearing for want of parties: under the usual order for leave to amend by adding parties, plaintiff struck out several charges which had been examined to, and defendant accepted the costs. On a second hearing, the like objection was made, and the like order obtained. Plaintiff amended again by striking out some farther charges, and adding new matters, and praying relief against defendants generally. On motion to discharge the amendment as irregular, plaintiff insisted there was no difference between plaintiff's striking out before the hearing and waiving at the hearing, such parts as he should be advised. Per J. d. Chancellor, The difference is obvious; by preventing the matter struck out from coming before the court, he prevents the court from ordering payment of costs of such part as is waived, and thereby from doing that justice to defendant which it otherwise would. As to the first amendment, defendant has stopped himself from complaining of it by accepting the costs. As to the second, it is irregular, and as the irregularity appears, the court will judge of it without sending to a master. Plaintiff to pay the costs. Bullock v. Perkins, Dick. 110.

J. d. Chancellor said, he would not in any case oblige a plaintiff to pay more than 20s. costs to a defendant after answer put in, on the amendment of the bill, but he would consider how in future to make a defendant a more adequate compensation after a long answer, and other necessary proceedings on his part. Deggs v. Colebrook, 1 Atk. 396.

Plaintiff amended under the common order on payment of 20s. costs. The amendments being long, he was ordered to pay 3l. additional costs. Rouse v. Stuart, Dick. 58.

No proceedings on an amended bill till the costs of the former proceeding are discharged. Cyge v. Lister, 4 Vin. Ab. 444, pl. 9.

(d) Appeal.

Parties liable to full costs, beyond the deposit on rehearings and appeals at the discretion of the court. Order of Court, 30th April, 1700. 4 Bro. C. C. 545, revived by Ord. 7th Feb. 1794. Beames' Ord. 314. 458.

The part of the order as to paying further costs to be taxed, is said, by Mr. Beames, to have been acted on in two instances only, which he mentions. This liability to costs beyond the deposit, applies to the case of exceptions disallowed, as well as to that of the re-hearing of exceptions. Purell v. Macnamara, 12 Ves. 166. It seems to be the modern practice, that upon a re-hearing, an undertaking should be entered into to pay such costs subsequent to the decree as the court shall think proper. Vide Fowles v. Young, 9 Ves. 173. Beames' Ord. Ch. 461. (n. 6.)

All applications for a re-hearing to be made within six months after the decree pronounced; the party applying for it to deposit 10l. within ten days after the order; in default, the order for the re-hearing to stand discharged without any motion. Ord. Exch. 13th Nov. 1731. 2 Fowl. Ex. Pr. 235.

By an Ord. Ch. Irel. 14th Nov. 1698, on a petition for re-hearing, 5l. deposit was to be paid within six days, or in term time within three days; but by a subsequent Order (7th July, 1752), it was ordered there should be no deposit, but the order on the petition to be, that the petitioner should be at liberty to re-hear, on paying such costs as should be adjudged at the re-hearing.

A party having appealed against one part of decree in a suit, where the title is not in issue, thereby virtually submits to the rest of it, and cannot afterwards present a new appeal against other parts of same decree. When such appeal is presented, party served with it ought not to answer, but to present a counter petition to have it dismissed. If he treats it as an effective appeal by answering and suffering it to proceed before he presents a counter petition, he will not have costs. Norbury v. Meade, 3 Bligh, 261.

Where considerable delay has occurred in prosecution of suit, costs are not given, though decree is reversed. McLough v. Steran, 3 Bligh, 101. LACHES.

An appeal does not form a ground to stay process of costs previously commenced, viz. by subpoena; action where the appeal is before any step taken.

Roberts v. Totty, 19 Ves. 446. P. APPEAL; P. STAYING PROCEEDINGS.

Distinction between costs of an appeal before the House of Lords, and of soliciting a bill, which any one may do. Exp. Wheeler, 3 V. & B. 22. PROCEEDINGS IN HOUSE OF LORDS.

A suit was suffered to sleep for more than twenty years, without any step by either party. This, though no bar to the relief, is a good reason for not giving costs where they would have otherwise followed the judgment. Cane v. Allen, 2 Dow. 289. 299.

On application for a rehearing, an order is made that petitioner should be at liberty to rehear the cause on payment, within a week after service of a taxed bill of costs, of all costs incurred since the decree. On appeal from this order it was declared, that there was no sufficient ground for imposing these terms; but that it would have been sufficient for the court to require the appellant to give security for, or submit to pay, the costs in case the decree should be materially varied at the rehearing. Houghton v. West, 2 Bro. P. C. 91. 98.

The cause was set down ad requisitionem defend.: plaintiff appeared, and prayed to adjourn, consenting to appear gratis. On the cause coming on again, plaintiff made default, and the bill was dismissed. Plaintiff then obtained an order to rehear, and on motion to discharge the order, he was ordered to pay defendant's costs, and to consent to pay such further costs as should be awarded against him on the rehearing, otherwise the order to be discharged. Terran v. Waite, Dick. 732.

If a decree nisi be made absolute on default, and there is a petition for a rehearing, and the person in possession of the decree does not attend at the rehearing, the bill will be dismissed with costs as to the petition. Wilson v. Dalbs, Sel. Ca. Ch. 50.

A party bringing a frivolous appeal, ordered to pay 50l. costs, and on disobeying this order, she was ordered into the custody of the gentleman usher of the black rod until payment. Blake v. Blake, 7 Bro. P. C. 241.

Rehearing granted on the petition of plaintiff, on the penalty of treble costs, if plaintiff be not relieved. Bowen v. Edwards, 1 Rep. Ch. 222.

(e) Attorney-general and crown.

Where, in a charity information, the relators are allowed their costs of proceedings, which the attorney general has attended separately by his own solicitor, without an order from the court for so doing, the attorney general will not be allowed his separate costs. Att. Gen. v. Dove, 1 Turn. & R. 328. CHARITY INFORMATION; ATT. GEN.

Where charity information is filed, without relator, under 59 G. 3. c. 91. court has jurisdiction to order defendant to pay costs to attorney general. Att. Gen. v. Ashburnham, 1 S. & S. 394. CHARITY; ATT. GEN.; RELATOR.

No such general principle in equity that the crown cannot receive costs. Id. 397. CROWN.

(f) Bankrupt and insolvent.

Obligor, though insolvent, and so stated in bill, may yet be made party defendant, and shall pay his own costs. Haywood v. Ovey, 6 Mad. 113. P. L. PARTY; OBLIGOR & OBLIGEE; INSOLVENCY.

A, the maker, B, the indorser, and C, the indorsee of promissory note, with interest: note when due is dishonoured. A, agrees with C, to sell C goods, and take back note in part payment: part of goods given to C, and note given to A, and destroyed; A becomes bankrupt, and sale to C vacated. On bill for account by C, against B and A, account directed with costs.

against B, but dismissed as against A, without costs, C undertaking to prove note against A's estate for B's benefit. Gregory v. Bessell, 6 Mad. 186. BANKRY. PROOF; PROMISSORY NOTE; ACCOUNT.

Where bankrupt's bill is dismissed for want of prosecution, he must be made to pay costs. Wheeler v. Malins, 4 Mad. 128. BANKRY.; LIAB. OF; PR. BILL, DISMISSAL OF.

Before the bankruptcy, the bankrupt commenced an action which was afterwards prosecuted by his assignees, and failed; the bankrupt having obtained his certificate, was taken in execution for the costs. Petition for payment of these costs out of the estate, refused, on the ground that the bankrupt had, by his wilful misrepresentations, induced the assignees to pursue the action. Exp. Seaman, 1 Glyn & Jam. 260.

Assignees brought before the court by supplemental bill may be made liable to the costs of the whole of the suit, where they improperly resist plaintiff's demand; but the V. Ch. refused to give costs against the assignees in this case, because plaintiff had made no application to them on the subject of the suit, before the filing of the supplemental bill. Whitcomb v. Minchin, 5 Mad. 91.

It is not of course to refer to the master a bill of costs up to the choice of assignees, already taxed by the commissioners, but particular objections must be stated. If the solicitor refuses to give a copy of his bill, a reference will be made. Exp. Sutton, 4 Mad. 395.

Where a bankrupt obtains leave to surrender after the time for surrendering is expired, he must pay the costs of the surrender. Exp. Carter, id. 391.

An order was made in bankruptcy referring a solicitor's bill to be taxed, and reserving the question as to the costs of the taxation. The costs were taxed, and one-sixth taken off, and the solicitor brought an action for the amount, without deducting the costs of taxation. On petition, the action was stayed, a reference directed to tax the costs of the taxation, and that the amount, after deducting the costs of taxation, be paid to the solicitor. Exp. Bellott, id. 379.

Where a bankrupt presented an unnecessary petition, his solicitor was ordered to pay 40s. costs. Exp. Parker, Buck, 313.

Where a petition to stay a certificate fails, it is not of course that the petitioner should be ordered to pay the costs. Exp. Stevens, Buck, 389. 4 Mad. 256. Vide Exp. Enderby, 5 Mad. 76. Exp. Bryant, 1 G. & J. 206.

It is a contempt of the great seal for a petitioning creditor to strike a docket at the instance of a solicitor, who undertakes to prove the act of bankruptcy, and to guarantee him against any expenses he may be put to by issuing the commission, and therefore the court will not, on the petition of such creditor, tax the solicitor's bill. Exp. Wilson, Buck, 306.

Where an issue was directed to try the validity of a commission, in which the assignees were plaintiffs, and the bankrupt defendant, and the latter succeeded, the former were made to pay the costs of the trial; but not of the petition to supersede the commission, because it was their duty to appear and resist it. Exp. Edwards, id. 232.

If a bankrupt brings an action to supersede his commission, and fails, he pays costs, like any other plaintiff; but if he comes into equity for the same purpose, he escapes the payment of costs. Exp. Bilhild, id. 220.

The general rule in bankruptcy is, that you cannot have costs, unless the petition prays them. Exp. Atkinson, id. 215.

If a creditor be brought before the court to have his debt expunged, and no good grounds are shown why it should be done, as a general rule he is entitled to his costs. But where the assignees had a fair cause for bringing him before the court, and the affidavit he made on his proof was calculated to mislead, the court refused him his costs. Exp. Hustler, id. 171. 177.

Though an attorney, by signing his name in conformity with the general order, is not to be considered as guaranteeing the success of a petition in bankruptcy, yet where it appears to have arisen out of his interest views, he will be made to pay the costs of it. Exp. Cuthbert, 1 Mad. 78.

Petition by a commissioner, a barrister, to have paid his fees and disbursements under five several commissions in which he had acted as commissioner: held, that the solicitor who undertook to act under the commission, was bound to pay the commissioners their fees, for they have a right to the payment of their fees at each meeting, and the hand for paying them must of necessity be the solicitor's, for the petitioning creditor or assignees are not necessarily present. Exp. Griffith, id. 56.

The party to whom costs were awarded in a bankruptcy matter brought an action on a written undertaking to pay them, recovered judgment, and levied for the money; Ld. Redesdale said, he would never suffer costs awarded by this court to become the subject of an action, particularly costs awarded in bankruptcy, which are to come out of a fund over which he would lose all control if the order made by him in the bankruptcy were to be proceeded in elsewhere. The party was ordered to acknowledge satisfaction on the judgments, to refund the money, and to pay the costs of the defendants at law, with the costs of this application. In re Dillon, 2 Sch. & L. 110.

Costs personally against an uncertificated bankrupt, in a case of fraud and misconduct. Locke v. Bromley, 3 Ves. J. 40. FRAUD; BANKRUPT.

After answer put in, plaintiff became bankrupt, and his assignees not reviving the suit, defendant obtained the common order to dismiss, taxed costs, and procured the master's report. Plaintiff desired time, and promised to pay the costs; but afterwards applied to discharge the order for dismissal, as irregularly obtained. Clarke, M. R. seemed to think it irregular, but held, that by asking for time, and promising to pay, he had waived the irregularity. Hall v. Chapman, 1 Dick. 348.

Plaintiff insolvent during cause, costs decreed against him; not relieved against those costs incurred before insolvency. Smith v. Fry, Dick. 288.

Where a solicitor carries on suits, and was employed by the assignees, without the authority of the majority in value of the creditors, the estate of the bankrupt is not liable to his bill for such suits. Exp. Hitchlugh, 1 Atk. 210.

Some months after bill filed, plaintiff became bankrupt, and his assignees not answering, defendant obtained the common order to dismiss the bill with costs. Petition by plaintiff, the bankrupt, to be relieved against the costs, dismissed. Exp. Berry, 1 Dick. 81. In 2 Dick. 740, it is stated, that the bankrupt was also in contempt for non-payment of money ordered to be, and a quære added, whether it was not for this reason that the costs were considered by Ld. Hardwicke as part of the contemnor's punishment?

Bankrupt fraudulently debited himself with less than he sold some diamonds for, which were consigned to him. He would have been liable to costs; ergo, his assignees shall pay them. Child v. Pitt, Sel. Ch. Ca. 16.

(g) Bank of England.

Where a testator possessed of stock in the government fund, bequeaths it specifically, the bank cannot refuse to permit the executor to transfer it, he not having assented to the legacy. The bank having, under these circumstances, refused to permit the executor to transfer a legacy, decree was made against them with costs. Franklin v. Bank of England, 1 Russ. 575. BANK OF ENGLAND; TRANSFER OF STOCK.

The costs of the bank, paid out of the capital of a legacy, for the security of which they were made parties. Hammond v. Neame, 1 Swan. 38. BANK OF ENGLAND; PL. PARTIES.

If bank of England are unnecessarily made parties to suit, within 39 & 40 G. 3. c. 36. bill will be dismissed as against them, with costs to be personally paid by plaintiffs. Edridge v. Edridge, 3 Mad. 386. BANK OF ENGLAND.

Specific bequest of stock to the executrix for life, and after her death to her daughter absolutely at twenty-one. The bank resisting a transfer according to an agreement to relinquish the life interest without the direction of the court, are entitled to costs. Austin v. Bank of England, 8 Ves. 522. TRANSFER; BANK OF ENGLAND.

Bequest of stock to executor for life, remainder to M W, the executor, having brought M W's reversionary interest, and the bank refusing to allow a transfer, the court ordered a transfer to be made accordingly, but nevertheless gave the bank their costs. Pearson v. Bank of England, 2 Bro. C. C. 529. S. C. 2 Cox, 175. But see note there. BANK OF ENGLAND; TRANSFER OF STOCK.

The bank being made parties to discover what sum the executrix had transferred into her own name, need not be brought on to a hearing; the plaintiffs therefore ordered to pay their costs. Williams v. Williams, 2 Bro. C. C. 87. BANK OF ENGLAND.

Where the answer of the bank is not replied to, and the bill is dismissed as to other defendants, the bank are to have only 40s. costs. Craicu v. Smith, 2 Fowl. Ex. Pr. 351. Pate v. Quince, id. 352.

(h) Bill, dismissal of.

Upon the plaintiff dismissing his own bill, or defendant dismissing the same for want of prosecution, the plaintiff shall pay to the defendant full costs to be taxed; and no copy of any bill to go with the dedimus, or commission for taking the defendant's answer. 4 Ann. c. 16. s. 23. PR. BILL, DISMISSAL.

A bill being filed by a shareholder in a joint stock company against the directors and other shareholders, in order to have the partnership dissolved, and the proper accounts taken; fourteen of the directors, who appeared by the solicitor of the company, having filed fourteen separate answers with long schedules to each, all of which answers and schedules were nearly verbatim the same: Held that, in that stage of the cause no inquiry could be directed into the necessity or expediency of filing those separate answers with a view to the defence of the suit. The plaintiff in such a suit, notwithstanding the adoption of such a mode of defence, will not be permitted to dismiss his bill without costs on his application, nor will any reference be directed to the master with a view to modify the costs which the plaintiff shall pay. Van Sandau v. Moore, 1 Russ. 441. PR. INQUIRY; PR. ANSWER.

Plaintiff failing on showing special cause against an order obtained for dismissing the bill for want of prosecution, must, if he procure the bill to be retained on undertaking to speed, pay costs of motion to dismiss, as one of the terms of retaining the bill. The special case shown being that some of defendants are in contempt, and that plaintiffs were proceeding to attach them, must be supported by affidavit. Atkinson v. Hutton, 13 Price, 6. PR. BILL, CAUSE AGAINST, DISMISSAL OF.

Where defendant in equity is plaintiff at law, and on issue directed by equity as to tithes, obtained three successive verdicts, which were successively set aside in equity, and, after the last, reformed his issue, so that the plaintiff in equity found it necessary to dismiss his bill. The court ordered each party to pay his own costs at law and equity. Williamson v. Thompson, 11 Price, 745.

Where defendants at law file bill for discovery and relief by cancellation of deeds, and bill is dismissed with costs; they having good defence at law, and they succeed at law, and afterwards petition for a re-hearing on account of cost, on grounds that they were substantially entitled to such cancellation of deeds. The order was made, but without costs. Duncan v. Worrall, 10 Price, 31. PR. RE-HEARING; DELIVERY UP OF DEEDS TO BE CANCELLED.

Where by mistake in the registrar in the name of the cause, the order to dismiss was drawn up by defendants after plaintiff had undertaken to speed the cause, the plaintiff must indemnify defendant against the costs of the order. Hibbertson v. Cooke, 11 Mad. 248. PR. OFFICERS OF COURT, MISTAKE BY; PR. ORDER TO DISMISS.

Replication filed after the notice of, but before making the motion to dismiss, motion not sustainable; defendant entitled to costs. Spurrer v. Bennett, 4 Mad. 39. PR. MOTION TO DISMISS; PR. NOTICE; PR. REPLICATION.

On decree for dismissal of bill, the decree was prefaced with a direction for the payment of some motions prior in the cause. Wild v. Hobson, 4 Mad. 49.

Bill by purchaser, for specific performance, ordered to be dismissed for defect of title, a necessary party not chusing to concur in conveying. Order to dismiss without costs, it being against the principles of the court to order the defendant to pay the plaintiff his costs on such dismissal. Lewis v. Loxham, 3 Mer. 429. See the notes there. SPECIFIC PERF.; PL. PARTY.

Order to dismiss the bill for want of prosecution cannot be had if a proceeding had been taken before the motion, but if the order has been obtained irregularly by the misrepresentation of the plaintiff, he shall pay the costs of discharging it. Anon. 14 Ves. 492. PR. DISMISSAL FOR WANT OF PROSECUTION.

Plaintiff can in no case dismiss his bill without costs; with costs it is of course; but after motion to dismiss without costs, refused; consent is necessary. Dixon v. Parks, 1 Ves. J. 402. PR. MOTION TO DISMISS.

Defendant examined as a witness, bill as to him dismissed with costs. Weymouth v. Boyer, 1 Ves. J. 417. PARTY DEFENDANT, WITNESS.

Where a master's report is against the title, a vendor's bill may now be dismissed with costs upon motion. Bennet Coll. v. Carey, 3 Bro. C. C. 390. VENDOR & PURCH.; TITLE; PR. DISMISSAL OF BILL.

Order made on the motion of the plaintiff to dismiss his bill without costs, the defendant having, by his own act, rendered the suit useless. Knox v. Brown, 1 Cox, 359. PR. DISMISSAL OF BILL.

A co-plaintiff may dismiss his bill as against himself, with costs, without the consent of the other plaintiffs. It is a motion of course. Bathew v. Needham, Wy. Pr. Reg. 179, recognised and followed in Langdale v. Langdale, 13 Ves. 168.

Plaintiff cannot move to dismiss his bill without costs, on the ground that defendant had become bankrupt, so that all hopes of obtaining the end of the bill were defeated; for bankruptcy does not abate the suit. Rutherford v. Miller, 2 Anstr. 469. Sellas v. Dawson, cited id. n., (reported 2 Dick. 738.) Davidson v. Butler, id. n.; Co. B. L. 575. S. C. Monteith v. Taylor, 9 Ves. 615. Rhode v. Spear, 4 Mad. 51. S. P. And in Lingard v. Wegg, 3 Bro. C. C.

435, an order to dismiss was set aside, plaintiff having become bankrupt: but there was also an affidavit that the motion to dismiss had been made without notice. But on the bankruptcy of a sole plaintiff, defendant may dismiss for want of prosecution, with costs. Butler v. Davidson, 2 Fowl. 32. But where plaintiff in such case has obtained his certificate, the court, on producing it, will dismiss the bill, without costs. Tait v. Carwick, 2 Fowl. 33.

In Bayly v. Leominster, 1 Ves. J. 476. 3 Bro. C. C. 529, the Ld. Ch. said, that Ld. Hardwicke's order did not alter the practice generally as to the costs on bill and answer, but gave a direction to vary it, if a special case were made; and in the present case, on a cause heard on bill and answer, the bill being dismissed with costs generally, a motion was granted to vary the decree, by reducing the costs to 40s.

Plaintiff in a pauper cause cannot move to dismiss but on payment of costs. Pearson v. Belsher, 3 Bro. C. C. 87.

By the answer it appeared, that though, if the suit proceeded, the plaintiff would certainly obtain in equity the relief he sought, yet that there was a more summary way of obtaining it at law. Plaintiff moved to dismiss his bill with costs, but though the motion was not opposed, the court said it could not be granted without the express consent of the other parties. Anon. 1 Ves. J. 140. And in Dixon v. Parks, 1 Ves. J. 402, where some bonds, which were the object of the suit had been found, so that plaintiff had his remedy at law, a similar motion was made, with the same result; but the bill was dismissed with costs by consent, on paying the costs of the motion.

Under the late Irish act, (25 G. 3. c. 51.) the costs on dismissing bills are to be taxed, as if the bill were dismissed at the hearing with full costs, the taxation being not upon the rule of costs between party and party, but upon the rule where full costs are ordered. Wynne v. Byrne, O'Keeffe's Ord. 77.

A motion by plaintiff to dismiss his own bill without costs cannot be granted without the express consent of defendants in court. Fidelle v. Evans, 1 Cox, 23. Vide Anon. 1 Ves. J. 141.

By Order Ch. (Irel.) 12th May, 1744, O'Keeffe's Ed. 59, after a conditional decree or dismissal obtained, the party desiring to shew cause, instead of 5l. costs, must pay full costs, to be taken up from the service of the subpoena to hear judgment.

When a conditional decree or dismissal has been pronounced, defendant must pay the 5l. four days at least before the hearing, on shewing cause, or in default, he shall not be admitted to shew cause against confirming the same, unless the parties against whom such decree or dismissal is obtained shall be out of the kingdom; in which case, if plaintiff applies for an order to serve defendant's clerk therewith, such service must be made the term before the same shall be heard, and the subpoena be made returnable on some day in such term. Order Ch. (Irel.) 29th June, 1720. O'Keeffe's Ed. 31. In id. 45, defendant not attending upon hearing on a conditional decree, the Ch. declared, that where the party is out of the kingdom, and service ordered on the clerk, there should be six weeks' notice before the return of the subpoena.

On motion to dismiss a bill on hearing and answer only, with 20s. costs, Ld. Keeper said, for the future it should be referred to a master to tax defendant his costs in such a case. Anon. 2 Vern. 116. But in the affidavit of the costs out of pocket, defendant must specify the particulars. Anon. id. 334. But now, by statute 4 Anne, c. 16. s. 23, and by 25 Geo. 3. c. 51. (Irel.) full costs to be taxed are to be allowed in all cases where plaintiff dismissed his own bill, or it is dismissed for want of prosecution. By the 18th Order Exch., if plaintiff will dismiss his bill before he reply, he shall pay 40s. costs, unless court, on motion, shall think fit to increase them. And by Order, 27th April, 1748. (Beame's Order 450. 2 Atk. 288,) where any cause is dismissed on a hearing on bill and answer (a case that comes not within the statute, supra) the court may give costs to be taxed. See Mausel v. Bowles, 2 Dick. 646. 1 Bro. C. C. 403. In Johnson v. Brown, 3 Atk. 1, (previous to the order) Ld. Hardwicke gave costs to be taxed, on dismissing a bill on a cause heard on bill and answer. Before this last order, it seems to have been common for applications to be made for leave to withdraw replication, in order to set causes down on bill and answer only, and by that means get the bill dismissed with 40s. cost only. See Pott v. Reynolds, 3 Atk. 565. In Newsham v. Gray, 2 Atk. 288, which gave rise to the order, Ld. Hardwicke considered that the court's directing an issue on the merits, was to be looked upon as a subsequent proceeding beyond the bill and answer, and dismissed the bill with full costs.

After a decree, plaintiff may not move to dismiss his bill, on payment of costs. Guilbert v. Hawles, 1 Ch. Ca. 40. But till there has been a final decree, plaintiff may, in any stage of the cause, apply to dismiss on payment of costs, even after an issue has been directed and found in defendant's favour. Carrington v. Holly, 1 Dick. 280. 2 Mad. Chan. 390, states, that this report is not warranted by the Reg. Book.

Plaintiff, having no equity, bill dismissed at hearing though defendant made default, but without costs. Spetdall v. Serves, Dick. 632.

If more tithes are claimed than defendant has lands of titheable grounds, it is the practice in exchequer to dismiss bill with costs. Anon. Loft. 66. TITHES; PR. IN EXCH. BILL, DISMISSAL OF.

Plaintiff files bill and becomes bankrupt, assignees neglect to revive order to dismiss bill with costs. Petition by bankrupt for relief against costs, refused. Exp. Berry, Dick. 81.

(i) Cause standing over, or struck out of paper.

Cause adjourned, costs of day 10l., as well in rolls as in court of chancery. 35 General Ord. 3d April, 1828. PR. ADJOURNMENT OF CAUSE.

Where cause is struck out of paper by default of plaintiff, defendant shall be allowed costs thereof. 34 General Ord. 3d April, 1828.

Cause on hearing ordered to stand over for want of parties. Defendant not allowed costs of day, because answer did not state that objection. Mitchell v. Bailey, 3 Mad. 61. PR. PARTIES; PR. ANSWER.

The same was held with regard to defendant not demurring. Anon. cited 3 Mad. 62. note.

When cause stands over with leave to amend bill, and motion becomes necessary that plaintiff should amend within limited time, plaintiff pays costs of such motion, but notice of motion must not be silent as to such costs. Cox v. Allingham, 3 Mad. 393. PR. MOTION FOR LEAVE TO AMEND, &c.

Party, having objection of form to petition, ought to be prepared to answer merits in case objection is overruled. If necessary that petition should stand over to enable him to file affidavits, he pays costs. Exp. Bellott, 2 Mad. 261.

If the office-copies of the pleading, or proofs necessary to be read for one party, on hearing of a cause, be not signed by the proper officer, the cause must stand over on payment of 5l. costs for the day's attendance to the other party. Att. Gen. v. Milward, 1 Cox, 437. OFFICE COPIES; PR. EVIDENCE; SIGNATURE.

A trustee not appearing at the hearing of the cause, a decree was made against him, with liberty to shew cause against it. Under this order, he set down the cause again, and prayed his costs, which were given him on paying the costs of the day on the former hearing. Norris v. Norris, 1 Cox. 183. TRUSTEE.

(j) Charity.

Although in charity cases, it is the duty of the court to grant the proper relief, though not prayed for, yet, with reference to costs, which are quite in the discretion of the court, it will look to the state of the record. Per Ld. Ch. in Att. Gen. v. Hartley, 2 Jac. & W. 370.

Where an information was filed, involving most extensive enquiries, containing gross imputations on the conduct of individuals, and allegations not proved, upon which no relief was or could be given, the court ordered the costs of all parts of the information, with respect to which defendants had sustained costs by reason of the allegations of misconduct and abuse of office, to be paid by the relators. Id.

A charity petition against trustees, under circumstances, held vexatious, and bill dismissed with costs. In re Chertsey Market, 6 Price, 261.

Costs given to an heir as between attorney and client, the Ld. Ch. observing that it was frequently done in charity causes where the heir has made no improper point. Currie v. Pur, 17 Ves. 462, 468.

Where a lease had been granted for ninety-nine years of a charity estate, which would be bad without proof of its being for the charity, the court, under circumstances of long possession permitted, and that defendant was only the representative of the lessee, the lease was set aside without costs, on consideration that defendant gave up the lease without farther trouble. But the court said this case was to be considered as no authority with reference to persons taking such leases of charity estates, and that in future they should not get off so easily. Att. Gen. v. Owen, 10 Ves. 562.

In charity cases the court often gives costs beyond taxed costs. Osborne v. Deane, 7 Ves. 425. Et vide Att. Gen. v. Taylor, there mentioned.

On information for a charity, relator appearing to have no title, there can be no decree but to dismiss the information; and in that case costs cannot be given out of the charity. Att. Gen. v. Oglander, 1 Ves. J. 246. PR. INFORMATION.

The relator, by the information, insisted on a claim, which was afterwards abandoned, having, as was alleged, shaped the whole information with a view to his own demand. As, however, directions were to be given, so that the information had a foundation, the relator was not made to pay costs. Att. Gen. v. Bolton, 3 Atk. 321. S. C. 3 Anst. 820.

Where the information was quite false, and contrary to the right, the relators were ordered to pay the costs. Att. Gen. v. Smart, 1 Ves. 72. Att. Gen. v. Parker, id. 43. 3 Atk. 576. PR. CHARITY RELATOR.

And in Att. Gen. v. Middleton, 2 Ves. 327., an information was dismissed with costs, against the relator, because it appeared to proceed from a private motive of revenge in him, and that from a very improper cause.

Where it appeared that a suit was instituted purely for establishing charities, and the estate was very ample, the relators and defendants were ordered their costs as between solicitor and client. Att. Gen. v. Curte, Beame's Costs, 343. 1 Dick. 113. Moggridge v. Thackwell, 1 Ves. J. 475. 7 Ves. 36. Et vide Currie v. Pur, 17 Ves. 462.

There is no instance of costs being ordered out of a charity estate, unless on a bill brought to establish it. Att. Gen. v. Stafford Borough, Bar. 33.

Where an information sought a specific performance of an agreement between three executors, trustees of a charity, to nominate each a third part absolutely, it was dismissed with costs, against the relators. Att. Gen. v. Gleg, 1 Atk. 356.

The commissioners of charitable uses cannot decree costs on the statute 43 Eliz.; but if there be an appeal from their decree, Ld. Ch. may decree the costs, not only of the appeal, but likewise of the commission; and though they decree payment of them, yet that shall not, upon an appeal, be sufficient to reverse the decree; for Ld. Ch. may either increase or lessen the costs, or exempt the party from them entirely. Rockley v. Kclay, 1 Eq. Ab. 126. Precedent Ch. 111. S. C. but not S. P. Aylet v. Dodd, 2 Atk. 239. Burford Corp. v. Leathall, id. ib. 551. In Wharton v. Charles, Finch. 83., a decree of the commissioners for charitable uses for payment of costs, was excepted to, as not within their powers, and the decree, as to the costs, was reversed.

A new information was filed after a former, and two verdicts on full evidence, in intrusion. Ordered, that the Att. Gen. name a relator, and he to shew cause why he should not be answerable for costs. Att. Gen. v. Puckering, 2 Fowl. 372.

(k) Commissioners of bankruptcy.

Costs to commissioners in bankruptcy, made parties to a petition, without sufficient ground, viz. for refusing to admit the affidavit of an absent creditor proceeding at law, not permitting the examination of the petitioning creditor by a person who had not proved a debt, and admitting the full proof of a creditor claiming a lien on papers in his hands as agent in town for the bankrupt, an attorney. Exp. Steele, 16 Ves. 161.

Commissioners of bankruptcy may be ordered to pay costs in respect of conduct out of the course of their duty as commissioners. Exp. Searth, 15 Ves. 293.

Commissioner struck out, and ordered to pay costs. Exp. Edwards, 6 Ves. 4. cited.

(l) Contempt.

Party taken up on process of contempt irregularly issued, on being discharged, to have his full costs to be taxed by the six clerk not towards the cause (by the Master, Wy. Pr. Reg. 49.). Ld. Clarendon's Order, 1661, Beame's Ord. 199.

Upon every examination and proof of a contempt referred to the master, the master shall, in his certificate assess the costs to either party, without other order or motion. Beame's Ord. 203. See Wy. Pr. Reg. 137.

Defendant in contempt must pay his costs before his appearance or answer be accepted. Ord. Exch. (9). Kirkby's Ed. 6. Beame's Ord. 35. S. P.

Party who has taken the benefit of the insolvent act, is entitled to be discharged from custody without payment of costs of contempt cleared previously, such costs having been included in his schedule of debts. Evans v. Williams, 1 M'Clel. 577. DISCHARGE OF INSOLVENT DEBTOR.

Defendant to discharge his contempt must not only tender costs, but obtain order to discharge his contempt. Green v. Thompson, 1 S. & S. 121. CONTEMPT.

In Fowles v. Young, 9 Ves. 172., Eldon, C. recognized it to be a general rule that parties must clear their contempt before they can be heard. And so said in Wy. Pr. Reg. 138. But you may move to discharge an order, though you be in contempt for disobeying it. Hill v. Russel, Mos. 259.

But a step taken by the other party, as an acceptance of the answer, waives the remedy by processa of contempt for enforcing immediate payment of the costs, which then become costs in the cause. Anon. 15 Ves. 174; followed in Smith v. Blofield, 2 Ves. & B. 100.

Sheriff taking party on attachment for contempt or not paying costs, and suffering party to go at large, ordered himself to pay those costs, and costs of contempt. Solly v. Greathead, 11 Ves. 170. S. P. Lewitt v. Letteney, Beame's Costs, 352. SHERIFF, LIAB. OF.

Costs by plaintiff for prosecuting contempt, and issue proved. Wrayford v. Wright, Cary, 82.

Defendant having been discharged by a general pardon, plaintiff was ordered to pay forty shillings costs, for suing out process of contempt against him. Jones v. Jones, id. 79.

A defendant examined touching a contempt, and discharged thereof, shall have costs, of course. Atkinson v. Ailoff, Toth, 71. PR. CONTEMPT.

(m) Creditors.

See also PR. COSTS, (m) & (o).

A creditor where debt has been disallowed by the master, and allowed by the court upon petition, is not entitled to costs. Watkins v. Mule, 1 Jac. 155. PR. DECREE TO ACCOUNT, PROOF IN L.R.

In a creditor's suit, it appearing that there were no assets applicable to the payment of the plaintiff's debts, the plaintiffs ordered to pay the costs. But other creditors, entitled to a specific lien having proved, ordered to pay the costs of the proceedings relative to their debts. Bluett v. Jessop, 1 Jac. 240.

Creditors and next of kin going in before a master, pay expences of establishing their claim, as such; but if, after having so done, they are permitted to mix in the cause as parties, they may, in respect of such proceedings, be entitled to their costs. Waite v. Waite, 6 Mad. 110.

A plaintiff in a creditor's suit, waives all claim to contribution, by not calling for it until a creditor has been admitted to prove. Shortley v. Selby, 5 Mad. 447.

In Curry v. Bowyer, 3 Mad. 456, the Vice Chancellor said, that he should consider a creditor's proceeding at law, after notice of a decree to account, so far in the nature of a contempt, that on the motion for the injunction he would refuse the costs of the further proceedings at law, and of the application.

Creditor defendant, contesting the mode of taking the accounts, and failing, knowing a balance to be against him, is liable to costs. Skirrett v. Athy, 1 Ball & B. 435.

If an heir at law is a creditor, and is brought into court as defendant; the circumstance of his having examined witnesses, and of having failed in the trials of issues at law to ascertain the validity of his ancestor's will, shall not deprive him of his costs in equity. Burne v. Breen, id. 308.

On a bill by creditors on behalf of themselves and others, after the usual decree, a creditor moved for his costs of proving his debt before the master. Two cases—Orwell v. Ld. Hinchinbrooke, and Skeene v. Pepper, were cited, in the first of which a similar application was granted, and in the other the costs were directed without the question being raised. The court thought it was too dangerous a practice, and refused the application. Abell v. Sereech, 10 Ves. 355. Vide Waite v. Waite, 6 Mad. 110.

Until notice of the decree, the party seeking to restrain a creditor from proceeding at law, on the ground that there is a decree to account, pays the costs occasioned by not giving notice and suffering him to go on; but after notice he has no costs. Paxton v. Doug- las, 8 Ves. 521. Dyer v. Kearsley, 3 Mer. 483. n. And the rule is the same as to legatees. Jackson v. Leaf, 1 Jac. & W. 229.

Where a creditor had, by an unconscientious use of legal process, acquired possession of an estate, he was deprived of costs subsequent to the payment of money into court. Id. Cranstown v. Johnston, 5 Ves. 277.

Where a bill by a creditor to have the benefit of a decree to account was dismissed for laches in plaintiff, the court doubted as to the costs; but as the laches were not all on one side, the bill was dismissed without costs. Hercy v. Dinwoody, 2 Ves. J. 87.

After a decree for an account, by which costs were given to all parties generally out of the estate, creditors, parties to the suit, were held entitled to their costs before any of the creditors coming in before the master could be paid their debts. And where regular proceedings are taken after the decree between the parties, plaintiffs and defendants, there is no occasion to give notice of such proceedings to the creditors before the master. Hare v. Rose, 2 Ves. 558.

A creditor insisting by his answer on more than is really due, he shall lose his costs in equity, though entitled to them at law. Forward v. Duffield, 3 Atk. 555.

On a bill by creditors a sale was decreed by consent, and the creditors to be paid according to their priorities. Costs shall notwithstanding be paid to all in the first place. Brace v. Dk. of Marlborough, Mos. 50.

A as creditor of B, files a bill against the proper parties, for a sale of A's estate, alleging that he had by his will charged it with the payment of his debts. On the trial of ejectment, a verdict was found against will; whereupon A's bill was dismissed with costs. But on appeal, decree as to costs was reversed. Squire v. Pershall, 2 Bro. P. C. 396.

A legatee or creditor coming in before the master, and not a party, shall have his costs; for he might have brought a bill for his legacy or debt, which would have put the estate to further charge. Maxwell v. Wetenhall, 2 P. W. 27.

Where creditor, by judgment recovered, is afterwards found guilty of fraud, respecting the whole of his demand, he shall pay costs, both at law and in equity. Lloyd v. Wynne, 2 Bro. P. C. 374. FRAUD, JUDGMENT BY.

(n) Cross Cause.

The application to equity by cross bill, to establish moduses against a bill to overturn them, being matter of favour. Costs in equity are never allowed. Morrell v. Gregson, 11 Price, 421. MODUS.

Cross bill being for a mere legal title, dismissed with costs, though the original bill was dismissed. Calverley v. Williams, 1 Ves. J. 213.

On a bill to foreclose, the court in case the defendant redeemed, would not decree he should pay the costs of a cross cause which he had brought to redeem, and was still depending. Anon. Mod. 45. MORTGAGOR & MORTGEE.

(a) Decree for Administration of Assets.

Creditor proceeding at law against executor after decree to account, allowed his costs at law previous to notice of decree, but not those of motion to restrain his proceedings. Anon. 2 S. & S. 424. S. P. Curry v. Bowyer, 3 Mad. 456. CREDITOR'S SUITS.

Legacy assigned upon certain trusts: trustee, notwithstanding notice of former decree for administration of assets, files bill for payment of legacy. Court refused to assign legacy to him, he having acted imprudently, or to give him costs; and executors refused costs, because they should have moved to stay proceedings, instead of answering trustees' bill. Puckwood v. Maddign, 1 S. & S. 232. TRUSTEE; EXOR.

Injunction to stay proceedings at law was granted, a decree for reference to take an account having been obtained on creditor's suit against executors before action brought: but defendant not having notice of decree, or of this application, it was ordered that all his debts should be first paid. Farlow v. Wilson, 11 Price, 95. PR. NOTICE; PR. INJUNC. TO STAY PROCS. AT LAW.

The direction for creditors coming in under a decree to contribute to the costs, not enforced in practice. Bluett v. Jessop, 1 Jac. 243. CREDITOR'S SUIT; CONTRIBUTION.

A legatee agreeing, after a decree for the administration of the estate obtained in chancery by another legatee, to stop proceedings in a suit previously instituted by him in the exchequer, allowed his costs up to the time of his having notice of that decree. Jackson v. Leaf, 1 Jac. & W. 229. LEGATEE.

A bill was filed against an executor, who had been previously applied to for accounts, and gave none, but by his answer he set them forth; plaintiff afterwards took a decree for an account, and it then appeared that the statement given by the answer was correct. The Vice Ch. gave plaintiff the costs up to the decree, and to defendant the costs of the subsequent proceedings. Anon. 4 Mad. 273.

Where the question was, whether a legacy lapsed or not, and it was held it did, the costs of ascertaining the right to it were ordered to be paid out of it, in exoneration of the general residue. Skraymer v. Northcote, 1 Swan. 566. 572. Et vide Cresswell v. Cheslyn, 2 Eden, 123.

Where a claim to a bond as a donatio mortis causi was established, the costs of the suit were given out of the estate. Gardner v. Parker, 3 Mad. 185.

The costs of the bank, when made parties for the security of a legacy, must come out of the capital of the legacy. Hammond v. Neume, 1 Swan. 38.

If a bill for the payment of a legacy be dismissed, plaintiff will not be entitled to his costs out of the estate, though there be ambiguity in the will. Lister v. Sherringham, 1 Newl. Pr. 397.

Costs of a litigation in the course of administering a will are given out of general assets, or, in case of a deficiency, out of the fund. Hampson v. Brandwood, 1 Mad. 394.

Though it is true that the rule that costs shall come out of the estate prevails where a question arises between the individual and the person taking the bulk of the estate, how far the bulk of the estate is to answer for a legacy, a sum of money, or a portion, yet if there is no question between the latter and persons claiming against him the bulk of the estate, but after he has paid out of the bulk, and done all that is incumbent on him, a question arises as to the interest in that property, clearly severed from the bulk, the expense of questions touching that fund ought to be thrown on the fund itself. Jenour v. Jenour, 10 Ves. 579.

Where a suit was rendered necessary either by the conduct of the executrix, who was also the residuary legatee, or by the disposition of the testatrix, costs were given out of the residue. Wilson v. Brownsmith, 9 Ves. 180.

A decree against an executor is in nature of a judgment at law; after that he may, on motion, without filing a bill for an injunction, restrain a creditor suing at law. The executor must pay the costs till the notice, but not after notice; and he must make an affidavit as to funds in his hands. Paxton v. Douglas, 8 Ves. 520. INJUNC. TO STAY PROCS. AT LAW.

Where a residue was disposed of to charitable purposes, costs were given to the executor, next of kin, and attorney-general, out of the fund. Moggridge v. Thackwell, 7 Ves. 36.

Where a bill has been filed, and a decree made for an account, and a creditor comes before the master, but afterwards brings an action, the court will enjoin: but where the defendant has not applied in the first instance, it shall be without costs. Hardestale v. Chettle, 4 Bro. C. C. 163. INJUNC. TO STAY PROCS. AT LAW.

The costs of a bill by an infant legatee to have the legacy were formerly given out of the estate; but, in Whopham v. Wingfield, 4 Ves. 630, the court said, that, in future, the costs would not be given in such case; as under the legacy act, (36 Geo. 3. c. 52. s. 32.) an executor has only to pay the legacy into court, and the infant, when of age, may petition for it. See also Anon. Mos. 6.

The costs of executing the will are always paid out of a residue undisposed of. Howse v. Chapman, 5 Ves. 550.

Legacy to such person of the name of M as should, within a certain time, prove his relationship to testator. Such a person established a claim in the master's office, and he was held entitled to all his costs out of the general assets, (the executors admitting assets) except those of making out his pedigree. Wallis v. Williams, Beame's Costs, 338. Et vide Wilson v. Brownsmith, 9 Ves. 180.

After a verdict, on an issue directed, found against the legitimacy of a person claiming a legacy as a legitimate child, the court refused costs against him, as he had always borne the name of the family, and been received in it. Forbes v. Taylor, 1 Ves. J. 99.

When a specific legacy is claimed in this court, the legatee must have his costs out of the testator's general estate, for otherwise it would be to abridge his specific legacy. Bugshaw v. Newton, 9 Mod. 263. Nisbet v. Murray, 5 Ves. 158. Except costs of inquiries as to the specific legacy. Barton v. Cook, 5 Ves. 464.

Bill by next of kin against executors, for the residue, dismissed without costs, because when the next of kin are disappointed of the residue, it is some excuse for their litigating the executors' right to it. Brasbridge v. Woodruffe, 2 Atk. 69.

Wherever a testator has expressed himself so ambiguously as to create such a difficulty as to his meaning, as to make it necessary to come into a court of equity, his general assets must bear the costs. Studholme v. Hodgson, 3 P. W. 303. Jolliffe v. East, 3 Bro. C. C. 27. Baugh v. Reed, id. 195. 1 Ves. J. 527. S. C. Att. Gen. v. Hurst, 2 Cox, 365. S. C. 3 Bro. C. C. 380, nom. Att. Gen. v. Winchelsea. Barrington v. Tristram, 6 Ves. 349. Pearson v. Pearson, 1 S. & J. 12. And it makes no difference that the doubt was introduced by the parol evidence for the defendant. Nourse v. Finch, 1 Ves. J. 362.

By giving a legacy to an infant, the testator makes it necessary to come into this court for directions how to lay it out; the costs of such application must therefore come out of his assets. Anon. Mos. 6. But such applications are rendered unnecessary by the statute 36 Geo. 3. c. 52. s. 32.

In a creditor's suit against the administrator, and account decreed, the master reported that defendant had assets sufficient to satisfy plaintiff's demand: costs were decreed generally against the administrator. Dary v. Seys, Mos. 264. PR. MASTER'S REPORT OF SUFFICIENCY OF ASSETS.

(P) Demurrer or plea allowed, submitted to, overruled, or ordered to stand for answer.

On overruling plea or demurrer defendant shall pay costs, unless otherwise ordered. 32 Gen. Order, 3d April 1828.

Costs on allowing or overruling plea or demurrer. Beame's Ord. Pr. 320. 457.

Where defendant puts in a plea, he must set it down by the Wednesday se'nnight following, or it is to stand overruled. If so overruled, or if overruled at the hearing, defendant is forthwith to pay 40s. costs; if it be ordered to stand good, plaintiff to pay 30s. costs. If defendant will put in an answer two days before the day appointed for the hearing of the plea, or give notice thereof to plaintiff's attorney, he is to pay plaintiff 20s. costs. Ord. Exch. (10), Kirkby's Ord. 6. Whenever a plea is filed so late in or after the term that it cannot be argued by the sittings after that term, or if filed before the seal day after term, it shall be put down to be argued in the first Wednesday of the succeeding term. Ord. Exch. 17th April 1766. Id. 38.

If plaintiff shall, two days before a plea is appointed to be heard, give notice to defendant that he will reply thereto, plaintiff shall then reply thereto within a week without costs, or in default defendant to be dismissed with 30s. costs. If two days before the hearing plaintiff will give notice that he admits the plea, he may do so on payment of 20s. costs. Ord. Exch. (12.) Id.

All pleas, &c. to be set down to be argued on every Wednesday in the term; and whenever a term begins on a Wednesday, all pleas filed on or previous to the last day of the preceding sitting of the court to be argued on such Wednesday; and all pleas filed on a Wednesday in term, to be set down for that day se'nnight, if within the term. Ord. Exch. 10th May 1777. 1 Fowl. 39.

On demurrer allowed to a bill for a commission to examine witnesses de bene esse, plaintiff having, on an ex parte application, obtained an order to examine the witnesses, was ordered to pay, besides the usual costs of the demurrer, the costs of the depositions, but not of those taken on cross-examination. Dew v. Clarke, 1 S. & S. 108.

In the exchequer, on allowing a demurrer to the whole bill, taxed costs are given. Jones v. Jones, 7 Price, 663.

A plea had been set down, but at the hearing plaintiff declined arguing it, stating his intention to amend. By desiring to amend, plaintiff admits the validity of the plea; it must therefore be allowed with usual costs. Lopes v. De Tancet, 3 Mad. 183.

Three weeks after a general demurrer had been allowed, defendant moved for full costs, on an affidavit shewing a case of vexation. On the authority of Griffiths v. Wood, 1 V. & B. 307. the Vice-Chancellor granted the motion. Wood v. Dynely, 1 Mad. 32. And in Pilkington v. Wignall, id. 240. 245. full costs were given. The order drawn up was, that plaintiff should pay the costs of the demurrer, beyond the usual costs, to be taxed, &c. Defendant contended, that by full costs, in the general order, is meant the full costs of the suit, as well as of the demurrer, but the court considered the order to have been drawn up according to the usual form. S. C. 2 Mad. 348.

When plea is ordered to stand for answer, with liberty to except, plaintiff is entitled to costs. Hawling v. Butler, 2 Mad. 245. PLEA ORDERED TO STAND FOR ANSWER.

In Griffiths v. Wood, 1 Ves. & B. 307, on application under the general order 6th Feb. 1794, 4 Bro. C. C. 545, full costs were given on a demurrer allowed to a third bill for the same cause; plaintiff having also since filed a fourth.

After a demurrer had been set down to be argued, plaintiff submitted, and the bill was amended. The court, on application, allowed 5l. more than the usual costs, on account of the expense defendant had been put to. Anon. 9 Ves. 221.

Demurrer filed bad; demurrer at bar good; defendant does not have costs. Wood v. Thompson, Dick. 510.

On reversing an order for allowing a demurrer, if plaintiff has received the costs on the allowance, they must be refunded. Oats v. Chapman, 1 Ves. 642. 1 Dick. 148. 2 Ves. 100.

Demurrer to examination by witness overruled, subpoena for costs not of course. Valiant v. Dodamead, Dick. 92. S. C. 2 Atk. 592.

Defendant in a pauper cause pays costs on overruling plea and demurrer. Scotchmer v. Foulhard, 1 Eq. Ab. 125. PR. PAUPER.

(q) Discovery.

Order obtained by defendant in bill of discovery for payment of his costs, is regular, though plaintiff had previously become bankrupt. Hibbertson v. Fielding, 2 S. & S. 371. BANKRUPT.

As to how far vicar plaintiff in title cause is compellable to produce, for inspection, &c., vicar's books, and those of predecessors, admitted by him in his answer to cross bill by defendant, to be in his possession, and to contain entries relating to payments of sums of money, as compositions corresponding in amount with the money payments set up by defendant as modus relied on. The costs of all proceedings had, for obtaining the discovery by such means, must be paid by party so acquiring it. Firkins v. Lowe, 13 Price, 193. S. C. 1 McClell. 73. PR. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS; TITHES; EVID.

Where bill prays relief against all defendants but one, against whom it only prays discovery, he cannot after answer obtain order for his costs; such order discharged. Att. Gen. v. Burch, 4 Mad. 178. WAIVER.

Plaintiff, in bill of discovery, must pay all expenses of defendant in resisting motions, in cause made by plaintiff. Noble v. Garland, 1 Mad. 344.

See general observations on costs in equity. Hampson v. Brandwood, 1 Mad. 392 to 395.

Costs of discovery refused, a commission having gone out, and defendant taking the benefit of it cannot have all the costs. S. C. 19 Ves. 376. S. C. Coop. 222. PR. COMMISSION TO EXAMINE; PR. DISCOVERY.

Defendant to a bill of discovery is entitled to the costs of the discovery, immediately on putting in a full answer, and his right to these costs is not waived by his subsequently accepting the costs of an amendment, nor by his neglecting to serve the plaintiff with the order for costs of discovery, until after he has himself been served with the order to amend. Coventry v. Bentley, 3 Mer. 677.

The proper time to pray for costs of discovery is after the commission is returned. Banbury v. —, 9 Ves. 103.

The bill praying discovery and a commission, the defendant cannot have the costs of the discovery till the return of the commission. Anon. 8 Ves. 69. COMMISSION TO EXAMINE ABROAD.

Practice, that if the defendant to a bill of discovery and a commission, examines in chief, instead of confining himself to cross-examination, he shall not have costs. Anon. 8 Ves. 70. EXAM. IN CHIEF.

Plaintiff pays the costs upon a bill of discovery. Simmonds v. Ld. Kinnaird, 4 Ves. 746.

Rule that plaintiff in bill of discovery shall pay costs in all cases, is too general; he ought only where he files a bill in the first instance; not where compelled to it by defendant's refusal. Weymouth v. Boyer, 1 Ves. J. 423.

(r) Dower.

Though by analogy to rule at law, costs do not follow degree for dower merely, they are given upon a vexatious resistance. Worgan v. Ryder, 1 V. & B. 20. DOWER.

No costs to plaintiff in a writ of dower. Mundy v. Mundy, 2 Ves. J. 128. Id.

The general rule is, that costs in dower are not given under a commission to set out dower any more than under a writ of dower, at common law: a vexatious resistance, however, forms exception to it. Jucas v. Culcraft, 1 Bro. C. C. 134. S. C. 2 Dick. 594. Id.

(a) Executors, trustee, and committees.

Trustees of a charity cannot be allowed the costs of an unsuccessful attempt to obtain an act of parliament, to enable them to administer the property of the charity of an improved plan, though the failure arose from accidental circumstances, and though their motives were fair and proper. Att. Gen. v. Mansfield, 2 Russ. 501. CHARITY TRUSTEE.

A creditor files a bill against an executrix, and she states by her answer that there are no assets for the payment of his debt; he however persists in the suit, and the result of the account in the master's office is, that there are no assets unadministered, though the executrix is charged with more than she had admitted: held, that the bill is to be dismissed without costs as against the executrix. Robinson v. Elliot, 1 Russ. 599. EXECUTOR.

Costs refused to a plaintiff, who having in his hands a sum of money belonging to an infant, institutes a suit to have that sum secured for the infant, though there was a trustee of a settlement, to whom it might have been paid. Ellis v. Ellis, 1 Russ. 368. TRUSTEE.

Where executor sues in the joint character of creditor and legatee, he is liable to pay additional costs, if any, caused by claim as a creditor unsupported. Sharples v. Sharples, 1 M'Clel. 506. S. C. 13 Price, 745. EXECUTOR.

Plaintiff being himself an executor, filing bill as creditor and legatee for an account of the estate of testator, is entitled, having obtained a decree, to costs out of fund in court, although he obtained no more information than had been offered to him. S. C. 13 Price, 745. EXECUTOR: ACCOUNT.

The costs of the committee of a lunatic trustee, conveying under the statute, must be paid by the cestuique trusts. The estate being vested in the lunatic upon trusts for securing an annuity, and subject thereto upon trust for the grantor of the annuity, the grantee and the assignees of the grantor of the annuity were ordered to defray equally the committee's costs of an application by them for a reconveyance of the estate. Exp. Pearce, 1 Turn. & R. 325. LUNATIC TRUSTEE.

A party to whom a legacy was assigned upon certain trusts, having filed a bill against the executors, to recover the legacy, notwithstanding he had notice of a subsisting clause for the administration of assets, the court refused him his costs, on the ground that he had acted imprudently. Paickwood v. Maddison, 1 S. & S. 232. EXECUTOR.

Trustee seeking direction and indemnity of court, as to execution of trusts, is always allowed his costs, unless act required to be done leads to no responsibility, and motives of trustee are obviously vexatious. Curtis v. Chandler, 6 Mad. 123. TRUSTEE.

The costs of a committee of a lunatic mortgagee, requisite to enable him to re-convey to the mortgagor under the stat. 4 Geo. 2. c. 10, including the costs of the reference, are to be paid out of the lunatic's estate, whether the application be made by the mortgagor, or by the committee, which is the usual course. Exp.

Richards, 1 Jac. & W. 264. LUNATIC MORTGEE; STAT. C. OF.

On summary proceedings in charity, the trustees are entitled to costs under the act, but the chancellor doubted whether he had any jurisdiction to give costs generally. In re Bedford Charity, 2 Swan. 532. JURISDICTION: CHARITY.

Where executor had refused an account, but on bill filed he gave one in his answer, and plaintiff took decree for account; and on master's report, the account proved correct, court gave plaintiff costs up till decree, and defendant those of subsequent proceedings. Anon. 4 Mad. 273. ACCOUNT; PL. ANSWER; EXECUTOR.

Persons nominated trustees by an instrument which being void, passes no trust fund, not allowed costs, as between solicitor and client. Mohun v. Mohun, 1 Swan. 201. TRUSTEES.

Trustee is entitled to costs, unless he acts from motives of caprice or obstinacy. Taylor v. Glanville, 3 Mad. 176. TRUSTEE.

If a suit would have been proper and the executor a necessary party, though the executor had mis-conducted himself, he ought not to pay all the costs of such suit, though in the course of the suit it appears that he has mis-conducted himself; but if the mis-conduct of the executor was the sole occasion of the suit, he ought then to pay costs. Per Vice Ch. in Tebbis v. Carpenter, 1 Mad. 290. 308; in which case his Honor allowed executors their costs up to the time of the decree, but charged them with the costs of subsequent inquiries, which were solely occasioned by their breach of trust. Exon.

Administration is taken out in 1771. Distribution to certain extent is made, but a large sum is retained on fraudulent pretences. No effectual stir is made against administration till 1792, and that is protracted by admonition in court below, till 1810: held, notwithstanding lapse, that administrator should pay interest with annual rests for whole period, on sum undistributed, with costs incurred since original decree. Stackpoole v. Stackpoole, 4 Dow. 209. ACCOUNT; INTEREST; ADMIN.

Costs of the committee of a lunatic trustee, conveying within the statute, must be paid out of the lunatic's estate. Exp. Bridges, Cooper, 290. LUNATIC; CONVEYANCE; STAT. C. OF.

Where plaintiff's bill for specific performance of an agreement for sale was dismissed, plaintiff must pay the costs, though he was only a trustee for sale. Edwards v. Harvey, Coop. 40. TRUSTEE.

Interest and costs decreed against a steward upon fraud, wilful concealment, &c. and in such cases generally, there is no limitation of time. Hardwicke v. Vernon, 14 Ves. 504. P. & STEWARD; ACCOUNT; INTEREST.

Where trustees for sale purchased through a trustee at an undervalue, though without fraud, and by auction, and the cestuique trusts being infants, and therefore incapable of discharging the trustees, the relief as to a re-sale was given with costs against them; but as to the other part of the case, with regard to accounts that must have been taken, they must have their costs, as they would have been entitled to them in the ordinary case. Sanderson v. Walker, 13 Ves. 601. Et vide Hall v. Hallett, 1 Cox, 134. 141. TRUSTEE.

In Raphael v. Boehm, 13 Ves. 590, an executor was charged with interest, and with the costs of the inquiries and accounts relating to the breach of trust; but on the cause coming on for further directions, he was allowed such costs of the subsequent proceedings as were consequential on those of which the costs were allowed him by the former decree, and which arose principally by a necessary investigation as to the rule by which they were to be charged. So, Parock v. Redington, 5 Ves. 800, where an executor, guilty of misapplying trust funds, was made to pay the costs as far as related to the transaction in question. EXOR.

When the court gives interest against executors as a remedy for a breach of trust, the costs follow of course. Seers v. Hind, 1 Ves. J. 294. Rocke v. Hunt, 11 Ves. 62. Masley v. Ward, id. 583. But in Ashburnham v. Thompson, 13 Ves. 404, the M. R., in giving costs against executors, went into the circumstances as a ground for it, observing that he did so, seeing the rule laid down in so general a manner in Seers v. Hind, to which he was not quite prepared to accede, as there might be many cases in which executors must pay interest which would not be cases for costs. EXORS.

Where the costs of a trustee are directed to be taxed, that means as between party and party. But where a trustee has expended money by reasonably and properly taking opinions, and procuring directions that are necessary for the due execution of his trust, he is entitled not only to his costs, but also to his charges and expences, under the head of just allowances. Fearn v. Young, 10 Ves. 184. Trustees, however, in chancery, on application, generally obtain costs as between attorney and client. Beame's Costs, 157. TRUSTEES.

It is a settled rule, that executors of an insolvent shall not have costs; they need not have. Imitiz v. Adair v. Shaw, 1 Sch. & Lef. 280. EXORS.; INSOLVENCY.

Necessary costs of infant trustee ordered to convey under stat., allowed. Exp. Cant, 10 Ves. 554. INFANT TRUSTEE.

Where trustee by neglect occasions the suit, no costs are given him, but against him, of course. O'Callaghan v. Cooper, 5 Ves. 117. Caffrey v. Darby, 6 Ves. 488. TRUSTEE.

Costs refused to a trustee, setting up a trust different from what it really was: but general misconduct, &c. is not a sufficient ground. Ball v. Montgomery, 2 Ves. J. 191. 4 Bro. C. C. 339. TRUSTEES.

Trustee not deprived of costs for slight misconduct, in respect of which he is charged with interest. Sammes v. Rickman, 2 Ves. J. 36. TRUSTEE.

Trustee ordered to pay costs on misconduct. Davison v. Parrot, 3 Bro. C. C. 236. TRUSTEE.

Agreement for a lease of a farm, referring to a paper containing the terms, bill for specific performance according to such clauses as had been read to the plaintiff, parol evidence to prove that was refused, and the bill dismissed. Bill being dismissed without costs as a hard case, parties made trustees without their knowledge, and as such being necessary parties to the bill, cannot have costs against plaintiff, but left to their remedy against their principal, otherwise perhaps, if plaintiff had prevailed; because then, those costs might have been given over against other defendants. Bradis v. St. Paul, 1 Ves. J. 326. SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE; EVID. PAROL.

Costs to committee of lunatic, refused, because he had not passed his accounts regularly, though no fraud. Exp. Clarke, 1 Ves. J. 296. COMMITTEE OF LUNATIC.

Where a trustee committed a breach of trust from a mistake of his powers, he was made to pay costs. E. Poulet v. Herbert, 1 Ves. 297. TRUSTEE.

Costs of course, out of the fund to agents, receivers, and trustees, who have accounted fairly, and paid money into court. Costs cannot be given to a college individually, nor as a corporation, unless proved so. Att. Gen. v. City of London, 1 Ves. J. 246. 8 C. 3 Bro. C. C. 171. TRUST.

Where an executor had spent more about the legate than the amount of the legacy, the court thought it too hard to give costs against him, though there was a decree for the payment of the legacy. Davies v. Austen, 1 Ves. 241. EXOR.

An executor who ought to have been a co-plaintiff, was made a defendant, and Ld. Chancellor for some time, doubted whether he was entitled to his costs; but at length ordered them to be paid to him. Blount v. Burrow, 3 Bro. C. C. 90. EXOR.; PL. PARTY.

Executor having three guineas per annum for collecting rents, a trustee as to the residue of personal estate: and not having brought an action to recover a bond debt, was charged therewith: having put the next of kin to prove their relationship, ordered to pay the costs of taking the accounts. Lawson v. Copeland, 2 Bro. C. C. 156. EXORS., LIABILITY OF; EXORS. BENEFICIALLY INTERESTED.

A bill being made necessary by a trustee's refusal to join in a conveyance, the court was of opinion that the trustee should pay the costs of the suit. The decree was, that plaintiff should pay the costs of all the other defendants, and have them over from the trustee. Jones v. Lewis, 1 Cox, 199. TRUSTEE.

It is a general rule that an executor is entitled to costs as far as goes to the taking the account; but where an executor by his delay had caused all the expences, except the taking the first account, the court said they could not separate the expences, and therefore gave him no costs. Newton v. Bennett, 1 Bro. C. C. 362. EXOR.

Executors usually are to be exempt from paying costs, even though great difficulties and delay have been occasioned by them; for the court will overlook these circumstances, if it can. Hall v. Hallet, 1 Cox, 141. Id.

Executor as such, employing solicitor, is allowed his costs. Macnamara v. Jones, Dick. 587.

Where a debt of a testator is recovered against an executor at law, costs are given de bonis propriis; but in equity it is discretionary whether the executors shall pay costs or not. Uvedale v. Uvedale, 3 Atk. 119. EXOR.

Costs were given personally against an executor up to the decree, when the defence was on a wrong foot, and the answer evasive and contradictory. Reich v. Kennigall, 1 Ves. 124. So, where an executor has obtained a release of a legacy without any consideration. Horsley v. Chaloner, 2 Ves. 84. EXOR.

Though executors are not to pay costs, yet they shall not be allowed any, because they are supposed to reimburse themselves by the credit they take in the account kept by them. Humphrys v. Moore, 2 Atk. 108. EXORS.

Though an administrator is entitled to his costs up to the account, the subsequent costs will be reserved, if his conduct be such as to induce the court to do so. Landon v. Green, Barn. 389. ADMIN.

If trustee files bill, and brings cestuique trust before court for his own private interest, he shall pay whole costs of suit. Henley v. Philips, 2 Atk. 48. TRUSTEE.

Where the estates of two testators have been blended, so as to create confusion, the executor of an executor shall be excused costs, though it appeared he had assets enough to pay the plaintiff's debt. Sandys v. Watson, 2 Atk. 80. EXOR. LIABILITY OF.

Where a trustee by his improper conduct occasions the necessity of the suit, he shall pay the costs. Fell v. Luthwidge, Barn. 319. TRUSTEE.

If an executor commit a fraud, he will not be allowed costs out of the estate, though the testator has directed that his executors, for any expences they might be put to, should be allowed their costs out of his estate. Hide v. Heywood, 2 Atk. 126. FRAUD; EXECUTORS.

It is not an invariable rule, that an administrator should be allowed costs, at all events. Wilkins v. Hunt, 2 Atk. 151. ADMINISTRATOR.

The rule in relation to costs, to be paid by an executor defendant is the same in equity as at law. Jeffries v. Harrison, 1 Atk. 468. EXOR.

An executor filed a bill to prove the will against the heir, and to have a defective surrender supplied, charging that the estate was otherwise insufficient. The heir, by a cross bill, insisted that there was more than sufficient to pay all the debts, exclusive of the copyhold not surrendered; whereupon the original bill was dismissed with costs against the executor as to that point; because the executor confessed the matter in a second answer to the cross bill, but had suppressed it in the first answer, and charged the contrary in the original bill. Mallabar v. Mallabar, Ca. temp. Talb. 79. Id.

A trustee misbehaving himself, ordered to pay costs out of his own pocket, and not out of the trust estate. Lloyd v. Spillet, 3 P. W. 347. Fell v. Lutwidge, Barn. 314. S. P. TRUSTEE.

Bill for an account against an administrator; the master reported assets sufficient in defendant's hands. Costs given generally against defendant, and not out of assets; as at law, when defendant pleads plene admin., judgment is given de bonis propriis, si non, &c. Davy v. Seys, Mos. 204. Prissick v. Viguere, Colles' P. C. 346. ADMOR.

Corporation nominating schoolmaster, contrary to the particular tenor of their charter, are liable to costs. Town of Salop v. Att. Gen. 1 Bro. P. C. 402. CORPORATION.

Governors of a charity, though not guilty of corruption, yet if extremely negligent, to pay costs. East v. Hyal, 2 P. W. 284. CHURCH.

Executor brings a very frivolous bill, which was dismissed with costs out of the assets. Cole v. Rumney, Sel. Ca. Ch. 62. EXOR.

A, on death bed, desires executor not to trouble B for bond debt, executor puts bond in suit; bond ordered to be delivered up to be cancelled, and costs paid by executor of law and equity, but reversed as to costs. Wekett v. Raby, 2 Bro. P. C. 386. EXOR. BOND; WAIVER OF; DEEDS, DELIVERY UP TO BE CANCELLED.

Bill by an administrator. Defendant demurs, and the demurrer is allowed. Bill dismissed with costs, and so said to be the constant course in equity. Frazer v. Moore, Bunn. 63. ADMOR.

Corporation being trustees for charity, and in possession of charity estate, and suppressing or concealing evidence relating to charity are liable to costs of suit. Borough of Hertford v. Poor of Hertford, 2 Bro. P. C. 377. TRUSTEES, LIABILITY OF; FRAUD; CONCEALMENT OF EVIDENCE.

Where executors make an unfair appraisalment, and otherwise misbehave themselves in their trust, they shall be liable to costs. Sheppard v. Smith, 2 Bro. P. C. 372. EXORS.

If a bill be filed against a trustee for an account, to which he submits by his answer, though on taking the account he be found in debt, yet he shall not pay costs unless he has misbehaved himself. Parrot v. Treby, 1 Eq. Abr. 125. Pre. Ch. 254. S. C. TRUSTEE.

Where trustees of charity mismanage fund, and neglect its objects, held, liable personally for deficiency, and to pay costs of suit. Harbardscher's Company v. Att. Gen., 2 Bro. P. C. 370. TRUSTEES, LIABILITY OF.

Where an answer of an executrix was falsified by proof, and she appeared to have acted fraudulently, she was made to pay costs. Vaughan v. Thurston, Colles' P. C. 175. EXOR.

Executors guilty of a breach of trust, ordered to pay costs. Order confirmed on appeal, with a direction that the costs having been taxed ex parte, the court should send them back to the master to be related. Bretland v. Cope, Colles' P. C. 97. Id.

Bill for a residue. Defendant, the executor, by his answer stated declarations of the testatrix that her other relations should have no more than their express legacies, and hoped to prove that the surplus was intended for the executor. He was made to pay costs for thus insisting on the surplus. Bayly v. Powell, Pre. Ch. 92. 2 Vern. 361. Id.

(1) Exceptions allowed or overruled.

Costs upon exceptions were submitted to before order of reference; and where some exceptions allowed and others disallowed upon reference. General Rule, Nov. 12, 1803. 1 Sch. & L. 241.

The deposit on filing exceptions with the register to be 5*l.* Ord. Ch. 21st July, 1710. Beame's Ord. 320. So for every exception, or branch of an exception that shall be overruled as frivolous, the exceptant shall pay 20*s.* costs, and for every exception or branch, though not opened, but waived, 10*s.* costs, over and above the 5*l.* deposit. Ord. Ch. 21st July, 1710. Beame's Ord. 320. Vide Read v. Ward, Dick. 111.

Where a great number of exceptions were taken to an answer, and shortly before the argument the defendant submitted to answer them, in consequence of which it was urged, that the answer was clearly evasive, and that the ordinary costs were greatly inadequate, yet the court refused to give extra costs, but reserved the consideration of them until the hearing of the cause. Atwood v. Small, 2 Y. & J. 72.

Where exceptions are taken to the master's certificate of the taxation of costs, on the ground that he has not charged the solicitor with all the monies received by him, with which he ought to have been charged, and such exceptions are allowed, and the master directed to review his report, in that respect the court does not give the exceptant the costs of such proceedings, on the ground that they are necessary to correct a mistake, or misapprehension of the master. Wright v. Southwood, 1 Y. & J. 527. PR. EXCEPTIONS TO MASTER'S CERTIFICATE.

Court refused to allow defendant costs, in case where only four out of thirty-five exceptions taken were allowed, five only having been argued, and one of those overruled. Daniel v. Bishop, 13 Price, 15.

The course of the court is to allow 40*s.* on overruling exceptions, and 60*s.* on allowing. Id. ib.

When several exceptions are taken to an answer, and the master reports the answer insufficient, and one general exception is taken to his report, and some of the exceptions to the answer are allowed, some disallowed, and some waived, the court in its discretion may order the deposit to be divided. Dawson v. Busk, 2 Madd. 184.

Exception to the report and in general terms, that the master had reported the examination insufficient, whereas he ought to have reported it sufficient, is regular, but not to be enlarged, and therefore being overruled, costs beyond the deposit were given. Purcell v. McNamara, 12 Ves. 166. PR. EXCEPTIONS TO MASTER'S REPORT; PR. EXCEPTIONS, DEPOSIT ON.

Nine exceptions were taken to each answer in two cases which came on to be argued at the same time, and were all overruled. Plaintiff was ordered to pay 10*l.* costs in each case. Gwynn v. Ansell, 2 Fowl. 9.

If a bill be referred for scandal and impertinence, and so reported, exceptions being taken to the report and allowed, the plaintiff shall have the costs of the reference; but he shall not, on exceptions being allowed to the master's report of irregularity. Broomfield v. Chisster, Amb. 466. PR. EXCEPTIONS TO MASTER'S REPORT.

Exceptions were taken to an answer, which was accordingly reported insufficient; but on exceptions the court held it sufficient. The party succeeding in the application is not entitled to costs, but they shall wait the event of the suit. Anon. 3 Atk. 235.

Exceptants to a decree of charitable uses were allowed costs on those exceptions on which they prevailed, and on those where they did not; the respondents were held entitled to costs. Corp. of Burford v. Lenthall, 2 Atk. 551.

Exceptions being frivolous, exceptants to pay 20s. for every exception overruled, and 10s. for every one waived. Read v. Ward, Dick. 110.

(u) Heir at Law.

Heir at law is usually entitled to an issue devis. vel non, and is not liable to pay costs, notwithstanding the issue is found against him and will established. Tucker v. Sanger, 1 M. Cl. & Y. 425. S. C. 13 Price, 609. ISSUE DEVIS. VEL NON.

In suit against heir at law to establish will, if he examines witnesses in chief, he must pay his own costs. He is in no such case made to pay the costs of others. Id. 445. lb.

In what cases an heir at law is refused his costs in an issue devis. vel non. Id. 439. 445. lb. ISSUE DEVIS. VEL NON.

In a charity cause, costs as between attorney and client, to the heir, making no improper point. Currie v. Pye, 17 Ves. 462.

Heir at law defendant, contesting the will and failing, but establishing a claim in the cause, as creditor, against testator's estate, charged with payment of his debts, is entitled to his costs. Burne v. Breene, 1 Ball & B. 308.

Heir at law, defendant, desiring an issue upon a will, in which he failed, entitled to his costs in equity; no costs on either side as to the issue; ordered to pay costs of a groundless motion for a new trial. White v. Wilson, 13 Ves. 87. ISSUE AT LAW.

Heir at law has a right to his costs, though he cross-examine plaintiff's witnesses; but if he examine witnesses on his own part, he shall not have costs as to that. Vaughan v. Fitzgerald, 1 Scho. & L. 316.

Where an heir at law is brought by order before the court, though there is no resulting trust in his favour, he shall have his costs. Att. Gen. v. Haberdasher's Comp., 4 Bro. C. C. 178.

Bill of heir at law against devisee where vexatious, dismissed with costs. Soul v. Brownton, 3 Bro. C. C. 214. VEXATION.

Heir at law raising a point against a will and failing, costs were refused to and against him; but an executor or trustee merely submitting a point for opinion of court, though he fail, they shall have costs. Rashleigh v. Master, 1 Ves. J. 205. S. C. 3 Bro. C. C. 99. EXOR. & TRUSTEE.

The devisee for a mortgagee filed his bill against the heir and executor of the mortgagor, for a foreclosure, and also made the heir of the mortgagee a party in order to establish the will against him. This latter party cannot have his costs out of the estate. Skipp v. Wyatt, 1 Cox, 353. HEIR AT LAW; MORTGAGEE & MORTGAGE.

Bill by devisee against heir at law to establish will and execute trusts, but prays no more; plaintiff to pay costs. Brown v. Bagn, Dick. 300.

Bill established against heir at law's bill, he pays costs at law and equity; but on bill by devisee, no costs on either side. Johnson v. Gardner, Dick. 313. S. P. Quirk v. Boteval, Dick. 396.

Reference before master in favour of defendant on exceptions, overruled. Defendant does not pay costs of reference. Sterens v. Long, id. 282.

Bill by disinherited heir at law, to have inspection of deeds, dismissed without costs. Lemon v. Allen, Amb. 163. INSPECTION OF DEED.

If heir at law bring bill for discovery, it is not of course that he shall pay costs; but he shall be allowed to amend, and pray inspection of deeds. Id. 163. DISCOVERY.

Costs given to heir at law where he brings bill to dispute will, or bill against him to establish it. Blinkehome v. Feast, Dick. 153.

Otherwise if heir at law infant. Id. lb.

The court will give costs against an heir in case of spoliation, or secreting of a will. Berney v. Eyre, 3 Atk. 387.

An heir is entitled to his costs, for it is the law which casts the descent upon him; but otherwise, as to an executor, because he may renounce. Humphrey v. Morse, 2 Atk. 408. Biddulph v. Biddulph, 2 P. W. 285. Uvedale v. Uvedale, 3 Atk. 119. HEIR & EXECUTOR.

But if an heir brings a bill to set aside a will for insanity, instead of an ejectment, he shall pay costs if he fails. Webb v. Clavenden, 2 Atk. 424.

An heir at law is made a defendant and insists on his title, he shall have his costs though it goes against him, but if an heir at law be plaintiff, and miscarries in his suit, he shall not have costs, but on his suit appearing to be groundless, shall pay costs. Luxton v. Stephens, 3 P. W. 373.

Bill by devisee against an heir to prove a will as the heir, he cross-examines the plaintiff's witness, and refuses to release his right, yet the heir shall have his costs given him on motion, otherwise if he examines witnesses of his own. Biddulph v. Biddulph, 2 P. W. 285.

Heir at law, or heir-male, to the honour of the family, if probable cause to contend for the family estate, shall not pay costs. Shules v. Barrington, 1 P. W. 482.

Heir at law disputing will, though on trial there were shown no ground for disputing it, yet held he was entitled to his costs at law and equity. Crew v. Jolliff, Pruc. Chan. 93. ISSUE AT LAW.

(v) Husband and Wife.

Husband and wife defendants; husband without order for wife to answer separately, puts in separate answers, stating wife not to live with him, and he had no controul, &c. He being taken on attachment for want of wife's answer; ordered to be discharged, and wife to answer separately, and indemnify husband as to costs. Garey v. Whittingham, 1 S. & S. 163. PR. ANSWER; PR. INDEMNITY.

The separate property of a wife in the hands of the court, is liable to the costs of a suit instituted by her touching that property. Barlee v. Barlee, id. 100.

Settlement on marriage, of stock belonging to the wife in trust, after death of the wife, if the husband survived, for him for life, if no issue, the whole to re-vest in the wife, with power of appointment, if none to her next of kin. The wife eloped, and lived in adultery; on the bill of the husband to have the dividends paid to him during their joint lives, evidence of such intent, or that they should be to the separate use of the wife, refused; but held to belong to the husband for the mutual support of both. Demond, that the costs and also the expences of the husband in a groundless suit instituted against him by the wife in the ecclesiastical court, should be paid out of the accumulation, and the only surviving trustee appearing not to be indifferent, that the future dividends should be paid into court. Ball v. Montgomery, 2 Ves. J. 191. 4 Bro. C. C. 339. EVIDENCE; ADULTERY.

Where a husband had by imposition induced his wife to transfer part of her separate property to him, on a bill by her against him for a specific performance of an agreement before marriage, he was made to pay costs on account of the fraud. Lampert v. Lampert, 1 Ves. J. 31.

Wife cannot be taken in execution for costs. Jones v. Champion, Dick. 160.

Bill by husband (who was also administrator of his wife) to be relieved against a bond given by the wife to her aunt before marriage, without the intended husband's knowledge. The bill was dismissed, because a consideration was sworn to in the answer; but the court would have excused the husband the costs, had he not been liable to them as administrator to his wife, who, if she had survived her husband, could not have said her aunt should lose her costs, because of that concealment, which was at the wife's own request. Blanchet v. Foster, 2 Ves. 264.

Bill to establish a purchase from a wife, of separate estate, without the trustees joining. The court decreed a specific performance, and gave costs as against the husband, but refused them as against the wife. Grigby v. Cor, 1 Ves. 517.

Where a feme covert has been guilty of fraud, solely without the husband, no precedent of his paying costs. Cotton v. Luttrell, 1 Atk. 453.

Bill by husband and wife for a legacy given to the wife. Defendant, the executor, had offered, before the bill filed, and again by his answer, to pay the legacy on plaintiff's making a proper settlement on his wife. The court refused costs on either side, because a man ought not to pay costs for insisting on a right which the law gives him; but the settlement was ordered to be made at the husband's own charge. Brown v. Eaton, 3 P. W. 202.

Bill for redemption by a husband and wife, to which defendant put in a plea which was overruled, with the usual costs to plaintiffs. The husband then died. The wife held entitled to the costs by survivorship. Coppin v. ———, 2 P. W. 496.

Feme sole brings bill, and pending the suit marries, and her husband and wife bring bill of revivor and obtain decree with costs. They shall have costs for the whole suit, except the bill of revivor. D'Urban v. Knight, 1 Vern. 318. PR. ABATMENT & REVIVOR.

Wife sues out subpoena as single, she being at time married. Husband and wife must pay costs. Hastings v. Jugges, Cary, 36. S. P. Piers v. Guesc, id. 139.

(w) Incumbrancers, mortgagor and mortgagee, and equitable mortgage.

Where a prior decree had ordered the costs of a defendant mortgagee to be taxed, he will be entitled to his costs, though it appears at the hearing on further directions, that his debt was paid off before the commencement of the suit, and that he had set up an improper defence. Wilson v. Metcalf, 1 Russ. 530.

Where legacy is charged on land, and price of land is insufficient to pay legacy, a mortgagee of devisee of land shall not be allowed his costs in a suit against him and devisee for raising and payment of the legacy. Shackleton v. Shackleton, 2 S. & S. 242.

Mortgagee in possession is in general entitled to his costs incurred in that character, but is charged with costs occasioned by his conduct when overpaid. Archdeacon v. Bowes, 1 McClell. 149. 167. S. C. 13 Price, 353.

Under a bill by a second incumbrancer, a receiver being appointed, and the first incumbrancer taking the benefit of the suit, the costs are to be paid in the first instance, before the demand of the first incumbrancer. White v. Bp. of Peterborough, 1 Jac. 402.

Mortgagee resisting the right to redemption, on the ground of a decree of foreclosure collusively obtained, decreed to pay so much of the costs as was occasioned by his resistance. Harrey v. Tebbutt, 1 Jac. & W.

197. MORTGAGE, REDEMPTION OF, FRAUD, DECREE BY.

A case nom. Taylor v. Baker, lately decided (Exch.) was cited in S. C. in which defendant was a first mortgagee, plaintiff a second; defendant took from the mortgagor an agreement for charging another sum on the premises. In his answer he denied notice of the second security, and having got the legal estate, attempted to tack the subsequent advance to his mortgage. Plaintiff however proved notice upon him, and the court, for his fraudulently setting up the second agreement, made him pay the costs.

The costs of the committee of a lunatic trustee, incurred on the petition for him to reconvey, and of the reference, are to be paid out of the lunatic's estate, whether the application be made by the mortgagor, or by the committee, which is the usual course. Exp. Richards, 1 Jac. & W. 264.

On motion for reference, under 7 Geo. 2. c. 20., the court refused to direct master to take into account costs incurred at law, no mention of proceedings at law having been made in the bill; but leave was given to amend bill in that respect, and motion to stand over in meantime. Millard v. Mayor, 3 Mad. 433. PR. REFERENCE TO MASTER; MORTGAGE, FORECLOSURE OF.

Equitable mortgagee by deposit of deeds, with a writing expressing the terms of the deposit, is entitled on a petition in bankruptcy for a sale, to have his costs out of the produce of mortgaged premises. Scrus, if no such writing. Exp. Trex, 3 Mad. 372. See also Exp. Harris, cited id. Exp. Sikes, Buck. 349. BANKCY; EQUITABLE MORTGAGE.

Mortgagee on bill to redeem insisted that heir at law was living. Master, on reference, reported him dead. Exceptions were twice taken thereto, and issue directed, by which he was also found to be dead. Mortgagee not to pay costs of issue, as it was not vexatious, so long as court thought necessary to direct issue. Wilson v. Metcalf, 3 Mad. 45. ISSUE AT LAW; VEXATION.

Where a sale or mortgage is a fraud on prior incumbrancer, court will give costs against vendee or mortgagee, on setting aside the deeds. Taylor v. Baker, 5 Price, 306. SETTING ASIDE DEEDS OBTAINED BY FRAUD.

A purchaser of property collaterally charged to secure a bond debt, for which he mortgages the purchased estate, and pays the remainder of the purchase money, is not entitled to insist on having the property reconveyed to him, free of incumbrance, before he pays the sum so secured by mortgage; and if he file a bill to have the estate reconveyed to him, a declaration of court as to the persons entitled to receive the money, where there are two sets of claimants, he will be considered as merely a mortgagor, filing bill to redeem, and must pay all costs, although he has paid the money into court. Drew v. Henson, 5 Price, 319. VIND. & PURCH.

Mortgagor filing bill to redeem must pay costs of persons claiming under the mortgage. Whetherell v. Collins, 3 Mad. 255.

On a petition for the sale of mortgaged premises by an equitable mortgagee, under a written agreement for a mortgage, the petitioner is entitled to costs. Exp. Brighten, 1 Swan. 3. Buck, 148. S. C. PR. PETITION FOR SALE; EQUITABLE MORTGAGE.

Equitable mortgagee is not entitled to costs on application for sale of pledge, &c. though it is owing to bankrupt that no regular mortgage was made. Anon. 2 Mad. 281. BANKCY. PETITIONS; EQUITABLE MORTGAGE.

Equitable mortgagee praying sale of mortgaged estate, pays costs of petition, and of assignees' appearance to it, not out of produce of mortgaged estate, but personally; but if assignees oppose petition on frivolous or mistaken grounds, they pay costs occasioned by such opposition. Exp. Horne, 1 Mad. 622. BANKCY., SALE IN; EQUITABLE MORTGAGE.

Equitable mortgagee must pay the costs of his petition for sale. Exp. Warry, 19 Ves. 472. BANKCY. PETITION; EQUITABLE MORTGAGE.

On a bill for an account against a bailiff, an issue was directed, in which defendant was found to be a mortgagee, and plaintiff amended his bill accordingly. The court, on motion before hearing, held defendant entitled to all the costs sustained by him up to the time of amendment, beyond what he would have been put to, if the bill had been originally a bill for a foreclosure, such as the costs of the issue and of the application. Smith v. Smith, Coop. 141.

Mortgagee, under circumstances, not allowed his costs. — v. Trechthick, 2 V. & B. 181.

Usual decree for redemption and account, against mortgagee in possession, who had been overpaid, but there being no reservation in the decree as to costs, and the redemption being decreed on payment of principal, interest, and costs, defendant was declared entitled to his costs. Trimleston v. Hamill, 1 Ball & B. 377. 386.

Defendant by his fraudulent conduct, though considered as mortgagee in possession, deprived of his costs. Morony v. O'Dea, 1 Ball & B. 169. FRUD.

Under the bill by the mortgagee, the second and third mortgagees came in to be paid, the first being deficient, the costs were paid in the last place. Kenebel v. Scribner, 13 Ves. 370.

A mortgagee is always entitled to costs, unless there be positive misconduct on his part. Lofius v. Swift, 2 Scho. & L. 642.

Mortgagee allowed costs of procuring administration to an incumbrancer, under will of mortgagor, as a necessary party to foreclosure. Hunt v. Foxnes, 9 Ves. 70. ACCOUNT.

Mortgagee, though generally entitled to costs, is deprived of them, if they be occasioned by improper conduct, and even then he may pay costs. Detillin v. Gale, 7 Ves. 581.

Bill to redeem, and to order it to master to take account, &c. The report finds mortgagee overpaid; it is too late to object to his having his costs. Gilbert v. Colbidge, 2 Anst. 442.

In Woodroff v. Soys, Beame's Costs, 43, it is said that if a mortgagee contrive to hold the land after he is satisfied by perception of profits, the mortgagor coming to redeem will be entitled to costs instead of paying them.

After a bill of foreclosure filed by the assignee of a mortgagee, a tender of what was due to the mortgagee with costs up to that time, deprives the assignee of subsequent costs. Williams v. Sorrell, 4 Ves. 389.

Bill of foreclosure dismissed with costs so far as it sought to tack a bond to a mortgage against creditors. Hamerton v. Rogers, 1 Ves. J. 612.

Bill of foreclosure by devise of a mortgagee, against the heir and executor of the mortgagor, the mortgagee's heir being also made a party, to have the will established again. Plaintiff must pay the heir his costs, and he shall not be entitled to have them over from the estate, the heir being a necessary party, by reason of the mortgagee's disposition of his property. Skipper v. Watt, 1 Ves. 53. So in Heatherell v. Collins, 3 Mad. 2. On a bill to redeem, costs were allowed to the assignee in trust of the mortgagee, and to the cestui que trust.

A mortgagee insisted on a payment of a lease as absolute, when it appeared on evidence it was intended to be a mortgage only. Per cur. It would be going too far to make the assignee pay the costs; but he certainly has forfeited his own costs. Franklin v. Fern, Barn. 30.

And where on a bill for redemption defendant had insisted on deeds which were intended only to be mortgages, as absolute conveyances, he was ordered to pay plaintiff's costs. England v. Codrington, 1 Eden, 174.

Where a mortgagee and real creditor is brought before the court to have his security impeached, if the bill is dismissed, there is hardly an instance in which it is not with costs. Diet. in Tanner v. Irie, 2 Ves. 467. Vide Lewis v. Hyde, 2 Vern. 185, where a mortgagee, defendant in equity, was allowed his costs in an action at law brought against him to set his security aside.

Where tenant by elegit has received rents and profits beyond the debt, though he shall account to the debtor, yet he shall not pay costs. In such case appeal may be for the costs only, where defendant decreed to pay them. Orren v. Griffith, Anbl. 520. S. C. 1 Ves. 249. ERROR; ACCOUNT; PR. APPEAL.

There are several cases of mortgages in which, though very reasonable proposals may be made, yet if no proof of actual tender, the court, on a bill to foreclose, will not refuse costs. Diet. in Gammon v. Stone, 1 Ves. 339. But in Detillin v. Gale, 1 d. Eldon mentioned a case of Shuttleworth v. Lawther, in which a mortgagee was made to pay costs on the ground of a tender, and an appropriation of the money, which was paid into the bank, and refused.

On decreeing a redemption, the court refused costs on either side, for though naturally the costs follow the redemption, the right to redeem had been disputed, and it was a doubtful title. Kirkham v. Smith, 1 Ves. 258.

Mortgage redemption resisted, and mortgagee ordered to pay costs. Baker v. Wand, 1 Ves. 160.

If on a bill to redeem, the usual decree and reference are made, and a day appointed to redeem, if the mortgagor does not redeem on the day, the court will dismiss the bill with costs to be taxed, considering the reference as a subsequent proceeding beyond the bill and answer. Diet. in Neusham v. Gray, 2 Atk. 286.

On a bill to foreclose, the court refused to order defendant, in case he redeemed, to pay the costs of a cross cause which he had brought to redeem, and which was still depending, because the court could take no notice that there was such a cause depending. Anon. Mos. 45. See a dict. in Howard v. Queen's Trustees, 2 Mod. 173, that if a mortgagor be foreclosed, he pays no costs.

Mortgagee shall not operate his pledge with costs, which he occasions by an unjust defence. Mecatt v. Almgatroyd, 1 P. W. 395. ACCOUNT.

A mortgagee is always considered as prima facie entitled to costs, unless there be some circumstance of positive misconduct. Anon. 2 Eq. Ab. 237. Gammon v. Stone, 1 Ves. 339. Lofius v. Swift, 2 Scho. & L. 657. Detillin v. Gale, 7 Ves. 581, in which case the court said it was admitted that there is no instance in which a mortgagee has been called on to pay costs, and it is clear as to some he cannot, for some are the necessary effect of the suit to redeem; but it is not of necessity that because he is mortgagee, he is to have his costs; certainly, so long as he acts reasonably, he ought to be indemnified from the expence of delivering the estate from the incumbrance the owner himself put upon it.

Where a mortgagor only joined in the sale of lands, the bill being for that end, he shall not pay costs. Anon. 2 Eq. Ab. 237.

On a bill by an heir to redeem, the mortgagee was allowed the costs of defending an action at law, brought against him by the heir, who endeavoured to defeat the mortgage by a supposed entail; and also the costs of taking out administration as principal creditor.

ditor of the mortgagor. Ramsden v. Langley, 2 Vern. 536.

The second mortgagee brings a bill to redeem the first mortgagee, who had been put to great charge in foreclosing the mortgagor. Held, the costs which the first mortgagee has been put to shall not be taxed as in case of an adversary's suit, but he shall be allowed all his costs and charges, as is done in case of a solicitor who lays out money for his client, and the profits of the mortgaged premises shall be first applied to pay off those costs before they go to sink the principal. Jomar v. Hyde, 2 Vern. 185.

(x) Infant, pr. ami, and guardian.

Infant coming of age may dismiss bill filed for him, but cannot make prochain ami pay costs, unless he prove suit improperly instituted. Anon. 4 Mad. 461. INFANT PROCHAIN AMI.

The next friend of an infant plaintiff cannot move that another may be substituted for him; for the court will not then allow him, by withdrawing himself, to escape from costs to which he may be liable. Melling v. Melling, 4 Mad. 261.

In El. Orford v. Churchill, 3 Ves. & B. 59, 71. on a bill to have the rights of parties under a settlement ascertained, the costs of an unsuccessful infant defendant, as between solicitor and client, were pressed for out of the general fund; but they were thrown upon the infant's share.

Motion by a plaintiff, that the name of a co-plaintiff, as a next friend, might be struck out, and a new next friend substituted, on the ground that the evidence of the next friend was necessary, granted, on the terms that the next friend should give security for the costs incurred in his time. Witts v. Campbell, 12 Ves. 493.

An infant trustee ordered to convey under the statute of Anne, is entitled to his necessary costs. The Ld. Ch. said, that in taxing them, the master would not allow any thing that was not necessary, as for instance, a brief to counsel to consent for an infant, to which no attention could be paid. Exp. Cant, 10 Ves. 554.

An application being made by a trustee for costs as between attorney and client, the court said that, with regard to an infant, the question is, whether charges not coming strictly under the head of costs, cannot be given under just allowances; for as the infant himself cannot incur charges and expences, if they cannot be claimed under just allowances, and the next friend is to be at the whole expence of the infant beyond the costs, persons will deliberate before they accept that office. Fearns v. Young, 10 Ves. 184.

Where a bill on behalf of infants was dismissed on a fact which might have been previously known, had the next friend used reasonable diligence, he was refused costs out of the infant's estate. Pearce v. Pearce, 9 Ves. 548.

A continued employment of an attorney by infant client, after the latter comes of age may amount to an undertaking to pay a prior bill of costs. Guy v. Burgess, 1 Smith. 117. INFANT; SOLIC. & CLIENT.

Motion by a prochain ami, that in some way he might have costs beyond taxed costs. Per M. R. If the prochain ami is to a certainty to have all that exceeds the taxed costs, that leads him to be very careless: the inquiry could be only what was properly expended, the Ld. Ch. has refused such a reference. No order was made. Osborne v. Denne, 7 Ves. 424.

Writ of ne exeat regno obtained by a resident here, against a resident in the West Indies, upon a demand arising there, when the answer came in was discharged under the circumstances with costs, against the prochain ami of the infant plaintiff, but upon the admissions in the answer the defendant was ordered to give security to abide the decrees. Roddam v. Hetherington, 5 Ves. 91. NE EXEAT REGNO; FOREIGNER; PROCHAIN AMI.

Motion by defendant after answer, that plaintiff should name a new next friend of sufficient ability to pay costs, it appearing by affidavits, that when the answer was put in, defendant had not found out the next friend, who now turned out to be worth nothing. On the other side were produced affidavits that the next friend had a clear income of 44l. a year. Ld. Ch. said, the circumstance that defendant could not find the next friend, would have been a better ground than that he has found her with such an income: I doubt whether a next friend ought to be discharged on account of poverty. But here defendant need not have answered; he should have said, he had taken pains to find out the next friend, and could not. It is very clear a next friend would not be allowed to sue in forma pauperis. I think it very dangerous to displace a next friend, though perhaps there may be a case gross enough for it; but here every thing is in favour of the next friend, who swears affirmatively she has 44l. a year, while defendant only swears negatively. Motion refused. Anon. 1 Ves. J. 409.

Motion after answer, that a prochain ami might give security for costs, or another be named, on the ground that he was in indigent circumstances, refused, Ld. Thurlow saying, he did not think the court could enquire into the circumstances of a prochain ami, any more than it could into those of any common plaintiff. Squirrel v. Squirrel, 2 P. W. 297. (n). 2 Dick. 765. S. C. See Beame's Costs, 188.

The costs of the petition are to be allowed to the guardian in his accounts. Exp. Saller, 3 Bro. C. C. 500. Vide S. C. 2 Dick. 769. GUARDIAN, APPOINTMENT OF.

Nothing short of a dishonest intention will be sufficient to fix a prochain ami personally with costs; no degree of mistake, nor misapprehension will be sufficient. Whittaker v. Marlur, 1 Cox, 285. PROCHAIN AMI.

In this case the prochain ami produced a written avowal by the solicitor, that the suit was commenced without the privity of the prochain ami, but the court said it could take no notice of the question as between prochain ami and the solicitor, but must take it to be the act of the prochain ami, who ought to make a direct application against the solicitor, if he had acted improperly. S. C.

Motion on infant's behalf to restrain defendant executor from receiving more of personal estate, and rents and profits of real estate, and for receiver; prochain ami, ordered to pay costs of motion refused. Buckley v. Buckridge, Dick. 395.

The next friend of an infant allowed costs, though the bill had been dismissed, the master having previously reported the suit for the infant's benefit. Tanner v. Irie, 2 Ves. 466. S. C. Dick. 168. PROCHAIN AMI.

Petition by prochain ami that the infant, being now come of age, might repay him the costs expended in the suit: ordered to show cause. Brown v. Jones, 2 Fowl. Ex. Pr. 375.

Infant defendant pays no costs of contempt. Perkins v. Hamond, Dick. 287.

Plaintiff pays costs of messenger against infant. Id. ib.

A prochain ami need not be a relation, but then he must be a person of substance, because liable to costs. Anon. 1 A. 670.

It seems that had the infant proceeded in the cause, he would have been liable to the whole costs. Vide Rodsd. pl. 21, 124. In Morgan v. Compton, 2 Fowl. 376. an infant dying before costs, which were ordered to be paid on a dismissal, were taxed, a motion that the next friend might pay them, was denied.

Bill by an infant dismissed for want of prosecution, but before the costs were taxed; the infant died; it was admitted, that by the death of the prochain ami, the costs would have been lost, and so they are by the death of the infant. S. C. Bunb. 332.

A feme covert had by her prochain ami brought her bill against her husband, but suspecting collusion between her husband and the next friend, after a considerable progress in the suit, she moved to change the next friend, which the court allowed, on the new one's entering into a recognizance to answer the costs and abide the event. Lawley v. Halpen, Bunb. 310.

By the decree in a suit on behalf of infants, the money recovered was brought into court, and put out for the benefit of the infants, defendant to pay the costs. He having absconded, a motion by the solicitor for the plaintiff, in which he was joined by prochain ami, the father of the infant, who was very poor, was granted, that the solicitor might be paid his costs out of the money in court. Staines v. Muddox, Mos. 319.

On affidavit that one named next friend to an infant had absconded, and was not worth any thing, it was ordered that he should give security for costs, the quantum to be settled by the master, and all proceedings stayed in the mean time. Wile v. Kutter, Mos. 47.

So on a motion that a next friend might give security for costs, or a new one be appointed, on the ground that the one in this case was a privileged person, the court refused to grant such a motion, except on affidavit that the next friend is in mean and doubtful circumstances. Anon. Mos. 86. Vide Squirrel v. Squirrel, 2 P. W. 297. (n). 2 Dick. 766.

An infant by prochain ami brings a bill, and never stirs in it after he comes of age, and the bill is dismissed. The infant and prochain ami are both liable to pay costs. Turner v. Turner, 2 P. W. 297. S. C. Sel. Ca. in Cha. 49. 1 Stra. 708. 2 Eq. Ab. 238. INFANT; PR. AMI.

Decree against an infant and his trustees, that the costs should be paid out of the trust money, reversed, because the money was to be laid out in land, whereof the infant was only tenant for life. Peller v. Husband, 6 Vin. 365. pl. 10.

(y) Insufficiency of answer.

By the 16th Rule of the Exch. a defendant putting in a second insufficient answer shall pay double costs, as if the first answer had, on hearing, been held insufficient; and so on a third insufficient answer, treble costs; and on a fourth insufficient answer, defendant shall pay such costs as the court shall think fit, and stand committed, and to be examined on interrogatories. Kirkby's Ord. Exch. 10.

And by Order of the 31st April, 1700, after referring to the preceding order, it is ordered, that after a third insufficient answer, defendant shall be examined on interrogatories, and stand committed till answer, and not only pay 4*l.*, but such further costs as the court shall direct. Beame's Ord. 318.

If the first answer be ruled insufficient, defendant shall pay 40*s.* costs, if the answer was put in in person; if it came in by commission 50*s.*; on a second answer reported insufficient unto any of the points formerly certified, 3*l.*; on a third insufficient, 4*l.*; and on a fourth insufficient, 5*l.*, and be examined on interrogatories, and be committed till he has perfectly answered them. Beame's Ord. 183. Id. 29. S. P. Newl. Pr. 183. Wyl. Pr. Reg. 29. Harr. 200. Const v. Ebers, 1 Mad. 532.

If within eight days after service of exceptions defendant satisfies plaintiff of the invalidity of them, or amends his answer, or consents to do so within a certain time, and amends it accordingly, he shall pay 20*s.* costs; if he fail to do so, or puts in a second insufficient answer, plaintiff may get it referred, and if it be held insufficient, defendant shall pay 40*s.* costs. Beame's Ord. 182. Id. 78, 79. S. P.

If plaintiff procures a reference of an insufficient answer within the above time, and it be held good, he shall pay 40*s.* costs. Id. 182. So, in Beswick v. Fox, Toth. 86., if a man except to an answer and has it referred, and it falls out to be good, defendant shall have costs. See also Gilb. For. Rom. 103. S. P. Beame, 79. The reference shall in such case be void, as obtained surreptitiously.

If an answer be reported insufficient, plaintiff may immediately take out process against defendant for his costs, and to make a better answer. Beame's Ord. 210.

The general rule as to costs of insufficient answers. Const v. Ebers, 1 Mad. 530.

If the answer be reported sufficient, and on exceptions to the report is held insufficient, defendant is not to pay 40*s.*, the costs of an insufficient answer. Knightly v. Deacon, 1 Dick. 82.

Exceptions for insufficiency having been allowed to the answers, the plaintiff amended; defendant answered the amendments, to which answer exceptions were taken and allowed. The defendant shall pay costs as for a third insufficient answer. Harmes v. Immins, Bun. 203.

Plaintiff accepting a third answer before he receives the costs of the second, does not waive them. Brotherton v. Chance, id. 34.

(z) Interpleader.

Principle of interpleader that the defendant who improperly raises double claim, pays the costs; but the plaintiff who is considered as undertaking to bring the defendant before the court, must use reasonable diligence to get in the answer of one out of the jurisdiction; if he will not come in, the other who appears must have the stake, and the plaintiff will be protected; but whether he must not pay the costs, Qu.? Martinus v. Helmuth, cited in Stevenson v. Anderson, 2 V. & B. 412. note (1). 2nd edit.

The plaintiff in a bill of interpleader is not entitled, after replying to the answers, to move for his costs, but must set down the cause for hearing. Jones v. Gilham, Coop. 49. PR. REPLICATION.

A defendant in an interpleading suit, who, as a consignee of goods, stood in the character of trustee, was not allowed his costs, as between attorney and client, but as between party and party, according to the course of the court. Dunlop v. Hubbard, 19 Ves. 205.

Costs as between defendants to interpleading bill. Cocton v. Williams, 9 Ves. 107. PARTY DEFENDANT.

On bill of interpleader, defendant who made it necessary ordered to pay all costs. Plaintiff has lien upon fund paid into court for his costs. Aldridge v. Measer, 6 Ves. 418.

After the right is decided between the parties, the costs must be paid by the defendant who is found in the wrong, to the plaintiff and the other defendants. Dowson v. Hardcastle, 2 Cox, 278. S. C. 1 Ves. J. 368. S. P. Edensor v. Roberts, id. 280.

On a question in an interpleading suit, whether plaintiff should receive his costs out of the rents paid in, or await the event of the suit, and recover them against the parties who should ultimately appear to be wrong in the interpleader, the court said the tenants ought to have their costs in all events, and there being a fund in court, to be sure of them out of that fund. Aldrich v. Thompson, 2 Bro. C. C. 149.

Plaintiff in interpleader, if he behave properly, has costs from defendant who succeeds, and latter has plaintiff's costs and his own from unsuccessful defendant. Hendry v. Key, Dick. 291.

(an) Irregularity of process.

Notwithstanding an offer has been made to pay all the expenses which the party has been put to by the irregularity in issuing an attachment, he has a right to have the judgment of the court on the question of its regularity, and is, therefore, entitled to the costs of the motion for setting it aside. Fround v. Lawrence, 1 Jac. & W. 655. PR. ATTACHMENT.

Defendant, where plaintiff issues process to which he has no right, entitled to costs. Swift v. Swift, 1 Ball & B. 326.

(bb) Issue at Law.

See also PR. COSTS, 10. (u)

Vicar, after issue directed to try modus, suffering bill to be taken pro confesso, pays costs. Drake v. Smyth, 1 M'Clel. & Y. 380. TITHES.

As to costs of issue at law in general, relative to tithes, see id. ib.

Where, after two trials of an issue on modus, in both of which defendant (in equity) obtained verdicts, the court dismissed bill as to tithes, covered by modus with all costs at law and in equity, except the costs of the first trial of the issue, as to which they ordered each party to pay his own costs, the question raised by motion for new trial having been doubtful. Stuart v. Greenall, 13 Price, 755. S. C. 1 M'Clel. 705.

The verdict on the first trial of an issue in a title cause being for the defendant, in consequence of a misdirection of the judge, and on the second trial, being for the plaintiff, the costs of the suit of the motion for a new trial, and of the second trial, given against the defendant, but no costs given of the first trial. Beardlock v. Tyler, 1 Jac. 571.

New trial of an issue on the validity of a modus. Two new trials having been ordered for misdirection, and the verdict on the third trial, as in the two former, being in favour of the defendant, the plaintiff was ordered to pay the costs of the applications in equity, (except those of the first application to the Ld. Ch.) and the costs of the lost trial at law. White v. Tisle, 3 Swan. 342.

Where there are several issues, and some are found for plaintiff, and others for defendant, the parties will be allowed costs on issues found in their favour, and must pay in those against them. Prevoost v. Bennett, 2 Price, 272.

Plaintiff withdrawing issue, pays costs. Brookland v. Golding, Wightw. 100.

Though an heir brought into equity to have the ancestor's will established against him, may demand an issue, yet, if he sets up insanity, he shall not have his costs of the issue. Berney v. Eyre, 3 Atk. 387. White v. Wilson, 13 Ves. 87. 91. Burne v. Breen, 1 Ball & B. 308.

Wherever the material issue is found for the party who sets down the cause for further directions, he must have the costs at law. Blackburn v. Gregson, 1 Bro. C. C. 420. 425.

Equity will not give costs for not going to trial on an issue directed, but where a court of law would have done so; and therefore, where notice of trial was countermanded in time, costs were refused. Moore v. Beris, Haamer, 73. Bridg. Pr. Dig. 337.

If, on an issue to try the bankruptcy of G, he be found no bankrupt, and costs are given against the petitioning creditor, there costs of equity will follow of course. Exp. Gulston, 1 Atk. 138.

On issues directed by a court of equity to try a modus, though established by two verdicts, the plaintiff is entitled to his costs at law only, and not in equity. Clifton v. Orchard, 1 Atk. 610. MODUS.

On a bill to settle the boundaries of a manor, it was directed, that each party should give to the other a note of their boundaries, and that it should be tried in a feigned issue; and the issue being found for the defendant on the first, second, and third trial, the defendant was not only allowed the costs of all the trials at law, but also the costs in equity, in regard the defendant had no bill, and the plaintiff might have tried it at law without coming into equity. On a bill of partition, no costs on either side, because it is for the benefit of both parties. Metcalfe v. Beckwith, 2 P. W. 376. BILL TO SETTLE BOUNDARIES.

Though the verdict was against the plaintiff's title, yet, the title being probable, the court refused costs against him. Trethewy v. Hoblin, 2 C. C. 9.

Issues being directed to be tried at bar, the court would not make part of the order, that the defendant should pay only nisi prius costs, if they were found against him. Vise. Falmouth v. Innes, Mos. 87.

But where a party has prayed an issue, the court has directed it, on the terms that he would be contented with nisi prius costs. Baker v. Hart, 3 Atk. 542. 1 Ves. 28.

(cc) Lunacy.

The nearest relation of a supposed lunatic ordered to pay the costs occasioned by their opposition to a petition for a commission of lunacy presented by strangers to the family. In re Smith, 1 Russ. 348. LUNACY, COMM. OF; NEXT OF KIN.

Upon granting a lease of the lunatic's estate, the usage is, that the committee pays the expenses of the inquiry, and the lessee of the lease. Exp. Prickett, 3 Swan. 130.

On a reference to pass the accounts of committees of lunatics, the master may not make extraordinary allowances, without a special order. See the authorities collected in 1 Collins. Lun. 306.

No costs to a party suing out a commission of lunacy, which was never acted upon, and afterwards superseded; because the property never having come into the possession of the crown, there is no fund out of which costs can be given. Exp. Glover, 1 Mer. 4269. LUNACY, COMM. OF.

Traverse of a verdict of unsound mind, under a commission, being the right of the party, cannot be refused, and prevents the crown taking the custody, and consequently allowing the costs of the proceedings, however meritorious: but they were given out of a fund of a lunatic in court, in a cause on the principle on which the court protects persons in a state of incapacity, though adult, and objects of a commission, assigning guardians, &c. Sherwood v. Sanderson, 19 Ves. 280. S. C. Coop. 108. LUNACY, COMM. TRAVERSE OF.

Proposals laid before the master for appointment of committees were disapproved of; a petition was then preferred that he might review his report, which he was ordered to do. Other proposals were laid before the master by the same party, and also disapproved of; and an unsuccessful opposition was made to the petition for confirming the report. Costs of all these proceedings granted. Exp. Fust, 1 Collins. Lun. 461.

Upon the return of the traverse to the inquisition of lunacy, finding that the party was a lunatic at the time of her marriage, and at the time of taking the inquisition, but at that time (the verdict) was not a lunatic, the commission was superseded: but the

Ld. Ch. doubted the propriety of such a double issue. No costs to the party taking out a commission of lunacy which is traversed with success, however meritorious the case: the property never coming to the possession of the crown, there is no fund. Exp. Ferne, 5 Ves. 832. LUNACY, COMM. OF.

If a petition for a commission be wholly groundless, it will be dismissed with costs. Exp. Ward, 6 Ves. 579.

The negligence of a committee is a sufficient reason, though there be no fraud, to induce the court to refuse him costs. Exp. Clarke, 1 Ves. J. 296.

If the persons in whose custody a lunatic is, refuse to produce him to the commissioners, the court has made them pay costs. Exp. Southcot, 2 Ves. 401. Amb. 111.

A solicitor employed on part of a lunatic, can have no action against him for his bill of costs. Burnesley v. Powell, Amb. 102. LUNATIC; SOL. & CLIENT.

(dd) Parties improperly joined, or served with notice of motion, &c.

See also PR. COSTS, 10, (a).

A, being entitled to parcel of tithes, was made defendant in suit by person B claiming to be entitled to tithes, against occupiers, joined with them in answer, and insisted on his right to tithes. Court retained bill, with liberty to bring action; if not, bill to be dismissed with costs: action determined by verdict for plaintiff. On further hearing, account against occupiers was decreed, and they and A were ordered to pay costs. Wing v. Murrell, 1 McClel. & Y. 620. TITHES IMPROPRIATOR.

A party, who is served with a petition, but who has no interest in the order to be made upon it, is not entitled to the costs of appearing on the hearing of that petition. Garey v. Whittingham, 1 Turn. & R. 405. But see note, id. 407. PR. PETITION.

Land owner, not being an occupier, made defendant in suit for tithes, is entitled to have the bill dismissed as against him, with costs; but if he mixes in defence, &c., it will be dismissed without costs. Markham v. Smyth, 11 Price, 126. PR. PARTY.

A party, not interested in a motion, who is served with notice, is entitled to the costs of appearing. Henenge v. Aikin, 1 Jac. & W. 377. MOTION, NOTICE OF.

A bill being dismissed with costs, a person who was made a co-plaintiff, without his authority or knowledge, is liable for the costs to the defendant, but is entitled to be indemnified by the solicitor. Wade v. Stanley, 1 Jac. & W. 674.

Where inappropriate rector, not being an occupier, is made party to bill for tithes, and a decree is made for plaintiff, he is not (but under particular circumstances) liable to pay costs. Pitch v. Dutton, 8 Price, 9. See also Leathes v. Nevitt, id. 566. S. P., and Williamson v. Hutton, 9 Price, 187. S. P. TITHES, IMPROPRIATOR OF.

Where a lay impropriator is not a necessary party, and ought to demur, if he does not, but suffers the cause to go to a hearing, court will not give him costs. Williamson v. Hutton, 9 Price, 187. PR. PARTY.

The names of two of the petitioners having been made use of without their knowledge, this circumstance must be made the subject of a distinct application against the solicitor, and cannot be insisted on upon the hearing of the petition. Exp. Stuckey, 2 Cox, 283.

Although the name of one of the plaintiffs was made use of without his authority, yet he must remain liable to the costs of the suit, and must recover from the solicitor any expence he may be put to on that account. Dundas v. Dundas, 2 Cox, 236. S. P. Exp. Stuckey, id. 284.

Cause at issue: one of plaintiffs applies to have name struck out of bill, on ground that he knew not of its insertion. Defendant objected, he being only plaintiff of ability, to pay costs: objection good, and application refused; but solicitor, who inserted plaintiff's name, ordered to indemnify him. Titterton v. Osbourne, Dick. 350.

(ee) Pauper.

Before any one can be admitted pauper, he must give security for the costs accrued before such admission. Ori. Exch. 24th May, 1717.

All small writs sealed for persons suing in formd pauperis to be sealed without fee. Ld. Hardwicke's Order, 28th November, 1743. Beame's Order, 413. Order, 12th February, 1662. Id. 153, and 18th November, 1668. Id. 234. S. P. After an admittance in formd pauperis, no fee, profit, or reward shall be taken of such party admitted, by any counsellor or attorney for the dispatch of the pauper's business, so long as he be continued in formd pauperis: any one offending in this respect to undergo the displeasure of the court, and such further punishment as the court shall inflict; and the pauper to be dispaupered. Ld. Clarendon's Order, 1661. Beame's Order, 215, 216.

When a pauper plaintiff obtains a decree for payment of money, it is to be drawn up on stamps, as in a dives suit. Hansard v. Kemys, 1 Jac. & W. 189.

Proceedings stayed until costs of former suit by same party suing in formd pauperis in causes only of great vexation. Wild v. Holson, 2 V. & B. 112. STAYING PROCEEDINGS; PR. VEXATION.

Costs to a pauper, whether more than out of pocket, quære? Frost v. Preston, 16 Ves. 160.

Plaintiff a pauper; costs of impertinence expunged from the answer ordered to be taxed as dives costs to be paid into court. Rattray v. George, id. 232. PR. IMPERTINENCE.

In Pearson v. Belchier, 4 Ves. 627., the court would have dismissed the bill with costs, had not plaintiff been a pauper; but it was said that a pauper is liable to be committed for filing an improper bill, otherwise they might be guilty of great oppression; as to which, see Exp. Shaw, 2 Ves. J. 40.

And in Pearson v. Belcher, 3 Bro. C. C. 87., a pauper plaintiff having moved to dismiss the bill as against two defendants, the court ordered it to be on payment of costs. See also Corbett v. Corbett, 16 Ves. 407., in which case Ld. Eldon considered the authorities on this subject.

One of the defendants was admitted to sue in formd pauperis. The decree ordered generally, that the costs of all parties should be taxed and paid out of the estate; the costs of the pauper defendant shall be taxed as dives costs. Wallop v. Warburton, 2 Cox, 409.

If a trustee defendant is in the situation of being sued in formd pauperis, but is clearly entitled to his costs out of the estate, his costs will be ordered to be taxed as dives costs. Id. 411. TRUSTEE.

Plaintiff suing in formd pauperis, shall not amend by leaving out defendants, without paying their costs. Wilkinson v. Belsher, 2 Bro. C. C. 272. PR. AMENDMENT.

Pauper can have no more than pauper's costs. Denn v. Russel, Dick. 427.

In Hinckley v. Appleby, cited 1 Cox, 409., defendant was ordered to pay a pauper plaintiff 50*l.* on account of her poverty, without prejudice, and plaintiff afterwards obtaining a decree, was allowed her costs, which were taxed as dives costs in the usual manner. And in Jones v. Cozeter, 2 Atk. 399., it being suggested that plaintiff would not be able, on account of her poverty, to carry on the cause, unless defendant were directed to pay something to her in the mean time, Ld. Hardwicke ordered the costs, decreed to be paid to plaintiff, to be taxed, and paid to her by defendant, to empower her to go on with the cause. See also Dickenson v. Mavie, 2 Dick. 582. Tillotson v. Hargreaves, 4 Mad. 172.

Where a pauper claimed as heir at law against a will and deed which were disputed, and the bill had been retained with liberty to bring an action, the tenants were ordered to pay plaintiff 150*l.*, to enable him to go to trial. Perishat v. Squire, 1 Dick. 31. Boame's Costs, 379. S. C. inserted from the Register Book, from which it appears that this indulgence was extended also to one of the defendants.

Where the plaintiff a pauper had a decree for the duty and costs, and the master taxed full costs, yet on motion, ordered plaintiff and his solicitor to make oath before a master of what they had paid, or were to pay, and that to be allowed, but no further. Angell v. Smith, Proc. Chan. 219.

Defendant to a bill by a pauper plaintiff put in a plea and demurrer, which were both overruled; and it was insisted that he should have no costs, being at none; but Lord Somers ordered him his costs like other suitors; for though he is at no costs, or but small costs, yet the counsel and clerks do not give their labour to the defendant, but to the pauper. Scatcherd v. Foulkard, 1 Eq. Ab. 125. See Wallop v. Warburton, 2 Cox, 409.

A pauper is liable to costs, precedent to his admission to sue as such. Anon. Mos. 66.

(ff) Perpetuating testimony, and commissions to examine.

If by default of him that has the carriage of a commission, or of his commissioners, nothing is done, he shall pay all the other's costs, to be ascertained by the party's oath, and shall renew the commission at his own charges. Ld. Clarendon's Ord. 1661. Beame's Ord. Ch. 192. Ld. Coventry's Ord. Id. 72. verbat. Ord. Exch. Irel. How. Pr. Ex. Irel. 579. S. P. Ord. Exch. 2 Fowl. 69. S. P.

In Ireland, by stat. 13 Geo. 2. c. 9. s. 2. where defendants in suits to perpetuate testimony, stand out process of contempt to a sequestration, and the sequestrators return that no effects of such defendant are to be found within the kingdom to be sequestered, plaintiff, in publishing such defendant's name in the Dublin Gazette, and the return of the sequestrators, for two days in each week, for six weeks successively, shall, on application, have leave to examine his witnesses against such defendants, and pass publication in case such defendants had answered, and the cause regularly at issue. And by s. 3. the same proceedings are directed, under similar circumstances, in the case of commissions to examine witnesses de bene esse.

Party obtaining commission to examine abroad, pays costs; but if other party examines under it in chief, he pays proportionately. Jackson v. Strong, 13 Price, 309. PR. COMMISSION TO EXAMINE ABROAD.

On demurrer allowed to bill for commission to examine de bene esse, the plaintiff having on an ex parte application obtained an order to examine witnesses, was ordered to pay to the defendants, besides the usual costs of the demurrer, the costs of the depositions, but not those taken on cross-examination. Dew v. Clarke, 1 S. & S. 115. PR. EXAMINATION, DE BENE ESSE.

Commission to examine to credit should be executed before decree: costs given on this ground.

White v. Russell, 1 V. & B. 151. PR. EVID.; COMMISSION TO EXAMINE AS TO CREDIT OF WITNESS.

Defendant to a bill to perpetuate testimony, entitled to his costs immediately after the commission executed upon the allegation, that he did not examine any witnesses. Foulks v. Midgley, 1 V. & B. 138. BILL TO PERPETUATE.

On a bill to perpetuate testimony, defendant entitled to costs of answering, there being no examination of witnesses. Lecky v. Murray, 1 Ball & B. 391. Id.

On bill for discovery and commission abroad and injunction, defendant was entitled to costs on the discovery and injunction as incidental thereto, but costs refused to either party as to commission. London Assur. Comp. v. Ilunkley, 1 Anst. 9. PR. DISCOVERY.

Bill to perpetuate and no relief prayed, defendant has costs if he does not examine witnesses. Blinkshorne v. Feast, Dick. 153.

Where a devisee brings a bill merely in perpetuum rei memoriam, and the heir at law only cross-examines the witnesses produced to confirm the will, he is entitled to his costs; but if he examines witnesses to encounter the will, he shall not have his costs. Berney v. Eyre, 3 Atk. 387. Blinkshorne v. Feast, Dick. 153. Vaughan v. Fitzgerald, 1 Scho. & L. 316. HEIR AT LAW.

Where a plaintiff in a bill to perpetuate the testimony of witnesses has examined, and thereby had the fruit of her bill, neither herself nor defendant are entitled to costs. Coddington v. England, 2 Atk. 167.

But in Lecky v. Murray, 1 Ball & B. 292. Lord Manners said, he conceived this rule applied only to those cases where both parties avail themselves of the examination of witnesses. And according to the present practice, defendant, on an allegation that he has not examined any witnesses, is entitled to his costs on a bill to perpetuate immediately after the commission executed. But if on a bill by a devisee to perpetuate, the heir at law does no more than cross-examine the witnesses, he is entitled to his costs. Berney v. Eyre, 3 Atk. 387. And where it appears reasonable, though not absolutely necessary, to perpetuate the testimony of witnesses to a will, the court will, in the case of a purchaser, allow him his costs. Mackrell v. Hunt, 2 Mad. 35. n.

When a multiplicity of actions has been brought where the custom might have been tried in one, it is such a vexation that the plaintiff in equity shall have the costs both in law and equity. Coddington v. England, 2 Atk. 167.

Plaintiff having examined his witnesses under a bill to perpetuate, defendant moved for his costs. Order to shew cause granted. Bower v. Thomson, 1 Fowl. 50.

On a bill brought to prove a will per testes, and to perpetuate the testimony of witnesses, the defendant has no other remedy to have his costs than by moving for them. — v. Andrews, Barn. 333.

And though the defendant has cross-examined the plaintiff's witnesses, yet if he has examined no witnesses of his own, he shall be allowed his costs. Id. And the circumstance that the defendant has brought a cross bill makes no difference as to his right to costs in the original cause upon the return of the commission. Id.

A bill for perpetuating testimony only, ought not to be brought to a hearing; if it be, it will be dismissed with costs; but plaintiff has the benefit of the depositions at law, notwithstanding such dismissal. Hall v. Hodgesdon, 2 P. W. 162. Anon. 2 Ves. 497. Amb. 237. S. C. Mackrell v. Hunt, 2 Mad. 37. n.

Plaintiff sued out a commission; defendant's commissioners joined and signed plaintiff's interrogatories, and witnesses were examined on plaintiff's part, and defendant's commissioners signed the depositions, after which it was discovered that in the commission, the title of the cause was mistaken. On a motion to suppress the depositions, Ld. Chancellor ordered the commission to be amended, but plaintiff to pay the costs of the motion, and to be at the expence of sealing a new commission for the examination of defendant's witnesses, and the master to settle a time and place for the execution of such commission. Robert v. Millechamp, Dick. 22.

(ii) Review.

See also Pr. Costs, 10. (d).

No bill of review to be put in unless the party preferring it enters into recognizance for costs. Ld. Bacon's Order, (5). Beame, 4 Ir. Ord. Ch. (28). O'Keefe's Ed. S. P. By Order 12th March, 1700. Beame, 312. Anon. 2 P. W. 283. a party preferring a bill of review must first deposit 50*l* to answer costs. And by Order, 17th Oct. 1741, Beame 306. this rule is extended to supplemental bills in nature of bills of review. See Astel v. Montgomery, 2 Atk. 138. which led to the last mentioned order. Also Moore v. Moore, 2 Ves. 597. 1 Dick. 66., where Ld. Hardwicke states his reasons for making it; and Mr. Dickens' observations in Gartside v. Isherwood, 2 Dick. 612. where he draws the distinction between a bill of review and a bill in nature of one. By 34th Ord. Exch. 1 Fowl. 100, party bringing a bill of review shall pay the costs taxed or due in the former cause, and enter into such recognizance as the court shall direct for the further costs.

Costs of course upon a bill of review for error: where no error in the decree. Bolger v. Mackell, 5 Ves. 610.

On motion for leave to file a bill of review on recent discovery of new evidence, an order nisi was made, on payment of costs as between solicitor and client. Hilton v. Davies, 2 Fowl. 102.

After a bill of review demurred to, plaintiff moved to dismiss his bill as not being regularly filed, upon payment of costs out of the 50*l*. deposit, which was granted. Bp. of Durham v. Lyddall, 2 Eq. Ab. 175. 4 Vin. 415. affirmed, 2 Bro. P. C. 22.

Plaintiff moved on his solicitor's affidavit of new matter being discovered since the decree, for leave to file a bill of review without first paying the costs decreed, but the court refused it, for payment of costs ought to be performed rather than any other part of the decree. And the court thought the affidavit of the party himself necessary, and that of the solicitor not sufficient, or that if the party himself should, under particular circumstances be excused, there ought at least to be an affidavit corroborating that of the solicitor. Id.

Order for dispensing with costs, upon bringing a bill of review, ought to be set out in the bill. Fallon v. Marcelesfield, 1 Vern. 292.

No costs are given upon a bill of review, whereby money obtained by the defendant under the decree in the original cause, was decreed back again to the plaintiff. Jackson v. Eyre, 3 C. R. 15. 2 Freem. 181. S. C. Jackson v. Degry, Nel. 83.

(ij) Solicitor.

Where cause postponed from non-attendance of solicitor, he shall pay the costs, at the discretion of the court. 36th Gen. Order, 3rd April, 1828.

But filed by solicitor from instructions of brother-in-law of plaintiff, solicitor having never received any communication from plaintiff himself, dismissed, and solicitor ordered to pay costs; plaintiff having absconded before bill was filed. Hall v. Bennett, 2 S. & S. 78. Sol. & Client.

A solicitor's bill having been partly taxed and paid, an order, obtained as of course, referring the bill generally for taxation, was discharged with costs. The conduct of the solicitor cannot be adduced in support of such an order, and the costs of affidavits upon that subject were ordered to be paid as between solicitor and client. Chilton v. Pardon, 1 Turn. & R. 301. And see Gretton v. Leyburne, id. 407. Pr. Costs; TAXATION OF SOLICITOR'S BILL; Sol. & Client. Attorney, under circumstances, ordered to pay costs of an improper petition. Eap. Cuthbert, 1 Mad. 78. BANKR. PETITION.

Solicitor ordered to pay all the costs occasioned by his refusing to appear for defendant at the hearing, pursuant to his undertaking, and the costs of the application. Cook v. Broomhead, 16 Ves. 133. Pr. UNDERTAKING TO APPEAR.

An attorney saying he only followed directions in drawing deeds, under fraudulent circumstances, will not excuse him from paying costs. Beunet v. Vade, 2 Atk. 328.

Upon solicitor's appearing to be guilty of a gross neglect, the court will order him to pay the costs. Faukes v. Pratt, 1 P. W. 593.

(lk) Specific performance between vendor and purchaser, and other parties generally, and in sales judicial.

One of the terms of an agreement, was, that the contract should be void if the purchaser's counsel should be of opinion that a marketable title could not be made good by a certain time. The counsel being of that opinion, a bill by the purchaser for a specific performance, with a compensation, was dismissed with costs, and an application afterwards made by the plaintiff that his deposit might be set off against the defendant's costs, and the surplus, (if any) paid to him, was refused with costs. Williams v. Edwards, 2 Sim. 78.

A purchaser under decree is entitled to his costs when master reports against title, though no fund in court. Smith v. Nelson, 2 S. & S. 557. Pr. SALES JUDICIAL.

If the master reports against the title to an estate, purchased under a decree, the purchaser will be paid the costs of the reference out of the funds in the cause. Reynolds v. Blake, 2 S. & S. 117. REFERENCE AS TO TITLE.

Purchaser brought into court on a doubtful title ought to be discharged with costs. Blope v. Clannorris, 3 M. & C. 62.

A vendor seeking a specific performance should have his title prepared, and therefore, where the abstract delivered is imperfect, he pays the costs of the suit up to the time of the defects being supplied. Wilson v. Allen, 1 Jac. & W. 623.

Specific performance without costs, the suit being occasioned by the refusal of the vendor to produce documents insisted on by the purchaser, some of which were necessary and others not. Neuell v. Smith, id. 263.

In sales judicial on opening biddings, as to costs of former purchaser. See Farlow v. Weildon, 4 Mad. 460. PR. SALES JUDICIAL; OPENING BIDDINGS.

Specific performance decreed without costs, the abstract delivered not containing a satisfactory title. Wilson v. Clapham, 1 Jac. & W. 36.

If purchaser makes frivolous objections to title, he pays costs, but not otherwise. Thorpe v. Freer, 4 M. & C. 466.

Purchaser making fair objection to title, does not pay costs. Aislabie v. Rice, 3 Mad. 256.

Specific performance decreed with costs, in a case when the defendant objecting to title had been served with notice of a prior decision in a different cause in favour of the same title, against a similar objection. Biscoe v. Wilks, 3 Mer. 456. TITLE.

Costs of perpetuating testimony of will allowed to purchaser, Mackrell v. Hunt, cited 2 Mad. 37. PR. BILL TO PERPETUATE TESTIMONY.

Vendor not making good title when bill filed, pays costs till report of good title. Harford v. Purrier, 1 Mad. 532. TITLE.

Party having contracted with person, since dead, for the purchase of advowson, but had taken no steps during the life of vendor to enforce contract, and for a considerable time after his death, (objecting to title on ground of outstanding judgment and creditor's suit pending :) Held not entitled as against devisee to present if a vacancy occur in meanwhile, though he insists on completion of contract, and if in consequence of his insisting on such right, bill to ascertain it become necessary, a decree for plaintiff will carry costs as far as his claim came in question, though it be part of decree, that, subject to next presentation, he be permitted to complete the contract. Wylie v. Bp. of Ely, 1 Price, 292. PRESENTATION TO BENEFICE.

Title established before master not being clear on abstract, vendor pays costs. ——— v. Collinge, cited 3 V. & B. 143. note. PR. REFERENCE TO MASTERS.

A re-sale on opening biddings producing considerable increase of price, is no ground for giving party his costs of opening biddings. Trefusis v. Clinton, 1 V. & B. 361.

A tenant having by his conduct made his title to a renewal doubtful, and thereby rendering a suit for it necessary, was on obtaining a renewal, decreed to pay all the costs. Burrett v. Pearson, 2 Ball & B. 189. RENEWAL OF LEASE; LANDL. & TENANT.

Vendor not making a good title ordered to pay costs, though he was only a trustee to sell. Edwards v. Harvey, Coop. 40. TITLE.

A person who opened bidding not being the purchaser, allowed his expenses on the circumstances against the general rule, having interposed at the instance and for the benefit of the family. West v. Vincent, 12 Ves. 6.

Person who opened biddings, but was not the purchaser, allowed his costs on the special circumstances, having opened them, not on his own account, but for the benefit of the family. Owen v. Foulks, 9 Ves. 348.

A person who opened biddings, but was not the purchaser, the estates upon the re-sale going considerably higher, cannot on that ground have his costs. El. of Murrelesfield v. Blake, 8 Ves. 214.

Person opening biddings, though not purchaser, is in no case entitled to costs. Rigby v. M'Namara, 6 Ves. 466.

The vendors having by their misrepresentations occasioned the suit, were ordered to pay all the costs. Harrison v. Coppard, 2 Cox, 319.

A bill for a specific performance of an agreement was made necessary, by trustee refusing to join in the conveyance. The court being of opinion, that the trustees ought to pay all the costs of the suit, the decree was, that the plaintiff should pay the costs of all the other defendants, (although he had a decree against them;) and recover over the whole costs from the defendant, the trustee. Jones v. Lewis, 1 Cox, 199. TRUSTEES.

A landlord who does not litigiously oppose a covenant for renewal, shall be entitled to his costs. S. C. ib. 137. Donerale v. Chartres, 1 Ridg. P. C. 137. LEASE, RENEWAL OF; LANDL. & TENANT.

Purchaser pendente lite, on filing supplemental bill, is liable to all costs from beginning of suit. Anon. 1 Atk. 89. PURCHASER PENDENTE LITE.

Bill to have execution of articles for the sale of some copyhold lands to plaintiff, on payment of 538*l.* to defendant R, a guinea being paid in part, and to compel the lord of the manor to admit plaintiff in fee, according to the agreement, which was decreed, but there being no tender of a surrender to the lord, and consequently no refusal, he was to have his costs. Sayle v. Reeves, Gilb. Eq. Rep. 188.

Costs for witness served to testify before lord mayor, awarded. Rowe v. Guybone, id. 35.

XXXI. COURT, PRACTICE IN, AND GENERALLY.

That in future, in making out the general paper of causes for hearing after every term, the general order made on the 21st May 1778, for having a separate column for causes, in which publication has not passed, be abided by, and that no cause be removed to the column for causes in which publication has passed, until publication has actually passed in such cause. Gen. Order, 20th Jan. 1819.

On shewing cause on the merits against an order nisi, for dissolving an injunction, the plaintiff is not entitled to the reply. Tyrell v. Vanderille, 1 Y. & J. 404. PR. INJUNC.

In equity the rules of court, in respect of practice, are to be strictly observed, only where the occasions which rendered them requisite, are pressing, and require their observance. Vinter v. Bickley, 12 Price, 460.

Rules of practice will always yield to special circumstances, verified by evidence. Butler v. Bulkeley, 2 Swan, 374.

Personal attendance of a person running off with, and marrying, a ward of the court, dispensed with on offering to go before the master and settle. Gren v. Pritzer, Ambl. 602. PR. CONTEMPT; WARD OF COURT.

If plea is allowed, and goes on to bring, defendant is to open the case. Ellis v. Uret, Dick. 330.

XXXII. CREDITOR'S SUIT.

In a creditor's suit of administering the assets of B, a joint creditor of A and B was permitted to prove, A having become bankrupt, and it appearing that there were no joint assets of A and B. Cowell v. Sikes, 2 Russ. 191. PR. DECREE FOR; ADMIN. OF ASSETS; DEBT. & CRED.

In a creditor's suit instituted by simple contract creditors, in which the assets, after the payment of the costs, being insufficient for the discharge of the specialty debts, are apportioned among the specialty creditors; these specialty creditors are entitled without contributing to the extra costs of the plaintiff, to the use of the order for the payment of the money, and of the report founded upon it, so as to enable them to get the fund out of court. Lerumie v. Brasier, 1 Russ. 72. PR. PAYMT. OUT OF C.; PR. ORDER FOR PAYMT.

Creditor proceeding at law against executor, after decree to account, allowed his costs at law previous to notice of decree, but not those of motion to restrain his proceedings. Anon. 2 S. & S. 424. DECREE TO ACCOUNT; COSTS.

Bill filed by one creditor on behalf of self and rest, he has absolute dominion over suit till decree, and may dismiss bill at pleasure; but secus, after decree, the rest may prosecute it if they think fit. Hanford v. Storie, 2 S. & S. 196. PR. CONDUCT OF SUIT.

Where one of plaintiffs in creditor's suit dies, after decree, his personal representative has a right to revive. Burney v. Morgan, 1 S. & S. 358. PR. ABATEMENT AND REVIVOR.

Creditor cannot sue on behalf of himself and others who have no common interest with him. Id. ib.

Where, under order made in a creditor's suit, supplemental bill is filed by a creditor, not a party to the original suit, on behalf of himself and other creditors, to have the benefit of the decree in that suit, the propriety of order which authorised creditor to file supplemental bill, cannot be questioned at hearing of supplemental cause. Houlditch v. Marq. Donegan,

1 S. &amp; S. 491. PL. SUPPLEMENTAL BILL; PR. ORDER.

A creditor, who makes out a prima facie case of misconduct in trustees, is entitled to a decree that they shall account for whatever they might have received without their wilful default or neglect, though in a prior suit instituted by another creditor, and conducted without collusion, a common decree for an account has been previously made against them. Shepherd v. Tourgood, 4 Turn. & R. 379. TRUSTEES, LIAB. OF; ACCOUNT.

Biddings not opened, even in creditor's suit upon advance of 350l. being less than 10 per cent. Gurstone v. Edwards, 1 S. & S. 20. PR. SALES, JUDICIAL, OPENING BIDDINGS.

In a creditor's suit, it appearing that there were no assets applicable to the payment of the plaintiff's debts, the plaintiffs ordered to pay the costs; but other creditors entitled to a specific lien, having proved, they were ordered to pay the costs of the proceedings relative to their debts. Bluet v. Jenson, 1 Jac. 240. PR. COSTS.

The direction for creditors coming in under a decree, to contribute to the costs, not enforced in practice. Id. 243. PR. COSTS; CONTRIBUTION.

The reason why creditors are excluded unless they come in within a limited time, is because they could not be known to the court or ascertained, unless they should appear; but that does not apply to legatees, who are therefore not to be excluded from the benefit of a decree by not coming in to claim. Anon. 9 Pri. 210.

Demurrer to bill by creditors praying sale of testator's real estate, to pay unsatisfied debts for want of sufficient personal, where he had directed his debts to be paid by his executors, and devised his real estate, on ground that it was not a charge on real estates, overruled without prejudice, as being premature. Sanderson v. Wharton, 8 Pri. 680. PL. DEMURRER.

A creditor coming in under a decree, though only interested in the first part of it, will be permitted to prosecute it on the ground of delay. Edmunds v. Acland, 5 Mad. 31. In Fleming v. Prior, id. 423. leave was given to a creditor to prosecute a suit.

If creditor file bill on behalf of himself and other creditors, and obtains decree and dies, another creditor may obtain order to file supplemental bill if representative of first plaintiff does not revive in a limited time. Dixon v. Wyatt, 4 Mad. 392. PR. ABATEMENT AND REVIVOR.

The master ought to allow in an executor's accounts the expence of an accountant, where the nature of the accounts justifies it. Henderson v. McLeer, 3 Mad. 275.

In this case, and on several other occasions, the Vice Chancellor said, that if a creditor proceeds at law after notice of a decree against the executor for an account, he should consider it so far in nature of a contempt, that on motion for an injunction to restrain proceeding at law, he would refuse the creditor the costs of the further proceedings at law, and of the application. Curre v. Bowyer, 3 Mad. 466.

Bill against an executor, and the usual decree for an account. The master by his report stated that a discharge offered to him had not been allowed, for want of evidence to support it; but that he had received it as a claim. On overruling an exception, taken on the ground that additional evidence, establishing the claim, could be produced, the court will not order the master to receive such evidence, but the matter must go back to him, and if he then refuses it, a distinct motion must be made, ordering him to receive it. Redifer v. O'Brien, 3 Mad. 43.

Creditor having been restrained from proceeding at law on account of decree obtained, although to prosecute suit, where proceeding on decree delayed for some years. Powell v. Wulworth, 2 Mad. 183. S. R. Cross v. Hunter, 2 Ves. J. 105. LENGTH OF TIME; PR. DECREE.

Motion by a plaintiff in a creditor's suit, for leave to go before the master and prosecute a cause instituted by the next of kin of the deceased, on the ground of wilful delay in that suit. Per Ld. Ch. It is admitted that if the suit, which this is an application for leave to prosecute, had been a suit by creditors on behalf of themselves and others, this application would not have been unusual. Undoubtedly the practice ought to be so; because the creditor may very well be the friend of the party or his representative, and inclined unjustly to favour the estate; and the court will, for the purpose of prompting to diligence, even go so far as to give costs to a party applying. A creditor formerly was not allowed to come in under a decree obtained by a residuary legatee, but it was determined that he might, on principles, fully as much applying to the case of a next of kin suing an administratrix, as of a residuary legatee suing an executor. Supposing there were no authority for it, I should not hesitate to say, that a creditor ought to be allowed to prosecute a suit by next of kin if there be sufficient proof of want of a reasonable diligence. Sims v. Ridge, 3 Meriv. 458.

Motion on behalf of a defendant for an injunction against a party's proceeding at law upon a verdict which would entitle him to a judgment de bonis propriis against an executor, refused; for his judgment would be of no service to him if he were delayed by a suit here until it could be ascertained whether there are assets of the testator to answer his demands, which might not be till after all chance of recovery against the executor de bonis propriis is entirely gone. Terrence v. Featherby, 3 Mer. 480. Brooke v. Skinner, cited, and stated in (n.), which was the case of a similar application, and the Ld. Chancellor said, that if plaintiff at law recovered a judgment de bonis testatoris, he would not suffer execution to be taken out; but that if he recovered de bonis propriis, he could not restrain the execution. In Dyer v. Kearsley, id. (n.), plaintiff had obtained the usual decree in a creditor's suit for an account. An action being then commenced against the executors by another creditor, to which they had obtained time to plead, and after the decree, suffered judgment by default; plaintiff in equity moved to restrain plaintiff at law from suing out execution, and the Ld. Chancellor said, that the executor's suffering judgment to go by default, was no more than his saying that he was ready to do whatever a court of law or equity might think proper, and granted the injunction. It appears by the above that this injunction may be obtained, on the application of the plaintiff in equity, as well as of the executor himself. A similar order was made on the plaintiff's application in Cox v. King, 3 Mer. 483. n.

In the case of creditors suing on behalf of themselves and all others, the death of one does not abate the suit, because the representatives of the deceased plaintiff may then come in under the decree; but where the bill is by some creditors on their own behalf only, it is a question whether the death of one works an abatement. Baddy v. Kent, 1 Mer. 361. A creditor who has come in before the master and contributed, may revive if the cause abates. Pitt v. Richmond, 1 Eq. Ab. 3.

Creditor allowed on motion to prove his debt under decree on creditor's suit, though money apportioned amongst creditors, and transferred to accountant general, on paying costs of motion, and of re-apportioning funds. Angell v. Haddon, 1 Mad. 529. DECREE, PROVING UNDER.

In a suit for the administration of assets, the examination of the executors (defendants) to interrogatories exhibited by plaintiff, a co-executor, under a decree for an account, is taken for the benefit of all parties; and therefore the other defendants, creditors, and legatees, may take copies. Dyott v. Anderton, 3 Ves. & B. 176.

The court will not, on the motion of a creditor coming in under a decree directing a sale of lands devised for payment of debts, set aside a lease obtained pendente lite from the devisee under the will, with a leasing power. Moore v. McNamara, 2 Ball & B. 186. PR. MOTION; ASSIGNMENT, PENDENTE LITE.

Injunction granted against an account, commenced by plaintiff while proceeding under a decree to account for the same matter; for where a decree has been pronounced, it is a contempt to proceed at law. Mocher v. Reed, 1 Ball & B. 318. Wilson v. Wetherherd, 2 Mer. 406. S. P. decided on the authority of this case.

Order obtained by plaintiff under the usual undertaking to speed his cause, for liberty to withdraw his replication and amend the bill, discharged with costs. Pitt v. Watts, 16 Ves. 126. PR. UNDERTAKING TO SPEED CAUSE.

Creditors let in at any time, while the fund is in court, though the time has elapsed. Lashley v. Hogg, 11 Ves. 602. PL. PARTIES.

Where an executor has become bankrupt, or insolvent, so as not to have the means, or refuses to act, the court will permit a creditor to bring a bill for himself against persons accountable to the estate, and have administration. Burroughs v. Elton, 11 Ves. 29.

In general, judgment creditors may go into the master's office to prove their debt without a sci. fa.; giving in evidence only, the record of the judgment, and swearing that the debt is due. A plaintiff, however, must make himself out a judgment creditor by evidence, strictly speaking, and such as he has a right to proceed on. S. C.

When a decree for an account has been obtained in a suit by a creditor on behalf of himself and other creditors, a prior creditor who in the mean time has obtained judgment in an ejectment grounded on an elegit, shall not be allowed to get into possession. Sumner v. Kelly, 2 Sch. & L. 398.

After a decree for an account against an executor, defendant may restrain a creditor from suing at law, on motion, and without filing an injunction bill, though until lately that remedy against a creditor was never granted, unless a bill for an injunction had been filed. Paxton v. Douglas, 8 Ves. 520.

If a creditor coming in under a decree requires relief, which cannot be had by re-hearing the original cause, he ought to file the cross-bill. Latouche v. Dunsany, 1 Sch. & L. 137.

Bill by a creditor against an administrator, who, by his answer, stated he believed the debt was due. It being thought doubtful whether this was a sufficient foundation for a decree, plaintiff consented to exhibit an interrogatory. Hill v. Binney, 6 Ves. 738.

In the case of a creditor or next of kin, if they can state a case that the representative is colluding with the debtors to the estate, and diminishing the fund, they have a right upon that ground to make the debtor a party to obtain a discovery, and to prevent the payment of the money for a settlement of the account by collusion between the representative and the debtor. In this case a strong case of collusion was made out, and the debtor made a party. Doran v. Simpson, 4 Ves. 651. 665. And see Beckley v. Dorrington, 6 Ves. 749. (cited) where one of two residuary legatees brought his bill against the executor and other residuary legatee and a debtor, suggesting no fraud, nor any negligence in the executor. The bill was dismissed at the rolls, and on appeal the decree affirmed. In Aisner v. Rowley, (next case) the Ld. Ch. said it was very difficult to define what collusion is; it must depend on the circumstances; and where a creditor seeks to appropriate to himself the advantage arising from the too great facilities the executor may have given him to substantiate his demand, or too great readiness in admitting it, the case, as against a creditor, must be examined with very nice and critical attention, before it can be said there is not collusion.

And the general principle recognized in the last case, applies equally to the case of a creditor overpaid by an executor, where no collusion is proved. Alsager v. Rowley, 6 Ves. 748. In Benfield v. Solomons, 9 Ves. 86, Ld. Ch. said, that in all such cases as the present, it is very convenient to state the facts upon which the allegation of collusion is made. There is great inconvenience in joining issue on a general allegation, defendant not having a hint of any one fact from which it is to be inferred.

Several estates subject to mortgages, which had been paid off, were sold under a decree for payment of debts; a bond creditor had brought in a charge of his debt, which was allowed; and a general report had been prepared, but none of the parties had proceeded to complete it, though the decree had been pronounced about eight years. Motion on behalf of this creditor on affidavit, and notice for an order to shew cause why he should not have leave to prosecute the decree; granted. Bowen v. Webb, 2 W. & A. 212.

Any creditor may obtain an order for prosecuting a decree for an account. Creuze v. Hunter, 2 Ves. J. 105.

Motion on behalf of a creditor who had proved before the deputy remembrancer his demand on the estate in the cause, refused, because each creditor might claim the same privilege. Bowen v. Webb, 2 Anst. 361.

Bill by specialty creditors on behalf of themselves and others, against devisees and executors for an account, stating that a former bill had been filed by residuary legatees, under which the usual account of personal estate had been decreed, and that it appeared the personal estate was insufficient, and charging that the real estate was liable to payment of debts, but that it was pretended the attorney general, who was made a party, had claims on the real estate on behalf of his Majesty, and praying that if necessary the real estate should be applied. Demurrer for want of equity overruled, the present bill going farther than the former, and bringing new parties before the court; and the former cause will not be useless, as the court can order the account in one cause to be used in the second. Law v. Rigby, 4 Bro. C. C. 59.

Where defendant had not applied in the first instance for an injunction, but allowed the action to go to trial, the court doubted as to the costs, and as defendant did not press for them, they were not given. Hardcastle v. Chettle, 4 Bro. C. C. 162.

Bill by creditors against an executrix for an account. Upon the hearing, the usual accounts were directed, but before they were taken, the creditors filed another bill against the executrix, and against debtors to the estate, stating insufficiency of assets, and charging collusion between the executrix and the debtors, but which was denied by the answer. Bill dismissed with costs, as it was only sustainable in case collusion had been proved, and if allowed, a bill might be filed by every single creditor against every individual debtor. Elmslie v. McCaulay, 3 Bro. C. C. 624. The general principle that a debtor to the estate cannot be made a defendant to a bill by a creditor or residuary legatee against the executor, unless there be collusion, insolvency, or some special case, is established by many decisions. As to this subject see P. L. PARTIES, 7.

In Burroughs v. Elton, 11 Ves. 29, a judgment creditor was permitted to sue, the circumstance that the heir and personal representative of the debtor were unable or unwilling to sue, being considered as taking the case out of the rule.

Held, that where a single creditor brings a bill, there is no general account of debts directed, but the course is to direct an account of the personal estate, and of that particular debt, which is ordered to be paid in course of administration; and all debts of a higher or equal nature may be paid by the executor, and must be allowed to him in his discharge. Att. Gen. v. Cornthwaite, 2 Cox, 45.

Bill by A on behalf of himself and other creditors against B and C, trustees for sale. B's representatives allege by answer, that D was also an acting trustee: Held, that D was not a necessary party. Routh v. Kinder, 3 Swan. 146.

Bill by trustees under a will against the executrix, who was also heir at law, and persons claiming under the will, for the directions and indemnity of the court. By a decree in the cause, the proper accounts were directed for the payment of the debts and legacies, after which a bond creditor brought an action at law. The executrix filed an injunction bill to restrain the proceeding at law, and the present defendant insisted that he knew nothing of the decree, was no party to it and ought not to be bound by it. But the court held, that as the creditors might come in before the master, an injunction should be granted, for having taken the fund into its own hands, the court will not permit the executor to be pursued at law. Brooks v. Reynolds, 2 Dick. 603. 1 Bro. C. C. 183. Kenyon v. Worthington, 2 Dick. 668. Goate v. Fryer, 2 Cox. 201. Hardcastle v. Chettle, 1 Bro. C. C. 162. Paxton v. Douglas, 8 Ves. 520. And the injunction in such case will go not only to stay execution, but will be extended to stay trial. Kenyon v. Worthington, Goate v. Fryer, ante. But in the latter case, as the action was commenced before the bill filed, the creditor, if he came in under the decree, and discontinued his action, was allowed to prove his costs at law, in addition to his debt, but if he chose to let his action remain till he saw what became of the fund, then the action must remain suspended.

After a decree for satisfaction of creditors, on a bill by some on behalf of the rest, plaintiffs in that suit refused to come in under the decree, but brought an action at law. An injunction bill was filed against them, in their answer to which they admitted the facts, and insisted that their names were used as plaintiffs without their consent. Injunction however granted. Douglas v. Clay, 1 Dick. 393.

Bill by creditor in the court of exchequer and decree. Other creditor brought a bill in chancery for the same purpose, and the court decreed the account, &c., saying that the decree in the exchequer was not complete. Coyngarne v. Jones, Amb. 613. JURISDICTION; DECREE IN THE EXCHEQUER.

Decree for an account of the estate of plaintiff's testator come to his hands, and of his debts, and that the creditors should come in before the master. Plaintiff being a creditor was allowed to go in and prove his debt, and the master to examine him relating thereto. Newman v. Norris, 1 Dick. 259.

Plaintiff came in under a decree (though no party to the suit) to receive satisfaction for a debt for which he had filed a bill. If plaintiffs in the former cause delay prosecuting, plaintiff in the other was to be at liberty to prosecute the decree in the name of the plaintiff, indemnifying them. Torin v. Fowke, 1 Dick. 235.

Creditor having come in under decree and prayed commission, has made his election. Farnham v. Burroughs, Dick. 63.

Creditor having proved debt under decree, after proceedings at law, put to election. Dennet v. Coker, id. 144.

It has never been reduced to a general rule, that only one bill shall be depending where a number of creditors are concerned, and therefore, where two bills were brought by different sets of creditors, to carry into execution a trust term created for payment of debts; an order to refer them to a master to certify which would be most for the creditors' benefit, was discharged. Anon. 3 Atk. 602. PR. MULTIPLICITY OF SUITS.

To a bill by creditor under statute of fraudulent devises, against assignee of bankrupt devisee, the heir at law must be party. Warren v. Staveell, 2 Atk. 125.

Actions at law were brought by bond-creditors against an heir at law, who was also devisee; other bond-creditors also filed a bill against him, and got a decree for a sale of the real assets descended. The heir then brought a bill to restrain those bond-creditors who sued at law. Injunction granted. Martin v. Martin, 1 Ves. 211. See observations on this subject there.

Bill by a creditor on behalf of himself and others against the executor and devisee. The present plaintiff came in and proved his debt under that decree, and afterwards filed his bill in the name of himself and other creditors, against the executor, and makes the heir at law a party. Plea of pendency of former suit, allowed. Neve v. Weston, 3 Atk. 557.

Injunction granted to restrain a creditor who had come in under a decree for an account, from proceeding at law, on the ground that by doing so he had made his election to proceed in this court. Farnham v. Burroughs, 1 Dick. 63.

A, as creditor of B, files a bill against proper parties for a sale of B's estate, alleging that he had by his will charged it with the payment of his debts. On trial of ejectment, a verdict was found against the will. Whereupon A's bill was dismissed with costs; but on appeal decree as to costs, was reversed. Squire v. Pershall, 2 Bro. P. C. 396. COSTS.

Bill by administrators as creditors to the intestate, with three or four of the creditors, against trustees (appointed by parliament) for payment of debts. Decree for sale, and that all the creditors might come in, &c. Then plaintiffs, as other creditors, filed a bill against administrators, and trustees, to discover personal estate, and have lands sold. Objected that plaintiffs might come in under former bill, but held that this bill was well brought, as it called the administrators themselves to account, which could not be on former bills. Guevers v. Dauby, 3 Rep. Ch. 216.

XXXIII. CROSS BILL.

See also PR. COSTS, 10. (n).

If a bill and cross bill be filed, the plaintiff in the original bill has a right to the first answer, and may move to stay proceedings in the cross cause, till the original bill is answered, though the plaintiff in the cross bill may be in a situation to enforce an answer first. The right of the plaintiff in the original bill to make the motion, was held not to have been waived, by his having taken out the common orders for time to answer the cross bill. Harris v. Harris, 1 Turn. & R. 165. PR. ORDER FOR TIME TO ANSWER; WAIVER; PR. ANSWER.

Court will not grant a defendant in a title suit, who has filed a cross bill against plaintiff for discovery, time to answer the original bill, until after the answer to the cross bill is put in. Defendant should amend the answer, if necessary. Dolben v. Whittingham, 11 Price, 28. PR. TIME TO ANSWER.

Court will not enlarge publication after answer to original bill, till the answers in a cross bill come in; but they will require an affidavit, verifying facts stated in cross-bill. Edwards v. Morgan, id. 399. PR. ENLARGING PUBLICATION; PR. ANSWER.

The application to equity by cross-bill, to establish moduses against a bill to overturn them, being matter of favour, costs in equity are never allowed. Morrell v. Gregson, id. 421. MODUS; PR. COSTS.

Though original bill be filed in exchequer, yet cross-bill may be filed in chancery. Parkerv. Leigh, 6 Mad. 115. EXCHEQUER; JURISDICTION.

Cross bill filed only just before cause coming on for hearing, not cause to adjourn it. Coates v. Pearson, 4 Mad. 262. BUCK. 326. S. C. PR. CAUSE, ADJOURNMENT OF.

After motion for a month's time, after cross bill is answered, to answer the original bill, and the month is expired, a motion cannot be made as of course for further time to answer the original bill. Noel v. King, 3 Mad. 183. PR. TIME TO ANSWER.

Plaintiff in original bill amending after cross bill filed, loses his right to priority of answer; but in order to stay proceedings on original bill, defendant in original must obtain order for that purpose. S. C. 2 Mad. 392. PR. STAYING PROCS.; PR. ANSWER, PRIORITY OF.

Depositions in cross cause, taken after publication of those in principal cause, not admissible in evidence on re-hearing of the latter. Taylor v. Obee, 3 Price, 83. PR. EVID. DEPOSITIONS.

Court will not make an order on motion that plaintiff in cross cause, (who has not examined witnesses on his part in the original cause, after having obtained an order to enlarge publication), shall be at liberty to read depositions taken on his behalf in a cross cause, after publication of the depositions taken on behalf of the plaintiff, on hearing of original cause, on an application to put the cross cause into the short paper for that purpose, supported by affidavit of total ignorance on part of parties interested, and their attorneys, of the depositions published; and this, however satisfactory the affidavit in support of such motion may, in point of fact, be in the particular instance. Ridley v. Obee, 3 Price, 26. PR. EVID. PUBLICATION.

Cross bill taken pro confesso ordered on motion to be read at hearing of original cause. Cory v. Gertcken, 2 Mad. 43. PR. EVID. BILL PRO CONFESSO.

Answer to cross bill not allowed to be read, though the original bill and answer was read, there having been no further proceedings on cross bill and answer. Bennett v. Neale, Wightw. 325. EVID.

Defendant to a bill for specific performance, on proving an agreement different from that insisted on by the plaintiff, may have a decree upon his answer, submitting to perform. A cross bill, therefore, formerly the course, being unnecessary, would be dismissed with costs. Fife v. Clayton, 13 Ves. 546. SPEC. PERF.

Reference upon the title; an objection to the specific performance on the ground that premises to which no title could be made, were represented as included in the purchase, and were a principal inducement to the purchaser, failing upon the evidence. Cross bill for specific performance according to answer, dismissed with costs, as unnecessary. Stapylton v. Scott, 13 Ves. 425. Id.

If a creditor coming in under a decree requires relief, which cannot be had by re-hearing the original cause, he ought to file a cross bill. Létouche v. Ld. Dunsany, 1 Scho. & L. 149. DEBT. & CRED.; PR. DECREE TO ACCOUNT.

Plaintiff in original bill loses his priority of suit, and his right to have an answer to the original bill, before he is called upon to answer cross bill, until after answer to original bill. Johnson v. Freer, 2 Cox, 371. PRIORITY OF SUIT; AMENDMENT.

There are cause and cross cause, and the plaintiffs in the original cause are many, several of whom are out of jurisdiction, others not to be found, and some, peers of the realm; a motion that service on the clerk in court should be good service, refused; but plaintiffs shall not pass publication in the original cause, till they have answered the cross bill. Anderson v. Lewis, 3 Bro. C. C. 429. PR. SERVICE SUBSTITUTED.

If defence to bill for specific performance of agreement for a purchase, depends merely on want of title in vendor, defendant ought to rest on his answer, and not file cross bill, to have it delivered up, or to prevent an action, for plaintiff cannot succeed at law. Hilton v. Barrow, 1 Ves. J. 284. SPEC. PERF.; VEND. & PURCH.

Cross bill, being for a mere legal title, dismissed with costs, though the original bill was dismissed. Calverley v. Williams, 1 Ves. J. 213. PR. COSTS.

A cross bill is a defence, and so connected with the original that they are always considered but as one cause. Kemp v. Muckrell, 3 Atk. 812.

If, after a cross bill filed, a plaintiff in an original bill will amend it in material parts, and thinks fit to compel an answer to the amendments at the same time with the original bill, he waives his priority of answer to the original. Long v. Burton, 2 Atk. 218. S. C. Dick. 82. AMENDMENT; PR. PRIORITY OF SUIT.

Bill abated by marriage of plaintiff, no revivor till after cross bill filed, loses priority. Waller v. Payer, Dick. 260.

Evidence in the cross cause concerning the matters in issue in the original cause not allowed to be read after a decree in that cause: otherwise, as to the depositions in the cross cause not relating to the matters put in issue in the original. Wilford v. Beasley, 3 Atk. 501. PR. EVID.

Court will not stay proceedings in an original cause till the answer comes in to the cross bill, but will stay publication only. Ramkissensett v. Baker, 1 Atk. 21. PR. STAYING PROCEEDINGS.

Where defendant in a cross bill, but plaintiff in the original, is in contempt, for not putting in an answer to the cross bill, the proper motion is not to stay proceedings in the original cause, but to enlarge publication in the original to a fortnight after the answer is come in to the cross bill. Creswick v. Creswick, 1 Atk. 291. PR. ENLARGING PUBLICATION.

The original bill is to be first answered; but if the plaintiff, after his cross bill filed, amend his bill, he loses his priority. Steward v. Roe, 2 P. W. 435. PR. ANSWER.

First bill to be answered before the cross bill. A brings his bill against B and C, who put in insufficient answers, and prefer their cross bill against A. B becomes a bankrupt; his assignees bring their bill in nature of a bill of revivor against A: they shall not go on till C has answered A's bill. Child v. Frederick, 1 P. W. 266. PR. ANSWER.

Cross bill in nature of a defence, and were first allowed that the party might state his own case more to his advantage than he could as a defendant; but the same matter cannot be examined to after publication. A cross bill should be brought time enough to be examined to before publication in the original suit passes. Ward v. Eyles, Mos. 377.

Where no process is taken out upon the original bill, and a cross bill is filed, the plaintiff in the original suit cannot compel defendant to answer his bill first. Price v. Coningsby, Bun. 124.

After publication in the original cause, plaintiffs in the cross cause moved for a commission to examine witnesses, which was granted, though it was urged that it would tend to cure the defects of that evidence which had been adduced in the original suit. Scott v. Allgood, (Exch.) Prac. Reg. 87. PR. COMMISSION TO EXAMINE.

2. Form and construction of.

The common decree in foreclosure does not direct the delivery up of the title deeds by the mortgagor to the mortgagee in case of foreclosure, but merely that the mortgagor shall be absolutely barred and foreclosed of all right and equity of redemption; and it is only where there is a covenant to deliver them in case of default in payment of the principal, money, and interest, that the court makes such a decree. Wiseman v. Westland, 1 Y. & J. 117. FORECLOSURE OF MORTGAGE; DELIVERY UP OF DEEDS.

Where defence failed in consequence of unsatisfactory and incomplete evidence having been tendered, the court, at the request of the defendants, ordered the decree to be qualified by the introduction of a provision, that it should not prejudice the right of the defendant to question any future claim of the like subject-matter by the complainants. Wolley v. Brownhill, 13 Price, 500. S. C. 1 M'Clell. 317.

A decree for reference of title on a bill for specific performance should contain a declaration that the contract ought to be specifically performed. Mole v. Smith, 1 Jac. 495. SPEC. PERF.; REFERENCE AS TO TITLE.

It is not necessarily a substantive part of decree directing issue at law to order it shall be tried by special jury. Stuart v. Greenall, 9 Price, 480. ISSUE AT LAW.

Form of decree of conditional redemption, where a second mortgage by another person has been given to secure the first. Bechet v. Mickelthwait, 6 Mad. 199. FORM.

On bill for partition and account of rents and profits, a decree for that purpose will be made, and relief will not be confined merely to partition. Lorimer v. Lorimer, 5 Mad. 363. PARTITION; ACCOUNT.

A decree for payment of the debt of one creditor, under a deed of trust, which provides for the payment of other creditors, is erroneous. So, if the bill, stating A to have been the survivor of the trustees named in the deed, makes the heir of A party to the suit, as such supposed survivor, and that allegation proves to be false, the decree made upon such state of the pleadings is erroneous. A bill to carry such a decree into execution, notwithstanding long acquiescence, cannot be sustained. The original decree may be examined, impeached, and varied in a suit to carry that decree into execution. It is not conclusive until reversed by original bill, or bill of review, for error apparent on the face of the decree, and the court may refuse to carry it into execution. Hamilton v. Haughton, 2 Bli. 169.

Where a trust is created by deed for the payment of debts, if a bill is filed by one of the creditors to enforce the payment of his debt, that purpose can only be effected by the general execution of the trust. The decree ought to direct such execution, and an inquiry as to all the debts owing and payable under the trust, and that they should be paid according to their priorities. Id. ib. TRUST TO PAY DEBTS.

Interest ought not to be computed from the date of the decree for payment, but from the day when payment is by the decree directed to be made. Id. 170. INTEREST, WHEN PAYABLE.

The term "rent," used in a decree under stat. 37 H. 8. c. 12., relating to tithes in London, means rent actually and bona fide received without fraud or covin; and not the annual value of the premises let. Fines to whatever amount, paid on the renewal of leases of dwelling houses, are not to be considered as increase of rent, or to be taken into calculation in estimating the amount of tithes due, provided the rent reserved is equal to that which the houses have been at any time before let. Minor Canons of St. Paul's v. Crickett, 5 Price, 14. RENT; WORDS, C. OF.

The use of inserting in a decree dismissing a bill for a specific execution, "without prejudice to the plaintiff's remedy at law," is to prevent an unfavourable impression against the plaintiff on the trial at law. McNamara v. Arthur, 2 Ball & B. 353.

Foreclosure against an infant, the decree absolute should repeat the clause nisi, as in the original decree, giving six months after age to shew cause. Williamson v. Gordon, 19 Ves. 114. FORECLOSURE OF MORTGAGE; INFANT; DAY TO SHEW CAUSE.

Sale of real estate decreed provisionally without waiting the account of the personal estate previously applicable. Curtis v. Price, 12 Ves. 195. REAL ESTATE, SALE OF; PR. MASTER'S REPORT.

Executor directed by will, not to derive any advantage from keeping money in his hands without accounting for legal interest, and to accumulate for the cestuique trust, infants. Decree, directing a computation of interest at 5 per cent, on all sums received by him, while in his hands; "and that the master do in such computation make half yearly rests." The object of that decree is to charge compound interest, and the decree, though perhaps going further than usual, was held, under the circumstances, properly executed by a computation of interest upon each receipt, from the day it was received; the balance of receipts with the interest so calculated, and payments being struck at the end of the half year, and that balance is composed of principal and interest, being carried forward as an item in the account, producing interest. Raphael v. Boehm, 11 Ves. 92. Affid. 13 Ves. 407. EXECUTOR; ACCOUNT; ANNUAL RESTS.

It is not now the practice in chancery to insert direction in decree, that master is at liberty to examine witnesses, but master may certify that a commission is necessary, which then issues of course. Sandford v. Biddulph, 9 Ves. 36. PR. COMMISSION TO EXAMINE WITNESSES; PR. EXAMINATION IN MASTER'S OFFICE.

The decrees in the exchequer always express, that the officer is to be armed with a commission to examine witnesses, and power to direct the same to the country: so formerly in chancery. Parkinson v. Ingram, 3 Ves. 607. PR. EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES.

Interest computed on various sums reported due, and also on all arrears of interest (on other sums) and on costs. Bickham v. Cross, Ves. 471. S. P. Neal v. Att. Gen., Mos. 246. INTEREST.

As to the rate of interest under a decree, which fluctuated in Lord Hardwicke's time; according to the nature of the fund, but which is now generally 4 per cent. See Derton v. Shellard, 2 Ves. 239. Id.

Where bill is filed to set aside a conveyance for fraud, imposition, and want of consideration, and for other relief, and the court dismisses the bill, so far as relates to the conveyance, but gives plaintiff liberty to proceed at law as to the other matters; and in the mean time retains the bill as to those matters, if the plaintiff neglects to proceed at law within a reasonable time, and suffers his bill to be absolutely dismissed from such neglect, he cannot afterwards complain of decree by way of appeal. Rotheram v. Brown, 8 Bro. P. C. 297. PR. APPEAL; LACHES.

The words "all just allowances" in a decree for an account, do not empower the master to allow for improvements, unless the decree particularly mentions them, which is never the case, without the party makes proof of there being some. Knowles v. Spence, Mos. 225. PR. ACCOUNT BEFORE MASTER.

3. General Effect of.

After a decree in one of two suits, commenced in the name of an infant, it is not usual to refer it to the master, to inquire which suit is most beneficial. Taylor v. Oldham, 1 Jac. 527. INFANT; PR. REV. TO MASTER.

Lands in strict settlement, with power to grant leases, being subject to prior incumbrances, are by decree in a suit instituted by incumbrances directed to be sold, subject to charges prior to deed of settlement. Pending suit tenant for life under settlement, grants leases not authorized by power, and raises money upon annuities for his life, which he charges upon the lands, and they are sold subject to those charges: held, (reversing decree in court below, on suit by remainderman in tail), that the sale subject to charges not warranted by decree, is void. Id. ib. SALE, PEND. LITE.

Trustees for creditors after decree for execution of trusts, restrained from proceeding in a suit in court of chancery in Ireland, having same objects. Harrison v. Gurney, 2 J. & W. 563. IRELAND.

A decree for redemption and general account, &c. having been made in the original and revived causes in favour of the supposed devisee, it cannot be restricted in the supplemental suit to an account to be taken as between the executors and mortgagees, &c. to the time of the death of the deviser, dismissing the bill as it regards the interest of the devisee; for the devisee is a necessary party to the account. Rylands v. Latouche, 2 Bligh, 567. DEVISEE; PR. PARTY; ACCOUNT.

Decree for tithes declared to be without prejudice to the right, where the party appears to have failed in establishing a modus by mismanaging the suit. Lake v. Skinner, 1 Jac. & W. 9. MISMANAGEMENT OF SUIT.

Decree in former suit cannot be pleaded to bill, for tithes of any subsequent year. Minor Cmons of St. Paul's v. Crickett, Wightw. 30. PL. PLA.

Decree upon the answer, admitting a contract and a letter, offering to sell at a valuation, for a conveyance, on payment of the purchase money into the bank; the plaintiff, on a certain day; in default of payment by the bill to be dismissed with costs. No binding contract until payment. The estate therefore did not pass by a previous devise, but descended to the heir. Gasarth v. Lowther, 12 Ves. 107. WILL, C. OF, WHAT PASSES; CONDITION, PRECEDENT; CONTRACT TO PURCHASE.

After an account taken under a decree, a party shall not be allowed to overhawl the account, by bringing an action at law on the same subject-matter. Bell v. O'Reilly, 2 Sch. & L. 430. ACCOUNT, OPENING.

In such a case, the defendant at law ought not to appear to the action, but ought to apply to this court from attachment; but having suffered the action to proceed, and then filed this bill, the defendant at law was held liable to the costs of the action. The proceedings in this cause were stayed, with liberty for all parties to apply in the original cause. Id. ib.

A decree taken ex parte, is taken at the peril of the party obtaining it, and is the act not of the court, but of the party conceiving what the judgment of the court would be, if the other party had appeared. Carew v. Johnston, 2 Scho. & L. 300.

After decree, the bill cannot be dismissed by consent, but an arrangement for disposing of the fund in court, may have effect by consent on further direction. Lushley v. Hogg, 11 Ves. 602. PR. BILL, DISMISSAL OF.

After decree, suit may be revived by defendant, or by his representatives, if dead. Williams v. Cooke, 10 Ves. 406. PARTY DEFENDANT; ABATEMENT & REVIVOR.

A decree in equity for a sum certain, is equal to a judgment at law, and shall be paid pari passu therewith; but if the decree be for an account, it is only equal to a judgment quod computet, till the account be settled. Searle v. Lane, 2 Freem. 104. ADMINISTRATION OF ASSETS.

After a decree, for a specific performance of an agreement for a lease, and the lease had been executed in pursuance of such decree, the plaintiff brought an action at law to recover from defendant damages for the delay in the performance of that agreement. Although the defendant would have been clearly entitled to an injunction in a new suit, yet the decree having been wholly executed, the court cannot make such an order in the original cause. Ford v. Compton, 1 Cor, 296. PR. INJUNCTION.

Plaintiff cannot move to dismiss bill after decree. Gartside v. Isherwood, Dick. 612.

Bill by creditors in the court of exchequer, and decree; other creditors brought a bill in chancery for the same purpose, and the court decreed the account, &c. saying that the decrees in the exchequer was not complete. Coyne v. Jones, Amb. 613. JURISDICTION; CREDITORS' SUIT.

Where a feme covert was entitled to one-sixth of the residue of a testator's estate, upon a bill filed by another residuary legatee, to which she and her husband were defendants, a decree was made for a sale of the estate and payment: held, that her share vested absolutely in her husband by the decree; and though the defendants were creditors of the wife, yet that the court would interpose to take the money out of their hands. Forbes v. Phipps, 1 Eden, 503. HUSBAND & WIFE; CHOSE IN ACTION; REDUCTION INTO POSSESSION.

After a decree in a cause, another original bill cannot be brought between the same parties, and for the same matters. Wortley v. Birkhead, 2 Ves. 371. 3 Atk. 809.

Injunction granted against an action commenced by plaintiff, while proceeding under a decree to account for the same matter; it being a contempt to proceed at law, after the subject of the cause had been attached in court. Mocher v. Reed, 1 Ball & B. 318. INJUNC. TO STAY PROCEEDINGS AT LAW.

Upon further directions, under the usual decree for an account against an administratrix, an inquiry as to balances in her hands from time to time, with a computation of interest thereon, prayed by petition upon affidavits of her conduct, before the master, by attempting to support her discharge by forgery, &c., was granted. Parriett v. Price, 14 Ves. 502.

The examination of an executor, under the usual decree for an account, ought to contain an interrogatory, whether he is indebted to the testator, the debt from himself being assets; liberty was therefore given, upon the suggestion of co-defendants, legatees, without affidavit, to exhibit an interrogatory for that purpose, not to go into an account, which must be the subject of a distinct bill. Simmons v. Gutteridge, 13 Ves. 262. EXECUTOR; PR. EXAMINATION OF PARTY DEFENDANT.

A final decree upon a sum ascertained, is equal to a judgment; but a mere decree for an account of plaintiff's demand, and of the personal estate come to the hands of defendant with mere direction for payment out of the result of that account, does not prevent the executor paying a judgment. Perry v. Philips, 10 Ves. 33. EXOR.

If a creditor coming in under a decree, requires relief, which cannot be had by re-hearing the original cause, he ought to file a cross-bill. Lutouche v. Id. Dunsany, 1 Sch. & L. 149. DEBTOR & CRED.; PR. CROSS-BILL.

A decree for an account may be made, without declaring the will well proved, where one of the witnesses is abroad. Fitzherbert v. Fitzherbert, 4 Bro. C. C. 231.

Where a bill has been filed, and a decree made for an account, and a creditor comes before the master, but afterwards brings an action, the court will enjoin. But where the defendant has not applied in the first instance, it shall be without costs. Hurdeastle v. Chettle, id. 163. INJUNC. AGAINST PROCEEDING AT LAW; COSTS.

A defendant after a decree to account, though called an actor in the suit, yet is not prevented becoming plaintiff in another suit for the same matter. Bayley v. Edwards, 3 Swan. 703.

After a general decree against an executor to account, &c., a creditor shall be restrained by injunction from proceeding at law, not staying execution, but from going to trial. Gault v. Fryer, 2 Cox, 201. S. C. 3 Bro. C. C. 23. INJUNC. TO STAY PROCEEDINGS AT LAW.

Where single creditor files a bill for the payment of his own debt only, the court does not direct a general account of the testator's debts, but only an account of the personal estate, and that particular debt which is ordered to be paid in a course of administration. Att. Gen. v. Cornthwaite, 2 Cox, 44. DEBTOR & CRED.

Under a decree for an account, and applying personal estate in payment of debts and funeral expences, and directing the clear surplus to be paid over, making to the parties all just allowances, the master ought to allow payment in discharge of legacies. Nightingale v. Lawson, 1 Cox, 23. PR. ACCOUNT BEFORE MASTER.

A third mortgagee cannot take in a prior security, to displace a second mortgagee, after a decree to account, and before the master has made his report. Wortley v. Birkhead, 3 Atk. 811. In a creditor's suit for administering the assets of B, a joint creditor of A and B was permitted to prove; A having become bankrupt, and it appearing that there were no joint assets of A and B. Cowell v. Sikes, 2 Russ. 191. DEBTOR & CRED.; PR. PROOF UNDER DECREE.

In a suit for the administration of a testator's assets, after the decree on further directions had sanctioned payments made by the executor in discharge of legacies, and had directed the fund in court to be apportioned among the other legatees, a creditor obtained permission to prove his debt; the master subsequently reported a debt to be due to him; but, in the mean time, the fund had been apportioned, and part of it had been paid over, while the remainder had been carried to the account of particular legatees. Held, that the creditor was entitled to receive out of the hands of the legatees, remaining in court, not the whole of the debt, but only a part of it, bearing the same proportion to the whole as the legacies given to those legatees bore to the whole amount of the legacies given by the will. Gillespie v. Alexander, 3 Russ. 130.

Administrator may retain his debt, though decree has been made for administration of assets in suit by other creditors, and though assets out of which he seeks to retain came to his hands since decree. Munn v. Barlow, 1 S. & S. 588. EXORS. & ADMORS.; RIGHT TO RETAIN.

Legacy assigned under certain trusts; trustee, notwithstanding notice of former decree for administration of assets, files bill for payment of legacy. Court refused legacy to be assigned to him, he having acted imprudently, or to give him costs. And executors refused costs, because they should have moved to stay proceedings, instead of answering trustees' bill. Pack-

Wood v. Maddison, 1 S. & S. 232. TRUSTEE; COSTS; EXECUTORS.

After decree for administration of assets in amicable suit, creditor having filed another bill praying usual accounts, (which had been directed by former decree) and also to have assets marshalled, (which was not prayed for or decreed in first suit), court made decree in second suit, directing usual accounts and assets to be marshalled, with liberty to master to use accounts taken under former decree. Pott v. Gallini, 1 S. & S. 206.

If the second suit had been merely for same object as the first, the decree in the first suit would have been a bar to it, and the court, on motion before answer, would have ordered all proceedings in it to be stayed. Id. ib.

When, under order made in creditor's suit, leave is given to file supplemental bill by creditor, not party to original suit, on behalf of himself and other creditors, to have benefit of decree in that suit, plaintiff is entitled to the same decree, to have benefit of former proceedings, as representatives of the original plaintiffs would have been entitled on bill of revivor. Houlditch v. Marq. Donegall, 1 S. & S. 491. BILL OF REVIVOR; BILL OF SUPPLEMENT.

After a decree for administration of a testator's estate in England and Ireland, an incumbrancer upon the Irish estate having come in and proved his debt, restrained from proceeding in a creditor's suit instituted by him in the court of chancery in Ireland, receiving the costs up to the time of his having notice of the decree, and paying the costs of the application. Beauchamp v. Marq. Huntley, 1 Jac. 546.

After a decree for the administration of a trust, the court will stay proceedings in a second suit for the same objects, but not if the second suit has a further purpose, as removing the trustees for default. Anson v. Tuogood, 6 Mad. 374.

After decree for administration of assets, executors pleaded false plea to action brought against him by creditors of testator, in order to have an opportunity of applying for injunction to restrain action, court granted injunction, and held creditor not entitled to judgment against executor, de bonis propriis. Fielden v. Fielden, 1 S. & S. 255. INJUNC.; EXOR.; PL. FALSE PLEA.

Where creditors are proceeding at law after a decree, the executor should move to restrain them, or he may be responsible. Clarke v. El. Ormonde, 1 Jac. 122. EXORS., DUTIES OF.

8. Obtaining generally.

A court of equity has discretion to neuter its decree in any manner that suits the real and substantial justice of the case, and in a suit for tithes, if a defendant set up distinct farm moduses, there may be a separate decree establishing or overruling each modus separately; and the whole costs may be decreed according to the justice of the case, against each defendant. Wolley v. Brounhill, 1 M'Clell. 324. S. C. 13 Price, 500. JURISDICTION.

If the defendant has a good defence against one of the plaintiffs, who held a joint office, though not against the others, the court cannot make a decree in that suit for the plaintiffs. Hunter v. Richardson, 6 Mad. 89. PARTNERS.

If the plaintiff in a suit has, by the course of the court, a right to a decree for an account, he does not forfeit such a right by refusing an account which is offered by the defendant or the court at the hearing. It is the duty of the court to decree an account ex officio; and if such decree is not made, it is a valid ground of appeal, notwithstanding the refusal of the plaintiff. McNeill v. Cahill, 2 Bligh, 229. ACCOUNT.

A plaintiff in an interpleading bill having done all in his power to bring the parties before the court, may obtain a decree, although one of the defendants has not answered, and is present at the hearing, if he (having appeared to the process) has been duly brought into contempt for want of answer. Fairbrother v. Prattent, 3 Price, 303. PR. INTERPLEADER.

Where defendant ought to have demurred to jurisdiction, the court will not make a decree. Barker v. Dacie, 6 Ves. 686. Sed quare; for by cross bill that objection is waived. PL. DEMURRER TO JURISDICTION.

A decree obtained without making parties those whose rights are affected thereby, is fraudulent and void as to those parties; and a purchaser under it, with notice of the defect, is not protected by it. Giffard v. Hott, 1 Scho. & L. 386. PL. PARTIES.

A final decree cannot be made upon an interlocutory order, without consent. Allan v. Bower, 3 Bro. C. C. 149. PR. INTERLOCUTORY ORDER.

9. Obtaining by Fraud.

Where the enrolment of a decree is gained by surprise, the court will vacate it. Stevens v. Guppy, 1 Turn. & R. 178. PR. DECREE, ENROLMENT OF.

Mortgagee resisting the right to redemption, on the ground of a decree of foreclosure collusively obtained, decreed to pay so much of the costs as was occasioned by his resistance. Harvey v. Tebbutt, 1 Jac. & W. 197. COSTS; MORTGAGE.

A decree in equity is no protection to a purchase effected by management of vendor, tenant for life, and purchaser himself, to the prejudice of the remainderman entitled to the inheritance under colour of decree in equity, the remainderman though a party to suit being an infant at the time. Colclough v. Bolger, 4 Dow, 62.

Purchase of estate under decree fraudulently obtained, set aside after a great length of time. Gore v. Stackpole, 1 Dow, 18. VEND. & PURCH.

Quere, whether purchaser for valuable consideration, under decree fraudulently obtained, though ignorant of fraud, can protect himself when fraud appears on face of proceedings? Id. 30. NOTICE; VEND. & PURCH.

A decree of foreclosure had on sequestration in 1777, in pursuance of 7 Geo. 2. c. 14. against an absent mortgagor, known by the plaintiff to be incompetent from mental imbecility to conduct his affairs, and advantage having been taken in the account of the state of the defendant, and of his absence, and of his having nobody to manage his defence, and a sale had in 1780, in pursuance of such decree to the person conducting the suit, set aside as fraudulent, and an inquiry directed into the circumstances, upon the ground of which the decree and former proceedings were impeached on original bill filed in 1785 by the heir of the mortgagor. Carew v. Johnston, 2 Scho. & L. 280. MORTGAGE, FORECLOSURE OF.

A decree, though obtained by fraud, cannot be set aside by petition. Musell v. Morgan, 3 Bro. C. C. 74. PR. DECREE, SETTING ASIDE; PR. PETITION.

R seized in fee of lands, devised the same in 1696 to T; a papist, for lives; T died in 1727, when W, his eldest son, also a papist, became seized as special occupant; in 1741 he conveyed all his interest to M, in consideration of 500*l.*; M died in 1750, leaving C, respondent's wife, his heir at law, and F, who obtained administration; W died in 1751, leaving an infant daughter A, and B his widow, who entered and received the rents. Appellants intermarried in 1770, during the minority of A, who became of age in 1772, and in 1778 appellants filed their bill, charging that W was almost an idiot; and was imposed upon by K, for whom M was only a trustee; that no consideration was paid; that the consideration pretended was made up of false accounts by K, who, being an attorney, had alarmed W, by telling him that his interest was discoverable under the popery laws, and that therefore he must convey to some protestant to protect it, though K knew that the original devise in 1696 was prior to the popery acts. That in 1741 K filed a bill in the name of D, as a protestant discoverer, against W, praying to be decreed the benefits of the devise in 1696, and of the renewals on an allegation that X, the father of W, had, by his will in 1727, devised his interest to papists. K proceeded in the cause, prepared the answers of all the defendants, and in 1742 the court decreed in favour of D, the protestant discoverer, which decree was drawn up by K, who caused it to be inserted; that depositions were read at the hearing, though by the registrar's minutes it appeared that none were taken in the cause. In 1742, D assigned the decree to M in trust for K, who purchased the inheritance of the lands. Appellants, after adducing many evidences of fraud and inadequacy of consideration, prayed that the decree in 1742 might be set aside for fraud, and a renewal of the original lease of 1696. Respondents, by their answer, insisted on the fairness of the transaction, which they explained, and insisted on the statute of limitations as to matters of account, and on length of time since the original purchase. Whereupon the court dismissed the bill, and their decree of dismissal was on appeal affirmed by the lords. Mulcahy v. Kennedy, 1 Ridg. P. C. 331. PAPISTS.

A bill of review, with matter come to the party's knowledge since the hearing, lies. Where the plaintiff in the bill has since the hearing discovered matter which would vary the decree; and where, if such matter was known to the other party, he was not in conscience obliged to have discovered it to the court; for if the matter was known to the other party, and such as in conscience he ought to have discovered, he obtains the decree by fraud, and it ought to be set aside by original bill. Manaton v. Molesworth, 1 Eden, 25. BILL OF REVIEW.

Probate obtained by fraud relieved against here, and the deed importing a consent thereto, set aside here, not in ecclesiastical court, and the defendant decreed to consent to a revocation of the probate. Barnesly v. Pavel, 1 Ves. 287. WILL, PROBATE OF; JURISDICTION.

A decree gained by fraud may be set aside by petition, as well as a judgment at law by motion; a fortiori may such decree be set aside by will. Sheldon v. Aland, 3 P. W. 111.

On suggestion of a gross fraud, the court will upon an original bill overrule a plea of a decree, and report made and confirmed thereon, if the suggestion of fraud be not denied. Lloyd v. Mansell, 2 P. W. 73. PLEA OF FORMER DECREE.

On a bill to set aside a decree against an infant for fraud, if the same be not fraudulent, though in every respect not so equitable, the court will not set it aside. Richmond v. Tayleur, 1 P. W. 734. FRAUD, DECREE BY.

Enrolment of a decree may be opened if the enrolment was gained by surprise, or there is some irregularity in it. Anon. 1 Vern. 131. PR. DECREE, OPENING.

10. Obtaining by consent.

See PR. APPEAL, 2.

The lords will not (upon appeal) reverse a decree in equity, founded on an order made by consent. Blundell v. Macartney, 2 Ridgw. P. C. 557. PR. APPEAL.

Decree by consent, not set aside. Harrison v. Ramsey, 2 Ves. 488.

A decree or order made by consent, cannot be annulled from. Bradish v. Gee, Amb. 229. S. C. he is pl. 73. Allanson v. Doulsen, Colles, P. C. 299. gory v. Mo. Sansum, 1 Bro. P. C. 468. Blundell v. A decree, 2 Ridgw. P. C. 557, 591. PR. APPEAL. Judgment in a cause, heard by consent; reversed on appeal. Butterfield v. Butterfield, 1 Ves. 133. Id.

And in Wood v. Griffith, 1 Mer. 36. 38. Ld. Ch. said, he should have great difficulty in holding, that by consenting to an order consequential on a decree, the party had precluded himself from appeal.

It is a rule, that whenever a decree is assented by consent, the merits shall never after be brought into, unless there be an objection, that the assent be struck out of the order. Norcott v. Norcott, 2 Vin. Ab. 398. S. C. nom. Northcote v. Northcote, Colles, P. C. 287. Blundell v. Macartney, 2 Ridgw. P. C. 557, 591.

An appeal brought, suggesting that decree was said to be made by consent, when it was not, was dismissed. Downing v. Cuge, 1 Eq. Ab. 165. PR. APPEAL.

Copyhold fines were ascertained at two years value, and a commission was issued, to ascertain the value of the tenements under a decree by consent, the principle of which was disapproved. Ld. Holles v. Hutchinson, 3 Swan. 665.

A decree by consent, as to a personal estate, binds a purchaser for a valuable consideration. Wyndham v. Wyndham, 3 Rep. Ch. 22. 2 Freem. 127. All the parties in a suit, except one who was not present, but whose solicitor consented on his behalf, agreed in court to refer the matter in dispute to the final determination of an arbitrator. On a bill of review, brought by the absent party: Held, that solicitor's assent to interlocutorys may bind; it cannot bind to a reference finally to determine. The court refused to give costs against the solicitor who assented, for that the assent he gave was in court, and it was the folly of the other party to proceed on it. Colvel v. Child, 1 Ch. Ca. 86. 1 Cl. R. 195.

Allowed to be a good error in a bill of review, that the decree was made by the consent of the plaintiff's counsel, by which he ought not to be concluded. Smith v. Turner, 1 Vern. 274. See vide Harrison v. Runsey, 2 Ves. 488.

11. Pro confesso, and by default.

See also PR. BILL, PRO CONFESSO.

Persons out of the realm, affected by decree pro confesso; if they return within seven years, to be served with a copy, or in case of death, his heir, &c. 5 G. 2. c. 25. s. 4.

If persons served with copies of such decree pro confesso, shall not petition a rehearing of the cause within six months, the decree to be absolutely confirmed, and bar all claiming by them. 5 Geo. 2. c. 25. s. 5.

Decree on bill pro confesso is absolute, and no day given to show cause against it. Landon v. Ready, 1 S. & S. 44. PR. BILL, PRO CONFESSO; DAY TO SHOW CAUSE.

But where defendant is served to hear judgment, and does not appear, he has a day given to show cause against decree. Id. ib.

Under a decree to account, made upon taking the bill pro confesso, against a defendant who has appeared, but not answered, he cannot attend the master without the leave of the court, but leave to attend given, and the sequestration discharged upon payment of the costs of the contempt of the suit. Heyn v. Heyn, 1 Jac. 49. PR. CONTEMPT; PR. ATTENDANCE BEFORE MASTER.

A decree taken pro confesso, is the decree of the plaintiff who takes it, and it is his duty to see that it is right. A decree taken pro confesso, against one of the defendants in a suit, may be impeached for error by a party claiming under that defendant; and the party claiming under the plaintiff in the suit, can have no benefit of that decree, if erroneous. Hamilton v. Houghton, 2 Bligh, 170.

A bill taken pro confesso, is conclusive against the defendant only, as to the facts within his knowledge; not as to facts which the plaintiff has the same opportunity of knowing as the defendant, e.g. as to the survivorship of a trustee, which was alleged in the bill, but proved to be contrary to the fact. Id. ib.

Decree by default made upon service of a subpoena, not entered upon judgment, is irregular, and will be discharged on motion. Powell v. Martin, 1 Jac. & W. 293. SUBPENA, INDORSEMENT OF.

To shew cause against a decree on default by defendant at the hearing, the order must be set down the cause on some day immediately, not after the causes already set down. Margr. Anspach v. Noel, 19 Ves. 573. PR. SETTING DOWN CAUSE.

Decree pro confesso, not opened without strong ground; therefore not upon a general affidavit by party himself of derangement. Evidence more satisfactory, and extending to the whole period, being required. Knight v. Young, 2 V. & B. 184.

The process to obtain a decree pro confesso, not applied to a prisoner in Newgate under a criminal sentence; who if brought up by habeas corpus, must be remanded immediately; and cannot as a general case, be turned over to the Fleet ex caris, subject to the further process by alias habeas corpus, &c. Moss v. Brown, 1 V. & B. 306. PR. PROCESS; PR. PRISONER.

A decree by default having been made absolute, the proper course to set it aside, is by presenting a petition for a rehearing. A motion to discharge the order to make absolute, and for a day to shew cause, refused accordingly. Att. Gen. v. Browle, 3 Mer. 698.

Upon decree taken by default of defendant at hearing, the evidence is not entered as read. Stubbs v. —, 10 Ves. 30. EVIDENCE, ENTRY OF.

To prevent decree pro confesso, defendant should have not only the answer on file, but also a receipt for costs. The answer being actually filed, without payment or tender of costs, the defendant was remanded to give an opportunity of moving to take it off the file for irregularity, but plaintiff having taken an office copy of answer, that course failed. Sedgier v. Tyte, 11 Ves. 202. PR. ANSWER; PR. COSTS; WAIVER.

Decree upon a bill taken pro confesso, is to be pronounced by the court, not to be drawn up by the plaintiff. Geary v. Sheridan, 8 Ves. 192.

Decree in a suit of interpleader against a defendant, who did not appear. Hodges v. Smith, 1 Cox, 357. PR. INTERPLEADER.

Where a defendant is out of the jurisdiction, and cannot be made to appear, it amounts to the same thing as if process had been taken out for want of an appearance, and carried on to a sequestration. Darwent v. Walton, 3 Atk. 510.

Defendant appears and cause goes off till a future day, when defendant makes default, there may be an absolute decree against him. Halsey v. Smith, Mos. 186. Venemore v. Venemore, 1 Dick. 93.

Defendant by consent to appear at hearing gratis, and pray no day over, making default, decree was pronounced. Dean v. Abel, Dick. 287.

12. Service of.

See also PR. DECREE, 15.

Decree served on peer requires no letter missive. Mackenzie v. Powis, 2 Com. 675. LETTER MISSIVE; PEE.

By practice in Ireland the draft of decree ought to be delivered to adverse party, or his attorney, who, in eight days, is to return the same signed by counsel on that side, or make objections to the draft before it can be regularly enrolled. Cheveril v. Geoghegan, 6 Bro. P. C. 18. IRELAND.

Not having been served with a copy of a decree for a sale is a good cause against an attachment, for not executing the conveyance to a purchaser. Keogh v. Wood, Vern. & Scriv. 113.

In order to set aside a sale under a decree, there must be an affidavit of a greater sum having been offered. S. C. PR. ATTACHMENT, CAUSE AGAINST.

13. Adding to, altering, rectifying, and varying minutes of.

Clerical mistakes in decrees, or decretal orders, may be corrected on petition. 45 Gen. Order, 3 April 1828.

Where the court directed an issue to be tried at the next assizes, and the decree was not drawn up or entered in sufficient time, the minutes were varied by directing the trial of the issue at the subsequent assizes. Grange v. Cass, 2 V. & J. 241.

Correction of a clerical error in a decree passed and entered. Tomlins v. Palk, 1 Russ. 475.

Mistake in decree, unless a mere numerical error apparent on the decree itself, cannot be rectified but by rehearing. Brookfield v. Bradley, 2 S. & S. 64. MISTAKE.

Where, by mistake, balances reported due from defendant were included in sums paid into court under decree; and decree, on further directions, ordered those balances to be paid into court; held that mistake could not be rectified without rehearing cause on latter decree. Brookfield v. Bradley, 2 S. & S. 64.

An application to rectify a decree on suggestion, aid of the decree, which would have been embodied in it almost as of course, as if it had been an omission, may be made by motion, without the formality of petition. Ducies v. Morris, 13 Price, 766.

A decree will not be altered on motion; where a decree nisi had been altered materially against a party without his appearing at showing cause, the court will refuse to alter the decree absolute on motion. Williams v. Jones, 1 M'Clel. 96. S. C. 13 Price, 265.

Where decree directs issues to try the validity of modus, and the plaintiff wishes to have them tried in different county from that wherein lands lie, an order for that purpose cannot be inserted in decree, but must be obtained by petition. Sparke v. Itatt, 1 S. & S. 366. PETITION; ISSUE AT LAW; VENUE.

Minutes of decree cannot be varied on motion. It can only be done on petition. Brown v. Sansome, 9 Price, 479. See also 7 Price, 661. 8 Price, 606. PR. MOTION.

Where minutes were drawn up, omitting to direct issue at law to be tried by special jury, and decree in consequence contained no such order, court refused to amend minute by insertion thereof. Stuart v. Greenall, 9 Price, 480. PR. ISSUE AT LAW.

Decree being, amongst other things, that "the parties should produce, before the master, all books, papers, &c." the words "as the master shall direct" were added, on motion for that purpose. Punderson v. Dixon, 5 Mad. 121.

An erroneous decree, directing payment of interest cannot give a right to interest, but interest may be due under circumstances. Hamilton v. Haughton, 2 Bli. 170. INTEREST.

After decree to bill for delivery up of deeds, directing ejectment to be brought, an order, to restrain setting up of outstanding terms, cannot be made on motion. Brackenbury v. Brackenbury, 2 J. & W. 391. PR. MOTION: OUTSTANDING TERMS.

All applications to rectify decree must be made by petition. Grey v. Dickenson, 4 Mad. 464. PR. PETITION.

Court will order minutes of decree, declaring stock "not to be part of personal estate of intestate;" on general claim by some of next of kin against a particular claim by others, to be varied by adding the words "together with the dividends which have accrued due thereon," on a special motion without a rehearing, where the amount is small, and the alteration is reasonable and consonant with the tenor of original decree. George v. Howard, 7 Price, 661.

Directions omitted in decree by mistake, introduced on motion by consent of all parties. Skrymsher v. Northcote, 1 Swan. 572.

No substantial addition can be made to a decree on motion, without consent. Willis v. Parkinson, 3 Swan. 233.

In a charity case, an omission in the original decree not declaring the nature of the charity, corrected on further directions without rehearing. Att. Gen. v. Whiteley, 11 Ves. 241. CHARITY.

After enrolment of a decree, errors appearing upon the face of schedules permitted to be corrected upon motion without a bill of review; but the court would not permit an affidavit, introducing a new fact, to be used for that purpose. Weston v. Haggerston, Coop. 134.

Costs at law and in equity, between the same parties, set off, after decree omitting such a provision. Shine v. Gough, 2 Ball & B. 33. PR. COSTS; SET-OFF.

A purchaser under a decree shall not be affected by error in the decree, e.g. in its not having given a day to an infant defendant to shew cause, or in decreeing a sale of lands to satisfy judgment debts, without an account of the personal estate. Bennett v. Hamill, 2 Scho. & L. 566. VEND. & PURCH.; SALE, JUDICIAL.

A purchaser has a right to presume that the court has taken the steps necessary to investigate the rights of the parties, and that, on that investigation, it has properly decreed a sale, but he ought to see that all proper parties to be bound are before the court, and that he does not take a title which can be impeached alimude. Id. ib.

Order on motion, with consent, to rectify a clear mistake in a decree. Newhouse v. Mitford, 12 Ves. 456. S. P. Lane v. Hobbs, id. 458.

After decree merely directing inquiries, such an order as could be had on further directions may, by consent, be made on motion, as in this instance, to dismiss bill with costs. Awm. 11 Ves. 169. PR. MOTION.

Omission in decree, if perfectly of course, supplied on motion with notice. In this instance the common direction to examine all parties upon interrogatories being omitted, an order was made, that master should be at liberty to examine, &c. Wallis v. Thomas, 7 Ves. 292. Id.

So also in the usual decree upon creditor's bill, against executors, the direction for account of personal estate. Pickard v. Mattheson, id. 293. Id.

Upon farther directions, the court may add to the decree, and may therefore give interest, though the question of interest was not reserved. Crease v. Hunter, 2 Ves. J. 164. 4 Bro. C. C. 157. PR. FURTHER DIRECTIONS; INTEREST.

Administrator not brought before the master by motion, after a decree passed and entered: If there is any thing in it affecting him by way of order to pay; otherwise, if only for him to witness what is done. Habergham v. Vincent, 1 Ves. J. 68. PR. ANSWERMENT; PR. PARTIES.

Upon a bill against an administrator for a distribution, the house of lords having reversed part of the Ch.'s decree appealed from by the defendant as to the particular point, and affirmed it in all others, the decree having given no direction as to finding the distributive shares, the court of chancery was precluded from giving, upon a rehearing, any directions respecting it, down to the time of the decree and affirmation, and the decree having been drawn up without any direction touching such interest, according to a draft settled and brought into court by plaintiff's own counsel, he is thereby precluded from setting up any claim of interest. Stewart v. Noble, Vern. & Scriv. 528. 539. INTEREST.

Generally speaking, to warrant a reservation of interest on further directions, it should have been directed on the original decree. The case, however, of a direction for a trial at law, is an exception, and there may be others founded on the peculiar nature of a case. Champ v. Moody, 2 Ves. 470. INTEREST; PR. FURTHER DIRECTIONS.

Court cannot give interest unless reserved in decree, but cause reheard for the purpose. Herle v. Greenbank, Dick. 370.

A trust estate was decreed to be sold for payment of debts and legacies, and to be sold to the best purchaser. Articles to buy the estate of the trustees, and brings a bill to compel them to perform the contract. The trustees, by their answer, disclose the matter. The court will make no new decree, but leave the former decree to be pursued. Annesley v. Ashurst, 3 P. W. 282. PR. ANSWER, ADMISSION IN.

Such defects in a decree as the court will rectify upon motion, are not sufficient grounds for an appeal. Bunbury v. Bolton, 1 Bro. P. C. 434. PR. APPEAL.

Decree cannot be varied by original bill. Davis v. Larnier, Dick. 42.

Liberty given to amend materially enrolment of decree. Eyles v. Ward, id. 58.

Part of the matters being omitted in drawing up the decree, and after the decree signed and enrolled, the defendant dies; a bill of revivor lies to revive the matters omitted. Williams v. Arthur, 1 C. C. 37. 2 Free. 177. PR. ABATEMENT & REVIVOR.

After decree signed and enrolled, and several proceedings had respecting costs, the suit abated by death of the plaintiff; held a bill of revivor was the proper mode of reviving the decree. Cruster v. Wister, 2 C. R. 67. Id.

Where the enrolment of a decree is gained by surprise, the court will vacate it. Stevens v. Guppy, 1 Turn. & R. 178. FRAUD.

Decree pronounced twenty-three years ago having been lost, ordered, on motion, to be re-drawn according to the minutes entered nunc pro tunc. Laurence v. Richmond, 1 Jac. & W. 241.

When a pauper plaintiff obtains a decree for payment of money it is to be drawn up on stamps as in a decree. Hansard v. Kemys, 1 Jac. & W. 189. LAURENCE STAMP.

Where a caveat has been entered against the enrolment of a decree, it stays the signing for twenty-eight days after notice given of the docket having been presented for signature; and the twenty-eight days are twenty-eight clear days. In strict practice the docket ought not to be presented until after the order to enrol pro tunc has been obtained and actually passed and entered. Upon both these grounds the enrolment of a decree made under contrary circumstances, was vacated. Leave given to the other party to prosecute the appeal. Robinson v. Newdick, 3 Mer. 13.

Service on the clerk in court of notice of docket of caveat against decree, having been presented for signature, is sufficient service. Id. 15.

Plaintiff is allowed the vacation of the term in which decree is pronounced, and the following term to draw up the decree, but not the second vacation. Calvert v. Dignum, 4 Price, 133.

Motion to open the enrolment of a decree, and to stay proceedings under it to give an opportunity of appeal, refused, the decree being made upon the merits, as at law; a judgment by default is vacated on motion; not a judgment on the merits. Charman v. Charman, 16 Ves. 115. PR. STAYING PROCEEDINGS; PR. APPEAL.

A decree drawn up in a manner not warranted by the minutes on the hearing, set aside with costs upon motion. Loftus v. Swift, 2 Scho. & L. 642.

Original decree not to be found, but having been acted upon by report, and recited in an order on farther directions was allowed to be drawn up from an office copy and entered nunc pro tunc. Donne v. Lewis, 11 Ves. 601. DECREE.

By the present practice of the court a decree may be enrolled without special order, though more than a year has elapsed since it was pronounced. Tisdall v. Ly. Charleville, 2 Scho. & L. 392.

The court refused to vacate the enrolment of a decree dismissing the bill with costs by default, and afterwards, upon a new bill for the same purpose, granted a motion for time to answer, until a month after payment of the costs of the other cause adopting the practice at law. Pickett v. Laggon, 5 Ves. 702. COSTS; PR. TIME TO ANSWER.

A decree cannot be pleaded in bar of the suit, unless it has been signed and enrolled. Kinsey v. Kinsey, 2 Ves. 577. S. C. 2 Atk. 809. PL. PLEA.

An appeal will not lie from the rolls to the house of lords until the decree is signed and enrolled. Cuningham v. Cunningham, Amb. 91. S. C. Dick. 145. PR. APPEAL; ROLLS COURT.

Enrolment of decree vacated being done too quick, though strictly regular. Anon. 1 Ves. 326.

The court never suffer a decree to account to be signed or enrolled, because it ties up their hands from relieving if there should have been any defect in the directions of the decree. Staunton v. Oldham, 2 Atk. 383.

After a decree has been signed and enrolled, it is too late to apply for a rehearing of the cause. Chetwynd v. Fleetwood, 1 Bro. P. C. 306. PR. REHEARING.

When party having the prosecution of a decree or order, does not proceed with due diligence, the master may transfer the prosecution of it to any person applying for it. 56th Gen. Ord. 3d April, 1828.

If decree or order of reference to master is not brought into his office within two months, any person interested may apply to court to expedite the prosecution of it. 48th Gen. Ord. 3d April, 1828.

At the time appointed, the master shall regulate the time, &c. of taking the several steps to carry the decree into effect. 51st Gen. Ord. 3d April, 1828.

Where one of the terms of staying decree till after trial of appeal in House of Lords was, that defendant should give security for the amount of certain rents and profits decreed to be paid by them to plaintiff, held, that it lay upon defendant to verify that amount by affidavit, and to propose and perfect security to master's satisfaction, without any previous steps to be taken by plaintiff; otherwise the decree to be carried into execution. Edwards v. Morgan, 1 M'Clel. & Y. 258. PR. ORDER ON APPEAL.

Bill having been filed by one of several mortgagees, against mortgagor and other incumbrancers, although the primary object of plaintiff to suit be satisfied, and he has no further claim, still any of defendants may bring cause on for further directions, for purpose of enforcing against the other defendants, equities subsisting inter se. Archdeacon v. Bowes, 13 Price, 353. S. C. 1 M'Clel. 149.

Where decree orders defendant to retain his costs when taxed, out of the balance in his hands, and pay the residue into court, if the defendant delay to get costs taxed, plaintiff must move that he may bring his bill of costs to be taxed within limited time, and not that he may pay in the whole balance. Nevins v. Shearman, 2 S. & S. 95. PR. COSTS, TAXATION OF.

A party who files a bill in a court of equity to have the benefit of a former decree, must show, (if the case requires it,) that such former decree was right. If a decree appears to be erroneous, it cannot be carried into execution. Hamilton v. Houghton, 2 Bli. 170.

Creditor having come in under decree, cannot institute a fresh suit: but on account of delay he was permitted to prosecute that decree, though only interested in the first part thereof. Edmunds v. Acland, 5 Mad. 31. DEBTOR & CRED.; LACHES.

On account of great delay in prosecution of suit, creditor was, on petition, allowed to prosecute. Fleming v. Prior, 5 Mad. 423. LACHES; DEBTOR AND CREDITOR.

Bill filed by feme covert, stating her to be a spinster, her solicitor being ignorant of the marriage, and the husband of the suit, till after the decree; on motion by consent, the husband was permitted to prosecute the decree under terms. Farrer v. Wyatt, 5 Mad. 440. PL. PARTY; HUSB. & WIFE; PR. MISNOMER.

A suit having been instituted by a deviser, and revived by a party as devisee, whose supposed right is displaced by the discovery of a later will, the cause cannot be continued for the benefit of the effective devisee, by agreement between that devisee and the plaintiff in the suit, so as to enable the devisee under the second will (not being a party to the suit,) to appeal against the decree; and an appeal cause cannot be heard before the court of appeal until he is made a party in the suit below. In such a case, where the suit had been originally instituted by the deviser, and upon his death revived by the party claiming under the first will, semble, that the proper course to be adopted by the devisee under the second, is not (as in this case,) to file a supplemental bill, praying to have the benefit of the proceedings in the revived suit, but to revive, de novo, the suit as abated off the death of the deviser. Rylands v. Latmiche, 2 Bli. 566. PR. APPEAL; DEVISEE; PL. PARTY.

The case is different where a decree is defective only because incidental parties are not before the court; as in the case of an assignment in trust for payment of debts, reserving the surplus if the assignee obtains a decree, and afterwards it appears that he had assigned his interest before the decree, his assignees may, by supplemental bill, have the benefit of that decree. Binks v. Binks, Md. 593. PR. PARTY; PR. APPEAL; DEVISEE.

In case of unreasonable delay in prosecuting a decree in a suit by next of kin against an administrator, the court will give leave to a creditor to bring a decree which has been so neglected. 3 Mer. 458. LACHES.

A defendant by decree confirming the master's report, entitled to balance reported due to him with interest, though no offer, by bill praying an account, to pay it. Defendant may enforce a decree confirming a report in his favour. Bodkin v. Clancy, 1 Ball & B. 216, 217. PARTY DEFENDANT.

The court refused, upon petition or motion to prosecute an inquiry directed by a decree many years ago, but never pursued, the party applying being born some years after the decree, only two months old at the date of the general report, and made a party some years afterwards, but several years before the application. Jal. Shipbrooke v. J. J. Hinchinbrooke, 13 Ves. 387. LACHES.

Any creditor may obtain an order for prosecuting a decree for an account. Creuze v. Hunter, 2 Ves. J. 165. 4 Bro. C. C. 157. ACCOUNT; PARTIES.

On bill brought to set aside a will on the ground of the testator's being a Papist, the bill was retained for a year, with liberty for plaintiff to go to law to decide the question. The plaintiff having neglected to bring his action within the time limited by the decree, the court dismissed the bill with costs. O'Grady v. Kinale, 5 Bro. P. C. 456. LACHES.

And in that case, on neglect of plaintiff, defendant may set down cause to be heard at his own instance. Id. ib. 284.

In a bill brought to have the benefit of a former decree, plaintiff cannot examine witnesses, much less the same witnesses to the matter in issue in the former cause; but on such a bill, the court may examine the justice of the former decree; but then it must be upon the facts taken in the cause wherein that decree was made. Johnson v. Northey, 2 Vern. 409. PR. DECREE.

A decree who referred to law, and it was ordered that the plaintiff do not insist on a title set aside by the decree, but does insist on it, whereupon the plaintiff reversed the decree, but was nevertheless non-suited, and employed the court of chancery for a consummation of the defendant, and establishment of the decree which was ordered. Anon. 1 C. C. 247. FOR OPINION OF COURT OF LAW.

While conditional orders for attachments are depending against plaintiff and defendant for not executing the deeds of conveyance to the purchaser, the creditors who came in under the decree cannot be paid out of the purchase money, though the purchaser has gone into possession, but the court will give them leave to proceed on their security. Ormsby v. Nicholson, Vern. & Scriv. 115. DEBT. & CRED.; SALE BEFORE MASTER.

The Ld. Chancellor for the time being will enforce the execution of decrees, though made by a prior Ld. Chancellor, and though they are alleged to be unreasonable, yet will assist them with the utmost process of the court, till they come regularly before him to be reversed. Laurence v. Birney, 2 C. C. 137.

Where a party claiming under a decree neglects to apply to the court for an injunction, but suffers a trial at law, by which he loses the possession, he cannot sue out the ordinary process for the execution of the decree, but must file a new bill. Id. ib.

A decree, to carry into execution an erroneous decree, being reversed; the cause was remitted, with leave to amend the bill, by adding parties and making a better case as to the original claim, notwithstanding the lapse of sixty years from the date of the deed by which the debt was secured, and of forty years from the date of the erroneous decree; as between the plaintiff the creditor, and the debtor, there is no presumption from lapse of time in such a case, and upon such state of the pleadings that the debt has been paid. But other creditors, whose debts ought to have been provided for by the decree, might have a right to raise that question. Hamilton v. Houghton, 3 Bligh, 169. DEBTOR & CREDITOR; LENGTH OF TIME.

After a decree, referring it to the master to inquire whether an annuity had been properly enrolled, the master having reported against the enrolment, it was objected by the defendant (the annuitant) on a rehearing, that the decree had been obtained after two several orders made in this court in another cause, for the payment of the annuity, and after a rule to show cause in favour of the annuity in the court of K. B. had been discharged: Held not a sufficient ground for setting aside the decree, the former cause in which those orders had been obtained, not having been instituted for the purpose of setting aside the annuities, and this court having jurisdiction, after the failure of the attempt to set aside the annuity at common law. Angell v. Hadden, 2 Mer. 164. JURISDIC.

See also PR. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS.

The common decree in foreclosure does not direct the delivery up of the title deeds by the mortgagor to the mortgagee, in case of foreclosure, but merely that the mortgagor shall be absolutely barred and foreclosed of all right and equity of redemption; and it is only where there is a covenant to deliver them, in case of default in payment of the principal money and interest, that the court makes such a decree. Wiseman v. Westland, 1 Y. & J. 117. PR. DECREE; FORECLOSURE OF MORTGAGE.

Where deeds had been brought into master's office, under an order of reference in a suit for specific performance of two contracts relating to different parts of lands of the parties, one for exchange, the other for purchase, referring it to master to settle a conveyance from the defendant to a purchaser, (a third person), of the exchanged lands, upon whose report so much of the bill as related to that contract was ordered to be dismissed with costs: Held that plaintiff could not take his deeds out of court, the defendant shewing that they were still of service there, and necessary to him in defending the same suit as to the other contract. Bowyer v. Green, 13 Price, 250.

Court never orders clerk in court with whom exhibits have been deposited under usual order, to deliver them up to any other person for the purpose of their being produced in court, or at the assizes, without consent of all parties, and payment of clerk in court's fees. *Harris v. #### 3. Time of filing, entry, and enrolment of.

The day of filing every demurrer shall be set down on the same, and to be signed by the clerk in court, who files it. Ord. Exch. 1 Fowl. Exch. Pr. 358.

Defendant is to enter his demurrer with the register within eight days after the filing, or in default thereof, the same shall be disallowed of course, as put in for delay, and the defendant shall pay the ordinary costs.

Beame's Ord. 69. 173, 174. But before entry, a certificate must be produced of the filing of the demurrer. Id. 287. But according to Hinde's Pr. 222, such a certificate is not required by the present practice. Defendant, however, need not set down the demurrer, if plaintiff submits to it, and pays 40s. costs. Wy. Pr. Reg. 165. Where plea or demurrer is put in, defendant must set it down by Wednesday se'night following, or it will stand overruled. And if overruled, defendant must pay 40s. costs, and after answer, rejoin gratis; if demurrer be allowed, defendant must pay 30s. costs, and if demurrer be to whole bill, and allowed or submitted to, defendant to stand dismissed with costs. Ord. Exch. 1 Fowl. 361. All demurrers to be set down to be argued on every Wednesday in term; and whenever a term begins on Wednesday, all demurrers filed on or previous to the preceding sitting of the court, to be argued on such Wednesday, and all demurrers filed on any Wednesday in term time to be set down to be argued on that day se'night, if within the term. Ord. Exch. 1 Fowl. 39. The costs of allowing or overruling any plea or demurrer in future to be 5*l*. Beame's Ord. 320. And in case this sum be inadequate to the costs incurred, there shall be paid such further costs as the court shall direct. Id. 456. Vide Griffith v. Wood, 1 Ves. & B. 307, and the cases cited from the Reg. Book. Beame's Ord. 457. n.

No reference on a demurrer or question touching the jurisdiction of the court, shall be made to the masters, but such demurrers shall be heard and ordered into court, or by the chancellor himself. Beame's Ord. 22. So, by Ld. Clarendon's Ord. Id. 173, every demurrer shall be determined in open court.

The eight days, within which a demurrer must be entered with the registrar, are eight office days. Ballock v. Edington, 1 Sim. 481.

Where a demurrer, tendered at the office to a bill, was refused on a mis-statement, that an attachment had issued for want of answer; an attachment issued subsequently was set aside, and leave given to demur. Feelyn v. Griffith, 1 M'Clel. 265. PR. ATTACHMENT.

If demurrer is not filed in sufficient time, though laches cannot be taken advantage of after it had been set down for argument, it should be in such case moved to be taken off the file. Baker v. Booker, 6 Price, 379. LACHES.

A defendant having filed an answer and demurrer after a repi corpus, returned on an attachment for not answering, an order for a messenger obtained before the demurrer, and answer (of which the plaintiffs had bespoken an office copy) had been taken off the file, discharged with costs. Curzon v. De La Zouch, 1 Swan. 189.

After time obtained to answer only, a motion will not be granted for leave to demur, unless under special circumstances, such as surprise. Bruce v. Allen, 1 Mad. 556. TIME TO ANSWER.

After order for time to answer demurrer may be taken off the file. Dyson v. Benson, Cooper, 110. PR. TIME TO ANSWER.

Demurrer and answer after a preperatory order for three weeks' further time to answer, following an order for a month to plead answer or demur, not demurring alone, ordered to be taken off the file. Mann v. King, 18 Ves. 297. Id.

Admission of single fact, besides denial of combination, is a compliance with the terms not to demur alone. Baker v. Mellish, 11 Ves. 73. Id.

A demurrer may be filed after the time before answering expired, if the party be not affected by process of contempt. E. I. Comp. v. Henckman, 3 Bro. C. C. 372.

A demurrer may be put in after the time for answering is out, provided a process of contempt has not issued against the defendant. Sowerby v. Warder, 2 Cox, 268. PR. PROCESS OF CONTEMPT.

Defendant having answered the original bill, plaintiff amended it; and the same defendant then put in a general demurrer to the whole amended bill. Quere. Whether this is a ground for taking the demurrer off the file, or for overruling it on argument. Atkinson v. Hanway, 1 Cox, 360.

Defendant cannot demur after obtaining time to answer only. Kenrick v. Clayton, Dick. 286.

Defendant cannot demur after obtaining time to answer only. Penn v. Ld. Baltimore, 1 Ves. 273.

After defendant had stood out all the bills of contempt, demurrer allowed to stand. Haring v. Mathew, Dick. 30.

Where a demurrer to a bill of revivor is allowed it may be enrolled; otherwise, if the demurrer is disallowed. Wools v. Tucker, 2 Vern. 120. PR. BILL OF REVIVOR.

After time to answer defendant demurs, attachment. Farmer v. Far, Cary, 200.

Defendant, taking out commission to answer, cannot demur. Stukly v. Lutterell, Cary, 53. Pain v. Currew, Cary, 100.

4. Amendment of.

Amendment of demurrer allowed under special circumstances and mistake. Holmes v. Waring, 8 Price, 604.

Demurrer too extensive, allowed to be amended. Glegg v. Legh, 4 Mad. 207.

After demurrer to whole bill overruled, the defendant may put in a demurrer less extended, but not without leave of court. Baker v. Mellish, 11 Ves. 68.

5. Argument, setting down for, and withdrawing of.

Day of filing every demurrer shall be set down on the same, and to be signed by clerk in court, who files it. Ord. Exch. 1 Fowl. 358.

Defendant is to enter his demurrer with the register within eight days after the filing, or in default thereof, the same shall be disallowed of course, as put in for delay, and defendant shall pay the ordinary costs. Beame's Ord. 69. Id. 173, 174. But before entry, certificate must be produced of filing of demurrer. Id. 287. But according to Hinde's Pr. 222, such a certificate is not required by the present practice. Defendant, however, need not set down the demurrer, if plaintiff submits to it, and pays 40s. costs. Wy. Pr. Reg. 165. Where a plea or demurrer is put in, defendant must set it down by the Wednesday se'night following, or it will stand overruled. And if it be overruled, defendant must pay 40s. costs, and after his answer, rejoin gratis; if the demurrer be allowed, defendant must pay 30s. costs; and if the demurrer be to the whole bill, and allowed or submitted to, defendant to stand dismissed with costs. Ord. Exch. Kirby's Ed. 6. 1 Fowl. 361. All demurrers to be set down to be argued on every Wednesday in term, and whenever a term begins on Wednesday, all demurrers filed on or previous to the preceding sitting of the court, to be argued on such Wednesday, and all demurrers filed on any Wednesday in term time to be set down to be argued on that day se'night, if within the term. Ord. Exch. 1 Fowl. 39. The costs of allowing or overruling any plea or demurrer in future to be 5*l*. Beame's Ord. 320. And in case this sum be inadequate to costs incurred, there shall be paid such further costs as court shall direct. Id. 456. Vide Griffith v. Wood, 1 V. & B. 307., and the cases cited from the Reg. Book, in Beame's Ord. 457.

No reference on demurrer or question touching jurisdiction of the court, shall be made to masters; but such demurrers shall be heard and ordered into court, or by chancellor himself. Beame's Ord. 22. So, by Ld. Clarendon's Ord. Id. 173. every demurrer shall be determined in open court.

Demurrer struck out of paper for want of appearance, cannot be set down again without order to be made on motion or petition. Tolson v. Ld. Fitzwilliam, 4 Mod. 203.

According to strict practice, if defendant does not appear on the hearing of a demurrer, if plaintiff has not an affidavit of service of subpoena to hear judgment, the cause may be struck out of the paper; if an affidavit of service is produced, the court hears plaintiff in defendant's absence, but does not overrule the demurrer. Pegfold v. Ransbottom, 1 Swan. 552.

Demurrer in V. C.'s paper cannot be directed by him to be heard at an earlier day than the paper mentions, but may be advanced to the head of the paper of that day. Anon. 1 Mad. 557. PR. ADVANCING CAUSE.

Order to set down demurrer in the petty bag for argument, made upon motion in court. Rea v. Knox, Coop. 98.

Where a demurrer was overruled for defect in form, which was good in substance, it was ordered to be taken off the file, with leave to defendant to demur again, as he should be advised on payment of costs. Devonsher v. Nereuham, 2 Sch. & Lef. 199.

Demurrer set down for argument being submitted to, and the bill amended, 5*l.* costs were allowed. Anon. 9 Ves. 221. PR. COSTS.

Order made for defendants to be at liberty to withdraw demurrer, set down to be argued, on payment of costs to be taxed. Downes v. E. I. Comp., 6 Ves. 586.

A bill of review was brought impeaching the judgment of Camden, C. respecting the estates given by Sir G. Downing's will, to found a college at Cambridge; defendant demurred, and the demurrer was set down to be heard. It seeming, however, to be agreed by both parties that the hearing and determining the demurrer would take the whole term; and each side being determined to carry it into the house of lords, the court allowed the demurrer, without giving any opinion. Whittington v. Att. Gen. 2 Dick. 616.

Demurrer in petty bag made concilium, and ordered to be argued, and afterwards overruled. Bulard v. Hobbs, id. 333.

On arguing demurrer to a bill of review, what appears on the face of the decree can be read only; but after a demurrer overruled, a plaintiff may read any evidence at a rehearing. Cutterall v. Purchase, 1 Atk. 290. PR. BILL OF REVIEW; PR. EVIDENCE.

If a demurrer be to part of the plaintiff's bill, and an insufficient answer to the residue, yet the plaintiff cannot except until the demurrer is argued. London Assur. Comp. v. E. I. Comp., 3 P. W. 326. PR. EXCEPTIONS TO ANSWER.

Answer may be read in support of demurrer. Heath v. Lake, Dick. 24.

Demurrer to a bill, but not set down, bill cannot be dismissed for want of prosecution till demurrer disposed of. Dove v. Allen, id. 55.

6. Allowing effect of.

An injunction is not dissolved in exchequer court, as a consequence of course, on allowing a demurrer to the bill on the equity of which it was obtained: it must be moved that the injunction be dissolved on that ground. Barelay v. Curtis, 9 Price, 661. PR. IN EXCHEQUER; INJUNCT. DISSOLUTION OF.

In a suit to perpetuate testimony, motion for a further examination of witnesses as to facts lately discovered, refused, on the ground that a demurrer to a supplemental bill for the same purpose had been allowed. *Knight v. Full costs may be given under Lord Rosslyn's General Order, 6 February, 1794, (Beame's Ord. 466) though application not made for three weeks after allowance of demurrer. Wool v. Dyneley, 1 Mad. 32. GEN. ORDER, C. OF; COSTS.

Though, by demurrer to whole bill allowed, the bill is strictly out of court, yet even after bill dismissed by order, the cause has been set on foot again. Baker v. Mellish, 11 Ves. 72. PR. REVIVING CAUSE.

On demurrer to the whole bill being allowed, the bill shall be dismissed, and costs shall be taxed as upon a dismissal, except the costs on the demurrer, which shall be allowed as heretofore. General Rule, Feb. 13, 1 Scho. & L. 304. PR. BILL DISMISSAL; PR. COSTS.

After demurrer allowed, bill out of court, and no amendment possible. Hatkins v. Bush, Dick. 701.

After demurrer to whole bill, allowed no amendment, bill out of court. Smith v. Barnes, Dick. 67.

Demurrer overruled, and costs paid. On re-argument, demurrer allowed; costs to be refunded. Oats v. Chapman, Dick. 148. S. C. 1 Ves. 542. 2 Ves. 100. COSTS.

On a demurrer to a bill, if the demurrer be allowed, the plaintiff may amend his bill. Qu. Coningsbury v. Jekyll, 2 P. W. 300.

A bill of review lies not after a demurrer to a former bill of review allowed. Dunne v. Filmore, 1 Vern. 135. S. C. 2 Ch. Ca. 133. S. P. Pitt v. Arglass, id. 441. PR. BILL OF REVIEW.

7. Overruling, effect of.

See also PR. COSTS, 10. (p)

After demurrer overruled, time to answer merely can only be obtained on special application. Trim v. Baker, 1 S. & S. 469; and see note, id. 470. S. C. 1 T. & R. 253. PR. TIME TO ANSWER; PR. MOTION OF COURSE.

Where a demurrer is overruled, the defendant, at the time of its being overruled, may move for time to answer. S. C. 1 T. & R. 254. PR. TIME TO ANSWER.

Plea and answer cannot be filed until demurrer actually taken off file, after order for that purpose. Cust v. Hoode, 1 S. & S. 21. PR. PLEA; PR. ANSWER; PR. FILING PLEADINGS; PR. ORDER TO TAKE PLEADINGS OFF FILE.

Upon demurrer being overruled, the plaintiff must, out of term time, wait for the next seal day to move for an injunction. Cloughton v. Hadwell, 6 Mad. 299. PR. INJUNCT. WHEN TO BE MOVED FOR.

Where demurrer has been overruled, and the time allowed by court for defendant to plead has, meanwhile, expired, court will allow defendant to plead, and give further time. Duncan v. Manchester Waterworks Company, 8 Price, 698. PR. TIME TO PLEAD.

Taxed costs are given in exchequer, on allowing a demurrer to the whole bill. Jones v. Jones, 7 Price, 663. PR. COSTS.

The defendant not appearing in support of a demurrer, the court, on production of an affidavit of service of the order for setting down the demurrer, will not overrule the demurrer, but hear the plaintiff.

Pembold v. Ramsbottom, 1 Swan. 552. PR. APPEAL.

After a demurrer overruled, time to answer can be obtained only on a special application. James v. Saxby, 1 Swan. 194. PR. TIME TO ANSWER.

After demurrer overruled, order is of course for month to plead or answer. Griffith v. Wood, 1 V. & B. 541. PR. ORDER FOR TIME TO ANSWER, &c.

A demurrer overruled for informality, not good in substance, taken off the file, with liberty for the defendant to demur again, as he shall be advised on payment of costs. Devonsher v. Newenham, 2 Scho. & L. 199. PR. TAKING PLEADINGS OFF FILE.

After demurrer overruled, defendant cannot plead without leave of court. Routley v. Eccles, 1 S. & S. 611. PLEA.

Bills of review classed. After a demurrer to a bill of review for error overruled, the decree is reversed without further hearing. Cook v. Bamfield, 3 Swan. 607. PR. BILL OF REVIEW.

If a plea or demurrer be overruled, the defendant must answer the whole bill, and the ordinary process of contempt issues to compel an answer, as in other cases; but if an answer was filed with the plea or demurrer, the defendant, upon his plea or demurrer being overruled, need not put in an answer till the plaintiff has taken exceptions. Cotes v. Turner, Bunb. 123. PR. PLEA, OVERRULING.

Injunction granted, of course, on demurrer to bill overruled. Rashleigh v. Butler, Dick. 153. PR. INJUNCTION.

8. Ore tenus.

In case of a demurrer ore tenus at the hearing, defendant shall pay the ordinary costs of overruling a demurrer, if the causes particularly alleged be disallowed, although the bill in respect of that particular, so newly alleged, should be dismissed. Beame's Ord. 174. This rule was acted upon in Durdant v. Redman, 1 Vern. 78. But in Tunton v. Flower, 3 P.W. 371, it was said not to be the practice now to pay costs on a new demurrer, insisted on at the bar ore tenus; and this last case was followed in the exchequer, in Broderip v. Phillips, 1 Vern. 78, Raithby's n., where demurrer in writing for want of parties would have been overruled, but was waived on argument, and then demurrer at bar ore tenus, for want of equity, allowed. However, in Att. Gen. v. Brown, 1 Swan. 288, Ld. Ch. said, that if defendant cannot sustain demurrer on record, he is entitled to demur ore tenus; but, availing himself of that right, he must pay costs of demurrer on record.

A demurrer ore tenus cannot be offered to part of a bill. Shepherd v. Lloyd, 2 Y. & J. 490.

Defendant, who has pleaded to bill, cannot demur to it ore tenus on his plea being overruled, because there is no demurrer on the record. Hook v. Dorman, 1 S. & S. 227. PR. PLEADING, &c. ORE TENUS; PR. PLEA.

To a bill by an heir against a claim under a devise for a discovery, and that the witnesses may be examined de bene esse, and their testimony recorded, a general demurrer for want of equity being allowed, the defendant was not permitted to demur ore tenus as to the examination of witnesses not being made the subject of demurrer on the record. Pitts v. Short, 17 Ves. 213.

Demurrer ore tenus only allowed on new ground, not where demurrer in paper on same point already overruled. Bowman v. Lygon, 1 Anst. 1.

Demurrer on record, that no title is shown for discovery, is not waived by another ore tenus, that the charge might be subject of criminal prosecution. Dummer v. Corp. of Chippenham, 14 Ves. 256.

DISCOVERY TENDING TO CRIMINATE; OVERRULING DEMURRER.

Demurrer filed bad; demurrer at bar good; defendant does not have costs. Wood v. Tompson, Dick. 619.

One may demur anew at the bar ore tenus, but then on its being allowed he cannot have his costs. Fourton v. Fowler, 3 P.W. 371, Colman v. Warr, 2 Ch. Rep. 361.

Where a defendant has demurred, he may assign another cause of demurrer at the bar, for costs; and if such cause of demurrer is overruled, he ought to pay double costs. But when a defendant has pleaded, and there is no demurrer in court, he cannot demur at the bar, though he would pay costs. Durdant v. Redman, 1 Vern. 78. PR. COSTS.

XXXVII. ELECTION TO SUE AT LAW OR IN EQUITY.

If party sue for same cause at common law and in chancery, he is to have day given to make his election. Beame's Order, 11. 117. PR. REG. 179. 180. Mitford, pl. 203.

Plaintiff in suit for tithes, having commenced action at law for treble value, ordered on motion to elect law or equity within six days, with costs on either course abandoned, and of the motion. Tunton v. Glyde, 10 Price, 129. TITHES.

Where the plaintiff in equity is also proceeding at law, and it clearly appears, or is admitted, that the object of the two proceedings is substantially the same, the defendant, on putting in his answer, may at the same time move for an order that the plaintiff may elect, and an injunction to stay proceedings at law, until election. Hague v. Curtis, 1 Jac. & W. 449.

After order to elect law or equity, plaintiff cannot move of course, for leave to file exceptions nunc pro tunc, but ought to make special application for that purpose, and for an order to suspend election till exceptions are answered. Copland v. Braddock, 5 Mad. 14. PR. EXCEPTIONS, NUNC PRO TUNC.

After a bill filed for a specific performance of an agreement to take a lease from plaintiff, plaintiff brought an action for use and occupation (defendant having been let into possession.) On a reference to see whether the suit and action were for the same matter, the master reported in the affirmative; an exception to his report was overruled, for the action was for the rent only, and if this court decreed a specific performance of the agreement, it would also decree an account of the rent due under it. Curriek v. Young, 4 Mad. 437.

A reference to the master to inquire whether proceedings at law and in equity are for the same matter, stays all proceedings, without the special order of the court; but the court will give or withhold leave to proceed according to the particular circumstances of the case. S. C. 2 Swan. 259.

If answer put in and exceptions to, defendant cannot move on answer that plaintiff elect law or equity. Browne v. Poynts, 3 Mad. 24. PR. ANSWER, EXCEPTIONS TO.

Upon order being made on plaintiff to elect whether he will proceed at law or equity, and on motion to discharge that order, court will, if there are facts before it sufficient, decide whether election is necessary, with-and a reference to master. Anon. 2 Mad. 395. PR. REFERENCE IF SUIT AND ACTION ARE FOR SAME MATTER.

Defendant having pleaded in bar to part of the relief sought by the bill, and answered as to the remainder, is not obliged to an order to put the plaintiff suing at law to election. A plea cannot be considered as an answer to such a purpose. Fisher v. Mee, 3 Mer. 47. PR. PLEA.

Plaintiff is not for equitable relief, part of which only could be obtained at law, not compelled to elect, but can proceed at law only by leave of the court. A receiver appointed at his instance, who, though his officer ought, as indifferently, to restrain him, not aided by an order for liberty to distrain, without his undertaking to proceed no farther at law. Mills v. Fry, 19 Ves. 277. S. C. 3 V. & B. 9. PR. RECEIVER.

An order by consent can only be got rid of by consent. Bernal v. Marquis of Donegal, 3 Dow. 146. S. C. 1 Bli. N. S. 594.

A party cannot proceed at law and on an account in equity relative to same matter, but must make his election. Id. 147.

Plaintiff put to his election where suing in this court, and in a foreign court of law. Peters v. Thompson, Coop. 294.

Order to compel election to proceed at law or in equity of course; but if upon a false suggestion, that the suits are for the same matter, discharged; and that question, if of any difficulty, referred to the master; and all proceedings stayed in the meantime. Mills v. Fry, 3 V. & B. 9. REFERENCE TO MASTER.

Suggestion that the defendant is doubly vexed by suits in equity and at law for the same matter, ascertained by reference to the master. Boyd v. Heinselman, 1 V. & B. 381. REFERENCE TO MASTER.

In Young v. Lucas, 1 V. & B. 383. (n.) the lord chancellor said, that a reference to the master was the course where the representation that the suit and action were for the same matter was disputed; but where that representation was not controverted, the court might decide without that reference. See the order in Mouseley v. Basnett, id. (n.)

After a decree to account obtained, plaintiff commenced an action at law. Injunction granted; for having got the relief he prayed, his election is made; besides, to allow him to proceed at the same time in law and equity, for the same matter, would occasion a clashing of jurisdiction inconsistent with the ends of justice. Mocher v. Reed, 1 Ball & B. 318.

Plaintiff elected to proceed in equity, having at that time undertaken peremptorily to try the action commenced by him at law. Defendant moved for judgment as in case of a nonsuit, and the court held, that the plaintiff must abide by the consequence of his election. Anderson v. Tombs, 2 Anst. 569.

To put party to election to sue at law or in equity, is motion of course. Anon. 1 Ves. J. 91. PR. MOTION OF COURSE.

An application was made to discharge an order putting plaintiff to his election, on the ground that the matters for which he was proceeding here and at law were quite distinct, and a reference to the master, to see if the proceedings at law and in equity were for the same matter, was prayed. The lord chancellor thought, that if the matters were distinct, the order did not restrain him, and he had only to prove it when complaint was made of the breach of the order; and therefore denied the motion, plaintiff not being able to produce any instances of such a reference. Bulsen v. Butcher, Dick. 558.

When an order to elect was obtained; the time for excepting to the answer had not expired; plaintiff shewed for cause that he had filed exceptions to the answer; allowed as cause, and order for putting party to his election, discharged. Benson v. Parsons, 2 Fowl. 403. Brown v. Poyntz, 3 Mad. 24. S. P.

Plaintiff was ordered to shew cause why he should not make his election either to proceed in the Exchequer or in the Consistory court at Northampton. On electing to proceed in former, proceedings in the other court stayed. Shirwin v. Dunmore, 2 Fowl. 403.

Leave obtained to proceed in this court (Exch.) to falsify the pleas put in by defendant to the bill, and also to proceed at law against the defendants to recover possession of the premises in question. Gardner v. Jordan, id. 404.

So, on reading the answer and hearing counsel for defendant, plaintiff was permitted to proceed at law for the recovery of a certain sum mentioned in the bill, and in equity as to all the other matters. Romeilly v. Gibert, id. 404.

A creditor, by coming in under a decree, and praying a commission to prove his debt, was held to have made his election to proceed in this court; and was therefore restrained from proceeding at law. Farnham v. Burroughs, Dick. 63.

On application to put plaintiff to his election, leave was given to make a special election to proceed in this court for the two years rent in question, accrued due before defendant came into possession; and at law for the rent accrued due in defendant's own time. Joyce v. Barker, id. 182.

In this case plaintiff was an executor of a creditor, and after having proved his debt under a decree, brought an action at law. He was then ordered to elect, and elected to proceed at law, but on his application, his election was dismissed, and leave given him to come in under the decree. Dennet v. Coker, id. 144.

Though, in ordinary cases, a plaintiff shall not proceed at law and in equity for the same demand against executors or administrators, yet a representative of the intestate seeking to give preference to others by confessing judgment, distinguishes the case; and therefore the court gave plaintiff leave to make a special election, viz. to proceed at law to recover judgment with a stay of execution, and in equity for a discovery, and an account of assets. Barker v. Dumaresque, 2 Atk. 119. S. C. Barn. 277.

Where there is a bill here to foreclose a mortgage, and an ejectment brought at law, an order for election will not be granted, or if obtained, will be discharged, as a court of equity cannot, on a foreclosure bill, decree possession. Wood v. Hodges, 2 Fowl. 405.

If the plaintiff elect to proceed at law on coming in of the answer, the suit in the court of equity must be dismissed, but on dropping that part of the bill which prays relief, the plaintiff is allowed to proceed at law. Fitzgerald v. Sucomb, 2 Atk. 85.

A plaintiff may make either a general election to proceed here or at law, or a special election, as to proceed for part here and the other part at law; but the court will judge of the reasonableness of that special election. Anon. Gilb. 183.

If plaintiff makes a special election to proceed at law as to part, and in equity as to other part, with regard to what plaintiff elects to proceed at law, his bill ought to be dismissed with costs. Anon. 3 P. W. 90. (n.)

A dismissal upon an election to proceed at law is not peremptory, but the plaintiff may, after he has failed at law, bring a new bill. Cs. of Plymouth v. Bladon, 2 Vern. 32. PR. DISMISSAL OF BILL.

Plaintiff is not bound to make his election till defendant has answered. Order discharged for irregularity, as being obtained before. Tillotson v. Ganson, 1 Vern. 103. S. P. Jones v. Stafford, 3 P. W. 90. The order provides, that plaintiff, his clerk in court, and attorney, within eight days, do make his election in which court he will proceed; if he elect to proceed in this court, the proceedings at law are stayed by injunction; if at law, the bill is to be dismissed with costs. Anon. 3 P. W. 90. (n.)

Special election to proceed at law, in an ejectment for the land, and in equity for an account of profits. Anon. 1 Vern. 105. But see observations on this case, Dormer v. Fortescue, 3 Atk. 129. EJECTMENT: ACCOUNT.

If the defendant pleads in bar, the plaintiff is not obliged to elect till the plea is argued, for the plea denies the right to sue in equity. Anon. Mos. 304. Vaughan v. Welsh, Mos. 210. PR. PLEA, ARGUMENT OF.

1. Generally.

Costs of documentary evidence not read, nor entered as read, were disallowed. Stuart v. Greenall, 1 M'Clel. 705. S. C. 13 Price, 755. PR. COSTS.

Owners and occupiers of houses in London subject to tithe; defendants ats. tithe owner ordered to permit witnesses to inspect them preparatory to examination on interrogatories for proving their value. Kynaston v. E. J. Comp. 3 Swan. 248. See this on appeal, 3 Bligh, 153. PR. ORDER FOR INSPECTION.

Where defendant in title cause examines many witnesses whose testimony is inadmissible to any extent, the court will give plaintiff his costs of the rejected depositions, independently of the result of the cause. Petch v. Dalton, 6 Price, 232. PR. COSTS.

Defendant ordered to deposit books in hands of deputy remembrancer, for inspection of other party, and afterwards ordered to account, in doing which, he must refer to these books, is not obliged to pay fees of the office in taking copies. Gabbitt v. Cavendish, 2 Anst. 547. COSTS OF OFFICE COPIES.

The rules as to evidence are the same in equity as at law. Manning v. Lechmere, 1 Atk. 453. Glynn v. Bank of England, 2 Ves. 41.

2. What is sufficient generally.

Payment of money, though evidence against the payer, of the title of the party receiving it, is not evidence against the receiver, that the payer was the party bound to pay it. The suppression of some of a series of documents relating to the title, which are admitted to be in the possession of a party, is evidence that the documents withheld afford inferences unfavourable to the party withholding them.

favorable to the title of the party. James v. Biou, 2 S. & S. 600. PAYMENT.

The production by a plaintiff suing as administrator to A, of the letters of administration, is not prima facie evidence of A's death. Moons v. De Bernales, 1 Russ. 301.

At the hearing, liberty given to a plaintiff suing as administrator to exhibit interrogatories to prove the death of the person whose administrator he claimed to be, and the cause permitted to stand over for that purpose.

Evidence of reputation of exemption of a district from tithes ad bene esse. Donnison v. Elstey, 1 M'Cle. & Y. 24. TITHES; EVIDENCE.

The court rolls of a manor, taken by themselves, are evidence only against the tenants of the manor, and the lord of the manor. Att. Gen. v. Ld. Hotham, 1 Turn. & R. 217. LANDL. & TEN.

Where purchaser of equity of redemption had the legal estate conveyed to him by deed, dated the 24th August 1796, in which it was recited, that the purchaser had some time since paid to the mortgagee the money due on the mortgage, &c.; bill to redeem was filed on the 29th January 1816: Held that the recital was an acknowledgement of the mortgage title within twenty years from the filing of the bill. Price v. Copner, 1 S. & S. 347. TIME; MORTGAGE; EXEMPTION; ACKNOWLEDGEMENT OF TITLE.

The mere fact of the delivery of an account without evidence of contemporaneous or subsequent conduct, does not afford presumption of settlement. Irvin v. Young, 1 S. & S. 333. SETTLEMENT OF ACCOUNT.

Bill founded on a letter not stamped; decree made, but directed not to be delivered out, till letters were produced stamped to registrar. Chervet v. Jones, 6 Mad. 267. STAMP.

An entry by deceased person, who had knowledge of a fact, whereby he charges himself or discharges another, upon whom he would otherwise have a claim, is admissible in evidence, even though the party could not have been examined as to the fact in his lifetime. Short v. Lee, 2 J. & W. 489.

Judge's notes not evidence of facts, which transpired at trial. Exp. Learmouth, 6 Mad. 113. JUDGE'S NOTES.

A document which is stated in the bill, and which the answer admits and refers to, cannot be read from the bill at the hearing, but must be produced. Cor v. Allingham, 1 Jac. 339. PR. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS.

Upon lease of tithes by lay impropriator, if the tithes of the particular lands are excepted, it might admit of construction, that lessor is entitled to that which he excepts. But if former owner of tithes upon a lease, has made a parol declaration, that he is not entitled to the tithes of those lands, that declaration is in itself important evidence, and gives a construction to the exception in the lease. Norbury v. Meade, 3 Bli. 212. TITHES; TITLE.

Entry of birth of a dissenter's child in a register kept for the purpose, at a public library, not evidence. Exp. Taylor, 1 Jac. & W. 339.

A bill of sale having been executed by a testator, and subsequently delivered to A, on a question, whether it was intended as a gift, an entry in the testator's book, made between the periods of the execution and the delivery, is admissible evidence. Ityle v. Haggie, 1 Jac. & W. 234.

Money ordered to be paid under a power of attorney executed in North America, attested by a notary public, and verified by the secretary of state of the country. Affidavit of the execution of an instrument made before the mayor of a foreign town, not received without evidence of his holding that situation. Garvey

v. Hibbert, 1 Jac. & W. 180. DEEDS, EXECUTION OF; POWER OF ATTORNEY.

An office copy is the only evidence the court will admit of the filing of the affidavit. Exp. North, Buck, 396.

Transfer of stock of an intestate into the name of himself jointly with that of the husband of one of his two nieces, accompanied with proof of his having said, in his lifetime, that it was his intention to give the husband the stock at his death, in consideration of affection, &c. and that he had transferred it for that purpose, (if not repelled by counter testimony); held to be sufficient proof of gift of such stock, and court will not continue injunction granted to restrain the husband, who had administered, from disposing of it. George v. Howard, 7 Price, 646. GIFT; TRUST.

An old grant from the crown, "of grain, hay, and herbage," not shewn to have been acted upon, and under which no enjoyment or perception of the specific tithe claimed (agistment) was proved; held not to be sufficient proof of title, in persons claiming under the grantee, to the tithe of agistment. Scott v. Lawson, 7 Price, 267. TITLE.

The assignment of the petitioning creditor's bond by the lord chancellor is conclusive evidence of malice. Holmes v. Wainwright, 1 Swan. 23. BANKCY. ASSIGNMENT OF PETITIONING CREDITOR'S BOND.

A mortgagee having advanced to the mortgagor a further sum upon his bond, held that the bond, though obscurely worded, was evidence of an agreement for a further charge upon the mortgaged premises. Exp. Heurn, 1 Buck, 165. FURTHER SECURITY; BOND; MORTGAGE; & MORTGEE.

Document produced by a party, as evidence in his behalf, must be accompanied with proof of the custody whence he derived it, to satisfy court of its authenticity, otherwise it will not be permitted to be read. Randolph v. Gordon, 5 Price, 312.

Bill, by assignor and assignee of debt, for recovery of it, stating assignment, is sufficient evidence of it, without further proof, though defendant states he is ignorant thereof. Ryan v. Anderson, 3 Mad. 174. ASSIGNMENT.

Evidence, as to value, of witnesses stating opinions formed upon a loose recollection of circumstances, at a distant period, not to be put in competition with that of surveyors actually employed at the time to ascertain the value, and where no bad motive can be ascribed, so as to affect a lease sought to be set aside for under value. Att. Gen. v. Cross, 3 Mer. 542.

As to the evidence necessary to be produced of debt and its nature, and how far bond, or other security, is alone sufficient on re-opening a settled account between solicitor and client, before Dep. Rememb. Lewis v. Morgan, 5 Price, 42. ACCOUNT.

Answer to a bill, by a rector, for an account of tithes, setting up a simoniacal contract, supported by evidence of the contents of a letter alleged to have been written by the witness (one of the patrons of the living) to the plaintiff, previous to his admission to the living, containing the terms of the agreement, which were afterwards accepted, and the letter containing such acceptance had been subsequently returned to the plaintiff, and destroyed by him. On an objection to the admissibility of evidence of the letter containing the proposal, on the ground of want of notice to the plaintiff to produce the original, held that the evidence was admissible, the depositions being sufficient notice. At law such evidence would not be admissible without notice, because it not being known till the time of trial, what evidence will be offered on either side, non constat, otherwise, that the original might not be produced. But even at law, notice is not necessary, where, from the nature of the proceeding, the party must know that the contents of a written instrument in his possession will come into question. Wood v. Strickland, 2 Mer. 461.

In conveyances by lease and release, it seems not to be the practice in Ireland to make lease for year; but recital in release is evidence of lease. Daly v. Kelly, 4 Dow. 435. CONVEYANCE; PRACTICE IN IRELAND.

Where the subject of a devise is described by reference to some extrinsic fact, extrinsic evidence must be admitted to ascertain the fact, and to ascertain the subject of the devise. Different from the cases of reference to a paper which is to form part of the will, where the will itself must specify the paper to be incorporated with it. Sanford v. Raikes, 1 Mer. 653. WILL, C. OF.

Bill for the redemption of a mortgage after twenty years, upon the evidence of a conversation, proved by one witness only, dismissed. His honor, however, of opinion, that parol evidence was admissible in such cases. Reeks v. Postlethwaite, Coop. 161. LENGTH OF TIME; MORTGAGE, REd. OF.

Affidavit with interpleading bill is conclusive of fact. Sterenson v. Anderson, 2 V. & B. 410. INTERPLEADER.

Effect of wilful misrepresentation as to credit, giving a remedy by way of damages, on ground of fraud. In bankruptcy, where evidence of party is received, it must be in all particulars consistent, clear, and unambiguous. Exp. Carr, 3 V. & B. 108. BANKCY. FRAUD.

An article of agreement to demise lands executed upwards of thirty years, and produced out of the proper custody, held to be admissible in evidence as an ancient instrument, by proving (not by the subscribing witnesses) the signatures of the parties, that it was in defendant's hand-writing, and an indorsement, explaining why possession did not accompany it, its authenticity being thereby established. Alyward v. Kearney, 2 Ball & B. 463.

Comparison of hand-writing, though lately admitted as evidence, if confirmed by the contents of correspondence, refused in the instance of a single letter for the purpose of commitment. Wade v. Broughton, 3 V. & B. 172. COMMITMENT; HAND-WRITING.

When an account furnished by a party before any suit instituted, is produced to charge him with the items, on the debit side, he is entitled to resort to the credit side in support of his discharge. Boardman v. Jackson, 2 Ball & B. 382. ACCOUNT.

Special covenants as to cultivation, not implied from the mere act of holding over; as they may be from payment of rent at the same period, as evidence of agreement to hold, not only on the same terms, but subject to the same covenants. Kimpton v. Eve, 2 V. & B. 349. COVENANTS; LANDL. & TEN.

Supplemental answer permitted to correct mistake, but held strictly to mistake, clearly sworn to, and probable in itself; the solicitor who put in the former answer being dead, whose letter, admitting the fact, contrary to that answer, would not be evidence in a prosecution for perjury, against the defendant; which ought not to be influenced by the admission or refusal of the application. Strange v. Collins, 2 V. & B. 163. PR. SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER; MISTAKE.

If the entire of a correspondence be not produced, no reliance ought to be placed upon detached parts of it. Blennerhasset v. Day, 2 Ball & B. 120.

The circumstance that one residuary devisee was the attorney who drew the will, not decisive evidence of fraud. Paine v. Hall, 18 Ves. 475. FRAUD; WILL.

The presumption of payment of a bond after twenty years may be repelled by evidence, that obligor had no opportunity or means of paying. Madong v. Winter, 19 Ves. 196. PRESUMPTION OF PAYMENT; LENGTH OF TIME.

As to admitting in evidence a parish register not kept according to the canon, requiring weekly entries, or a copy, without proof, that the original is not to be found; quære? Parish register admissible evidence, notwithstanding the loss of a leaf not destroying the series of entries. Declarations of relations, evidence of pedigree, but inconclusive without shewing on what occasion, what led to them, &c. Whether a physician or servant who attended the family can be admitted as one of the family, quære. Object of making evidence in secret to prevent attempts to support defective evidence already given: but farther inquiry when necessary, not refused. Walker v. Wingfield, 18 Ves. 443.

Petition to stay a bankrupt's certificate upon allegation of concealment, and sworn to only upon information and belief, dismissed with costs. Exp. Joseph, 18 Ves. 340. BANKCY. PETITION TO STAY CERTIFICATE.

On a bill for specific execution relying on part performance, the agreement must be proved as stated. Savage v. Carrol, 1 Ball & B. 551. SPEC. PERF.

Parol agreement proved by one witness, corroborated by others, and not denied by answer, enforced upon the ground of part performance. Toole v. Mellicott, 1 Ball & B. 393. PAROL AGREEMENT; PART PERFORMANCE.

The Fleet register, evidence not as a register, but a declaration upon the fact. Lloyd v. Passingham, 16 Ves. 59.

The registry of a ship is conclusive evidence of the property, upon the policy of the registry acts; even against the claim of creditors, upon a joint purchase and various acts of apparent ownership, within the bankrupt act, 21 James I. c. 19. s. 11. Exp. Yallop, 15 Ves. 60. BANKCY. REPUTED OWNERSHIP; SHIPS' REGISTRY ACTS.

Qualification as to evidence; tradition, even upon pedigree, must be from persons having such a connection with the party, that it is natural and likely from their domestic habits, that they are speaking the truth and could not be mistaken; upon that principle, description in wills, monuments, bibles, &c., are admitted. Whitelocke v. Baker, 13 Ves. 511.

In the case of pedigree, hearsay evidence of declaration by the husband as to his wife's legitimacy, admissible, as well as those of relations by blood. Forbes v. Young, 13 Ves. 140. PEDIGREE.

Depositions of a witness read, though he had died before cross-examination; the cross-interrogatories not going to any point to which the witness had been examined in chief, nor to his credit, but to matters capable of proof by other witnesses. O'Callaghan v. Murphy, 2 Scho. & L. 158.

Letter by an agent, is not evidence against the principal of a pre-existing agreement, though it may be of an agreement contained in that letter. Fairlee v. Hastings, 10 Ves. 128. PR. & AGENT.

The rule of evidence in the accountant general's office ought to be the same as in the court; therefore upon marriage of woman entitled to interest of fund for separate use, an affidavit was required beyond that of the marriage, and indemnity that there was no settlement, or agreement for settlement, without prejudice to future cases. Clayton v. Gresham, 10 Ves. 288. PR. ACCOUNTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE; PAYMT. OUT OF COURT.

To obtain payment to representatives, mere production of probate is not sufficient; proof of death is now required, and that testator was the party in the cause. Id. 289. EXORS. & ADMORS.; PAYMENT OUT OF COURT.

A notary-public has credit everywhere, but the certificate of a magistrate of a colony abroad, requires evidence of his character. Hutcheon v. Mannington, 6 Ves. 823. NOTARY PUBLIC.

Bill alleging a written agreement, may be sustained by evidence of a parol agreement. Spurrier v. Fitzgerald, 6 Ves. 548. AGREEMENT.

Debt discharged by entry in the testator's hand, that the debtor pays no interest, nor should he (the testator) take the principal, unless greatly distressed, and upon evidence of his circumstances. Eden v. Smyth, 4 Ves. 360. DEBTOR & CRED.

A partnership cannot be established by the evidence of the partners, and their private communications. The fact must be proved aliunde; for want of such proof a commission against the ostensible partners was sustained. Exp. Benfield, 5 Ves. 424. PARTNERSHIP.

Fifteen years' possession of a benefice is prima facie evidence of a regular induction, and of reading the thirty-nine articles. Chapman v. Beard, 3 Aust. 942. LENGTH OF TIME; INDUCTION.

Evidence of the declarations of a man since dead, as to a fact done by himself, is not admissible. Garmans v. Barnard, 1 Aust. 289.

Upon a bill to redeem, a prima facie title is sufficient; and an issue shall not be directed, though the title is complicated, if uncontradicted. Pym v. Bowerman, 3 Swan. 241. MORTGAGE REDEMPTION; TITLE.

A plaintiff claiming under a deed, not stated particularly by him, and not particularly and explicitly admitted by the defendant, cannot be entitled to a judgment or decree founded upon such deed against such defendant, without producing and proving such deed. Berney v. Moore, 2 Ridgw. P. C. 323. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS.

Upon a question of legitimacy, A produced witnesses, who swore to a marriage in fact between his parents, and he obtained a verdict. On a second trial he declined to produce those witnesses, and rested solely upon a reputation of the marriage. Although he again obtained a verdict, yet this is not sufficient to satisfy the conscience of a court of equity. Sherborne v. Napier, 2 Ridgw. P. C. 224.

On questions of legitimacy, declarations of parents after the birth of the child can have but little weight. Id. 234.

If the terms of a contract are reduced into writing, the paper must be stamped in order to be read in evidence, though collaterally. Hearne v. James, 2 Bro. C. C. 309. STAMP.

In courts of equity, the plaintiff may select a particular admission, and when that is read, defendant is obliged to prove the other facts stated in his answer by other evidence. Thus, where to a bill by creditors against an executor for an account, the executor answered that 1100*l.* was deposited in his hands by the testator, and that afterwards he gave testator a bond for 1000*l.*, by whom 100*l.* was presented to him for his trouble in making up the accounts, and in testator's general concerns, no other evidence appeared that testator had deposited 1100*l.* in his executor's hands, and it was held, that what was confessed by the answer, when it was put in issue, need not be proved by plaintiff, but that defendant should make out by proofs, what he insisted on by way of avoidance. This was held, however, under this distinction, that when defendant admitted a fact, and insisted on a distinct fact by way of avoidance, then he ought to prove the matter in his defence, because he may have admitted it from apprehension that it might have been proved, and therefore such admission ought not to profit him; but if it had been one fact, as if defendant had said the testator had given him 100*l.*, it ought to be allowed unless disproved, for nothing of the fact charged is admitted, and plaintiff may disprove the whole fact, as sworn, if he can, and upon its being urged that the probability was on defendant's side, Ld. Gwyer said there was some presumption in that, but not enough to carry so large a sum, without better attestation. Anon. Gilb. Evid. 52. But see Peake's Evid. 56., notes.

A copy of a register of baptism in the island of Guernsey is not sufficient evidence here of a party being of age. Huet v. Le Mesurier, 1 Cox, 275. FOREIGN REGISTERS.

An original letter stamped, after production, to make it evidence. Ford v. Compton, 2 Bro. C. C. 32. STAMP.

Circumstances forming pieces of evidence, which, taken separately, are not conclusive, cannot become so by being united. Hume v. Burton, 1 Ridgw. P. C. 210.

Probate of a will is conclusive evidence of the sanity of the testator to dispose of his personal estate; but it is by no means conclusive evidence of his capacity to dispose of his real estate. S. C. id. 277. WILL, PROBATE OF.

In what case an old map of an estate is good evidence to ascertain the quantities and boundaries of particular lands. Wilkinson v. Allott, 3 Bro. P. C. 684. BOUNDARIES.

Opinion of counsel read as evidence. Brown v. Garroway, Dick. 353.

A pedigree made by a testator's direction, and found among his papers, not admitted to explain a will, equivocal but not unintelligible. Crosley v. Clare, 3 Swan. 322. See S. C. Ambl. 397. WILL, C. OF.

Entries of presentments in the books of a manor are not evidence of acts of ownership. Ircin v. Simpson, 7 Bro. P. C. 317.

Probate of testator's will proof of his death. French v. French, Dick. 263. Contra 10 Ves. 289.

Public books, as of a manor, ordered to be produced, but not books in private hands. Anon. 2 Ves. 578.

Witnesses examined de bene esse in Sweden: council of Sweden refused to let a commission be executed for examining them in chief. The depositions de bene esse may be read. Gasson v. Wordsworth, Ambl. 108. S. C. 2 Ves. 325. 336. PR. EXAMINATION, DE BENE ESSE.

Testator manifesting an intention to dispose of the residue, but leaving it inchoate, inasmuch as he did not name the residuary legatee, it was held that the executors were not entitled to the surplus. Where parol evidence can be read to shew no resulting trust, like evidence may be read contra to disprove the implication from the former; legacy to one alone of two (or more) executors, will not exclude either; legacy to the daughter, &c. of an executor, is not to be deemed a legacy to him so as to prevent his taking the surplus merely for that reason. Rp. Cloyne v. Young, 2 Ves. 91. WILL, C. OF; EXECUTORS BENEFICIALLY INTERESTED.

Husband receiving proceeds of a sale of wife's estate, and promising, by a note or receipt, to lay it out pursuant to trusts relative to other property, this note held evidence of the agreement antecedent to the sale, and estates purchased afterwards by the husband, were held to be bound. Att. Gen. v. Whorwood, 1 Ves. 534. HUSB. & WIFE; AGREEMENT, SATISFACTION OF.

Bill by executors on loss of notes mentioned in a list written by the testator. Such a list not of itself evidence of the property, but left to be tried at law. Glynn v. Bank of England, 2 Ves. 38.

Shop books in testator's hand not evidence; entries by servants, after their death, allowed. Id. 43.

Parson's receipts for tithes evidence for successor. Id. ib.

A person's own entry in books of account, allowed on enquiries before the master as evidence of a claim made in his lifetime, but not as original or positive evidence of the fact. Lefebure v. Worden, 2 Ves. 54.

Entry by servant or agent usually employed in such matters, allowed as good evidence upon proof of his death. Id. ib.

In cases relating to clandestine marriage, hearsay evidence and declaration are no defective proof, but has weight with the court, especially when contradicted by any thing on the other side. Beard v. Travers, 1 Ves. 313. WARD OF COURT.

Payment of interest for a legacy by an executor from time to time, shall be evidence of assets, not so of a single instance of payment of interest. Clergyman's Sons v. Stainson, 1 Ves. 75. EXOR. ADMISTRATION OF ASSETS.

Though contemptuous words were spoken of a subpoena, and the person serving is severely beaten, yet as these facts were proved by the oath of a single person only, the court would not, in the first instance, order the party to stand committed, but made a rule upon him to shew cause why he should not stand committed. Anon. 3 Atk. 219. PR. CONTEMPT.

Where a person is examined as a witness, and after death of plaintiff files a bill of revivor and becomes a party interested, he is not disqualified from being evidence. Hues v. Hand, 2 Atk. 615.

A merchant's copy-book of letters has been allowed to be read where the person who has the original letters refuses to produce them. Sturt v. Mellish, 2 Atk. 611.

An inquisition of lunacy is always admitted to be read, but is not conclusive evidence, for you may traverse it. Sergison v. Sealey, 2 Atk. 412. S. C. 9 Mod. 370.

The evidence of a neighbouring manor shall not in general be admitted to shew the custom of another manor. Dean and Chapter of Ely v. Warren, 2 Atk. 189.

Courts of law have admitted evidence with regard to profits of mines out of other manors where they are similar, to explain the custom of the manor in question. Ib.

It is too late, at the hearing of the cause, to object to depositions taken de bene esse, as irregular. The court should have been moved to discharge the order for publication. Ib.

The court of equity will not put persons to set forth a custom with the exactness which is requisite at law, or which the exchequer expects. Ib.

Parol evidence of declarations of the wife respecting her advancement made during coverture with first husband, admissible against the second. Fawcner v. Watts, 1 Atk. 407.

So also proofs of declarations by a husband, because against his interest; secus, as to declarations by the father. Ib.

Papers in the hands of a party to a former cause, after publication had passed, through not produced, these may be read upon a bill of review. Standish v. Radley, 2 Atk. 179. BILL OF REVIEW.

In what cases equity will allow letters to be read as evidence. Montgomerie v. Att. Gen. 9 Mod. 365. LETTERS.

Witness swearing he never heard of an agreement at or before a certain time, is a negative pregnant that he heard of it after. Walker v. Walker, 2 Atk. 100.

A counterpart may be read if an original deed be lost; and if no counterpart, a copy; and if no copy, parol evidence of the manner of its being lost; if destroyed by fire, or lost by any unforeseen accident, they are of themselves sufficient excuses. Villiers v. Villiers, 2 Atk. 71.

Bill for quit rent and account produced, it must be proved to have been a steward or bailiff's, or it is not evidence here any more than at law. Franks v. Curry, id. 140.

Copy of admittance may be read, though not signed, where it is of thirty years' standing. Dean, &c. of Ely v. Stewart, 2 Atk. 44. S. C. Barn. 170. COPIES.

Bill brought by wife for maintenance, on suggestion of cruel usage by the husband; and on the part of the defendant, as an excuse for his ill usage, depositions were offered to prove a criminal conversation, unless it is expressly charged by the answer, the court will not suffer such depositions to be read. Watkins v. Watkins, 2 Atk. 96. HUSB. & WIFE.

Answer, charging the wife had behaved in an indecent manner, will entitle the husband to read evidence against her of criminal conversation. Id. ib.

Where a witness against the conduct of others is under the necessity of first exculpating her own behaviour, no regard ought to be paid to her evidence. Id. ib.

Evidence admitted to prove testator's intention not to give next of kin residue, so as to let in executors, though they have legacies by will. Brusbridge v. Woodroffe, 2 Atk. 69. WILL, C. or.

Parol evidence admitted to shew a trust from the mean circumstances of the pretended owner of the real estate. Willis v. Willis, 2 Atk. 71. RESULTING TRUST.

To shew a title in lessor, receipts for rent are per se insufficient, especially when he who signed them is living, and has not been examined. Manning v. Lechmere, 1 Atk. 453.

In dispute between lord of manor and his tenants as to a custom, deeds between lords and tenants of neighbouring manors are admissible evidence as to custom. Lawther v. Raw, 2 Bro. P. C. 451.

A bond or mortgage is prima facie a good evidence for a debt; but in case fraud appears, the obligee, &c. ought to prove actual payment. Piddock v. Broen, 3 P. W. 289.

A bond for performance of articles, though cancelled, was made an exhibit, and allowed as evidence to prove the execution of the articles, the limitation being inserted and recited in the condition of the bond. Anon. Gilb. Eq. Rep. 183.

The entry of names and titles of persons in a church book, either for marriages or births, cannot be positive evidence of the marriage or birth of any person, unless the identity of person named in such entries is fully proved and strengthened also with circumstances of cohabitation, and the allowance of parties. Draycott v. Tulbot, 3 Bro. P. C. 564. MARRIAGE.

Where churchwardens, by order of the parish, commence a suit, the consent of the parish shall bind it, and the vestry-book shall be allowed as evidence of the consent. Case of Radnor Parish, 4 Vin. 529. pl. 10.

Old rent rolls admitted as evidence to prove fee-farm rents, there having been an unity of possession far above 300 years, and being so ancient, it could not be imagined they were fabricated to serve the present purpose. But an inquisition post mortem is not evidence, unless it is proved that a commission was ever issued to support it. Newburgh v. Newburgh, 3 Bro. P. C. 553.

A draft of articles of partnership, together with stated account, and the payment of money by the acting partner to the others: held sufficient evidence of partnership to ground decree for account. Worts v. Pern, id. 548. PARTNERSHIP.

An entry in the book of the steward of a manor, and a parol proof by the foreman of the jury, allowed as good evidence against an entry on the roll, and an admission thereon. Hill v. Wiggett, 2 Vern. 547.

R married N's widow, who was executrix of her husband, and kept a book of accounts relating to his estate: after she married R, the same book was continued. Afterwards R went governor to Barbadoes with his wife and the servant who kept the book; they all died there. It was proved in the cause, that the book was made up from vouchers, and that great part of the money was paid; and the witness believed the whole was paid. Upon exceptions to the master's report, the court adjudged the book should be allowed as a discharge, as well as a charge. Darston v. El. Oxford, Colles' P. C. 299. Prec. Ch. 188. S. C. differently stated. CHARGE & DISCHARGE.

Exemplification of part of a patent not suffered to be read in evidence, notwithstanding the statutes of 3 and 4 Edw. 6. and 13 Eliz., where the other side have notice to consult the patent roll, and so may be surprised by an imperfect exemplification. Att. Gen. v. Taylor, Prec. Chan. 59. EXEMPLIFICATION OF PATENT.

As to all equity proceedings, it is a general rule, that in order to give any interlocutory matter in evidence, a foundation must be laid by proving all its former stages. Rock v. Rir, Gilb. Ev. 56. As the bill to make way for the answer, the bill and answer, or the defendant's contempt for the depositions, &c. Piercy v. —, T. Jones, 164. Gilb. Ev. 65., otherwise the whole bearing of the evidence would not appear, neither would the court see that the proceeding was regular; in which case the answer and depositions would have only the effect of a mere voluntary affidavit, and which, if made by a stranger, could not be received in evidence, as the party would be deprived of his cross-examination, and if made by the party himself, then as before-mentioned. Anon. Sty. 446. Further, if plaintiff's bill be dismissed for irregularity, as where a devise revives the suit of his devisor, and several depositions are taken, and then the cause of hearing is dismissed, because a devisee claiming as a purchaser, and not by representation, cannot revive, then the depositions cannot be read in any other cause, for there was no cause regularly before the court. Backhouse v. Middleton, 1 Ch. Ca. 173. But if a cause was once regularly before the court, though the bill be dismissed by reason that the remedy was at law, then the depositions will be evidence. Smith v. Yeule, 1 Ld. Raym. 735.

Bill to have jointure made up 400l. per annum. according to the parol agreement on the marriage. The defendant pleads a jointure made and accepted 18 years since: Held, the jointure deed is evidence that all the precedent treaties and agreements were resolved into that. Bellasis v. Benson, 1 Vera. 369.

Settlement being alleged to be made in pursuance of a marriage agreement, a trial was directed to try what was the marriage agreement, but ordered the settlement should not be given in evidence. On a bill of review, the last part of the order reversed. Beachinall v. Beachinall, 1 Vern. 246. PR. ISSUE AT LAW.

In odium spoliatoris, the oath of the injured party sufficient to charge the wrong doer. Childrens v. Saxby, id. 207.

One witness sufficient to prove a contempt. Sands v. Knighton, Toth. 41. Id. Anon. 3 Atk. 219. CONTEMPT.

Upon an ordinary contempt a commission was had by the plaintiff, who proved the contempt positively by one witness. The defendant alleged the process was by mistake served on a wrong person, and prayed a commission to examine to it, and it was granted. Hammond v. Shelley, 3 Ch. Ca. 100. PR. CONTEMPT, PROOF OF.

A peer of the realm is to put in his affidavit upon honour, but his answer to interrogatories and examinations as a witness must be upon oath. Steers v. Stourton, 1 P. W. 146. 1 Dick. 21. PEE.

Where the account was of 20 years standing, the defendant was allowed to prove his account upon his own oath for what he could not prove by books or cancelled bond. Peyton v. Green, 1 C. R. 146. ACCOUNT; LENGTH OF TIME.

And where the account had been delivered 14 years, and no objection taken, and defendant had lost his books by seizure in a foreign country, held, that defendant should not be charged beyond his own oath. Holtcomb v. Rivers, 1 C. C. 127. ACCOUNT; LENGTH OF TIME.

Witness examined for the plaintiff, and was to be cross-examined by the defendant, but before he could be cross-examined he died, yet this court ordered his depositions to stand. Arundel v. Arundel, 1 C. R. 90.

Feme sole sues out a commission to examine witnesses; before they are examined she marries. Their depositions ordered to stand. Winter v. Daniel, Toth. 99. PR. COMMISSION TO EXAMINE; PR. ABATEMENT.

3. Of what facts necessary or admissible generally.

On a bill filed to set aside the sale of an estate on the ground of fraud practised by the defendant on the plaintiff, the plaintiff is not at liberty to give evidence of the defendant's having stood in the relation of his attorney at the time of the sale, with the view of raising an inference that he had acted fraudulently by taking advantage of that character, the fact of his having been such an attorney not being stated, or put in issue by the bill. Williams v. Llewellyn, 2 Y. & J. 68. FRAUD, FID. SIV.

Not necessary for plaintiff who claims an estate as tenant in tail, under settlement of parents, to prove their marriage by affidavit, before he shows cause against dissolving an injunction to restrain an ejectment brought against him to recover the estate. Hodgson v. Dean, 2 S. & S. 221. AFFIDAVIT OF MARRIAGE.

The inspection of documents set forth in the schedule to the answer in an injunction cause may be obtained before the dissolution of the injunction, and used to oppose the motion to dissolve it. Hence, when the injunction has been dissolved, and the plaintiff afterwards by inspecting the documents referred to by the answer, discovers new matter, he cannot move to revive the injunction upon an amended bill containing the new matter, and verified by affidavit. Powell v. Lassalette, 1 Jac. 549. PR. INJUNCTION, DISSOLUTION OF.

Upon the hearing of an interpleading bill, evidence is admissible to show that the plaintiff has retained possession of the subject of the suit, under an indemnity from some of the defendants. Statham v. Hall, 1 Turn. & R. 30. PR. INTERPLEADER; MAINTENANCE OF SUIT.

Where letters are stated in bill as agreement, no evidence aliunde is admissible; otherwise, where stated as evidence only of agreement. Birce v. Ditchley, 6 Mad. 17. PL. BILL; AGREEMENT.

Power of attorney to sue in plaintiff's name, need not be stated in bill, but if stated, proof will be directed of it before master in taking the accounts. Edney v. Jewell, 6 Mad. 165. PL. BILL; POWER OF ATTORNEY.

On a bill to impeach an award, evidence of the merits only to be received so far as it throws light on the conduct of the arbitrators. Goodman v. Sayers, 2 Jac. & W. 259. ARB. & AWARD.

In establishing a will, the attestation of all witnesses must be proved, and if not personally, either that they are abroad or dead, and the proof must be positive. In proving a will for certain purposes only, such proof as will satisfy the court is sufficient, and in such case, leave will be given to exhibit an interrogatory for further proof of will for the former purpose. Wood v. Stane, 8 Price, 613. WILL, PROOF OF.

Though bill states defendant out of jurisdiction, and infant defendant admits fact, proof is still requisite. Wilkinson v. Beal, 4 Mad. 408. INFANT; PL. ANSWER, ADMISSION BY.

On a question of pedigree, witnesses cannot be received to prove the declarations of a relative whose deposition is read. Gordon v. Gordon, 3 Swan. 465.

Evidence not admitted of facts not alleged in the pleadings. Id. 472. PL. BILL, CHARGES.

What charge of misbehaviour is sufficient to introduce evidence of particular facts. Wheeler v. Prother, 3 Swan. 174. Ib.

A gift by a husband to his wife, either as a donatio mortis causâ, or as a donatio inter vivos, to her separate use, must be established by evidence beyond suspicion; a claim of that nature negatived. A defendant by her answer having claimed a gift from her husband, as an absolute donatio inter vivos to her separate use, whether evidence can be received to establish it as a donatio mortis causâ, quære? Walter v. Lodge, 2 Swan. 92. HUSB. & WIFE; GIFT.

The court, on application for ne exeat regno, acts on evidence of intention to go abroad, without regard to denial. Whitehouse v. Partridge, 3 Swan. 375. PR. WRIT, NE EXEAT REGNO.

On the trial of an issue devisavit vel non, all the subscribing witnesses must be examined, except in cases of necessity, as death, insanity, or absence abroad, or the heir waives his right, and the rule is not merely technical. Bootle v. Blundell, 19 Ves. 494. 500. S. C. Coop. 136. ISSUE DEVISAVIT VEL NON.

Infant defendants are not precluded as to question of bankruptcy, by production of commission, though no notice of intention to dispute has been given. Bell v. Tinney, 4 Mad. 372. INFANTS; BANKCY. WHO BOUND BY; PR. NOTICE.

A foreign law must be proved as a fact. Eap. Criddland, 3 V. & B. 99. FOREIGN LAWS.

The evidence of facts not put in issue on the record, is inadmissible. Blake v. Murnell, 2 Ball & B. 47. Affd. 4 Dow, 248.

Agent or bailiff, confounding his principal's property with his own, charged with the whole, except what he can prove to be his own; and, in this instance, the case of a breach of the terms upon which the court dissolved an injunction, the inquiry was directed with costs. The court refused in such a case a prospective direction to admit books, not legal evidence; usual in a fair case, as where from want of notice of an adverse claim, a strict account cannot be given, merely giving liberty to apply upon any question of evidence. Lapton v. White, 15 Ves. 432. AGENT, LIABILITY OF; ACCOUNT.

Evidence of a distinct substantive fact, without an allegation on the record, not received. Smith v. Clarke, 12 Ves. 477.

Depositions to a fact not put in issue, not permitted to be read. Clarke v. Turlon, 11 Ves. 240.

Though an agent may, within the scope of his authority bind his principal by his agreement, and in many cases by his acts, evidence of his declarations is confined to what is either by the statement itself, or as tending to determine the quality of cotemporary acts, the foundation of, or inducement to the agreement. Fairlie v. Hastings, 10 Ves. 123. PRIN. & AGENT.

A reference under the statute 7 G. 2. c. 20. must be made to the principal and interest upon the mortgage, and the master cannot admit evidence. Newson v. Newson, 4 Ves. 105. MORTGAGE, CLOSURE OF; STAT. C. OF.

When letters are to raise a trust, there must be demonstration that they relate to the subject. Forster v. Hale, 3 Ves. 708. TRUST.

A will admitted in answer under which defendant claims, and where nothing turns on it, may be read from the bill, although the answer refers to the will for certainty. Owen v. Jones, 2 Anst. 505. WILL.

Wife barred from her right, to be exonerated out of the assets of her husband, in respect of money raised by mortgage of her estate, and received by him by telling executor she would not raise her claim; and no difference, whether legacies were paid before or after. Parol evidence of her declarations, admissible to prove that it was not applied for the husband's use, not to prove the transaction itself different from what it appears to be by the instrument, and the other evidence, as that it was intended as a gift to him. Clinton v. Hooper, 1 Ves. J. 173. HUSB. & WIFE, SEPARATE ESTATE.

On a bill filed by a surety against his co-surety and the principal, for a contribution from the co-surety, in respect of money actually paid by the plaintiff for the principal, it is not necessary to prove the insolvency of the principal; otherwise, where the principal is not a party to the suit. Lawson v. Wright, 1 Cox, 275. CONTRIBUTION; PL. PARTY; PRINC. & SURETY.

An order had been obtained to read inter alia, the examinations of A taken before commissioners under C's bankruptcy; they cannot be read unless proved in the cause that there were such examinations so taken. Fade v. Lingood, 1 Atk. 203. BANKCY. EXAMINATIONS BEFORE COMMISSIONERS.

Parties resting their defence in an issue at law upon instruments ascertained at the trial to be forged, will not be allowed to enter into any other evidence, or to say the forged instruments were immaterial. Kemp v. Mackrell, 2 Ves. 579. ISSUE AT LAW.

Where the plaintiff is charged by an answer, he he must discharge himself by proof, and cannot do it by reading the whole answer as he may at law. Parteriche v. Poulet, 2 Atk. 383. PL. ANSWER.

Not only contrary to the statute of frauds, but to the common law before the statute, to add anything to an agreement in writing by parol evidence. Ib.

It is sufficient to put in issue a general charge of lewdness, and under this you may give particular evidence, but then it must be pointed and applied to the general charge. Clark v. Periam, 2 Atk. 333. & 337. S. C. 9 Mod. 340. PL. BILL.

That a wife has misbehaved herself, does not imply she is an adulteress, and a deposition in that case to prove her one, ought not to be read. Ib.

Saying that a wife did not behave with that duty as became a virtuous woman, will not entitle the husband to enter into proof of her committing adultery, unless there is an express charge of this kind; for the virtue of a woman does not consist merely in her chastity. Ib.

Where in a criminal prosecution, the prisoner, to strengthen his character, enters into particular facts to support it, the prosecutor may likewise examine to particular facts. Ib. CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS.

In an indictment for keeping a common bawdy-house or gaming-house, though the charge is general, yet you may give particular facts in evidence. Ib.

In an issue on non compos mentis, you may give particular acts of madness in evidence, and not general only that he is insane. Ib. LUNACY.

Where the general life or conversation is in issue, the person must be prepared to invalidate that evidence, otherwise where it comes in collaterally. Ib.

Where defendant disclaims all right, plaintiff cannot read his evidence as proof of plaintiff's own title to prejudice of another defendant. Hill v. Adams, 2 Atk. 39.

Where attesting witness to deed has lived abroad, a strict proof of his death is required; otherwise where constantly residing in England. Heuley v. Philips, 2 Atk. 48. DEATH.

Where two leases are set up, you cannot read one of them till you have proved possession under it. Munning v. Lechmere, 1 Atk. 453.

A brought bill against B, for specific performance of covenants in a lease, and particularly a covenant to leave a certain quantity of alum on the premises at end of term; B, by answer insisted covenant was not intended to be performed, but at hearing produced a paper, purporting to be a receipt for the alum from the lessor: court held, that no regard ought to be paid to this paper, not only because it had a suspicious appearance in itself, but because it was not insisted on in the pleadings. Ward v. Dk. Buckingham, 3 Bro. P. C. 581. PL. ANSWER.

After a decree of foreclosure made absolute, and an acquiescence of eleven years in mortgagee's possession under it, no parol evidence of his promising to account and reconvey on payment of his money, can be admitted. Wichalse v. Short, 3 Bro. P. C. 558. AGREEMENT.

Circumstances allowed to be proved by evidence by defendant, which he had not put in issue by his answer. Hodgson v. Thornton, 1 Eq. Ab. 228. PL. ANSWER.

By a proviso in a marriage settlement, that the deed was to be void if the marriage was not had in ten months. The heir cannot set up this settlement to defeat a mortgage made by his father after his father had sworn that he was not married within the ten months. Jones v. Purefoy, 1 Vern. 45.

4. Parol, where admitted.

A tenant for life of an estate, settled in strict settlement, buys up some of the charges on the estate, and has them assigned to a trustee; he next purchases the ultimate remainder, and has it conveyed to him subsequent to the subsisting charges; he then devises the estate subject to the charges that might be thereon at his decease; the intermediate remainders fail at his death. The charges so purchased are merged, and parol evidence is admissible to prove that the testator so intended. Astley v. Miles, 1 Sim. 298. MERGER OF CHARGE; WILL, C. OF.

Claiming the residue as executor, is sufficient to let in parol evidence in support of the legal title, without alleging a title by the effect of the parol evidence. Lynn v. Beaver, 1 Turn. & R. 66. EXECUTORS BENEFICIALLY INTERESTED; PL. BILL.

Parol evidence is admissible to show that instrument is not the will of testator as to particular estate, but not to set up the disappointed intention of the testator. El. Newburgh v. Cs. Newburgh, 5 Mad. 304. WILL.

A direction in will "to keep accounts," held to afford a presumption, that the executrix was not meant to take beneficially; but parol evidence is admissible to explain away this uncertainty. Gladding v. Yapp, 5 Mad. 56. EXECUTOR BENEFICIALLY INTERESTED; WILL, C. OF.

Parol evidence is not admissible to contradict an express declaration in will; but if there be no express declaration, and only circumstances which afford reference or presumption, there parol evidence is admissible to answer that inference or presumption. Id. 59. WILL, C. OF.

Where testator gives stock "standing in his name," but he has no such stock, but it is in the name of a trustee, parol evidence admissible of the mistake. Hewson v. Reed, 5 Mad. 451. WILL, C. OF; MISTAKE.

If a creditor execute a deed of compromise with the principal debtor, he thereby discharges the surety; not so if it be stipulated in the deed of composition, that the remedies against the sureties shall be reserved. Parol evidence of the understanding of the parties to the deed, that the remedies against the sureties should be reserved; cannot be admitted. Exp. Glendinning, Buck, 517. "See Exp. Carstairs, id. 560." PRINCIPAL & SURETY, DISCHARGE; DEED OF COMPROMISE;

Parol evidence is not admissible to show the inadequacy of the personal estate of the testatrix to satisfy the purposes of the will; but with regard to real estate, parol evidence would be admissible for that purpose, if an intention to pass really appeared on the will. Jones v. Curry, 1 Swan. 66. WILL, C. OF.

Parol evidence, admitted on part of defendant, to shew that agreement was intended to be, that several persons should give a joint and not several bonds. Gordon v. Hertford, 2 Mad. 106. AGREEMENT.

Legacy to "R C my nephew, the son of Joseph C;" other clauses describing "my nephew, R C," generally, and one legacy to "my nephew R C, the son of John C." The testator had only two brothers, John and T C, each having a son named R C. Parol evidence admitted to resolve this latent ambiguity, shewing intimacy with the son of John C, very slight knowledge of the other C; the legacy was decreed to the former. Careless v. Careless, 19 Ves. 601. S. C. 1 Mer. 384. WILL, C. OF.

Distinction between admission of parol evidence to support or resist specific performance of contract for land; admissible for latter purpose on mistake and surprise, as well as fraud, but not to vary, add to, or explain the written contract. Cloves v. Higginson, 1 V. & B. 524. SPECIFIC PERF.

Parol evidence of declarations of auctioneers at sale, warranting quantity received as defence to bill for specific performance on ground of fraud, though not for purpose of enforcing of specific performance. Winch v. Winchester, 1 V. & B. 375. SPECIFIC PERF.

A rent charge till a debt paid, granted by a tenant for life, having a power to raise by sale or mortgage, a certain sum for payment of his debts; a good execution of the power, though referable to his interest, as well as to his power. Parol evidence to shew that the deed was not intended to be in execution of his power, inadmissible, as going to contradict it. Blake v. Murrell, 2 Ball & B. 35. affirmed, 4 Dow, P. Rep. 248. POWER, EXECUTION OF.

Where a deed is in writing, it cannot be altered by parol evidence. Id. 47. DEED, ALTERATION OF.

Fraud in procuring a deed under the circumstances attending it, may be proved by parol evidence. Id. FRAUD.

The acts and declarations of a testator at the time of his will, to shew what he meant by a particular expression admissible in evidence. Id. 48. WILL, C. OF.

Parol evidence admissible on the part of a defendant resisting the specific performance of an agreement to prove fraud, mistake, or omission in the article, and also to shew the situation of the parties as connected with it. Flood v. Finlay, 2 Ball & B. 16. SPEC. PERF.

Where possession delivered under an agreement, and money expended in permanent improvements, parol evidence admitted to prove the agreement. Toole v. Medlicott, 1 Ball & B. 401. AGREEMENT; PART PERFORMANCE.

Parol evidence admissible to shew the presumption of a legacy being adeemed. Monck v. Dr. Monck, 1 Ball & B. 298. LEGACY, ADEEMPTION OF.

Possession taken referable only to a contract of sale is part performance, and parol evidence may be given of the terms of such contract. Savage v. Carroll, 1 Ball & B. 282. CONTRACT; PART PERF.

Parol evidence is admissible to shew under what circumstances deed or bond is executed. Stratford v. Powell, 1 Ball & B. 14.

Parol evidence admitted in favour of the legal title of the executor to the residue, unless plainly and unequivocally declared a trustee; so for a devisee for a particular purpose against an implied trust for the heir. Walton v. Walton, 14 Ves. 322. EXECUTOR BENEFICIALLY INTERESTED.

Evidence in writing not admitted, as an agreement unstamped, does not prevent parol evidence, if otherwise admissible. Hiers v. Mill, 13 Ves. 114.

Parol evidence admitted, and prevailed against the presumption, that a debt is satisfied by a legacy of a greater amount; the will also affording an inference in favour of that presumption. Wallace v. Panfret, 11 Ves. 542. DEBT, SATISFACTION OF.

Where a testatrix made her will disposing of real and personal property, and signed and sealed it, and a clause of attestation in the common form was subjoined, but to which there was no subscription of witnesses, and where the will was found at her death wrapped in an envelope, on which was written, "I signed and sealed my will to have it ready to be witnessed the first opportunity I could get proper persons:" Held, that the instrument appearing to be incomplete (something more having been intended) was not a good will as to the personal property. But parol evidence admitted as to the circumstances of the papers, and as to the testatrix's intention. Walker v. Walker, 1 Mer. 503. WILL, WHAT A SUFFICIENT.

One executor having a legacy for his trouble, parol evidence was admitted on behalf of his co-executrix, an infant, to rebut the presumption for next of kin, and she was held entitled to the residue undisposed of. Williams v. Jones, -10 Ves. 77. EXOR. BENEFICIALLY INTERESTED.

Parol evidence is not to be admitted on the ground of part performance, unless the agreement stated appears clearly to be the very same with that which was partly performed. Lindsay v. Lynch, 2 Scho. & L. 8. PART PERF.

A, by public advertisement, offers lands to be let for three lives or thirty-one years, and proposals having been made by bond, accepted, an agreement is executed between B and the agent of A, authorized to contract for him, for a lease of the lands, in which agreement the term for which the lease is to be made, is not mentioned. A is not bound to perform this contract, there being no evidence in writing of the term to be demised. There being no reference in the agreement to the advertisement, parol evidence cannot be received to connect the one with the other so as to ascertain the term. Clinan v. Cooke, 1 Scho. & L. 22. SPEC. PERF.; AGREEMENT, UNCERTAINTY.

If one written instrument refers to another written instrument, parol evidence may be admitted to shew what was the thing so referred to. Id. 33. AGREEMENT.

Parol evidence not admissible to shew the intention of the testator against the construction upon the face of the will. Cambridge v. Rous, 8 Ves. 22. WILL, C. OF.

Parol evidence admissible in opposition to specific performance of written agreement upon heads of mistake or surprise, as well as of fraud, and upon such evidence the bill was dismissed. Another bill for specific performance of agreement corrected according to same evidence, contradicted by answer, was also dismissed. Marg. Townsend v. Stangroom, 6 Ves. 328. SPEC. PERF.

Parol evidence admissible upon a latent, but not upon a patent ambiguity; to rebut equities grounded upon presumption, and perhaps to support presumption, to oust an implication, and to explain what is parcel of the premises granted or conveyed. Druce v. Denton, 6 Ves. 397.

Provision, by will, increased upon evidence of the testator's request to the executor and residuary legatee, and his promise, upon which the testator refused to make a new will, and said he would leave it to the generosity of the executor. Barrow v. Greenough, 3 Ves. 152. TRUST.

Legacy "to Mrs. G." Evidence admitted to prove who was intended. Abbot v. Masie, 3 Ves. 148. WILL, C. OF, AMBIGUITY.

Parol evidence not admissible (in support of a bill for specific performance) to prove from conversations before and at the time of signing an agreement for a lease, that the intent of the parties was apparent from the memorandum, though the same was written by the lessee, and the words "clear of all taxes" (which was the purport of the conversation) were omitted in the memorandum. Rich v. Jackson, 4 Bro. C. C. 514. Vide judgment in this case fully, 6 Ves. 334. note. SPEC. PERF.

Bill to redeem, after twenty years, upon parol evidence of conversation with the mortgagee, dismissed. Whiting v. White, Coop. 1. LENGTH OF TIME; MORTGAGE, REDEMPTION OF.

Latent ambiguity propounded and dissolved by parol, but parol never admitted on patent ambiguity. Bequest to the "son and daughter" of one who has several sons is a latent ambiguity. Delmare v. Robello, 1 Ves. J. 415. WILL, C. OF.

Parol evidence not admissible to raise an equity, that a pension granted by the crown to the defendant was in trust for the plaintiff against the oath of the defendant in his answer. Fordyce v. Willis, 3 Bro. C. C. 577. TRUST.

Agreement for a lease of a farm referring to a paper containing the terms. Bill for specific performance according to such clauses as had been read to the plaintiff, parol evidence to prove that was refused, and the bill dismissed. Bill being dismissed without costs as a hard case: parties made trustees without their knowledge, and as such being necessary parties to the bill, cannot have costs against plaintiff, but left to their remedy against their principal; otherwise, perhaps, if plaintiff had prevailed, because then those costs might have been given over against other defendants. Brodie v. St. Paul, 1 Ves. J. 326. SPEC. PERF.; COSTS.

Gift, by will, of pictures to Lady —, absolutely void, and shall not go to the master, or be supported by parol evidence. Hunt v. Hart, 3 Bro. C. C. 311. WILL, MISTAKE.

Parol evidence not admitted to prove an agreement made upon the purchase of an annuity that it should be redeemable. Hare v. Shearwood, 1 Ves. J. 241. S. C. 3 Bro. C. C. 168.

On a written agreement, parol evidence admissible in equity in cases of fraud, and where party will admit there was some agreement. Id. 243.

Where testator, by his will and codicils, has clearly shewn his intent to exempt his personal estate from his judgment and specialty debts, they shall be a charge on the lands descended in exoneration of those devised; but parol evidence to shew that testator intended to exempt his personal estate, is not admissible. Reeves v. Newenham, 2 Ridg. P. C. 11. Vern. & Scriv. 482. WILL, C. OF; EXEMPTION OF PERSONAL ESTATE.

Parol evidence that it was part of the agreement for an annuity that it should be redeemable, although not made part of the contract in writing, refused to be admitted. Portmore v. Morris, 2 Bro. C. C. 219. AGREEMENT.

In what manner a written agreement may be af-sected by parol evidence; and upon what grounds the court proceeds in admitting or rejecting such evidence. It cannot be admitted for the purpose of varying the agreement, although it may for the purpose of raising an equity founded on the agreement, by proof of collateral circumstances. Davis v. Symonds, 1 Cox, 402. CONTRACT.

On a question between the real and personal representatives of A (who died testate), whether A had actually agreed in his lifetime for the purchase of an estate, the parol declarations of A in his lifetime are not admissible evidence. Perchard v. Benson, 1 Cox, 214.

Parol evidence is admissible to explain the terms of an ambiguous written agreement, but not to extend it. Stokes v. Moore, 1 Cox, 219. AGREEMENT.

Parol evidence of the attorney admitted to prove a party to a settlement had notice of a prior incumbrance. Shelburne v. Inchiquin, 1 Bro. C. C. 340.

Grant of an annuity; a bill filed to redeem, suggesting that it was part of the agreement that it should be redeemable, but the agreement left out of the deed on the idea that if inserted the transaction would be usurious. Parol evidence offered to this, but not admitted to contradict the deed, not being charged to have been omitted by fraud. Irisham v. Child, 1 Bro. C. C. 92. S. C. 2 Dick. 554. See per Lord Eldon, C. on this case, &c. in M. Town bond v. S. Agroom, 6 Ves. 332, 3. upon the points in this case. ANNUITY, REDEMPTION OF; DEED, C. OF.

Legacy to a person dead in the lifetime of the testator, lapsed, although the words are to M, his executors, administrators and assigns, and parol evidence inadmissible that the testator knew at the time of making the will that the legatee was dead. Maybank v. Brooks, 1 Bro. C. C. 84. LEGACY LAPSED; WILL, C. OF.

Parol evidence admitted to prove mistake of solicitor in settlement. Rogers v. Felt, Dick. 291.

Parol evidence may be read in support of legal operation of will. Lake v. Lake, id. 236.

Parol evidence admitted to shew that testator intended his wife executrix to take the residue. Id. S. C. Amb. 126. WILL, C. OF; WIDOW.

Where a resulting trust is insisted on in opposition to the legal operation of a will, parol evidence may be admitted to rebut the equity. Id. 127. WILL, C. OF; RESULTING TRUST.

Parol evidence admitted at law, that though a bond on mortgage was for 150*l.* per annum, yet the agreement was for 100*l.* The bill dismissed as founded on a private agreement, calculated to deceive a material party. It was dismissed, however, without costs. Pitcairn v. Ogbourne, 2 Ves. 375.

Parol evidence admitted to prevent fraud. Id. ib.

In all mercantile contracts and adventures, parol evidence of usage in such cases allowed. Parol evidence in the above case as to usage and custom on the written articles taken on behalf of the plaintiffs, but not being read by them at the hearing, allowed to be called for and used by the defendants. Parol evidence on one side called for by the other. So at law, though to prove matter in writing. On mercantile contracts, evidence of merchants allowed. Blunt v. Cumyngs, id. 331.

Parol evidence admitted to explain a will, where doubtful; not to contradict. As on a legacy to the four children of B, and afterwards another to the children of B; B having then two children by the first husband, four by second, admitted to shew the first legacy was restrained to the last four children: not so of the other legacy. Hampshire v. Peirce, 2 Ves. 216. WILL, C. OF.

Parol evidence to prove mistake in agreement.

Baker v. Paine, 1 Ves. 467. MISTAKE IN AGREEMENT.

Parol evidence not admitted of agreement between A and B, that the remainder of B (who had joined in mortgaging the estate tail as surety for A) should be resorted to in case of A's personal estate. Robinson v. Cree, 1 Ves. 251. TR. FOR LIFE & REM. MAN; AGREEMENT.

A agrees to settle 100*l.* per annum on intended wife; falling sick, devises 100*l.* per annum to her; recovering, marries her, and the settlement is carried into execution: she can take but 100*l.*, and parol evidence admitted to prove the intent. Mascul v. Mascul, id. 323. WILL, C. OF; SETTLEMENT, SATISFACTION OF.

Parol evidence may be received in case of uncertain description of a person in a will. Edge v. Salisbury, Amb. 71. S. C. 1 Ves. 230. WILL, C. OF.

Devise to his nearest poor relations. Parol evidence admitted to shew that testator knew he had such in Salop, but no farther; not to prove declarations or instructions whom he meant by written words of the will. Gooding v. Gooding, 1 Ves. 231. WILL, C. OF, WHO TAKE.

Where there is no devisee named, this is an absolute omission, and cannot be supplied by parol evidence. Castleden v. Turner, 3 Atk. 258. WILL, C. OF, MISTAKE IN.

B, by will, gave all his real and personal estate equally among his children, and at the conclusion of his will he directed his executors to lay out a sum not exceeding 300*l.* in putting out defendant, his son, apprentice. B, in his lifetime, laid out 200*l.* in placing his son as a clerk in the navy office, and died without revoking his will. Evidence was allowed to be read of testator's declarations, that this advancement should be an ademption of the legacy. Rosewell v. Bennets, id. 77. LEGACY, ADEMPITION OF.

Where, after marriage settlement was prepared but not executed, the parties agreed that the husband should supply a defect of the deed by giving a note, promising that the wife should enjoy the profits of the estate to her separate use, parol evidence cannot be admitted to explain the agreement between the parties; but as to the occasion of signing the note, it may. Tyrrell v. Hope, 2 Atk. 560.

A husband in his lifetime gave a bond in trust to secure to his wife 400*l.* in case she survived: parol evidence, to shew it was intended in lieu of dower, and that the wife acknowledged it to be so, cannot be allowed. Tinney v. Tinney, 3 Atk. 8.

Where testatrix gave her real and personal estate to plaintiffs, for life, remainder to J in tail, remainder to R in fee, with a few pecuniary legacies, and charged her real estate with the payment, if her personal estate should not be sufficient, and, by her will, declared she gave the rest and residue of her personal estate to lord C's three daughters. Held, that parol evidence of attorney, who drew the will, that he had express directions to give the personal estate to the three daughters of lord C, could not be read, though there were some things in the case which might make a judge wish to admit it. Ulrick v. Litchfield, 2 Atk. 372. WILL, C. OF.

Courts of law and equity admit parol evidence in two cases only, to ascertain the person, where there are two persons of the same name, or where there has been a mistake in the name; and in resulting trusts, relating to personal estate, as where an executor has a small legacy, and the next of kin claim the residue, there parol proof is admitted to ascertain who shall have it. S. C. Id.

Ld. H. not satisfied with Ld. Cowper's rule of admitting parol evidence in doubtful wills. Mr. Justice Tracy, who assisted Ld. Cowper in Strode v. Russell, was at first of same opinion with him, but, on consideration, clear the evidence could not be admitted, and his alteration of judgment had weight in the H. of L. S. C. Ib.

In Selwin v. Brown, Ld. H. said he was for admitting it. Ld. Talbot, who had a remorse of judgment at the same time, rejected it, but the H. of L. refused it, and affirmed the decree. S. C. Ib.

In the cases of satisfaction of legacies, parol declarations have always been admitted. Skudal v. Jekyll, 2 Atk. 518. LEGACIES; SATISFACTION.

The court will not allow parol evidence to explain a blank in a will, but where a legatee is nicknamed, or two of the same name, parol evidence will be admitted to explain. Baylis v. Att. Gen. 2 Atk. 240. WILL, AMBIGUITY.

Parol evidence may be admitted on the part of the decedant, (there being no written agreement between him and the plaintiff,) to establish a fact, to rebut the equity set up by the bill, the case not being affected by the statute of frauds. Walker v. Walker, 2 Atk. 98. STAT. OF FRAUDS.

This court will not add a legacy to a will upon parol proof, though it concerns personal estate only. Whitton v. Russell, 1 Atk. 448.

Though there can be no parol declaration of a trust since 29 Car. 2, yet parol evidence is proper in avoidance of fraud. Hutchins v. Lee, 1 Atk. 448. TRUST.

Testator gave the residue of his estate to the poor of the parish of K, com. L, but that parish was in com. N; it was set up by the next of kin, that testator did not imagine his residuum would exceed 10*l.*, and had so declared; whereas, it amounted to near 1000*l.* The court thought that parol evidence should be admitted, to help out the description of the parish, but not as to the quantity of the thing given. Brown v. Langley, 2 Barn. 118. WILL, C. OF.

A presbyterian, who had three infant daughters bred up that way, and had three brothers presbyterians, makes his will, appointing his brothers, and also a clergyman of the church of England, guardians to his three infant daughters, and dies, having sent his eldest daughter to his next brother; the clergyman gets the two other daughters into his custody, and places them at a boarding school, where they were bred according to the church of England, and brought his bill to have the eldest daughter placed out with the other daughters. The three brothers, that were presbyterians, brought their bill to have the two daughters delivered to them, offering parol evidence that the testator directed and declared he would have his children bred up presbyterians; the court declared no proof out of the will ought to be admitted in the case of a devise of a guardianship, any more than in the case of a devise of land. Storke v. Storke, 3 P. W. 51. WILL, C. OF; TESTATORY GUARDIANSHIP.

How far parol evidence is admitted against a deed. Fitzgerald v. Fauconberge, Fitzgib. 213. DEED.

Parol evidence cannot be admitted to explain the written words of a will. Stratton v. Payne, 3 Bro. P. C. 103. WILL.

One makes a will, and an executor, and gives a legacy of 500*l.* to the executor, but makes no disposition of the surplus; parol evidence of the intention and declaration of the testator, touching the surplus, admitted. Dk. of Rutland v. Ds. of Rutland, 2 P. W. 209. EXOR. BENEFICIALLY INTERESTED.

Parol evidence admitted to prove which heir was intended, viz. whether the heir of the mother's mother's side, or the heir of the mother's father's side. Harris v. Bp. of Lincoln, 2 P. W. 136. WILL, C. OF.

A devised the residue of his real and personal estate to his executor, in trust to sell the same, or so much thereof as should be needful, for the payment of his debts and legacies. Held, that this was intended as a beneficial devise to the executor, and parol evidence was admitted to prove such intention. Docksey v. Docksey, 3 Bro. P. C. 39. See S. C. 2 Eq. Ab. 506. EXEC. BENEFICIALLY INTERESTED; WILL, C. OF.

Where the executor had a legacy given him, and no disposition made of the surplus, parol evidence was admitted to prove the testator's intention, that the executor should have it. Duckley v. Littlebury, 3 Bro. P. C. 43. Ib.

An executor has a particular legacy, and yet held entitled to the surplus. Ld. Granville v. Ds. of Beaufort, 1 P. W. 114. 2 Vern. 648.

Where the surplus is not disposed of by the will, parol proof may be admitted to shew that the testator intended to give the surplus to his executor, it being only to rebut an equity arising by implication in favour of the next of kin. Id. ib. EXORS. BENEFICIALLY INTERESTED.

Collateral proof may be allowed to make certain a person or thing described in a will. Caldicott v. Hodgson, 2 Vern. 593. WILL, C. OF.

Parol proof allowed as to a man's intention in a will where the question was, whether a legacy should go in satisfaction of a debt due from the testator to the legatee. Cuthbert v. Peacock, 2 Vern. 593. Ib.

Parol evidence is admissible on the part of an advanced son or his heir, to rebut a claim of trust, though improper against the legal operation of a deed. Reddington v. Reddington, 3 Ridgw. P. C. 182. Taylor v. Taylor, 1 Atk. 387. Lamplugh v. Lamplugh, 1 P. W. 111. S. P.

Parol evidence admitted to ascertain the person the testator intended should take a legacy. Hodgson v. Hlitch, Prec. Chan. 229. WILL, C. OF, WHO TAKE.

One by will subjects his real estate to pay his debts, and makes his wife executrix; parol evidence admitted to prove testator's declaration, that his executrix should have his personal estate, exempt from his debts. Gainsborough v. Gainsborough, 2 Vern. 252. WILL, C. OF.

One by will makes A, B, and C, executors in trust, and gives them a legacy of 20*l.* a-piece for a remembrance, above their charges; parol proof admitted that this was in trust for the wife only. Pring v. Pring, 2 Vern. 99. Ib.

Devise of land not to be explained by parol proof, touching the declaration of the testator, or the instrument given by testator for the making of his will; parol proofs shall be admitted to explain a surrender of copyhold land, to shew a mistake either in the land or uses. Towers v. Moor, 2 Vern. 98. WILL, C. OF.

Where the testator in his will has clearly shewn his intent to exempt his personal estate from his judgment and specialty debts, the court will charge them on the lands descended, in exoneration of those devised, but parol evidence, to shew that the testator intended to exempt his personal estate, is not sufficient. Reres v. Newenham, 2 Ridgw. P. C. 11. WILL, C. OF; EXEMPTION OF PERSONAL ESTATE.

5. Onus Probandi.

It is a presumption of law, that child born of married woman whose husband is within four seas, is legitimate, unless there is irresistible evidence against possibility of sexual intercourse having taken place. Head v. Head, 1 S. & S. 150. S. C. 1 T. & R. 138. HUSB. & WIFE; ACCESS; PRESUMPTION OF LAW.

On an enquiry into very remote transactions, accounts kept by a deceased party at the time, directed to be taken as prima facie evidence; throwing on the other side the onus of impeaching them. Chalmer v. Bradley, 1 Jac. & W. 66. LENGTH OF TIME; ONUS PROBANDI.

Where a vicar succeeds in establishing a general right to all tithes, except those of corn and grain, throughout a parish, it requires very strong evidence to show that an impropiator of a particular district, who claims under a grant, limiting his title to the excepted articles, is entitled to the tithes of any other thing. Williamson v. Ld. Emsdale, Dan. 171. TITHES.

A bond from the owner of an estate, charged to the person entitled to the charge, who signed a receipt for the amount, is not a substitution for the charge, but merely an additional security, and the estate not thereby released; it is not incumbent on the creditor to prove, that it was not the intention of the parties to this transaction that the bond should be a substitution of the charge, but it is on the owner of the estate to make out, that the estate is discharged. Saunders v. Leslie, 2 Ball & B. 599. RELEASE; CHARGE ON ESTATE.

Distinction between a charge of usury in bankruptcy, and in courts of law and equity; where it must be established by legal evidence, or in equity by admission, with an offer to pay the real debt. In bankruptcy the proof is imposed upon the creditor; and if it fails, the debt is wholly expunged. Exp. Scrivener, 3 V. & B. 14. BANKRU.; USURY.

A plea of purchaser without notice is a bar to the discovery, as well as the relief; but not insisted on by the defendant, he must answer, and confess the notice, or the plaintiff may except to the answer, but if he does not except, the affirmative of proving notice will be on him. Comme semble. Eyre v. Dolphin, 1 Ball & B. 303. PL. PLA.; PL. DISCOVERY.

Where there is prima facie evidence of any right existing in any person, the onus probandi is always upon the person calling such right in question. Bunbury Peerage, 1 S. & S. 155.

Insanity having been once established, proof of recovery is upon the other party; otherwise the insanity must be established by proof applying to the particular date. White v. Wilson, 13 Ves. 88.

Where an instrument is shown to be false, it lies upon the party claiming benefit under it to support it. Watt v. Grove, 2 Scho. & L. 502.

General lunacy being established, the proof is thrown upon the party alleging a lucid interval, and must establish, beyond a mere cessation of violent symptoms, a restoration of mind sufficiently to enable the party soundly to judge of the act. Hall v. Warren, 9 Ves. 611. LUNACY, LUCID INTERVAL.

Two legacies by same instrument; to prove two were intended, onus is on legatee, but if by separate instruments, on heir to disprove. Hooley v. Hatton, Dick. 462.

After a long enjoyment of a water course running to a house and garden, through the ground of another, it shall be presumed the owner of the house has a right to the water course unless the other party can shew a special license, or an agreement to restrain it in point of time. Finch v. Resbridge, 2 Vern. 390. LENGTH OF POSSESSION.

6. Entry of, as read.

Costs of documentary evidence not read, nor entered as read, were disallowed. Stuart v. Greenall, 1 M'Clel. 705. S. C. 13 Price, 755. PR. COSTS.

In a suit for an account against an executor, who admits that he has received assets, evidence tending to charge him with particular sums as items of the account, and to show that he has received more than his answer admits, cannot be used at the original hearing, nor entered as read. Law v. Hunter, 1 Russ. 100. PR. ACCOUNT.

Upon a bill for an account, evidence entered into by the defendant to prove items of his discharge, cannot be entered as read. Walker v. Woodward, 1 Russ. 107. Id.

Upon decree taken by default of defendant at hearing the evidence, is not entered as read. Stubbs v., 10 Ves. 30. PR. DECREE BY DEFAULT.

Evidence read or agreed to be considered, is entered in decrees as read at hearing, and where it does not appear by register's minutes, that any evidence was read at hearing, court ought not, upon subsequent application, to make order that evidence be entered as read. El. Bute v. Eden, 1 Bro. P. C. 466. See also 1 Newl. Pr. 499.

7. Further evidence, when admitted after publication, or on appeal, rehearing, &c.

Master shall not receive further evidence after issuing warrant on preparing his report. 67th General Ord. 3d April, 1828. EVID. BEFORE MASTER.

New evidence admitted on a rehearing, and a petition of rehearing permitted to be amended, to state the discovery of such new evidence. Wylde v. Ward, 2 G. & J. 381. PR. REHEARING; PR. PETITION OF REHEARING, AMENDMENT OF.

On a rehearing, evidence in the cause may be read, which was not read at the original hearing. Williams v. Goodchild, 2 Russ. 91. PR. REHEARING.

After great lapse of time, and the deaths of the parties, from the residence abroad of the defendant, and upon an affidavit by him and his solicitor, that they had not discovered deeds material for his defence until after issue joined, leave was given to file a supplemental bill, put in them issue, and they were admitted in evidence upon a rehearing. Barrington v. O'Brien, 2 Ball & B. 140. SUPPLEMENTAL BILL IN NATURE OF REVIEW; LENGTH OF TIME; REHEARING.

In giving leave to file supplemental bills on the grounds of evidence newly discovered, diligence to discover them forms an ingredient in the mind of the court. Id. 142. SUPPLEMENTAL BILL IN THE NATURE OF REVIEW.

On appeals and rehearsings, additional evidence permitted in some instances. If the rule is so, it must be subject to costs. White v. Fussell, 1 V. & B. 153. PR. APPEAL; PR. REHEARING.

Evidence not to be received by master after he has settled his report. Thompson v. Lambie, 7 Ves. 587. PR. MASTER'S REPORT.

The court allowed the defendant, after publication, to prove an old paper found in the parish registry. Clarke v. Jennings, 1 Anst. 173. PR. PUBLICATION.

After verdict on issue directed, new trial on account of having further evidence to produce, refused; there being no fraud or surprise, but the evidence having been kept back by the party applying, though the court was much dissatisfied with the verdict. Standen v. Edwards, 1 Ves. J. 133.

If a defendant fail in proving a material fact at law, of which he afterwards obtains a discovery from the adverse party, in equity it is a ground for granting an injunction, though he would not be permitted to prove the fact by any other witnesses, whom he could have examined at law. Hankey v. Vernon, 2 Cox, 12. INJUNC.

On the hearing of all appeals, this principle universally prevails, that no evidence can be received which was not laid before the court below, nor can any evidence which was received below be objected to alone, unless the admission of improper evidence be among the points of the appeal. Eglen v. El. Bute, 1 Bro. P. C. 465. PR. APPEAL.

Where it does not appear by the register's minutes, that any evidence was read at the hearing of the cause, the court ought not upon a subsequent application to make an order, that the evidence should be entered as read. Id. ib.

On a rehearing, depositions taken on part of defendant may be read, though not read at original hearing. Cunyngham v. Cunyngham, Amb. 90. S. C. Dick. 145. PR. REHEARING.

On arguing demurrers to a bill of review, what appears on the face of the decree can be read only; but after a demurrer overruled, a plaintiff may read any evidence as at a rehearing. Cotterall v. Purchase, 1 Atk. 290. PR. BILL OF REVIEW; PR. DEMURRER.

On an appeal from the rolls to Ld. Ch. the cause is open, and the party is at liberty to read new proof, and offer what he can against the decree. Wright v. Pilling, Prec. Chan. 496. PR. APPEAL FROM ROLLS.

No evidence can be given on hearing of appeal in H. of L., which was not read or insisted on in court below. Bush v. Moore, 3 Bro. P. C. 546. PR. APPEAL.

No proofs to be read in the H. of L. which were not made use of in chancery. Bulton v. Price, Prec. Chan. 212. APPEAL TO LORDS.

In a bill brought to have the benefit of a former decree, plaintiff cannot examine witnesses, much less the same witnesses to the matters in issue in the former cause; but on such a bill the court may examine the justice of the former decree, but then it must be upon the proofs taken in the cause wherein that decree is made. Johnson v. Northey, 2 Vern. 409. Pre. Ch. 134. S. C. PR. BILL TO HAVE BENEFIT OF FORMER DECREE.

One having been ordered to prove a deed in voce, at the hearing not allowed to prove the witnesses hands, they being dead, but had leave to examine in the office to prove the deed, though publication was passed. Blaxton v. Drewitt, Prec. Chan. 64. DEEDS; PR. PUBLICATION.

8. Evidence before master.

Affidavits read in court may be used before master. 65th General Ord. 3d April, 1828.

No affidavit in reply shall be read before the master, except as to new matter. 66th Id. AFFIDAVIT IN REPLY.

Master shall not receive further evidence after issuing the warrant, on preparing his report. 67th Id. FURTHER EVIDENCE.

If party in cause examine another party before master, this examination may be read by master as evidence upon matter referred to him, though the party who examined declined to use it before master. Gilbert v. Wetherell, 2 S. & S. 259. EXAMINATION.

On a reference of a matter in bankruptcy to the master, affidavits which might have been read at the hearing of the petition in court, may be received in evidence by him. Exp. Jackson, 1 Rose, 45. PR. REFERENCE TO MASTER.

Evidence in the cause, though not read at the hearing, may be received by the master. Witnesses examined in the cause, cannot be examined before master without leave of the court, but other persons may, and to the same points. Smith v. Atkins, 11 Ves. 564. PR. EXAMINATION BEFORE MASTER.

Plaintiff allowed to prove debt before master, though party. Newman v. Norris, Dick. 259.

The court will not make an order upon a master to admit depositions, taken in a former cause between the same parties to be read, as it is putting parties to an unnecessary expence, the proper course being to take exceptions to the report, if the master should be mistaken. Anon. 3 Atk. 524. PR. ORDER.

9. At law.

Commission to examine witnesses abroad before answer, the object of the suit being merely to obtain evidence for an action. Noble v. Garland, 19 Ves. 372. PR. COMMISSION TO EXAMINE ABROAD.

Although a person has been improperly examined before commissioners of bankrupt, upon a subject unconnected with the interest of the bankrupt's estate, with a view to procure evidence in an action depending against him, the examination may be used as evidence by the plaintiff at the trial of the action, and the judge at nisi prius cannot inquire into the abuse of the authority of the great seal, by which the examination was obtained. The remedy of a party, so improperly examined, is by an application to the Ld. Ch. to have the examination taken off the file and cancelled. Stockfleth v. De Tastet, 4 Camp. 10. BANKCY. EXAMINATION.

Order to read, on trial directed at law, depositions of witnesses, proved by affidavit from age and infirmity incapable of attending without great danger of death, with liberty to examine them on interrogatories, and the depositions of such other persons as should be proved at the trial to be dead, or unable to attend; such order, whether to be made in equity, or left to the judge at law, depending on a sound discretion. Corbett v. Corbett, IV. & B. 335. PR. ISSUE AT LAW.

Witness being proved unable to attend a trial, ancillary to a suit in equity, the depositions may be read without an order, but not without producing the bill, answer, and all proceedings. Id. ib.

Commission of bankruptcy superseded and an action brought, the Ld. Ch. ordered the commission and proceeding to be delivered by the solicitor to the secretary, and by him to the associate, to be produced on the trial, with liberty to inspect and copy; such an order properly refused by a judge. Exp. Warren, 19 Ves. 162. BANKCY. PRODUCTION OF PROCEEDINGS, &c. ON TRIAL AT LAW; PR. EVIDENCE.

Proceedings in bankruptcy ordered to be deposited in the office, sometimes with a view to a criminal prosecution, as for a conspiracy; so if the bond is assigned, which remedy as being limited to the penalty, is less beneficial than an action on the cause. Id. ib.

To warrant an application to produce on the trial of a civil action a record of the court, the court may require sufficient ground to be laid; particularly as the office copy might be evidence. Stratford v. Greene, 1 Ball & B. 296. PR. RECORD OF COURT.

Order, that depositions shall be read at the trial of an issue, if the witnesses shall be then dead, or proved to be in such a state of health as not to be capable of attending. Without such order to make the depositions evidence at law, the whole record must be read. Palmer v. Lat. Aylesbury, 15 Ves. 176. ISSUE AT LAW; PR. ORDER AS TO READING DEPOSITIONS.

Where an answer is required as evidence upon a trial at law, the court, except in a criminal case, does not permit the record itself to go but an office copy, unless proof of the signature is necessary: not granted where the action is by a stranger unconnected with the suit in equity. Jarvis v. White, 8 Ves. 313. ANSWER; STRANGER.

Proceedings under a commission of bankruptcy in the secretary's office, not permitted to be used as evidence in actions by strangers unconnected with the commission. Id. 314. STRANGER.

On an issue from chancery, original answer not sent down to the trial, whether between same parties or not, till after refusal of the office copy as evidence. Anon. 1 Ves. J. 152. PR. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS.

An application to read the deposition of a witness on the trial of an issue at law, directed by the court of chancery, on the ground of the witness being so aged and infirm, as to be unable to attend in person, must be made to the judge at the trial, and not to the court which directs the issue. Jones v. Jones, 1 Cox, 184. DEPOSITIONS DE BENESESE; ISSUE AT LAW.

B, the master of ship, enters into a charter party on behalf of C his owner, with D. On bill by C against D for satisfaction of demurrage and other damages, B is examined as a witness; at hearing, the bill is retained, with liberty to C to bring his action at law. This action was permitted to be brought in name of B after his death, and though he was the nominal plaintiff therein, yet his deposition in the equity suit was allowed to be read in evidence on the trial of the action. Downes v. Nevell, 3 Bro. P. C. 651. PR. EVID. WITNESS, COMPETENCY OF.

Where a person is sick, or otherwise not amenable to the process of a court of law, his deposition made here may be read at law between the same parties. Fry v. Wood, 1 Atk. 445.

Defendants answer directed to be read as evidence at a trial at law. Horton v. Rhodes, 2 Vern. 555. ISSUE AT LAW; PR. ANSWER.

The reason on which the rule was established, "that a copy of the whole judgment, and not a partial extract of it, must be produced to the jury," applies equally to proceedings in equity, and indeed every other written instrument. Brockman's case, Gilb. Ev. 51.

Depositions taken in chancery de bene esse, are good evidence at law where witnesses die before answer. Howard v. Tremaine, 1 Salk. 276.

10. Exhibits.

There need be no notice of or order to prove exhibits for reading any deeds or evidence that do not require proof: and all exhibits to be proved at hearing must be inserted in the order, and no note of them to be given over. Ord. Exch. 2 Fowl. 189. As to what records or documents may be read as exhibits without order, see id. 188.

No copies of records or proceedings in other courts to be entered as read on hearings in chancery by the register, unless the said copies shall be first proved in open court as exhibits on such hearings, in consequence of an order made in that behalf. Ord. Ch. Irel. 27th June, 1800. O'Keefe's Ord. 89.

In all cases where defendant is required by the bill to view exhibits before he puts in his answer, if he answers in town, he must give twelve hours' notice to plaintiff's clerk of the time he intends to view the same. Ord. Ch. Irel. O'Keefe's Ord. 62.

A witness, who has been examined at the hearing, only to prove exhibits, may be examined before the master on interrogatories to prove other exhibits, without a special order. Courtney v. Hoskins, 2 Russ. 253.

Court never orders clerk in court, with whom exhibits have been deposited under usual order, to deliver them up to any other person, for the purpose of their being produced in court, or at the assizes, without consent of all parties, and payment of clerk in court's fees. Harris v. Bodenham, 1 S. & S. 283. PR. CLERK IN COURT; PR. DELIVERY OF PAPERS OUT OF COURT.

Though a cause has been set down for rehearing, the court will, on motion, give leave to exhibit interrogatories to prove exhibits not before the court on the original hearing, on an affidavit that they have come to plaintiff's knowledge since, and that he did not know of their existence when the cause was heard. Williamson v. Hutton, 9 Price, 194.

In a suit by rector for tithes, a book, in which the collector of a former rector had kept accounts of the receipts of tithes, cannot be proved viva voce, as, besides the handwriting, it would be necessary to prove that it came out of the proper custody, and that the writer was the collector of the tithes. Lake v. Skinner, 1 J. & W. 9.

Leave granted after publication for a commission to prove an old paper-writing material in the cause, it being in the nature of an exhibit, though not actually such. Clarke v. Jennings, 1 Anst. 173.

In proving exhibits viva voce, the rule is invariable, that the party can only examine the witnesses to the handwritings: nothing, therefore, can be used as an exhibit proved viva voce, in respect of which the said party would have had a right to cross-examine. El. Pomfret v. Ld. Windsor, 2 Ves. 472.

It seems, however, that the benefit of such instruments on the one side, and the right to controvert on the other, is a proper subject of adjustment, either in the master's office, under a commission by virtue of his certificate, or under a trial at law. Id. ib.

The court will allow the proving of exhibits viva voce at the hearing, but not to let in other examinations, and this only at the application of the party who is to make use of the exhibits; but no instance where it is allowed at the application of the contrary party. Graves v. Budget, 1 Atk. 444.

Motion by defendant for a reference to the deputy remembrancer to appoint a proper person to prove the English translations of the exhibits proved, to be true translations, ordered accordingly; defendant to prove them before a baron, giving two days' notice. Henriques v. Henriques, 2 Fowl. 190.

Defendant proved a deed in the cause, and referred to it in his deposition. Plaintiff cannot compel him to produce the deed at the hearing, the reference thereto not making it part of his deposition. Hodson v. E. Warrington, 3 P. W. 34.

Exhibits cannot be inspected before hearing. Davers v. Davers, 2 Stra. 764. S. C. 2 P. W. 410.

A cancelled bond for performance of articles was made an exhibit to prove the execution of the articles, the limitation being recited in the condition of the bond. Anon. Gilb. Eq. Rep. 183.

The court will not grant an order to prove exhibits at the hearing of exceptions, because you can offer nothing at the hearing that was not before the master. Anon. 1 Mcs. 191. PR. EXCEPTIONS, HEARING OF.

An order may be obtained to prove exhibits viva voce at the hearing, but the witnesses can be examined to the execution only. Ward v. Fyles, Mos. 381.

But no such order can be made for proving a will, because more than the execution must be proved. Harris v. Ingledew, 3 P. W. 93. Eade v. Langood, 1 Atk. 203. WILL, PROOF OF.

Carrier ordered to deliver exhibits, which had been examined to under a commission for the examination of witnesses in the country. Elliott v. Williams, 1 Dick. 325.

The refusing a party liberty to prove exhibits viva voce at the hearing of a cause in a court of equity, is irregular and unprecedented. Edgworth v. Swift, 4 Bro. P. C. 658.

Where an order was obtained to prove a deed viva voce at the hearing, and all the witnesses to the deed were dead, the court refused to allow a witness to prove the handwriting of the deceased witnesses, but put off the cause, and gave the party liberty to examine in the office to prove the deed. Blaxton v. Drevit, Pre. Ch. 64.

On a suggestion that exhibits given in before commissioners on an examination of witnesses, had been since altered and interlined, the court granted a commission to examine the point. Richardson v. Lowther, 1 Ch. Ca. 273.

(b) Their incidents generally.

An affidavit made in support of a state of facts may be referred for scandal, but not for impertinence, by a party who has filed in support of a counter state of facts, an affidavit which appears to be an answer to the former. In re Burton, 1 Russ. 380. PR. REFERENCE FOR SCANDAL; PR. REFERENCE FOR IMPERTINENCE.

Affidavit referred for scandal. Johnson v. Leighton, Dick. 112.

Also for impertinence. Philips v. Muilman, Dick. 113.

(c) Filing and swearing generally.

Affidavits sworn before a solicitor in a cause will not be read. Gen. Order, 11 July, 1821. 9 Price, 478.

Affidavits to be used on special applications are to be filed on clear day before application made, and where notice of motion is necessary, the filing of the affidavits is to be mentioned at the foot of the notice. Gen. Order, 10 Feb. 1821. 9 Price, 88. PR. MOTION, NOTICE OF.

On a motion to discharge an order made by the vice chancellor, affidavit may be read, sworn after the order was made, and stating facts which were not before the vice chancellor. Const v. Barr, 2 Russ. 161. PR. MOTION TO DISCHARGE ORDER.

On motion for injunction, affidavits filed before answer may be read, where plaintiff, by saving notice of motion till future day, enabled defendant to file answer before motion made. Glasington v. Thwaites, 1 S. & S. 134. PR. ANSWER; PR. NOTICE; PR. INJUNC., MOTION FOR AFFRS. IN SUPPORT.

Regula Generalis as to swearing affidavits of illiterate persons. T. T. 1 G. 4. 8 Price, 501. H. T. 40 G. 3. Id. 504.

Affidavit, sworn before a bason of the exchequer in Scotland, admitted to be read. Braham v. Bowes, 1 Jac. & W. 296.

On a motion after the answer for an injunction to stay waste, affidavits filed subsequently to the answer cannot be read. Smythe v. Smythe, 1 Swan. 252. PR. INJUNC. AGAINST WASTE.

Affidavits in future were directed not to be sworn before the attorneys in the cause. Smith v. Woodroffe, 6 Price, 230.

Affidavits on petitions in bankruptcy may be filed after petition day, but petition must stand over to give time to answer them. Exp. Sparrow, 2 Mad. 184.

Affidavit in support of injunction bill will be ordered to be filed, (though not usual to file such affidavits) if defendant require it for the purpose of being afforded an opportunity to answer it. Scott v. Becher, 4 Price, Exch. 346. PR. INJUNC., AFFIDAVIT IN SUPPORT OF.

No instance of this court taking notice of an affidavit before a justice of peace in Scotland, though the courts of late have acted upon affidavits before judges of the superior courts. Hyde v. Whitfield, 19 Ves. 345. FOREIGN COURTS.

Where affidavits in support of a petition were sworn before the solicitor in the cause, he was ordered to pay the costs. In re Hogan, 3 Atk. 813. SOL. & CLIENT.

All parties to account, &c.; plaintiff residing at Amsterdam, allowed to swear affidavit before notary public there, according to law of Holland. Chicot v. Lequesne, Dick. 150.

If affidavit whereon attachment is founded, be filed before return thereof, held good. Read v. Ward, Dick. 76.

Affidavit before master extraordinary in Ireland read in court, but not affidavit from plantations, unless under seal of island. Annesley v. El. Anglesey, Dick. 90. Johnson v. Smith, Dick. 592.

Where the court directs that affidavits shall be filed on both sides by a certain day, and some of the affidavits on one side happen not to be filed on that day, it is the established rule of the court not to enlarge the order farther, that the other side may be required to give an answer to those affidavits. Burton v. Maloon, Barn. 401.

Affidavits taken in London, or within twenty miles thereof, must be sworn before a master; and if taken in the country, more than twenty miles from London, before a master extraordinary, who must state the town and county where he takes them. PRAC. REG. 7.

(d) Form of.

No office copy of affidavit is to be received or read, unless signed by some accredited person as having been examined. Gen. Ord. 23 May, 1821. 9 Pri. 298.

In affidavit in a cause, plaintiff need not state his residence. Crockett v. Bishton, 2 Mad. 446.

Practice formerly was to permit the amendment of an answer in case of mistake; now a supplemental answer is put in. The affidavit must state, that defendant, when he put in his answer, did not know the circumstances upon which he applies, or any other circumstances on which he ought to have stated the fact otherwise. Wells v. Wood, 19 Ves. 401. PR. ANSWER, AMENDMENT; PR. SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER.

Quære, whether affidavit of notice must state positively that the person served acts as clerk in court, or whether upon information and belief only, is sufficient. Macaulay v. Collier, 1 Ves. J. 141.

Though defendant had been abroad more than two years, yet, on affidavit, that plaintiff believed defendant stayed away to elude justice, ordered to appear under 5 Geo. 2. c. 25. Mason v. Pelier, Dick. 401. Sed quære. See note, Id. Wyatt's edition.

Substance of affidavit whereon process is founded against defendant absconding under 5 Geo. 2. Godard v. Pritchard, Dick. 662.

The not swearing expressly to words spoken, but adding to that effect, is a proper caution in an affidavit. Ayliffe v. Murray, 2 Atk. 60.

(c) In support of injunctions.

Affidavit made in support of injunctions to stay waste are to be filed, and an office copy produced with the certificate of the bill being filed. General Ord. 10 Feb. 1821. 2 Price, 88.

Ex parte application for special injunction to stay waste, should be promptly after knowledge of such waste; and affidavit in support should state when party came first to the knowledge of such waste. Calvert v. Grey, before V. C. 22 Feb. 1830. (Compiler.)

A defendant of unsound mind, answering by a guardian, unable to give a full discovery on a motion to dissolve an injunction. Affidavits cannot be read by the plaintiff to prove facts that might be given in evidence at law. Barrett v. Tickell, 1 Jac. 155. PR. INJON. TO STAY TRIAL; LUNATIC.

Exception to the rule against reading affidavits in support of the common injunction extends only to documents of which the defendant is ignorant, not to facts and circumstances. Id. 157.

On motion for injunction, affidavits filed before answer may be read, where plaintiff, by saving notice of motion till future day, enabled defendant to file answer before motion read. Glasington v. Thwaites, 1 S. & S. 134. PR. ANSWER; PR. NOTICE.

Affidavit in support of injunction bill will be ordered to be filed (though not usual to file such affidavits), if defendant require it for the purpose of being afforded an opportunity of answering it. Id. ib. PR. FILING AFFIDAVIT.

If material fact be charged in injunction bill, and deposed to in affidavit in support of it, not positively, but as plaintiff has reason to know, and that he believes it to be true, and fact is one which, if true, lies only within knowledge of defendant, and who may, if not true, deny it, the court will grant injunction if not denied by him. Scott v. Becher, 4 Price, 340. PL. ANSWER.

In order to obtain an injunction against violation of a patent, the party must, at the time of applying, swear as to his belief that he is the original inventor. Hill v. Thompson, 3 Mer. 622.

Affidavit in support of injunction admitted after answer to prove an allegation in the bill as to acts of the parties, neither admitted or decided by the answer; but such affidavit not to be allowed in contradiction to the answer. Morgan v. Goode, 3 Mer. 10.

Letters set forth by the bill, and not admitted by the answer, allowed to be verified by affidavit in support of an injunction. Taggart v. Hewlett, 1 Mer. 499.

Injunction, until answer or further order, to restrain the publication of a work as the plaintiff's, upon affidavit by the plaintiff's agents (the plaintiff himself being abroad), of circumstances making it highly probable that it was not the plaintiff's work; and the defendant refusing to swear as to his belief that it was so. Id. Byron v. Johnston, 2 Mer. 29.

Court will not aid of motion to prevent partner receiving or creating debts, and, for appointing receiver, permit plaintiff to use affidavit made and filed after coming in of answer; though in a case analogous with irreparable waste such affidavit made, &c. before answer might be used. Jawson v. Morgan, 1 Price, 303. PR. AFFIDAVIT WHEN READ AGAINST ANSWER.

In injunction cases, no affidavit as to the title after answer. Platt v. Button, 19 Ves. 447. PR. EVID. AGAINST ANSWER; AFFIDAVIT OF TITLE.

In an injunction cause, affidavits admitted on motion against the answer not on the title, but on questions of fact, as in the instance of waste, &c., and the original affidavit, where the defendant having obtained time to file affidavits, instead of that puts in an answer. Morphett v. Jones, 19 Ves. 350. PR. EVID. AGAINST ANSWER.

Injunction granted to restrain an executor claiming under a will, and also by gift from testatrix, in lifetime, from selling, upon affidavit of undue influence. Edmunds v. Bird, 1 V. & B. 542. EXOR.; FRAUD; UNDUE INFLUENCE.

Injunction to restrain trial, on affidavit that plaintiff cannot safely defend the action without discovery, and that it will give a good and effectual defence, not discharged upon the answer of one defendant only. White v. Steinwachs, 19 Ves. 83. PR. INJUNCTION, DISSOLUTION OF; PR. ANSWER.

The truth of affidavit, to stay trial, that the discovery will be material, is not questionable; nor the effect of the discovery considered, unless its immateriality is clear on the face of the bill. Id. 84.

Affidavits admitted on motion after answer, for an injunction and receiver in the case of partnership, by analogy to waste. Peacock v. Peacock, 16 Ves. 49. PR. EVIDENCE AGAINST ANSWER.

Injunction extended to stay trial on affidavit that the plaintiff is advised, and believes that he cannot safely proceed to trial until the answer; but it has been since determined, that the affidavit must state his belief that the answer will give discovery material to his defence. Partington v. Hobson, 16 Ves. 220.

To extend an injunction to stay trial, the affidavit must state belief, not merely that plaintiff cannot safely go to trial, but that the answer will furnish discovery material to his defence in the action. Appleyard v. Seton, id. 223.

To obtain an injunction against a tenant to stay waste in cutting turf, the affidavit must state that the turf was cut for the purposes of sale, the tenant being entitled to firebote. De Salis v. Crossan, 1 Ball & B. 188.

In the case of waste it is not sufficient to swear to information of the intention. The affidavit must go either to an act or threat of waste. Hannay v. M'Entire, 11 Ves. 54.

Affidavits cannot be read in support of an injunction to restrain the negotiation of bills of exchange. Berkeley v. Brymer, 9 Ves. 355. PR. INJUNCTION TO STOP BILL OF EXCHANGE.

In a motion for an injunction, the plaintiff cannot read affidavits to contradict the answer. Sommerville v. Buckler, 3 Aust. 658. EVID. AGST. ANSWER.

In support of motion for injunction on interpleading bill, affidavits of the facts may be read, as it is exactly on the footing of waste. Collusion not to be presumed against the affidavit of the plaintiff in interpleading bill; nor can counter affidavit prevail against it. Langston v. Boulston, 2 Ves. J. 101. PR. INTERPLEADER.

Injunction bill charging fraud in obtaining verdict, affidavits contradicting the answer, read in support of the injunction on the merits. Isaac v. Humpage, 1 Ves. J. 427. S. C. 3 Bro. C. C. 463. But this case is no authority; see 9 Ves. 356. PR. EVID.; AFFIDAVIT READ AGAINST ANSWER.

Affidavit for an injunction to stay trial need not be particular as to the discovery expected. Farrar v. Lewis, 2 Dick. 729.

Affidavit to the equity of an injunction bill, where the plaintiff at law is abroad, must accompany the motion for the subpoena. Delaney v. Wallis, 3 Bro. C. C. 12.

Affidavit of the merits must accompany motion for an injunction to stay proceedings where plaintiff at law is abroad, but need not accompany the application that service of the subpoena upon the attorney may be good service. Burke v. Vickers, il. 24.

On an application to extend the usual injunction to stay trial, an affidavit that the plaintiff had been advised by his counsel, and verily believed that he could not safely proceed at law without a discovery from the defendant of the several matters contained in the bill is sufficient. Hartley v. Hobson, 2 Cox, 117.

In order to obtain an injunction to stay waste, the affidavit must set out a particular title. Whitelegg v. Whitelegg, 1 Bro. C. C. 57.

In case of an injunction to stay waste, the court will, on the answer coming in, use its discretion whether it is to be continued till the hearing or not; and, in such cases, affidavits may be read. Pater v. Chapman, Ambl. 99. S. C. Dick. 146.

Affidavits allowed to be read for a patentee of a new invention, upon a motion to dissolve an injunction on the coming in of the answer. Gibbs v. Cole, 3 P. W. 255. S. C. Dick. 64.

Where an affidavit was made in order to obtain an injunction to restrain waste, the court thought the affidavit certain enough by reason of the reference it had to the bill. Bradly v. Stracky, Barn. 399.

(f) In support of bills of interpleader.

Affidavit, with interpleading bill, is conclusive of fact. Stevenson v. Anderson, 2 V. & B. 410. PR. EVID. WHAT IS.

As to the propriety of the affidavit to an interpleading bill, denying the knowledge of the defendants, quære. Id. ib.

To a bill of interpleader, there must be an affidavit annexed. Errington v. Att. Gen. Bun. 363. PRAC. REG. 79.

(g) In support of motions.

No affidavit is necessary to support a motion by a plaintiff in an interpleading suit for liberty to pay the money into court, and for an injunction. Walbank v. Sparkes, 1 Sim. 385. PR. INTERPLEADER; PR. PAYMT. INTO COURT.

Quære, whether it is necessary the affidavit in support of a motion for a commission to examine witnesses abroad in aid of an action at law, should state the names of the witnesses, or the points to which they are to be examined. Mendizabel v. Machado, 2 Russ. 540.

Where motion to amend, after answer, by adding party plaintiff, is of course, it must be on affidavit, showing the materiality of the amendment, and that fact on which it is founded came to plaintiff's knowledge after bill filed, and consent of such party to be made co-plaintiff should be produced and verified. Governors of Lutton School v. Scarlet, 13 Price, 54. S. C. 1 M'Clel. 17. PR. BILL, AMENDMENT AFTER ANSWER.

Motion to stay the execution of a writ of inquiry of damages, not supported by the ordinary affidavit upon a motion to stay trial, refused with costs. Rodenhurst v. Tydman, 1 Turn. & R. 305.

Motion to amend bill, after an order to dismiss for want of prosecution, and replication filed so as to retain bill, cannot be made on the statement of counsel, that the proposed amendment is a material one, there must be an affidavit thereof, and which motion was refused with costs. Phillips v. Stephenson, 9 Pri. 205.

Affidavits admitted after answer; to be read in support of a motion to pay purchase money into court. Bradshaw v. Bradshaw, 2 Mer. 492. PR. PAYMENT INTO COURT.

No objection to a motion that the affidavit was filed only the day before, if it is an affidavit that cannot be answered, as that the plaintiff cannot go to trial with safety until the answer comes in. Jones v. —, 8 Ves. 46.

Motion to examine witnesses de bene esse, except in certain cases, as upon the ground of age, requires notice. The affidavit must be, either that the witness is of the age of seventy, or the only witness to the particular fact, or if upon the ground of health in a dangerous state. Bellamy v. Jones, 8 Ves. 31. PR. NOTICE.

(h) On application to sue in formâ pauperis.

Affidavit of a party convicted of perjury admissible to enable him to sue as a pauper. Misconduct in a former cause, no ground for refusing a party liberty to sue as a pauper in another, for the subject before in dispute. Bowyer v. M'Evoy, 1 Ball & B. 56.

Affidavit that defendant is not worth more than 5*l.* except in matters in question, of which he had possession, will not entitle him to defend in formâ pauperis. Spencer v. Bryant, 11 Ves. 49.

The affidavit to ground the order to sue in formâ pauperis, must be by the party, not by a third person. Wilkinson v. Belsher, 2 Bro. C. C. 272.

(i) Of service.

Undertaking to appear to hear judgment given by solicitor of either of parties in a cause which has been set down, is not sufficient to make it unnecessary for the other party to prove service of subpoena to hear judgment upon such of those persons who ought to be before court, as are absent when cause it called on. Bishop v. Bishop, 9 Pri. 481. PR. UNDERTAKING TO APPEAR.

In the case, however, of information against a corporate body, an affidavit of indorsement of undertaking to appear at hearing, by solicitor of defendant on the writ of distringas, and another affidavit stating that on service of letter missive on bishop, his solicitors thought it unnecessary to appear for him: decree nisi was made in the absence of defendants. Att. Gen. v. Poor of Alverstoke, 9 Pri. 482. Ib.

Affidavit of personal service of petition must be filed before it can be read. Exp. North, 4 Mad. 395.

The affidavit of service of subpoena on bill filed for obtaining an injunction to stay process at law in the exchequer, served on attorney of plaintiff at law, must state positively, that neither the plaintiff in equity nor his attorney knew where to find defendant in equity, nor where he might be served with process, or it will be considered insufficient on motion for that purpose, however full it may be in all other respects. Jardine v. Hayes, 7 Pri. 239. SERVICE SUBSTITUTED.

The whole petition in bankruptcy should not be recited in affidavit of service; if done, costs ordered out of attorney's own pocket. Exp. Smith, 1 Atk. 139. PR. COSTS.

Affidavit must be made of service of subpoena on defendant to examine witnesses in perpet. memor.

before they are so examined. Hatcham v. Winshcombe, Cary, 34. S. P. Porter v. Baker, id. ib.

(j) On application for substituted service.

On injunction to stay proceedings, where defendant is abroad, motion, that service of subpoena on attorney of plaintiff at law may be deemed good, must be accompanied with affidavit, by plaintiff in equity, as to merits, and not by his solicitor, unless he has personal knowledge of merits. Kenworthy v. Accunor, 3 Mad. 550. PR. INJUNCT. TO STAY PROCS.

It is not necessary that the affidavit for an order, that service of the subpoena upon an injunction bill on the attorney at law, shall be good service, should state a previous application to the attorney, and refusal to accept service. French v. Roe, 13 Ves. 593.

Upon an injunction bill to stay proceedings at law, the defendant living abroad, a motion, that service of subpoena upon the attorney may be good service, requires an affidavit of merits. Stephen v. Cini, 4 Ves. 359.

(k) On obtaining writ ne exeat regno.

Ne exeat cannot be obtained on affidavit made before bill filed. Anon. 6 Mad. 76.

Writ of ne exeat regno discharged, as having issued improperly, on the affidavit of a plaintiff resident out of the jurisdiction in Scotland, sworn before a justice of the peace there; not positive, to be declared intention to leave the kingdom, or circumstances amounting to it, but only to information and belief of such intention; a defect not supplied by the avowal, in the defendant's affidavit, of his intention to return to his house of business in Jamaica; where alone he has the means of settling the account. Hyde v. Blitfield, 19 Ves. 342.

To support a ne exeat regno, which issues only on an equitable debt, as at law, to hold to bail, the affidavit must be positive, except that belief of the balance of an account, is sufficient. Id. ib.

Writ of ne exeat regno on affidavit, not by the plaintiff, to information and belief of intention to quit the kingdom, according to the nature of the information, as where received from persons of the defendant's family, that they were about to go to the isle of Man. Collinson v. —, 18 Ves. 354.

A writ of ne exeat regno, upon the current jurisdiction in account, though bail might be had at law, against a positive affidavit, the defendant's affidavit or evidence of the plaintiff's admission, that no debt is due, it will not avail. The affidavit of a threat or intention to go abroad must be positive, not upon information and belief. Jones v. Alepsin, 16 Ves. 470. JURISDICT.; ACCOUNT.

To obtain ne exeat, an affidavit to information and belief of intention to quit kingdom, or circumstances making it necessary, as an order for military officers to join their regiments abroad, is not sufficient. Hannay v. McIntyre, 11 Ves. 54.

The writ ne exeat regno, in its application to private transactions, is confined to cases of equitable debt. The affidavit must be as positive as an affidavit to hold to bail; "information and belief" being only admitted on matters of pure account as between partners and executors. The application for it should be as prompt as possible. Jackson v. Petrie, 10 Ves. 164.

Affidavit for ne exeat regno must state intention to go abroad; that defendant will hide himself is not sufficient; it must be positive, that he is going abroad, or to some declaration by himself (not a third person) that he so intends. Oldham v. Oldham, 7 Ves. 410. Etches v. Lance, 7 Ves. 417.

It is sufficient that debt be in danger, without stating that it is to avoid the jurisdiction. Etches v. Lance, 7 Ves. 417.

To obtain a writ of ne exeat regno, it is sufficient that the affidavit states, that the debt will be endangered, without alleging that the purpose of going abroad is to avoid the demand. Tomlinson v. Harrison, 8 Ves. 32.

Affidavit to support a writ of ne exeat regno must be positive. Roddam v. Hetherington, 5 Ves. 91.

The writ of ne exeat regno issued properly, the subject being matter of account. A general affidavit of belief of the defendant's intention to quit the kingdom is sufficient, without the circumstances upon which that belief is founded. Russell v. Ashy, 5 Ves. 96.

Writ of ne exeat regno refused, the affidavit amounting to no more than suspicion of the party's intention, and no precise sum sworn to as due. Sherman v. Sherman, 3 Bro. C. C. 370.

The affidavit to ground a writ of ne exeat regno must not only state, that the defendant is equitably indebted in a specific sum, but must mention the facts on which it arises, &c. Anon. 2 Ves. 489.

The affidavit for ne exeat regno must state positively that the defendant is indebted to the plaintiff in a sum certain, except it be a bill for an account, and then belief as to the amount of the balance is sufficient. Rico v. Gaultier, 3 Atk. 501. And see Roddam v. Hetherington, 5 Ves. 92.

(l) In support of application for commission to examine.

A general affidavit of having a material witness is not sufficient for a new commission, but the witness must be named in the affidavit, as also the point to which he is to be examined. Gen. Order, 1685, 1 Vern. 334.

On a bill by underwriters, for a commission to examine abroad, to prove the circumstances under which a ship had been condemned and sold, as not worth repair, the court held an affidavit of the plaintiff's solicitor, stating his information and belief that there were several witnesses abroad, whose testimony was necessary for the plaintiffs, to be sufficient, though it did not state any grounds for his belief. Robinson v. Sumner, 1 Y. & J. 578.

Motion for commission to examine abroad in aid of action at law, must be supported by affidavit, stating name of witness and points of examination. Mendezabel v. Machado, 2 S. & S. 483.

In affidavit, in support of commission to examine witnesses abroad, it is not necessary to state that applicant would have a good defence if he could procure evidence under such commission, or that there are necessary facts within their knowledge required by plaintiff to be proved on his defence. Woodhouse v. Boyd, 6 Price, 101.

Affidavit of insurance-broker, the agent of underwriters, sued on a policy, will not be received in support of commission to examine abroad, it should be made by party himself or his attorney. Bond v. Leigh, 5 Price, 444.

Upon a petition to expunge the proofs upon certain bills of exchange, an action had been directed to be brought against the bankrupts, to try the validity of the debts. A material witness being abroad, the court of common law put off the trial: it was ordered upon petition, that the bankrupt should be at liberty to file a bill for a commission to take the examination of the witness abroad. Exp. Coles, Buck. 293. Issue AT LAW.

The affidavit of the solicitor for the defendant will be received in support of a motion for commission to examine abroad, and it will be sufficient if he swear, that he is informed of, and believes, the statement in the bill; if he also add, that his belief is founded on documents in his possession, and that, from the nature of the defence, involving the question of what country the ship belongs to, he considers the commission necessary. Laraguthy v. At. Gen. 2 Price, 172.

It is not now the practice in chancery to insert direct direction in decree, that master is at liberty to examine witnesses, but master may certify that a commission is necessary, which then issues of course. Sandford v. Biddulph, 9 Ves. 36. PR. DECREE; PR. EXAM. IN MASTER'S OFFICE.

On a bill for an injunction, the court will not grant a commission to examine a witness in India, without a full affidavit of materiality. Moody v. Steele, 2 Anst. 386. INJUNCTION.

In order to obtain a commission to examine abroad, it is sufficient to state the name of the witness, that his evidence is material, and that he is abroad. Oldham v. Carleton, 4 Bro. C. C. 88.

Affidavit in support of commission to examine abroad, need not state that matter arose there. Akers v. Chaney, 2 Bro. C. C. 273.

(m) When necessary in other matters.

As a general rule the court requires, in all petitions, under acts of parliament for local improvements, &c. for payment of money out of court, that the parties applying shall, by affidavit, shortly verify their title, and state, that to their knowledge and belief, no other person has any title to, or claims any interest in, the estate. In re Fleet Market Improvement Act. Exp. Shears, 2 Y. & J. 493. PR. SUMMARY PROC. UNDER ACTS OF PARLIAMENT.

No affidavit is necessary to obtain an order, that child, a ward of court, shall not be taken out of the jurisdiction, even to Scotland. De Manneville v. De Manneville, 10 Ves. 56. WARD OF COURT.

Though against the same defendant, there must be affidavit in every cause, that he is not to be found. Lambrogo v. White, Dick, 150.

Motion for prohibition must be founded on affidavit, not suggestion. Corp. of Worcester v. Bennet, Dick, 143.

(n) When read against Answer.

On a motion for a receiver, the answer of a defendant, if a material co-defendant has not answered, must be regarded merely as an affidavit, and the plaintiff may read affidavits against it. Kershaw v. Matthews, 1 Russ. 361.

Affidavits in support of a motion, which the plaintiff is prevented from making, may be read, if the answer is not filed until the day for which the notice is given. Semble, Goodman v. Whitcomb, 1 Jac. & W. 589. PR. MOTION.

In moving for an injunction after answer, affidavits filed after the answer may be read in support of allegations in the bill, which are not noticed in the answer. Jeffreys v. Smith, id. 298. PR. MOTION FOR INJUNCTION.

Court will not in aid of motion, to prevent partner receiving, &c. debts, and for a receiver, permit plaintiff to use affidavit made and filed after coming in of answer; though in a case analogous to irreparable waste such affidavit made, &c. before answer, might be used. Lawson v. Morgan, 1 Price, Exch. 303. PR. INJUNCTION.

In injunction cases, no affidavit as to the title after answer. Platt v. Buton, 19 Ves. 447. PR. INJUNCTION.

In an injunction cause, affidavits admitted on motion against the answer, not on the title, but on questions of fact, as in the instance of waste, &c., and the original affidavit where the defendant having obtained time to file affidavits, instead of that puts in an answer. Morphett v. Jones, id. 350. PR. INJUNCTION; PR. ANSWER.

Affidavits not admitted on motion against the answer, except upon waste; and in a case of partnership, those filed originally with the bill for an injunction merely, as to the mismanagement or exclusion, not in support of title. Norway v. Rowe, id. 114.

In a motion for an injunction, the plaintiff cannot read affidavits to contradict the answer. Sommerville v. Buckler, 3 Anst. 658. INJUNCTION, AFFIDAVIT IN SUPPORT.

Injunction bill charging fraud on obtaining verdict, affidavits contradicting the answer read in support of the injunction on the merits. Isaac v. Humpage, 1 Ves. J. 427. S. C. 3 Bro. C. C. 463. But this case is no authority. See 9 Ves. 356.

Where an injunction to stay waste has been obtained on bill filed and affidavit, the defendant may immediately, on coming in of his answer, move to dissolve the injunction, without obtaining any order nisi; but then his answer can only be received as an affidavit, and the plaintiff may read affidavits in contradiction to it, and if afterwards, upon exceptions, the answer appear insufficient, the injunction shall be revived. Stratmore v. Bowes, 1 Cox, 263. PR. INJUNCTION TO STAY WASTE; PR. MOTION TO DISSOLVE INJUNCTION.

Affidavits allowed to be read for a patentee of a new invention, upon a motion to dissolve an injunction on the coming in of the answer. Gibbs v. Cole, 3 P. W. 255. PR. INJUNC.; AFFIDAVIT AGAINST MOTION TO DISSOLVE.

(o) Where to be received and read as Evidence.

Affidavits taken before notice of motion cannot be read on motion without notice of reading them, unless they are answered subsequent, and with reference to the notice of motion. Longman v. Tysan, Per V. C. 10th November 1829.

Affidavit verifying proceedings at law, not evidence, and taken off the file with costs. Exp. Barnes, 1 Mont. & M. 9. PR. TAKING PROCEEDINGS OFF FILE.

On a reference in a petition, under stat. 52 Geo. 3. c. 101. the master may receive affidavits in evidence. Exp. Greenhouse, 1 Swan. 60. PR. PETITION, CHANCERY; STATUTES, C. OF.

Affidavit of insurance broker, the agent of underwriters sued on a policy, will not be received in support of commission to examine abroad, it should be made by party himself or his attorney. Bonham v. Leigh, 5 Price, 444. PR. COMMISSION TO EXAMINE ABROAD.

Affidavits admitted, after answer, to be read in support of a motion to pay purchase money into court. Bradshaw v. Bradshaw, 2 Mer. 492. PR. MOTION TO PAY MONEY INTO COURT.

Where a vessel has been seized by the officers of the customs, on charges of offences against other acts of parliament than that usually called the navigation act, if, on the trial of the information filed thereon, the question be likely to turn on the fact of the ship belonging to a foreign subject, the court will, on motion (a bill having been filed against the attorney-general, for that purpose), grant the defendant a commission to examine persons residing abroad, and make it part of the order, that their depositions shall be received in evidence on the trial. The affidavit of the solicitor for the defendant will be received in support of such a motion; and it will be sufficient if he swear that he is informed of, and believes the statements in the bill, if he also add, that his belief is founded on documents in his possession, and that, from the nature of the defence involving the question of what country the ship belongs to, he considers the commission necessary. Larguivy v. Att. Gen. 2 Price, 172. PR. COMMISSION TO EXAMINE ABROAD.

Affidavits of defendant's illness and inability to put in answer, are admissible evidence on which to ground application to discharge process of contempt and receive answer, though the suit be instituted in Ireland, and the affidavits sworn in England; and though a decree has been taken pro confesso in consequence of contempt. Benson v. Vernon, 3 Bro. P.C. 626. PR. CONTEMPT.

Upon exceptions to master's report, affidavits made subsequent to it, cannot be read, notwithstanding the affidavits of the adverse party were filed but the evening before the report. Davis v. Davis, 2 Atk. 21. PR. EXCEPTIONS TO MASTER'S REPORT.

(p) Affidavit in reply.

No affidavit in reply shall be read before master, except as to new matter. 66th Gen. Ord. 3rd April, 1828. EVIDENCE BEFORE MASTER.

Affidavits in reply are only to be permitted in cases where new matter is introduced in the affidavits, answering the petition. Epp. Shayle, Buck, 244. BANKCY. PETITION.

- (b) What good against answer.
- (c) Effect of reading.

(a) When an answer may be read as evidence.

There being no issue joined between two co-defendants, the answer of one cannot be read against the other, even as to costs other than as a suggestion, on which court may direct an inquiry before master. Chervett v. Jones, 6 Mad. 267. CO-DEFENDANTS; COSTS.

On interpleader, the answer of one defendant may be read against the other. Bowyer v. Pritchard, 11 Price, 103. PR. INTERPLEADER.

Admission in the answer of a feme covert joining with her husband in answering the bill, will not be permitted to be read against her. Hodgson v. Merest, 9 Pri. 563. HUSB. & WIFE.

Personal answer of defendant to libel in ecclesiastical court, preserved among the records of the register, is admissible evidence in suit for tithes in exchequer by party claiming under same title as person whose title it was. Taylor v. Cook, 8 Price, 664.

On motion for injunction to stay proceedings at law, answer is evidence for defendant as to all facts to which other testimony could be received. Pott v. Birch, 4 Mad. 255. STAYING PROCEEDINGS AT LAW.

An answer by former rector to bill filed to establish modus of certain measure of meal, as to one farm, admitting that parish is exempt in consideration of a commutation of meal, is not only admissible, but strong evidence to prove a district modus. De W'helpdale v. Melburn, 5 Price, 485.

An answer may be looked at as more or less deserving of credit according as it more or less meets fairly the inquiries in the bill. Freeman v. Fairlie, 3 Mer. 42.

Answer, though not evidence in cause, may be read as to costs. Houell v. George, 1 Mad. 13. PR. COSTS.

Papers referred to by an answer, read as part of it. Marsh v. Sibbald, 2 V. & B. 376.

At law, a party producing a letter or other document in evidence, cannot use it partially, but makes the whole evidence. Boardman v. Jackson, 2 Ball & B. 386.

When the answer of a party in another cause is resorted to as evidence, the whole of it is admissible, both at law and in equity. Id. ib.

Answer to cross bill not allowed to be read, though the original bill and answer was read, there having been no further proceedings on cross bill and answer. Bennet v. Neale, Wightw. 325. PR. CROSS BILL.

Answer of one defendant not evidence against another; as to the answer of a mere trustee, against whom the plaintiff does not desire a personal decree, Qu.? Merse v. Royal, 12 Ves. 355.

Answer, purporting to be the answer of a minor by his mother and guardian, may be read against the mother in another cause where she is defendant in her own capacity. Beasley v. Magrath, 2 Scho. & L. 34.

Where injunction is obtained on absence of one defendant abroad, on motion to discharge the order, the answer of the other defendant cannot be read. St. John v. Cargill, 3 Anst. 993. PR. INJUNC. MOTION TO DISCHARGE.

The consequence arising from the answer being considered as an admission only, is, that the objection of its being res inter alios acta does not apply as in case of other legal proceedings; therefore in an action against B, the answer of A, his partner, to a bill filed against him by other creditors, was admitted as evidence of the facts stated in it. Grant v. Jackson, Peake's N.P. 203. So was the voluntary affidavit of one man who was jointly interested with another in an action brought against them both. Vicary's case, Gilb. Ev. 57.

On a bill for a discovery and injunction, the defendant (plaintiff at law) admitted himself to be a mere agent for the other defendants, and ignorant of the transaction; the other defendants lived abroad: an injunction was moved for as of course; but there appearing a danger of losing other material evidence by the delay, it was refused. Faulon v. Munro, 2 Anst. 602. PR. INJUNCTION.

Answer of one defendant not evidence against the rest. Jones v. Turberville, 2 Ves. J. 11. S.C. 4 Bro. C.C. 115.

If you read the confession of an agreement by answer, you must read all relative to the agreement. Popham v. Fyfe, Lofft. 789.

Seemle, the separate answer of a feme covert may be read against her. Le Neve v. Le Neve, 3 Atk. 648. And see Wrottesley v. Bendish, 3 P. W. 238. HUSB. & WIFE.

Answer of one defendant read as evidence to support plea of another defendant. Bennet v. Walker, Dick. 130.

An infant's answer cannot be given in evidence against him, because it is not the answer of the infant, but of the guardian who is sworn, and not the infant. Wrottesley v. Bendish, 3 P. W. 237. INFANT.

But where a defendant put in an answer to a bill brought by an infant, who did not reply to it, in such case the answer was taken to be true in regard to the defendant, for want of a replication, defendant was deprived of an opportunity of examining witnesses to prove his answer, and he ought not to suffer for such omission in the plaintiff. S.C. id. note, sed quare.

Baron and feme defendants to a bill, the feme must answer, though the answer cannot be read against the husband, but may probably be read against her if she survives. But in no case is a feme bound to answer to a bill subjecting her to forfeiture, though the husband has submitted to answer. Id. 238. S.P. 2 Ch. Ca. 39. 173. HUSB. & WIFE.

Answer of defendant not brought to hearing, read as evidence against another defendant at hearing. Pitt v. Willis, Dick. 24.

Answer may be read in support of demurrer. Heath v. Lake, id. 43.

Where one defendant in answer assigns a cause for his ignorance, and refers to answer of co-defendant for truth of the matters, the latter's answer may be read against the former. Anon. 1 P. W. 300.

The answer of superannuated person put in by guardian shall be read against him as an answer of one of full age. Socus, of an infant who is to have a day to shew cause. Lering v. Caverley, Prec. Chan. 229. NATURAL INCAPACITY.

Upon an appeal from the rolls, it was objected to the evidence of a witness examined in the cause, and read at the former hearing, that he had since, by answer to a bill, exhibited against him, confessed, that on the day he was examined, the plaintiff gave him a bond that, if he recovered the land in question, he would convey part of it to the witness. By the opinion of the Id. Keeper, assisted by two judges, this answer was ordered to be read. Needham v. Smith, 2 Vern. 463.

Bill for a legacy against baron and feme who was executrix of testator; defendants answer, and witnesses are examined and publication passed. Husband dies. No abatement, and the wife shall be bound by the answer and depositions; but it might be otherwise if the wife's inheritance was in question. Shelberry v. Briggs, 2 Vern. 249. Sed quare, see Anon. id. 197. HUSB. & WIFE; PR. ABATEMENT & REVISION.

Nothing, in answer of guardian, can be read against the ward. Leigh v. Ward, 2 Vent. 72. GUARD. & WARD.

A man's answer in the spiritual court may be read against him in this court. Mildmay v. Mildmay, 1 Vern. 53.

Where, on a bill brought by A against B, C and D, and others, the defendants had examined some witnesses, that B being now plaintiff, may read those depositions against the plaintiff or any of the defendants in the first cause. Barstow v. Palmes, Prec. Chan. 233.

The defendant, by answer, accuses himself, and his co-defendants: is believed against himself, but not against his fellows. Mitchell v. Webb, Toth. 10.

(b) What good against answer.

See PR. AFFIDAVITS, 14.

A plaintiff may read evidence to disprove an allegation contained in a passage of the defendant's answer which he had read. Price v. Lytton, 3 Rus. 206.

On motion for injunction, affidavits filed before answer may be read; when plaintiff, by saving notice of motion till future day, enabled defendant to file his answer before motion was made. Glassington v. Thwaites, 1 S. & S. 134. PR. AFFIDAVITS; PR. INJUNCTION; MOTION; PR. NOTICE.

Affidavits admitted on motion after answer for an injunction and receiver, in the case of partnership by analogy to waste. Peacock v. Peacock, 16 Ves. 49. PR. INJUNCTION, AFFIDAVITS AFTER ANSWER.

Defendant cannot offer evidence to disprove an admission in his answer. E. I. Comp. v. Keighley, 4 Mad. 16.

Specific performance of a parol agreement to grant a lease, decreed on the testimony of one witness, confirmed by circumstances, against the denial in the answer, after part performance by delivery of possession. Morphet v. Jones, 1 Swau, 172. SPEC. PERF.

Affidavits not admitted on motion against the answer except upon waste, and in case of partnership; those filed originally with the bill for an injunction, merely as to the mismanagement or exclusion, not in support of title. Norway v. Rowe, 19 Ves. 144. PR. AFFIDAVITS.

A single witness cannot prevail against the answer unless confirmed by circumstances. Savage v. Brook-sopp, 18 Ves. 336.

Answer read as evidence contrasted with the other evidence not for the purpose of discrediting it. Id. ib.

Single witness not corroborated, not sufficient against positive denial by the answer. Cooke v. Clayworth, 18 Ves. 12.

Parol evidence of one witness, unsupported by other evidence, not sufficient to found a decree. Dawson v. Massey, 1 Ball & B. 234.

Lease not decreed upon expenditure in repairs and improvements under an alleged agreement proved by one witness; the answer containing a positive denial of the agreement was also confirmed by circumstances. Pilling v. Armitage, 12 Ves. 78. LEASE; AGREEMENT.

One witness with corroborating circumstances admitted against an answer. Biddulph v. St. John, 2 Sch. & L. 532.

Decree made upon evidence of single witness against positive contradiction of the answer, containing circumstances giving greater credit to the depositions, the defendant declining an issue, otherwise it would not be made thereon. E. I. Comp. v. Donald, 9 Ves. 275. S. C. 1 Smith, 213.

Specific execution of a parol agreement for a lease for three lives proved by one witness, refused, the answer admitting an agreement for one life only, supported by the testimony of one witness, and not inconsistent with the evidence of part performance by plaintiff. Lindsay v. Lynch, 2 Scho. & L. 1. SPEC. PERF.

Evidence of single witness not sufficient against answer of defendant. Feans v. Bicknell, 6 Ves. 174.

A single witness is not sufficient against the answer of defendant, except under special circumstances. Cooth v. Jackson, 6 Ves. 40.

A single witness cannot prevail against a positive denial by the answer. Ld. Cranston v. Johnston, 3 Ves. 171.

Notwithstanding the statute and decree, 37 Hen. 8. c. 12. the court of chancery has jurisdiction upon the subject of tithes in London. An account was decreed according to the improved rent. Another defendant, setting forth his lease at a low rent and a fine, and alleging by answer, that he had never heard of any greater rent being paid, there being no evidence against it, was held liable only according to that rent. St. Paul's, Warden, &c. of, v. Crickett, 2 Ves. J. 563. JURISDICTION; TITHES IN LONDON.

Plaintiff cannot have a decree on the testimony of one witness contradicted by the answer of one defendant. Mortimer v. Orchard, 2 Ves. J. 243.

The answer to a bill for an account of tithes, having insisted upon what was equivalent to a prescription in deuando, and defendants' evidence going to the same point, the court will not permit the evidence to be read to support a different defence, viz. a presumption, that the tithes had been granted to the owner. Nash v. Thom, 2 Cox, 197.

Affidavits read against the answer in support of an injunction to stay waste. Sratmore v. Bowes, 2 Bro. C. C. 88. PR. INJUNCTION TO STAY WASTE.

There being but one witness against answer, court directed an issue. Pemby v. Mathew, Dick. 550. S. C. 1 Bro. C. C. 52.

No decree for a plaintiff in equity on the evidence only of one witness in contradiction to defendant's positive answer. Glynn v. Bank of England, 2 Ves. 38.

Though one witness not sufficient against a distinct denial by answer, the latter must be precise and positive. Arnot v. Biscoe, 1 Vcs. 95.

Where the evidence of a single witness against a negative in defendant's answer is corroborated by a great number of circumstances, it is sufficient to support an equity. Janson v. Rany, 2 Atk. 140.

Single witness against defendant's answer on oath not sufficient for decree. Speed v. Martin, 2 Com. 587.

The rule that a decree cannot be made, where there is but one witness, applies only where the answer of the defendant is equally strong in opposition to such evidence. Walton v. Hobbs, 2 Atk. 19.

Where there is a single witness against the defendant's oath, this is not sufficient evidence for a decree, nor will the court direct a trial at law. Christ's Col. Camb. v. Widdrington, 2 Vern. 283.

One witness against the defendant's answer not sufficient to ground a decree. Kingdome v. Boukes, Prec. Chan. 19.

A decree, whereby the defendant was concluded by the plaintiff's own oath, reversed. Plompin v. Betts, 1 Vern. 272. PR. DECREE, REVERSAL OF.

There being but one witness against what was sworn in the defendant's answer, the plaintiff can have no decree. Alum v. Jourdan, 1 Vern. 161.

(c) Reading answer.

Where a passage read by a plaintiff from an answer refers to another passage, that other passage is to be read only for the purpose of explaining or qualifying the thing in respect of which the reference is made, and not for the purpose of introducing new facts, which do not explain or qualify that thing, though such new facts be connected in grammatical construction with that which must be read. Bartlett v. Gillard, 3 Russ. 149.

The answer of a peer upon his protestation of honour may be read on the question of costs. Dawson v. Ellis, 1 Jac. & W. 524. PEER; COSTS.

As to how far plaintiff is concluded by reading answer of defendant. Kempson v. Yorke, 3 Price, 16.

Where the answer to a bill for discovery only is used as evidence, the whole must be read. Ly. Ormond v. Hutchinson, 13 Vcs. 47. affirmed, 16 Vcs. 94.

Where relief is prayed, and the answer replied to, the plaintiff reading admission must proceed to the completion of the immediate subject to which the defendant is answering according to the course of evidence at law; but this does not apply to distinct matter. Id. ib.

13. Bills generally, and where taken pro confesso.

Bill taken pro confesso shall be read in evidence as an answer admitting the facts. 45 Geo. 3. c. 124. s. 6. PR. BILL PRO CONFESSO.

Where a bill has been amended, the amended bill is the only one upon record: the original bill, therefore, cannot be read as evidence to prove what a plaintiff considered his right to be at the time of filing it. Hales v. Pomfret, Dan. 141. PR. AMENDED BILL.

Cross bill taken pro confesso ordered, on motion, to be read at hearing of original cause. Cory v. Gertchen, 2 Mad. 43. PR. CROSS BILL.

Bill in another cause allowed to be read at hearing, as corroborating circumstance to prove stale demand. Hundeside v. Brown, Dick. 236.

Bill in chancery may be read as evidence in equity. Metcalf v. Ives, 1 Atk. 63.

14. Taken on bill to perpetuate.

See also MARRIAGE, II.—PR. COSTS, 10. (ff)

Court will not order copies of depositions taken to perpetuate testimony of witnesses to be delivered out for purpose of perfecting title to an estate, even where witnesses are dead. Teale v. Teale, 1 S. & S. 385. PR. PUBLICATION.

Depositions on bill to perpetuate, not published in the life of the witness, except on incapacity to travel, by sickness, &c.: such orders, except in the exceptional cases, proceeding on affidavit of the death of the witness, some expressly declaring that the depositions of the other witnesses shall not be read. Morrison v. Arnold, 19 Vcs. 670. Id.

Publication of deposition of witness who is dead taken on bill to perpetuate, may be moved for as of course. Bourne v. Bligh, 1 Price, 307. PR. PUBLICATION; PR. MOTION OF COURSE.

15. Copies.

See also PR. COPIES.

Copies of the books of the bank of England are evidence; but, upon a question whether the signature to a transfer is the genuine handwriting, the book must be produced. Auriol v. Smith, 13 Vcs. 198.

An attested copy of the memorial of the assignment of a judgment is evidence of the fact of the assignment: so the attested copy of the memorial of the registry of a deed, is evidence of the fact of the registry; but if the memorial be used as evidence of the contents of the deed, the original must be produced. Hobhouse v. Hamilton, 1 Scho. & L. 207.

The defendants producing the lease for a year, and a copy of the release, the original not being forthcoming, the bill was retained, with liberty to bring an ejectment, and, in default, the bill to be dismissed with costs. Snell v. Silcock, 5 Vcs. 469. PR. RETAINING BILL; LEASE & RELEASE.

If the office copies of the pleadings or proofs necessary to be read for one party, on hearing of a cause, be not signed by the proper officer, the cause must stand over, on payment of 5*l.* cost for the day's attendance to the other party. Att. Gen. v. Milward, 1 Cox, 437. PR. COSTS.

A settlement under which plaintiffs claimed being lost, but having been proved in chancery by plaintiffs themselves thirty years ago, when they were not concerned in interest, though they were since entitled by that deed. Ordered, that a copy of the deed should be admitted to be read at law, and also that plaintiff's depositions should be read to prove the deed, although they now claim under it. Ly. Holsely v. Sigill, 2 Freem. 259.

Office copy of bill cannot be read as evidence, if original is not on file, though officer of court is ready to prove that the original cannot be found amongst the records. Irwin v. Simpson, 7 Bro. P. C. 317.

Where an original note is lost, and a copy of it is offered in evidence, you must show sufficient probability that the original note was genuine, before you will be allowed to read the copy. Goodier v. Lake, 1 Atk. 446. DEBTS LOST.

Plaintiff producing a copy of sequestration only, on motion to take bill pro confesso, court refused it; but sequestration not being under seal, or executed, was held no objection. Anon. 10 Mod. 431. PR. BILL PRO CONFESSO; PR. SEQUESTRATION.

Copies of a note, bill of sale, and stated account, if attended with concurring circumstances of undeniable credit, will be admitted as evidence. Lloyd v. Wynne, 2 Bro. P. C. 377.

Copy of a note taken by one who had been entrusted with the note, and was since dead, under which was written an acknowledgment that nothing was due, allowed to be read as evidence, though not proved to be a true copy, and though the defendant had sworn there was no such acknowledgment under the note, it appearing, when the note was produced, that the bottom of it was torn off. S. C. 2 Vern. 603. FRAUD; SPOILATION OF DEEDS.

A copy of a deed to lead the uses of a fine, and enrolled for safe custody only, allowed to be read as evidence at a trial at law. Combes v. Spencer, 2 Vern. 471. Semble, S. C. id. 691. PR. ISSUE AT LAW.

Abstract of deed is no evidence, and much less an attested copy of such abstract. El. Peterborough v. Germaine, 3 Bro. P. C. 539. ABSTRACT.

The court refused to order copies of depositions to be recorded and exemplified, where the original had had been lost, and in trials at law, subsequent to the dismissal of the suit, the witnesses had sworn contrary to their depositions. Brabant v. Perne, 2 C. R. 36. PR. DEPOSITIONS, LOSS OF.

16. Taken in other courts.

* Court will not, on motion, order depositions in *the cause in exchequer, to be read in a title cause in this court, against other occupiers of land in some parishes, though objects of both suits, and the interest of parties were the same. Goodenough v. Alway, 2 S. & S. 481.

The court allowed an affidavit, sworn before a commissioner of the court of exchequer in Ireland, to be read. Kilby v. Stanton, 2 Y. & J. 75.

Examination in the admiralty court used in the court of chancery. Watkins v. Fursland, Toth. 192.

Examination in chancery may be used before the delegates. Gargrave v. —, 2 C. C. 250.

Acts of the court as a decree, or order in another cause between the same parties, may be read without an order. Brooks v. Taylor, Mos. 188.

Proofs in an original cause not allowed to be read on a bill of review. Moseley v. Maynard, 2 C. R. 18. PR. BILL OF REVIEW, EVID. ON.

The probate of a will cannot be read in case of a real estate, if the defendant admits merely that he believes there is in such a will, secus if the admission is full. Mullins v. Pratt, Bun. G. WILL, PROBATE OF, WHERE EVIDENCE.

Depositions taken in court of council of York, not allowable in chancery. Rex v. Countess of Arundel, Hob. 112.

17. Decisions of other courts.

Sentence of ecclesiastical court held admissible, but not conclusive evidence on non-reconciliation between husband and wife. Bateman v. Cs. Ross, 1 Dow. 235.

Sentence in ecclesiastical court for fornication, &c. in a criminal way, not evidence against the issue; otherwise, if on the point of the marriage, and no collusion. Brownsword v. Edwards, 2 Ves. 245.

Decree at Loughorn allowed to be read as evidence. Harron v. Jameneau, Dick. 48.

An exemplification of a sentence in Holland under the common seal of the States, may be read in evidence in a suit in chancery. Anon. 9 Mod. 66. FOREIGN SENTENCE.

18. Evidence of one defendant read against the other.

Depositions of one defendant not read in favour of another, where the former is at all concerned in interest, or a decree can be made against him; such objection is wholly as to his incompetency. Dixon v. Barker, 2 Ves. 219.

Though a plaintiff at law is not allowed to examine any defendant as a witness, one defendant may there examine a co-defendant. In equity a plaintiff may examine a defendant, and defendant a co-defendant; but then it is on a suggestion that the party is not interested, and saving all just exceptions from the nature of the suit, &c. or in case of there being any material evidence against him, &c. Id. ib.

Where one defendant is charged with fraud, his depositions cannot be read for another, as it may tend to excuse him with regard to his own costs. Eade v. Lingard, 1 Atk. 204.

Depositions of one defendant may be read for another, and for the plaintiff likewise; but if the defendant, who is offered in evidence for another defendant, may, by any possibility, be liable to costs, this is always a reason for refusing his evidence, because he is interested so far as to be swearing to excuse himself. Barret v. Gore, 3 Atk. 402.

19. Decree in former cause.

Decree professing to establish customs of tithing, and modes of payment, some of which are obviously not legal moduses, founded on agreements not ratified by ordinary and patron, and not on bona fide adverse suit, to establish moduses, and pronounced in cause to which the ordinary and patron were not parties, is not conclusive on church or court. Jenkinson v. Royston, 5 Price, 496.

On plea, sentence in ecclesiastical court, ex directo, in a matter properly cognizable there, is conclusive evidence where the same matter comes in question collaterally in a court of law or equity. Meadows v. Ds. of Kingston, Amb. 756.

Decree in a former cause between the same parties read as evidence, though not conclusive: so also of depositions in a cause which had settled the rights of all as under a decree for performance of trusts. Askew v. Poulterer's Comp., 2 Ves. 89.

Decree of court of chancery determining matter of right, is good evidence of that right, as to all persons claiming under party against whom decree was made, though at the distance of 100 years afterwards. Borough v. Whichcote, 3 Bro. P. C. 595.

20. Taken in another cause, &c. or matter.

Office copies of depositions by living persons in a title suit in the exchequer, may be read in a similar suit in this court, against another defendant, who makes the same defence, on production of office copies of the bill and answer in the former suit, without any order of this court for that purpose. Williams v. Broadhead, 1 Sim. 151.

If a bill is amended, by adding parties, after witnesses have been examined, their depositions cannot be read against the new parties. Pratt v. Barker, 1 Sim. 1. PR. BILL AMENDMENT.

Court cannot direct a new trial of issue, on ground of evidence adduced on former trial, where that evidence was a surprise on the other party, and tended to defeat the intention of the court in directing the former issue. Carrington v. Jones, 2 S. & S. 135. NEW TRIAL; PR. ISSUE AT LAW.

After witnesses examined upon original bill, amended bill was filed against new parties, some infants; court will not allow evidence taken on the original bill, to be read against new defendants, the infants. Quantock v. Bullen, 5 Mad. 81. INFANT.

On petition to expunge debt of C, examination of witness on former occasion as to a debt sought to be proved by A, cannot be read. Exp. Coles, 3 Mad. 315. Buck, 242. S. C. BANKCY. EXPUNGING PROOF.

Depositions in cross cause taken after publication of those in principal cause, not admissible in evidence on hearing of the latter. Taylor v. Obee, 3 Price, 83. PR. CROSS CAUSE.

The commission and proceedings are inadmissible evidence of an act of bankruptcy, for the purpose of defeating a conveyance. Whitworth v. Graham, 2 Rose, 364.

A decree between co-defendants, grounded on pleadings and proofs, between plaintiff and defendant, is regular. Chumley v. Ld. Dunsany, 2 Scho. & L. 718.

The proceedings under a commission of bankruptcy, superseded, ordered to be produced at the hearing of a cause, in the court of chancery in Ireland, with a view to evidence, from the bankrupt's examination; but not of course. Exp. Bernal, 11 Ves. 557.

Semble on bill for relief; the evidence taken may be read as evidence of reputation against persons not parties to suit; but secus on bill to perpetuate only. Bidleford v. Partridge, 3 Anst. 646.

Where a fact is put in issue by the original cause, and evidence examined to it, no evidence can be adduced upon that fact upon a supplemental bill; neither will equity assist a party to make out a different case upon a second trial at law, upon that which he made upon the first. Cockburn v. Hussey, 2 Ridgw. P. C. 504. PR. SUPPLEMENTAL BILL.

Depositions in cross cause allowed on motion to be read on the account directed in original cause, though the cross bill was dismissed. Lubiere v. Genon, 2 Ves. 379.

An order made to read the proceedings taken in one cause, in another, must be between the same parties. Fade v. Lingood, 1 Atk. 204.

Evidence in the cross cause concerning the matters in issue in the original cause, not allowed to be read after a decree in that cause; otherwise, as to the depositions in the cross cause, not relating to the matters put in issue in the original. Walford v. Beuseley, 3 Atk. 501. PR. CROSS CAUSE.

Depositions in former cause between different parties cannot be used as to credit of witness. Muckworth v. Penrose, Dick. 50.

Affidavit before master extraordinary in Ireland read in court, but affidavit from plantations not, unless under seal of the island. Annesley v. El. of Anglesey, id. 90.

Where a party in a first cause has examined a great number of witnesses to establish a particular point, the court will never suffer him in a second to contradict what he attempted to prove in the first. Bennet v. Ler, 2 Atk. 531.

Depositions taken in a former cause, where neither plaintiff nor defendant were parties, cannot be read as evidence, but where either plaintiff or defendant was a party in the former cause, the depositions in that cause may be read against such of them as was a party. El. Peterborough v. Germaine, 3 Bro. P. C. 539.

Depositions of witnesses taken in former causes, relating to same matter for which new suit is instituted against another party, ought to be permitted to be read as evidence upon the hearing of such new cause, although the witnesses themselves are not proved to be dead. City of London v. Perkins, 3 Bro. P. C. 602.

A witness examined at a former trial of an issue between the same parties, and who has been examined in the cause, in case he dies, not only his depositions may be read, but what he swore at the former trial, may be given in evidence. Coker v. Farewell, 2 P. W. 563.

The creditors of L obtain a decree for payment of their debts, and to set aside some conveyances gained by fraud, and S and the legatees are made defendants.

The legatees having brought their bill against S, the question was, if the depositions in the former cause, touching the fraud, could not be read in this: Held, the question being the same in both causes, and S's defence the same, the depositions ought to be read. Nevil v. Johnson, 2 Vern. 447.

Depositions taken in a cause wherein tenant in tail, or the father, is only tenant for life; remainder to the son, cannot be read against the son. Peterborough v. Norfolk, Prec. Chan. 212. REM.-MAN.

Depositions taken in a former cause cannot be read in another cause against one who does not claim under the party against whom those depositions were taken. But if a legatee brings a bill against the executor, and proves assets, another legatee, though no party, may have the benefit of those depositions. Coke v. Fountain, 1 Vern. 413. PRIVITY OF TITLE.

If the cause is brought into a hearing, and stands over, with liberty to add a party, if he is a material defendant, and concerned in interest, the depositions taken before cannot be read against him. Nebbet v. Daniel, Bun. 310.

Depositions taken on a bill of revivor afterwards dismissed upon the ground that the party had no title to revive, cannot be read; otherwise, if the bill had been dismissed for want of equity merely. Backhouse v. Middleton, 1 C. C. 173. 3 C. R. 39. 2 Freem. 132.

Depositions in a former cause in chancery admitted to be read upon motion, the same matter being then under examination as now, though neither the plaintiff nor any under whom he claimed, was privy to the former suit. Terwit v. Gresham, 1 C. C. 73.

Depositions of a witness made in another cause, or another court, may be read for the purpose of confronting his evidence, and without any order of court. Anon. Mos. 118.

Depositions in the original cause not permitted to be read in the cross cause, because the point in issue in the cross cause, was not in issue in the original cause. Christian v. Wrenn, Bun. 321.

Depositions taken in court of council of York not allowable in chancery. Rex v. Cs. of Arundel, Hob. 112.

Depositions taken without bill or answer, not allowable in chancery. Id. ib.

21. Deeds, proof of, and loss of deeds.

Permission to exhibit an interrogatory, as to the loss of a deed omitted to be proved by mistake, given to the plaintiff at the hearing under the circumstances. Cox v. Attingham, 1 Jac. 337. PR. PUBLICATION.

After thirty years, handwriting of letter need not necessarily be proved, where letter affords intrinsic evidence of its authenticity; where there was no direction to such letter prima facie, it must be intended to have been written to the party among whose papers it was found. Fenwick v. Read, 6 Mad. 7. LENGTH OF TIME; HANDWRITING.

Exception to the rule, against reading affidavits in support of the common injunction, extends only to documents of which the defendant is ignorant, not to facts and circumstances. Barrett v. Tickell, 1 Jac. 157. INJUNC. AFFIDAVIT IN SUPPORT.

When secondary evidence of the contents of a deed is admissible. Puckhurst v. Lowton, 2 Swan. 213.

A recital in a deed, executed in 1739, that by a separate deed in 1703, A declared he was seized of the freehold of lands in trust for B, to whom he had on the same day granted a lease of the same lands for one thousand years, is not evidence of the contents of the deed declaring the trust, neither is the receipt of a master, acknowledging such deed to have been lodged with him, evidence of its contents, though it may of its existence. Kelly v. Power, 2 Ball & B. 236.

The production of a paper, purporting to be an attested copy, may, with other evidence, have considerable weight. Ward v. Garbons, 17 Ves. 140.

Decree for raising money under deed of appointment, though the only copy produced appeared not executed; upon recitals of it in two settlements as a subsisting effectual deed, and evidence from books of a deceased solicitor, of charges for the preparation and execution of it. Skipwith v. Shirley, 11 Ves. 64. POWER, EXECUTION OF.

Where deed is wilfully destroyed, every thing is to be presumed against the party in odium spoliatoris, and therefore, parol evidence of the person who prepared the draft, though at the distance of several years, is admissible to prove the general contents of it. Delany v. Tenison, 3 Bro. P. C. 659. SPOILIATION.

The contents of a deed destroyed, and the destruction of it admitted to be proved. Saltern v. Melhuish, Amb. 247.

Where deed is destroyed, in order to have benefit of it, the contents of it must be proved. Id. ib.

Acknowledgment of sealing and delivery, not sufficient evidence thereof. Grayson v. Wilkinson, Dick. 158.

But otherwise of signature. Id. ib.

The best evidence to be given the nature of the thing admits. Cole v. Gibson, 1 Ves. 505.

All deeds, &c. must be proved, unless in the hands of adverse party, or destroyed, then parol evidence of contents allowed. Id. ib.

On loss of a deed, &c. the same rule of evidence here as at law. Loss of a deed can only be made out by circumstances. The destruction of a deed, &c. by affidavit. Askew v. Poultner's Comp. 2 Ves. 89.

Evidence the same here as at law on a casual destruction of deeds; but otherwise where a spoliation. Cookes v. Heltier, 1 Ves. 235. SPOILIATION.

A deed lost may be proved by circumstances, first shewing that it once existed, and next that it is lost or cannot be come at. Whitfield v. Fausett, 1 Ves. 389.

Evidence may be given at law of a lost deed; sed secus of a bond lost for a profect in curia must be made. Snellgrove v. Pailley, 3 Atk. 214.

Evidence necessary as to finding deeds after a decree, is such only as court thinks reasonable. Lewellen v. Macewanth, 2 Atk. 40. S. C. Barn. 445.

The abstract of a deed is no evidence, and much less an attested copy of such abstract. El. Peterborough v. Germaine, 3 Bro. P. C. 539. ABSTRACT; COPY.

Where the deed creating a rent was lost, so that it could not appear what sort of rent it was, a bill was sustained for payment of twelve years' arrears, upon proof that it had been constantly paid before that time. Collet v. Jaques, 1 Ch. Ca. 120.

Deed lost; person swearing he saw the deed, not sufficient, he must swear he saw it sealed and delivered. Cary, 31.

22. Where admitted to expound deeds.

In ascertaining the meaning and effect of a charter, contemporaneous documents, proceedings in causes relating to it, and parol testimony may be resorted to, in order to explain and give to the charter a construction, but not to contradict it. Pierrepont v. Scarlet, 2 Y. & J. 330. CHARTER, C. OF.

A grant of an annuity to the grantor's sister, though expressed to be made for natural love and affection, may be proved to have been made in consideration of her marriage, and will entitle her to rank as a specialty creditor of the grantor. Tanner v. Byne, 1 Sim. 160. CONSIDERATION.

Construction of a contract; that a reference of the expenses was confined to expence of the conveyance; but the evidence of the attorney was admitted for the defendant to prove the intention of both parties, according to verbal instructions that the plaintiff, the purchaser, should also pay the expence of making out the defendant's title. Ramsbottom v. Goslen, 1 V. & B. 165. VEND. & PURCH.

Whatever is wanting to shew the consideration, and from whom it moves, may be supplied by evidence dehors the deed, where such evidence does not contradict the deed. Hartopp v. Hartopp, 17 Ves. 192. DEED, C. OF.

Parol evidence, in aid of a specific performance upon the sale of the estate by auction, to explain by declarations of the auctioneer, an ambiguity on the face of the particular, by a general claim for a separate valuation of the timber, and also special provisions as to the timber upon certain lots, the agreement, signed on the back of the particular, binding the purchaser, defendant, "to a strict fulfilment of this article, and to abide by the condition and declarations made at the sale," rejected: distinction, where evidence is to resist a specific performance. Higginson v. Clowes, 15 Ves. 516. SPEC. PERF.

Though a paper, as the particular upon a sale by auction, may by reference be engrafted into a contract within the statute of frauds, that will not authorise the introduction of parol evidence to shew what part was read. Id. 522.

Though defendant resisting specific performance, may go into evidence to show that by fraud the true terms were not expressed in the written agreement, yet plaintiff cannot do so for the purpose of obtaining specific performance with a variation of the contract. Woolam v. Hearn, 7 Ves. 211. SPEC. PERF.

Under a power to appoint among several subjects, each must have a share, and by the rule in equity, as to illusory appointment, a substantial share, unless a good reason appears as another provision, by the person executing the power; not from any other quarter. Under such a power, an appointment of a fund, nearly 1900*l.* among three children, the objects, 10*l.* to one, 50*l.* to another, and the remainder to the third, all having other provisions alimunde, was set aside as illusory. Evidence, that an appointment was improperly obtained, being executed by a will regularly proved, was rejected. Kemp v. Kemp, 5 Ves. 849. POWER, ILLUSORY EXECUTION OF.

Declaration of a party to a deed, previous to the execution, admitted in support of the deed, against imputations of fraud. Declarations subsequent, impeaching the deed, were rejected. Conolly v. Lal. Howe, 5 Ves. 700. FRAUD.

Testator by codicil, in 1796, reciting that he had devised his real estate by his last will, dated 25th November, 1752, charged his real estates with his debts and legacies given by the codicil, and appointed executors; bill was by devisees of the real estate, under another will, 1756, one of whom was a legatee in the codicil, stating that the will of 1756 was executed in pursuance of an agreement to make mutual wills; that the testator by the death of the other party, was bound, if not in law, in honour, and did not mean to revoke the will of 1756, and revive that of 1752, and praying that the will of 1756, and the codicil might be established, the trusts carried into execution, and the legacy paid. Upon an issue directed, the will of 1752 was established, evidence of mistake being rejected. On further directions, the plaintiffs relied on the agreement, and offered evidence in support of it; bill was dismissed; Ld. Ch. being of opinion, that the relief sought was inconsistent with the frame of the bill, and therefore could not be given under the general prayer; that the evidence ought not to be received; and that upon the evidence, the agreement was uncertain and unfair, and therefore not to be executed. Ld. Walpole v. Ld. Orford, 3 Ves. 402. SPEC. PERF.; PL. UNCERTAINTY.

Evidence to prove the intention of the parties to a settlement, refused. Brydges v. Dr. Chandos, 2 Ves. J. 417.

Settlement, on marriage, of stock belonging to the wife in trust, after death of the wife, if the husband survived, for him for life; if no issue, the whole to revert in the wife with power of appointment, if none, to her next of kin; the wife eloped and lived in adultery. On the bill of the husband to have the dividends paid to him during their joint lives, evidence of such intent, or that they should be to the separate use of the wife, refused; but held to belong to the husband for the mutual support of both: decreed that the costs, and also the expenses of the husband in a groundless suit instituted against him by the wife in the ecclesiastical court, should be paid out of the accumulation, and the only surviving trustee appearing not to be indifferent, that the future dividends should be paid into court. Bull v. Montgomery, 2 Ves. J. 191. 4 Bro. C. C. 339. ADULTERY; HUSB. & WIFE; PR. COSTS.

Under certain circumstances parol evidence is admissible to explain the nature of an agreement in writing, and to shew the conduct of the parties concerning it. Eden v. El. Bute, 3 Bro. P. C. 670. AC. SETTLEMENT.

Purchase by A, and receipt in his name, evidence admitted to prove trust for B. Knight v. Pechy, Dick. 327.

Estate settled on marriage upon the husband and wife for their lives, remainder to such child or children as the husband with the consent of the trustees should appoint, and in default of appointment to the first and other sons in tail; the father, with the consent of the surviving trustee, appointed to his youngest son. Bill by the eldest son to set aside the appointment for misrepresentation and imposition on the trustee; the trustee's evidence was read to prove the imposition; but the father's evidence to prove no misrepresentation or imposition, was rejected. Scroggs v. Scroggs, Amb. 272. FRAUD; WITNESS, COMPETENCY OF.

Where any consideration is mentioned in a deed, and not said for other considerations, proof of any other cannot be given; otherwise where no consideration at all in the deed. Peacock v. Monk, 1 Ves. 128. CONSON.

Plaintiff having prevented the fulfilment of an agreement in favour of the defendant, M, for purchasing the assignment of a mortgage, by obtaining himself an advance after notice, not allowed to take advantage of it, being mala fides; evidence therefore of a parol agreement, read against him under these circumstances. Scott v. Merry, 1 Ves. 2. FRAUD.

Articles previous to settlement cannot, in general, be read to construe the settlement, unless the bill is brought to rectify the settlement, or the settlement refers to them. Pritchard v. Quinchant, Amb. 147.

Mortgage in fee; 700*l.* paid by A, but half of the money was plaintiff's, yet for want of a declaration in writing, B was not admitted to read to the proof of it, so as to create a trust for him, being against the statute of frauds. Newton v. Preston, Prec. Chan. 103. But see next case post. TRUST, DECLARATION OF.

A, purchases in the name of B, and pays the purchase-money, B claims the estate, there being no declaration of trust. A may be admitted to read proofs that he paid the purchase-money, but then those proofs must be very clear to make it a trust, arising by implication at law. Gascoigne v. Thwing, 1 Vern. 366. But see case preceding. Id.

A mortgagee, in an agreement for a mortgage, omits to insert a covenant for redemption, the mortgagor shall be permitted to read evidence to shew the omission.

So a mortgage drawn on two deeds, one an absolute conveyance, and the other a defeasance, which the mortgagee omits to execute, the mortgagor shall be admitted to shew the mistake. Johnes v. Sleitham, 3 Atk. 389. Vide Walker v. Walker, 2 Atk. 99. MORTGAGE, REDEMPTION OF.

23. Handwriting.

Proof of the handwriting of an attesting witness to a will, received under particular circumstances, in order to found a decree establishing the will. James v. Parnell, 1 Turn. & R. 417. WILL, ATTESTING WITNESS.

After thirty years, handwriting of letter need not necessarily be proved when letter affords intrinsic evidence of its authenticity. Where there is no direction to such letter, prima facie it must be intended to have been written to the party among whose papers it was found. Fenwick v. Read, 6 Mad. 7. LENGTH OF TIME.

Evidence to rectify handwriting to receipts by comparison of his signature in register's book (the entries in which it was his duty to sign), held sufficient. Taylor v. Cook, 8 Price, 650.

As to the necessary proof of a party's handwriting. Bandolph v. Gordon, 5 Price, 312.

Mortgage bequeathed to wife of subscribing witness; proof of his handwriting held sufficient proof of execution of mortgage between mortgagee and mortgagor. Niman v. Parsons, 4 Mad. 171. HUSB. & WIFE; MORTGAGE.

Comparison of handwriting, though lately admitted as evidence, if confirmed by the contents of correspondence, refused in the instance of a single letter for the purpose of commitment. Wade v. Broughton, 3 V. & B. 172. COMMITMENT.

Handwriting of a relation deceased, rejected as evidence of pedigree. Edwards v. Harvey, Cooper, 39.

Rule as to proof of handwriting, the witness must have seen the party write, and swear to his belief that the writing produced is his. Eagleton v. Kingston, 8 Ves. 473.

If the witness will not swear to his belief of the handwriting, but says that he thinks it like, the 1*st.* Chancellor of opinion this is not evidence. Id. 476.

One subscribing witness dead, and another out of jurisdiction, proof of handwriting allowed. Banks v. Carquharson, Dick. 167.

24. In tithe causes.

Upon a bill for tithes by a vicar against the occupiers of an estate, which had belonged to the knights hospitallers of St. John of Jerusalem, and after the dissolution of the monasteries, being vested in king Henry the Eighth, had been granted by him to the Archbishop of York and his successors, under whom the defendants occupied; the defendants pleaded that the lands were held by the hospital exempt from tithes; that they were so held and granted by the king; and they proved that no tithes had within memory been paid for the lands. On the part of the vicar was produced an inquisitum of an inquisition, made under the authority of the Archbishop of York in 1314, by which it was found, after specifying certain tithes, "that the vicar ought to receive all other tithes to the said church belonging (except corn and hay), which the master and brethren of the hospital of St. John of Jerusalem received, as rectors, but that all the vicars had, ever since the time of the ordination of the vicarage, received all other tithes, and peaceably, and did so at that time, but they were bound to give their tithe of corn and hay." Held, upon the evidence of this document, that the vicar was entitled to the tithes claimed by his bill. Elday v. Donnison, 2 Bli. N. S. 94. S. C. 1 M'Clel. & Y. 1. TITLE.

On a vicar's bill for tithe of agistment, no endowment being extant, the plaintiff produced a series of terriers, commencing from the year 1685, describing the several rights of the rector and vicar, and enumerating, among the rights of the former, a sum of 2*l.* in lieu of the tithe hay, and among the rights of the vicar, tithe calf, and all small and petty tithes. On the part of the defendants, a number of terriers were also produced, commencing from 1749, conflicting with those produced by the vicar in some respects, but all containing the 2*l.* as payable to the rector in lieu of tithe hay cut and grassing, and gave evidence of the general reputation that the sum was payable for both. There was no evidence of perception of the tithe of agistment by either rector or vicar. The court declined to decree for the vicar, but offered him an issue. Willis v. Farrar, 2 Y. & J. 217.

The minister's accounts and the royal grants are, when they so state, usually considered as sufficient evidence that certain premises were part of a dissolved monastery. Pierrepont v. Scarlet, 2 Y. & J. 330.

A lay-impropriator, who is in possession of a rectory, and in perception of the tithes, subject to charges by way of mortgage, and for raising portions (inasmuch as such mortgages, &c. having permitted the possession, cannot claim the by-gone rents), has a title sufficient to sustain a suit against occupiers for an account of tithes. Cherry v. Leigh, 1 Bli. N. S. 306. TITLE.

Upon a bill filed by such a lay-impropriator against an occupier, who had taken a lease from the rector of the tithes of corn and grain, but expressly without prejudice to any question as to the tithes of hay, and who by his answer set up, but did not prove, a modus as to the small tithes: Held, that proof of the perception of some tithes by a lay-impropriator, without evidence of a grant from the crown, gives a title to other tithes of the perception of which there is no actual proof. Id. ib.

If the occupier shows a colour of title to the tithes not rendered, a court of equity will not interfere, but leave the plaintiff to his remedy at law. Id. ib.

Where it appears in evidence that quakers have been convicted for non-payment of their tithes or prescriptive payments, it is strong evidence that a township modus, in respect of those tithes, does not exist. Jackson v. Benson, 2 Y. & J. 45.

An exemption from tithes, on the ground of the land having belonged to a monastery of a privileged order, does not rest on prescription, but the owner must shew satisfactorily that the monastery was seised of the lands before the council of Lateran, and also at the time of the dissolution. In order to support a general exemption in non decimando, it must be shewn that the lands were part of the possessions of a monastery before the time of legal memory; but it is seldom that such fact can be distinctly proved, and therefore it must usually depend upon presumptive evidence. Norton v. Hammond, 1 Y. & J. 94.

Vicar's books were admitted in evidence, though they contained private entries and memorandums of the vicar not relating to the parish, and though one of the books had remained for many years in the hands of a representative of a deceased vicar, instead of having been delivered to the succeeding incumbent. Miller v. Jackson, 1 Y. & J. 65.

An incumbent of one parish is capable of tithes in another as a portionist, or in nature of a portionist, but it is incumbent on him, as claiming against a common right, to prove his title strictly, either by producing an actual grant, or evidence of usage, affording by presumption legal evidence of a grant. Evidence of usage to receive certain mixed tithes by an incumbent in another parish as a portionist, or in the nature of a portionist, is not of itself evidence of a right to receive the tithes of all descriptions which lands may produce under any circumstances. Carlisle v. Blain, 1 Y. & J. 123. TITLE.

As to evidence of old persons of the nature and extent of a farm. Brasier v. Mytton, 1 M'Clel. & Y. 613.

Ancient receipts of a payment as a modus for hay, accompanied by rector's books, in which were contained entries of receipts for hay of persons who, from defendant's title-deeds, appeared to have been then owners of estate, good evidence of payment of a farm modus. Id. ib.

Modus alleged in answer to be payable in lieu of tithes, is not supported by proof of payments of a large amount. Fisher v. Graves, 1 M'Clel. & Y. 362. MODUS.

Where payment, when tithe of ancient demesne lands of a manor was proved to have been paid to and accepted by rector for time, being for upwards of a century, and from the recitals in a lease in the reign of Car. 1., there was strong ground to presume that it existed before that period, and there was no evidence of tithes in kind ever having been rendered; yet it being manifest from certain ordinances, and other ancient documents produced and proved in the cause, that the payment had its origin subsequent to time of legal memory, the court, notwithstanding the antiquity of the payment, decreed an account. Id. 363.

Terriers are not documents of such conclusive authority as to exclude all other evidence. Atkyns v. Drake, 1 M'Clel. & Y. 213.

The evidence affirmed by ecclesiastical and parliamentary surveys, either for or against a modus, is entitled to very little weight. Id. ib.

Modus laid to have been immemorial, and payable by every occupier growing hay, held not to be disproved by evidence of endowment in 1253, and of contributory payments by every occupier indiscriminately. Id. ib.

Old receipts by churchwardens to parishioners for contributions by the latter to the modus, rejected as evidence. Id. ib.

An entry, purporting to be a terrier, in an old book called a parish registry, produced from an old iron chest in the vicarage house, of which the only key was kept by the vicar, and accompanied by other suspicious circumstances, admitted in evidence at N. P. and left to jury to receive its due weight, found by them not to be authentic, and therefore rejected by court. Id. 214.

Where, in a suit for vicarial tithes of a particular district within a parish, the defendant, the lessee of the crown's grantee of the land, and his tenant pleaded that the district had formerly been parcel of the possessions of the hospitals of St. John of Jerusalem: the stat. of 32 H. 8. c. 24. and 31 H. 8. c. 31.; that the district had come to the crown, discharged, and had ever since been enjoyed by its grantees, their lessees and tenants absolutely and wholly acquitted; and proved that the district had been in possession of the order in 22 Ed. 3. A. D. 1357, and usage of non-payment, prior to a decree for an account of tithes of the same lands, eight years before, as far back as living memory went, and tendered much evidence of reputation to the same point; but the plaintiff produced an inquisition of the profits of the vicarage taken in 1314, certifying that the vicar ought to receive the tithes of wool and lambs of the whole parish, and all other tithes to the church in anywise belonging, excepting the tithes of corn and hay; and that all the vicars had, ever since the ordination of the vicarage, received all other tithes peaceably, and did so at the then present time: Held, that this instrument afforded evidence that the small tithes had been de facto paid to the vicar at the time when it was made, and that the usage proved had grown up from some unexplained cause after the time of memory; and that it therefore overturned the defendants prima facie case; and an account of tithes demanded by bill was decreed. Donnison v. Elstey, 1 M'Clel. & Y. 1.

Evidence of reputation of exemption of district from tithes read de bene esse. Id. 24. PR. READING EVIDENCE DE BENE ESSE.

An original ancient book, containing, amongst other matters concerning a particular see, the entry of the endowment of a vicarage by a former bishop, to whom the rectory was granted by the crown, with licence to appropriate, and coming from the registry of the diocese, is evidence of the endowment. But regularly a copy of an entry is not admissible. Wolley v. Brownhill, 1 M'Clel. 321. S. P. 13 Price, 500.

Depositions of defendant, who set up a farm modus, allowed to be read de bene esse in favour of co-defendant, who set up other farm moduses. Deposition of witness, who states himself to have been interested in cause, but duly relevated, cannot be read until court has, by inspection of documents creating such interest and release, satisfied itself thereon. Id. 324.

Plaintiffs, having read a passage from answer ending thus, "but have not set forth an account of such titheable matters, on account of the expense thereof, and for the reasons herein mentioned," the court refused to permit a distinct part of the answer, which contained the reasons referred to, to be read as evidence for the defendants. Id. 326.

In proving farm modus, defendant is bound first to prove distinctly that the farm was an ancient farm, and then to shew the particular payment in respect of that ancient farm. Id. 331.

To bill for tithes by lessees of spiritual impropiator against occupiers alone, mere non-payment, coupled with evidence of peramancy by landlord of premises for a few years, and of loose reputation of title in him as a portioner, unsupported by any document, does not constitute a defence, and the case will not be sent to law. Wolley v. Platt, 1 M'Clel. 468.

The title of a portioner must be either proved by showing grant under which he claims, or if it has been lost, by that species of evidence which would enable the court to presume that such a grant once existed. Id. 473.

Whenever a portion of tithes is claimed, actual peramancy of those tithes from a long and remote time ought to be proved. Id. 476.

As to how far vicar, plaintiff, in tithe cause is compellable to produce for inspection, &c. vicar's books, and those of predecessors, admitted by him in his answer to cross bill by defendant to be in his possession, and to contain entries relating to payments of sums of money as compositions, corresponding in amount with money payments set up by defendant as modus relied on. The costs of all proceedings had for obtaining the discovery by such means, must be paid by party acquiring it. Firkins v. Lowe, 13 Pri. 193. S. C. 1 M'Clel. 73. PR. COSTS, PR. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS.

At the trial of an issue to ascertain whether one of defendants, a layman, was entitled to tithes as a modus of certain lands, it was proved that a payment described as a tithe, or rate tithe, issuing out of the lands in question, had been conveyed by defendants' title deeds for the last 150 years, and that this payment had been received by defendant and his ancestors, and that no tithe had ever been paid to plaintiff, the rector, within living memory; and a verdict was found for defendant. Motion for new trial refused. Williams v. Bacon, 1 S. & S. 415. ISSUE AT LAW; NEW TRIAL.

Construction and effect of very remote documentary evidence (opposed to a case of uninterrupted non-payment) in a suit for tithes, as applied to the claim, and to a defence of prescription in non decimando, on ground of lands having belonged to religious house. To support such a defence lands must be shown to have belonged to a religious house before legal memory, and not merely at time of dissolution. Markham v. Smyth, 11 Price, 126.

On question of parochial modus referred to a trial at law, testimony offered as evidence of reputation in proof of custom on which right to the advantage of modus decimandi was founded, that money payments, constituting alleged modus, had been uniformly made beyond living memory, and that witnesses had heard old persons, who at that time occupied lands in the parish and were long since dead, say that it had always been the custom to make such payments, was held admissible evidence of reputation against an objection taken of interest in making such a declaration on the part of such deceased persons on whose information the evidence was founded. Moseley v. Davies, 11 Price, 162.

Parol evidence of payment for hay and agistment is rebutted by evidence of modus having been established at law and equity for hay. Williamson v. Thompson, 9 Price, 197.

A modus covering both these tithes is suspicious and requires strict proof that it is a payment in lieu of both. Evidence of payment, however, was sent to be tried by jury. S. C. Id. ib.

Producing map of lands of which the farm was stated to consist, and proving the accuracy of the description of the lands in the map as compared with them in 1803, (with reference to the time of commencing the suit) is no proof of such farm being ancient nor sufficient even to raise such a presumption, that it may be capable of further proof as to furnish ground for giving an opportunity of establishing it by issue. The omission in the earlier two or three of a series of old terriers, of any notice of money payments set up as moduses, does not destroy the evidence of the existence of the moduses, arising from the subsequent terriers which do notice them: nor even a variation in the amount of one of the sums, and a qualification of the payment of it occurring in one of them, where the payments relied on are supported by the testimony of witnesses, who prove that such payments have been in fact made accordingly. Stuart v. Greenall, 9 Price, 106.

A book, in handwriting of A, purporting to be an account of tithes collected by him seventy years ago, cannot be read in evidence without proof that A was collector at that time. And in a suit for tithes by lessee of an ecclesiastical corporation aggregate to which the rectory belonged, ancient documents in their possession, purporting to be accounts furnished by some of their members employed to collect tithes, and appearing to have been approved and settled, are admissible in evidence, and the statutes of the body, enjoining the appointment of collectors, together with the internal evidence of the documents and their coming out of proper custody, held sufficient proof of their being collectors. Short v. Lee, 2 J. & W. 464.

As to the principle on which entries in a rector's books are admitted as evidence for his successors. Entries of tithes received in books of ecclesiastical corporation aggregate entitled to a rectory, are evidence for their successor. Quare, whether entries in books of lay impropriator in fee, of tithes received, are evidence for those claiming under him. Id. 478.

Where evidences in support of tithes and in support of modus were very strong and conflicting, it was sent to issue to determine question. Taylor v. Cook, 8 Price, 650. TITHES; ISSUE AT LAW.

Evidence of rector's handwriting to receipts, by comparison with his signature in register's books, the entries in which it was his duty to sign, held sufficient. Id. ib. HANDWRITING.

A money payment of 5s. yearly at Lammas by every occupier of lands or tenements within a district set up as a modus when of all tithe hay within district, although proved prima facie in point of fact: Held to be disproved as a modus for all the hay in the whole township by the evidence of terriers stating that "in, the district, only 5s. per year for all the hay in their (the occupiers) crofts," was payable, the parol testimony of the money payment, and the evidence of terriers being quite consistent with each other, there being nothing contradictory in the terriers so limiting and specifying the object and consideration of the sum proved to be paid generally throughout the parish in lieu of hay, to such hay as was grown in crofts. Drake v. Smyth, 8 Price, 692.

If modus be laid in answer to case resting on endowment as covering several titheable articles, it must be proved to be payable for all of them. A doubt from evidence as to that extent is not sufficient to direct an issue. Kempson v. Yorke, 8 Price, 13. MODUS; PL. ANSWER.

A defendant insisting on a modus as an outner, must prove himself to have been such at the time his lands became titheable, his being so described in the bill, not sufficient. Lake v. Skinner, 1 Jac. & W. 9. PL. BILL; OUTNER.

Terriers alone not sufficient to prove a modus. Id. 20. MODUS.

As to evidence of fraud in case of subtraction of tithe, &c. Hall v. Maltby, 6 Price, 240. FRAUD.

As to the preponderance of conflicting evidence as to title in tithe causes. Petch v. Dalton, 6 Price, 232. TITHES.

Modus of sum of money laid as payable in lieu of tithes of hay, and all small tithe, is not supported by proof of payment for hay, and non-payment of hay in kind or any small tithes either in kind or sub modo. Payments laid as moduses, and proved to have been always paid within memory, and not opposed by evidence of their origin: Held, sufficiently proved to establish them on a defence of moduses, although all the witnesses called them compositions. Driffield v. Orrell, 6 Price, 324. MODUS.

As to evidence to support the existence of an ecclesiastical rectory. Bolton v. Richards, 6 Price, 483. RECTORY.

As to evidence of money payments in tithe causes. Drake v. Smyth, 6 Price, 369. TITHES.

Vicar] having made out a prima facie title to all tithes, except corn, grain, and hay, in a suit for agistment tithe; a defence that it belonged to the lay impropriator is not proved by shewing that agistment tithe has never been paid to vicar, and that lay impropriator is entitled, under a grant from the crown of tithes of corn, grain, hay, and grass; and that title of agistment is covered by a modus payable to impropriator in lieu of tithe of hay and grass. Wilkins v. Hutton, 9 Price, 187.

Where a vicar succeeds in establishing a general right to all tithes, except those of corn and grain, throughout a parish, it requires very strong evidence to shew that an impropriator of a particular district, who claims under a grant, limiting his title to the excepted articles, is entitled to the tithes of any other thing. Williamson v. Ld. Lonsdale, Dan. 171. EVIDENCE, ONUS PROBANDI.

To make out a defence to a bill for tithes of a composition real, it is not enough to shew that the same money payment has been constantly received in satisfaction of tithes for a considerable period before 13 Eliz., but evidence must be given of the existence of an agreement in writing, and made between all proper parties interested, nor will issue be granted on such evidence, or costs allowed to those defendants who are occupiers. Bennett v. Shaffington, 4 Price, 143.

Vicar, claiming tithe of hay, may establish his right by sufficient proof of perception during living memory, where none can be shewn to have been enjoyed by rector, although, his endowment actually negatives his right to that tithe expressly, and states it to belong to rector on presumption of a subsequent endowment which court is bound to adopt. Parsons v. Bellamy, 4 Price, 190.

Perception of tithes by means of a composition which has always been understood by parties to have been paid for tithe hay, is as strong evidence as if it had been paid in kind. And perception by vicar for considerable period where its perception cannot be shewn, and is not met by perception by rector or any other person, is a sufficient proof of usage to ground a presumption of perception long anterior; and of its having been founded on subsequent endowment, nor will court grant an issue for rector. A receipt for payment (by person sued by vicar for tithes) of plaintiff's bill of costs is evidence that suit resulted in favour of vicar. No also is an entry to that effect in a former vicar's books. Id. ib. PERCEPTION OF TITHES.

Vicar's books are evidence to shew that money payments received in lieu of tithes are founded on, and regulated by, a criterion not in existence beyond legal memory, e.g. the poor-rates. Walter v. Holman, 4 Price, 171.

Evidence relating to tithes so old as to be unintelligible, issue was directed. Evidence of reputation of certain lands having been enclosed in pursuance of agreement, not admissible. Copy of lost terrier rejected as evidence. Leathes v. Newitt, 4 Price 355.

Non-perception of vicarial tithes by either vicar or rector, (the latter admitting the vicar's right, except as to certain titheable articles, there being no third claimant) in certain parts of parish, throughout which vicar receives some small tithes, is negative evidence in favour of vicar's right to all other than excepted articles. Id. 374.

The three legitimate repositories of terriers, and vicar's books, to make them evidence, are the parish chest, the registry of the bishop, and the registry of the archdeacon. Armstrong v. Hewett, 4 Price 216.

It is not sufficient for vicar, who rests his case on presumption of an endowment from evidence of perception, to prove that he had received the tithes claimed from the rest of the parish generally, and even from part of the district in which defendant's lands are situate, unless he carries it to the parts for which the exemption is claimed by the defence; and the vicar not doing so, proof on part of defendants, that no tithe has ever been paid for their lands, will entitle them to an issue, nor will the ecclesiastics, survey, stating vicar to be entitled to tithe of parish generally, supply the absence of proof of perception from the particular lands. Id. ib. EXEMPTION FROM TITHE.

Book from registry of Lincoln containing inter alia, what were called copies of endowments of certain vicarages, was received as evidence of an endowment of vicarage in Northamptonshire. Leonard v. Franklin, 4 Price, 264. ENDOWMENT OF VICARAGE.

Old terriers, recording that tithe of hay is payable in kind, signed by rector and churchwardens, overseers and some of resident parishioners, are good evidence to rebut the presumption of a farm modus attempted to be established by proof of money payment having been uniformly rendered within living memory; and the absence of any evidence, even of reputation, that tithe had ever been taken in kind, and that though such terriers are not proved to have been signed by any persons interested in the farm. Wood, B. dissentiente. Nor will the court grant an issue in such case. Mytton v. Harris, 3 Price, 19.

An old receipt of former rector in lands of a defendant for money payment in lieu of tithes, where there was a probability of its having come to him from a predecessor in the same way, admissible in support of modus. A valuation of tithes made by surveyor, at the instance of rector, if it can be distinctly proved to have been made with reference to certain money payments in lieu, is evidence to fix rector with an acknowledgment of such payments. Bertie v. Beaumont, 2 Price, 303. MODUS.

Modus of 4d. for every cow in lieu of tithe of milk is not supported by proof of modus for every cow with calf. Id. ib.

The ecclesiastical surveys are admissible to prove an ancient endowment, and aided by perception of small tithes, (though not of all), will give the vicar a right to tithes of articles of modern introduction against the lessee of the rector. Cunliffe v. Taylor, 2 Price, 329.

As to evidence in tithe matters. Bullen v. Nichel, 4 Dow. 297.

A receipt, even of more than fifty years old, offered to be put in to prove a money payment, purported by it to have been received in lieu of tithes, is not admissible evidence of the fact of such customary payment having been acted on, so as to establish a defence of a modus, unless it can be proved who the parties to the receipt were, and in what character they stood; and unless proof be given of the handwriting, or death of the party giving it. Wood, B. dissentiente. Manby v. Curtis, 1 Price, 225. TITHES.

In a suit by rector for account of great tithes, evidence of vicar to prove payment of small tithes to himself, is admissible. Parker v. Baker, Wightw. 397.

It is no objection to evidence of reputation that deceased person from whom it came was liable to pay tithes. Harwood v. Sims, Wightw. 112.

Entry in parish register of different moduses, the sum total of which was in handwriting of deceased vicar, admitted as evidence. Perigal v. Nicholson, Wightw. 63.

Payment of tithes by the defendant; a parishoner is prima facie evidence against him of the rector's title. Chapman v. Beard, 3 Anst. 942.

Immemorial non-payment of any tithes from a district, cannot raise a presumption of an exemption by grant from the lay-rector, but is strong evidence to explain the extent of the grant of the rectory, if at all doubtful. Id. Petre v. Blencoe, 3 Anst. 945.

Mere non-payment of a particular species of tithes is no evidence against a lay rector of a conveyance of that tithe. Negle v. Edwards, 3 Anst. 702.

An instrument purporting to be an endowment without the seal, and another purporting to be an inspeximus thereof under the seal of the bishop, were rejected as coming out of private hands, unconnected with the matter in dispute. Estlin v. Durant, 3 Anst. 789.

A terrier found in the archdeacon's registry is admissible.

A terrier, although not signed by the impropriate rector, nor any person for him, is evidence against him as to tithes due to him in the parish. Id. ib.

Modus claimed for hay was described in terriers to be for all grass, "except clover, and the like." Held, this was no proof of modus being modern. Franklin v. Spilling, 3 Anst. 760. TITHES, MODUS.

A book found in the herald's office purporting to be an account of the possessions of a monastery, is not admissible evidence of that fact. Lygon v. Strutt, 2 Anst. 601.

A terrier cannot be received in evidence unless it comes from the proper repository; the registry of the diocese, or a copy from the parish registry, if the original cannot be found. Atkins v. Hutton, 2 Anst. 387.

Payment of a composition for the tithes of turnips, whether pulled or eaten off the ground, where neither party considered it as an agistment tithe. Garnes v. Barnard, 1 Anst. 319.

In order to establish a real composition for tithes, the evidence must be such as to distinguish it clearly from a prescriptive payment. Haves v. Swaine, 2 Cox, 179. COMPOSITION REAL.

A modus bad in law, received by the vicar, is proof of endowment of the tithe for which the modus was paid. Ravis v. Oaon, 1 Anst. 309. ENDOWMENT, MODUS.

In proving the title of a lay impropriator to tithes, it is not necessary to produce the deed of severance; it is sufficient to give evidence that there was one. Fanshaw v. Rotheram, 1 Eden. 297.

Evidence of an exemption depends on usage, and a posterior one is evidence of the antecedent, for no other can be had. Archb. York v. Stapleton, 2 Atk. 137.

An answer of impropriator admitting title of vicar, to all tithes except corn and grain, is not sufficient to establish that right against occupiers. Barkeley v. Fox, 3 Bro. P. C. 613. PL. ANSWER.

Bill for tithe of lambs; the ewes were kept by defendant, in the parish of D, (where the demand lay), all the year until Christmas; when they were ready to drop their lambs, he removed to the parish of S, (where there was only a small modus for lambs), and there kept until Lady-day for the convenience of forage; and at Lady-day they were driven back to D. Plaintiff complained of this as a fraud in the tithing. Per curiam, here is not a sufficient proof of fraud, and plaintiff's bill was dismissed. Boys v. Ellis, Bunb. 139. Title of lambs is not divisible as wool is. S. C. TITHES, OF WHAT FRAUD.

Bill by a vicar for tithe herbage and furze. Plaintiff proved that the vicar was entitled to all small tithes within the parish, and that the great tithes were constantly paid to the impropriator; and he gave one instance within thirty years of a compensation with the vicar for the agistment tithe of the close. Held, this was sufficient proof of the vicar's title to the small tithes. Goole v. Jordan, Bunb. 114. TITHE.

Bill by a lay impropriator for tithe; he only proved his claim under laymen, and went no further back than thirty-four years. This is sufficient. Held also, that where a general exemption is insisted upon, a partial one cannot be admitted in evidence. Leigh v. Maudsley, id. 296.

Bill by a vicar for tithe hay, and small tithe. Defendant admitted by his answer, that the vicar was entitled to all tithe, except corn and grain: Held, sufficient to support the vicar's right to hay. Fox v. Bardwell, id. 327.

25. Will, Proof of.

All wills to be proved, shall be produced in the custody of the proper officer and delivered to the examiner or commissioners, and by them re-delivered to the same officer after examination closed. General Rule, Feb. 49, 1803. 1 Scho. & L. 114.

Where the evidence proves the execution of a will, but the witnesses have not been examined as to the sanity of the testator, the cause will be adjourned at the hearing, and liberty will be given to exhibit an interrogatory to prove his sanity. Abrahams v. Winship, 1 Russ. 526. PR. ADJOURNMENT OF CAUSE.

A will was proved in spiritual court, but executor of former will brought his bill in equity to discover by what means the latter will was obtained, and whether testator was not incapable, &c. and for account. Demurrer to jurisdiction overruled. *Andrews v. Probate of a will not evidence that copyholds pass by it. Jervoise v. Dk. Northumberland, 1 Jac. & W. 670. COPYHOLD; PROBATE OF WILL.

In establishing a will, the attestation of all witnesses must be proved, and if not personally, either that they are abroad or dead, and the proof must be positive. In proving will for certain purposes only, such proof as will satisfy the court is sufficient, and in such case leave will be given to exhibit an interrogatory for further proof of will for the former purpose. Wood v. Stane, 8 Price, 613.

Probate is not evidence of will of real estate. Gibson v. Whitehead, 4 Mad. 244. WILL, PROBATE OF; REAL ESTATE.

Though it be proper to prove a will of lands in equity, yet the same is not absolutely necessary any more than it is to prove the deed in equity. Cotton v. Wilson, 3 P.W. 192.

Where a bill is brought to prove a will of land, the sanity of the testator must be proved. Secus, in the case of a deed of trust to sell for payment of debts. The court never orders a will to be proved in loco at the hearing, as they do a deed. Harris v. Ingledew, 3 P.W. 93.

Executor cannot bring a bill without shewing thereby that he has proved the will in the spiritual court; if he does, this is good cause of demurrer. But it is enough to allege he has duly proved the will without saying in what court. Humphreys v. Ingledew, 1 P.W. 752. EXOR.; PL. DEMURRER.

Where original will is lost, and from the exemplification thereof under seal of prerogative court, there is reason to suspect its validity as to disposition of real estate, such exemplification cannot be admitted as evidence, but party must be left to his remedy at law. Arthur v. Arthur, 3 Bro. P.C. 568. WILL, EXEMPLIFICATION OF.

Executor proves a will of a personal estate wherein one of the legacies is forged, the executor has no remedy in equity, but ought to have proved the will with a special reservation as to that legacy. Plume v. Beale, 1 P.W. 388. EXORS. LIAB. OF.

A testator gives to some persons annuities of 500l. long annuities, and to several others legacies of 500l. long annuities, on one of which he directs interest to be paid at 5l. per cent. Evidence of the amount of his property admissible to explain the meaning of the latter bequests, and his property being insufficient to pay them in long annuities, held that sums of money to be raised out of his long annuities were intended. Colpoys v. Colpoys, 1 Jac. 451. WILL, C. OF.

Primary principle is, that evidence is not admissible to contradict a written will; but, in some cases, court will raise a presumption against it, and then admit evidence to repel the presumption. Hurst v. Beach, 5 Mad. 360.

Evidence not admissible that deviser did not mean what he had expressed, but admissible to show that a particular expression was not his will. Powell v. Mouchett, and Litchfield v. Mouchett, 6 Mad. 216. MISTAKE.

Where there are not, nor ever were, nor can by possibility be, any persons strictly answering the description of children, it is necessary to resort to evidence dehors the will for the purpose of finding whether there were any who had acquired the reputation of children, and it is possible for legitimate children to acquire that reputation. Id. Woodhouseles v. Delrymple, 2 Mer. 419. BASTARDS.

Under bequest, by unmarried man "to my children, &c., each," parol evidence allowed to show who testator considered in character of children, and they, having obtained a name by reputation, admitted to take as a class, though illegitimate, and not named in will. Beachcroft v. Beachcroft, 1 Mad. 430. BASTARDS.

Legacy of interest then due on mortgage. After making will, testator survives eleven years, and receives interest on mortgage. Evidence admissible to prove interest was received as accruing since the making of will, and not on account of what was due before; therefore, legacy was held adclaimed. Graves v. Hughes, 4 Mad. 381. LEGACY, ADEMPMENT.

Satisfaction of a legacy by a parent to a child by a portion of the same amount, though with some circumstances of difference. When a parol evidence can be admitted originally of an intention to substitute the one provision for the other, or only where it is first offered against the presumption; it is clearly admissible to shew that the father was the author of the portion, viz., by stipulating or joining in the marriage settlement of his eldest son for a charge, and giving up interests in consideration of it. Hartopp v. Hartopp, 17 Ves. 184. LEGACY, SATISFACTION; PARENT & CHILD.

Legacy to A, if in the testator's service at the time of his decease, parol evidence admitted to shew that, though she had quitted his house, she continued, and was by him considered as in his service, and upon that evidence, the legacy was established. Herbert v. Reid, 16 Ves. 481.

Extrinsic evidence admitted, not to construe a will, but to shew with reference to what it was made. Bengough v. Walker, 15 Ves. 514.

Evidence of mistake not admissible to affect the construction of a will. Shergold v. Boone, 13 Ves. 376. MISTAKE.

On presumption of satisfaction by will, evidence admissible, first, to constitute the fact that testator was debtor; secondly, to meet or fortify the presumption. Pole v. Ld. Somers, 6 Ves. 321.

Statement of property written by testator, and his books of accounts, admitted as evidence that he considered as his property, and meant to dispose of, property not strictly, though in some sense, his; viz., mortgages and leases, the property of wife under will, by which he was executor with her before her marriage. Druce v. Denison, 6 Ves. 385. HUSBAND & WIFE; CHOSE IN ACTION; REDUC. INTO POSSESSION.

A legatee, son-in-law to the testator, was held entitled to his legacy discharged from debts due by him to the testator, and a debt for which the testator was his surety upon evidence, from the testator's accounts, letters, and memorandums, in his handwriting; parol evidence of declarations in conversation was produced for the same purpose: but the court appeared to rely on the evidence in writing. Lidd v. Smith, 5 Ves. 341. LEGACY; DEBTOR & CRED.

Legacy of 1000*l.* out of my real and bank annuities, held pecuniary, the court leaning against holding a legacy specific, unless clearly intended; the court would not take into consideration evidence of the value of the stock at the date of the codicil, by which the legacy was given, nor an erasure of a legacy to the same person by the will, but decided upon the words of the codicil. Kirby v. Potter, 4 Ves. 718. LEGACY SPECIFIC.

A subsequent marriage and the birth of a child revokes a will. Quere as to the propriety of admitting evidence against the presumption. Gibbons v. Gaunt, 4 Ves. 848. WILL, REVOC. OR.

Distinction between a legacy and a residuary bequest as to a presumed satisfaction by the advancement of a portion. The presumption from the former does not arise from the latter, and parol evidence of an intention to satisfy cannot be admitted originally, as it may where first introduced to rebut a presumption. Freemantle v. Bankes, 5 Ves. 70. LEGAT. SATISFACTION OF; RESIDUARY BEQUEST, SATISFACTION OF; PRESUMPTION.

Portions for the children by the will of the parent presumed a satisfaction of a prior provision by settlement, unless clearly not so intended; the presumption is not rebutted by slight circumstances; accounts in the testator's handwriting were admitted as evidence of the circumstances under which he made his will, but not to explain the will. Hinchliffe v. Hinchliffe, 3 Ves. 516. SETTLEMENT, SATISFACTION OF; PARENT & CHILD.

Portions for the children by the will of the parent held a satisfaction of a provision by settlement, upon the intention: slight circumstances of difference that would repel the presumption of satisfaction between strangers are not sufficient in the case of parent and child. Spurkes v. Cator, 3 Ves. 530. Id.

Testator gave a sum, part of his four per cent. bank annuities, to his wife for life, and, after her decease, to several relatives. Evidence was admitted that he had no such stock at the date of the will, having previously sold it all, and invested the produce in long annuities, and to show the cause of the mistake, and the legacies were established. Selwood v. Allmley, 3 Ves. 306. MISTAKE.

Testator bequeathed part of his three per cent. consolidated bank annuities. Upon evidence that he had no bank stock at the date of his will, but that he had three per cent. South Sea annuities, the legacy was established out of that fund. Id. ib.

Bequest of stock, if the testator has it at the time of it, is specific, and any act destroying it, proves an intention to revoke; if a ring or a picture bequeathed cannot be found, that cannot be rectified. Id. ib.

Deviso of real estate to be sold, and the produce, with the personal estate, to testator's wife for life, with power to appoint a moiety by deed or will, with two or more witnesses: the estate was not sold: the wife, having no other real estate, by will with three witnesses, gave specific legacies, some described to have been her husband's, and all the rest, residue and remainder of her estate and effects of what nature or kind soever, and whether real or personal, and all her plate, china, linen, and other utensils, which she should be possessed of, interested in, or entitled to, at her decease: the power is executed by the residuary clause. Evidence of conversation with the person who drew the will, to shew the testatrix had no other real estate, rejected. Standen v. Standen, 2 Ves. J. 589.

Legacy to "James, son of Thomas A." There was no person of that description: there was a "Thomas, son of James A." The court will not receive evidence to shew that this was a mistake in the description. Andrews v. Dobson, 1 Cox, 425. WILL, MISTAKE IN.

The testator having a power over 3000*l.*, originally the property of his wife, gave several legacies, and then, after the death of his wife, the residue to the defendant: his estate was not sufficient to pay the legacies, yet held that the will was not an execution of the power, the same not being referred to, nor any thing by which an intention appeared in testator to execute it. Evidence to shew the testator's own estate was insufficient for the purposes of his will without the 3000l., rejected. Andrews v. Emmet, 2 Bro. C. C. 297. POWER, EXEC. OF.

Presumed satisfaction of legacy by a portion, the evidence not being sufficient to rebut the presumption, but parol evidence admissible to rebut the presumption, without regard to the nature of it. Trimmer v. Bayne, 7 Ves. 508. LEGACY, SATISFACTION OF.

Where a legacy is given for a particular purpose, (as a portion) and another bounty is afterwards given for the same purpose, it is considered as implying an intention in the testator to satisfy the legacy: but this being only a presumption, may be rebutted by evidence shewing a contrary intention. Debesse v. Mann, 1 Cox, 346. S. C. 2 Bro. C. C. 165, and aff. id. 519. Id.

In an application for a commission to examine evidence to shew that the legacies given in two codicils were both intended for the legatee, the legatee ought to swear she believes that to have been the intention. Cootte v. Cootte, 1 Bro. C. C. 448. LEGACY ACCUMULATIVE; PR. COM. TO EXAMINE.

Evidence offered to prove that testator, who gave legacy to A, his executors, &c., knew A to be dead, and meant it for his representatives, rejected. Ma-bank v. Brooks, Dick. 577.

Parol evidence of testator's intention to give his personal estate exempt from debts, rejected. Stephenson v. Heathcote, 1 Eden, 37.

Parol evidence is only admitted to support legal rights against an equitable claim. Id. 41.

Parol evidence may be read in support of legal operation of will. Lake v. Lake, Dick. 236.

A will made on the eve of a journey abroad, under some words used in the will, held a contingent will, and avoided by the testator's return. And collateral proofs of his afterwards taking notice of the will cannot be admitted, unless some acts were done to republish the will. Parson v. Lanoie, Amb. 559. S. C. 1 Ves. 189. 1 Wils. 243.

Parol admitted of declaration of devise to prove she was only trustee. Strule v. W'inchester, Dick. 397.

The same circumstances ought to be proved to have happened on part of testator, to show his intent of revoking will in equity as in law, unless they were prevented by party interested. Piggott v. Penrice, 1 Com. 250. WILL, REVOCATION OF; FRAUD, ACTS PREVENTED BY.

One, by will, gives his executor an express legacy, and makes no disposition of the surplus. The court will admit of parol evidence to show the intention of the testator, and, if proved that the testator intended the surplus to the executor, he shall have it, notwithstanding the express legacy. Batchellor v. Sear, 2 Vern. 736. EXORS. BENEFICIALLY INTERESTED.

Parol evidence as to testator's intent to exempt personal estate from debts, refused. Gale v. Croft, Dick. 23.

There being a devise in a will of all testator's household stuff, as brass, pewter, linnen and woollens, except a trunk, the person who drew the will was examined to prove that the testator directed him to insert all his goods except the trunk, and was allowed to be read. Pendleton v. Grant, 2 Vern. 517. Eq. Ca. Ab. 230. pl. 2. S. C. better reported.

Where witness is made party merely for the purpose of discovery, it is demurrable. How v. Best, 5 Mad. 19. PL. DISCOVERY; PL. PARTY; PL. DEMURRER.

A witness who had answered some of the interrogatories, but refused to answer the others, was ordered to answer those interrogatories within four days, or stand committed. Austin v. Prince, 1 Sim. 348.

Witness, attending arbitrators upon an arbitration under an order of court, protected from arrest. Exp. Temple, 2 V. & B. 395. PRIVILEGE FROM ARREST; ARBITRATION.

Creditor attending to prove his debt before commissioners of bankruptcy, privileged from arrest. The plaintiff in the action ordered to discharge him and all parties subjected to pay costs. List's Case, 2 V. & B. 373. S. C. 2 Rose, 24. BANKCY.; PRIVILEGE FROM ARREST.

A person attending commissioners of bankruptcy, without a summons, swearing that he was a material witness, and not contradicted, protected from arrest, while remaining, though having left the room by order, for the purpose of separate examination; and while returning; whether while going, Qu.? Ordered to be discharged immediately by the party in the first instance; if disobeyed, to be extended to the officers, with costs. Application at the bar without a petition, the proper form in such cases, and time to answer the affidavit refused. Exp. Byne, 1 V. & B. 316. S. C. 1 Rose, 451. BANKCY.; PRIVILEGE FROM ARREST.

Protection from arrest of persons attending commission of bankruptcy, for the purpose of aiding them in the administration of justice eundo, morando, et redeundo, not by having a summons, but upon principle applying to a witness or party. Exp. Byne, id. 319.

Rule, that mere witness having no interest ought not to be made a party, not without exceptions. Whitworth v. Davis, id. 550. PL. PARTY.

General rule that a mere witness is not to be made a party. Exceptions in the cases of arbitrators and attorneys, and corporations, whose officers and servants are made parties. Dummer v. Corp. of Chippenham, 14 Ves. 252. PL. PARTY.

A person having attended under a subpoena as a witness, but refusing to be sworn, ordered to attend to be examined or stand committed. Hennegal v. Lounce, 12 Ves. 201.

Bill for discovery in aid of action. Demurrer by mere witness, allowed, though discovery would be more beneficial than an examination at law, and notwithstanding a charge of interest in defendant, as to which he may be called, by plaintiff waiving the objections, and if called, may be examined on the voir dire. Fenton v. Hughes, 7 Ves. 287. PL. PARTIES.

To bill for relief mere witness cannot be party except in case of a secretary, &c. of a corporation. Id. 288. PL. PARTIES.

Witnesses ought not to disclose their evidence to parties. Cooth v. Jackson, 6 Ves. 33.

It is no answer on exception that the defendant is a mere witness, and ought not to have been made a party; for having admitted to answer, he must answer fully. Cook v. Ellison, 2 Bro. C. C. 252. PL. PARTY; WAIVER; PL. EXCEPTIONS TO ANSWER. Commissioner's summons for attendance of witness, not sufficient; he must be served with subpoena. Wardell v. Dent, Dick. 334.

A mere witness cannot be made a defendant for discovery of what he is examinable to, unless he is interested. If the bill charges he is interested, the defendant must plead and support it by an answer denying that allegation, and cannot demur. Plummer v. May, 1 Ves. 426. PL. PARTY; PL. PLEA.

A witness examined at a commission, swears reflecting words, yet he ought not to pay costs, it being the commissioner's fault to take down such depositions. Anon. 2 P. W. 406. PR. COSTS.

Witness served to testify, pressed for soldier, attachment is stayed. Humble v. Malhe, Cary, 41.

Subpoena to testify, where no cause depending, discharged. Price v. Holland, id. 95.

Witness unable to travel, discharged of contempt. More v. Worsham, id. 99.

Attachment against witness served to testify. Midleton v. Sperright, id. 80.

Witness served to testify, entitled to costs. Pearce v. Crawthorn, id. 61.

Costs to witness shall be paid before he gives evidence. Belgrave v. Fl. of Hertford, id. 62.

Duces tecum for deeds, but ordered to be delivered to usher of court to plaintiff. Wilford v. Denny, id. 53.

Plaintiff's father seised in fee with caution to re-enter, deviseth for life; subpoena duces tecum for evidence. Id. 17.

On the return of a subpoena, if a witness will not appear and be examined, the party may take an attachment against him, and if he appears and deposes on the other side, his depositions may be suppressed on motion. Dolman v. Pritman, 3 C. R. 64. S. C. Anon. 2 Freem. 134. PR. ATTACHMENT.

(b) Competency of.

It is no objection to the testimony of a witness in a suit for predial tithes, that from his description in the deposition, he appears to reside in the township where the tithes arise, unless it appears that he is not an owner or occupier of lands producing predial tithes, and so interested in supporting the modus. But it seems to be otherwise, where the modus is for all tithes generally, in which case the modus for the great tithes may possibly be a discharge for the small tithes. Jackson v. Benson, 2 Y. & J. 45.

A witness who has been examined at the hearing, only to prove exhibits, may be examined before the master on interrogatories, to prove other exhibits, without a special order. Courtenay v. Hoskins, 2 Russ. 253. EXHIBITS.

Persons entitled under will, cannot in any respect be witnesses to prove it. Tucker v. Sanger, 1 M'Clel, 435. S. C. 13 Price, 119. LEGATEE.

The custody whence a document offered in evidence is taken, cannot be proved by an interested person. Carrington v. Jones, 2 S. & S. 135. EVIDENCE.

Where a sum of money came to the hands of one of two executors, who paid it over to the other executor, it was held, that the executor who first received it could not, under the usual decree for an account, examine the other executor as a witness, to prove that the money paid over was duly applied on account of the affairs of the testator, and an order obtained for that purpose was discharged. Dines v. Scott, 1 Turn. & R. 358. EXORS.

A person, who admits that he conceives himself bound in honour, though not legally bound, to contribute to the expenses of a party in a suit, is a competent witness for that party. Whitby v. Whitby, 1 Turn. & R. 366.

A person examined as witness for plaintiff, being afterwards made a defendant, and not being interested in suit, his former evidence may be read. Cope v. Parry, 2 J. & W. 538.

Executors cannot be examined as witness to the increase of the assets. Hurst v. Beach, 5 Mad. 353. EXECUTOR.

Where bankrupt but for his bankruptcy would have the same interest with plaintiffs, he is not, though he has released the assignees, a good witness against the crown. The crown is not bound by bankrupt laws. Craufurd v. Att. Gen. 7 Price, 24. BANKRUPT; CROWN.

Inclination of the courts to convert objections to competence, into objections to credit. Vaughan v. Worrall, 2 Swan. 399.

Presumption, that objections to competence have been waived, where it is not clear, that at the time of the examination the objection was unknown. Id. 400. WAIVER.

Interest to disqualify a witness, must be interest in the event of the cause. Id. ib.

Defendant under circumstances allowed after examination, and before publication, to have commission to examine witnesses, as to whether witness for plaintiff who had been examined was not interested in suit. S. C. 2 Mad. 322. PR. COMMISSION TO EXAMINE.

Upon a petition to supersede a commission, the bankrupt's examination before the commissioners, is evidence to shew the petitioner is not a creditor, although the petitioner was not present at the examination. Exp. Fowles, 1 Buck, 98. BANKCY. SUPERSEDING COMMISSION.

Bankrupt not allowed to be witness to increase his estate; therefore where evidence of debt being usurious, rested wholly on deposition of bankrupt, an inquiry as to the fact was refused. Exp. Burt, 1 Mad. 46. BANKRUPT.

In equity, objection to the competence of a witness from interest not waived by cross-examination. Moorhouse v. De Passon, 19 Ves. 433. S. C. Coop. 300. PR. CROSS-EXAMINATION; WAIVER.

Tenant in common of a moiety, having obtained a decree for redemption of his moiety, afterwards takes a conveyance of the equity of redemption as to that; stating that a prior conveyance of that equity of redemption by the assignees of that tenant in common who had been a bankrupt, and in which conveyance the bankrupt had joined, was void as against the bankrupt, having been improperly made. Bill dismissed, being supported by the evidence of the bankrupt alone. Waugh v. Land, Coop. 129. BANKRUPT.

The objection to a creditor as a competent witness, to sustain a commission of bankruptcy, cannot be taken by himself to preclude his examination. Exp. Chamberlain, 19 Ves. 481. S. C. In re Godie, 2 Rose, 330.

Wife's evidence is not admitted against the husband. Barron v. Grillard, 2 V. & B. 166. HUSB. & WIFE.

Examination to credit limited to the general question, whether the witness is to be believed upon his oath. An affidavit in bankruptcy, with that view, going to particular facts, and scandalous, taken off the file, with costs. Anon. 3 V. & B. 93. BANKCY.

The examination of a bankrupt, taken, not in his own bankruptcy, but under another commission, is not, upon the death of the bankrupt, evidence upon a petition in his bankruptcy to expunge the debt of a creditor; but it may be used by the commissioners as a clue, to direct them in the investigation of the subject, upon which it has proceeded. Exp. Campbell, 2 Rose, 51.

Creditor held not a competent witness of act of bankruptcy, or trading. Exp. Osborne, 2 V. & B. 177. S. C. 1 Rose, 367. BANKCY. ACT OF.

But if proved by circumstances alimunde, Ld. Ch.

said; that objection would not supersede commission. Id. 179.

A creditor who has assigned his debt is a competent witness, to increase the fund, out of which the debt is to be paid. Heath v. Hull, 4 Taunt. 326. BANKCY. CREDITOR.

A creditor of the bankrupt is not a competent witness, to sustain a commission upon an issue, directed to try its validity. Exp. Malkin, 2 Rose, 27. BANKCY. ISSUE AT LAW AS TO VALIDITY OF COMMISSION.

Evidence of conversation overheard by a witness, placing himself behind wainscot, &c. received with great caution. Savage v. Brocksopp, 18 Ves. 336.

Executor in trust not a competent witness in equity, respecting the assets, being interested to increase the fund. Executor to increase the fund incompetent witness in equity, is competent at law. Mulrany v. Dillon, 1 Ball & B. 409, 414. EXECUTOR.

Remainder-man is an incompetent witness, to prove payment of a legacy charged on the estate. Aldridge v. Ld. Wallscourt, 1 Ball & B. 312. REMAINDER-MAN.

In equity an executor in trust, a defendant and mere formal party, is an incompetent witness for a co-defendant in a suit respecting the property, being liable to actions. Bellew v. Russell, 1 Ball & B. 96. EXECUTOR.

Upon a question whether a bond belonged to plaintiff or defendant, it was objected, that all plaintiff's witnesses were members of the corporation, and the objection was allowed. Lord Keeper said, every corporation ought to have a town clerk, and other clerks, not freemen, that they may be competent witnesses, if necessary. But defendant having in this case cross-examined some of plaintiff's witnesses, Lord Keeper said that a cross-examination of a witness on one side, in any matter tending to the merits, makes him a competent witness on the other, though otherwise liable to exception. Sutton Coldfield Corp. v. Wilson, 1 Vern. 264. CORPORATION.

Bill for relief against an award made by some members of the E. I. company. The arbitrators and some of the members were made defendants; demurrer to the whole bill allowed, for plaintiff can have no decree against them; they ought to be examined as witnesses. Steward v. East India Company, 2 Vern. 380.

If a corporation would examine one of their own members as a witness, they must disfranchise him, and the method to do so is by an information in nature of a quo warranto against him, who, confessing the information, judgment passes to disfranchise him. Colchester Corp. v. —, 1 P. W. 595, (n).

It is a general rule, that mere witnesses are not to be made parties to a suit, except (inter alia) officers and servants of corporations. Dummer v. Chippenham Corp., 14 Ves. 252.

The interest of an auctioneer from his commission, does not defeat his evidence. Buckmaster v. Harrop, 13 Ves. 474. AUCTIONEER.

Husband and wife cannot give evidence for, or against each other. Vowles v. Young, id. 140. HUSB. & WIFE.

On the question, whether a commission of bankruptcy is or is not sustainable, (e.g. whether the petitioning creditor had a sufficient debt to entitle him to petition), a creditor of the bankrupt is a competent witness to prove the negative. In re. of Codd, 2 Scho. & L. 116. DEBTOR & CREDITOR; BANKCY. COMMISSION OF.

An order to examine a defendant as a witness, saving just exceptions, is an order of course, and cannot be discharged upon a suggestion, that the defendant by his answer, appears to have an interest, the objection must be reserved until the deposition be offered to be read in evidence. Lee v. Atkinson, 2 Cox, 413. PR. PARTY DEFENDANT; PR. DISCHARGE OR ORDER.

Witness to a will not interested at the execution, and death of the testator, is competent, though interested at his examination. Brgrave v. Winder, 2 Ves. J. 634.

In a suit against assignees tending to diminish the fund, the bankrupt may be examined as a witness, and ought not therefore to be a party. Griffin v. Archer, 2 Anst. 478. BANKRUPT.

Evidence of bond creditors of testator, not admissible to obtain a decree for payment of a legacy, as they must be preferred to legatees. Jones v. Turberville, 2 Ves. J. 11. S. C. 4 Bro. C. C. 115.

Son employed under, paid by, and accounting to his father, may be a witness, but is not accountable to his father's principal. Cartwright v. Hatley, 1 Ves. J. 292. S. C. 3 Bro. C. C. 234.

Issue ordered to discover a witness's interest. Stokes v. McKerral, 3 Bro. C. C. 228. ISSUE AT LAW.

A father coming to bastardize his own issue, is, though a legal, a very suspicious witness. Standen v. Edwards, 1 Ves. J. 134.

Witness good, who can recover nothing in the suit. Craven v. Tickell, 1 Ves. J. 61.

Evidence of the bankrupt, he having had his allowance and certificate, allowed to be read. Russel v. Russel, 1 Bro. C. C. 269.

The parent is not a necessary party to a suit, to set aside a deed fraudulent on marriage, but is a competent witness to prove the fraud on a bill filed by the husband and wife. Scott v. Scott, 1 Cox, 367. PL. PARTY; FRAUD ON MARRIAGE.

Bankrupt's certificate must have passed great seal, before he can be examined as a witness. Speidel v. Fuller, Dick. 633.

Bill by trustee, in the nature of a bill of interpleader, court gave leave to one of the defendants to examine one of the plaintiffs as a witness. Armiter v. Swanton, Ambl. 393. PR. PARTY PLAINTIFF.

Estate settled on marriage upon the husband and wife for their lives, remainder to such child or children as the husband, with the consent of the trustees should appoint, and in default of appointment, to the first and other sons in tail; the father, with the consent of the surviving trustee, appointed to his youngest son. Bill by the eldest son, to set aside the appointment for misrepresentation and imposition; to prove the imposition on the trustee, the trustee's evidence was read; but the father's evidence to prove no misrepresentation or imposition, was rejected. Seroggs v. Seroggs, Ambl. 272. FRAUD; EVIDENCE.

B, the master of ship, enters into a charter party on behalf of C, his owner, with D; on bill by C against D for satisfaction of demurrage and other damages, B is examined as a witness. At hearing, the bill is retained with liberty to C to bring his action at law. This action was permitted to be brought in name of B, after his death, and though he was the nominal plaintiff therein, yet his deposition in the equity suit was allowed to be read in evidence on the trial of the action. Downes v. Revell, 3 Bro. P. C. 651. PR. EVIDENCE.

As to objections to competency of witness. See Downing v. Townsend, Ambl. 692.

Depositions of one defendant not read in favour of another, where the former is at all concerned in interest, or a decree can be made against him. Such objection is wholly as to his incompetency. Dixon v. Parker, 2 Ves. J. 220.

Though a plaintiff at law is not allowed to examine any defendant as a witness, one defendant may there examine a co-defendant. In equity, a plaintiff may examine a defendant, and defendant a co-defendant; but then it is on a suggestion, that the party is not interested, and saving all just exceptions from the nature of the suit, &c. or in case of there being any material evidence against him, &c. Id. ib.

Broker or factor not naming principal, may be examined on action in name of principal; but simply for benefit of trade. If principal is declared, action must be against him. Id. 221. PRINCIPAL & BROKER.

But such broker or factor must act for another at the very time; no subsequent consent or agreement will do. Id. ib.

At law, a plaintiff cannot examine a defendant as plaintiff in equity may, but co-defendants may, if there is no material evidence against the defendant, and not interested. Id. 222.

Evidence of persons coming to swear, they, in former instance, perjured themselves, is not to be received. Exp. Lord, 2 Ves. 26.

The testimony of a witness read, if he was indifferent when examined, though becoming interested afterwards. Glynn v. Bank of England, 2 Ves. 38.

The court will not allow articles to be exhibited against the competency of a witness after publication, because this might have been objected to, and enquired into upon the examination. Callagan v. Rochfort, 3 Atk. 643. PR. PUBLICATION.

An executor or administrator in trust cannot be examined as a witness, for an executor is answerable for devastavit, &c. which may give an improper bias to his mind, and the possibility of mal-administration has induced the court to reject him as a witness; but a trustee is considered as having no interest at all, and is examined by order every day. Fotherby v. Pate, 3 Atk. 604.

But an administrator durante minori etate, is in general a competent witness after administration is determined. Id. 603.

Though a mother takes out administration during her daughter's minority, yet as soon as the daughter attains seventeen, she is ipso facto administratrix, and so considered by relation from the beginning. Id. 604. ACCOUNT; ADMOR. DUR. MIN.

An administrator durante minor. is in general a competent witness after the administration is determined, and may be examined as such for the executor both at law and in equity, for he is very little more than a person appointed ad colligendum bona, or an administrator pendente lite, who are always admitted as witnesses, ib. 603. 605. But where the bill charged that an administrator durante minor. had not accounted and delivered over the assets to the executor, and he by his answer, instead of insisting that he had accounted, submits to pay, this rendered him an incompetent witness. Id. 605.

An administrator durante minor. cannot sue or be called to an account by any but the executor, for it is to him only that he is answerable for his administration, and where such an administrator, after he had possessed himself of effects, is brought before the court without the executor, he may demur for that cause. Id. 604. 606.

The depositions of a wife of a prochain ami, cannot be read as the husband is liable to costs. Head v. Head, 3 Atk. 547. PR. P. AMI; HUSB. & WIFE.

Plaintiff may examine defendant as witness, if there is a suggestion in the order that defendant is not interested in the cause. Meadbury v. Isdall, 9 Mod. 438. But see 10 Mod. 19. PARTY DEFENDANT.

As to the admission of evidence of heathens, &c. Omychund v. Barker, 1 Atk. 381. S. C. 2 Eq. Ab. 397. Willis's Rep. 538. HEATHENS, &c.

Trustee plaintiff cannot, as a witness, be examined as a witness. — v. Fitzgerald, 1 Mod. 330. TRUSTEE.

In a case of fraud, evidence of a person who joined in granting away her estate, was admitted, though it invalidated her right to the estate. Mam v. Ward, 2 Atk. 228.

At law, when a person has granted and conveyed; the very words "grant and convey," imply a warranty on the part of the grantor, and he cannot be examined as a witness to overturn the right granted by the deed. Id.

At law, no defendant can be examined as a witness, but in equity a person made a defendant for form's sake, may be examined in a cause, saving just exceptions. Id.

A trustee, though merely nominal, cannot be examined at law, but he clearly may in equity. Id.

The attorney-general must enter a non prosequi against a defendant before he can be admitted as a witness, even in the case of the king. Id.

It is in particular instances only, as where fraud is charged by a bill, or in cases of trust, that a court of equity does not confine itself within such strict rules as they do at law, but in general the rules of evidence in equity and at law do not differ. Id.

Servant of bankrupt is a good witness for creditors, though he received his wages after bankruptcy. Humphrey's case, 2 Eq. Ab. 396.

Where witness, once interested, has been satisfied, the release and other acts destroying his interest must be proved. Anon. ib. 397.

Though a wife is defendant, and charged with fraud and malpractices, yet the evidence of the husband shall be admitted where the interest of a third person shall be concerned. Cotton v. Luttrell, 1 Atk. 451. HUSB. & WIFE.

If there is strong evidence against one who at law is put into the stipel cum, that he is particeps criminis, the court will exclude him from being a witness. Id. 452.

Witness, if interested, must produce a general release to render him competent. Anon. 2 Atk. 15.

Though a witness be an infant, his tender years will not invalidate his evidence. Smith v. French, 2 Atk. 245. INFANT.

A good rule at law, that where to a suit there are never so many defendants, if the plaintiff cannot give evidence against a defendant, he may be called as a witness for a co-defendant, and so it is in equity. Piddock v. Brown, 3 P. W. 288.

A bare trustee is a good witness for his cestui que trust, but not an executor in trust, as he is liable to be sued by creditors, and to answer costs. Croft v. Pyke, 3 P. W. 181. TRUSTEE; EXOR.

The court cannot make an order to examine a plaintiff de bene esse, saving just exceptions, though they will make such order to examine a defendant, but the defendant ought to have demurred to such immaterial plaintiff; if a corporation would make use of one of their own members as a witness, they must disfranchise him. Mayor, &c. of Colchester v. —, 1 P. W. 595. PR. EXAMON. DE BENE ESSE; PARTY PLAINTIFF.

Parishioners are not good evidence to prove a charity given to the parish: secus, if only a lodger, and one that does not pay to the poor: but to be intended a housekeeper, and to pay, &c. unless the contrary be made appear. Att. Gen. v. Wyburgh, 1 P. W. 600. sed quare.

Under particular circumstances, wife was admitted as evidence against husband. Rutter v. Baldwin, 1 Eq. Ab. 226. HUSB. & WIFE.

Bankrupt's wife cannot be examined against her husband to prove his bankruptcy; may by statute, touching discovering her husband's effects. Exp. James, 1 P. W. 611. BANKRUPTCY.

Case where the plaintiff himself was a witness, as where a witness is examined, who at that time is disinterested, but afterwards becomes interested, and plaintiff in the cause, his depositions shall be read. Goss v. Tracy, 1 P. W. 288. 2 Vern. 699.

Surviving witness to a bond is made executor of the obligee; in an action brought by him on the bond, evidence shall be admitted to prove the plaintiff's hand, as a proof of the bond. Id. 289.

A plaintiff in a cause cannot be made a witness, but a defendant may, because he is forced into the suit. Casey v. Brachfield, Prec. Chan. 411. S. C. Gilb. Eq. Rep. 98. PR. PARTIES TO CAUSE.

Co-defendants are not deprived of the evidence of each other by being so joined in suit; but plaintiff, (except in case of trustees,) cannot examine defendant. Gibson v. Albert, 10 Mod. 19. But sec 9 Mod. 438. PR. PARTY DEFENDANT.

Particeps criminis in the case of fraud, is the most proper person to discover and prove it; especially when what he so proves, turns to his own prejudice. May v. Harman, 4 Bro. P. C. 156. PARTICIPES CRIMINIS.

Bankrupt having released and assigned all his estate to the assignees, may be examined as a witness for them. Phillips v. Wilcox, 2 Vern. 637. BANKRUPT.

A witness was examined before the hearing whilst she was interested, but after the hearing she released her interest, and was examined again before the master. Her depositions before the master allowed to be read. Callow v. Meace, 2 Vern. 472. Pre. Ch. 234. S. C.

After publication, you may examine to the competency, as well as the credibility of a witness. Nedham v. Smith, 2 Vern. 464.

If, after hearing, a witness is convicted of perjury, the party may take advantage of it upon a re-hearing. Id. ib.

A and B, claiming each of them a rent-charge out of the land, by the same deed, B can be no witness for A's title to his rent charge, being a party interested, until he has released his own rent charge. Culpepper v. Fairfax, 2 Vern. 375.

A child of a residuary legatee is no witness to prove a will relating to personal estate by the civil law, by which law only, such will is determinable. Thwaites v. Smith, 1 P. W. 10. WILL, EXECUTION OF.

Where there is a dispute touching money given to parishioners, none of the inhabitants of the parish ought to be witnesses. Dowdeswell v. Nott, 2 Vern. 317.

A wife not to be examined as a witness against her husband. Cole v. Gray, ib. 79. HUSB. & WIFE.

Whether a member of a corporation may be a witness for the corporation. Corporation de Sutton Coldfield v. Wilson, 1 Vern. 254.

Cross-examining a witness by one side, in any matter tending to the merits, makes him a good witness for the other side; otherwise, liable to an exception. Id. ib.

A co-plaintiff, though but a trustee, cannot be examined as a witness for the other plaintiff. Phillips v. Dk. of Bucks, 1 Vern. 230. PR. PARTY PLAINTIFF; TRUSTEE.

An executor may be admitted to prove the revocation of any legacy, though he has proved the will. Jervais v. Duke, id. 19. EXOR.

When the executor of the grantor is a competent witness to prove the trust of a term. Cook v. Fountain, 3 Swan. 585. Id.

Wife of defendant examined as witness. Bent v. Allot, Cary, 95.

The owner of lands in a parish, in the hands of a tenant, may be a witness in a suit for tithes in that parish. Ayde v. Flower, Bunb. 7.

A witness, after being examined, becomes plaintiff, interested in the subject of his deposition; it shall be suppressed. Drury v. Drury, 10th. 146.

A solicitor ordered to be examined against his client in a case of fraud. Cutts v. Pickering, 3 C. R. 68. SOL. & CLIENT.

The inhabitant of a parish where a modus issued is insisted on, primâ facie a bad witness, if he occupies no tithable land he must shew it. Watson v. Lindset, Bun. 40. INHABITANT OF PARISH.

A trustee who is ordered to account, cannot be a witness. Smith v. Chandos, Barn. 416. TRUSTEE.

(c) Examination as to credit of.

There is no precise time beyond which witnesses cannot be discredited. Piggott v. Croxhall, 1 S. & S. 467. TIME.

Interrogatories in support of articles for purpose of discrediting witnesses, may relate to particular facts not in issue in the cause, as well as to the credit of the witnesses generally. Id. ib. PR. INTERROGATORIES TO DISCREDIT WITNESSES.

Commission to examine to credit should be executed before decree: costs given on that ground. White v. Fussell, 1 V. & B. 151. PR. COSTS.

Application for examination to credit regarded with great jealousy: confined to facts affecting credit and character only, and not material to what is in issue. Id. 153.

After publication, order for examination by general interrogatories as to the credit of a witness in the cause, and as to such particular facts only as are not material to the issue; but publication having passed five months, not to delay the hearing: the court does not previously consider whether the subject of the examination is material to the issue, but in that case will suppress the depositions. S. C. 19 Ves. 127. PR. PUBLICATION.

Examination to credit after publication where the witnesses are in the country by commission, on articles exhibited with one of the six clerks. Id. ib.

Order to examine witnesses in support of articles exhibited to discredit a witness, on notice and the six clerk's certificate, without affidavit. Watmore v. Dickinson, 2 V. & B. 267.

Examination to the credit of witness can only be by order upon special application with notice, whether before or after publication. Mill v. Mill, 12 Ves. 406.

In examination as to credit of a witness, the general question "whether he is to be believed on his oath" only, and not the circumstances leading to that belief can be asked. Carlos v. Brook, 10 Ves. 50. PR. EXAMINATION.

After publication passed, liberty given to exhibit articles as to the credit of a witness who has been cross-examined by general interrogatories, and as to such particular facts only as are not material to what is in issue in the cause. Purcell v. M'Namara, 8 Ves. 324. PR. PUBLICATION.

Depositions of witnesses examined as to credit referred for scandal and impertinence. Bray v. Bulky, Dick. 288.

Where a witness against the conduct of others is under the necessity of first exculpating her own behaviour, no regard ought to be paid to her evidence. Watkins v. Watkins, 2 Atk. 97.

(d) Demurrer to interrogatories by witness, and on what matters he is examinable.

Demurrer to interrogatory by witness on account of its tendency to render him liable to penalty, should state particularly the objectionable parts of the interrogatories. Jackson v. Munson, 1 Y. & J. 32.

The court will restrain commissioners in their examinations, upon the allegation that the object of the examinations is to procure evidence against the parties examined, as to penalties incurred by gaming.

Exp. Burton, 1 G. & J. 30. BANKCY. COMMISSIONERS, EXAMINATION BY; GAMING.

A witness objecting to answer interrogatories before the examiner or the commissioners, demurs by stating his objection on oath; his demurrer may then be set down for argument, and if overruled, the witness pays the same costs as a defendant on demurrer. Demurrer to interrogatories by an attorney overruled, without prejudice to the witness's demurring on his re-examination, stating his reasons. Parkhurst v. Lowten, 2 Swan. 194. PR. DEMURRER TO INTERROGATORIES.

A witness objecting to answer interrogatories, cannot be admitted to state by affidavit what would be the effect of his answer. Id. 213. Id.

No man can be compelled to criminate himself. Id. 214. PR. EXAMINATION TENDING TO CRIMINATE.

A witness not compelled to discover matters of which he obtained knowledge in professional confidence. The privilege, not of the attorney, but of the client; its principle and limitation. Id. 216. PROFESSIONAL CONFIDENCE.

Demurrer to interrogatory by witness, being too general, overruled, but leave given to put in written demurrer on re-examination. Morgan v. Shaw, 4 Mad. 54.

Demurrer of a witness to interrogatories inquiring after matter defamatory to a third person, and not material in the cause, allowed. Mulgrave v. Ed. Dunbar, 2 Swan. 196. PR. SCANDAL.

Motion, that demurrer to interrogatories by witness be overruled, not being supported by affidavit, refused. Parkhurst v. Lowten, 3 Mad. 121.

Witness objecting to interrogatory before examiner, must demur. Bowman v. Rodwell, 1 Mad. 266.

Witness obliged to give testimony, though it affects his civil right. Exp. Chamberlain, 19 Ves. 482.

Party demurring to the discovery, or witness refusing to answer facts tending to criminate himself, no admission to the truth of the fact. Lloyd v. Pasingham, 16 Ves. 59. PL. DISCOVERY TENDING TO CRIMINATE; ADMISSION.

Witness not compelled to answer interrogatories having a direct tendency to subject him to penalties, &c. or having such a connection with them as to form a step towards it. Patton v. Douglas, 16 Ves. 239. PL. DISCOVERY TENDING TO CRIMINATE.

In examination as to credit of a witness, the general question whether he is to be believed on his oath only, and not the circumstances leading to that belief, can be asked. Carlos v. Brook, 1 Ves. 50. WITNESS, CREDIT OF.

Attorney examined as a witness, must disclose acts done in his presence by his client, as execution of a deed, &c., not private confidential conversation with him, as the reasons for making it, &c.; on motion to suppress the depositions referred to see what part came to his knowledge as confidential attorney, in order to have that suppressed. Sanford v. Remington, 2 Ves. Jr. 189. ATT. & CLIENT.

It is not considered as a species of impertinence that many witnesses are examined to the same fact, provided the fact be material; but if it be admitted by the answer, and, therefore, not in issue in the cause, any depositions to this point would be deemed impertinent. Vaughan v. Lee, 1 Cox. 313. IMPERTINENCE.

Demurrer by witness overruled, he is to pay costs. Wardel v. Dent, 1 Dick. 334.

Though, on a demurrer to a person being examined as a witness being overruled, a subpoena cannot be taken out against him for costs, yet the court will give them upon an application by motion. Vaillant v. Dodelme, 2 Atk. 592. COSTS.

The satisfaction formerly for the non-appearance of a witness was by action only, but now the courts of law grant attachment against him. S. C. ib.

A witness cannot demur because the questions asked him are not pertinent to the matter in issue. Ashton v. Ashton, 1 Vern. 165.

Witness demurring to interrogatories because he claimed title to land, but did not set forth how nor under whom, nor swear that he had a title; demurrer overruled, and commission awarded to take oath of aged witness. Herbert v. Mayne, 2 Swan. 198.

Counsel not to be examined as to his knowledge as such. Denens v. Codrington, Cary, 100.

Solicitor of plaintiff to be examined, except as to things in his knowledge as solicitor. Kelway v. Kelway, Cary, 89.

Solicitor concerned in cause is not bound to testify, though served with process. Bird v. Lovelace, Cary, 62. S. P. Austen v. Vesey, id. 63. Hartford v. Lee, id. 63.

Matters examined to in the original cause, and publication passed or settled by the decree cannot be examined to in the cross cause. Ward v. Eyles, Mos. 377.

A witness demurred to an interrogatory because she claimed interest in the land, and disallowed because she did not answer to the interest, nor what interest she claimed. Jefferson v. Dawson, 2 C. C. 208.

(e) Attesting witness.

A witness must not only prove his own attestation, but also the execution of the deed by the person executing the deed. Hill v. Unett, 3 Mad. 370. DEED, PROOF OF.

On the trial of an issue devisavit vel non directed by this court, all the witnesses to the will should be examined. Booth v. Blundell, Coop. 136. PR. ISSUE, DEVISAVIT VEL NON.

The evidence of a witness, impeaching the instrument he has attested, as a witness to a will, denying the sanity of the devisor, &c. is admissible; but to be received with the most anxious jealousy. Howard v. Brathwaite, 1 V. & B. 202. PRINC. & AGENT; PR. ISSUE AT LAW.

Legacy to a subscribing witness to a will, though of personal property only, void under the stat. 25 G. 2. c. 6. extending to all wills and codicils. Lees v. Somersgill, 17 Ves. 508. STAT. C. OF; LEGACY.

Witness to deed must state the circumstances of the execution, the sealing and delivery. Burrows v. Lock, 10 Ves. 470. DEED.

Witness is not at liberty to contradict his attestation. In such a case other evidence from circumstances, is admissible, as where there is no witness, or the person does not exist: sealing and delivery may be presumed from proof of handwriting. Id. 474.

Proof of one of the witnesses of an old will, of whom no account could be given, dispensed with. McKenzie v. Fraser, 9 Ves. 5. WILL, PROOF OF.

A subscribing witness to a will disposing of real estate, being in Jamaica, his evidence was dispensed with. Ed. Carrington v. Payne, 5 Ves. 405.

One dead and other out of jurisdiction, proof of handwriting allowed. Banks v. Parquarson, Dick. 167.

One of three witnesses to will not to be found; but on sufficient proof will declared well executed. Binfield v. Lambert, id. 337.

But in Bird v. Butler will not declared well executed, but trusts to be performed and carried into execution. Id. note. See also Dick. 349.

On affidavit of witness's incapacity to travel, examiner ordered to attend him. Anon. 4 Mad. 463.

In directing an issue, the court will not order the examination of persons at the trial, who by the rules of the court of law could not be examined without order, except sometimes in cases where the facts in dispute rest only on the knowledge of the plaintiff and defendant. Exp. Dister, 1 Buck. 234. ISSUE AT LAW.

Guardian appointed for defendant to put in his examination, he being incapable. Att. Gen. v. Waddington, 1 Mad. 321. GUARDIAN.

Depositions of a defendant examined without service of the order for liberty so to do, cannot be read, being a surprise on the other party. Mulrany v. Dillon, 1 Ball & B. 413. PR. SERVICE OF ORDER FOR LIBERTY TO EXAMINE.

Witness cannot give as his evidence answers in writing, prepared before the examination; nor is any suggestion to him by the attorney, counsel, or any other person, during the examination, permitted; and in equity, whenever such fact is disclosed, the deposition will be suppressed. Shaw v. Lindsey, 15 Ves. 381.

Deposition suppressed, and a re-examination directed; the deposition being taken from the witness, using, during the examination, full minutes in writing, which she stated to have been originally her own, put into method by the attorney; and so came with some corrections by herself. Id. ib.

No witness ought to be examined after publication, though sworn before. Jenkinson v. Pepys, 3 Aust. 835. PR. PUBLICATION.

In this case the court gave leave to the relators to exhibit interrogatories to prove an old will; although the cases stood at the head of the paper for hearing, and the defendants did not consent. Att. Gen. v. Thurnall, 2 Cox, 2.

To plea in bar, plaintiff may reply generally and examine at large. Ord v. Huddleston, Dick. 510.

A cause went off for want of parties, with leave to amend, and the party being added, put in his answer, and plaintiff replied. On motion, defendant allowed to take out a commission to prove the modus as laid in his answer. Phillips v. Gwyn, 2 Fowl. 184.

At law a witness may refresh his memory from notes, as to dates and names, but he must not give the whole evidence from writing. Anon. Ambl. 252.

Leave given to examine witness after adjournment of cause. Bank v. Farques, Ambl. 145. Pr. Adjournment of Cause.

A party cannot examine his own witness upon a voir dire. Plummer v. May, 1 Ves. 426.

After defendant had been examined on interrogatories directed at the hearing, and publication passed, the court refused plaintiff a commission to examine witnesses in order to falsify defendant's testimony. Smith v. Turner, 3 P. W. 413.

The defendant being a weak man, and to be examined on interrogatories, the master was ordered to take such defendant's examination, lest he should unwarily admit something against himself that was not true. Piddock v. Brown, 3 P. W. 289.

A witness examined two days after publication passed, the time having been previously appointed, without thought of the day. Defendant having cross-examined the witness, the court would not suppress the deposition. Hamond v. —, 1 Dick. 50.

Plaintiff had an order to prove a deed viva voce, at the hearing; it happened that all the witnesses to the deed were dead, and plaintiff produced a witness at the hearing to prove their hands, which he could not be admitted to do; but the court put off the cause, and gave leave to examine in the office, notwithstanding publication passed. Blaxton v. Dewett, 1 E. Ch. 64.

A Jew ordered to be sworn to his answer on the Pentateuch, and the plaintiff's clerk to be present. Anon. 1 Vern. 263.

On a motion for a commission to examine an old witness after publication, who was only just discovered, the court said the rule of not examining after publication had been strict, but the court is the judge, and the examiners here, or by commission, are ministerial to the court, so he ordered a commission. London Corp. v. El. Dorset, 1 Ch. Ca. 228. In Neuland v. Horseman, 2 Ch. Ca. 74., the court allowed a commission to issue after hearing, to examine to a point not proved in the cause, but raised by the court on the hearing.

The depositions of a witness who was examined in perpet. rei mem. were suppressed on a petition after his death, and the examiner discharged and committed for foul practice and irregularity in the taking of them, the plaintiff being suffered by the examiner to instruct him, and the witness being corrupted, and as he had been examined on a trial to the same points, the plaintiff might give evidence of what he swore. Hosier v. Hart, Mos. 321. Pr. DEPOSITIONS SUPPRESSAL.

Witnesses may be examined before replication, if the plaintiff doth; not else. Anon. 2 Free. 136.

No witnesses examined before answer. Salisbury v. Hind, Cary, 63. Contra, Suffolk v. Harris, Toth. 189. Knivet v. Webb, id. 190. Molesworth v. Opie, id. 191.

(e) Examination viva voce.

Where a party has leave to examine witnesses viva voce, the names of the witnesses must be inserted in the order, and the order be served four days before such witnesses be examined, or the cause heard. Ord. Ch. Irel. 21st April, 1725. O'Keefe's Ord. 33.

There need be no notice of, or order to prove exhibits for reading any deeds or evidence that do not require proof: and all exhibits to be proved at the hearing must be inserted in the order, and no note of them be given over. Ord. Exch. 20th Feb. 1745. 2 Fowl. 189. As to what records or documents may be read as exhibits without an order. Id. 188. EXHIBITS.

Rector's books not to be proved viva voce, and leave to put off the cause, in order to prove them by interrogatories, refused. Lake v. Skinner, 1 Jac. & W. 9.

Nothing to be proved viva voce that requires more than proof of handwriting, or that admits of cross-examination. Id. 15.

Motion on a rehearing before the Ld. Ch., for leave to prove exhibits viva voce, which were not proved on hearing at the Rolls, granted, saving just exceptions. Walker v. Symonds, 3 Mer. 38. (n.)

Judge of prerogative has no authority to examine witnesses viva voce upon final hearing of a testamentary cause. Goodwin v. Giesler, 1 Ridg. L. & S. 371. JURISDICTION.

Jurisdiction of court of chancery to examine viva voce, allowed. Moore v. Aylet, Dick. 641.

As to proving exhibits viva voce, it is an established rule that you can only prove the handwriting of the person to that exhibit, or the handwriting of the witness, but cannot enter into any examination that will admit of a cross-examination. El. Pomfret v. Ld. Winsor, 2 Ves. 472. Row v. Creagh, How. Pr. Ex. Ireland, 461. But in the case of an exhibit proved at the hearing, the court would examine viva voce at the hearing, on the suggestion of any question. See Turner v. Burleigh, 17 Ves. 355.

The court will give leave to examine a witness viva voce during the hearing, or after the adjournment of the cause, to prove a deed, or that a witness to a deed is abroad. Bank v. Farques, Amb. 145.

On contradictory affidavits of same person, personal examination required. Exp. Lord, 2 Ves. 26.

The rules in respect to viva voce examinations are held extremely strict: as, for instance, in cases of wills. The court never suffers them to be proved by examinations of witnesses viva voce, for it is not sufficient to prove a signing and sealing, but the sanity of the person, and all other requisites under the statute must be proved; and this cannot be done by viva voce examinations, because defendant has a right to a cross-examination of plaintiff's witnesses. Eade v. Lingood, 1 Atk. 293. Eyles v. Ward, Mos. 379. S. P. So, in the Exchequer, no will of real estate can be proved as an exhibit. Niblett v. Daniel, 2 Fowl. 188.

Motion by defendant that certain witnesses of plaintiffs, who were to prove exhibits, might be examined viva voce at the hearing, refused. Per Ld. Ch. The constant and established proceedings of this court are on written evidence; and though there are cases of witnesses being so examined, yet they have been allowed but sparingly, and only after publication, where doubts have appeared in their depositions, and the examination has been to clear such doubts, and inform the conscience of the court. There never was a case where witnesses have been allowed to be examined at large at the hearing, and though it might be desirable to allow this, yet the fixed and settled proceedings of the court cannot be broke through for it. The utmost latitude the court have taken in this, is to allow the proving of exhibits viva voce at the hearing, but not to let in other examinations; and this is allowed only where the application is by the party who is to make use of the exhibits: but there never was a case where it was allowed on the application of the contrary party; if he be suspicious of frauds, he has notice, and may cross-examine the witnesses. Graves v. Budgett, 1 Atk. 444.

Where an infant is party, the Exchequer will not examine a witness viva voce, but the witness is to be examined on interrogatories in the office. Carleton v. Brightwell, 2 P. W. 463. INFANT.

Leave given to examine a witness viva voce, after publication, as to a particular fact, and defendant to cross-examine him. Cage v. Hunter, 1 Dick. 49.

Plaintiff had an order to prove a deed viva voce, but at the hearing it happened that all the witnesses were dead. Plaintiff produced a witness to prove their hands, but this the court would not allow: but the case was put off, and leave given to examine, notwithstanding publication had passed. Bloxton v. Drewitt, Pre. Ch. 64.

Party examined viva voce, who had been already examined as a witness on the part both of plaintiff and defendant. March v. Walker, Finch, 416. In Bishop v. Church, 2 Ves. 105. Lord Hardwicke says, the court has sometimes directed a witness to attend personally, where they have had a doubt.

Examination of witnesses viva voce at the hearing, by consent. Holles v. Carr, 3 Swan. 639.

(d) Before Master.

By 4 Geo. 4. c. 70. s. 46. 47. 48., each master may, by instrument under hand and seal, appoint a person to be his clerk during his pleasure, and such instrument being enrolled, such master's clerk shall be an officer of the court; such clerk before acting as such in the examination of witnesses, taking the oath thereby prescribed: that it shall be lawful for the master, or for such his clerk in his presence to examine all witnesses who shall be produced before him, touching any matter to which such examination shall have been directed, or arising thereout, and to take down the depositions in the usual manner.

The master, at discretion, may examine any witness viva voce. 69th Gen. Order, 3d April, 1828.

Master may examine any creditor or person coming in to claim, on written interrogatories, or viva voce, or both. 72d Gen. Order, id.

Examination of sequestrators in master's office, does not require counsel's signature. Keene v. Price, 1 S. & S. 98. PR. SEQUESTRATOR; PR. SIGNATURE OF COUNSEL.

If on reference to master in bankruptcy, he finds examination of witnesses necessary, he must make a certificate thereof to court, who will grant an order. Anon. 4 Mad. 379. PR. REFERENCE IN BANKRUPTCY.

Where a witness had been examined before the decree, and was afterwards re-examined before the master, without an order first obtained, his deposition was, on motion, of which notice was given four days after publication, suppressed with costs. The usual order was afterwards obtained for his examination on interrogatories, to be settled by the master, to matter to which he had not been before examined. Smith v. Graham, 2 Swan. 264. But where under a commission for examination of witnesses, several witnesses on defendant's part were examined by plaintiff, but defendant declined to examine them at that time, and afterwards examined them in the examiner's office, without leave of the court, motion for suppressing the depositions was refused. Pearson v. Howland, id. (n.)

Master on reference, making use of affidavits instead of interrogatories, he was directed not to proceed on the affidavits; with liberty under the circumstances to apply to court, if, by death or otherwise it became impossible to obtain, under a commission, the evidence of the persons who had made the affidavits. Tillotson v. Hargrave, 3 Mad. 494.

Under decree directing inquiries, the master cannot without an order examine a witness who had been examined in chief in the cause. Willan v. Willan, 19 Ves. 592. S. C. Coop. 291.

But if a witness's deposition be rejected at the hearing on the ground of interest, and he afterwards obtained a release, he may be examined to the same matter before the master, without a special order. Callop v. Mince, Pre. Ch. 234.

Waiver of irregularity by examining before the master, without a previous state of facts. Willan v. Willan, 19 Ves. 590. S. C. Coop. 291. See 2 Dow, P. Rep. 274. WAIVER; PR. STATE OF FACTS.

Motion before publication, that witness might be examined on his affidavit, that supposing day on which he was examined to be the last day of the examination, on that account only he submitted to be examined, without having looked at papers from which afterwards he found that he might have deposed much more fully and precisely than he had done. Order made accordingly for his re-examination upon those interrogatories to which affidavit related, court being indulgent in such cases, where witness has, by accident, not deposed that which he might have done. Kirk v. Kirk, 13 Ves. 280.

And re-examination of witness was permitted after publication, upon his own application and affidavit, to correct mistake which had arisen from a confusion between two books, as to accuracy of one of which he had deposed, intending to depose as to the other. Court, however, would not permit an entirely new examination, or that depositions should be suppressed, but confined re-examination to matter pointed out by affidavit. Id. 285.

If examination on interrogatories before master, though satisfactory to him, is not so to party in cause, order may be obtained referring examination back, that master may look into it, and see if it be sufficient; and if he reports it sufficient, an exception may be taken, stating generally that master had reported examination to be sufficient, whereas he ought to have reported it insufficient. Purcell v. M'Namara, 12 Ves. 166. S. C. 17 Ves. 434.

Evidence in the cause, though not read at the hearing, may be received by the master. Witness examined in the cause cannot be examined before the master, without leave of the court, but other persons may, and to the same points. Smith v. Althus, 11 Ves. 564.

Though a witness who has been examined in chief cannot be again examined before the master without special order, and the interrogatories being settled by the master; yet if he has been merely examined as a witness to a deed, or some such matter, the interrogatories need not be settled by the master, as it is evident then that he is not to be examined to the same matter. Birch v. Walker, 2 Scho. & L. 418.

Plaintiffs in action, and detainers on arresting of defendant returning from examination before master, ordered to discharge him. As to deviations from straight road. Sidgier v. Birch, 9 Ves. 60. PRIVILEGE FROM ARREST.

It is not now the practice in chancery to insert direction in decree, that master is at liberty to examine witnesses, but master may certify that a commission is necessary, which then issues of course. Sainford v. Bithulph, 9 Ves. 36. PR. COMMISSION TO EXAMINE WITNESSES; PR. DECREE.

On a motion for a commission to take defendant's examination, the time is left to the master, not limited by the order. Hairby v. Emmatt, 5 Ves. 683.

After a decree the master may examine witnesses, but ought not to do so by his six clerk; the same subpoena issues as to bring them before the examiner, which is the same as a subpoena to answer, but the label expresses the purpose; upon an examination in the country, the body of the writ expresses that it is to testify. Parkinson v. Ingram, 3 Ves. 603. PR. SUBPOENA AD TEST.

An interested witness having given an insufficient release, his evidence was rejected, and a reference was directed, and the parties examined. The above witness, since the hearing, delivered an effectual release, and he was then tendered to the master. Under the circumstances he was allowed to be examined again, but the master to settle the interrogatories. Sandford

v. Paul, 2 Dick. 750. 1 Ves. J. 308. 3 Bro. C. C. 370. In Callon v. Mims, 2 Vern. 472. Pres. Chan. 234, held that witness, whose evidence was rejected at hearing, but who afterwards obtained release, might be examined again before master to same matter, without order of court. It is no objection to a witness who was disinterested at time of his examination, that he became interested afterwards. Brown v. Greenly, 2 Dick. 504. Hand v. Hand, 2 Atk. 615. And see Baugh v. Holloway, 1 P. W. 557.

By a decree the master was ordered to take an account of what certain articles were worth; when the parties went before him, he refused to receive interrogatories from defendant as to the real value of the goods, on the ground that the point had been in issue, and might have been examined to before; but on application to the court, he was directed to receive these interrogatories, the decree implying that he was to receive evidence as to the value. Hough v. Williams, 3 Bro. C. C. 190.

A master is at liberty under the usual order, to examine parties visu voce, after he has examined them on interrogatories, if not satisfied with the former examination. Exp. Sunderson, 2 Cox, 196.

On a reference to a master in bankruptcy, with liberty for him to examine parties on interrogatories, if he should think fit, it seems, that if the master should decline to examine any party when required so to do, he should state the grounds on which he declined to do so. Exp. Charter, 2 Cox, 168. PR. REFERENCE TO MASTER IN BANKCY.

A commission for examination of witnesses to falsify examination of party before master, will not be granted without certificate from master of necessity of such commission. Bearcroft v. Berkeley, 2 Cox, 108.

Witnesses examined in the cause shall not be again examined before the master, without leave of the court. Vaughan v. Lloyd, 1 Cox, 312.

Witness not to be re-examined before a master to the same matter to which he has been examined in chief, but by order. Sawyer v. Rowyer, 1 Bro. C. C. 338. PR. RE-EXAMON. BEFORE MASTER.

Witness examined in chief before hearing, cannot be examined before master without special order, and then not on any other matters he had been before examined to, or wherein interested: master to settle interrogatories. Browning v. Barton, Dick. 500.

Defendant who has been examined before master on account decreed, may be re-examined on new interrogatories, without order. Cornish v. Acton, 1 Dick. 149.

Framing of interrogatories on bill to perpetual testimony, (which had been suppressed as leading) appearing to have been inadvertent, and defendant being an infant, leave given for re-examination of same witness before master. Arundell v. Pitt, Amb. 585.

On bill to be relieved against bonds obtained by fraud and imposition, all parties were ordered be examined: Plaintiff being a weak man and easily prevailed on to say or admit any thing, court directed that in case interrogatories should be exhibited against him by defendant, master should take care to examine him in person, so that no advantage should be taken of his weakness. Piddock v. Brown, 3 P. W. 288.

The master examined one witness three times to the matter of accounts: ordered, that the depositions be suppressed. Atton, 2 C. C. 79.

The usual order for taxation empowers the master to examine the solicitor as to what money he had received only; but, upon proper affidavits, the court will order him to be examined as to his disbursements. And. Mos. 331. PR. TAXATION; SOLICITOR.

And where after an order of taxation and payment the solicitor has signed his bill to a purchaser and absconded, the court was inclined to think that the purchaser could not stand in place of the solicitor until he had procured him to be examined under the order. Wilson v. Williams, Burn. 263. PR. TAXATION; SOLICITOR.

(c) Examiner.

By 4 Geo. 4. c. 7. s. 42, 43, it is enacted, that in all cases of examinations of witnesses in chancery (other than the examinations of witnesses before the examiners), an order shall be made for referring it to a master, to approve of and appoint a proper person to act as examiner in all such cases so referred; and such persons so appointed, shall, as far as is practicable, be totally unconnected with any of the parties interested in the cause, and shall be and be considered an officer of the court, and a commission shall issue to such person, authorising him to proceed in the examination in the same manner and forms as at present established as to the examination of witnesses by commission, except in cases where the established practice is altered by the act. Every person so appointed a commissioner, before acting, shall take the oath prescribed by the act; such oath to be annexed to, and returned with the commission to the court, to be there filed and recorded. Such commissioner may, if required by the opposite party, cross-examine the witness on his behalf; the fees to be received by such commissioners to be regulated by the orders of the court. And, by s. 44, it is further provided that the chief examiners of the said court shall appoint no deputy, unless the person to be appointed shall have been approved of by the court, upon petition and affidavit; and that nothing shall be considered as a fit occasion for the appointment of such deputy, but the illness or unavoidable absence of the principal; such order to be regularly entered in the Registrar's office, and no such appointment to continue for any longer time than shall be allowed, or directed by such order, either by fixing a precise time, or by some general words, or by reference to some matter capable of being distinctly ascertained, or in such other manner as the court shall think proper; any appointment otherwise made, or for any longer period, to be deemed a contempt of court in the principal examiner, and in his deputy, if he shall act therein. And by s. 45, that every examiner, deputy examiner, and commission examiner shall take down the depositions of all witnesses on their examination with his own hand; and that no clerk shall be present at such examination; and every clerk employed before publication, so as to have access to the depositions, is first to take the oath prescribed by the act. By stat. 50 Geo. 3. c. 8, power is given to the Ld. Ch. and M. R., if the increase of the business should render it necessary, to appoint two additional examiners, and to settle the duties of the examiner and distribution of the business of the office, directing also that the business shall be equally divided, as near as may be, between the examiners; and that the witnesses on different sides shall, (if practicable) be examined by different examiners. See Turner v. Burleigh, 17 Ves. 354.

Examiner in chief may also cross-examine. 26 Gea. Order, 3d April, 1828.

The same examiner not to examine and cross-examine the same witness, nor to act on behalf of both parties. Gen. Rule, 1st March, 1806. 2 Scho. & L. 739. See case supra.

Motion, upon an affidavit of witness's incapacity to attend an examination, that the examiner might be directed to wait upon the witness, and take his examination, granted. Anon. 4 Mad. 463.

Examiners of this court have no authority to examine witnesses at a greater distance from London than ten miles, unless by consent, and such consent must be express. Pratt v. Ward, 2 Price, 81.

They may examine witnesses brought from any part of kingdom; but quære, whether subpoena lies to bring them to London. Id. ib.

If examiner be named in commission in country to examine, he may be struck off. Id. ib. 84.

In Reilly v. Reilly, 11ow. Pr. Ex. Irel. 593. it is said, that on complaint of an irregular examination, an examiner has been ordered to answer personal interrogatories, and not admitted to have a copy of them.

Question concerning examiner's right to take depositions in the country. Frankland v. Frankland, Dick. 231.

Commission to examine in perpet. mem. granted to examiner of court. Barantine v. Harbert, Cary, 43.

(f) Examination de bene esse.

No commission de bene esse to be applied for until process be first taken out on the bill; and where the parties have not appeared, and are in the kingdom, they are to have notice of the time and place of the speeding of such commission; and if the nature of the case will not permit the usual notice of speeding commissions, the court will, on application, make proper order. Ord. Ch. Ir. 12th Feb. 1726. O'Keeffe's Ord. 32.

Motion of course to examine de bene esse a witness above seventy or in a dangerous state, or the only witness. Tomkins v. Harrison, 6 Mad. 315.

On demurrer allowed to bill for commission to examine de bene esse, the plaintiff having on an ex parte application obtained order to examine witnesses, was ordered to pay to the defendants, besides the usual costs of demurrer, the costs of the depositions, but not those taken on cross-examination. Devo v. Clarke, 1 S. & S. 115. Pr. Costs.

Where witness is above seventy years old it is motion of course to examine de bene esse, even before appearance, and it is no objection that reference of bill for impertinence is pending. Prichard v. Gee, 5 Mad. 364.

After commission to examine abroad was sent, witness, before commission had reached, its destination, returned to England, and motion made to examine him de bene esse, but refused; and held that bill must be amended. Atkins v. Palmer, 5 Mad. 19. Pr. BILL, AMENDMENT OF; Pr. COMMIS. TO EXAMINE ABROAD.

Distinction between examination to perpetuate and de bene esse. In a suit for the former purpose, after the examination, there is an end to the issue, Morrison v. Arnold, 19 Ves. 671. Pr. BILL TO PERPETUATE.

Examination de bene esse not extended beyond the cases of a single witness, the age of seventy and dangerous illness, therefore, not to the case of a prisoner charged with a capital felony. Anon. 19 Ves. 321.

If the witness is proposed to be examined with a view to reading his testimony in a suit in this court, the order for his examination may be obtained on motion in that suit and affidavit; but if his testimony is wanted in an action at law, a bill must first be filed for his examination de bene esse, with the proper affidavits annexed; and an application is then made to the court by motion, for the order wanted; also the order may be obtained before appearance, after defendant has been served with a subpoena. Wilson v. Wilson, Newl. Pr. 286.

Examination de bene esse, granted to plaintiffs in a bill to perpetuate testimony after subpoena served, but before appearance of infant defendants, in contempt by the messenger's return that they had absconded and were not to be found, on affidavit of the materiality of the evidence and danger of its loss, and undertaking to proceed with all due diligence, to issue and examination in chief to be proved before publication of the depositions de bene esse. Frere v. Green, 19 Ves. 319.

Witnesses having been examined de bene esse, with the view to a trial at law, the examination of another witness is not permitted without strong circumstances; as upon a second ejectment brought after verdict for the defendant, the examination of a witness, produced at the trial, who had not been examined under a bill to perpetuate testimony, was permitted; not as to other witnesses. Palmer v. La. Aglesbury, 15 Ves. 299.

Upon a question of legitimacy depending upon a chain of distinct circumstances in the knowledge of different individuals, and the defendant, an infant, kept out of the way, an examination de bene esse would have been granted, though not within any of the three cases, viz. witnesses of the age of seventy, or quitting the kingdom, or a fact depending on a single witness. Shelley v. —, 12 Ves. 56. INFANT.

Examination de bene esse, where the witness is above the age of seventy, or is the only witness to a particular fact; refused upon affidavit of the agent to his information from the witness that he can prove the fact, and belief that no other person can prove it. Rowe v. —, 13 Ves. 261.

There are certain cases in which this order is made of course, as on the ground of age. Rowe v. —, supra. But if you come on a case that you cannot arrange in that class, you must give notice. Bellamy v. Jones, 8 Ves. 31. The affidavit must be, either that the witness is seventy, or is the only witness to a particular fact, or is dangerously ill. Bellamy v. Jones, id. Or is going abroad. Shelley v. —, 12 Ves. 56.

Order after verdict upon an issue to examine de bene esse, a witness above seventy, suggesting an intent to move for a new trial. Anon. 6 Ves. 573.

Notice must be given to the party before an examination de bene esse should be proceeded on, so as to give him an opportunity of joining in the commission, or the depositions will be suppressed. Loveden v. Ld. Milford, 4 Bro. C. C. 540.

Two witnesses ordered to be examined de bene esse, being the only persons who knew material facts. El. Chalmondeley v. El. Orford, 4 Bro. C. C. 157.

After answer, defendants obtained order to examine de bene esse, but before commission could issue, plaintiffs replied, and defendants rejoined, and wishing to save expense of commission de bene esse, defendants moved that plaintiffs might issue a commission in a week, and give six days' notice of executing it, which defendants would consent to accept, or that in default, defendants might issue commission. But court thought time too limited, and gave plaintiffs three weeks to issue the commission. Atwood v. Hurrit, 2 Fowl. 126.

Motion that a witness be examined de bene esse, being the only witness to a material fact, granted. Hankin v. Middleditch, 2 Bro. C. C. 641.

Witness examined de bene esse, upon the sole ground of his being the only person in whose knowledge a material fact was. Bridges v. Hatch, 1 Cox, 423.

It is a ground for examining a witness de bene esse, that he is the only witness to some material fact in the court, although he be neither aged nor infirm. But the affidavit should state the particular points to which his evidence is meant to apply. Pearson v. Ward, 1 Cox, 177. S. C. Dick. 648.

Defendant cannot be examined after his answer is replied to. Winter v. Kent, Dick. 595.

Witness going to the West Indies examined, but he being in Ireland must be examined in chief. Birt v. White, Dick. 473.

Scotland out of jurisdiction. Witness going there may be examined de bene esse. Botts v. Verelst, Dick. 454.

Witness examined de bene esse becoming interested, his depositions to be taken. Brown v. Greenby, Dick. 504.

Where defendant prevents plaintiff rejoining from standing out processes of contempt, plaintiff is entitled to examine de bene esse. Coveney v. Athill, Dick. 355.

Witnesses examined de bene esse in Sweden: council of Sweden refused to let a commission be executed for examining them in chief, the depositions de bene esse may be read. Gasson v. Wordsworth, Amb. 108. S. C. 2 Ves. 325. 336. Pr. Evid.

Rule for examination of witnesses de bene esse, dispensed with on account of parties living in Virginia. Fitzhugh v. Lee, Amb. 65.

Leave given to sue out a commission to examine persons obliged to go abroad, de bene esse, defendants to have four days' notice of executing the commission. Lee-Dicher v. Power, 1 Dick. 112.

An affidavit of the death or absence beyond sea of the witness is necessary before examinations de bene esse can be published. Ward v. Jones, Ridg. 193. Pr. Publication.

Motion on behalf of plaintiffs, that two of their captains, sworn to be material witnesses who were going to India, and not likely to return in less than eight months, might be examined de bene esse, refused, because the witnesses were plaintiffs' servants, and they might keep them at home if they pleased, and because defendant would not, from the shortness of the time, be prepared to cross-examine. E. I. Comp. v. Naish, Bunb. 320. 2 Fowl. 127. S. C.

A witness ordered to be examined de bene esse, where the thing examined into lay only in the knowledge of the witness, and was a matter of great importance, though the witness was not proved to be old or infirm. Shirley v. Ferrers, 3 P. W. 77. S. C. Mos. 389.

The reason why court allows taking of depositions de bene esse, is either from contempt of party in not answering, and thereby preventing joining of issue, or else where party is in danger of losing his witnesses in case of death, by reason of sickness or age, so that there may be ground to apprehend their not living, to be examined in chief; but if these witnesses do live, and are examined in chief, their depositions de bene esse fall to the ground. Cann v. Cann, 1 P. W. 567, 568.

The court cannot make an order to examine a plaintiff de bene esse, saving just exceptions, though they will make such order to examine a defendant; but the defendant ought to have demurred to such immaterial plaintiff: if a corporation would make use of one of their own members as a witness they must disfranchise him. Mayor, &c. of Colchester v. —, 1 P. W. 595. PARTY PLAINTIFF; WITNESS, COMPETENCY OF.

Plaintiffs guardian may be examined de bene esse. Payne v. Bosgrave, 2 Fowl. 125. Hockley v. Butler, id. Ashley v. Ashley, id. So on behalf of defendant. Groyner v. Gale, Id. 463.

Although it is an order of course to examine a defendant de bene esse, saving such exceptions, yet when the cause is heard; and it appears such defendant is a party interested, it is proper to shew cause against such an order before the witnesses examined. Glover v. Faulkner, 1 Vern. 452.

Plaintiff's witnesses being old, examined before defendant's answer. Bagnold v. Greene, Cary, 48.

(g) Pro interesse suo.

No jurisdiction to compel party to be examined pro interesse suo. Kaye v. Cunningham, 5 Mad. 406. JURISDICTION.

Where the goods of a third person are seized by sequestrators, an order to examine pro interesse suo will be made; and if the goods taken are found to belong to the party so applying, a reference to ascertain his damages will be granted. Copeland v. Mape, 2 Ball & B. 66. Pr. SEQUESTRATION.

Tenants dispossessed by injunction of lands held by lease from defendant, executed prior to the institution of the suit in which they were not parties, on application, to be restored to the possession, are not to be examined pro interesse suo: such order set aside, and the plaintiff directed to proceed by ejectment to recover the lands. Order to examine pro interesse suo, only made to ascertain priority of incumbrances, or where an interest is claimed in estates in possession of receivers or sequestrators. Dunlop v. Farrell, 1 Ball & B. 122. LANDLORD & TENANT.

Upon sequestration, mortgagees must come in to be examined pro interesse suo. Anon. 6 Ves. 268. Pr. SEQUESTRATION; MORTGAGOR & MORTGAGEE.

No examination pro interesse suo, before the sequestrators have made a return. Ld. Pelham v. Dr. Newcastle, 3 Swan. 290. PR. SEQUESTRATION.

Examination pro interesse suo, is conclusive, if not replied to. Att. Gen. v. Mayor of Coventry, 3 Swan. 311.

Order for leave to exhibit interrogatories to falsify examination, pro interesse suo, obtained by motion of counsel. Rowley v. Ridley, 3 Swan. 308. PR. EXHIBITING INTERROGATORIES; PR. MOTION OF COURSE.

On examination of parties pro interesse suo, leave given to exhibit interrogatories to falsify an examination as of course. Id. 2 Bro. C. C. 15.

Orders made that a mortgagee and a person claiming property in goods sequestered might be examined pro interesse suo before the deputy remembrancer. Mackenzie v. Powis, 1 Fowl. 192, 193. Marten v. Willis, id. 181.

Court will order person to be examined pro interesse suo against receiver, as well as against sequestrator. Gomme v. West, id. 472.

A person having been examined pro interesse suo, was permitted to prosecute and make out her right in forma pauperis. Juue v. Dore, 2 Dick. 780. PR. PAUPER.

A party claiming to have a mortgage on an estate prior to plaintiff's right, was ordered to come in and be examined pro interesse suo; and on his neglecting to put in his examination, an order was made on him to do so, and to procure a report in a fortnight. On the report being made, his claim was allowed, and costs given him. Cooper v. Thornton, 3 Dick. 72. Bowles v. Parsons, id. 142. S. P.

(h) Cross-examination.

No examiner to examine and cross-examine the same witness; and no examiner, having been employed on behalf of one party, to act afterwards on behalf of the opposite party. Ord. Ch. Irel. 1st March, 1806. O'Keeffe's Ed. 103. By Ord. Ch. Irel. 20th May, 1816, this order is extended to the extra commissioners for the examination of witnesses in England, appointed under the statute 55 Geo. 3. c. 257. but see contra, 26th Gen. Ord. 3rd April, 1820.

Where cross-interrogatories are exhibited before commissioners, and witnesses examined thereto, the commissioners shall put the initial letters of their names to each of such cross-interrogatories. Ord. Ch. Irel. 27th Feb. 1740. Id. 55.

Before any cross-examination can take place, the cross-interrogatories must be first regularly entered in the register's office, and certified by counsel. Ord. Ch. Irel. 19th March, 1798. Id. 88.

A party who omits to cross-examine a witness under a commission at the usual period, will be allowed to exhibit interrogatories for that purpose on a subsequent day. Carter v. Draper, 2 Sim. 52.

The refusal of a witness to be cross-examined is no reason for suppressing his deposition, but the adverse party must at the same time enforce such right of cross-examination as he has. Courtenay v. Hoskins, 2 Russ. 253. PR. SUPPRESSION OF DEPOSITIONS.

Party examining witness is bound to keep him in town 48 hours after his production at seat of adverse clerk in court, and if cross-interrogatories are left with examiner within 48 hours, party must keep him in town till cross-examination is finished; and if witness departs, party must bring him back at his own expense. Cross-examination in chief will be suppressed. Whittuck v. Lysaght, 1 S. & S. 446. WITNESS, PRODUCTION OF.

Commission to examine witnesses abroad executed and returned; the defendant, who had not interrogatories prepared, not having had the opportunity of cross-examining, a new commission granted for that purpose; the defendant to state whom he wishes, and undertakes to cross-examine; but the plaintiff's depositions not suppressed. Campbell v. Scougal, 19 Ves. 552. PR. COMMISSION TO EXAMINE ABROAD.

In equity, objection to the competence of a witness from interest not waived by cross-examination. Moorhouse v. De Passon, 19 Ves. 433. S. C. Coop. 300. PR. WITNESS, COMPET. OF; WAIVER.

Cross-examination as to the execution of deeds. Order in alternative, that the examiner with whom they were should cross-examine, or that they should be delivered to the examiner for the other party for that purpose. Power of the court of chancery to examine  viva voce. Turner v. Burlingame, 17 Ves. 354.

A witness died before cross-examination; but as the cross-interrogatories which the court ordered to be read de bene esse at the hearing, did not go to any points to which he had been examined in chief, nor to his credit, but to matters capable of proof from other witnesses, his depositions were allowed to be read. O'Callaghan v. Murphy, 2 Sch. & Lef. 158.

Practice, that if the defendant to a bill for discovery and a commission, examine in chief, instead of confining himself to cross-examination, he shall not have costs. Anon. 8 Ves. 70. COSTS; DISCOVERY.

Witness examined in chief, but before cross-examination secretes himself, unless produced a fortnight after notice, his depositions suppressed. Flowerday v. Collet, Dick. 288.

Defendant having examined B, his clerk in court, plaintiff exhibited interrogatories to cross-examine him, to which he demurred, for that he knew nothing but as defendant's clerk in court, or agent. Demurrer overruled, as covering too much, for it ought to conclude that he knew nothing but by the information of his client. Vaillant v. Dodomead, 2 Atk. 524. PROFESSIONAL SECRECY; PL. DEMURRER.

Where at law the party calls upon his attorney for a witness, the other side may cross-examine him to the point in the cause. Id. ib.

Counsel, solicitor, or attorney may be privileged from being examined in such cases, but not an agent. Demurrer to examination, as being counsel for the opposite party, was overruled, for that what he knew was as conveyancer only. Id. ib.

Where a defendant cross-examines plaintiff's witnesses, he is precluded from afterwards moving to suppress their depositions in chief. Bland v. Archbp. of Armagh, 3 Bro. P. C. 620.

Adverse party may cross-examine witness to same point to which he is produced, but not to new matter. Dean, &c. of Ely v. Stewart, 2 Atk. 44. S. C. Barn. 170.

On a similar motion ex parte, the court ordered the witnesses to be produced, plaintiff to give a note of what witnesses they had examined, and defendant to give a note of which of them they would have produced to be cross-examined. Spalding v. Brugham, 2 Fowl. 158. Johnston v. Carruthers, id. 159. S. P.

On motion to suppress plaintiff's deposition for not producing his witnesses to be cross-examined, a new commission was ordered, defendant to have the carriage of it; the depositions of such witnesses already examined by plaintiff, as he would produce for cross-examination, to stand; the others to stand suppressed. Charlton v. Robson, 2 Fowl. 158.

If one of the parties, after publication passed, has an order to examine upon the usual affidavit, the other party may not only cross-examine, but examine at large. Anon. 1 Vern. 253.

Cross-examining witnesses, not only as to questions barely whether they were of a corporation or not, but to other questions involving the merits, makes them good witnesses for the corporation, though they were members of it. Sutton Coldfield Corp. v. Wilson, 1 Vern. 254. Charit. Corp. v. Sutton, 2 Atk. 403. S. P.

A witness examined for plaintiff died before he could be cross-examined; yet his depositions ordered to stand. Arundel v. Arundel, 1 Ch. R. 90.

(i) Further, or re-examination.

In support of a charge brought in under the decree, two witnesses, examined by the plaintiff to prove the defendant's handwriting, said that they did not believe it to be his handwriting. Leave was given to the plaintiff to examine fresh witnesses to the same point. Greenwood v. Parsons, 2 Sim. 229. CHARGE & DISCHARGE.

Where publication has passed, and the cause in the paper for hearing, the plaintiff, upon motion, paying the costs of the application, will be allowed to examine witnesses to the execution of a will. Coley v. Coley, 2 Y. & J. 44. PUBLICATION.

If, after the defendant has put in his examination to the usual interrogatories before the master, the plaintiff discovers that the defendant has received sums not mentioned in his examination, the master is at liberty to receive a new state of facts, and further interrogatories founded upon them, without order of court. Sidden v. Forster, 1 S. & S. 335. PR. FURTHER INTERROGATORIES; PR. STATE OF FACTS.

Where, after depositions have been suppressed for irregularity, a re-examination is permitted, all the same witnesses must be examined and cross-examined. Perry v. Silvester, 1 Jac. 83. PR. SUPPRESSAL OF DEPOSITIONS.

Witness cannot, under any circumstances, be re-examined, so as to adduce additional testimony. Ashbee v. Shipley, 5 Mad. 467.

Master may re-examine witness who had been examined before decree, as to different matters, without a fresh order: but not to the same matters without fresh order; and such order only made in case of accident or surprise. Swinford v. Home, 5 Mad. 379.

Where re-examination of witness would open the way to perjury, it was refused. Bolt v. Birch, id. 66.

In a suit to perpetuate testimony, motion for a further examination of witnesses, as to facts lately discovered, refused, on the ground that a demurrer to a supplemental bill for the same purpose had been allowed. Knight v. Knight, 1 Jac. & W. 165. DEMURRER; PR. BILL TO PERPETUATE.

Demurrer to interrogatory by witness, being too general, overruled, but leave given to put in written demurrer on re-examination. Morgan v. Shaw, 4 Mad. 64. PR. DEMURRER TO INTERROGATORIES BY WITNESS.

Persons who, with the knowledge of the plaintiff, had entered into a subscription to defray the costs of the suit, having been examined by the plaintiff, the defendant, on an application as soon as he obtained a knowledge of that fact, was permitted to exhibit new interrogatories to the witnesses for the purpose of proving it; and a motion by the plaintiff to discharge that order, or obtain leave for exhibiting new interrogatories, to prove the execution of releases to the former witnesses, and for re-examining the former witnesses on the former interrogatories, was refused with costs. Vaughan v. Wrayell, 4 Swan. 395.

Re-examination of a witness before publication, refused, the application being for liberty to explain and correct his former evidence; and the affidavit being that he had omitted to state a material circumstance. Ld. Abergavenny v. Powell, 1 Mer. 330.

After examination under decree before the master concluded, or made known, further examination not permitted, without an order on surprise clearly established. Willan v. Willan, 19 Ves. 690. S. C. Coop. 291. See 2 Dow. P. Rep. 274.

After publication no further examination, without leave, not obtained without great difficulty, and generally confined to some particular facts. Id. 592. PR. PUBLICATION.

Re-examination not of course, but in the discretion of the court, on special application. Order after decree, on behalf of a defendant, for the examination of another defendant upon interrogatories, who had been examined and cross-examined, restrained to such of the points in the cause to which he had been examined, as the master should think reasonable. Interrogatories for examination of a party settled by the master. Purcell v. M'Namara, 17 Ves. 434. PR. INTERROGATORIES.

Order before publication for re-examining a witness upon his affidavit, that, through mistake as to the time, he submitted to be examined, without looking at papers, which enabled him to answer more fully and precisely. Kirk v. Kirk, 13 Ves. 280. PR. PUBLICATION.

Re-examination of a witness after publication, upon his own application and affidavit to correct mistake, but confined to that, the court not permitting the whole deposition to be suppressed, and an entirely new examination. Id. ib.

Witnesses examined in the cause re-examined before the master upon different interrogatories, by order. Greenaway v. Adams, 13 Ves. 360.

Witness examined in chief not to be examined again to the account, without special order, and the interrogatories to be settled by a master. Birch v. Walker, 2 Scho. & L. 518.

Examination after publication as confined to general credit, and to facts, not material to what is in issue in the cause. Carlos v. Brook, 10 Ves. 49. PR. PUBLICATION.

Witness examined before decree, but then accidentally and without fraud, incompetent, on motion allowed to be generally re-examined after decree, upon interrogatories, to be settled by the master; but if competent at first, second examination can be only to matter substantially different. Sandford v. Paul, 1 Ves. J. 398. S. C. 3 Bro. C. C. 370. Dick. 760.

Where a cause stands over to make or add new defendants, and on amendment, publication is open, it seems that all the parties may enter into a new examination, and that a new examination of a defendant to original bill may be read against another defendant. Archer v. Pope, 2 Ves. 523.

Witness examined at trial of ejectment, new ejectment brought, she was examined to perpetuate upon same interrogatories as former witnesses, and her testimony to be perpetuated. James v. Newman, Dick. 338.

Depositions of a witness being too general, he was directed to be examined upon interrogatories before a master. Bishop v. Church, 2 Ves. 100.

The deposition of a witness examined previously to the decree, on his re-examination before the master, without an order for that purpose, suppressed with tion, of which notice was given four days after publication. The usual order was afterwards obtained for his re-examination on interrogatories, to be settled by the master, to matters to which he had not been before examined. Smith v. Graham, 2 Swan. 264. PR. EVID. DEPOSITIONS, SUPPRESSION OF; PR. WITNESS.

Under a commission for the examination of witnesses, several witnesses on the part of the defendant, having appeared and been examined by the plaintiff, the defendant then declining to examine them, their depositions on a subsequent examination by the defendant in the examiner's office, without leave of the court, not suppressed. Pearson v. Rowland, 2 Swan. 266. Id.

Answer of witness insufficient, examined again. Fish v. Mountford, Cary, 82.

Witnesses ad informandum conscientiam, shall never be appointed to be taken but upon hearing, (ubi iudex dubitat), but yet witnesses examined after publication not fit to be published, may be fit to be ad inform. consci. if it be thought meet on the hearing. Id. 27.

Witnesses examined upon new interrogatories, after a commission to counterprove a man's testimony at law, upon which a verdict passed. Taitor v. Taitor, id. 191.

Examination of witnesses after hearing, to prove a court roll. Veizey v. Veizey, id. 192.

Where a suit had been dismissed in the exchequer, but without prejudice either in law or equity, upon a new suit in chancery, the parties were at liberty to examine new witnesses, though to the same matter, and re-examine the former witnesses de bene esse. Anon. 1 C. C. 155.

The court is to judge where it will allow examination after publication, and it was allowed for the purpose of examining a witness eighty years old, not discovered till after the hearing. Mayor of London v. Ek Dorset, 1 C. C. 228.

Witness examined to the damages on breach of covenant, not re-examined on the same interrogatory, although speaking in the first uncertainly. Ingleit v. Ingleit, 2 C. C. 217.

A witness alleged he had mistaken himself at a commission; the commission being returned, he came to London, and made oath that he was surprised. A special commission issued to re-examine the witnesses, which was done accordingly, but this special commission was superseded by motion, by advice of the master of the rolls, with the six clerks, as contrary to the course of the court. Randal v. Richford, 1 C. C. 25.

Plaintiff having put in an examination reported insufficient by master, defendant held entitled to reference, to tax costs in respect of it. Hubbard v. Hewlitt, 2 Mal. 469. PR. COSTS.

Order for examining a defendant by a co-defendant on the allegation of no interest in the matter to be examined to; that being the true construction of the general form, that he is not interested, or not in the matters in question in the cause; and any objection to his evidence must be taken at the hearing. Murray v. Strodwell, 2 V. & B. 401. CO-DEFENDANT.

Ground of permitting defendant to be examined for a co-defendant, that the plaintiff might unite distinct claims with the view of depriving the parties of each other's evidence. Ground of the practice requiring, for the examination of a defendant by a co-defendant, a general allegation of no interest, or none in the matters in question in the cause, that though he may have no direct interest in the subject of examination, he may in the result have an interest in that subject, the effect, perhaps, of that examination. Id. ib.

Examination of defendants, executors, to interrogatories exhibited by the plaintiff, (a co-executor), under a decree to account, taken by commission, and returned to the six clerks' office, being for the benefit of all parties, the other defendants, creditors and legatees, entitled to the benefit of it, and to take copies. *Dyott v. The depositions of a defendant, where there was no service of the order for leave to examine him, cannot be read, as it was a surprise on the other parties. Mulvany v. Dillon, 1 Ball & B. 413.

Order by one defendant to examine another not of course after, as before a decree. In a special case, to ascertain who actually received money, all the trustees having signed the receipt, the court refused to discharge the order made two years before, but required the examination without delay. Franklyn v. Colquhoun, 16 Ves. 218. PARTY DEF.

Order on motion of defendant, for examination of plaintiff, saving just exceptions, the plaintiff consenting to be examined. Walker v. Wingfield, 15 Ves. 178.

The examination of an executor under the usual decree for an account, ought to contain an interrogatory whether he is indebted to the testator, the debt from himself being assets; liberty was therefore, given, upon the suggestion of co-defendants legatees, without affidavit, to exhibit an interrogatory, for that purpose, not to go into an account which must be for the subject of distinct bill. Simmons v. Gyle, ridge, 13 Ves. 262. PR. DEFENDANT TO ACCOUNT; EXECUTOR.

Where leave is given to strike out a co-plaintiff's name as next friend, his evidence, being necessary, it is on the terms that he give security for the costs incurred in his time. Witty v. Campbell, 12 Ves. 493.

Upon a motion for a commission to take defendant's examination, the time is left to the master; not limited by the order. Hairby v. Emmat, 5 Ves. 683.

An order to examine a defendant as a witness, saving just exceptions, is a motion of course, and although such orders are usually drawn up on a suggestion that the party had no interest, yet that is not essential to obtaining the order; the question how far the party was a competent witness must be raised at the hearing, and when the deposition is offered to be read in evidence. Lee v. Atkinson, 2 Cox, 413. Franklyn v. Colquhoun, 16 Ves. 218. Murray v. Shadwell, 2 V. & B. 401. S. P.

The original bill was filed by three partners, who afterwards became bankrupt; the assignees, under the commission, being desirous of examining one of the bankrupts as a witness, it was ordered, that they should be at liberty to amend the bill by striking out the name of the bankrupts as a plaintiff, and then to examine him as a witness. Ewer v. Atkinson 2 Cox, 393. AMENDMENT; BANKRUPT.

Plaintiff may examine defendant as a witness, saving just exceptions, but then plaintiff should not reply to his answer, or having replied to it, the replication may, on motion, be amended, by striking out such defendant's name. Hardcastle v. Shafto, 2 Fowl. 100.

But in Crookhall v. Smith, id. 101., a defendant was ordered to be examined as a witness to prove the execution of deeds, after his answer had been replied to, where he was an executor only, and not a defendant in his own right.

Defendant examined as a witness; bill dismissed as to him with costs. Weymouth v. Boyer, 1 Ves. J. 417. PARTY DEFENDANT; COSTS.

Evidence of a plaintiff being necessary, and defendant refusing to consent to his examination, the bill on motion amended by making him a defendant, and replication withdrawn on terms of costs, amending defendant's copy, and requiring no further answer. Mottent v. Mackreth, id. 142. PR. PARTY PLAINTIFF; PR. AMENDMENT.

Plaintiff, by examining defendant as a witness, precludes himself from obtaining any relief by decree against him; and if, from the nature of the case, that defendant would be primarily liable to plaintiff, and another defendant only in a secondary degree, the plaintiff has lost his remedy altogether. Thompson v. Harrison, 1 Cox, 344. PRIN. & SURETY.

Though defendant cannot in general examine plaintiff as a witness, because it is contrary to rule, and because if he were an immaterial plaintiff, he might demur; yet in this case, defendant having sworn plaintiff to be a material witness, court gave him leave to examine him. Troughton v. Gellay, Dick. 382. But in Hewatson v. Tooke, id. 799., court reprobated this case as contrary to all rule and principle.

But defendant may examine a co-plaintiff by consent of plaintiff. Whately v. Smith, id. 650.

A plaintiff afterwards becoming bankrupt, though he had obtained his certificate and given a release, and the suit continued by his assignees, was not allowed to be examined as a witness, because being still a plaintiff, he was liable to costs. Hewatson v. Tooke, id. 799.

Defendant cannot be examined after his answer is applied to. Winter v. Kent, id. 595.

A trustee plaintiff in a bill to have the direction of the court, may be examined on behalf of a defendant. Armiter v. Suggett, Amb. 392.

A party to a cause may be examined on new interrogatories, in the master's office, without a new order, the master being the proper judge. In the case of a witness it is different; for under a commission to examine, there must be a new order for new interrogatories. Conclude v. Cornish, 2 Ves. 270.

The depositions of one defendant cannot be read on behalf of another, where the former is at all concerned in interest, or a decree can be made against them; though in equity a plaintiff or co-defendant may examine a defendant, yet it is on a suggestion that the party is not interested, and saving all just exceptions from the nature of the suit, or in case of the evidence materially affecting him. Dixon v. Parker, id. 219.

Defendant's examination insufficient; plaintiff died; suit revived; master ordered to tax costs of insufficient examination. Lyne v. Ably, Dick. 143.

Party, in his examination, may charge and discharge himself in the same sentence, but not in different sentences. Kirkpatrick v. Love, Amb. 588.

You may read the deposition of one defendant not only for another, but for the plaintiff likewise. Yet if such defendant who is offered in evidence for another defendant, may not necessarily, but by possibility only, be liable to costs, it is always a reason for refusing his evidence. Barret v. Gore, 3 Ark. 401.

Plaintiff is entitled to the evidence of any of the defendants; but then there must be a suggestion in the order, that such defendant is not interested in the event of the cause. Meudbury v. Isdall, 9 Mod. 438.

There was a charge in a bill against several defendants, one of whom plaintiff wished to examine as a witness against the other. Both of the defendants had put in their answer, and plaintiff did not reply to one, but left the charge as to him standing in the bill. Per cur. If his case comes out to be true, he is entitled to a decree against both, and a contribution; so that they are both interested in the event, and plaintiff cannot be entitled to either of the evidence. He ought to have moved to amend, and struck out the charge against the defendant he would examine, and then he might have been admitted; as it is, he cannot. S. C.

The rule is the same in equity as at law; that if among several defendants there be one against whom plaintiff cannot give any material evidence, he may be examined as a witness for a co-defendant. Piddock v. Brown, 3 P. W. 287.

Motion on behalf of plaintiff for leave to examine a co-plaintiff, as a witness to prove a will, refused. Hungate v. Fothergill, 2 Fowl. 125.

A defendant having been examined under the usual order as a witness, plaintiff may have a decree against him upon other matters to which he was not examined. Nightingale v. Dodd, Amb. 583. S. C. Mos. 229. PR. PARTY DEFENDANT.

It is irregular to order a plaintiff to be examined de bene esse, saving just exceptions; though such an order to examine defendant may be made. Cochran v. Corp., 1 P. W. 595.

A party whilst disinterested, was examined as a witness; afterwards he became interested, yet his depositions shall be read. Cross v. Tracey, 1 P. W. 287. 2 Ves. 699. Drury v. Drury, Toth. 146. So the deposition of a witness rejected at the hearing on the ground of interest, but afterwards obtaining a release, may be read. Callow v. Mince, Prec. Chanc. 235. RELEASE.

The reason why a plaintiff cannot be examined is, because if the cause miscarries, he will be liable to costs, and therefore he is swearing to exempt himself, and it is his own choice that he is a plaintiff; but a defendant is forced into the cause; and therefore any defendants to a suit may be examined as witnesses, saving just exceptions to their credit. Diet. in Casey v. Breachfield, Proc. Chan. 411. Gillb. 98. And on the same principle a prochein ami may be examined. Bird v. Owen, Mos. 312.

If a man unnecessarily make any one a defendant, he thereby cuts himself off from the benefit of his evidence, for it is his own fault. But where several are made defendants, it will not hinder any one of the defendants from the benefit of the evidence of any others that are made so. Indeed, in case of trustees, it is necessary that they be made defendants, and therefore there the plaintiff may have the benefit of their evidence. Gibson v. Albert, 10 Mod. 19.

And the rule extends to any person made defendant for form sake, as well as to a mere trustee. Man v. Warr, 2 Atk. 228.

Although it is an order of course that defendant may be examined de bene esse, saving just exceptions, yet when on the hearing it appears that the defendants who had been examined were parties interested, it is proper to shew cause against such an order before the witnesses be examined. Glover v. Faulkner, 1 Vern. 451.

If one be named a defendant, who is proper to be a witness, plaintiff must be ordered to strike out his name before answer; but after answer he may, by order, examine him as a witness, though his name be not struck out of the bill, if he be otherwise competent, as if he disclaim, or have no interest, or only as a trustee. Anon. 2 Ch. Ca. 214.

Defendant is not to be examined, except it be in some very special cases, by express order of court, to sift out some fraud or practice pregnantly appearing to the court or otherwise, on plaintiff's offer to be concluded by the answer of defendant, without any liberty to disprove such answer, or to impeach him after of perjury. Id. Bacon's Ord., Beame's Ord. Ch. 31. The trial of the truth of the matter resting altogether in defendant's declaration, ordered that he be examined on interrogatories to be ministered by plaintiff; and if on his examination the matter fall not out for plaintiff, then plaintiff to pay defendant's costs, and the cause to be dismissed. Fytch v. Wymer, Cary, 64.

Defendant examined as a witness, where defendant only witness, and if no cause for plaintiff, latter pays costs. S. C. Id. 45.

Defendant, not principal, before examined in another suit on plaintiff's side, may be examined as witness in cause. Case of Kingston upon Thames, Cary, 21. 41.

Defendant was examined on interrogatories, and yet plaintiff was left to his proof. Lee v. Band, Toth. 85. Defendant on a hearing, when plaintiff's proofs served not, appointed to be examined. Belamy v. Radcliff, id.

(h) Of defendant on interrogatories.

See also ante, subdin. (j)

Third answer reported insufficient; defendant shall be examined on interrogatories, and shall stand committed till perfect answer made. 10 Gen. Order, 31 April, 1828.

The plaintiff has no right to notice of the defendant's examination. Farquharson v. Balfour, 1 Turn. & R. 203. Pr. Notice.

After a fourth answer reported insufficient, it is a motion of course, that the defendant shall be examined upon interrogatories, and stand committed. The interrogatories are to be settled by the master, and must go directly to the points to which the exceptions are sustained. The defendant, instead of putting in a written examination to the interrogatories, is to be examined personally upon them by the master. Id. 184. Pr. Insufficiency of Fourth Answer.

Mode of conducting the personal examination of a defendant upon interrogatories after a fourth insufficient answer. Id. 200.

Semble, the proper mode of discussing the insufficiency of the defendant's examination is, upon the old exceptions, with respect to any of the original interrogatories in the bill remaining unanswered, and upon new exceptions, with respect to any new questions which the master may have introduced in settling the interrogatories. The insufficiency of the examination, however, was in this case permitted to be shewn as cause against the defendant's discharge. Id. 203.

An examination may be quite sufficient, though it is untrue, and inconsistent with what has been sworn by the defendant in his answers. The principle of the court is, that the plaintiff must be satisfied with what the conscience of the defendants allows him to swear. Id. 204.

The object of the court, in directing the defendant to be examined upon the interrogatories, is, that upon that examination, he shall not be liberated out of custody till he has given a sufficient answer, not only to the questions contained in the bill, to which he has not before answered, but to every question which the master thinks may fairly arise out of the matter which may be contained in the answers to those questions, without putting the plaintiff to the trouble of amending his bill. Id. 202.

On plea found false, plaintiff is entitled to decree, and, if discovery is necessary, to examine defendant on interrogatories. Wood v. Strickland, 2 V. & B. 158. Pr. False Plea.

Defendant, after examination before master on account, may be re-examined on new interrogatories without order. Cornish v. Acton, Dick. 149.

Notice must be given before you can move to add new interrogatories for the examination of a defendant; on the examinations before put in, being reported insufficient, such an order obtained on a motion of course is irregular, and will be discharged. Anon. 3 Atk. 511. Pr. Notice.

After the defendant has been examined on interrogatories, and publication passed, the plaintiff ought not to have a commission to examine witnesses, in order to falsify the defendant's examination, this tending to multiply causes, and make them endless. Smith v. Turner, 3 P. W. 413. Pr. Commission to Examine; Pr. Publication.

Application that plaintiff be examined as witness, refused. Ly. Kilmurry v. Crew, Dick. 60.

After a decree against a corporation for a sum of money, and distringas issued out against them, court refused to give them any time, or to let them be examined on interrogatories, otherwise, if it was a distringas, on meane process. Harvey v. E. I. Comp., 1

2 Vern. 395. Pre. Ch. 129. S. C. CORPORATION; PR. DISTINGUAS.

If one be taken upon an attachment, either in process, or in execution after a decree, yet in both cases, on his appearing before the register, he is to be discharged, and to answer the interrogatories at large, not in custody; and if he be continued in custody, the court on motion, and appearing before the register, will discharge him. Danby v. Lawson, Prec. Chan. 110. PR. ATTACHMENT, DISCHARGE FROM.

Upon a decree for payment of money after a writ of execution, and an attachment returned, court refuses to give leave to defendant to be examined, unless he gives security to abide the decree. Roper v. Roper, 2 Vern. 91. PR. CONTEMPT; PR. DECREE.

Where a man is to perfect his answer upon interrogatories, or to be examined in four days, or stand committed; yet, if the party be in the country, he shall have a commission to take his examination. Anon., 1 Vern. 187. PR. CONTEMPT.

Defendant examined where he is the only evidence, and if no cause for plaintiff, plaintiff pays costs. Fyfield v. Vinore, Cary, 45.

A defendant, upon putting in a fourth insufficient answer, was ordered to be examined upon interrogatories. She obtained an order on motion, that one of her counsel should attend in the next room, or where she was examined, to advise her in every matter of law that she might need, and that her counsel should see the interrogatories, but not have a copy. Gover v. Baltinglass, 1 C. C. 66.

After plea overruled, the plaintiff put in three insufficient answers; the court did not think fit to commit him to be examined upon interrogatories, as if he had put in four insufficient answers. Coltworthy v. Mellish, 1 C. C. 279. Hawkins v. Croke, Mos. 384.

After a decree enrolled, in which was no order to examine the defendant upon interrogatories, the court would not order him to be examined to the discovery of deeds. Macklow v. Wilnot, 2 C. R. 18.

A plea and three insufficient answers, defendant is not to be examined on interrogatories. Coltworthy v. Mellish, 1 C. C. 279.

Costs of discovery refused; a commission having gone out, and defendant taking the benefit of it, cannot have all the costs. Noble v. Garland, 19 Ves. 376. S. C. Coop. 222. PR. COSTS; PR. DISCOV.

Where the party applying for a commission to examine witnesses, appears, from the nature of his case, to be entitled to it, the granting an injunction in the mean time is no more than a necessary consequence of that right. Nicol v. Verelst, 4 Bro. P. C. 416. INJUNC. TO STAY PROCS.

(3) When and how granted and obtained.

Where, in case of libel, the party injured, instead of proceeding by indictment, brings an action for damages, and the defendant pleaded, in justification, the truth of the matters, and filed a bill for a commission to examine witnesses abroad for discovery, and for an injunction, &c.; held, on demurrer, that the fact of the libel being an indictable offence, would not repel the right to the common defences in civil actions, and that the defendant was entitled to the ordinary means of proving the truth of his pleas: but such bill must show the materiality of the evidence to support his case at law, and the bill ought therefore to show what are the pleas, or refer to them so as to make them part of the bill; and it is not necessary to allege that the witnesses were residing in England at the time of the publishing of the libel. Maccarty v. Shackell, 1 Bli. N. S. 96. JURISDIC. IN CRIMINAL MATTERS.

A plaintiff is entitled to move for a commission to examine witnesses abroad as soon as the defendant has obtained an order for time, though he has neither filed his answer, nor is in contempt. Mendizabal v. Machado, 2 Russ. 540. PR. TIME TO ANSWER.

The original bill being for an account, and an injunction to restrain an action, and the injunction being dissolved on the merits nearly ten years after the bill was filed, the plaintiff filed a supplemental bill for a discovery, and commission to examine witnesses in aid of his defence to an action substantially the same; motion for the commission refused, with costs, on the ground of delay. Todd v. Aylwin, 1 Sim. 271. LACHES.

It is of course that a plaintiff, even after the peremptory order to speed his cause, should have an order for a commission to examine witnesses, with liberty to execute the same in term time. Field v.

It is always a question of circumstances whether, on granting commission abroad, the party obtaining it shall be required to bring the whole or any part of the money alleged to be due into court. Marryatt v. Noble, 1 McClell. & Y. 101. S. P. Jackson v. Strong, 13 Price, 309. PAYMT. INTO COURT.

Commission to examine in West Indies, on bill filed for discovery, in aid of an action at law brought by plaintiff, and for a commission, (not praying relief), ordered, on motion, although defendant's answer had not come in, time for answering having expired. Hibberson v. Cambridge, 13 Price, 396. PR. ANSWER; PR. MOTION.

A commission to examine abroad was granted before action was at issue, on motion for that purpose, (and for reviving an injunction dissolved as of course by order for enlarging time to show cause against dissolution of injunction being discharged), generally, on part of plaintiff necessary to his defence at law, witnesses residing at four different places in the West Indies, although his affidavit only mentioned two persons, both of whom reside at S. in the West Indies; if it appeared, by answer, that transactions took place in the West Indies generally. Jackson v. Strong, 13 Price, 309.

Bill for commission to examine abroad must allege that action has been brought. Angell v. Angell, 1 S. & S. 83. BILL.

Either party at law is entitled to assistance of court of equity to obtain commission to examine abroad. Defendant refusing from jurisdiction, service of subpoena to appear to bill for commission, on his attorney at law, ordered good service. Devis v. Turnbull, 6 Mad. 222. PR. SERVICE SUBPOENA, SUBSTITUTED.

Commission to examine, &c. directed to Benecolen in India, notwithstanding 13 G. 3. c. 63. s. 44. Baskett v. Torrey, id. 261. EAST INDIES.

Plaintiff on bill of discovery in aid of defence to action against him at law, may have, on motion at sittings after term, a commission to examine abroad, on payment of considerable part at least of plaintiff at law's demand into court, where cause at law is at issue, and was entered for trial, the term before the term immediately preceding the sittings, and a case of defence has been stated by bill; although the affidavit on which it has been moved, is in the common form; the delay in staying the trial not being a sufficient ground of opposition to such an application. Elden v. Prince, 8 Pri. 290. PAYMT. INTO COURT.

Commission to examine abroad, is not incidental to discovery, therefore it does not follow that where court refuses discovery, it will refuse commission. Thorpe v. Marauley, 5 Mad. 219. PL. DISCOVERY.

Commission to examine abroad, is so far in nature of proceeding at law, that application for it is stayed by injunction to stay proceeding at law. Novnes v. Dorrion, 4 Mad. 362. PR. INJUNCTION TO STAY PROCEEDINGS AT LAW, EFFECT OF.

On bill for discovery, you cannot move before answer, or unless defendant is in contempt, for commission abroad. King v. Allen, 4 Mad. 247. PR. ANSWER.

On a bill for discovery, and a commission to examine witnesses abroad, in aid of the defence to an action, the plaintiff having obtained the common injunction for want of an answer, was held entitled to a commission, and to extend the injunction to stay trial. Bowden v. Hodge, 2 Swan. 258. PR. INJUNC. EXTENDED TO STAY TRIAL.

Defendant, under circumstances allowed after examination, but before publication, to have commission to examine witnesses, as to whether witness for plaintiff who was examined, was not interested in suit. Vaughan v. Worrall, 2 Mad. 322. PR. EVIDENCE; WITNESSES, COMPETENCY OF.

Commission to examine witnesses abroad, will be granted under circumstances, on coming in of answer, although not prayed by original bill, and the injunction granted will be in meantime continued. Kensington v. White, 3 Pri. 164.

Commission to examine abroad before time for answering expired, refused. Chemant v. De la Cour, 1 Mad. 208.

Commission granted to examine witnesses abroad, before answer, the object of the suit being merely to obtain evidence for an action. Noble v. Garland, 19 Ves. 372. S. C. Coop. 222.

It is practice of the court of exchequer, not to grant a commission to examine witnesses abroad, until after answer, as in the case of policies of insurance; the bill praying equitable relief, viz. to deliver up for fraud, &c., though not going beyond the motion to dissolve the injunction, as an action will try the question. Id. 375.

Commission to examine abroad, granted to defendant who had cross-examined, but not examined in chief under commission sued out by plaintiff. Sheward v. Sheward, 2 V. & B. 116.

Order for a commission to examine witnesses abroad, returnable without delay, pending an injunction against an action, without paying the money into court. Cock v. Donnan, 3 V. & B. 76. PR. INJUNCTION; PR. PAYMT. INTO COURT.

Where a vessel has been seized by the officers of the customs, on charges of offences against other acts of parliament than that usually called the Navigation Act; if, on the trial of the information filed thereon, the question be likely to turn on the fact of the ship belonging to a foreign subject, the court will, on motion, (a bill having been filed against the attorney-general for that purpose,) grant the defendant a commission to examine persons residing abroad, and make it part of the order, that their depositions shall be received in evidence on the trial. Largoity v. Att. Gen. 2 Pri. 172.

Order made after publication, for liberty to take out a commission, and examine witnesses by general interrogatory, as to credit of witness who had been cross-examined, and as to such particular facts only as are not material to what is in issue in the cause. *Wood v. By the course of the court, where an account must necessarily be directed at the hearing, a commission before the hearing shall never be granted to examine witnesses beyond sea, when the granting such commission will delay the directing the account; and the proper time to apply for such commission is after the account is directed. Adams v. Bohun, Barnard. 270. 271.

After the defendant has been examined on interrogatories, and publication passed, the plaintiff ought not to have a commission to examine witnesses in order to falsify the defendant's examination, this tending to multiply causes, and make them endless. *Smith v. #### (4) Second commission.

If both parties join in commission, and on warning given, defendant brings his commissioners, but produces no witnesses, nor ministers interrogatories, but after seeks a new commission, it shall not be granted: but nevertheless on some extraordinary excuse for defendant's default, he may have liberty granted on special order to examine his witnesses in court on the former interrogatories, giving plaintiff notice, that he may examine also, if he will. Ld. Bacon's Ord. 1618. Beame's Ord. 31.

When one side produces and examines his witnesses, and the other does not, but prays a new commission, if it be granted, he shall bear all the charges of the renewed commission, both in court and in the country, for the charge and entertainment of the commissioners on both sides; and the other side shall be permitted to cross-examine the witnesses produced by him that renewed the commission; but if he will examine any other witnesses of his own, he should bear his own part of the charge. Ld. Clarendon's Ord. 1661. Beame's Ord. 198. Ld. Coventry's Ord. id. 72. 2 Fowl. 69. S. P.

He at whose instance a commission to examine, after a former commission executed and returned, is once renewed, and he by whose default a former commission was not executed, and thereupon it is renewed, shall, at his peril, examine all his witnesses by that renewed commission, or examine them in court, by the end of the term wherein the renewed commission is returnable. Ld. Clarendon's Ord. id. 198. Ld. Coventry's Ord. id. 73. Ord. Each. (23.) 2 Fowl. 69. S. P.

Where a plaintiff has executed a commission, the court will not grant a new one without affidavit, and a motion in court. Ord. Ch. Rel. 27th Nov. 1701. O'Keefe's Ed. 24.

Where witness has demurred to interrogatory as tending to subject him to a penalty, and demurrer is overruled as too general; it was ordered without costs, and that new commission should issue, plaintiff undertaking by interrogatories, to make no use of the answer for the purpose of enforcing such penalties. Jackson v. Benson, 1 Y. & J. 35. WAIVER OF PENALTIES; PR. INTERROG. TO EXAM. WITNESS.

Commission to examine witnesses abroad executed and returned; the defendant, who had not interrogatories prepared, not having had the opportunity of cross-examining, a new commission granted for that purpose; the defendant to state whom he wishes and undertakes to cross-examine; but the plaintiff's depositions not suppressed. Campbell v. Scougall, 19 Ves. 552. PR. CROSS-EXAMINATION.

Publication enlarged, and now commission to examine defendant's witnesses, issued on affidavit of ignorance of contents of former depositions. Dingle v. Rowe, Wightw. 99. PR. ENLARGING PUBLICATION.

A second commission granted on special circumstances. Tarbot v. —, 8 Ves. 315.

Bill to perpetuate testimony as to modus, being amended by adding an essential party, after the commission executed, but before publication, a new commission was granted. Bildeford v. Partridge, 3 Aust. 646. AMENDMENT OF BILL.

Where commissioners on one side do not attend, in order to have a new commission, the affidavit must state that the party, or his agents, have not seen, heard, or been informed of the depositions on the other side. Yeast v. Barber, 2 Bro. C. C. 1.

The plaintiff is first entitled to sue out a commission to examine witnesses, and if the defendant hath an opportunity to examine his witnesses, and doth not, he is not entitled to a new commission, but if the plaintiff neglect to sue out a commission, the defendant may. Barnesley v. Powell, Dick. 793. 3 Atk. 593.

But when the plaintiff's commissioners closed the commission before the proper time by mistake, and without the knowledge of the defendant or his solicitor; the court, after the depositions had been seen, granted a new commission, but confined the defendant to the proving exhibits, and examining to credit, and cross-examining a witness examined under the former commission, but he was not to examine new witnesses. Id. ib.

Defendant present at execution of commission, though without interrogatories, cannot have new commission. Mineve v. Row, Dick. 18. Sed contra, Corentry v. Coventry, id. 25.

A general affidavit of having material witnesses beyond sea, is not sufficient for a new commission, but the witnesses must be named in the affidavit, and the point mentioned to which they can materially depose. Anon. 1 Vern. 334. But it is sufficient to shew a probable cause for the granting such commission. Jessup v. Dupont, Barn. 192.

New commission, witnesses not appearing on former. Shepherd v. Shepherd, Cory, 111.

New commission to defendant; publication stayed of witness examined in court by plaintiff. Mackworth v. Swayfield, id. 112.

Where a party hath a commissioner present at the examination, he shall not have another commission to examine as to the merits, but upon a suggestion that exhibits after being proved, before the commissioners, had been altered, a new commission was granted to examine as to that point. Richardson v. Lourther, 1 C. C. 273.

(5) How discharged or abated.

After commission to examine abroad was sent, witness, before commission had reached its destination, returned to England, and motion made to examine him de bene esse, but refused, and held that bill must be amended. Atkins v. Palmer, 5 Mad. 19. PR. BILL, AMENDT. OF; PR. EXAMINATION DE BENE ESSE.

A commission being granted to examine witnesses at Algiers, the plaintiff died, by which in strictness the suit abated, but the witnesses were examined there before notice of plaintiff's death; the examination held regular, though one of the witnesses was yet living. Thompson's Case, 3 P. W. 195.

Motion is proper step to discharge order for commission to examine on master's certificate. Chaffin v. Wills, Dick. 377.

Feme sole sues out a commission to examine witnesses; before they are examined, she marries. Their depositions ordered to stand. Winter v. Dancie, Toth. 99. PR. ABATEMENT.

(6) Execution of, and of the commissioners thereto.

On a reference to two masters, to inquire into some regulations as to the examiners' office, they reported to the following effect, and on the 22d April, 1811, their report was confirmed:—"That the business of the examiners' office should, as nearly as could, be equally divided between the examiners, and the interrogatories which should be first brought into the examiners' office in every cause in which the surname of the plaintiff, or the plaintiff first named, should begin with any letter from A to K inclusive, should be directed to be delivered to the senior examiner, and that the interrogatories brought into the office in every other cause, should be delivered to the junior examiner; and that all the witnesses on behalf of the parties exhibiting such interrogatories should be examined by the examiner to whom the interrogatories should have been so delivered; and all interrogatories in the same cause for the adverse parties be delivered to the other examiner, and all witnesses proved on their behalf should be examined by him; and that where any interrogatories on behalf of defendants in a cause, not being all the defendants in that cause, should, in pursuance of the above regulations, have been delivered to any examiner, all interrogatories exhibited on behalf of any other defendants should be delivered to the same examiner, and he should examine the witnesses produced on behalf of such defendants; and that all interrogatories for the cross-examination of any witnesses should be delivered to the examiner who did not examine such witness in chief, and he should examine the said witness thereupon. But the masters certified that those regulations would be effectual only so long as the number of examiners was confined to two; but that if an increase in the number of examiners should be found necessary, other regulations would be requisite. They then certified what in their opinion were the proper periods and hours at which the office should open, and what days and periods were to be kept as holidays, and the office not to be open; (as to which, see the order more fully; also as to the fees and emoluments which the examiners and their clerks ought to receive, of which they formed a table annexed to their report); they also certified, that it was the duty of the examiners to examine all witnesses in any cause, upon the interrogatories delivered to them, and of the copying clerks to make copies of the depositions, and that it was also the duty of all the said persons to preserve the records of the said office, and to do all the other business for which fees were allowed them in the table of fees so annexed. And it was further ordered, that if any examiner, or clerk to any examiner, should receive any fees or emoluments whatsoever from the suitors, not warranted by the said order, such examiner or clerk, so offending, shall be liable to be removed from his said office, and be incapable of ever thereafter of holding any office in or under this court. Beame's Ord. 475.

In speeding commissions to examine witnesses, where the parties shall join in commission, the witnesses shall be examined by the commissioners alternately on the part of plaintiff or defendant, if the parties shall be respectively prepared with their witnesses for examination; but if not, the commissioners shall proceed with the examination of the witnesses of the party who shall have them ready to produce and be examined. And in all commissions to examine, the sworn clerk to the commissioner shall, at the end of each day on which the commission shall be proceeded in, at the foot of the depositions or proceedings on each day, truly state in a written memorandum, signed by him and the commissioners who attended, the number of hours during which the commission had been proceeded upon on each day; and if the same shall fall short of five hours per day, it shall be discretionary in the master, to whom the costs shall be referred to be taxed, to deduct from the commissioners' fees such sums as shall appear reasonable, taking into consideration the usual fee or compensation for the said period of five hours by the day. Ord. Ch. Irel. 27th Jan. 1815. O'Keefe's Ed. 115.

Commissioners are not to return one general deposition to several separate interrogatories, but to examine to and return a separate deposition to each interrogatory separately. Ord. Exch. 21st April, 1788. Kirkby's Ed. 43.

By Ord. Ch. Irel. 20th May, 1816, no extra commissioner (appointed under the 55 Geo. 3. c. 157.) shall appoint any time for the examination of witnesses, or continue any examination longer than within three days of the assign day of the term next ensuing such examination, unless by special order.

The examiner is to examine deponent to the interrogatories seriatim, and not to permit him to read over any other interrogatories, until that in hand be fully finished, much less is he to suffer deponent to have the interrogatories and pen his own depositions, or depart after hearing an interrogatory read over, until he has perfected his examination thereunto. And, if any witness shall refuse so to conform himself, the examiner is thereof to give notice to the clerk of the other side, and to proceed no further in his examination without such clerk's consent or order made in court to warrant his so doing. Ld. Clarendon's Ord. Ch. 1661. Beame's Ord. 187. Commissioners to set down the examination of every witness at large, without referring the testimony of one to another. Ord. Ch. Irel. 1639. O'Keefe's Ed. 9.

The examiners are themselves in person to be diligent in examination of witnesses, and not to intrust the same to inferior clerks, and are to take care to hold the witness to the point interrogated, and not to run into matters not pertinent to the question. Beame's Ord. 187.

The examiners to take care that they employ under them in their office, none but persons of known integrity and ability, who shall take an oath not to deliver or make known, directly or indirectly, to the adverse party, or any other save the deponent who comes to be examined in any of the interrogatories delivered to be examined upon, any examination by him taken or remaining in the examiner's office, or extract, copy, or breviate thereof, before publication be thereof passed, and copies thereof taken. And if any such deputy, clerk or person so employed, shall be found faulty in the premises, he shall be expelled the office, and the examiner who employed him also answerable to the court for such misdemeanor, and to the party grieved, for his costs and damages sustained thereby; and such solicitor or other person who shall be discovered to have had a hand therein, shall be liable to such censure as the court shall find just to inflict. Id. 189.

No witness shall be examined in court by the examiner, without the privity of the adverse party, or of his clerk, who deals for the adverse party, to whom the person to be examined shall be shewed, and a note of his name and place of dwelling delivered in writing by such as shall produce him, and the examiner is to take care and be well satisfied that such notice be given, and then shall add to the title of the witness's examination the time of such notice given, and the name of the person to whom it is given, and by whom, that at the hearing of the cause the same be not delayed upon a pretence of want of notice. Id. 185.

Order that a party detaining the exhibits, records, and writings belonging to the examiner's office, should, at his peril, deliver the same to the examiner duly sworn in. Ord. Ch. 21st June, 1660. Beame's Ord. 147.

No master to receive the depositions of any witness ready drawn; nor any clerk to any master to examine any witness or witnesses that shall be brought to be examined in any cause or matter that is depending in reference before any master, but that every master himself shall examine all witnesses upon every item of any interrogatory or interrogatories as shall be exhibited before them; and that the depositions of any witnesses which shall hereafter be taken contrary to the directions aforesaid shall be invalid, and not permitted to be read or made use of as evidence in any cause. Beame's Ord. 285.

One of the examining clerks in an examiner's office suspended till further order, for entrusting one who was no sworn clerk of such office, to transcribe part of the depositions of a witness examined by such examining clerk, in a cause depending, before the witness had perfected his examination, or publication passed in the cause. Id. 271.

No clerk of any of the masters examiners to take upon him, either by himself or any person under him, the managing or soliciting any cause in this court; and if any person so related to this court, or who shall hereafter be so related, shall be found to offend against this order, they shall not be suspended, but for their contempt stand committed to the Fleet. Id. 305.

Where commissioners of one side certified irregularity, and both or one of the other side made affidavit, the court ordered the commissioner on the other side to make affidavit too; for the court will in such case, order what is necessary for the discovery of the fact. Anon. Prac. alm. Cur. Canc. 19.

In all joint commissions to examine witnesses, and other special commissions directed by the court, the name of the commissioners agreed on shall be entered in a book for that purpose, to be kept by the six clerk who has the carriage of the commission, and subscribed unto by each six clerk in the cause, or their deputies, whereby no alteration may be had of the commissioners' names but by order. Beame's Ord. Ch. 112.

As to the oath of the commissioners (which they are empowered to administer to each other) and of their clerks, vide Beame's Ord. 328. In the Exch. 2 Fowl. Ex. Pr. 65. In Ireland, see O'Keefe's Ord. 55. By this order the oaths are directed to be annexed to the commission, and to be signed by the commissioners, and their clerks, mentioning the day of the month, year, and place, where such oaths were taken, and before whom, and to be returned so signed, with the dominicals, interrogatories, commission, and depositions. By the last mentioned Ord. Ch. (Irel.) no clerk is to act on any commission that shall not be settled and agreed on between the clerks concerned in the cause, in the same course and manner as the commissioners are settled; and if they cannot agree, then such clerk shall be appointed by a master, who in such appointment is to consider not only the integrity and ability of such clerk, but also that he is in no way concerned as agent, solicitor, or any way in the interest of any of the parties. O'Keefe, 57. For the oath of the extraordinary commissioners appointed under the act of 55 Geo. 3. c. 157., for examining witnesses, &c. vide the 6th section of the same act.

When the parties are at issue, each party is to name, such commissioner as shall be indifferent, and not allied to, nor any way dependent on him that gives in the names. O'Keefe's Ed. 8. Commissioners' names must be served ten running days before the motion for a commission, ex parte. Id. 61. But six running days are to be deemed sufficient. Id. 115.

Service of commissioners' names shall be on the six clerk and solicitor of the party, at his registered lodgings; and on the six clerks admitting such service in the usual way, the registrar shall enter the usual rule to return commissioners in four days, or in default, a commission to issue to such commissioners as a master shall appoint; and the master may proceed on the first summons served, to strike such commissioners' names. When plaintiff shall have served commissioners' names to examine, which defendant, after striking out two in the usual way, shall have returned, and shall have returned therewith in the usual way, four names as commissioners on his part, which he must in like manner serve upon plaintiff's six clerk and solicitor at his registered lodgings, plaintiff shall at the end of eight running days from such service, return the names of the commissioners so served by defendant, to his six clerk and solicitor, at his registered lodgings, striking out two, and letting two to stand as commissioners, and the commission to examine shall be in the usual manner issued and directed to such four commissioners, and in default of plaintiff so returning the names served upon defendant's part, as commissioners, the commission; whether issued by plaintiff or defendant, shall issue to the two commissioners named upon plaintiff's part, and permitted by defendant to remain, and the two first commissioners named in the list returned by defendant. And defendant may in all the aforesaid cases issue a duplicate commission to the commissioners named and struck as herein-before directed, and give notice of the speeding thereof as usual. The same rules mutatis mutandis, to apply to defendant's entering the general rule to examine, and serving commissioners' names, and proceeding to examine. O'Keefe's Ord. 115.

Depositions taken by commission suppressed, it appearing that the evidence had been taken by the clerk to the commissioners, and that the effect of some of the depositions had been communicated to the agent on the other side. Lennox v. Munnings, 2 Y. & J. 483. PR. DEPOSITIONS, SUPPRESSION OF.

Under special circumstances the court will permit a commissioner to be examined, even after the commission has been opened, and the examination of witnesses proceeded with. Grubb v. Grubb, 1 Y. & J. 36.

Rule as to costs of commission to examine abroad is, that they are to be borne by party obtaining it, but if opposite party examines under it in chief, he pays proportionate share. Jackson v. Strong, 13 Price, 309. PR. COSTS.

Court cannot extend time mentioned in a commission to examine. Hull v. De Tastet, 6 Mad. 269. PR. TIME, ENLARGEMENT.

Depositions on part of defendant, suppressed after publication, because the clerk of defendant's solicitor acted as clerk to commissioners. Cooke v. Wilson, 4 Mad. 380. PR. EVIDENCE; DEPOSITIONS SUPPRESSED.

On a bill for discovery, and a commission to examine foreign witnesses in aid of an action at law, a motion that the plaintiff might communicate to the defendant the interrogatories exhibited by him, was refused. Butler v. Bulkeley, 2 Swan. 373. PR. INTERROGATORIES.

A deposition de bene esse having been read at the hearing of a cause, it is of course, if any issue is directed, to order it to be read on the trial, notwithstanding an irregularity in the examination which might have been effectually objected to at the hearing. Whether the court will suppress a deposition taken before commissioners, of whom one is attorney in a cause in Scotland between the same parties, on the same question; qu? Gordon v. Gordon, 1 Swan. 166. PR. EVIDENCE; DEPOSITIONS DE BENE ESSE.

Where it appeared that no notice of the execution of a commission was given until after publication, depositions taken on plaintiff's part were suppressed as against some of the defendants. But on evidence that the omission arose from a mistake of the clerk to plaintiff's solicitor in giving at the examiner's office, the name of the clerk in court for others of the defendants, as the name of the clerk in court for all the defendants, in consequence of which plaintiff's witnesses were produced only at the seat of the clerk in court so named, and on the examiner's certificate that the name of that clerk in court only was delivered to him, the Ld. Ch. gave defendants the option either of permitting plaintiff to re-examine the same witnesses, or of allowing the depositions to stand, with leave to cross-examine those witnesses, and examine others. Chalmers v. Clinton, 2 Meriv. 81.

Commissioners for examination of witnesses are to act impartially, though to a certain extent they have under their particular care, the interest of the party appointing them. Campbell v. Scougall, 19 Ves. 553.

The practice in country causes is to send the commissioners from time to time with interrogatories, as the witnesses could be presented, either for original or cross-examination, until the commissioners find the supply is exhausted. The Ch. said, the practice was formerly different, and with reference to the general practice both as to commissioners in the country and abroad, he should require the masters, to certify the practice. But his lordship said, that in this country where commissions have been executed, and even where no interrogatories have been exhibited, or are ready, the court has sometimes granted, and sometimes refused, a new commission, at the instance of such a defendant not having interrogatories ready, making it a subject of discretion in each particular case; but this discretion ought to be exercised with every deliberate attention to circumstances; and the course is not to suppress the depositions under the first commission, but (if necessary, and a regular account given) to grant defendant a new commission. Id. ib.

Form of separate examination of a married woman, taken by commission. Exp. Bryant, 1 V. & B. 507. FEME COVERT.

Depositions, before publication suppressed; being taken by the commissioners ready prepared: the witness being agent in the cause; and the mode, in which the court receives the information, whether from the commissioners or otherwise, is not material. The commission directed to proceed, for the purpose only of re-examining that witness; substituting another commissioner for one, who having refused to qualify, was not permitted to be present at the examination. This order not to prevent the court's opening the depositions, if a case of necessity should arise; as, if the witness could not again be examined. Depositions suppressed, the commissioners having employed the clerk of one of the parties as their clerk. Shaw v. Lindsey, 15 Ves. 380.

Discretion of commissioners taking depositions, not to examine each witness to all the interrogatories, and to reject what is not evidence. Whitelock v. Baker, 13 Ves. 511.

Where commission is executed abroad, their sending it out, and the receiving it back again, must be proved by affidavit. Bourdillon v. Alleyne, 4 Bro. C. C. 100.

Depositions suppressed, plaintiff's solicitor being one of commissioners. Selwyn v. Gill, Dick. 563.

Depositions taken in India where no proper stamps could be had, ordered on motion, of course, to be engrossed on parchment and stamped. Chitty v. F. I. Company, 2 Cox, 190. STAMPS; PR. ENGROSSMENT OF PROCEEDINGS.

Costs of solicitor attending execution of commission abroad, not allowed. Hamond v. Wordsworth, Dick. 381.

A plaintiff may serve any two of defendant's commissioners with notice of the execution of a commission, and is not bound to those only whom defendant might choose; otherwise, if the two commissioners, chosen by defendant should be absent or dead, the commission could not be executed, wherefore the court suffers four on each side. Anon, 3 Atk. 633.

If a commission be taken out in vacation, and has not a certain return, it does not expire the first day of the following term, but may be continued in execution the whole of the next term to the last return. Barnsley v. Powell, 3 Atk. 593.

A commission to take an answer of a person resident in a foreign country at war with us, must be executed in that very country; a commission to examine witnesses is executed at the nearest neutral port. — v. Romney, Amb. 62. PR. COMMISSION TO TAKE ANSWER.

Commissioners, on affidavits of the facts, were attached for refusing to examine a witness because he was illiterate, and the witness was afterwards ordered to be examined by an examiner. Reilly v. Reilly.

How. Pr. Ex. Irel. 593. And it is said, id. that on complaint of an irregular examination, an examiner has been ordered to answer personal interrogatories, and not admitted to have a copy of them. Before the commencement of any suit between the parties, affidavits were made by certain persons in order to attest what passed in their presence, with a view, as it appeared, of vindicating the character of the present appellant. A suit being afterwards commenced, the same persons were examined on interrogatories as witnesses in the cause, and after publication passed, their depositions appeared to be in several instances in the same words as the affidavits they had before voluntarily made. This was held no ground for suppressing these depositions. Bland v. Archbp. of Armagh, 3 Bro. P. C. 620.

If there be a general demand of tithes, and a general replication put in, if plaintiff on the commission gives notice that he will proceed only as to certain matters, it is as well as if the demand had been abridged in the replication.—Sed qu. Anon. Bunb. 22.

Commission executed after four in the afternoon, held regular. Moreton v. Moreton, Dick. 21.

Deposition of witnesses taken under commission, the title of which was mistaken, ordered to stand till mistake rectified. Robert v. Millesch-emp, 10. 21.

Depositions suppressed for misbehavior of the commissioners, and a new commission, directed to other commissioners, ordered to issue. Delore v. Day, 2 Fowl. 158.

Plaintiff and defendant having joined in a commission, witnesses were examined on both sides; the commissioners of one party were present while the witnesses of the other were examined, and cross-examined them, and exhibited interrogatories before the commissioners, and examined several witnesses on their part, and having thereby discovered what the witness had sworn, they exhibited other interrogatories before a baron in London, differing in many material points from the interrogatories before the commissioners. Depositions taken on those interrogatories varying from those exhibited before the commissioners, ordered to be suppressed. Durham v. Newcastle on Tyne, Colles' P. C. 18.

A joint commission to examine on both parts, directed to three, four, or two commissioners; three met and examined witnesses, and appointed a new day to examine more; defendant's commissioners carried away the commission, and came not at the day appointed. Plaintiff's commissioners then came and examined witnesses, without having the commission, and certified these with the former depositions taken, and the whole matter. The court ordered the depositions certified to be sealed up again, and remain in court, and awarded a subpoena duces tecum against the commissioners to bring in the commission, and thereupon the court would take further order. Anon. Prac. Reg. 126.

A commissioner ordered to be examined to prove a deed, and an interrogatory to be added for the purpose. Maude v. Hartley, 2 Fowl. 99. A commissioner may be examined without an order, but he must be examined before any other witness. Id. Bright v. Woodward, 1 Vern. 392.

Depositions suppressed, because the solicitor's clerk in the cause, did write as a clerk to the commissioners in the execution of the commission. Newte v. Foot, 2 C. R. 393.

Defendant's commissioners met at the time and place appointed, but refused to act in the execution of the commission; upon affidavit of which, the court ordered defendant to name other commissioners. The court doubted whether an attachment lay against defendant's commissioners. — v. Fortescue, Hardr. 170.

Solicitor in the cause cannot be a commissioner, or the depositions will be suppressed. Fricker v. Moore, Bun. 289.

Upon commission, notice only given to one of defendant's; new commission is granted, and defendants to have carriage. Hollingsworth v. Lucy and others, Cary, 91.
